ORDER MODIFYING OPINION AND DENYING PETITION FOR REHEARING
[No Change in Judgment]

GOOD CAUSE appearing, the opinion filed November 17, 2011, in the above entitled matter is hereby modified as follows:

On page 2, last paragraph, second sentence that reads:

One seemingly incriminating, but eventually debunked, link between Montiel and Taracena was the fact that Montiel's brother was related by marriage to a man named Gustavo Valdiva, which was the name of one of Taracena's accomplices.

Should be deleted and replaced with the following sentence:

One seemingly incriminating, but eventually debunked, link between Montiel and Taracena was the fact that Montiel's brother was related by marriage to a man who shared the same last name – Valdiva – as Gustavo Valdiva, who was one of Taracena's accomplices.

On page 4, first paragraph, second sentence that reads:

First, she conducted the Choicepoint search of Montiel's relative without Montiel's approval (a claim which we have noted the jury implicitly rejected).

Should be deleted and replaced with the following sentence:

First, she conducted the Choicepoint search of Gustavo Valdiva without Montiel's approval (a claim which we have noted the jury implicitly rejected).

On page 11, first full paragraph, third sentence that reads:

The gravamen of Cordero-Sacks's claim is that the Authority fired her for her Choicepoint searches of Gustavo Valdiva, who was related by marriage to the Authority's president, Rudolf Montiel.

Should be deleted and replaced with the following sentence:

The gravamen of Cordero-Sacks's claim is that the Authority fired her for her Choicepoint searches of Gustavo Valdiva, who shared the last name of a man related by marriage to the brother of the Authority's president, Rudolf Montiel.

There is no change in judgment.

The petition for rehearing is denied.
