Case No. 19-cv-2491-JAR

(This Document Relates to Case No. 16-cr-20011-JAR-1, United States v. Damien Campbell and Case No. 18-cv-2414-JAR, Damien Campbell v. United States)

United States of America.

MEMORANDUM AND ORDER

Petitioner Damien Campbell filed a Motion to Vacate and Discharge with Prejudice under 28 U.S.C. § 2255 alleging that the government violated the Sixth Amendment by intentionally and unjustifiably becoming privy to recordings of his attorney-client communications (Doc. 47).<sup>1</sup> As a remedy, he asks the Court to vacate his conviction and term of imprisonment with prejudice to refiling or, alternatively, to reduce the term of imprisonment imposed for his admitted offenses. Pursuant to a Rule 11(c)(1)(C) binding plea agreement, Petitioner pleaded guilty to a charge of possession with the intent to distribute crack cocaine and was sentenced per the parties' agreement to 117 months' imprisonment. He is one of 39 Petitioners in this consolidated matter who allege pre-plea Sixth Amendment violation claims, and whose proceedings were stayed pending the outcome of a related appeal in United States v.

Matthew Spaeth, after the Court dismissed Spaeth’s claim as foreclosed by the rule in Tollett v. Henderson.<sup>2</sup> In Tollett, the United States Supreme Court rejected a pre-plea constitutional challenge where the defendant failed to show that the violation rendered his guilty plea involuntary and unknowing.<sup>3</sup> These Petitioners, including Mr. Campbell, declined the opportunity afforded by the Court to amend their § 2255 motions to seek relief under Tollett or to allege a post-plea violation, and acknowledged that by doing so, they rendered their pre-plea Sixth Amendment claims vulnerable to dismissal under the Court’s previous rulings.<sup>4</sup>

On June 12, 2023, the Tenth Circuit Court of Appeals affirmed this Court’s ruling in Spaeth.<sup>5</sup> The Tenth Circuit ruled: (1) the carve-out provision in Spaeth’s unconditional standard plea agreement did not constitute a waiver of the government’s right to raise, or create an exception to, the rule of law in Tollett, and because Spaeth has not met his burden under Tollett to vacate his unconditional guilty plea, this Court did not err in ruling that Tollett bars his Sixth Amendment challenge;<sup>6</sup> (2) Spaeth’s reliance on the per se Sixth Amendment violation rule in Shillinger v. Haworth<sup>7</sup> is misplaced because that case did not concern Tollett’s guilty-plea situation and “has nothing to do with whether a guilty plea is voluntary or knowing”;<sup>8</sup> and (3)

<sup>7</sup> 70 F.3d 1132, 1142 (10th Cir. 1995) (holding a per se Sixth Amendment violation occurs when the government becomes privy to an attorney-client communication because of its purposeful intrusion that is not justified by any legitimate law enforcement interest).

Tollett precludes Spaeth from challenging his sentence based on an alleged pre-plea Sixth Amendment violation.<sup>9</sup> The court concluded:

We abide by several principles that the Supreme Court made transparent 50 years ago. When a defendant voluntarily and knowingly pleads guilty, the defendant acknowledges that unconstitutional conduct preceding the guilty plea is irrelevant to the admission of factual guilt. As a result, we do not assess the merits of pre-plea constitutional claims but instead ask whether ineffective assistance of counsel caused defendants to enter their guilty pleas involuntarily and unknowingly. Tollett and its progeny tell us how to answer that question: challengers must show ineffective assistance of plea counsel. Because Spaeth does not even contend that his counsel performed deficiently, or that such deficient performance prejudiced him by depriving him of a trial right he would have chosen, we conclude that Spaeth's § 2255 motion must be dismissed.

The Tenth Circuit's ruling in Spaeth compels dismissal of Petitioner's § 2255 motion. Petitioner's Sixth Amendment claim arises from two video recordings of attorney-client meetings that took place at CCA on March 15 and April 7, 2016. The government had possession of and access to these recordings prior to Petitioner's May 1, 2017 guilty plea.<sup>10</sup> Petitioner challenges both his conviction and his sentence based on this alleged Sixth Amendment violation by the government. Like Mr. Spaeth, Petitioner relies on Shillinger and does not attempt to meet the applicable Tollett standard for showing that ineffective assistance of counsel caused him to enter his plea involuntarily and unknowingly. He is also precluded from challenging his sentence based on any alleged pre-plea violation. Accordingly, Petitioner's § 2255 motion is dismissed in its entirety.

<sup>10</sup> The government had possession of and access to hundreds of hours of video recordings obtained from CCA in a separate criminal matter from May 17, 2016 until August 9, 2016, when it disgorged the videos to the Court. See CCA Rec. Lit., Doc. 784 at 13; United States v. Carter, No. 16-20032-JAR, Doc. 758 (D. Kan. Aug. 13, 2019).

Rule 11 of the Rules Governing Section 2255 Proceedings states that the Court must issue or deny a certificate of appealability [“COA”] when it enters a final order adverse to the applicant. “A certificate of appealability may issue . . . only if the applicant has made a substantial showing of the denial of a constitutional right.”<sup>11</sup> If the district court denies a habeas petition on procedural grounds without reaching the merits of petitioner’s underlying constitutional claim, “the prisoner must show both (1) ‘that jurists of reason would find it debatable whether the district court was correct in its procedural ruling’ and (2) ‘that jurists of reason would find it debatable whether the petition states a valid claim of the denial of a constitutional right.’”<sup>12</sup> For the reasons explained above, Petitioner has not made a substantial showing on either prong and the Court therefore denies a COA.

IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED BY THE COURT that Petitioner Damien Campbell’s Motion to Vacate and Discharge with Prejudice under 28 U.S.C. § 2255 (Doc. 47) is dismissed. Petitioner is also denied a COA.

IT IS SO ORDERED.
