

1 UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
2 DISTRICT OF NEVADA

3 Solomon Coleman,
4 Plaintiff
5 v.
6 Las Vegas Metropolitan Police Department,
7 et al.,
8 Defendants

Case No.: 2:20-cv-00739-JAD-BNW

Order Granting Defendant’s Motion for Summary Judgment in Part, Denying Plaintiff’s Motion for Summary Judgment, and Closing Case

[ECF Nos. 97, 98]

9 Solomon Coleman was a Las Vegas Metropolitan Police Department (Metro) officer who 10 was internally investigated for on-the-job misconduct in 2013. His cell phone was seized and 11 searched, and images found on it led to his arrest and prosecution for various sex-related crimes.
12 Coleman took the case to trial and was acquitted of all charges save one—and the Nevada
13 Supreme Court reversed his conviction on that remaining offense after finding that the acts he 14 was accused of didn’t violate the statute he was convicted under. So Solomon filed this suit 15 against Metro and its sergeants and detectives involved in the investigation, along with the 16 district attorney who handled his prosecution, claiming that their actions violated his 17 constitutional rights.

18 A motion to dismiss disposed of the claim against Metro and left Fourth and Fourteenth 19 Amendment claims against the individual defendants only. Discovery has closed and all parties
20 crossmove for various relief in motions for summary judgment. Because Coleman never served 21 defendants Cheryl Hooten and Vicente Ramirez, I dismiss them from this suit under Federal 22 Rule of Civil Procedure 4(m). I decline Coleman’s request to revive his long-since dismissed
23 claim against Metro because he has not established that reconsideration of that dismissal order is

1 warranted. I find that the doctrine of qualified immunity shields Joseph Lepore and Donald
2 Shane from Coleman’s Fourth Amendment claims against them, and that the rest of his claims
3 are unsupported by the evidentiary record. So I grant the defendants’ motion in part, deny
4 Coleman’s, and close this case.

5 Background

6 I. Factual Background

7 Officer Coleman responded to a domestic-violence call at Sasha Boseke’s apartment in 8 May of 2013.¹ A female officer took photos of injuries on Boseke’s arm, elbow, and backside,
9 and Boseke’s fiancé was arrested.² At the conclusion of the investigation, Coleman stayed 10 behind to explain the victim’s information guide and domestic-violence resources to Boseke and 11 then left.³

12 Exactly what happened next is heavily disputed. Coleman maintains that he responded to 13 another domestic-violence call in Boseke’s neighborhood later that same evening and never went 14 back to Boseke’s home.⁴ But Boseke claimed that Coleman came back to her apartment later
15 under the guise of having more paperwork for her and needing to take additional photos of her
16 injuries.⁵ She said that he followed her into her bedroom, pulled down her shorts and underwear,

17

18

19 ¹ ECF No. 97-4 at 2; ECF No. 97-5 at 16 (52:6–25). Coleman and the defendants filed 20 compressed versions of deposition transcripts, so four deposition pages are contained in one ECF page. When citing to those documents, I first cite the ECF pagination and then cite the deposition pages and lines in parentheses.

21 ² ECF No. 97-5 at 17 (55:18–23); ECF No. 97-6 at 3.

22 ³ ECF No. 97-4 at 2; ECF No. 97-5 at 17 (56:22–25, 57:17–22); ECF No. 97-6 at 2; ECF No. 97-7 at 243.

23 ⁴ ECF No. 97-5 at 19 (65:18–25); ECF No. 97-7 at 221–22.

⁵ ECF No. 97-8 at 4–5.

1 and took photos of her butt while grabbing his groin and commenting on his arousal.⁶ Boseke
2 believed that Coleman returned to her home a third time around midnight, but she didn't answer
3 the door.⁷

4
5 A. Coleman was the subject of an internal investigation into a victim's 6 allegations of improper conduct.

6 Both sides agree that Boseke called Metro dispatch the next day and lodged a complaint
7 against Coleman.⁸ The call was routed to Sergeant Joseph Lepore, who contacted Sergeant Cheryl
8 Hooten of Metro's Crimes Against Youth and Family Unit.⁹ Hooten took Detectives Donald 9 Shane and R. Tennant to interview Boseke and, after that interview, Hooten requested that 10 Lepore seize Coleman's cell phone in an attempt to preserve evidence of any photos or videos
11 that Coleman may have taken during the alleged second visit to Boseke's place.¹⁰

12 So Lepore called Coleman into a conference room at Metro to explain the allegations
13 against him and take his cell phone.¹¹ Shane arrived soon afterwards with orders to bring the 14 phone to Detective Brian Santarossa.¹² While Lepore, Shane, and Coleman were in the 15 conference room, Coleman's wife called.¹³ Because Coleman was not permitted to access his 16 cell phone, Shane allowed Coleman to call his wife back on Shane's phone instead.¹⁴ There is a

17 _____
⁶ Id.

18 ⁷ Id.

19 ⁸ ECF No. 97-9 at 9; ECF No. 97-12 at 16 (50:14-15).

20 ⁹ ECF No. 97-35 at 10 (28:19-25).

21 ¹⁰ ECF No. 97-34 at 9 (25:13-17), 10 (27:14-17); ECF No. 97-35 at 10 (29:1-17), 12 (34:7-13, 37:5-8); ECF No. 98-1 at 42 (31:22-25, 32:1-2).

22 ¹¹ ECF No. 98-1 at 43 (47:12-20).

23 ¹² ECF No. 97-34 at 11 (30:15-22), 16 (52:7-9).

¹³ ECF No. 97-5 at 9 (23:20-25).

¹⁴ ECF No. 97-34 at 13 (41:3-6), 14 (44:11-15).

1 dispute about whether Shane accessed Coleman’s phone to retrieve the wife’s number or 2 Coleman just knew her number from memory.¹⁵ Either way, Shane eventually took Coleman’s
3 cell phone and handed it off to Santarossa.¹⁶

4 B. The internal investigation led to evidence of other alleged misconduct—and 5 Coleman’s prosecution for several sex-related crimes involving two alleged 6 victims.

6 The next day, Santarossa obtained a search warrant for Coleman’s cell phone.¹⁷
7 Detective Vicente Ramirez began the forensic search and was looking for any evidence related to 8 Boseke’s accusations.¹⁸ Santarossa drafted, and Deputy District Attorney Lisa Luzaich
9 approved, an application for a second search warrant three days later to expand the scope of the 10 original search.¹⁹ Santarossa and Ramirez did not find evidence of Boseke’s encounter with 11 Coleman,²⁰ but they did discover sexually explicit photos and videos of another woman from the 12 previous year.²¹

13 Back in June 2012, Coleman was on the scene of a suspicious-vehicle call involving a 14 woman named Lauren Morgan.²² Coleman conducted a search of Morgan’s cell phone and 15 found sexually explicit photos and videos of her.²³ He took out his phone and recorded that 16

17 _____
18 ¹⁵ ECF No. 1 at ¶¶ 84–86; ECF No. 97-5 at 9 (24:5–6); ECF No. 97-34 at 14 (44:2–10), 16 (50:2–4).

19 ¹⁶ ECF No. 97-12 at 10 (28:13–16).

20 ¹⁷ ECF No. 97-9 at 13–18; ECF No. 97-12 at 10 (29:21–25).

21 ¹⁸ ECF No. 97-12 at 11 (31:20–22, 33:7), (32:22–25).

22 ¹⁹ ECF No. 97-9 at 8–11.

23 ²⁰ ECF No. 97-12 at 12.

²¹ Id. at 13 (40:5–7, 41:5–7).

²² ECF No. 97-7 at 225, 247.

²³ Id. at 229, 231.

1 content onto his own phone.²⁴ It was this content that Santarossa and Ramirez discovered during
2 their search of Coleman’s cell phone a year later.

3 C. Coleman ultimately beat the charges.

4 Coleman was placed on administrative leave shortly after his phone was searched,²⁵ an 5 internal investigation was opened into this alleged misconduct,²⁶ and Santarossa applied for a
6 warrant for Coleman’s arrest.²⁷ By the end of 2013, Coleman had been fired from Metro and 7 was being prosecuted in state court for open and gross lewdness, indecent exposure, capturing an 8 image of the private area of another person, and oppression under color of office.²⁸ He twice
9 moved—unsuccessfully—to suppress the evidence found on his cell phone.²⁹ When his case
10 was tried, the jury acquitted him of all but the capturing-an-image charge.³⁰ But the Supreme 11 Court of Nevada reversed his conviction on that remaining count two years later, concluding that 12 the statute under which Coleman was convicted was being too broadly applied, and Coleman’s
13 actions didn’t violate it as newly clarified.³¹

14 II. Procedural Background

15 Absolved of all charges stemming from Metro’s internal investigation, Coleman retained
16 counsel, who filed this suit four years ago.³² When Coleman’s counsel blew extended deadlines

17 _____
²⁴ Id. at 231; ECF No. 97-5 at 16 (50:6–12).

18 ²⁵ ECF No. 97-16 at 2.

19 ²⁶ ECF No. 97-18 at 5.

20 ²⁷ ECF No. 97-10 at 6–17.

21 ²⁸ ECF No. 97-25 at 2–3; Indictment, State of Nevada v. Coleman, No. C-13-294579-1 (Doc No. 1).

22 ²⁹ ECF No. 97-3 at 12–13; ECF No. 97-11 at 51; ECF No. 97-29; ECF No. 97-30.

23 ³⁰ Jury Verdict, State of Nevada v. Coleman, No. C-13-294579-1 (Doc. No. 31).

³¹ Coleman v. State, 416 P.3d 238, 241–42 (Nev. 2018).

³² ECF No. 1.

1 to respond to the defendants’ motion to dismiss the whole case, I construed his lack of response
2 as consent to granting it and closed the case.³³ I later granted Coleman’s pro se motion to 3 reconsider and allowed him to file a belated opposition to the motion to dismiss with new 4 counsel.³⁴ But I “caution[ed] that, in light of the history of this case, further missteps will not be
5 overlooked or so freely excused.”³⁵ After full briefing and oral argument, I granted the motion
6 to dismiss in part, leaving the following claims:

- 7 • A Fourth Amendment unlawful-seizure claim against Hooten and Lepore for the 8 warrantless seizure of Coleman’s cell phone;
- 9 • A Fourth Amendment unlawful-search claim against Shane for accessing his cell
10 phone to retrieve Coleman’s wife’s phone number without a warrant, and against 11 Ramirez for looking for more information in the cell phone than the warrant permitted;
- 12 • A Fourth Amendment judicial-deception claim against Hooten, Santarossa, and 13 Luzaich for “submitting to judges” “false statements and omissions” to establish 14 probable cause for search warrants;
- 15 • A Fourth Amendment malicious-prosecution claim against Hooten and Santarossa
16 for pursuing and initiating charges against Coleman without probable cause and with the 17 intent to deprive him of constitutional rights; and

22 ³³ ECF No. 26.

23 ³⁴ ECF No. 34.

³⁵ Id. at 2.

- 1 • A Fourteenth Amendment fabrication-of-evidence claim against Hooten, Lepore,
2 Santarossa, Shane, Tennant, and Ramirez for false statements and material omissions
3 in warrant applications, testimony, and forensic reports.³⁶

4 Coleman’s new counsel eventually withdrew based on “a fundamental disagreement over 5 the appropriate course of action in this matter,”³⁷ and Coleman moved forward on a pro se basis.
6 Discovery closed eight months ago, and the parties have filed crossmotions for summary
7 judgment, asking for various forms of relief.³⁸ Hooten and Ramirez ask to be dismissed because 8 they have yet to be served with process.³⁹ The remaining defendants argue that Coleman’s
9 Fourth Amendment claims are barred by the doctrine of collateral estoppel because he litigated
10 probable-cause issues in his state-court prosecution and, regardless, the search and arrest
11 warrants were supported by probable cause. Lepore and Shane add that they are shielded from 12 Coleman’s Fourth Amendment claims by the doctrine of qualified immunity. And all defendants 13 argue that summary judgment is proper on all claims because the record is devoid of evidence to 14 support them.

15 For his part, Coleman—in an unusually robust filing for a pro se litigant—disagrees with 16 the defendants’ characterization of the record and argues that it supports summary judgment in 17 his favor.⁴⁰ He theorizes that the defendants knew he was innocent from the beginning yet
18 continued to investigate and prosecute him. And he asks the court to revive his long-since-

19 _____
20 ³⁶ ECF No. 106 (transcript of 9/29/21 motion-to-dismiss hearing).

21 ³⁷ ECF No. 47 at 2.

22 ³⁸ Coleman titles his motion as one for partial summary judgment, but I construe it as one for complete summary judgment because he seeks judgment in his favor on all claims. See generally ECF No. 98.

23 ³⁹ ECF No. 97.

⁴⁰ ECF No. 98.

1 dismissed claim against Metro. I first address the impact of Coleman’s failure to serve Hooten
2 and Ramirez, evaluate his attempt to resurrect his claim against Metro, and then turn to the true
3 summary-judgment issues.

4 Discussion

5 I. Hooten and Ramirez are dismissed from this case because they were never 6 served with process.

7 The defendants first seek summary judgment on all of Coleman’s claims against Hooten
8 and Ramirez because they have yet to be served with process in this four-year-old case.⁴¹ I
9 construe this request as one to dismiss the claims against Hooten and Ramirez under Federal 10 Rule of Civil Procedure (FRCP) 4(m), which instructs that the court “must” dismiss claims
11 against any defendant who has not been served with the summons and complaint within 90 days
12 of the complaint’s filing or any extension of the service deadline.⁴² Coleman was granted two 13 service extensions and successfully served Lepore, Tennant, Shane, Santarossa, and Metro, but 14 service was not made on Hooten or Ramirez.⁴³ Coleman blames this failure on his two previous 15 attorneys and his discovery of this mistake only after he decided to represent himself.⁴⁴ He 16 argues that this constitutes excusable neglect and asserts that because Metro, Hooten, and 17 Ramirez are all represented by the same attorneys and Metro was properly served, Hooten and 18 Ramirez were on sufficient notice of their inclusion in this case.⁴⁵

21 ⁴¹ ECF No. 97 at 30–31.

22 ⁴² Fed. R. Civ. P. 4(m).

23 ⁴³ ECF No. 97 at 31.

⁴⁴ ECF No. 108 at 10.

⁴⁵ Id. at 9.

1 A. The law requires good cause to avoid dismissal for failure to serve.

2 Service of process on each defendant is a critical step in any litigation. A court can 3 exercise power over a defendant and make binding decisions about that defendant’s rights and 4 obligations only once it obtains jurisdiction over that defendant. “The procedural requirement of 5 service of summons” is how jurisdiction gets conferred on the court.⁴⁶ “In the absence of proper
6 service of process, the district court has no power to render any judgment against” a defendant.⁴⁷
7 The fact that a named defendant is on notice of a lawsuit is not enough. As the United States
8 Supreme Court explained in Omni Capital International, Ltd v. Rudolf Wolff & Company, Ltd, 9 “before a court may exercise personal jurisdiction over a defendant, there must be more than 10 notice to the defendant”⁴⁸

11 FRCP 4(m) gives a plaintiff 90 days to effectuate service and requires the court to 12 dismiss claims against any defendant not served within that window or any court-granted 13 extension of that deadline⁴⁹ unless the plaintiff “shows good cause for [his] failure [to serve],” in 14 which case the court can further extend the service deadline “for an appropriate period.”⁵⁰
15 “Good cause to avoid dismissal may be demonstrated by establishing, at a minimum, excusable
16 neglect” and may be supported by a further showing that “the party to be served personally 17 received actual notice of the lawsuit,” “the defendant would suffer no prejudice,” and the

18
19
20 ⁴⁶ Omni Cap. Int’l, Ltd. v. Rudolf Wolff & Co., 484 U.S. 97, 104 (1987); S.E.C. v. Ross, 504 F.3d 21 1130, 1138 (9th Cir. 2007) (“service of process is the means by which a court asserts its jurisdiction over the person”).

22 ⁴⁷ Ross, 504 F.3d at 1138–39.

⁴⁸ Id.

23 ⁴⁹ Fed. R. Civ. P. 4(m).

⁵⁰ Id.

1 “plaintiff would be severely prejudiced if his complaint were dismissed.”⁵¹ District courts also 2 “have broad discretion to extend time for service” and should “consider factors ‘like a statute of 3 limitations bar, prejudice to the defendant, actual notice of a lawsuit, and eventual service.’”⁵²

4
5 B. Coleman has not demonstrated good cause to avoid dismissal of his claims against Hooten and Ramirez.

6 Coleman has not shown excusable neglect for his failure to serve Hooten or Ramirez.
7 Coleman was granted two extensions to effectuate service on all defendants,⁵³ and he did so on 8 Metro, Lepore, Shane, Santarossa, Tennant, and Luzaich.⁵⁴ He argues that the incomplete
9 service on Hooten and Ramirez is excusable because it was his attorneys’ neglect, not his own.⁵⁵
10 But the law doesn’t accept it was my lawyer’s fault excuses. As the Ninth Circuit has explained, 11 “[i]t is a longstanding principle that in ‘our system of representative litigation, each party is 12 deemed bound by the acts of his lawyer-agent and is considered to have notice of all facts, notice
13 of which can be charged upon the attorney.’”⁵⁶ So the fact that the failure to serve Hooten and 14 Ramirez was originally the fault of Coleman’s 2020–2022 counsel is not excusable neglect
15 because the law imputes that failure on Coleman, too.

16 Even if Coleman weren’t deemed responsible for his former attorneys’ failure, his 17 personal failure to take steps to remedy the lack of service on these defendants during the last 18

18 _____
19 ⁵¹ Lemoge v. United States, 587 F.3d 1188, 1198 n.3 (9th Cir. 2009) (quoting Boudette v. Barnette, 923 F.2d 754, 756 (9th Cir. 1991)).

20 ⁵² Efaw v. Williams, 473 F.3d 1038, 1041 (9th Cir. 2007) (quoting Troxell v. Fedders of N. Am., Inc., 160 F.3d 381, 383 (7th Cir. 1998)).

21 ⁵³ ECF No. 5; ECF No. 13.

22 ⁵⁴ ECF Nos. 17–20.

23 ⁵⁵ ECF No. 108 at 10.

⁵⁶ Garcia v. I.N.S., 222 F.3d 1208, 1209 (9th Cir. 2000) (quoting Link v. Wabash R.R., 370 U.S. 626, 634 (1962)).

1 months prevents the court from excusing his own neglect. Coleman discovered the ineffective
2 service in October 2022 at a meeting with opposing counsel,⁵⁷ and he has yet to rectify the 3 situation by effectuating personal service, moving for another extension, or serving by alternative
4 means. So even if the initial failure to serve was his attorneys’ fault, Coleman himself knew of 5 the blunder for a year and a half and did nothing. Because Coleman has not shown excusable
6 neglect for his failure to serve Hooten or Ramirez or good cause to further extend his deadline to 7 do so, this court “must” dismiss the claims against them under Rule 4(m).

8 II. Coleman cannot resurrect his long-since-dismissed Monell claim against Metro.

9 In his reply in support of his summary-judgment motion, Coleman argues that his claim
10 against Metro under Monell v. Department of Social Services of City of New York “should be 11 brought in because the claim was prematurely dismissed.”⁵⁸ That claim was dismissed two and a 12 half years ago at the hearing on the defendants’ motion to dismiss because Coleman failed to 13 plead a specific unconstitutional policy, practice, or custom or establish a link between the 14 defendants’ actions and any such policy.⁵⁹ But Coleman requests in his reply brief that I revive 15 this claim because he was unable to gather the proper documents before discovery to prove a 16 constitutional violation under Monell and, as a pro se plaintiff, he was simply unaware that I
17 dismissed this claim at the motion-to-dismiss stage.⁶⁰ I liberally construe his argument as a very 18 late motion for reconsideration.

19 “[A]s long as a district court has jurisdiction over the case, then it possesses the inherent 20 procedural power to reconsider, rescind, or modify an interlocutory order for cause seen by it to 21 ⁵⁷ Id.

22 ⁵⁸ ECF No. 107 at 20.

23 ⁵⁹ ECF No. 106 at 8–9.

⁶⁰ ECF No. 107 at 19–20.

1 be sufficient.”⁶¹ “Reconsideration may also be appropriate if (1) there is newly discovered
2 evidence that was not available when the original motion or response was filed, (2) the court
3 committed clear error or the initial decision was manifestly unjust, or (3) if there is an 4 intervening change in controlling law.”⁶² Coleman provides no new evidentiary material that 5 would warrant reviving this claim. He still fails to highlight a specific policy or custom
6 sufficient to justify Monell liability, nor does he point to clear error by the court or a material
7 change in the law. Indeed, the thrust of Coleman’s purported “Monell” theory is that the Metro
8 supervisor defendants “deliberately and maliciously ignored [Metro’s] policies, practices, and 9 procedures in an effort to violate” his constitutional rights,⁶³ while Monell liability against an 10 agency arises when “action pursuant to”—not in contravention of—“official municipal policy of 11 some nature caused a constitutional tort.”⁶⁴ And because the claim against Metro was dismissed
12 more than two and a half years ago, defendants would be prejudiced by its revival at this late 13 date. So I deny Coleman’s request to now revive his Monell claim against Metro.

14
15 III. The defendants are entitled to summary judgment in their favor on all remaining claims.

16 With the claims against Hooten and Ramirez dismissed, and having clarified that no
17 claims against Metro remain, I turn to the true summary-judgment arguments on the remaining
18 claims, which are: the Fourth Amendment claim against Lepore for seizing Coleman’s cell
19 phone; the Fourth Amendment unlawful-search claim against Shane for accessing Coleman’s 20

21 ⁶¹ City of Los Angeles, Harbor Div. v. Santa Monica Baykeeper, 254 F.3d 882, 886 (9th Cir.
22 2001); see also Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(b).

23 ⁶² L.R. 59–1(a).

⁶³ ECF No. 98 at 28 (emphasis added) (cleaned up).

⁶⁴ Monell v. Department of Social Services, 436 U.S. 658, 691 (1978).

1 cell phone to retrieve Coleman’s wife’s phone number; the Fourth Amendment judicial-
2 deception claim against Santarossa and Luzaich; the Fourth Amendment malicious-prosecution
3 claim against Santarossa; and the Fourteenth Amendment fabrication-of-evidence claim against 4 Lepore, Santarossa, Shane, and Tennant. While the remaining defendants argue that these claims
5 are barred by qualified immunity or fail because the record lacks evidence to create a genuine
6 issue of fact to support them, Coleman contends that the record supports each of his claims.

7 A. Legal standards for crossmotions for summary judgment

8 The principal purpose of the summary-judgment procedure is to isolate and dispose of 9 factually unsupported claims or defenses.⁶⁵ Summary judgment is appropriate when the 10 pleadings and admissible evidence “show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact 11 and that the movant is entitled to judgment as a matter of law.”⁶⁶ The moving party bears the 12 initial responsibility of presenting the basis for its motion and identifying the portions of the 13 record or affidavits that demonstrate the absence of a genuine issue of material fact.⁶⁷ If the 14 moving party satisfies its burden, the burden then shifts to the opposing party to present specific 15 facts that show a genuine issue for trial.⁶⁸

16 Who bears the burden of proof on the factual issue in question is critical. When the party 17 moving for summary judgment would bear the burden of proof at trial (typically the plaintiff), he 18 “must come forward with evidence [that] would entitle [him] to a directed verdict if the evidence
19
20

21 ⁶⁵ Celotex Corp. v. Catrett, 477 U.S. 317, 323–24 (1986).

22 ⁶⁶ See id. at 322 (citing Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(c)).

23 ⁶⁷ Id. at 323; Devereaux v. Abbey, 263 F.3d 1070, 1076 (9th Cir. 2001) (en banc).

⁶⁸ Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(e); Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 248 (1986); Auvil v. CBS 60 Minutes, 67 F.3d 816, 819 (9th Cir. 1995).

1 went uncontroverted at trial.”⁶⁹ Once the moving party establishes the absence of a genuine
2 issue of fact on each issue material to his case, “the burden then moves to the opposing party,
3 who must present significant probative evidence tending to support its claim or defense.”⁷⁰
4 When instead the opposing party would have the burden of proof on a dispositive issue at trial,
5 the moving party (typically the defendant) doesn’t have to produce evidence to negate the 6 opponent’s claim; it merely has to point out the evidence that shows an absence of a genuine
7 material factual issue on one element of the claim to garner summary judgment on it because “a
8 complete failure of proof concerning an essential element of the nonmoving party’s case
9 necessarily renders all other facts immaterial.”⁷¹ “When simultaneous cross-motions for 10 summary judgment on the same claim are before the court, the court must consider the 11 appropriate evidentiary material identified and submitted in support of”—and against—“both 12 motions before ruling on each of them.”⁷² Applying these standards, I find that the defendants 13 are entitled to summary judgment on all of them.

14
15 B. The doctrine of qualified immunity shields Lepore and Shane from Coleman’s cell-phone-related Fourth Amendment claims.

16 In his first and second causes of action, Coleman claims that his Fourth Amendment
17 rights were violated by Lepore’s seizure of his cell phone without a warrant or his consent, and 18

19 ⁶⁹ C.A.R. Transp. Brokerage Co. v. Darden Rest., Inc., 213 F.3d 474, 480 (9th Cir. 2000)
20 (quoting Houghton v. South, 965 F.2d 1532, 1536 (9th Cir. 1992) (citation and quotations omitted)).

21 ⁷⁰ Intel Corp. v. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co., 952 F.2d 1551, 1558 (9th Cir. 1991) (citation omitted).

22 ⁷¹ See, e.g., Lujan v. Nat’l Wildlife Fed’n, 497 U.S. 871, 885 (1990); Celotex, 477 U.S. at 322– 24.

23 ⁷² Tulalip Tribes of Washington v. Washington, 783 F.3d 1151, 1156 (9th Cir. 2015) (citing Fair Hous. Council of Riverside Cnty., Inc. v. Riverside Two, 249 F.3d 1132, 1134 (9th Cir. 2001)).

1 by Shane’s act of searching that phone to retrieve Coleman’s wife’s phone number so Coleman
2 could call her back on a different phone since his had been seized.⁷³ The defendants argue that 3 whether Coleman consented to the seizure and search are genuinely disputed, but that 4 disagreement doesn’t matter because these search and seizure claims are barred by the doctrine
5 of qualified immunity because there is no clearly established Fourth Amendment right to privacy
6 in a cell phone used for work purposes.⁷⁴

7 1. An officer is immune from suit for a civil-rights violation unless the 8 plaintiff can show that the law made it clear that his conduct was 9 prohibited.

9 The doctrine of qualified immunity protects government officials “from money damages
10 unless a plaintiff pleads facts showing that (1) the official violated a statutory or constitutional 11 right, and (2) the right was ‘clearly established’ at the time of the challenged conduct.”⁷⁵ When 12 a defendant raises this affirmative defense, the plaintiff bears the burden of demonstrating that 13 both prongs are met.⁷⁶ The plaintiff’s failure to establish either prong compels summary
14 judgment in favor of the defendant on qualified-immunity grounds.

15 “Public officials are immune from suit under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 unless they have violated
16 a statutory or constitutional right that was clearly established at the time of the challenged
17 conduct.”⁷⁷ The right may not be characterized “at a high level of generality.”⁷⁸ Instead, “[t]he 19 ⁷³ ECF 1 at 12–14.

20 ⁷⁴ ECF No. 97 at 58–59.

21 ⁷⁵ Ashcroft v. al-Kidd, 563 U.S. 731, 735 (2011) (quoting Harlow v. Fitzgerald, 457 U.S. 800, 818 (1982)).

22 ⁷⁶ Isayeva v. Sacramento Sheriff’s Dep’t., 872 F.3d 938, 946 (9th Cir. 2017).

23 ⁷⁷ City & Cnty. of San Francisco, Calif. v. Sheehan, 575 U.S. 600, 611 (2015) (quotation omitted).

⁷⁸ Mullenix v. Luna, 577 U.S. 7, 12 (2015) (quotation omitted).

1 dispositive question is whether the violative nature of particular conduct is clearly established.”⁷⁹
2 “An officer cannot be said to have violated a clearly established right unless the right’s contours
3 were sufficiently definite that any reasonable official in his shoes would have understood that he
4 was violating it, meaning that existing precedent placed the statutory conduct or constitutional
5 question beyond debate.”⁸⁰ The takeaway from the Supreme Court’s recent qualified-immunity
6 jurisprudence is that a court’s analysis of the clearly-established-law prong “must be undertaken
7 in light of the specific context of the case” (like whether Coleman had a privacy interest in his 8 personal cell phone used for work purposes in light of the specific circumstances presented here) 9 “not as a broad general proposition”⁸¹ (like whether a person has a privacy interest in his 10 personal cell phone).

11
12 2. *Coleman has not identified a clearly established Fourth Amendment right that was violated by this search or seizure.

13 Coleman argues that the clearly established right Lepore and Shane violated was his 14 Fourth Amendment privacy right in his personal cell phone.⁸² Indeed, there is such a clearly 15 established right, as the Supreme Court held ten years ago in Riley v. California that people have 16 a Fourth Amendment privacy interest in their cell phones.⁸³ But the seizure and search of 17 Coleman’s phone happened almost a year before Riley was handed down, back when courts were 18
19 20

21 ⁷⁹ Id. (quotation omitted).

22 ⁸⁰ Sheehan, 135 S. Ct. at 1774 (quotation omitted).

23 ⁸¹ Id. at 12 (quoting Brosseau v. Haugen, 543 U.S. 194, 198 (2004)).

⁸² ECF No. 98 at 14–15.

⁸³ Riley v. California, 573 U.S. 373, 403 (2014).

1 widely split on the issue.⁸⁴ So the broad right that Coleman identifies wasn't clearly established
2 at the relevant time.

3 The right that this court must consider here is even narrower than the generic right to 4 privacy in a cell phone. This seizure and search occurred because Coleman was using his 5 personal cell phone to gather and store evidence related to his investigatory work as a Metro
6 officer—a fact that Coleman does not deny and which the record overwhelmingly supports.⁸⁵ So
7 the fact-specific question for our qualified-immunity inquiry is whether Coleman had a Fourth
8 Amendment privacy interest in his personal cell phone that was being used for work purposes
9 such that a warrant was required for its seizure or search.

10 Defendants contend that the law surrounding this workplace-inspection exception to the 11 warrant requirement was not clearly established at the time of these events in 2013—and indeed, 12 still isn't.⁸⁶ The Supreme Court held in a plurality decision in O'Connor v. Ortega in 1987 that 13 public employees may have a reduced expectation of privacy in their “offices, desks, and file
14

15 ⁸⁴ See Elizabeth S. Myers, Containing Cell Phones? Restoring the Balance Between Privacy and 16 Government Interests in Fourth Amendment Cell Phone Searches and Seizures, 48 Suffolk U. L.
17 Rev. 203, 215 (2015) (“Before the Supreme Court issued its decision on whether warrantless
18 searches of cell phones are unreasonable, several state and circuit courts struggled with the 19 decision, resulting in a split. . . . The federal circuit split alone, however, demonstrated that this 20 issue was not completely resolved and required further consideration from our highest Court.”).

21 ⁸⁵ Coleman testified that he often used his personal cell phone for work purposes while on duty.
22 ECF No. 97-5 at 20 (66:21–25, 67:1–25). He explained that he has used his phone to record
23 videos of different incidents and investigations. Id. Most notably, of course, is his encounter with Lauren Morgan in which he viewed sexually explicit photos and videos on Morgan's cell phone and recorded them onto his own. Id. at 15 (49:16–22), 16 (50:9–12). He testified that Morgan's photos and videos contained proof of drug use and he recorded them for investigatory purposes, believing that he was collecting evidence in accordance with department policy and procedure at the time. Id. at 16 (51:5–17). He also testified that he freely provided his number to community members so that they might reach him during a potential crisis. Id. at 20 (67:14– 23).

⁸⁶ ECF No. 97 at 58.

1 cabinets” “by virtue of actual office practices and procedures.”⁸⁷ The O’Connor decision
2 yielded two competing approaches for determining whether the workplace-inspection exception
3 applies.⁸⁸ The plurality held that a court first must consider “[t]he operational realities of the 4 workplace” to determine whether the Fourth Amendment is implicated, as “some government
5 offices may be so open to fellow employees or the public that no expectation of privacy is 6 reasonable.”⁸⁹ If the court finds that the employee enjoys this expectation of privacy—a 7 determination that must be made on a “case-by-case basis”—it must then address whether the 8 employer’s intrusion “for noninvestigatory, work-related purposes, as well as for investigations
9 of work-related misconduct” is reasonable under all the circumstances.⁹⁰ Justice Scalia’s
10 concurrence in O’Connor dispensed with the operational-realities portion of the test and simply 11 concluded that the government’s intrusion must be judged by the standard of reasonableness.⁹¹

12 The High Court further refined the workplace-inspection exception in 2010 in City of 13 *Ontario, Cal v. Quon*⁹² while considering whether the City of Ontario violated Officer Quon’s
14 Fourth Amendment rights when it searched his government-issued pager to determine why Quon
15 was exceeding his monthly character limit, which resulted in additional fees for the city.⁹³
16 Although the court declined to issue a broad holding concerning the privacy expectations in 19 ⁸⁷ O’Connor v. Ortega, 480 U.S. 709, 717 (1987).

20 ⁸⁸ See City of Ontario, Cal. v. Quon, 560 U.S. 746, 756 (2010) (reviewing the Court’s disagreement in O’Connor v. Ortega).

21 ⁸⁹ O’Connor, 480 U.S. at 717–18.

22 ⁹⁰ Id. at 718, 723.

23 ⁹¹ Id. at 731 (Scalia, J., concurring)

⁹² Quon, 560 U.S. at 755.

⁹³ Id. at 750–53.

1 employer-provided devices⁹⁴ or clarify which O'Connor test controls,⁹⁵ it did assume that Quon
2 maintained an expectation of privacy in the messages he sent on his government-issued pager.⁹⁶
3 But it ultimately concluded that the city’s search of that pager was reasonable to uncover
4 whether Quon’s overages “were the result of work-related messaging or personal use.”⁹⁷ The 5 city’s review “was motivated by a legitimate work-related purpose” and “was not excessive in 6 scope,” so the High Court found that the search satisfied both tests outlined in O'Connor and did
7 not violate Quon’s constitutional rights.⁹⁸

8 The Quon case didn’t clearly establish the right Coleman needs, however, because 9 Coleman’s cell phone was his personal one and not a government-issued device like Quon’s.
10 And as the defendants point out, as recently as 2021, the Ninth Circuit observed that “[c]ourts
11 ha[d] not clearly established whether it is unconstitutional to search or seize data from a personal 12 cell phone under the workplace-inspection exception to the warrant requirement for public
13 employers established in” Ortega and Quon.⁹⁹ So it was not clearly established in 2013 that

14
15 ⁹⁴ Id. at 760.

16 ⁹⁵ Id. at 757.

17 ⁹⁶ Id. at 761.

18 ⁹⁷ Id.

19 ⁹⁸ Id. at 764–65.

20 ⁹⁹ Larios v. Lunardi, 856 F. App’x 704, 705 (9th Cir. 2021) (unpublished) (cleaned up). The 21 Larios panel affirmed a grant of qualified immunity to a California Highway Patrol officer who 22 searched and seized a colleague’s personal cell phone during a workplace investigation. Id.
23 Larios had used his personal cell phone to communicate with a confidential informant and eventually became romantically involved with her. Larios v. Lunardi, 442 F. Supp. 3d 1299, 1303 (E.D. Cal. 2020), aff’d, Larios, 856 F. App’x at 705. During the ensuing internal-affairs investigation, his personal cell phone was searched and a backup of its contents was saved. Id. at 1304. The Ninth Circuit found that the defendant was shielded by qualified immunity because the application of the workplace-investigation exception was not clearly established. Larios, 856
F. App’x at 705 (“We conclude that no clearly established law prohibited the search of Larios’s text messages or the creation of a backup of his cell phone data during the course of a workplace investigation.”).

1 Coleman had an expectation of privacy in his personal-but-used-for-work cell phone and that
2 Lepore or Shane needed a warrant to seize or search it. And because Coleman cannot establish 3 that Lepore and Shane violated a clearly established right, these defendants are entitled to 4 summary judgment in their favor on Coleman’s Fourth Amendment claims based on qualified 5 immunity.

6 B. Santarossa and Luzaich are entitled to summary judgment on Coleman’s 7 judicial-deception claim because the record does not establish that falsities or 8 omissions undermined probable cause.

9 In his third cause of action, Coleman claims that Detective Santarossa and Deputy 10 District Attorney Luzaich deceived judges, thereby violating his Fourth Amendment rights, when 11 Santarossa made false statements in and material omissions from his search-warrant applications,
12 and Luzaich tacitly ratified them by submitting the applications to the judges.¹⁰⁰ To establish a 13 Fourth Amendment judicial-deception claim, “a plaintiff must show that the defendant 14 deliberately or recklessly made false statements or omissions that were material to the finding of 15 probable cause.”¹⁰¹ To establish materiality, the plaintiff must demonstrate that “the affidavit,
16 once corrected and supplemented, would not have provided a magistrate judge with a substantial
17 basis for finding probable cause.”¹⁰²

21 ¹⁰⁰ ECF No. 1 at ¶¶ 93, 103. While Coleman also pled this claim against Hooten, I address it 22 only as to Santarossa and Luzaich because the claims against Hooten were dismissed under 23 FRCP 4(m). See supra at pp. 8–11.

¹⁰¹ KRL v. Moore, 384 F.3d 1105, 1117 (9th Cir. 2004) (citing Galbraith v. Cnty. of Santa Clara, 307 F.3d 1119, 1126 (9th Cir. 2002)).

¹⁰² Chism v. Washington State, 661 F.3d 380, 389 (9th Cir. 2011) (cleaned up).

1
2 1. This claim is not precluded by the probable-cause finding at Coleman’s preliminary hearing.

3 The defendants argue that Coleman cannot prevail on his judicial-deception claim
4 because the state court in Coleman’s criminal case “heard evidence regarding [his] unsupported
5 allegations that Santarossa lied and fabricated false affidavits and rejected those arguments,” 6 finding probable cause.¹⁰³ They contend that, under the Ninth Circuit’s decision in Haupt v.
7 Dillard,¹⁰⁴ the preliminary-hearing probable-cause finding is conclusive and collaterally estops
8 Coleman from pursuing this judicial-deception claim.¹⁰⁵ But Haupt is no longer good law
9 because, after it was decided, the Nevada Supreme Court held that “a probable cause
10 determination in a preliminary hearing does not preclude a plaintiff from litigating that issue in a 11 subsequent suit.”¹⁰⁶ So, as the Ninth Circuit then held in Scafidi v. Las Vegas Metropolitan 12 Police Department, a “preliminary-hearing probable-cause determination is [now] only prima 13 facie evidence of probable cause, which can be overcome in a later proceeding with evidence of 14 ‘false testimony or suppressed facts.’”¹⁰⁷

15
16
17
18 _____
19 ¹⁰³ ECF No. 105 at 22. See also ECF No. 97-3 at 12 (transcript of state-court suppression hearing) (“The Court finds that there was a search warrant obtained that was based upon probable cause signed by a neutral and detached magistrate and executed in good faith.”).

20 ¹⁰⁴ Haupt v. Dillard, 17 F.3d 285 (9th Cir. 1994).

21 ¹⁰⁵ Id.

22 ¹⁰⁶ Jordan v. State ex rel. Dep’t of Motor Vehicles & Pub. Safety, 110 P.3d 30, 48 (Nev. 2005), overruled on other grounds by Buzz Stew, LLC v. City of N. Las Vegas, 181 P.3d 670 (Nev.
2008)).

23 ¹⁰⁷ Scafidi v. Las Vegas Metro. Police Dep’t, 966 F.3d 960, 963 (9th Cir. 2020) (cleaned up)
(quoting Jordan, 110 P.3d at 48–49).

1
2 2. Coleman has not shown that he can overcome the prima facie evidence
3 of probable cause.

4 Defendants contend that Coleman “does not even articulate” in his briefing “the actual,
5 alleged deception” that supports his judicial-deception claim.¹⁰⁸ Indeed, his theories are mostly 6 broad and vague. He opines that “the inaccuracies of the statements made by [Boseke] regarding 7 [him], the lack of witnesses, lack of evidence, and credibility of a convicted felon and known
8 prostitute” mean that “a ‘prudent person’ would not have concluded there was” probable
9 cause.¹⁰⁹ He adds his characterization of Santarossa’s affidavit as “written in a way to deceive
10 the magistrate judge into believing the seizure along with the search of the cell phone” hadn’t yet
11 happened.¹¹⁰ And he notes that when Santarossa was asked at deposition “do you believe

12 [Boseke] was truthful during her interview” in 2013, Santarossa responded, “I don’t know.”¹¹¹

13 Starting with the last point, Santarossa’s deposition answer is not evidence of judicial 14 deception. For one thing, the timing is off. The fact that Santarossa didn’t know at his 2023
15 deposition whether Boseke was truthful ten years earlier is proof of nothing. Plus, his follow-up
16 deposition answer undermines any assumption that Santarossa believed Boseke was untruthful 17 when he applied for the search warrant. As Santarossa explained, “[t]here was no evidence to 18 say she wasn’t, there was not evidence to say that she definitively was. I don’t know.”¹¹²

19 Coleman doesn’t identify what statements in either search-warrant affidavit make them 20 “written in a way to deceive the magistrate judge” into thinking that the phone hadn’t yet been

21

¹⁰⁸ ECF No. 105 at 21.

22 ¹⁰⁹ ECF No. 98 at 20.

23 ¹¹⁰ ECF No. 107 at 14.

¹¹¹ ECF No. 98 at 19 (quoting ECF No. 98-1 at 69).

¹¹² ECF No. 98-1 at 69 (Santarossa depo. at 72:10–13).

1 seized or searched, and the affidavits belie that characterization. The June 2, 2013, Application
2 and Affidavit for Search Warrant notes that on June 1, 2013, the phone had been obtained from 3 Coleman and was in Metro’s possession “for safekeeping pending this investigation.”¹¹³ The 4 June 5, 2013, application recounts that Detective Ramirez, “a certified cell phone investigator,
5 conducted an examination of Coleman’s cell phone and discovered browser activity related to 6 several web-based photo sharing accounts.”¹¹⁴

7 The remaining alleged omissions don’t undermine a probable-cause finding either.
8 Coleman’s generalization that probable cause is destroyed by “the inaccuracies of the statements
9 made by [Boseke] regarding [him]” is too vague to show that he can overcome the prima facie
10 evidence supplied by the state-court’s probable-cause determination. “Conclusory allegations
11 unsupported by factual data cannot defeat summary judgment,”¹¹⁵ “[n]or can a party defeat 12 summary judgment with allegations in the complaint, or with unsupported conjecture or 13 conclusory statements.”¹¹⁶ Because Coleman’s claim of inaccuracies is conclusory, it doesn’t 14 overcome the prima facie probable-cause evidence.

15 Nor did “the lack of witnesses [or] lack of evidence” mean that probable cause didn’t 16 exist. As the United States Supreme Court emphasized in Illinois v. Gates, “probable cause
17 means ‘fair probability,’ not certainty or even a preponderance of the evidence. In short, a 18 magistrate judge is only required to answer the ‘commonsense, practical question whether there
19 is probable cause to believe that contraband or evidence is located in a particular place’ before 20

21 ¹¹³ ECF No. 98-1 at 75.

22 ¹¹⁴ ECF No. 97-9 at 11 (cleaned up). These affidavits contain much of the same information.
Compare ECF No. 97-9 at 8–11 with id. at 14–18.

23 ¹¹⁵ Rivera v. Nat’l R.R. Passenger Corp., 331 F.3d 1074, 1078 (9th Cir. 2003).

¹¹⁶ Hernandez v. Spacelabs Med. Inc., 343 F.3d 1107, 1112 (9th Cir. 2003) (cleaned up).

1 issuing a search warrant.”¹¹⁷ Corroboration was not required to establish probable cause here
2 either, as the Ninth Circuit has recognized that crime victims “may generally be presumed 3 credible by police”¹¹⁸ and that non-informant, citizen witnesses “are generally presumed 4 reliable.”¹¹⁹

5 Even without that presumption, Boseke’s account was sufficiently reliable to establish 6 probable cause that Coleman had committed a crime and that evidence of it would be found on 7 his phone. A court may judge the reliability of a citizen’s report of a crime by considering “(1) 8 the opportunity to view the criminal at the time of the crime; (2) the degree of attention paid to 9 the criminal; (3) the accuracy of the prior descriptions of the criminal; (4) the level of certainty 10 demonstrated at the time of confrontation; and (5) the length of time between the crime and the 11 confrontation.”¹²⁰ These factors establish the reliability of Boseke’s report.

12 Boseke positively identified Coleman as the officer who was first dispatched to her home
13 for a domestic-violence incident and who later returned to her home alone—twice.¹²¹ Coleman
14 spent almost two hours at her home, remaining there alone with her for roughly 35 minutes after 15 all the other officers had left.¹²² Boseke had ample opportunity to interact with him, making it
16 conceivable that she would recognize him upon his alleged return later that evening. She 17 identified him to officers as the “mixed policeman,” and Santarossa notes in his affidavit that

18
19 ¹¹⁷ United States v. Gourde, 440 F.3d 1065, 1069 (9th Cir. 2006) (quoting Illinois v. Gates, 462 U.S. 213, 230, 246 (1983)).

20 ¹¹⁸ Ewing v. City of Stockton, 588 F.3d 1218, 1225 (9th Cir. 2009) (quoting United States v.
Blount, 123 F.3d 831, 835 (5th Cir. 1997)).

21 ¹¹⁹ Id. at 1224.

22 ¹²⁰ Grant v. City of Long Beach, 315 F.3d 1081, 1087 (9th Cir. 2002) (cleaned up), opinion amended on denial of reh’g, 334 F.3d 795 (9th Cir. 2003).

23 ¹²¹ ECF No. 97-9 at 10, 17.

¹²² ECF No. 97-4 at 2.

1 Boseke referred to him by name as “Coleman.”¹²³ She also called to report Coleman the very
2 next morning while the events of the preceding evening would have remained fresh in her
3 memory.¹²⁴ The details Boseke provided of the alleged second encounter show that she both
4 paid—and was able to pay—a high degree of attention to the alleged perpetrator. At no time did 5 her account reflect that she was uncertain about what happened—except as to whether he
6 actually took photos with his cell phone, and to that point, the affidavit reflects that Boseke
7 recounted that Coleman “pull[ed] out a red cell phone from his pocket” and that “she believed
8 that he had taken pictures of her while her pants were down.”¹²⁵ All of this information 9 sufficiently established a fair probability that evidence of this encounter would be found on 10 Coleman’s cell phone.

11 Probable cause was also not negated by Santarossa’s failure to note that Boseke was “a 12 convicted felon and known prostitute.”¹²⁶ “The government need not include all of the 13 information in its possession to obtain a search warrant. The omission of facts rises to the level 14 of misrepresentation only if the omitted facts ‘cast doubt on the existence of probable cause.’”¹²⁷
15 For the proposition that Santarossa knew but omitted these details of Boseke’s past, Coleman
16 offers a patchwork of deposition excerpts in which Santarossa acknowledges that Boseke’s
17 neighbor, Joey Zepeda, told Santarossa (on an unidentified date) that “he believed Boseke was a 18 prostitute” and that “Boseke’s friends are people who do drugs, cheat, and are hookers.”¹²⁸ But

19 _____
20 ¹²³ ECF No. 97-9 at 10; ECF No. 108-1 at 29.

¹²⁴ ECF No. 97-9 at 9; ECF No. 97-12 at 16 (50:14–15).

21 ¹²⁵ ECF No. 98-1 at 75.

22 ¹²⁶ ECF No. 98 at 20.

¹²⁷ Ewing, 588 F.3d at 1226 (quoting United States v. Johns, 948 F.2d 599, 606 (9th Cir. 1991)).

23 ¹²⁸ ECF No. 98-1 at 70 (when asked if Boseke was “a known prostitute,” Santarossa testified, “I believe she had priors also for it”).

1 it is not clear from the record that Zepeda shared these colorful impressions with Santarossa
2 before the affidavits were sworn out. Even if he had, this alleged history would not have 3 prevented the judge from finding probable cause in light of the totality of the circumstances—
4 particularly the detailed information Boseke provided about the encounter and Coleman’s
5 alleged use of his phone during it. This absence of a genuine issue of material fact to support
6 Coleman’s judicial-deception claim entitles Santarossa and Luzaich to summary judgment in 7 their favor.¹²⁹

8
9 C. For the same reason, Santarossa is entitled to summary judgment on Coleman’s malicious-prosecution claim.

10 Coleman’s fourth cause of action alleges a Fourth Amendment malicious-prosecution
11 claim under 28 U.S.C. § 1983 against Santarossa for seeking and obtaining “an arrest warrant 12 and the filing of charges against Coleman for which probable cause was lacking.”¹³⁰ To prevail 13 on such a claim, Coleman must establish that the charges against him were “instituted without 14 any probable cause,” that the motive behind them “was malicious,” and “the criminal 15 prosecution ended without a conviction.”¹³¹ My conclusion that Coleman cannot show on this 16 record that probable cause was lacking also entitles Santarossa to summary judgment on his

17
18 _____
19 ¹²⁹ As an independent basis for summary judgment, the defendants argue, and Coleman does not 20 refute, that Santarossa and Luzaich would be shielded from judicial-deception liability based on 21 qualified immunity. Indeed, Coleman does not even attempt to establish that the unlawfulness of applying for search warrants on these facts was clearly established. So even if there were genuine issues of fact surrounding the probable-cause determination, the defendants are entitled to qualified immunity. See Ewing, 588 F.3d at 1231.

22 ¹³⁰ Although this claim was pled against “All Officer Defendants,” ECF No. 1 at 32, I granted the 23 motion to dismiss this claim against Lepore, Shane, and Tennant, leaving it to proceed against Santarossa and Hooten. See ECF No. 106 at 9. Because all claims are dismissed against Hooten under FRCP 4(m), I now evaluate this claim against Santarossa only.

¹³¹ Thompson v. Clark, 596 U.S. 36, 44, 49 (2022).

1 Fourth Amendment malicious-prosecution claim. “It is a long-standing principle of common law
2 that a decision by a judge or magistrate to hold a defendant to answer after a preliminary hearing
3 constitutes prima facie—but not conclusive—evidence of probable cause.”¹³² Although 4 Coleman ultimately beat all of his charges, the grand jury did return a true bill on six of them,¹³³
5 which is prima facie evidence of probable cause. That, coupled with my finding that Boseke’s
6 report of the incident and the totality of the circumstances were sufficient to establish probable
7 cause to believe that Coleman had committed a crime,¹³⁴ means that Coleman cannot establish a 8 key element of this claim. So I grant summary judgment in favor of the defendants on 9 Coleman’s malicious-prosecution claim, too.¹³⁵

10
11 D. Summary judgment is warranted on Coleman’s evidence-fabrication claim because the record does not support it.

12 In his final cause of action, Coleman claims that Santarossa, Lepore, Shane, and Tennant
13 violated his Fourteenth Amendment due-process rights by “deliberately fabricating false
14 evidence that was used to bring criminal charges against [him], to prosecute him, and to secure 15 his conviction.”¹³⁶ Deliberate fabrication requires proof of fabrication and evidence of

16
17
18 _____
19 ¹³² Awabdy v. City of Adelanto, 368 F.3d 1062, 1067 (9th Cir. 2004); see also Jordan, 110 P.3d 20 at 49 n. 65 (citing Ricord v. C.P.R.R. Co., 15 Nev. 167, 180 (1880), for the proposition that, in a malicious prosecution case, the commitment and indictment of a defendant constitutes prima facie—but rebuttable—evidence of probable cause for criminal prosecution).

21 ¹³³ ECF No. 1 at ¶ 154.

22 ¹³⁴ See supra at pp. 21–25.

23 ¹³⁵ Like the judicial-deception claim, this claim would also be subject to dismissal based on qualified immunity because Coleman has not shown that the unlawfulness of his prosecution on these facts was clearly established.

¹³⁶ ECF No. 1 at 34–35.

1 causation.¹³⁷ A plaintiff can establish fabrication with direct evidence of deliberate fabrication
2 or circumstantial evidence of a defendant’s motive.¹³⁸ If a plaintiff relies on circumstantial
3 evidence, he must show that the “(1) [d]efendants continued their investigation . . . despite the 4 fact that they knew or should have known that [the plaintiff] was innocent; or (2) [d]efendants
5 used investigative techniques that were so coercive and abusive that they knew or should have 6 known that those techniques would yield false information.”¹³⁹ Evidence that a defendant knew 7 or should have known that the plaintiff was innocent is not required if there is direct evidence of 8 deliberate fabrication.¹⁴⁰

9 The defendants argue that Coleman can’t establish on this record that they fabricated
10 evidence against him.¹⁴¹ Coleman responds by blanketly referring back to the same allegations
11 he offered in support of his judicial-deception and malicious-prosecution claims.¹⁴² He adds
12 more specifically that “Santarossa’s affidavit contained statements he knew to be false, or which 13 he would have known were false had he not recklessly disregarded the truth,” and he refers again
14 to Santarossa’s “admi[ssion]” in his deposition that he didn’t know if Boseke’s report was 15 true.¹⁴³ As further proof that the defendants knew Boseke’s allegations were false, Coleman

17 ¹³⁷ Caldwell v. City & Cnty. of San Francisco, 889 F.3d 1105, 1112, 1115 (9th Cir. 2018);
18 Richards v. Cnty. of San Bernardino, 39 F.4th 562, 573–74 (9th Cir. 2022) (noting that claims 19 for deliberate fabrication of evidence require a less demanding causation standard, requiring that the plaintiff show that there is a reasonable likelihood that the alleged fabrication “could have affected the judgment of the jury”).

20 ¹³⁸ Caldwell, 889 F.3d at 1112.

21 ¹³⁹ Devereaux, 263 F.3d at 1076.

22 ¹⁴⁰ Spencer v. Peters, 857 F.3d 789, 799–800 (9th Cir. 2017).

23 ¹⁴¹ ECF No. 97 at 51–53.

¹⁴² ECF No. 108 at 34 (citing ECF No. 98 at 20).

¹⁴³ Id.

1 references “Hooten’s email communication where she admitted that no evidence regarding ‘their 2 victim’ had been recovered from [his] phone.”¹⁴⁴ He contends that Tennant is on the hook for 3 this claim because he “conducted multiple interviews with individuals from [Coleman’s]
4 personal cell phone contacts that were not relevant to the alleged criminal investigation regarding 5 Sasha Boseke” and didn’t “speak[] up about the unwarranted interviews. . . .”¹⁴⁵ And he insists 6 that the defendants’ “techniques were coercive and abusive to lead to false information” because 7 they “unlawfully seized” and searched his cell phone and “ignored the fact that there was no
8 evidence to support the claim that came in from Boseke.”¹⁴⁶

9 To begin with, none of this even mentions Lepore or Shane—let alone supports a claim 10 of deliberate fabrication by them—so they are both entitled to summary judgment in their 11 favor.¹⁴⁷ Coleman’s theory against Tennant does not rise to the level of conduct necessary to 12 create a genuine issue of fact to support this claim against him either. The interviews Coleman

13
14 ¹⁴⁴ Id. (citing ECF No. 98 (“Exhibit C, pg. 31 ¶ 6”). Exhibit C to Coleman’s motion is actually a series of emails about his right to arbitration. The Hooten email Coleman is referring to is found at ECF No. 98-1 at 98 and marked as “Exhibit M.”

15 ¹⁴⁵ ECF No. 108 at 12.

16 ¹⁴⁶ Id. at 34–35.

17 ¹⁴⁷ Coleman offers the conclusory argument that these officers “were part of a group effort, led 18 by the Sexual Assault detail who predetermined Plaintiff’s guilt, then used every means 19 available, including violating Plaintiff’s rights under the clearly established law, to ensure his 20 prosecution and conviction on charges for which probable cause did not exist.” ECF No. 98 at 21 23. He adds that they “deprived” him “of his rights under the Fourteenth Amendment by 22 deliberately fabricating false evidence that was used to bring criminal charges against” him, “to 23 prosecute him, and to secure his conviction.” Id. at 25. Instead of identifying in his briefing this “false evidence,” he refers the court to his complaint at pages 14–15. Id. But Coleman’s complaint is not verified, and a party opposing summary judgment “cannot defeat summary judgment with allegations in the complaint, or with unsupported conjecture or conclusory statements.” Hernandez, 343 F.3d at 1112. And to the extent that this claim against Lepore and Shane is based on false testimony at a hearing, see ECF No. 1 at ¶ 219(b)-(f), it is also barred by absolute immunity. See Paine v. City of Lompoc, 265 F.3d 975, 981 (9th Cir. 2001) (“Witnesses, including police witnesses, are immune from liability for their testimony in earlier proceedings even if they committed perjury.”) (citing Briscoe v. LaHue, 460 U.S. 325, 329 (1983)).

1 cites are described in voluntary statements by Boseke and were conducted by Shane on June 1
2 and June 7, 2013; Tennant was present at the second one.¹⁴⁸ But Coleman doesn't identify 3 anything in those interviews of Boseke that shows that Tennant or Shane fabricated anything or 4 conducted those interviews despite knowing that Coleman was blameless. Nor does he identify 5 anything about those interviews that shows the use of investigative techniques that would yield
6 false information. So Tennant, too, is entitled to summary judgment on this claim.

7 While Coleman points to some evidence against Santarossa, that evidence doesn't create
8 a genuine issue of fact that precludes summary judgment in his favor on this claim. The Hooten
9 email is dated June 6, 2013—the day after Santarossa's second search-warrant affidavit was 10 sworn out—and there is no evidence in the record that it was sent to or seen by Santarossa. Even 11 if it was, that email shows only that the search of Coleman's phone didn't yield any photos to 12 corroborate Boseke's story and leaves open the possibility that a further search might:

13 As Lt. had stated in the last email[,] we have not found pictures of 14 our victim regarding this incident. However, there are other photos
15 and video that we are looking into. We are also waiting for the T
Mobile account (Search Warrant) to see if anything has been stored elsewhere.¹⁴⁹

16 Construed in the light most favorable to Coleman, the Hooten email is not proof that Santarossa
17 fabricated evidence or continued to investigate Coleman though he knew or should have known 18 that he was innocent. Indeed, by then—as the Hooten email itself notes—the investigators had 19 discovered the sexually explicit images of Morgan on Coleman's phone, which were the images 20 on which Coleman was eventually convicted at trial (a conviction that was reversed on appeal on 21 legal, not factual grounds).

22
23 ¹⁴⁸ ECF No. 108-1 at 28–30 (Boseke's voluntary statements).

¹⁴⁹ ECF No. 98-1 at 98.

1 Coleman’s assertion that Santarossa’s affidavit was rife with statements he “knew to be
2 false” or would have “had he not recklessly disregarded the truth”¹⁵⁰ is too conclusory to stave
3 off summary judgment. Besides, as I found supra, the record does not support Coleman’s
4 characterization of Santarossa’s search-warrant affidavits as containing falsities or material
5 omissions. And while Santarossa admitted at his deposition that he didn’t know whether 6 Boseke’s story was truthful or not, his candid acknowledgement of that skepticism—which is a 7 truism for any alleged victim—is a neutral fact; it is not proof that Santarossa knew or should 8 have known that Coleman was innocent of the crimes he was ultimately charged with.

9 Coleman’s labeling of the department’s techniques used in his internal investigation as so 10 “coercive and abusive [as] to lead to false information”¹⁵¹ is bluster. As explained supra, he has 11 not shown that the seizure and initial search of his cell phone were not permitted by the 12 workplace-inspection exception to the warrant requirement.¹⁵² Nor has he established that the 13 warranted searches of his phone lacked probable cause or were overbroad. While Boseke’s
14 complaint against Coleman was not corroborated, as an alleged citizen-victim, her allegations
15 were worthy of the presumption of truth.¹⁵³ And when the investigative team soon stumbled
16 upon the images of Morgan, Boseke’s claim that she believed Coleman had taken explicit 17 pictures of her became more plausible. So the techniques Coleman identifies weren’t coercive or 18 abusive. Even if they were, Coleman has not explained how their design was likely to generate 19 false information. For example, he does not argue that the forensic report of his cell phone was 21 ¹⁵⁰ ECF No. 108 at 34.

22 ¹⁵¹ Id.

23 ¹⁵² See supra at pp. 15–20.

¹⁵³ See supra at p. 24.

1 fabricated in any way, nor does he contend that the Morgan images were fake or somehow
2 planted on his cell phone to incriminate him.

3 In sum, I find that Coleman has not shown that he can support his evidence-fabrication
4 claim with either direct evidence of falsification or circumstantial evidence that the defendants
5 continued to investigate him though they knew or should have known he was innocent or they 6 used techniques so coercive and abusive that they knew or should have known that their means 7 would yield false evidence. So I grant summary judgment in favor of the defendants on 8 Coleman's evidence-fabrication claim.

9 Conclusion

10 IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED that the defendants' motion for summary judgment
11 [ECF No. 97] is GRANTED in part, leaving no claims remaining¹⁵⁴:

- 12 • The claims against Hooten and Ramirez are DISMISSED under FRCP 4(m);
- 13 • Lepore and Shane are entitled to summary judgment on Coleman's Fourth Amendment 14 claims based on qualified immunity; and
- 15 • All remaining defendants are entitled to summary judgment on all remaining claims
16 because the failure of proof on at least one element of each claim leaves Coleman without 17 the necessary genuine issues of fact to proceed to trial on any claim.

18 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that Plaintiff Solomon Coleman's motion for summary
19 judgment [ECF No. 98] is DENIED.

20
21
22
23 ¹⁵⁴ Because I grant summary judgment for the reasons stated in this order, I need not and do not address the defendants' additional arguments for resolution in their favor.

1 The Clerk of Court is directed to ENTER JUDGMENT in favor of the defendants and 2 against Plaintiff Solomon Coleman and CLOSE THIS CASE.

U.S. District Judge Jennifer A. Dorsey
April 19, 2024

3
4
5
6
7
8
9
10
11
12
13
14
15
16
17
18 19 20
21
22
23