UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

DANTE DEMARTINI, et al.,
Plaintiffs,
v.
MICROSOFT CORPORATION,
Defendant.

Case No. 22-cv-08991-JSC

ORDER DENYING MOTION FOR TEMPORARY RESTRAINING ORDER AND PRELIMINARY INJUNCTION

Re: Dkt. No. 350

Plaintiff recreational video game players filed this action to enjoin a proposed merger between Microsoft Corporation and Activision Blizzard, Inc. (Dkt. No. 84 ¶ 1.<sup>1</sup>) After overcoming various hurdles, including a separate preliminary injunction action brought by the Federal Trade Commission, see FTC v. Microsoft Corp. (Case No. 3:23-cv-02880-JSC), and foreign regulatory actions, the merger closed on October 13, 2023. Now pending before the Court is Plaintiffs’ motion for a temporary restraining order and preliminary injunction to prohibit Microsoft from further harming Activision’s “ability to compete as an independent company” pending a final decision on the case’s merits. (Dkt. No. 350 at 3.)

After carefully considering the arguments and briefing submitted, the Court concludes oral argument is unnecessary, see Civ. L.R. 7-1(b), and DENIES Plaintiffs’ motion for lack of jurisdiction in light of the pending appeal of the denial of the initial motion for preliminary injunction.

PROCEDURAL BACKGROUND

In January 2022, Microsoft announced plans to acquire Activision. (Dkt. No. 1 ¶ 2.) Later

1 that year, on December 8, the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) filed an administrative complaint
2 challenging the merger. Complaint, Microsoft Corp., FTC Docket No. 9412 (Dec. 8, 2022).
3 About two weeks later, Plaintiffs filed this action and a motion for preliminary injunction to block 4 the merger. (Dkt. Nos. 1, 4.) Microsoft initially moved to stay this case pending resolution of the 5 FTC administrative action. (Dkt. No. 26.) The Court denied the motion, but Microsoft stipulated 6 the merger would not occur before May 1, 2023. (Dkt. Nos. 33, 48.) The Court accordingly
7 scheduled the motion for preliminary injunction to be heard on April 13, 2023, and directed 8 Microsoft to produce certain discovery. (Dkt. No. 48.)

9 In the meantime, Microsoft moved to dismiss the complaint. (Dkt. No. 42.) The Court 10 granted the motion to dismiss with leave to amend, concluding the complaint failed to state a 11 claim. (Dkt. No. 74.) In light of the dismissal, the Court vacated the preliminary injunction 12 hearing. (Id. at 11.) Plaintiffs subsequently filed the operative First Amended Complaint, 13 repleading vertical and horizontal merger claims under Sections 7 and 16 of the Clayton Act.
14 (Dkt. No. 84.) Microsoft again moved to dismiss the FAC. (Dkt. No. 120.) Shortly after, 15 Plaintiffs filed a renewed motion for preliminary injunction. (Dkt. No. 135.) The Court heard 16 both motions on May 12, 2023. The Court denied Plaintiffs' motion for preliminary injunction 17 concluding, among other things, that Plaintiffs had not demonstrated a likelihood of irreparable 18 injury. (Dkt. No. 189.) The Court also dismissed Plaintiffs' amended horizontal merger claim, 19 but held the FAC sufficiently pled a vertical merger claim. (Dkt. No. 228.)

20 While the Court granted Plaintiffs leave to amend, they chose not to do so. But they did 21 appeal to the Ninth Circuit the denial of a preliminary injunction. (Dkt. No. 207; see also Dante 22 DeMartini v. Microsoft Corp., Case No. 23-15846 (9th Cir.)) Shortly after they appealed, 23 Plaintiffs asked the Ninth Circuit to enjoin Microsoft from closing the merger pending their 24 appeal. (Case No. 23-15846 (9th Cir.), Dkt. No. 7.) A month later, on July 11, 2023, Plaintiffs 25 filed an emergency motion requesting the Ninth Circuit to adjudicate its motion for temporary 26 injunction on an emergency basis. (Case No. 23-15846 (9th Cir.), Dkt. No. 42.) In response, the 27 Ninth Circuit issued a brief order denying Plaintiffs' injunction motion, noting "[t]he standard for 28 evaluating an injunction pending appeal is similar to that employed by district courts in deciding

1 whether to grant a preliminary injunction.” (Case No. 23-15846 (9th Cir.), Dkt. No. 46.)

2 Plaintiffs then applied to Justice Kagan of the United States Supreme Court for a stay of 3 the denial of their preliminary injunction motion and for an emergency injunction to temporarily
4 halt the merger pending their Ninth Circuit appeal. Dante Demartini v. Microsoft Corp., No.
5 23A40 (Jul. 17, 2023). Justice Kagan denied the application. Id.

6 After the denials by the Ninth Circuit and the Supreme Court, Plaintiffs moved this Court
7 on October 9, 2023 for a hold separate order. (Dkt. No. 276.) Plaintiffs asked the Court to order 8 Microsoft “maintain Activision as a separate subsidiary and preclude Microsoft from merging or 9 eliminating any of Activision’s business units or gaming studios” pending resolution of Plaintiffs’ 10 claims on the merits. (Dkt. No. 276 at 8.) The Court denied the motion as Plaintiffs failed to 11 provide a legal basis for their hold separate request, or any reason the Court can or should consider 12 a renewed injunction request while Plaintiffs’ appeal of the Court’s denial of a similar preliminary 13 injunction is pending before the Ninth Circuit. (Dkt. No. 290 at 2.)

14 On December 6, 2023, the Ninth Circuit heard argument on Plaintiffs’ appeal. (Case No.
15 23-15846 (9th Cir.), Dkt. No. 98.) To date, the Ninth Circuit has not ruled on the appeal. (Case 16 No. 23-15846 (9th Cir.).) Nor have Plaintiffs made any new motions or taken new actions in the 17 Ninth Circuit since the hearing. (Id.)

18 In light of the still-pending appeal, the Court vacated the February 5, 2024 bench trial.
19 (Dkt. No. 318.) In the joint case management statement submitted to the Court on February 6, 20 2024, Plaintiffs pointed to Microsoft’s recent layoff of its video game division employees, 21 including those in the Activation unit, and stated they “are preparing a Temporary Restraining 22 Order to stop Microsoft from firing the remainder of Activision employees.” (Dkt. No. 333 at 3-23 4.)

24 More than a month later, on March 13, Plaintiffs filed the currently pending motion for 25 temporary restraining order and preliminary injunction. (Dkt. No. 350.) Specifically, Plaintiffs 26 ask the Court to order Microsoft maintain Activision as an independent subsidiary, without (1) 27 terminating more Activision employees; (2) further interfering with the development of new 28 Activision game content; (3) severing relationships with or closing more Activision game studios;

1 or (4) taking any other action that would further irreparably harm Activision’s ability to compete
2 as an independent company. (Id. at 4.)

3 Related FTC Case

4 While Plaintiffs’ appeal of the preliminary injunction denial was pending before the Ninth 5 Circuit, the FTC filed its own action for a preliminary injunction of the merger. (Case No. 3:23-6 cv-02880-JSC, Dkt. No. 1.) The FTC sought a court order to enjoin the merger pending the FTC 7 administrative action’s completion. (Id.) The case was related to Plaintiffs’ case in front of the 8 Court. (Case No. 3:23-cv-02880-JSC, Dkt. No. 21.) On July 10, 2023, and following a several-9 day evidentiary hearing, the Court denied the FTC’s requested preliminary injunction for failure to 10 show a likelihood the FTC will succeed on the merits. (Case No. 3:23-cv-02880-JSC, Dkt. No.
11 305.) The FTC appealed the Court’s denial to the Ninth Circuit. (Case No. 3:23-cv-02880-JSC, 12 Dkt. No. 307; see also FTC v. Microsoft Corp., Case No. 23-15992 (9th Cir.))

13 The Ninth Circuit heard the FTC’s appeal on December 6, 2023—same day as Plaintiffs’
14 appeal hearing. (Case No. 23-15992 (9th Cir.), Dkt. No. 114.) On February 7, 2024, the FTC
15 submitted a letter to the Ninth Circuit notifying it of Microsoft’s publicly reported plan to lay off 16 employees in its video game division, including the Activision unit. (Case No. 23-15992 (9th 17 Cir.), Dkt. No. 117.) The FTC argued the layoff plan was inconsistent with Microsoft’s 18 representation Activation would operate independently post-merger and would undermine the 19 FTC’s ability to order effective relief should it prevail on the pending administrative proceeding.
20 (Id. at 2.) To date, the Ninth Circuit has not ruled on the FTC’s appeal. (Case No. 23-15992 (9th 21 Cir.))

22 DISCUSSION

23 “Once a notice of appeal is filed, the district court is divested of jurisdiction over the 24 matters being appealed.” Nat. Res. Def. Council, Inc. v. Sw. Marine Inc., 242 F.3d 1163, 1166
25 (9th Cir. 2001). The only exception to the jurisdictional transfer principle is when the district 26 court acts to “preserve the status quo.” Id. Any action taken by the district court “may not 27 materially alter the status of the case on appeal.” Id. This exception “does not restore jurisdiction 28 to the district court to adjudicate anew the merits of the case.” Id. (quoting McClatchy

1 Newspapers v. Cent. Valley Typographical Union No. 46, 686 F.2d 731, 734 (9th Cir.1982)).

2 Here, Plaintiffs’ appeal of the Court’s denial of a preliminary injunction enjoining the 3 proposed merger between Microsoft and Activision is still pending before the Ninth Circuit.
4 (Case No. 23-15846 (9th Cir.)). In their latest motion for TRO and preliminary injunction, 5 Plaintiffs address the jurisdiction issue only in a footnote, stating “[t]his Court has jurisdiction to 6 issue a TRO because ‘the district court retains jurisdiction during the pendency of an appeal to act 7 to preserve the status quo.’” (Dkt. No. 350 at 2, n.1, quoting Sw. Marine, 242 F.3d at 1166.) In 8 their reply, Plaintiffs argue further that the Court has jurisdiction because the “factual predicate” 9 of this motion is different from the previous motion to hold separate, which the Court denied for, 10 among other reasons, a lack of jurisdiction. (Dkt. No. 375 at 13.) Unlike the motion to hold 11 separate, which Plaintiffs made before the merger closed, the current motion is based on 12 Microsoft’s “actual post-merger actions.” (Id.) Relying on certain post-merger events, including 13 the recent layoff at Microsoft’s gaming division, Plaintiffs insist Microsoft is “diminishing 14 Activision Blizzard’s ability to compete as an independent company” and a divestiture will be “an 15 increasingly impotent remedy” without the requested injunctive relief. (Id.)

16 Plaintiffs fail to meet their burden to show the Court has jurisdiction to impose their 17 requested relief. In Southwest Marine—the only case Plaintiffs cite to support jurisdiction—the 18 district court found the defendant liable under the Clean Water Act and imposed an injunction 19 requiring the defendant to, among other things, (1) conduct water column testing by taking water 20 sample “at the surface” and (2) construct a storm water capture facility in “a reasonably 21 expeditious manner.” 242 F.3d at 1165. The defendant appealed the judgment, including the 22 injunction. Id. While the appeal was pending, the district court received additional briefing on the 23 injunctive measures and subsequently modified the injunction measures by substituting vague 24 language with more concrete requirements: (1) “at the surface” to “microlayer” and (2) 25 “reasonably expeditious” to a specific 18-month deadline. Id. The defendant challenged the 26 modifications for lack of jurisdiction, but the Ninth Circuit affirmed the modifications because 27 they “preserved the status quo.” Id. at 1167. The Ninth Circuit reasoned the modifications did not 28 change but instead “effectuated the underlying purposes of the original requirements.” Id. More

1 importantly, the modifications did not materially alter the status of the defendant’s appeal, the core 2 issues of which were whether the district court could permissibly require (1) any water column 3 testing or (2) the construction of the storm water capture facility. Id. If the core issues were 4 ultimately reversed on appeal, the modifications would also effectively be reversed. Id.; see also 5 Hoffman v. Beer Drivers & Salesmen's Local Union No. 888, 536 F.2d 1268, 1276 (9th Cir. 1976) 6 (holding where the district court “supervises a continuing course of conduct” and whereas new 7 facts develop additional supervision action is required, “an appeal from the supervisory order does 8 not divest the district court of jurisdiction to continue its supervision, even though in the course of 9 that supervision the court acts upon or modifies the order from which the appeal is taken.”).

10 Here, the pending appeal challenges the Court’s denial of the requested preliminary 11 injunction to enjoin Microsoft’s merger with Activision. One of the issues on appeal is whether 12 the named plaintiffs are likely to suffer irreparable harm in the absence of an injunction; the Court 13 held they are not. But to grant Plaintiffs’ most recent motion for preliminary injunctive relief, the 14 Court would have to find that Plaintiffs are likely to suffer irreparable harm in the absence of an 15 injunction—exactly the opposite of what the Court previously found and the precise issue on 16 appeal. So, Plaintiffs’ requested relief alters rather than maintains the status quo. See Sw. Marine, 17 242 F.3d at 1166 (defining “status quo” in the context of jurisdictional transfer as “the status of the 18 case on appeal,” not the status of the parties); see also Kern Oil & Refining Co. v. Tenneco Oil 19 Co., 840 F.2d 730, 734 (9th Cir. 1988) (“The appellate court is entitled to review a fixed, rather 20 than a mobile, record.”). Further, the status quo is that there is presently no order enjoining 21 Microsoft from doing anything; Plaintiffs ask the Court to impose significant restrictions on 22 Microsoft’s conduct. Again, such relief alters rather than maintains the status quo. Plaintiffs cite 23 no case, and the Court is not aware of any, that holds the district court has jurisdiction to take such 24 action while an appeal of its denial of injunctive relief is pending. See Sw. Marine, 242 F.3d at 25 1166 (internal citation omitted) (“[The exception to the jurisdictional transfer principle] does not 26 restore jurisdiction to the district court to adjudicate anew the merits of the case.”).

27
28

1 CONCLUSION

2 For the reasons stated above, the Court is divested of jurisdiction to order a preliminary 3 injunction while the Court’s previous denial of a similar preliminary injunction is pending appeal.
4 Accordingly, Plaintiffs’ motion for temporary restraining order and preliminary injunction is 5 DENIED. Microsoft’s administrative motion to supplement the record is DENIED as moot.

6 This Order disposes of Docket Nos. 350, 379.
