

1 assigning or transferring any property until Defendants pay the taxes that they have 2 withheld from employees' paychecks. See ECF No. 17 at 2. The Government 3 alleges that Defendants own and operate a number of business entities with 4 employees which requires them to submit documentation and withhold and pay 5 federal income taxes, Federal Insurance Contribution Act (FICA) taxes, and 6 Federal Unemployment Tax Act (FUTA) excises related to their employees'
7 wages. Id. at 8-10. The Government argues that the entities run by Defendants, 8 including, among others, Dental Care Associates of Spokane Valley, P.S.; Dr.
9 James G. Hood Family Dentistry; Dr. James G. Hood, D.D.S., P.S.; Hood Family
10 Trust; and Whispering Pine Press Inc., have avoided such tax obligations since 11 2001 and continue to do so. See generally ECF No. 17.

12 According to the Government, the IRS has conferred with Defendants on 13 numerous occasions, notified them of their liabilities, and has sought compliance 14 through a variety of means prior to initiating this suit. Id. at 19; see also ECF No.
15 32 at 4-6. The IRS states that it has issued warnings, sought levies, and pursued 16 administrative action to force Defendants to adhere to their tax obligations. See 17 ECF No. 17 at 19-21, See also ECF No. 32 at 4-6. Defendants, however, continue 18 to avoid paying necessary taxes and continue to open new business entities
19 seemingly to avoid the oversight of the IRS. The Government found 52 businesses 20 listed under their names. See ECF Nos. 17 at 19. In doing so, Defendants have 21 accrued more than $700,000 in taxes owed to the IRS, according to IRS records,

1 and that debt continues to rise. See ECF No. 32 at 2. During the pendency of this 2 litigation, the United States seeks a preliminary injunction:

3 that prevents the entities or the Hoods from failing to obey any of the 4 internal revenue laws, forces them to send facsimiles of the tax returns 5 they file and proof of payment to the Revenue Officer assigned to the case on the day of filing and paying, and stops them from creating and operating new entities without notifying the IRS.

8 A preliminary injunction is “an extraordinary and drastic remedy, one that 9 should not be granted unless the movant, by a clear showing, carries the burden of 10 persuasion” (emphasis in original). Lopez v. Brewer, 680 F.3d 1068, 1072 (9th
11 Cir. 2012) (citing Mazurek v. Armstrong, 520 U.S. 968, 972, 117 S.Ct. 1865, 138
12 L.Ed.2d 162 (1997) (per curiam)). Ordinarily, to obtain a preliminary injunction, 13 the moving party must “demonstrate that (1) he is likely to succeed on the merits of 14 such a claim; (2) he is likely to suffer irreparable harm in the absence of 15 preliminary relief; (3) the balance of equities tips in his favor; and (4) that an 16 injunction is in the public interest.” Lopez, 680 F.3d at 1072 (citing Winter v.
17 Natural Res. Def. Council, Inc., 555 U.S. 7, 20, 129 S.Ct. 365, 172 L.Ed.2d 249 18 (2008)).

19 In this case, the United States is seeking an injunction pursuant to 26 U.S.C.
20 § 7402 which states in relevant part:

1 The district courts of the United States at the instance of the United 2 States shall have such jurisdiction to make and issue ... orders of 3 injunction ... and such other orders and processes, and to render such 4 judgments and decrees as may be necessary or appropriate for the 5 enforcement of the internal revenue laws. The remedies hereby 6 provided are in addition to and not exclusive of any and all other 7 remedies of the United States in such courts or otherwise to enforce 8 such laws.

9 Although the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals has not yet determined whether 10 the traditional equitable factors must also be met to issue a preliminary injunction,¹ 11 the court in United States v. Thompson, 395 F. Supp. 2d 941, 945 (E.D. Cal. 2005)
12 held that “[b]ecause § 7402(a) grants the court injunctive power, the government 13 need only show that an injunction is appropriate for the enforcement of the internal 14 revenue laws, without reference to the traditional equitable factors.” In 15 considering the United States’ Motion, this Court assesses both whether or not the 16 preliminary injunction is necessary and appropriate to enforce internal revenue 17 laws and also whether or not the traditional equitable factors favor an injunction.
18 Importantly, “[t]he government bears the burden of proving each element 19 necessary for the issuance of the injunction by a preponderance of the evidence.”
20 United States v. Stephenson, 313 F. Supp. 2d 1054, 1057 (W.D. Wash. 2004)

21 ¹ “The Ninth Circuit has not determined whether the United States must show the traditional equitable factors in order to obtain a preliminary injunction.” United States v. Stephenson, 313 F. Supp. 2d 1054, 1056 (W.D. Wash. 2004).

1 (citing United States v. Estate Preservation Services, 202 F.3d 1093, 1098 (9th
2 Cir.2000)).

3 A. Traditional equitable factors

4 (1) Likelihood of success on the merits

5 “To establish a substantial likelihood of success on the merits, [the moving 6 party] must show ‘a fair chance of success.’” In re Focus Media Inc., 387 F.3d
7 1077, 1086 (9th Cir. 2004) (quoting Republic of the Philippines v. Marcos, 862
8 F.2d 1355, 1362 (9th Cir.1988) (en banc)). The United States has submitted 9 substantial reliable evidence supporting its claim that Defendants have failed to 10 pay their taxes. See e.g., ECF Nos. 33-34. For example, the Government 11 submitted Certificates of Assessment and Payment that demonstrate the proper 12 assessment, notice, and demand for taxes made by a representative of the Secretary 13 of the Treasury. ECF No. 32 at 9. In response, Defendants have not submitted any 14 viable legal arguments or defenses; they instead vaguely dispute the amounts 15 owed, detail their failed attempts at compliance, and submit details regarding 16 personal difficulties. See ECF Nos. 38-48. In light of the substantial evidence 17 supporting the United States’ claims, and in the absence of any viable defenses or 18 evidence to counter the same, this Court finds that the United States is sufficiently 19 likely to succeed on the merits of this litigation.

1 (2) Irreparable harm

2 The United States argues that Defendants continue to add to the significant 3 tax debt that they already have accrued, and absent an injunction, the public will be 4 forced to fund their business endeavors while they ignore their growing tax 5 liabilities. See ECF No. 32 at 9-10. Defendants fail to provide any evidence to the 6 contrary. See ECF Nos. 38-48.

7 As the alleged debt increases to an extent that Defendants may not be able to 8 pay and insofar as they continue to maintain business entities, this Court agrees 9 with the Government that under a preponderance of the evidence standard, it is 10 likely that irreparable harm would result if Defendants' conduct is not enjoined.

11 (3) The balance of equities

12 The Government argues that the balance of equities weigh heavily in its 13 favor because it is simply requesting that Defendants be forced to comply with the 14 law. See ECF No. 32 at 9. As the Court in United States v. Campbell, 897 F.2d 15 1317, 1324 (5th Cir. 1990) (citing Dunlop v. Davis, 524 F.2d 1278 (5th Cir.1975)) 16 held in dealing with a permanent injunction: “[a] permanent injunction against 17 future violations of a statute is permitted because such merely requires the enjoined 18 party to obey the law.”

19 Any hardships than an injunction would impose on Defendants would 20 already have arisen under relevant statutes, but absent an injunction, the United 21 States would continue to lose the benefits of obtaining tax revenues owed by

1 Defendants. Defendants address this factor with numerous repetitive declarations 2 that detail attempts to satisfy debts and that restate personal difficulties regarding 3 their family life. See ECF Nos. 38-48. Although the Court recognizes the severity
4 of Defendants’ personal hardships, the burden of complying with statutory 5 obligations is not dissipated by the presence of unfortunate or even tragic 6 circumstances. Accordingly, this Court finds that the balance of equities weighs in 7 favor of granting the requested preliminary injunction.

8 (4) Public Interest

9 According to the Government, the public is currently funding Defendants’ 10 business entities, and the effect of Defendants’ ability to avoid taxes is serving as a 11 de facto subsidy of their businesses, supporting them against their law-abiding and 12 tax-paying competitors. See ECF No. 17 at 25-36, see also ECF No. 32 at 10.

13 Defendants do not provide any reason to believe that the public has an interest that 14 would be harmed by the requested preliminary injunction. See ECF Nos. 38-48.

15 Accordingly, the Government has met its burden of establishing by a 16 preponderance of the evidence that an injunction is in the public interest.

17 B. 26 U.S.C. § 7402 – “Necessary and appropriate”

18 The Government argues that an injunction is proper in this case pursuant to 19 26 U.S.C. § 7402 because “it is necessary or appropriate for the enforcement of the 20 internal revenue laws.” ECF No. 32 at 7-8. The Government states that 21 Defendants have failed to comply with their tax obligations after the Government

1 sought compliance through administrative actions and other means prior to this 2 litigation, but nothing sufficed to ensure that Defendants paid their taxes. ECF No.
3 17 at 19, See also ECF No. 32 at 4-6, 24-26. Therefore, an injunction would be the 4 only adequate remedy to prevent Defendants from adding to their debt and finding 5 ways to avoid paying what they already owe. Defendants' vague requests for "due 6 process" without any argument that would refute the Government's assertion that 7 an injunction is necessary and appropriate are unpersuasive. See ECF Nos. 38-48.
8 In the absence of any contradicting evidence, the Government has proven by a 9 preponderance of the evidence that an injunction is necessary and appropriate to 10 ensure Defendants' compliance with tax laws.

11 CONCLUSION

12 In light of the foregoing considerations, this Court finds that the requisite 13 conditions under 26 U.S.C. § 7402 are satisfied and all four of the traditional 14 equitable factors favor the entering of a preliminary injunction pending the 15 outcome of this case.
