

UNITED STATES COURT OF APPEALS FOR THE SECOND CIRCUIT

August Term, 2014

(Submitted: March 30, 2015)

(Decided: February 1, 2016)

Docket No. 14-1921-cr

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,

Appellee,

-versus-

KAYLON B. PRUITT,

Defendant-Appellant,

23 Before: POOLER, Circuit Judge, and GLEESON,¹ District Judge.²

²⁵ Kaylon Pruitt appeals from the 46-month term of imprisonment imposed upon him.

26 him after his plea of guilty to being a felon in possession of a firearm. He contends that

²⁷ the district court failed to explain the reasons for the sentence, as required by 18 U.S.C. §

²⁸ 3553(c). Applying plain error review, we find no such error but write to suggest to the

¹ The Honorable John Gleeson, United States District Court for the Eastern District of New York, sitting by designation.

² Judge Susan L. Carney, a member of the original panel, subsequently recused herself. Therefore, this case is decided by the two remaining members of the panel pursuant to Internal Operating Procedure E(b) of the Rules of the United States Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit.

1 United States Sentencing Commission and the Judicial Conference of the United States
2 that the Statement of Reasons form that all sentencing judges are required to use be
3 amended to bring it into conformity with the law.

4 Affirmed.

7 JAMES F. GREENWALD (James P. Egan, on the brief),
8 Assistant Federal Public Defender, for Lisa A. Peebles,
9 Federal Public Defender for the Northern District of New York,
10 Syracuse, NY.

11
12 RICHARD R. SOUTHWICK (Steven D. Clymer, on the brief), 13 Assistant United States Attorneys, for Richard S. Hartunian, United 14 States Attorney for the Northern District of New York, Syracuse, 15 NY, for Appellee.

16
17 JOHN GLEESON, District Judge:

18
19 Kaylon Pruitt appeals from the May 29, 2014 judgment of conviction entered 20 against him in the United States District Court for the Northern District of New York
21 (Suddaby, J.). Pruitt was sentenced principally to a 46-month term of imprisonment on 22 his plea of guilty to being a felon in possession of a firearm, in violation of 18 U.S.C. §
23 922(g). He contends that the district court committed procedural error during his 24 sentencing by failing to explain the reasons for the sentence, as required by 18 U.S.C. § 25 3553(c).

26
27 We affirm but write to suggest to the United States Sentencing Commission and the Judicial Conference of the United States that the Statement of Reasons form

- 1 included within the statutorily-required form for the entry of criminal judgments --
- 2 Form AO 245B -- be amended to bring it into conformity with § 3553(c) and Supreme
- 3 Court precedent. Specifically, a check-a-box section of the form, which was checked by
- 4 the district court in this case, invites sentencing judges to impose a sentence within the
- 5 applicable Guidelines range simply because the judge finds no reason to depart.
- 6 Because that both undermines the statutory obligation to state the reasons for every
- 7 sentence and unlawfully presumes the reasonableness of the advisory Guidelines range,
- 8 the form should be amended.

BACKGROUND

10 On October 15, 2013, a New York State Parole Officer conducted an 11 unannounced home visit of Pruitt's housemate, who was on parole. Pruitt, believing
12 the officer might be an intruder, went to the door with a shotgun. The parole officer
13 drew his weapon and directed the 22-year-old Pruitt to lower the shotgun. Pruitt
14 complied. A subsequent search of the home revealed that Pruitt was abusing drugs.

15 On November 20, 2013, a grand jury returned a one-count indictment charging 16 Pruitt with being a felon in possession of a firearm. The underlying conviction, which 17 occurred in 2009 in South Carolina, was for burglary in the second degree. Pruitt pled
18 guilty to the only charge against him on January 16, 2014.

19 Pruitt appeared for sentencing on May 21, 2014. The presentence report
20 calculated his Guidelines range to be 37-46 months. It described Pruitt's difficult

1 upbringing in a gang-infested South Carolina neighborhood and his mental health
2 history (which included behavioral, emotional, and psychiatric problems, and suicide
3 attempts). It also described additional criminal charges arising out of Pruitt's conduct
4 while in custody after his arrest in this case. Specifically, Pruitt allegedly 5 inappropriately touched a nurse outside her clothing and then punched and threatened
6 the corrections officer who reacted to the touching by trying to restrain Pruitt.

7 Defense counsel, relying on Pruitt's upbringing and mental health issues,
8 requested a sentence of no greater than 36 months, the bottom of the advisory 9 Guidelines range. For its part, the government requested a sentence at the top of the 10 range, contending that Pruitt was a "dangerous" man "from whom society needs to be 11 protected." App'x at 48.

12 Immediately after hearing the arguments of counsel,³ the district court stated as 13 follows:

14 Okay. [The] Court's prepared to impose sentence.
15 The Court has reviewed and considered all the pertinent
16 information including but not limited to the presentence
17 investigation report, the addendum, submissions by counsel,
18 and the 2013 edition of the Sentencing Guidelines manual, as 19 well as the factors outlined in 18 U.S.C. [§] 3553(a). The 20 court adopts the factual information and the guideline
21 applications contained in the presentence investigation
22 report.

³ Pruitt declined his opportunity to be heard at sentencing.

1 The court finds the total offense level is 17, the 2 criminal history category is IV and the guideline
3 imprisonment range is 37 to 46 months.

4 Upon your plea of guilty on Count 1 of the 5 indictment, it is the judgment of the court that you are 6 hereby committed to the custody of the Bureau of Prisons for 7 a period of 46 months.

8 App'x at 50-51.

9 On May 29, 2014, the district court entered judgment on Form AO 245B. The 10 form is entitled "Judgment in a Criminal Case," and it provides a framework for judges 11 to memorialize any prison term imposed, any supervised release or probation term and 12 the conditions of such supervision, any criminal monetary penalties (i.e., fine, 13 restitution, assessments), and any denials of federal benefits. Most important to this 14 appeal is the attachment to the form, entitled "Statement of Reasons." In Section I of the 15 Statement of Reasons, which is headed "Court Findings on Presentence Investigation 16 Report," the district court checked the box next to the statement, "The court adopts the 17 presentence investigation report without change." In Section IV, headed "Advisory 18 Guideline Sentencing Determination," the district court checked the box next to the 19 statement, "The sentence is within an advisory range that is not greater than 24 months, 20 and the court finds no reason to depart."

21 This appeal followed.

DISCUSSION

A. The Adequacy of the District Court's Statement of Reasons

Pruitt contends that the district court committed procedural error at the sentencing proceeding by failing to offer a sufficient explanation for the 46-month, top-of-the-range sentence. He seeks a vacatur of the sentence and a remand directing the district court to either provide such an explanation or to conduct a new sentencing proceeding.

In evaluating whether a sentence is reasonable, we focus, inter alia, on whether the district court committed a significant procedural error, “such as failing to calculate (or improperly calculating) the Guidelines range, treating the Guidelines as mandatory, failing to consider the § 3553(a) factors, selecting a sentence based on clearly erroneous facts, or failing to adequately explain the chosen sentence” Gall v. United States, 552 U.S. 38, 51 (2007). Where, as here, there was no objection below to the action that is challenged on appeal, we generally review only for plain error. Fed. R. Crim. P. 52(b); United States v. Hargrett, 156 F.3d 447, 451 (2d Cir. 1998).

16

Under § 3553(c), the sentencing judge in every case is required to “state in open court the reasons for its imposition of the particular sentence,” and must do so “at the time of sentencing.” The district court in this case did not comply with that requirement. It should have explained the reasons for Pruitt’s sentence at the time it was imposed. Had it done so, review by this Court may not even have been sought by

1 Pruitt, and in any event it would have been made easier by the explanation. Most 2 importantly, Pruitt would have received what every defendant deserves: a 3 contemporaneous oral explanation by the judge for the sentence imposed. However,
4 this Court has excused such failures on plain error review where, as here, the district
5 court has adopted the presentence investigation report in open court and the factual
6 findings in the report are adequate to support the sentence. See, e.g., United States v.
7 Molina, 356 F.3d 269, 277 (2d Cir. 2004). Because the district court in this case explicitly 8 adopted in open court the factual findings of the presentence report, and those facts 9 provide adequate support for the sentence, we are constrained by our precedent to 10 conclude that there was no plain error.

11 B. The Statement of Reasons Form

12 Our conclusion that Pruitt's sentence should be affirmed does not alleviate our 13 concern with one facet of the record: the district court's finding -- made by checking a 14 box on the Statement of Reasons form -- that "[t]he sentence is within an advisory 15 guideline range that is not greater than 24 months, and the court finds no reason to 16 depart." If that were the only reason provided by the district court for the sentence 17 imposed upon Pruitt, we would be compelled to reverse and remand for a new 18 sentencing proceeding. Because the form is prescribed by law, see 28 U.S.C. § 994(w)⁴

⁴ In March 2006, President Bush signed into law the USA PATRIOT Improvement and Reauthorization Act of 2005, Pub. L. 109-177, 120 Stat. 192 (2006), which amended 28 U.S.C. § 994(w) to require that the reasons for the sentence imposed in every case be "stated on the written statement of

1 we urge the Sentencing Commission and the Judicial Conference of the United States to 2 amend it.

3 The genesis of our concern is two-fold. First, as mentioned above, § 3553(c)
4 requires sentencing judges to state the reasons for every sentence they impose. Second,
5 whereas appellate courts are permitted, if they wish, to presume the reasonableness of a 6 within-range sentence, sentencing judges are strictly forbidden from doing so. Rita v.
7 United States, 551 U.S. 338, 351 (2007); see also Nelson v. United States, 555 U.S. 350, 351
8 (2009) (“The Guidelines are not only not mandatory on sentencing courts; they are also 9 not to be presumed reasonable.”). A sentencing judge cannot choose a sentence within 10 the applicable range simply because there is no reason not to do so.

11 The overwhelming majority of cases -- in FY 2014 it was 82.3% -- involve 12 Guideline ranges that are not wider than 24 months.⁵ Sentencing judges in every one of 13 those cases are (1) required by § 3553(c) to state the reasons for the sentence imposed, 14 and (2) precluded by Rita and Nelson from presuming the reasonableness of the 15 sentence imposed simply because it happens to be within the advisory range. The reasons form issued by the Judicial Conference and approved by the United States Sentencing Commission.” 28 U.S.C. § 994(w)(1)(B). In the immediate aftermath of the latter legislation, the Judicial Conference issued, and the Sentencing Commission approved, Form AO 245B. As discussed below, the form was amended after the oral argument in this case.

⁵ The table for “Offenders in Each Guidelines Range” on the Commission’s Sourcebook of Federal Sentencing Statistics shows that in Fiscal Year 2014, 82.3% of the 67,672 sentenced defendants for which the Commission had information had ranges of 97-121 months or less. See U.S. SENTENCING COMM’N, 2014 Sourcebook of Federal Sentencing Statistics, Table 23 (2014), available at http://www.ussc.gov/sites/default/files/pdf/research-and-publications/annual-reports-and-sourcebooks/2014/Table23.pdf.

1 Statement of Reasons form undermines both the statute and the Supreme Court case 2 law.

3 Specifically, for those cases, the form sets forth in Section IV three possible
4 "Guideline Sentencing Determinations," denominated A, C, and D. A judge checks box
5 A when the sentence imposed is within the advisory Guidelines range. No reasons for a 6 within-range sentence need be provided. In fact, simply by checking box A, the judge is 7 finished with Section IV of the form. If the judge sentences outside the range, however,
8 more is required. Box C is checked when the sentencing judge has "departed" from the 9 applicable range, that is, sentenced outside the range for a reason authorized by the 10 Guidelines themselves. Box D is checked when the sentencing judge has "varied" from 11 the applicable range, that is, sentenced outside of it not based on an authorized 12 departure ground, but because the Guidelines are merely advisory and the facts of the 13 case warrant the variance.⁶ Whereas a within-range sentence need not be explained
14 (and no room to do so is even provided), a judge who checks box C or D has additional 15 work to do. She must complete Section V (for a departure) or VI (for a variance), which 16 both involve a check-a-box grid to report which of numerous possible features are 17 present in the case, followed by a direction to explain the reasons for the sentence.

⁶ Box B pertains to sentences where the applicable range is wider than 24 months and the sentence imposed is within the range.

1 In short, the required form conveys to sentencing judges that as long as they stay
2 within a range that is not wider than 24 months, no reasons for the sentence are 3 necessary. That message conflicts with the mandate in § 3553(c) -- and may well
4 account for wholly unexplained sentences like the one imposed in this case. Moreover,
5 the only conceivable rationale for not requiring even a single reason for a within-range 6 sentence is that such a sentence is presumed reasonable simply because it is within the 7 range. As mentioned above, Supreme Court precedent prohibits such a presumption.

8 Finally, the Statement of Reasons form was recently amended, but the 9 amendments do not ameliorate the concerns expressed here. Box A in Section IV now
10 reads as follows: "The sentence is within the guideline range and the difference
11 between the maximum and minimum of the guideline range does not exceed 24
12 months."⁷ It remains the case that no reasons need be provided for such within-range 13 sentences; presumably they are considered reasonable because they are within the range.

14 Though we understand that this aspect of the Statement of Reasons form
15 implicates broader issues as well,⁸ our focus here is quite narrow: § 3553(c) requires a

⁷ A copy of the amended form is attached to this opinion.

⁸ The form as a whole seems designed to encourage judges to sentence within the range. A path of least resistance is clearly marked, and it is consistent with the Commission's overall approach to sentencing in the post-Booker era. In United States v. Booker, 543 U.S. 220 (2005), the Supreme Court held that the mandatory guidelines system was incompatible with the Sixth Amendment right to trial by jury, and it accordingly severed the provision of the Act that made the Guidelines mandatory. The Sentencing Commission has since repeatedly asked Congress to enact legislation requiring sentencing courts to give greater weight to the Guidelines range than Booker and its progeny permit. The specific proposals include laws that would require sentencing judges give "substantial weight" to the advisory Guidelines range

1 statement of reasons for every sentence, and the Supreme Court has made it clear that a
2 sentencing judge must never presume that a within-range sentence is reasonable.
3 Because the Statement of Reasons form undermines both of those mandates, we 4 respectfully suggest to the Judicial Conference and the Sentencing Commission that it 5 be amended accordingly.

and require appellate courts to accord a presumption of reasonableness to within-range sentences. Thus, the objectionable part of Statement of Reasons form may reflect the law as the Commission wants it to be.

 - 3. Chapter Four of the United States Sentencing Commission Guidelines Manual determinations by court: (briefly summarize the changes, including changes to criminal history category or scores, career offender status, or criminal livelihood determinations)
 - 4. Additional Comments or Findings: (include comments or factual findings concerning any information in the presentence report, including information that the Federal Bureau of Prisons may rely on when it makes inmate classification, designation, or programming decisions; any other rulings on disputed portions of the presentence investigation report; identification of those portions of the report in dispute but for which a court determination is unnecessary because the matter will not affect sentencing or the court will not consider it)
- C. The record establishes no need for a presentence investigation report pursuant to Fed.R.Crim.P. 32.

II. COURT FINDING ON MANDATORY MINIMUM SENTENCE (Check all that apply)

- A. One or more counts of conviction carry a mandatory minimum term of imprisonment and the sentence is at or above the applicable mandatory minimum term.
- B. One or more counts of conviction carry a mandatory minimum term of imprisonment, but the sentence imposed is below a mandatory minimum term because the court has determined that the mandatory minimum term does not apply based on:
 - findings of fact in this case: (Specify)
 - substantial assistance (18 U.S.C. § 3553(e))
 - the statutory safety valve (18 U.S.C. § 3553(f))
- C. No count of conviction carries a mandatory minimum sentence.

VII. COURT DETERMINATIONS OF RESTITUTION

- A. Restitution Not Applicable.
- B. Total Amount of Restitution: $ _____
- C. Restitution not ordered: (Check only one)

1. For offenses for which restitution is otherwise mandatory under 18 U.S.C. § 3663A, restitution is not ordered because the number of identifiable victims is so large as to make restitution impracticable under 18 U.S.C. § 3663A(c)(3)(A).
2. For offenses for which restitution is otherwise mandatory under 18 U.S.C. § 3663A, restitution is not ordered because determining complex issues of fact and relating them to the cause or amount of the victims' losses would complicate or prolong the sentencing process to a degree that the need to provide restitution to any victim would be outweighed by the burden on the sentencing process under 18 U.S.C. § 3663A(c)(3)(B).
3. For other offenses for which restitution is authorized under 18 U.S.C. § 3663 and/or required by the sentencing guidelines, restitution is not ordered because the complication and prolongation of the sentencing process resulting from the fashioning of a restitution order outweigh the need to provide restitution to any victims under 18 U.S.C. § 3663(a)(1)(B)(ii).
4. For offenses for which restitution is otherwise mandatory under 18 U.S.C. §§ 1593, 2248, 2259, 2264, 2327 or . 3663A, restitution is not ordered because the victim(s)'s losses were not ascertainable (18 U.S.C. § 3664(d)(5))
5. For offenses for which restitution is otherwise mandatory under 18 U.S.C. §§ 1593, 2248, 2259, 2264, 2327 or 3663A, restitution is not ordered because the victim(s) elected to not participate in any phase of determining the restitution order (18 U.S.C. § 3664(g)(1)).
