8 Plaintiffs have waited years for the government to process their 9 applications—or their family member’s applications—for citizenship. Tired of 10 waiting, Plaintiffs filed these lawsuits. Plaintiffs’ frustration with the delay is 11 understandable. But as is explained below, Defendants are correct that the 12 judiciary lacks the power to direct them to act on the filed I-601A applications and 13 Plaintiffs’ claims relating to the DS-260 applications are premature.

14 I. BACKGROUND

15 A. Immigration Process

16 A foreign citizen seeking to live permanently in the United States requires an 17 immigrant visa.<sup>1</sup> Here, each noncitizen-Plaintiff seeks an immigrant visa on the 18 grounds that they have a close family relationship with a U.S. citizen or lawful 19 permanent resident (LPR).

22 immigration.html (last visited Dec. 19, 2023).

1 To obtain an immigrant visa based on a close family relationship with a U.S.
2 citizen or LPR is a multi-step process.<sup>2</sup> The first step under the Immigration and 3 Nationality Act (INA) is for the relative, who is a U.S. citizen or LPR, to file a 4 Petition for Alien Relative—using Form I-130—with USCIS on behalf of his or her 5 noncitizen family member to classify that noncitizen as an immigrant relative.<sup>3</sup> 6 Here, Plaintiffs satisfied this step: a Form I-130 petition was filed and fee paid to 7 classify the noncitizen as an immigrant relative. The Form I-130 petitions were 8 approved by USCIS.

9 If the “immigrant relative” desires to continue to reside in the United States 10 with their U.S. citizen/LPR family member during the immigration process, the 11 next step in the immigration process can involve the immigrant relative applying 12 for an I-601A Provisional Unlawful Presence Waiver. The filing of the I-601A 13 application is a necessary step in the immigration process because, by remaining in 14 the United States, the noncitizen is at odds with other immigration laws. A 16 <sup>2</sup> See 8 U.S.C. § 1202 (requiring the alien to be admissible to the United States for 17 permanent residence and eligible to receive an immigrant visa); 8 U.S.C. § 1255(a) 18 (directing that all applications for an immigrant visa be adjudicated by a consular 19 officer); U.S. Dept. of State Foreign Affairs Manual, 9 FAM 504.1-3(a)(2) (requiring, 20 subject to narrow exceptions, an immigrant visa applicant to appear for an 21 interview).

22 <sup>3</sup> 8 U.S.C. § 1154(a)(1)(A)(i).

1 noncitizen who has been unlawfully in the United States for more than 180 days is 2 deemed inadmissible for immigration benefits for a specified period of time 3 following their departure or removal from the United States—and as discussed 4 below, they must depart the United States as part of the process to obtain an 5 immigrant visa.<sup>4</sup> So, noncitizens who remain in the United States with their U.S.
6 citizen/LPR family member for 180 days or more must seek relief from being 7 deemed inadmissible by filing an I-601A application with USCIS.<sup>5</sup> To establish 8 eligibility for an I-601A waiver, the noncitizen “immigrant relative” must show that 9 they are “the spouse or son or daughter of a United States citizen or” LPR and that 10 refusing them entry “would result in extreme hardship to the citizen or lawfully 15 <sup>4</sup> See id. § 1182(a)(9)(B)(i). This period of inadmissibility depends on how long the 16 noncitizen was unlawfully present: usually the period of inadmissibility is three 17 years if the noncitizen was present for less than a year, and ten years if the 18 noncitizen was present for a year or more. Id.; see also 8 C.F.R. § 212.7(e).

22 Security as USCIS.

1 resident spouse or parent” of the noncitizen.<sup>6</sup> The USCIS has “sole discretion” to 2 determine whether to grant an I-601A application for a waiver.<sup>7</sup>

3 If USCIS grants the I-601A application, the immigration-benefits process 4 moves to the next step, which involves filing an Immigrant Visa and Alien 5 Registration Application, DS-260, with the State Department.<sup>8</sup> The State 6 Department’s National Visa Center (NVC) ensures that all fees have been paid and 7 that the required documents have been submitted. Once NVC determines the DS-8 260 application is documentarily complete and a visa number is available, NVC 9 schedules an appointment for the noncitizen to appear for an interview at a U.S.
10 embassy or consulate.<sup>9</sup> If the DS-260 is approved, the applicant receives by mail a 16 Manual 302.11-3(D)(1)(b)(3)(C). The DS-260 may also be filed while the I-601A 17 application is pending, however, the State Department will take no action on the 18 DS-260 application until the USCIS rules on the I-601A application.

19 <sup>9</sup> 8 U.S.C. § 1153(e)(1) (specifying the number of family-sponsored immigrant visas

2 official documents. The applicant then has four weeks to enter the United States.
3 Upon entering the United States, the applicant will receive the actual “green card” 4 mailed to their U.S. address.

5 B. Litigation

6 An I-601A application is pending for each of the noncitizen-Plaintiffs, with 7 the most recent at-issue I-601A application filed on July 29, 2022, and the oldest at-8 issue I-601A application filed almost four years ago. Plaintiffs ask the Court to 9 compel USCIS to process the I-601A applications for waiver of unlawful presence 10 and, once that process is complete, to compel the State Department to schedule the 11 interviews for DS-260 immigrant visa applications. Plaintiffs seek this relief 12 pursuant to the Administrative Procedures Act (APA) and through a writ of 13 mandamus.<sup>10</sup>

14 Defendants acknowledge the passage of time since the applications were 15 filed. But Defendants argue dismissal of these lawsuits is required because 1) the 16 immigration laws divest courts of jurisdiction to review matters concerning the I-17 601A applications, 2) Plaintiffs lack constitutional standing to assert these claims, 18 3) Plaintiffs’ claims against the State Department actors are not ripe, and 4) 19 Plaintiffs fail to state a plausible claim for unreasonable delay. As is explained 20

21 <sup>10</sup> See 5 U.S.C. §§ 555, 701 et seq. (APA); 28 U.S.C. § 1331; 28 U.S.C. § 2201

22 (Declaratory Judgment Act).

1 below, the Court lacks jurisdiction to hear Plaintiffs' claims related to the I-601A
2 applications and the claims against the State Department related to DS-260 3 applications are premature.

4 II. STANDARDS

5 A. Motion to Dismiss Standards

6 Defendants seek dismissal of the lawsuit pursuant to Federal Rules of Civil 7 Procedure 12(b)(1) and 12(b)(6). As the party seeking dismissal, Defendants have 8 the burden of establishing that dismissal is appropriate.<sup>11</sup> A Rule 12(b)(1) motion 9 seeks dismissal for lack of subject matter jurisdiction. "A Rule 12(b)(1) jurisdictional 10 attack may be facial or factual."<sup>12</sup> The court's review of a facial attack is limited to 11 the allegations in the complaint whereas the court "need not presume the 12 truthfulness of the plaintiff's allegations" in a factual attack and can consider the 13 evidence outside the complaint.<sup>13</sup>

14 B. APA and Mandamus Standards

15 To bring an APA claim, the plaintiff must suffer a "legal wrong because of 16 agency action, or [be] adversely affected or aggrieved by agency action."<sup>14</sup> For 17

21 <sup>14</sup> 5 U.S.C. § 702; see Gonzalez v. Cuccinelli, 985 F.3d 357, 365 (4th Cir. 2021) (citing 22 28 U.S.C. § 1331 as the basis for subject-matter jurisdiction over APA claims).

1 instance, under certain circumstances, the APA allows a court to “compel agency 2 action unlawfully or unreasonably delayed.”<sup>15</sup> Yet, judicial review under the APA is 3 precluded where 1) “statutes preclude judicial review” or 2) “agency action is 4 committed to agency discretion by law.”<sup>16</sup>

5 If the relief sought by plaintiffs through a writ of mandamus is essentially 6 the same as that sought under the APA, the court may consider the claim under the 7 APA.<sup>17</sup> Because Plaintiffs seek the same relief through both their APA claims and 8 the requested writs of mandamus, the Court considers the claims under the APA.

9 III. ANALYSIS

10 A. Judicial review of agency delay as to I-601A applications is 11 precluded.

12 Plaintiffs ask the Court to compel USCIS to adjudicate the I-601A 13 applications because USCIS has unreasonably delayed processing these 14 applications. Defendants argue the Court lacks jurisdiction to review Plaintiffs’ 15 unreasonable-delay claim because 1) judicial review is barred by a provision of the 16

17 <sup>15</sup> 5 U.S.C. § 706.

18 <sup>16</sup> Id. § 701(a). See also Vaz v. Neal, 33 F.4th 1131, 1135–36 (9th Cir. 2022) (citing 19 Norton v. S. Utah Wilderness Alliance, 542, U.S. 55, 64 (2004)).

20 <sup>17</sup> Indep. Min. Co v. Babbitt, 105 F.3d 502, 507 (9th Cir. 1997) (recognizing that 21 claims for mandamus relief and claims for relief under the APA seek essentially the 22 same relief and therefore have the same proof requirements).

1 INA—8 U.S.C. § 1182(a)(9)(B)(v)—and 2) USCIS has sole statutory discretion as to 2 how and when to rule on unlawful-presence waivers and therefore the APA does not 3 allow for judicial review. Because the Court agrees with Defendants’ first argument, 4 the Court need not reach the second.

5 As mentioned above, Congress created a process that allows noncitizens to 6 apply for an unlawful-presence waiver by filing a Form I-601A application.<sup>18</sup>

7 Defendants argue that the Court may not consider whether USCIS has 8 unreasonably delayed adjudicating I-601A applications because a provision of the 9 INA prohibits court review.

10 The relied-on statute provides in relevant part:

11 The Attorney General has sole discretion to waive clause (i) in the case 12 of an immigrant who is the spouse or son or daughter of a United States 13 citizen or of an alien lawfully admitted for permanent residence, if it is 14 established to the satisfaction of the Attorney General that the refusal 15 of admission to such immigrant alien would result in extreme hardship 16 to the citizen or lawfully resident spouse or parent of such alien. No court 17 shall have jurisdiction to review a decision or action by the Attorney 18 General regarding a waiver under this clause.<sup>19</sup>

19 Defendants argue this provision restricts court review of any and all actions by 20 USCIS regarding I-601A waivers, including the length of time it takes USCIS to 21 process waiver applications.

1           Whether 8 U.S.C. § 1182(a)(9)(B)(v) bars judicial review of USCIS’s delayed
2 processing of I-601A applications has not yet been decided by the Ninth Circuit—3 although there is a pending appeal before the Ninth Circuit.<sup>20</sup> The majority of the 4 district courts addressing this question have found, for a variety of reasons, that 5 judicial review is precluded.<sup>21</sup>

1 This question is a matter of statutory interpretation. There is a “well-settled 2 presumption favoring interpretations of statutes that allow judicial review of 3 administrative action.”<sup>22</sup> Therefore, “clear and convincing evidence of a 4 congressional intent to preclude judicial review entirely” is needed.<sup>23</sup> This intent

3 Here, the at-issue sentence is: “No court shall have jurisdiction to review a 4 decision or action by . . . [USCIS] regarding a waiver under this clause.”<sup>27</sup> Section 5 1182 does not define “decision or action.” However, the plain meaning of the 6 language in this at-issue sentence supports Defendants’ position that judicial 7 review of USCIS’s I-601A application-processing time is barred.

8 According to Black’s Law Dictionary, “decision” is a “determination [made] 9 after consideration of the facts and the law, and “action” is “the process of doing 10 something; conduct or behavior.”<sup>28</sup> Clearly, no “decision” has been made on the 11 pending I-601A applications. But USCIS has made decisions about how to act on, or 12 process, the I-601A applications, such as decisions as to staffing and application 13 procedures, including its first-in-first-out policy. Moreover, the broad phrase 14 “decision or action” is followed by another broad phrase, “regarding a waiver under 10 <sup>31</sup> Defendants also ask the Court to use the APA’s definition of “action” when 11 interpreting “action” in 8 U.S.C. § 1182(a)(9)(B)(v). The APA defines “action” as 12 including the “failure to act.” 5 U.S.C. § 551(13). Because the plain language of the 13 at-issue INA statute—§ 1182(a)(9)(B)(v)—clearly precludes judicial review of the 14 reasonableness of the length of time it takes the Attorney General to decide the 15 merits of an I-601A application, the Court declines use the APA to define “action” in

1 reviewing whether the amount of time taken by USCIS is unreasonable. The relief
2 that Plaintiffs seek is relief USCIS—or Congress—can provide, not this Court.<sup>32</sup> 3 Defendants’ motion to dismiss on the grounds that Plaintiffs’ I-601A-application 4 claims are barred by 8 U.S.C. § 1182(a)(9)(B)(v) is granted.

5 Defendants are reminded, however, that although § 1182(a)(9)(B)(v) affords 6 USCIS sole discretion as to whether to grant an I-610A application, USCIS does not 7 have discretion as to whether to adjudicate the application. The framework 8 Congress established for I-610A applications makes clear that USCIS must 9 adjudicate filed applications filed by eligible aliens. Moreover, Congress has 10 suggested that the processing of an immigration-benefit application “should be 11 completed no later than 180 days after the initial filing of the application.”<sup>33</sup> 12 Timely processing of filed I-601A applications will better serve Congress’s 13 stated intent.

17 filed, No. 23-16007 (9th Cir. July 17, 2023) (using the APA “agency action” 18 definition to define “action” in § 1182(a)(9)(B)(v)).

19 <sup>32</sup> See Babaria v. Blinken, --- F. 4th ----, 2023 WL 8291303 (9th Cir. Dec. 1, 2023) 20 (“The long immigrant visa queue imposes significant hardship, and plaintiffs are 21 understandably frustrated. But in this instance, relief must come from action by the 22 executive and legislative branches rather the judiciary.”)

<sup>33</sup> 8 U.S.C. § 1571(b).

1 B. Claims related to the DS-260 visas are premature.

2 The State Department Defendants seek dismissal of the claims against them 3 on the grounds that the DS-260-visa claims against them are unripe.<sup>34</sup> The State 4 Department prevails on this argument. Because the State Department acts on DS-5 260 applications, including scheduling interviews, after an I-601A application is 6 granted, the claims against the State Department Defendants are premature. For 7 these reasons, the claims against the State Department Defendants are dismissed.

8 IV. CONCLUSION

9 Accordingly, IT IS HEREBY ORDERED:

10 1. Defendants' Motion to Dismiss in each of these cases is GRANTED:

17 through avoidance of premature adjudication, from entangling themselves in 18 abstract disagreements over administrative policies, and also to protect the agencies 19 from judicial interference until an administrative decision has been formalized and 20 its effects felt in a concrete way by the challenging parties.” Abbott Lab's v.
