

1 the nonmoving party, but did not note the Cross-Motions for a hearing. In light of 2 Plaintiff's pro se status and to provide Plaintiff adequate notice, the Court
3 informed Plaintiff that it was considering the Cross-Motions, allowing Plaintiff
4 additional time to file a Supplemental Reply. ECF No. 64. Plaintiff has since filed
5 a Supplemental Reply (ECF No. 80).¹

6 The Court has reviewed the record and files herein, and is fully informed.
7 For the reasons discussed below, the Defendants' Cross Motions for Summary
8 Judgment (ECF Nos. 50; 51; 52) are granted and Plaintiff's Motions for Summary
9 Judgment (ECF Nos. 31; 32; 33) are denied.

10 STANDARD OF REVIEW

11 A movant is entitled to summary judgment if "there is no genuine dispute as 12 to any material fact and that the movant is entitled to judgment as a matter of law."
13

14 ¹ After Plaintiff submitted the Motions for Summary Judgment, the Court
15 granted Plaintiff's request to amend his Complaint to include state law claims he 16 could not originally assert at the time of filing (because of the notice required for 17 pursuing a tort action against the state). Plaintiff has since filed a Second 18 Amended Complaint (ECF No. 77). Although the Court references Plaintiff's First 19 Amended Complaint, this Order applies to those same claims asserted in the 20 Second Amended Complaint.

1 Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(a). A fact is “material” if it might affect the outcome of the suit
2 under the governing law. Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 248
3 (1986). An issue is “genuine” where the evidence is such that a reasonable jury
4 could find in favor of the non-moving party. Id. The moving party bears the 5 “burden of establishing the nonexistence of a ‘genuine issue.’” Celotex Corp. v.
6 Catrett, 477 U.S. 317, 330 (1986). “This burden has two distinct components: an 7 initial burden of production, which shifts to the nonmoving party if satisfied by the 8 moving party; and an ultimate burden of persuasion, which always remains on the 9 moving party.” Id.

10 Per Rule 56(c), the parties must support assertions by: “citing to particular 11 parts of materials in the record” or “showing that the materials cited do not 12 establish the absence or presence of a genuine dispute, or that an adverse party
13 cannot produce admissible evidence to support the fact.” Only admissible
14 evidence may be considered. Orr v. Bank of America, NT & SA, 285 F.3d 764, 773
15 (9th Cir. 2002). The nonmoving party may not defeat a properly supported motion
16 with mere allegations or denials in the pleadings. Liberty Lobby, 477 U.S. at 248.
17 The “evidence of the non-movant is to be believed, and all justifiable inferences
18 are to be drawn in [the non-movant’s] favor.” Id. at 255. However, the “mere 19 existence of a scintilla of evidence” will not defeat summary judgment. Id. at 252.

1 BACKGROUND²

2 The case arises out of a series of escalating demands by Plaintiff Darryl 3 Riser during his brief stint as an employee in the financial aid department of 4 Washington State University—beginning with a request for a new job title with 5 more pay and ending with multiple demands that his supervisors and the president
6 of WSU resign from their positions. See ECF Nos. 18; 19 and attachments. In 7 short, Plaintiff complains about a series of actions taken by WSU and its 8 employees that ultimately led to his termination, including denying his requests 9 without a hearing, or without an “impartial” hearing. The Parties disagree as to the 10 true impetus of the action—Plaintiff argues it was because of his alleged “whistle-
11 blower” activities and Defendant argues it was a reasonable response to Plaintiff’s 12 inappropriate conduct. Whether the complained-of conduct was retaliatory is not 13 at issue for the motions currently before the Court.

14 DISCUSSION

15 Plaintiff filed three Motions for Summary Judgment (ECF Nos. 31; 32; 33).
16 Defendants cross-moved for summary judgment in their Responses (ECF Nos. 50;
17
18

19 ² An in-depth review of the underlying facts is not necessary to address the 20 pending motions, as the relevant, material facts are limited and not in dispute.

1 51; 52). Each Motion for Summary Judgment and its corresponding Cross-Motion
2 is addressed in turn.

3 A. Motion for Summary Judgment against WSU;
4 Cross-Motion for Summary Judgment (ECF Nos. 31; 50)

5 Plaintiff seeks summary judgment “for eight claims of Federal 6 Constitutional Rights violations (42 U.S.C. § 1983)”. ECF No. 31 at 1. Plaintiff
7 asserts WSU violated his right to due process, equal protection, and his right to be 8 free from unreasonable searches.³ ECF No. 31. WSU cross-moves for summary
9 judgment, arguing that it is not subject to suit under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 because it is 10 not a “person” for which a Section 1983 action may be brought. ECF No. 50 at 2.
11 Defendant is correct.

14 ³ Plaintiff also references an alleged violation “of Sick Leave/FMLA
15 Protection[,]” ECF No. 31 at 10, but Plaintiff was not taking FMLA leave.
16 Plaintiff includes federal claims of discrimination based on alleged race 17 discrimination and alleged infringement of his freedom of speech (by terminating 18 him, in part, for his demand that his supervisor and the President of WSU resign)
19 in the Second Amended Complaint, see ECF No. 77 at 7-10, but these allegations
20 are not at issue in this Order.

1 A cause of action pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 1983 may be brought “against any 2 person acting under color of law who deprives another ‘of any rights, privileges, or 3 immunities secured by the Constitution and laws’ of the United States.” S. Cal.
4 Gas Co. v. City of Santa Ana, 336 F.3d 885, 887 (9th Cir. 2003) (quoting 42 U.S.C.
5 § 1983); Town of Castle Rock v. Gonzales, 545 U.S. 748, 755 (2005). Importantly,
6 Section 1983 liability does not disrupt “the well-established immunity of a State 7 from being sued without its consent[,]” so the reach of Section 1983 liability is 8 coterminous with Eleventh Amendment immunity. Will v. Michigan Dep’t of State
9 Police, 491 U.S. 58, 67, 70 (1989) (“States or governmental entities that are 10 considered ‘arms of the State’ for Eleventh Amendment purposes” are not 11 “persons” under § 1983).

12 Defendant WSU argues that it is not a person subject to suit under Section 13 1983 and cross-moves for summary judgment. ECF No. 50 at 6-7. Defendant is 14 correct. Will v. Michigan Dep’t of State Police, 491 U.S. at 64. The Ninth Circuit
15 has held that, because “a state university is an arm of the state entitled to Eleventh 16 Amendment immunity[,]” a state university and “state officials sued in their 17 official capacities, including university officials, are not ‘persons’ within the 18 meaning of § 1983” Flint v. Dennison, 488 F.3d 816, 825 (9th Cir. 2007);
19 Krainski v. Nevada ex rel. Bd. of Regents of Nevada Sys. of Higher Educ., 616 F.3d
20 963, 968 (9th Cir. 2010). WSU is thus not amenable to suit under Section 1983.

1 Plaintiff argues WSU “has no veil of immunity” and argues diversity
2 jurisdiction is met. ECF No. 61 at 9-10 (Plaintiff’s Reply). Whether the Court has 3 jurisdiction is a matter separate from immunity from suit; in any event jurisdiction
4 for Section 1983 liability is based on federal question jurisdiction, not diversity
5 jurisdiction.⁴

6 Plaintiff’s Motion (ECF No. 31) is thus denied and Defendant’s Cross-
7 Motion (ECF No. 50) is granted.

8 B. Motion for Summary Judgment against Holbrook;
9 Cross-Motion for Summary Judgment (ECF Nos. 32; 51)

10 Plaintiff seeks summary judgment for his breach of fiduciary duty, fraud,
11 and extreme and outrageous conduct claims against Defendant Holbrook. ECF No.
12 32. Defendant Holbrook cross-moves for summary judgment in his Response.
13 ECF No. 51.

14 As an initial matter, Defendant Holbrook argues he is entitled to Eleventh
15 Amendment immunity because he was acting in his official capacity. ECF No. 51
16 at 5. The Court agrees. “The sovereign immunity doctrine prohibits suits against 17 unconsenting states in state court” and Washington has yet to yield this immunity.

18
19 ⁴ Complete diversity of citizenship for jurisdiction under 28 U.S.C. § 1332 is 20 lacking in this case.

1 Harrell v. Washington State ex rel. Dep't of Soc. Health Servs., 170 Wash. App.
2 386, 405 (2012). “[S]uits against state officials in their official capacities are 3 treated as suits against the state.” Id. As such, “absent waiver by the State or valid
4 congressional override, the Eleventh Amendment bars a damages action against
5 . . . State officials [who] are sued for damages in their official capacity.” Kentucky
6 v. Graham, 473 U.S. 159, 169 (1985). Accordingly, Plaintiff’s claim for damages
7 against Defendant Holbrook in his official capacity fails. To the extent Plaintiff
8 brings suit against Defendant Holbrook in his individual capacity, the claims also 9 fail as discussed below.⁵

10 1. Fiduciary Duty

11 Plaintiff argues “Defendant Holbrook owed a fiduciary duty to Plaintiff, but 12 failed to comply with the appointing authority’s fiduciary duties, regarding the 13 administration of impartial Fact Finding Processes; the proximate cause and delict
14

15 ⁵ Plaintiff repeatedly argues Defendants failed to dispute his assertions of fact
16 listed in Plaintiff’s Motions for Summary Judgment. First, Defendants do not 17 dispute most of the underlying facts, as Defendants’ actions are demonstrated 18 through documentary evidence. Rather, the parties mostly disagree as to the 19 animating factor behind the actions and the legal consequences. Second, many of 20 Plaintiff’s so-called statements of fact are actually conclusions of law.

1 of Plaintiff’s injuries.” ECF No. 32 at 1-5. Defendant Holbrook argues no
2 fiduciary duty exists and requests summary judgment on this issue pursuant to Fed.
3 R. Civ. P. 56(f). ECF No. 51 at 6-7.

4 Notably, Plaintiff fails to provide any authority for the proposition that 5 Defendant owed Plaintiff a fiduciary duty. See ECF No. 32. “A confidential or 6 fiduciary relationship between two persons may exist either because of the nature 7 of the relationship between the parties historically considered fiduciary in 8 character; e.g., trustee and beneficiary, principal and agent, partner and partner,
9 husband and wife, physician and patient, attorney and client; or the confidential
10 relationship between persons involved may exist in fact.” McCutcheon v.
11 Brownfield, 2 Wash. App. 348, 356–57 (1970).

12 The Court finds Defendant Holbrook did not owe Plaintiff a fiduciary duty.
13 There is nothing to indicate there was a special trust relationship between Plaintiff
14 and Defendant Holbrook, and the employer-employee relationship does not give 15 rise to a fiduciary relationship absent some special circumstance. See Liebergesell
16 v. Evans, 93 Wash.2d 881, 889-91 (1980) (fiduciary duty may arise when a person 17 “justifiably expects his welfare to be cared for by” another). Plaintiff fails to 18 establish a fiduciary relationship, let alone a breach of fiduciary duty, thus,
19 Defendant Holbrook is entitled to summary judgment on this claim.

1 2. Fraud

2 Plaintiff argues Defendant Holbrook committed fraud when he issued
3 Plaintiff a notice that Plaintiff must work from home. Plaintiff references a 4 process where an employee can seek to work from home by consent, arguing
5 Defendant did not go through this process and the document is thus fraudulent.
6 ECF No. 32 at 11-12. Defendant argues Plaintiff’s claim for fraud fails as a matter
7 of law, and requests summary judgment on this issue pursuant to Fed. R. Civ. P.
8 56(f). ECF No. 51 at 8.

9 “There are nine essential elements of fraud, all of which must be established
10 by clear, cogent, and convincing evidence: (1) a representation of existing fact, (2) 11 its materiality, (3) its falsity, (4) the speaker’s knowledge of its falsity, (5) the 12 speaker’s intent that it be acted upon by the person to whom it is made, (6) 13 ignorance of its falsity on the part of the person to whom the representation is 14 addressed, (7) the latter’s reliance on the truth of the representation, (8) the right to 15 rely upon it, and (9) consequent damage.” Elcon Const., Inc. v. E. Washington
16 Univ., 174 Wash.2d 157, 166 (2012) (citations omitted).

17 Plaintiff has failed to point to any misrepresentation on the part of Defendant 18 Holbrook. Notably, the notice of “Home Assignment” did not reference the 19 process Plaintiff identifies as a basis for the decision. See ECF No. 18-2 at 2-3.
20 Indeed, the home assignment appears to be a corrective action taken in response to

1 Plaintiff's own conduct, as opposed to any joint agreement to work from home. As 2 such, Defendant Holbrook did not make a false representation. Moreover, Plaintiff
3 believed the "Home Assignment" was fraudulent at the outset, ECF No. 18-3 4 (Plaintiff referencing fraudulent notice in reply letter from Plaintiff to Office for 5 Equal Employment), and thus never relied on the truth of the allegedly false
6 representation. Plaintiff fails to establish all nine elements of fraud, thus,
7 Defendant is entitled to summary judgment on this claim.

8 3. *Intentional Infliction of Emotion Distress (Tort of Outrage)

9 Plaintiff argues Defendant Holbrook's conduct was extreme and outrageous 10 in sending two armed police officers to hand deliver a Home Assignment Notice to 11 Plaintiff's residence while he was on sick leave. ECF No. 32 at 8. Defendant 12 argues the conduct does not rise to the level necessary to be actionable, and again 13 requests summary judgment pursuant to Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(f). ECF No. 51 at 9.

14 "The tort of outrage requires the proof of three elements: (1) extreme and 15 outrageous conduct, (2) intentional or reckless infliction of emotional distress, and 16 (3) actual result to plaintiff of severe emotional distress." Kloepfel v. Bokor, 149
17 Wash.2d 192, 195 (2003).

18 [I]t is not enough that a 'defendant has acted with an intent which is tortious 19 or even criminal, or that he has intended to inflict emotional distress, or even 20 that his conduct has been characterized by 'malice,' or a degree of aggravation which would entitle the plaintiff to punitive damages for another tort.' Liability exists 'only where the conduct has been so outrageous in character, and so extreme in degree, as to go beyond all possible bounds of

1 decency, and to be regarded as atrocious, and utterly intolerable in a 2 civilized community.’

3 Grimsby v. Samson, 85 Wash.2d 52, 59 (1975) (quoting Restatement (Second) of 4 Torts § 46 cmt. d). Stated another way, conduct is actionable when “the recitation
5 of the facts to an average member of the community would arouse his resentment
6 against the actor and lead him to exclaim ‘Outrageous!’” Browning v. Slenderella
7 Sys. of Seattle, 54 Wash.2d 440, 448 (1959) (quoting Restatement of Torts § 46(g)
8 (Supp.1948))). “Consequently, the tort of outrage ‘does not extend to mere insults,
9 indignities, threats, annoyances, petty oppressions, or other trivialities.’ In this 10 area plaintiffs must necessarily be hardened to a certain degree of rough language,
11 unkindness and lack of consideration.” Kloepfel v. Bokor, 149 Wash.2d at 196 12 (quoting Grimsby v. Samson, 85 Wash.2d at 59 (quoting Restatement (Second) of 13 Torts § 46 cmt. d)).

14 Here, the Court finds as a matter of law that merely dispatching two armed 15 police to provide notice of an employment action is not “atrocious” or “utterly 16 intolerable in a civilized community.” Grimsby v. Samson, 85 Wash.2d at 59. The 17 presence of armed police officers arriving at 8 p.m. may be startling for some, but 18 – at most – this is a mere annoyance and falls far short of the conduct that is 19 actionable under the tort of outrage. See Kloepfel v. Bokor, 149 Wash.2d at

1 196. Moreover, Plaintiff has presented no evidence to support his claims of severe
2 emotional distress. Defendant is thus entitled to summary judgment on this issue.

3 4. Conclusion

4 Because Defendant Holbrook is entitled to summary judgment on each of 5 the issues addressed above, Plaintiff's Motion (ECF No. 32) is denied and 6 Defendant Holbrook's Cross-Motion (ECF No. 51) is granted.

7 C. Motion for Summary Judgment against Holbrook and Croyle;
8 Cross-Motion For Summary Judgment (ECF Nos. 33; 52)

9 Plaintiff seeks summary judgment for his defamation and intentional
10 infliction of emotional distress (tort of outrage) claims against Defendants
11 Holbrook and Croyle. ECF No. 33. Defendants cross moved for summary
12 judgment in their Response. ECF No. 52.

13 As an initial matter – as noted above – Defendants Holbrook and Croyle are 14 entitled to Eleventh Amendment immunity because they were acting in their 15 official capacity. ECF No. 52 at 5. “Absent waiver by the State or valid
16 congressional override, the Eleventh Amendment bars a damages action against 17 . . . State officials [who] are sued for damages in their official capacity.” Kentucky
18 v. Graham, 473 U.S. at 169. Accordingly, Plaintiff's claims for damages against 19 Defendant Holbrook and Croyle in their official capacities fail and are dismissed.

1 Even if Plaintiff brings these actions against Defendants in their individual
2 capacity, they too fail.

3 1. Defamation

4 Plaintiff seeks summary judgment on his “defamation”, “libel” and 5 “slander” claims against Defendants Holbrook and Croyle. Defendants argues
6 Plaintiff has failed to present a viable defamation claim and requests summary
7 judgment pursuant to Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(f). ECF No. 52 at 8.

8 In Washington, “a defamation plaintiff must show four essential elements:
9 falsity, an unprivileged communication, fault, and damages.” Mark v. Seattle
10 Times, 96 Wash.2d 473, 486 (1981)⁶. “A communication is defamatory if it tends 11 so to harm the reputation of another as to lower him in the estimation of the 12 community or to deter third persons from associating or dealing with him.” Right-
13 Price Recreation, LLC v. Connells Prairie Cmty. Council, 146 Wash.2d 370, 382

15
16 ⁶ The Court hereafter references only defamation because “[l]ibel and slander
17 in Washington” are merely “species of defamation” that are “proven by the same 18 elements[,]” despite being “separate manifestations of the same basic tort[.]”
19 Libel, slander, and invasion of privacy—Distinctions, 16A Wash. Prac., Tort Law
20 and Practice § 20:2 (4th ed.).

1 (2002). Whether a statement is capable of being defamatory is a question of law
2 for the court. Amsbury v. Cowles Publishing Co., 76 Wash.2d 733, 740 (1969).

3 Plaintiff's Motion (ECF No. 33) asserts Defendants published certain 4 defamatory statements. Plaintiff points to statements made in his "notice of 5 charges" and "termination of employment notice" that were sent to Plaintiff and 6 statements made by Defendant Croyle to Defendant Holbrook accusing Plaintiff of 7 being "30-minutes late", failing to edit content for a training module, failing to 8 complete the self-assessment for the retreat, and failing to meet expectations
9 attending his position, among other mundane work-place complaints. ECF No. 33 10 at 3-7.

11 Even if the complained-of allegations are not true, these statements are not 12 defamatory, as they relate to job performance and do not rise to the level of 13 allegations that would harm his reputation to third parties. Further, even if the 14 statements could be construed as defamatory, these statements are privileged, they 15 relate to plaintiff's ability to perform his job, and are between supervisors. See 16 Henderson v. Pennwalt Corp., 41 Wash.App. 547, 558-59 (1985). Plaintiff has 17 failed to "show the statements were not published in the ordinary course of 18 employment or that they were made with actual malice." Woody v. Stapp, 146
19 Wash. App. 16, 21 (2008). Rather, the evidence shows the statements were only

1 shared with employees who were in a position where such information was 2 relevant to their position.

3 Accordingly, Defendants Holbrook and Croyle are entitled to summary
4 judgment on this claim.

5 2. Intentional Infliction of Emotional Distress (Tort of Outrage)

6 Plaintiff argues Defendants Holbrook and Croyle are liable for intentional
7 infliction of emotional distress—also known as the tort of “outrage” as discussed
8 above. ECF No. 33. Defendants argue Plaintiff’s claim fails as a matter of law
9 and request summary judgment pursuant to Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(f). ECF No. 52 at 9.

10 “The tort of outrage requires the proof of three elements: (1) extreme and 11 outrageous conduct, (2) intentional or reckless infliction of emotional distress, and
12 (3) actual result to plaintiff of severe emotional distress.” Kloepfel v. Bokor, 149
13 Wash.2d at 195; Lyons v. U.S. Bank Nat. Ass’n, 181 Wash.2d 775, 792 (2014).
14 Plaintiff has failed to establish all three elements.

15 First, Plaintiff fails to point to any act that is beyond the bounds of decency
16 or utterly intolerable in a civilized society. Rather, Plaintiff’s argument merely 17 expresses dissatisfaction with underlying workplace reports and employment
18
19
20

1 actions.⁷ Second, Plaintiff fails to present any evidence of “severe emotional 2 distress”, as noted above. Plaintiff’s Motion (ECF No. 33) is thus denied and 3 Defendant’s Motion (ECF No. 52) is granted.

4 3. Conclusion

5 Because Defendants are entitled to summary judgment on each of the issues
6 addressed above, Plaintiff’s Motion (ECF No. 33) is denied and Defendants’
7 Cross-Motion (ECF No. 52) is granted.

8 ACCORDINGLY, IT IS HEREBY ORDERED:

- 9 1. Plaintiff’s Motions for Summary Judgment (ECF Nos. 31; 32; 33) are 10 DENIED.
- 11 2. Defendants’ Cross-Motions for Summary Judgment (ECF Nos. 50; 51; 12 52) are GRANTED.

13 The District Court Executive is directed to enter this Order and furnish 14 copies to the parties.
