8	IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
9	FOR THE EASTERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA
10	JOHN JACKSON,
11	Petitioner, No. CIV S-10-2462 GEB GGH P
12	VS.
13	GARY SWARTHOUT, et al.,
14	Respondent. FINDINGS &amp; RECOMMENDATIONS
15	/
16	Petitioner is a state prisoner proceeding pro se with a petition for writ of habeas
17	corpus pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 2254. Petitioner challenges the 2009 decision <sup>1</sup> by the California
18	Board of Parole Hearings (BPH) finding him unsuitable for parole.
19	On February 2, 2011, the undersigned ordered both parties to provide briefing
20	regarding the recent United States Supreme Court decision that found that the Ninth Circuit erred
21	in commanding a federal review of the state's application of state law in applying the "some
22	evidence" standard in the parole eligibility habeas context. Swarthout v. Cooke, 502 U.S,
23
24
25	<sup>1</sup> Petitioner characterizes the decision as having occurred in 2009 when the hearing took place, but notes that it was final as of January 8, 2010. Petition, p. 9 and Exhibit G, BPH hearing

<sup>26</sup> transcript copy. at it was final as of January υ. Pet u, bph n о,

131 S. Ct. 859, 861 (2011).<sup>2</sup>

The parties have timely filed briefing, yet for the reasons set forth in the prior order, and notwithstanding petitioner's argument, there is no federal due process requirement for a "some evidence" review, thus the federal courts are precluded from a review of the state court's application of its "some evidence" standard.<sup>3</sup> A review of the petition in this case demonstrates that it is based on alleged violation of California's "some evidence" requirement as well as a claim that Proposition 9<sup>4</sup> violates the Ex Post Facto Clause in light of petitioner's subsequent three-year parole deferral period. Petition.

As to the "some evidence" claim, this court's review of the BPH hearing transcript confirms that petitioner, as respondent notes, received all the process that was due in having been "allowed an opportunity to be heard" and "provided a statement of the reasons why parole was denied." Swarthout, at 862; Respondent's Supplemental Brief, Docket # 16, p. 2, citing Petition, Exhibit G.

As to petitioner's claim regarding the application of Proposition 9 resulting in an increased deferral period before his next parole suitability hearing, that claim is not a challenge to the parole denial decision itself and is, therefore, not cognizable under 28 U.S.C. § 2254.
Although petitioner's ultimate goal is a speedier release from incarceration, the immediate relief sought on this ground vis-a-vis Marsy's Law is a speedier opportunity to attempt to convince &lt;u>Superintendent v. Hill, 472 U.S. 445, 455, 105 S.Ct. 2768 (1985). Assignment to administrative segregation requires the same "some evidence" before such an assignment can be justified. Bruce v. Ylst, 351 F.3d 1283, 1288 (9th Cir.2003). However, a denial of parole eligibility after sometimes decades in prison, and where another opportunity for parole can be delayed for as long as fifteen more years, requires no such protection from the federal due process standpoint. Nevertheless, such is the state of the law.

1 BPH once again that he should be released; that is too attenuated from any past finding by the 2 BPH of parole suitability for such a claim to sound in habeas. Rather this claim is a challenge to 3 the constitutionality of state procedures denying parole eligibility or suitability and could 4 properly proceed pursuant to an action under 42 U.S.C. § 1983. Skinner v. Switzer, U.S. 5 2011 WL 767703 at *8 (Mar. 7, 2011) ("Success in his suit for DNA testing would not 'necessarily imply' the invalidity of his conviction"); id,, citing Wilkinson v. Dotson, 544 U.S. 6 7 74, 82, 125 S. Ct. 1242, 1248 (2005) ("Success...does not mean immediate release from confinement or a shorter stay in prison" but "at most [a] new eligibility review" or "a new parole 8 9 hearing...."). Moreover, the High Court in Wilkinson expressly noted that a claim seeking "an 10 injunction barring future unconstitutional procedures did not fall within habeas' exclusive 11 domain." Id. at 81, 125 S.Ct. at 1247 [emphasis in original.] Even earlier, the Ninth Circuit had found that the challenge of inmates to a sex offender treatment program as a violation of, inter 12 13 alia, the expost facto clause and their due process rights was appropriate under § 1983 because victory could only result in "a ticket to get in the door of the parole board....," and did not 14 15 undermine the validity of convictions or continued confinement. Neal v. Shimoda, 131 F.3d 818, 824 (9th Cir. 1997). 16

Moreover, currently, there is a class action proceeding, Gilman v. Fisher, CIV-S05-0830 LKK GGH,<sup>5</sup> wherein "the procedures used in determining suitability for parole: the factors considered, the explanations given, and the frequency of the hearings" are what is at issue. Id., p. 8 [emphasis in original]. The "frequency of the hearings" is precisely what is at issue in the instant claim.

The Gilman class is made up of:

California state prisoners who: "(I) have been sentenced to a term that includes life; (ii) are serving sentences that include the possibility of parole; (iii) are eligible for parole; and (iv) have been denied parole on one or more occasions."

1 Id., p. 10.<sup>6</sup>

Petitioner (as plaintiff), sentenced to a term of 15-years to life with the possibility of parole for second degree murder, challenging a subsequent parole consideration hearing denial, fits squarely within the parameters of the Gilman class.<sup>7</sup> Petition, p. 1 and Exhibit G, p. 74.<sup>8</sup> There being no basis upon which petitioner could proceed at this point, the petition should be denied.

Accordingly, IT IS HEREBY RECOMMENDED that the petition be denied.

If petitioner files objections, he shall also address if a certificate of appealability should issue and, if so, as to which issues. A certificate of appealability may issue under 28 U.S.C. § 2253 "only if the applicant has made a substantial showing of the denial of a constitutional right." 28 U.S.C. § 2253(c)(2). The certificate of appealability must "indicate which specific issue or issues satisfy" the requirement. 28 U.S.C. § 2253(c)(3).

These findings and recommendations are submitted to the United States District Judge assigned to the case, pursuant to the provisions of 28 U.S.C. § 636(b)(l). Within fourteen days after being served with these findings and recommendations, any party may file written objections with the court and serve a copy on all parties. Such a document should be captioned "Objections to Magistrate Judge's Findings and Recommendations." Any reply to the objections shall be served and filed within fourteen days after service of the objections. The parties are &lt;sup>7</sup> As a member plaintiff of a class action for equitable relief from prison conditions, petitioner may not, as plaintiff, maintain a separate, individual suit for equitable relief involving the same subject matter of the class action. See Crawford v. Bell, 599 F.2d 890, 892-93 (9th Cir.1979); see also McNeil v. Guthrie, 945 F.2d 1163,1165 (10th Cir. 1991) ("Individual suits for injunctive and equitable relief from alleged unconstitutional prison conditions cannot be brought where there is an existing class action ."); Gillespie v. Crawford, 858 F.2d 1101, 1103 (5th Cir.1988) (en banc) ("To allow individual suits would interfere with the orderly administration of the class action and risk inconsistent adjudications.").
