WO

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT FOR THE DISTRICT OF ARIZONA

Michael Wilson,
Plaintiff,
vs.
GMAC Mortgage LLC; Homecomings
Financial LLC,
Defendants.

) CV 11-00546-PHX-FJM

) ORDER

The court has before it defendants' motion for summary judgment ("MSJ") (doc. 57) and separate statement of facts ("DSOF") (doc. 58), plaintiff's response (doc. 68), plaintiff's response to DSOF ("PSOF") and statement of controverted facts ("PSOCF") (doc. 69), and defendants' reply (doc. 72). In addition, we have before us defendants' motion to strike the declaration of Michael Wilson attached to plaintiff's statement of facts (doc. 71). Finally, we have defendants' motion to strike the new declaration of Michael Wilson (doc. 74).

I. Background

On a motion for summary judgment we accept undisputed facts as true and review disputed facts in the light most favorable to the non-moving party. Anthoine v. N. Cent. Cntys. Consortium, 605 F.3d 740, 745 (9th Cir. 2010).

On October 23, 2006, plaintiff obtained a $1,365,000 loan to purchase a house in Carefree, Arizona. He signed a Note promising to repay the loan, which was secured by a

1 Deed of Trust. Homecomings Financial ("Homecomings") was neither a holder of the note 2 nor a beneficiary under the Deed of Trust.

3 Sometime in 2009, plaintiff defaulted on his loan. On August 14, 2009, a Notice of 4 Trustee's Sale was recorded. Plaintiff applied for a loan modification under the HAMP
5 program, which was rejected by GMAC in March 2010. Plaintiff's home was ultimately sold
6 to GMAC at public auction on March 29, 2010 for $787,500. At the time of sale, plaintiff's 7 loan had been accelerated and he owed the original principal balance of $1,365,000.
8 Consequently, after the sale plaintiff still owed GMAC a deficiency of $577,500, plus 9 interest, penalties, and fees owed under the terms of the Note.

10 GMAC sent a letter to plaintiff on April 16, 2010. It agreed to reinstate the lien on 11 the home for the original amount of $1,365,000 if a signed settlement agreement ("the 12 Agreement"), all required documents for reinstatement, and $45,271.51 were received by 13 April 29, 2010. The $45,271.51 consisted of almost $43,000 in payments, as well as accrued 14 late charges, accrued fees, and suspense. The Agreement stated that plaintiff would agree 15 to "[r]eaffirm the subject loan and enter into a loan modification with GMAC[] the terms of 16 which are attached hereto as Exhibit A." GMAC promised to "[r]eaffirm the subject loan and 17 enter into a loan modification. . . the terms of which are attached hereto as Exhibit A," and 18 would "[r]estore title to the Subject Property to [plaintiff]." DSOF, ex. G. Homecomings 19 was not a party to this settlement. It is undisputed that an "Exhibit A" was never attached to 20 the Agreement, and that the Agreement did not contain any other language referencing or 21 describing the loan modification.

22 Plaintiff executed the Agreement on April 28, 2010. That same day, he made out a 23 check to GMAC for $45,271.51. The foreclosure sale was rescinded, the Deed of Trust was 24 reinstated, and the loan and Note were reaffirmed on April 29, 2010. Plaintiff resumed 25 making monthly payments on his loan. GMAC has not provided a loan modification.

26 Plaintiff's first amended complaint ("the FAC") asserted seven claims for relief (doc.
27 27). We granted defendants' partial motion to dismiss in September 2011 (doc. 44). Two 28 claims remain: (1) breach of contract; and (2) unjust enrichment. Defendants move for 1 summary judgment on both claims.

2 II. Motions to Strike Plaintiff's Declarations

3 Plaintiff's response to the MSJ included a declaration from plaintiff dated December 4 29, 2011. See PSOF, ex. 2. Defendants move to strike the declaration, arguing that it is 5 inadmissible. A party may submit an unsworn declaration provided that it is subscribed "as 6 true under penalty of perjury." 28 U.S.C. § 1746; see also United States v. Ritchie, 342 F.3d 7 903, 909 (9th Cir. 2003) (unsworn declaration admissible if it complies with § 1746). The 8 declaration plaintiff submitted with his response fails to comply with § 1746, because it is 9 not signed under penalty of perjury. Accordingly, the December declaration is inadmissible.

10 Two days after summary judgment briefing closed and defendants filed their first 11 motion to strike, plaintiff submitted a second declaration (doc. 73). The declaration is 12 substantially the same as the first, except that plaintiff declares under penalty of perjury that 13 the declaration is correct. This new declaration is dated January 9, 2012. Defendants move 14 to strike the new declaration, arguing that it is inadmissible under the sham affidavit doctrine 15 and untimely.

16 "The general rule in the Ninth Circuit is that a party cannot create an issue of fact by 17 an affidavit contradicting his prior deposition testimony." Kennedy v. Allied Mut. Ins. Co., 18 952 F.2d 262, 266 (9th Cir. 1991). This is because a party should not be allowed to 19 "manufacture a bogus dispute with himself to defeat summary judgment." Nelson v. City of 20 Davis, 571 F.3d 924, 928 (9th Cir. 2009) (emphasis in original). A declaration should not, 21 however, be automatically struck because a discrepancy exists. Rather, the court must decide 22 whether the declaration is a sham or simply a clarification, explanation of deposition 23 testimony, or an honest mistake. Kennedy, 952 F.2d at 266-67. "[T]he inconsistency 24 between a party's deposition testimony and subsequent affidavit must be clear and 25 unambiguous to justify striking the affidavit." Van Asdale v. Int'l Game Tech., 577 F.3d 989, 26 998-99 (9th Cir. 2009).

27 Plaintiff was asked about his recollection of events surrounding the Agreement's 28 reference to a loan modification during his October 2011 deposition. When asked to describe

1 the terms of the loan modification to the best of his recollection, plaintiff responded "[a]s far
2 as I know, I was supposed to - I was under the assumption that I was entering into a loan 3 modification, a fixed loan modification, maybe a 30-year fixed loan modification. That's 4 what I thought I was entering into." DSOF, ex. C, Wilson Dep. 37:17-37:21. When asked 5 what that assumption was based on, plaintiff testified that it was based "[o]n what I was told,"
6 and indicated that he was told this "[b]y my attorney." Wilson Dep. 37:23-38:3. Plaintiff 7 also denied recalling any specific promises made to him by either defendant:

8 Q. . . . Do you recall any specific promises that were made to you by 9 anyone at GMAC Mortgage?

10 A. No.

11 Q. Do you recall any specific promises that were made to you by 12 Homecomings Financial?

13 A. No.

14 Wilson Dep. 67:7-67:13.

15 In his January declaration, plaintiff offers more detail about the terms of the loan 16 modification and when this modification would be finalized. Plaintiff states that "Exhibit A 17 to the Settlement Agreement was supposed to be created by GMAC after its loan mitigation 18 officers ran the numbers and established exactly what a standard loan modification would 19 be for me." Decl. of Michael Wilson, ¶ 5. Plaintiff also indicates how he came to this 20 understanding:

21 I knew when I signed the Settlement Agreement that the specific loan terms in 22 the loan modification would not be spelled out until GMAC processed the 23 numbers according to standard guidelines. Exhibit A would come from that 24 process. I was willing to sign the agreement before Exhibit A was produced 25 because I knew, and GMAC represented to me through counsel, that it would 26 provide me a standard, reasonable loan modification in good faith.

27 Id. ¶ 8 (emphasis added). The additional detail plaintiff provides about the loan modification 28 being based on "standard guidelines" is an elaboration of plaintiff's deposition testimony, not a contradiction. More questionable, however, is plaintiff's understanding that Exhibit A would be created after the Agreement was signed. On the one hand, this statement can be seen to contradict plaintiff's deposition testimony that his assumptions about the loan

1 modification came from his attorney. On the other hand, if plaintiff's understanding that 2 Exhibit A would be created later came from representations by GMAC that were relayed to 3 him by his own counsel, then the declaration elaborates on his prior testimony that he made 4 assumptions about the loan modification based on what his attorney told him. And failure 5 to recall any promises made by GMAC at the time of the deposition is (although perhaps 6 suspicious) not directly contradictory to a later recollection. Thus, the January declaration 7 should not be disregarded under the sham affidavit rule.

8 This new declaration, however, was filed after summary judgment briefing closed and 9 more than two weeks after plaintiff's deadline for filing the response to the MSJ. See LRCiv 10 56.1(d) (providing thirty days to respond to an MSJ). Rule 6(b)(1), Fed. R. Civ. P. addresses 11 the process for late filings: "the court may, for good cause, extend the time: . . . (B) on motion 12 made after the time has expired if the party failed to act because of excusable neglect." Here, 13 plaintiff submitted the new declaration on his own, without filing a motion, labeling it "nunc 14 pro tunc." The decision whether to admit late-filed evidence submitted without a motion is 15 evaluated for abuse of discretion. Fleischer Studios, Inc. v. A.V.E.L.A., Inc., 654 F.3d 958, 16 966 (9th Cir. 2011). Defendants argue that plaintiff has not even attempted to justify the late 17 filing. But we can reasonably infer that the omission of the perjury language in the timely-18 filed December declaration was most likely due to excusable neglect. The only change in 19 the January declaration is the inclusion of the perjury language missing from the original 20 document. This language cured the December declaration's defects, but did not alter its 21 factual content. Defendants have not alleged that they have been prejudiced by the late 22 declaration. Indeed, it is difficult to see how they would be, given that the new declaration 23 is substantively the same.

24 Accordingly, we will not consider plaintiff's December declaration because it fails to 25 comply with 28 U.S.C. § 1746. It is not necessary, however, to strike this declaration from 26 the record. We will consider plaintiff's January declaration (doc. 73) despite its untimeliness, 27 as its only change is to add additional language required by § 1746. Defendants' motions to 28 strike are denied.

1 III. Breach of Contract

2 Plaintiff claims that defendants breached the Agreement by failing to provide a loan 3 modification as promised.¹ In Arizona, an enforceable contract requires "an offer, an 4 acceptance, consideration, and sufficient specification of terms so that the obligations 5 involved can be ascertained." Savoca Masonry Co., Inc. v. Homes & Son Constr. Co., Inc., 6 112 Ariz. 392, 394, 542 P.2d 817, 819 (1975). It is undisputed that Homecomings is not a 7 party to the Agreement. Homecomings cannot breach a contract that it did not enter.
8 Summary judgment is granted to Homecomings on the breach of contract claim.

9 There is no dispute that GMAC and plaintiff are listed as parties to the Agreement, 10 which promises that GMAC shall "enter into a loan modification" with plaintiff. DSOF, ex.
11 G at 2. Nevertheless, GMAC argues that the Agreement is not an enforceable contract. First, 12 GMAC argues that the Agreement lacks consideration because plaintiff was already 13 obligated under the terms of the Note to pay GMAC the $45,271.51. Thus, GMAC argues 14 that plaintiff's payment of the money in connection with the Agreement is not consideration, 15 because plaintiff had a pre-existing duty to pay. See Hisel v. Upchurch, 797 F. Supp. 1509, 16 1521 (D. Ariz. 1992) (performing a pre-existing duty is not consideration); Restatement 17 (Second) of Contracts § 73 (1981) (same). But plaintiff promises to do more than pay 18 money. He also promises to "[r]eaffirm the subject loan," "enter into a loan modification," 19 and "[r]elease GMAC[]" from claims relating to "the Property, Foreclosure Sale, Loan, 20 and/or the servicing or administration of such Loan."² DSOF, ex. G at 2. An agreement not 21 to prosecute a valid legal claim is consideration. See Restatement (Second) of Contracts § 22 74; see also Carroll v. Lee, 148 Ariz. 10, 13, 712 P.2d 923, 926 (1986) (defining

24 ¹ The Agreement states that it shall be construed according to Texas law. Defendants 25 cite Arizona law in their briefs. Plaintiff concedes that Arizona law may be applied for the 26 purposes of this motion to obviate the need for a conflicts of law analysis.

27 ² GMAC complains that this argument goes outside plaintiff's allegations in his 28 amended complaint, but the recitations referred to by plaintiff are expressly included in the Agreement, which was attached as an exhibit to the FAC. FAC, ex. C.

1 consideration as any bargained-for performance, noting that "courts do not ordinarily inquire 2 into the adequacy of consideration"). That GMAC has not actually tried to enforce this 3 portion of the Agreement is irrelevant. Plaintiff expressly agreed in the Agreement to release 4 GMAC from all claims relating to the foreclosure sale and his loan in exchange for, among 5 other things, receiving a loan modification. The Agreement is supported by valid 6 consideration.³

7 We next address GMAC's argument that the Agreement is unenforceable because it 8 violates the statute of frauds. GMAC argues, and plaintiff does not dispute, that a loan 9 modification agreement which operates to modify the original loan falls within the statute of 10 frauds. See A.R.S. § 44-101 (agreements concerning an interest in real property fall within 11 the statute of frauds); Best v. Edwards, 217 Ariz. 497, 502, 176 P.3d 695, 700 (Ct. App.
12 2008) (agreement to modify a material term of a contract within the statute of frauds must 13 also be in writing). In order to be enforceable, a contract that falls within the statute of frauds 14 must be in writing, must be signed by the party to be charged, and must state "with 15 reasonable certainty the essential terms of the unperformed promises in the contract."
16 Restatement (Second) of Contracts § 131(c); see also Western Chance No. 2, Inc. v. KFC 17 Corp., 957 F.2d 1538, 1542 (9th Cir. 1992) (in Arizona, a writing must state the essential 18 terms "with reasonable certainty" to satisfy the statute of frauds).

19 Here, although the promise to enter into a loan modification is in writing and the 20 Agreement is signed by GMAC, it is undisputed that there are no written terms concerning 21 the loan modification. This is because Exhibit A was never attached, and the remainder of 22 the Agreement is silent as to the loan modification. Plaintiff offers evidence that a loan 23 modification is a standard item always issued by GMAC according to specific guidelines.
24 PSOCF ¶ 5. According to plaintiff, Exhibit A was going to be created after GMAC "ran the 25 numbers" and determined what a standard loan modification would be for plaintiff. PSOCF

27 ³ Accordingly, we do not reach plaintiff's alternative argument that promissory 28 estoppel applies.

1 ¶ 19. But evidence concerning the subsequent creation of Exhibit A and its terms does not 2 create an issue of material fact. It is inadmissible. This is because parties cannot, "under the 3 guise that the contract is ambiguous, resort to the use of parol evidence to construct the terms 4 of an [] agreement relating to real property which agreement is required by the Statute of 5 Frauds to be in writing." Lyon v. Big Bend Dev. Co., 7 Ariz. App. 1, 4, 435 P.2d 732, 735
6 (Ct. App. 1968).

7 Plaintiff does not argue that any defenses to the statute of frauds apply. Even if they 8 do, plaintiff has not shown that an issue of material fact exists as to GMAC's alternative 9 argument that the Agreement omits material terms of the loan modification and is thus 10 unenforceable. It is undisputed that the Agreement does not contain any specifics about the 11 loan modification, instead incorporating the non-existent Exhibit A by reference. Thus, the 12 Agreement itself does not include "sufficient specification of terms so that the obligations 13 involved can be ascertained." Savoca Masonry, 112 Ariz. at 394, 542 P.2d at 819. Plaintiff's 14 evidence of a contemporaneous agreement between GMAC and plaintiff that Exhibit A 15 would "be created after the loan mitigation officers ran the numbers and established exactly 16 what a standard HAMP loan modification would be for [plaintiff]," PSOCF ¶ 19, directly 17 contradicts the Agreement's statement that the terms of the loan modification "are attached 18 hereto as Exhibit A and incorporated herewith." DSOF, ex. G at 2 (emphasis added). This 19 is inadmissible parol evidence. U.S. Fid. & Guar. Co. v. Olds Bros. Lumber Co., 102 Ariz.
20 366, 368, 430 P.2d 128, 130 (1969) ("... where an agreement is reduced to writing in such 21 terms as to express a complete contract, evidence of a contemporaneous oral agreement 22 relating to the same subject matter, varying, contradicting or enlarging the written agreement, 23 is inadmissible, in the absence of an allegation of fraud or mistake.").

24 Plaintiff alternatively argues that the Agreement is enforceable as either a novation 25 or an accord and satisfaction. Accord and satisfaction is a "method of discharging a 26 contract," where the "parties agree to give and accept something in settlement of the claim 27 or demand of the one against the other, and perform such agreement." Vance v. Hammer, 28 105 Ariz. 317, 319, 464 P.2d 340, 342 (1970) (citation omitted). A novation, on the other

1 hand, requires "[a] previous valid obligation; the agreement of all the parties to the new 2 contract; the extinguishment of the old contract; and the validity of the new one." Dunbar 3 v. Steiert, 31 Ariz. 403, 404, 253 P. 1113, 1113 (1927). The undisputed facts reveal that the 4 Agreement is neither. This is because the Agreement, by its terms, neither discharged nor 5 extinguished plaintiff's original loan. Instead, it reaffirmed it. Thus, the Agreement is not 6 a novation or an accord and satisfaction.

7 Finally, plaintiff argues that a statement by GMAC's Rule 30(b)(6), Fed. R. Civ. P.
8 deponent that the Agreement constitutes a final and binding agreement is dispositive.
9 Plaintiff is mistaken. The question of whether the Agreement is an enforceable contract is 10 one of law. Any witness testimony that purports to establish the legal existence of the 11 Agreement is an inadmissible legal conclusion. See Aguilar v. Int'l Longshoremen's Union 12 Local #10, 966 F.2d 443, 447 (9th Cir. 1992).

13 In sum, GMAC's promise to provide a loan modification is unenforceable, either 14 because it violates the statute of frauds or because it fails to sufficiently specify the loan 15 modification's terms. Summary judgment is granted to GMAC on the breach of contract 16 claim.

17 IV. Unjust Enrichment

18 Plaintiff contends that defendants have been unjustly enriched by the $45,271.51 he 19 paid in connection with the Agreement and the reinstatement of his $1,365,000 loan when 20 defendants failed to provide a loan modification as promised. To be granted the equitable 21 remedy of restitution, plaintiff must show (1) an enrichment, (2) an impoverishment, (3) a 22 connection between them, (4) "the absence of justification for the enrichment and 23 impoverishment" and (5) the absence of a remedy at law. Freeman v. Sorchych, 226 Ariz.
24 242, ¶ 27, 245 P.3d 927, 936 (Ct. App. 2011); see also Murdock-Bryant Constr., Inc. v.
25 Pearson, 146 Ariz. 48, 53, 703 P.2d 1197, 1202 (1985). Unjust enrichment is not available 26 where a contract specifically governs the parties and the plaintiff receives the benefit of his 27 bargain. Brooks v. Valley Nat'l Bank, 113 Ariz. 169, 174, 548 P.2d 1166, 1171 (1976).

28 Homecomings argues that plaintiff is not entitled to unjust enrichment as a matter of 1 law because it is not a party to the Agreement and did not receive the money paid by 2 plaintiff. To support this argument, Homecomings points to the check, which is made out 3 to GMAC. Plaintiff responds that the check does not prove that Homecomings never 4 received any of this payment. PSOF ¶ 15. However, plaintiff offers no evidence to suggest 5 that Homecomings ever received or benefitted from his payment to GMAC. There is no 6 dispute of material fact as to whether Homecomings was unjustly enriched, because there is 7 no evidence suggesting that Homecomings ever received plaintiff's money. Summary 8 judgment is granted to Homecomings on the unjust enrichment claim.

9 GMAC argues that there is a specific contract governing the parties. According to 10 GMAC, plaintiff paid the $45,271.51 as money owed to GMAC under the terms of the 11 original Note. Because GMAC loaned plaintiff $1,365,000, it argues that plaintiff already 12 received the benefit of his bargain and unjust enrichment is unavailable. Plaintiff argues that 13 he paid the money to GMAC solely in connection with the Agreement. He claims that he 14 never received the benefit of his bargain, because GMAC still has not provided him with a 15 loan modification. Plaintiff argues that GMAC was enriched, and he was impoverished, by 16 his payment.

17 Even assuming that plaintiff paid the $45,271.51 under the Agreement and assuming 18 that this payment can be considered an impoverishment when it allowed him to rescind a 19 foreclosure sale and retake possession of his million-dollar home, there still needs to be an 20 absence of a justification for plaintiff's impoverishment and GMAC's enrichment for unjust 21 enrichment to be awarded. But it is undisputed that the original Note remained a valid 22 contract under which plaintiff was legally required to repay the money that he borrowed to 23 purchase his home. It is also undisputed that after the foreclosure sale plaintiff owed GMAC 24 the deficiency of $577,500 plus all accrued interest, penalties, and fees. Thus, the undisputed 25 facts show the existence of a justification for plaintiff's payment to GMAC. Indeed, if the 26 Agreement had never existed, plaintiff would have owed GMAC more than ten times the 27 $45,271.51 actually tendered. Accordingly, there is no genuine dispute of material fact as 28 to whether there is a justification for plaintiff's payment to GMAC. GMAC is entitled to 1 summary judgment on the unjust enrichment claim.

2 V. Conclusion

3 IT IS ORDERED DENYING defendants' motion to strike (doc. 71).

4 IT IS ORDERED DENYING defendants' motion to strike (doc. 74).

5 IT IS ORDERED GRANTING defendants' motion for summary judgment (doc. 57).

6 The Clerk shall enter judgment.
