UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA
SAN JOSE DIVISION

TRISTAN RANDALL,
Plaintiff,

v.

UNIVERSITY OF THE PACIFIC,
Defendant.

Case No. 5:20-cv-03196-EJD

ORDER GRANTING MOTION FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT

Re: Dkt. No. 75

Plaintiff Tristan Randall alleges on behalf of himself and a putative class that Defendant University of the Pacific (“UOP”) breached a contract with its students, or alternatively, unjustly enriched itself at its students’ expenses when it retained the full amount of tuition and fees it collected for the Spring 2020 semester despite ceasing in-person instruction and closing its campus facilities and resources with just six weeks left of the semester. Currently at issue is Defendant’s motion for summary judgment. See University of the Pacific Motion to Dismiss Second Amended Complaint (“MSJ”), Dkt. No. 75. On February 28, 2022, Plaintiff filed an opposition, to which Defendant filed a reply. See Plaintiff Tristan Randall’s Memorandum of Points and Authorities in Opposition to Defendant’s Motion for Summary Judgment (“Opp.”), Dkt. No. 83; Defendant University of the Pacific’s Reply Memorandum in Support of its Motion for Summary Judgment (“Reply”), Dkt. No. 84. Having considered the Parties’ arguments and submissions, and for the reasons set forth below, the Court GRANTS the motion for summary judgment.<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> On May 13, 2022, the Court found this motion appropriate for decision without oral argument pursuant to Civil Local Rule 7-1(b). See Dkt. No. 87.

1           I.       BACKGROUND

2           This action was originally filed on May 10, 2020, by prior named plaintiff Viney Saroya.
3           See Dkt. No. 1. The first-filed and first-amended complaints asserted claims for breach of 4           contract, unjust enrichment, conversion, and money had and received. Of these claims, only the 5           breach of contract claim was permitted to proceed. See Order Granting in Part and Denying in 6           Part Motion to Dismiss; Granting Motion to Strike (“November 2020 Order”), Dkt. No. 45
7           (dismissing claims for conversion and money had and received); Order Granting Defendant’s 8           Motion to Dismiss (“June 2021 Order”), Dkt. No. 66 (dismissing unjust enrichment claim). The 9           Court bifurcated discovery, allowing discovery only as to the named plaintiff, and permitted 10          Defendant to file a summary judgment motion as to the named plaintiff’s individual claims before 11          any class certification discovery. See Dkt. No. 47.

12          After filing a second amended complaint, Saroya withdrew as the named plaintiff and 13          Tristan Randall was substituted in as the proposed class representative. See Dkt. Nos. 64, 67.
14          Plaintiff was a senior enrolled at UOP for the Spring 2020 semester. Declaration of Vito A.
15          Costanzo in Support of University of the Pacific’s Motion for Summary Judgment (“Costanzo 16          Decl.”), Ex. C (“Randall Depo. Transcript) at 47, Dkt. No. 75. During his time at UOP, Plaintiff 17          executed a Student Financial Responsibility Agreement (“SFRA”), an express contract, pursuant 18          to which Plaintiff paid tuition and fees in exchange for the ability to register for classes. See 19          Defendant University of the Pacific’s Separate Statement of Undisputed Material Facts (“UOP 20          SSF”) No. 1, Dkt. No. 75-24.

21          During the Spring 2020 semester, Plaintiff was enrolled in four classes. Costanzo Decl., 22          Ex. G. Because of the COVID-19 pandemic, Plaintiff had to complete these courses remotely 23          after UOP transitioned to distance learning in response to the pandemic and government orders.
24          SSF No. 16. At the end of the Spring 2020 semester, Plaintiff was awarded credits for all classes 25          taken, and graduated from UOP with a Bachelor of Science degree in Bioengineering. SSF No.
26          17; Costanzo Decl., Ex. E.

1 Plaintiff argues that UOP breached the contract that it had impliedly made with students to 2 provide in-person instruction. Plaintiff bases that claim on the course descriptions in UOP’s 3 catalog, the class location listed on the course syllabi, statements in UOP’s policies, and 4 statements in UOP’s marketing materials including:<sup>2</sup>

- 5 • The statement in the course catalog that “each student is expected to consult regularly with 6 his or her faculty advisor,” Ex. C at 51;
- 7 • UOP’s statement that it uses “experiential learning” as a “way to assist students in 8 integrating their academic training with the practical side of the working world,” Ex. E at 9 42;
- 10 • UOP’s statement that it provides “a personalized learning environment that supports 11 student success through broad access to [its] faculty” and that, at UOP, “[l]earning takes 12 place both in the class and outside it as students and faculty interact in directed and 13 collaborative inquiry.” UOP noted that “[a]ctive learning strategies in the classroom, 14 extensive experiential learning opportunities alongside faculty researchers/practitioners, 15 and one-on-one faculty advising together give students exceptional opportunities to benefit 16 from faculty expertise as teachers and scholars.” Ex. E at 73;
- 17 • The 2019–2020 Course Catalog’s notation that some classes would be taught in an 18 “ONLINE” format, which indicates that non-online designated classes were meant to be 19 taught on a primarily in-person basis, Ex. E at 95.
- 20 • The requirement that Plaintiff create design documentation and demonstration as part of 21 his senior project, Ex. C at 54;
- 22 • The statement in a course description that “students are also use of [sic] instruments in the 23 lab” and “prepare a measurement project,” Ex. C at 61;
- 24 • A class description that included the use of case descriptions, Ex. C at 63;
- 25 • The fact that one of Plaintiff’s classes had a lab component; Ex. C at 71;

ORDER GRANTING MOTION FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT

- 1 • Information contained in UOP materials regarding the campus locations where classes 2 would be taught, Ex. C at 24, 106–08;
- 3 • UOP’s class attendance policy, in conjunction with course policies that limited the number 4 of student absences, Ex. C at 82–83;
- 5 • UOP’s academic residence requirement policy that allows students “the opportunity to take 6 classes on the Stockton campus,” Ex. C at 83–86;
- 7 • UOP’s academic residence requirement policy, which requires students to take a certain 8 number of credits on campus in order to graduate, Ex. C at 83–86;
- 9 • UOP’s graduation requirements for Bachelor’s degrees, which states that “requirements 10 must be completed at Pacific,” Ex. C. at 87;
- 11 • Course syllabi, which are “written in stone,” Ex. C at 64;
- 12 • The Parties’ prior course of conduct, Ex. C at 95;
- 13 • UOP’s preference that students live on campus because “[l]iving on campus is central to 14 student life at Pacific.” UOP “considers the residential living experience to be an 15 important part of its educational opportunities, and recognizes that living on campus 16 contributes significantly to a student’s development and to the learning process.” Ex. S at 17 35.
- 18 • The former chair of the bioengineering department stating that all classes would be 19 exclusively in-person, Ex. C. at 40–41; and
- 20 • UOP’s website, social media, and posters, which contained photos of students attending in-21 person events, and which encouraged students to get involved by finding “exciting 22 activities and events around campus.” Ex. C at 94–95, 102; Opp. at 6–8.

23 Plaintiff interprets UOP’s publications and statements to make it clear that “in-person 24 classes were fundamental aspects of what the University would provide to its students.” Opp. at 3.
25 As noted, due to the COVID-19 pandemic, UOP was forced to suspend in-person instruction, 26 discussion sections, seminars, and laboratories, and transition to remote learning for the rest of the 27 Spring 2020 semester. UOP also extended spring break by one week (from March 13, 2020, to

1 March 23, 2020). See Declaration of Dr. Maria Pallavicini in Support of UOP’s Motion to 2 Dismiss (“Pallavicini Decl.”), Ex. G, Dk. No. 22-1. Ultimately, UOP closed its campus and all 3 campus facilities, including residence halls, for the remainder of the Spring 2020 semester. This 4 was an “unprecedented” and “unforeseen” transition. Id.

5 Plaintiff alleges that UOP and its students “entered into a contractual agreement where 6 Plaintiff would provide payment in the form of tuition and fees and Defendant [UOP], in 7 exchange, would provide in-person educational services, experiences, opportunities, and other 8 related services.” Third Amended Class Action Complaint (“TAC”) ¶ 3, Dkt. No. 68. By 9 transitioning to remote learning, Plaintiff argues that he and putative class members were deprived 10 of the opportunity for collaborative learning, in-person dialogue, feedback, and critique. TAC 11 ¶ 31. Plaintiff thus maintains that he, and other students, were not given the educational services, 12 access, or opportunities that they contracted and paid for. TAC ¶ 28.

13 The approximate cost of tuition and fees for the Spring 2020 semester was $24,794 for 14 full-time undergraduate students, and $24, 687 for full-time graduate students. TAC ¶ 24. At the 15 beginning of the Spring 2020 semester, Plaintiff paid approximately $4,554 in tuition and fees to 16 UOP. TAC ¶ 15. Through this action, Plaintiff seeks individually and on behalf of the putative 17 class, disgorgement of the pro-rated portion of tuition and fees, proportionate to the amount of 18 time that remained in the Spring 2020 semester when classes moved online, and campus services 19 ceased being provided. TAC ¶ 33. Defendant moves for summary judgment on the only 20 remaining claim, breach of contract.

21 II. LEGAL STANDARD

22 Summary judgment is appropriate only when the moving party demonstrates (1) no 23 genuine issue of material fact exists, (2) the moving party is entitled to judgment as a matter of 24 law, and (3) reasonable minds could come to only one conclusion and that conclusion is adverse to 25 the party against whom the motion for summary judgment is made, that party being entitled to 26 have the evidence most strongly construed in its favor. Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(a). A dispute is 27 “genuine” if there is sufficient evidence that a reasonable fact finder could find for the nonmoving

1 party. Groupion, LLC v. Groupon, Inc., 859 F. Supp. 2d 1067, 1072 (N.D. Cal. 2012) (citing 2 Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 248–49 (1986)). A fact is “material” if it could 3 change the outcome of the case. Id. The Court must read the evidence and draw all reasonable 4 inferences in the light most favorable to the nonmoving party. Torres v. City of Madera, 648 F.3d 5 1119, 1123 (9th Cir. 2011).

6 Pursuant to Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(c), the moving party bears the initial burden of informing 7 the trial court of the basis for the motion and identifying those portions of the record
8 demonstrating the absence of material fact. See Celotex Corp. v. Catrett, 477 U.S. 317, 323
9 (1986). Once the moving party has met its initial burden, summary judgment is appropriate only 10 if the nonmoving party does not respond, by affidavit or as otherwise provided in Rule 56, with 11 specific facts showing that a genuine issue exists for trial. See Groupion, LLC v. Groupon, Inc., 12 859 F. Supp. 2d 1067, 1072 (N.D. Cal. 2012). In reviewing the evidence, the Court must “draw 13 all reasonable inferences in the light most favorable to the nonmoving party.” See eOnline Glob., 14 Inc. v. Google LLC, 387 F. Supp. 3d 980, 984 (N.D. Cal. 2019) (citing Torres v. City of Madera, 15 648 F.3d 1119, 1123 (9th Cir. 2011)).

16 III. DISCUSSION

17 To prevail on a breach of contract claim, Plaintiff must allege (1) that a contract existed, 18 (2) that he performed or was excused from performing, (3) that UOP breached the contract, and 19 (4) damages. Oasis W. Realty, LLC v. Goldman, 51 Cal. 4th 811, 821 (2011); Green Valley
20 Landowners Ass’n v. City of Vallejo, 241 Cal. App. 4th 425, 433 (2015). Under California law, 21 “[a] contract is either express or implied.” Cal. Civ. Code § 1619. The terms of an express 22 contract are stated in words, while the existence and terms of an implied contract are manifested 23 by conduct. Cal. Civ Code §§ 1620, 1621. “The distinction reflects no difference in legal effect 24 but merely in the mode of manifesting assent.” Retired Emps. Ass’n of Orange Cnty., Inc. v. Cnty.
25 of Orange, 52 Cal. 4th 1171, 1178 (2011) (citations omitted).

26 “[T]he basic legal relationship between a student and a private university is contractual in 27 nature.” Kashmiri v. Regents of Univ. of Cal., 156 Cal. App. 4th 809, 823–24 (2007). A contract

1 is formed between a student and university when the student matriculates to the university and 2 pays the required fees. Id. at 824. Because a formal contract between a student and university is 3 rarely prepared, “the general nature and terms of the agreement are usually implied, with specific 4 terms to be found in the university bulletin and other publications; custom and usages can also 5 become specific terms by implications.” Id. at 828. But not all statements in a university’s 6 publications become contractual obligations. Id. at 829. To determine whether such statements 7 become part of the contract, the Court looks at the reasonableness of the parties’ expectations at 8 the time the contract was formed by looking at the totality of the circumstances. Id. at 831–32.
9 “The reasonableness of the student’s expectation is measured by the definiteness, specificity, or 10 explicit nature of the representation at issue.” Id. at 832.

11           However, “there cannot be a valid, express contract and an implied contract, each 12 embracing the same subject matter, existing at the same time.” Wal-Noon Corp. v. Hill, 45 Cal.
13 App. 3d 605, 613 (1975) (emphasis added). “The reason for the rule is simply that where the 14 parties have freely, fairly, and voluntarily bargained for certain benefits in exchange for 15 undertaking certain obligations, it would be inequitable to imply a different liability and to 16 withdraw from one party benefits for which he has bargained and to which he is entitled.” Id.
17 Thus, an implied-in-fact contract may only arise if there is no express agreement between the 18 student and the school. See Kashmiri, 156 Cal. App. 4th at 827; see also Flatscher v. Manhattan 19 Sch. of Music, 551 F. Supp. 3d 273 (S.D.N.Y. 2021) (looking to university catalogs, bulletins, 20 circulars, and regulations for implied contract terms where no express contract existed).

21           Defendant argues that Plaintiff fails to state a breach of contract claim. Defendant argues it 22 entered into an express agreement with Plaintiff, the SFRA, which controls this dispute. This 23 agreement states:

24                           I acknowledge that when I register for any courses with the University 25                           of the Pacific or receive services or purchase goods, I am responsible 26                           for all “charges” as they are posted to my account but are not limited 27                           to tuition, fees, room and board, meal plans, Laptop Agreement, 28                           bookstore charges and library fees. I further understand and agree that my registration and acceptance of these terms constitutes a promissory note agreement . . . in which the University of the Pacific

1 is providing me educational services, deferring some or all of my 2 payment obligations for those services, and I promise to pay for all assessed tuition, fees, and other associated costs by the published or assigned due date.

3 Defendant correctly asserts that nowhere in the SFRA did it promise to provide in-person 4 instruction or access to on-campus services. See Mot. at 7. Even so, Plaintiff argues that because 5 the SFRA “is not inclusive” of all the terms of the contract, he can rely on promises made in an 6 implied contract. See Opp. at 17. Plaintiff uses Nguyen v. Stephens Inst., 529 F. Supp. 3d 1047
7 (N.D. Cal. 20201) for support. That case is easily distinguishable.

8 Nguyen, like this case, is one of many lawsuits across the nation relating to a university’s 9 decision to transition in-person class instruction to online and to close on-campus services in 10 response to the COVID-19 pandemic. 529 F. Supp. 3d at 1052. There, the University had an 11 express Enrollment Agreement with Nguyen that “did [not] promise to provide in-person 12 instruction or access to on-campus services.” Id. at 1054. However, because the Enrollment 13 Agreement stated that it was only “part of [a student’s] contract with the university,” the court 14 determined that it was “not inclusive of all terms of the contract.” Id. at 1054–55. After looking 15 at other marketing materials that promised to provide in-person instruction and access to on-16 campus services, the court determined that Nguyen and the University had an implied contract in 17 addition to the express Enrollment Agreement. Id.

18 In contrast, the SFRA does not contain any language that would allow the Court to find 19 that the Parties had another implied contract. Instead, it is a broad agreement that clearly states 20 that the student is responsible for all billed charges and that the student understands that he or she 21 is receiving educational services in exchange for payment. There is no language that requires 22 those educational services to be in-person. The Court agrees with Defendant that the SFRA 23 governs the Parties’ financial relationship with respect to tuition, fees, and refunds, which are the 24 focus of the Complaint. See TAC ¶ 1 (“This is a class action lawsuit on behalf of all people who 25 paid tuition and fees for the Spring 2020 academic semester at UOP, and who, because of 26 Defendant’s response to the Novel Coronavirus Disease 2019 (“COVID-19”) pandemic, lost the 27 benefit of the education for which they paid, and/or the services or which their fees were paid,

1 without having their tuition and fees refunded to them.” (emphasis added)). When a student 2 accepts the SFRA prior to registration, the student agrees to pay the tuition and fees that the 3 University assesses, regardless of how the educational services are provided. The SFRA 4 demonstrates a valid written agreement that both Parties voluntarily entered. Thus, this Court 5 holds that the SFRA, and not an implied contract, controls Plaintiff’s breach of contract claim.
6 See Hickey v. Univ. of Pittsburgh, 535 F. Supp. 3d 372, 378 & n.1 (W.D. Penn. 2021) (collecting 7 cases).

8 Plaintiff has not identified any provision in the SFRA that Defendant allegedly violated.
9 On the contrary, Plaintiff alleges that he received his educational services, but in a virtual 10 environment. Therefore, the Court concludes that Plaintiff has failed to state a breach of contract 11 claim. See Wal-Noon Corp., 45 Cal. App. 3d at 613 (“[T]here cannot be a valid, express contract 12 and an implied contract, each embracing the same subject matter, existing at the same time.”).

13 Even if Plaintiff could use an implied-in-fact contract to demonstrate a breach of contract, 14 Plaintiff has not met his burden of demonstrating that the Parties had such a contract. As outlined 15 above, Plaintiff asserts that UOP’s websites, promotional materials, course catalogs, and 16 publications established an expectation that students would receive in-person instruction and have 17 access to on-campus spaces in return for their tuition and fees.

18 Plaintiff must offer evidence of a specific, unequivocal promise by UOP that it would 19 provide in-person instruction and services. Nguyen, 529 F. Supp. at 1055. He has not met this 20 burden. Plaintiff uses various, vague statements in UOP’s promotional materials and course 21 catalogs to demonstrate a specific promise. This is insufficient. See Kashmiri, 156 Cal. App. 4th 22 at 829 (“Not all statements in [a university’s] publications amount to contractual obligations.”).
23 While this Court concluded at the motion to dismiss stage that Plaintiff had sufficiently alleged 24 facts that could show a specific promise by Defendant to hold in-person instruction and services, 25 at the summary judgment phase Plaintiff must provide evidence supporting his assertion that 26 Defendant made express promises. Statements in the course catalog about the “days and times” 27 and the “location” of courses are not express promises to provide in-person instruction. See id.

1 (“As noted, courts have not interpreted general and vague declarations or promises in university
2 publications as creating contractual obligations.”); accord Lindner v. Occidental College, 2020 3 WL 7350212, at *8 (C.D. Cal. Dec. 11, 2020) (“Plaintiffs have failed to identify any specific 4 language in the 2019-2020 Catalog or any other publication from Occidental that promises in-5 person instruction.”). Although UOP’s promotional materials and course catalogs certainly 6 created an expectation that classes would be taught in-person and that students would be able to 7 take advantage of a myriad of on-campus opportunities, these materials do not contain any specific 8 or identifiable promise that is adequate to support a breach of contract, even one implied in fact.
9 See Hickey, 535 F. Supp. 3d at 379. Rather, the materials and publications merely describe UOP’s 10 on-campus experience, which Plaintiff received until Defendant was required to respond to and 11 comply with California state mandates as a result of the COVID-19 pandemic. See Abuelhawa v.
12 Santa Clara Univ., 529 F. Supp. 3d 1059, 1065–70 (N.D. Cal. 2021).

13 Accordingly, the Court holds that UOP’s publications do not give rise to an implied 14 contract. The materials offered nothing more than a generalized and non-specific impression of 15 typical student life. For this reason, the Court GRANTS Defendant’s motion for summary 16 judgment.

17 IV. CONCLUSION

18 For the foregoing reasons, the Court GRANTS Defendant’s motion for summary 19 judgment. A judgment will follow the posting of this Order, and the Clerk shall close the file.
