8 WESTERN DISTRICT OF WASHINGTON
9 AT SEATTLE

10 JOHN ALLEN BILL,

11 Petitioner,

12 v.

13 UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,

14 Respondent.

CASE NO. C16-941 RSM

ORDER GRANTING PETITIONER'S
MOTION UNDER 28 U.S.C. § 2255

15 I. INTRODUCTION

16 Before the Court is Petitioner's 28 U.S.C. § 2255 Motion to Vacate, Set Aside, or 17 Correct Sentence. Dkt. #1. Petitioner John Allen Bill challenges the 84-month sentence 18 imposed on him by this Court following his conviction for Felon in Possession of a Firearm in 19 violation of 18 U.S.C. § 922(g)(1) and possession of an unregistered firearm in violation of 26 20 U.S.C. § 5861(d). Id. at 1. Petitioner challenges his sentence on the basis that the United 21 States Supreme Court's decision in Johnson v. United States, __ U.S. __, 135 S. Ct. 2551
22 (2015), applies retroactively to his case and requires that the Court resentence him under a 23 different Guideline range calculation. After full consideration of the record, and for the reasons 24 set forth below, the Court GRANTS Mr. Bill's § 2255 motion.

1
2 II. BACKGROUND

3 On June 24, 2011, Mr. Bill entered a plea agreement to plead guilty to the charge of 4 Felon in Possession of a Firearm, in violation of 18 U.S.C. § 922(g)(1) and possession of an 5 unregistered firearm in violation of 26 U.S.C. § 5861(d). Case No. 2:11-CR-00103-RSM, Dkt.
6 #21. Mr. Bill's sentencing took place on October 14, 2011. Case No. 2:11-CR-00103-RSM, 7 Dkt. #27. The Government, Mr. Bill, and probation agreed on a guideline-range sentence of 84 8 months. See Case No. 2:11-CR-00103-RSM, Dkt. #29 at 3. Mr. Bill's prior convictions were 9 briefly discussed by the Government, including convictions for possessing a firearm as a felon 10 and residential burglary. Id. at 4. Given the parties' agreement as to sentencing, the Court did 11 not discuss these prior convictions, agreed with the recommendation of the parties, and 12 imposed 84 months of custody.¹ Id. at 15-16. There was no appeal.

13 On June 20, 2016, based on the U.S. Supreme Court decisions in Johnson, supra, and 14 Welch v. United States, __ U.S., __, 136 S. Ct. 1257 (2016), Mr. Bill filed the instant § 2255
15 motion with this Court. Dkt. #1.

16 III. DISCUSSION

17 A. Legal Standard

18 A motion under 28 U.S.C. § 2255 permits a federal prisoner in custody to collaterally 19 challenge his sentence on the grounds that it was imposed in violation of the Constitution or 20 laws of the United States, or that the Court lacked jurisdiction to impose the sentence or that the 21 sentence exceeded the maximum authorized by law. A petitioner seeking relief under § 2255
22 must file his motion with the one-year statute of limitations set forth in § 2255(f). That section

24 ¹ The Court concluded that there was a total offense level of 23, criminal history category 5, calling for an advisory range of 84 to 105 months of imprisonment. Case No. 2:11-CR-00103-RSM, Dkt. #29 at 15-16.

1 provides, inter alia, that a motion is timely if it is filed within one year of the underlying 2 judgment or “the date on which the right asserted was initially recognized by the Supreme 3 Court, if that right has been newly recognized by the Supreme Court and made retroactively 4 applicable to cases on collateral review.” § 2255(f).

5 B. Mr. Bill’s Motion

6 As noted above, Petitioner’s motion to vacate cites the Supreme Court’s decision in 7 Johnson v. United States, supra. In Johnson, the Supreme Court ruled on a section of the 8 Armed Career Criminal Act (“ACCA”) known as the “residual clause,” which provided a 9 definition of “violent felony.” Under the ACCA, a defendant convicted of being a felon in 10 possession of a firearm faces a mandatory minimum sentence of 15 years if he has three prior 11 convictions for “violent felonies.” 18 U.S.C. § 924(e)(1). The ACCA residual clause provided 12 that a violent felony was one that “otherwise involves conduct that presents a serious potential 13 risk of physical injury to another.” 18 U.S.C. § 924(e)(2)(B)(ii). In Johnson, the Supreme 14 Court held that this clause was “unconstitutionally vague.” 135 S. Ct. at 2557. In doing so, the 15 Court necessarily found the clause “vague in all its applications,” id. at 2561, and concluded 16 that “[i]ncreasing a defendant’s sentence under the clause denies due process of law,” id. at 17 2557. Subsequently, in Welch v. United States, the Court held that Johnson applies 18 retroactively to defendants whose sentences were enhanced under the ACCA’s residual clause.
19 136 S. Ct. at 1265.

20 In the instant matter, Petitioner was not sentenced as a career offender under the ACCA.
21 Rather, he was sentenced under the United States Sentencing Guidelines (“USSG” or 22 “Guidelines”). In addition to other factors, USSG § 4B1.1(a) provides that a “defendant is a 23 career offender if... the defendant has at least two prior felony convictions of either a crime of 24

1 violence or a controlled substance offense” and the “instant offense of conviction is a felony 2 that is... a controlled substance offense.” USSG § 4B1.2(a) defines “crime of violence” as “any 3 offense under federal or state law, punishable by imprisonment for a term exceeding one year 4 that (1) has as an element the use, attempted use, or threatened use of physical force against the 5 person of another, or (2) is burglary of a dwelling, arson, or extortion, involves the use of 6 explosives, or otherwise involves conduct that presents a serious risk of physical injury to 7 another.” USSG § 4B1.2(a)(1) is often referred to as the “elements clause” or the “force 8 clause.” Burglary, arson, extortion, and explosives offenses, if they fit the definition of the 9 federal generic crime, are considered the “enumerated offenses.” The last clause of § 10 4B1.2(a)(2) is often referred to as the “residual clause.”

11 The Guidelines include in its definition of “crime of violence” a sentence identical to 12 the ACCA residual clause. See USSG § 4B1.2(a)(2) (providing that a “crime of violence 13 means any offense...[that] otherwise involves conduct that presents a serious potential risk of 14 physical injury to another”); see also United States v. Spencer, 724 F.3d 1133, 1138 (9th Cir.
15 2013) (holding that the Ninth Circuit makes “no distinction between the terms ‘violent felony’ 16 [as defined in the ACCA] and ‘crime of violence’ [as defined in § 4B1.2(a)(2) of the 17 Sentencing Guidelines] for purposes of interpreting the residual clause[s]”). Thus, Petitioner 18 now moves to vacate, set aside, or correct his sentence under 28 U.S.C. § 2255, arguing that it 19 was unconstitutional under Johnson and Welch, and that his sentence is no longer appropriate.
20 In response, the Government argues that Petitioner’s claim is untimely or otherwise 21 procedurally barred, that the Johnson holding does not apply retroactively to Guidelines 22 sentences, and that even if Petitioner had a valid Johnson claim, it is without merit because he 23 cannot prove the Court relied on USSG § 4B1.2’s residual clause in sentencing. Dkt. #9 at 2-3.

1 C. Retroactivity of Johnson to Guidelines Cases

2 As an initial matter, this Court has previously rejected the Government’s nearly 3 identical retroactivity and applicability arguments in at least one prior Johnson case. See 4 Parker, Case No. C16-0534RSM, Dkt. #21 at 5-12. In Parker, the Court concluded that Reina- 5 Rodriguez v. United States, 655 F.3d 1182 (9th Cir. 2011) “provides strong support for 6 concluding that the rule is to be treated as substantive regardless of the context” and that “even 7 in a Guidelines challenge, the rule is substantive and Teague’s retroactively bar does not 8 apply.” Id. at 12 (referring to Teague v. Lane, 489 U. S 288, 109 S. Ct. 1060, 103 L. Ed. 2d 9 334 (1989)). The Court will not deviate from that prior ruling, and concludes that Johnson’s 10 holding applies retroactively to Guidelines sentences including the one imposed in this matter.

11 D. Timeliness and Procedural Bars

12 The Government argues that Petitioner’s Motion is untimely because it was filed more 13 than one year after judgment and because Johnson does not apply retroactively. Dkt. #9 at 3-4.
14 However, because the Court has already ruled that Johnson does apply retroactively, this 15 argument is moot and the Court need not address it. The Government also argues this Motion is 16 untimely because Petitioner’s arguments are not based on Johnson but on other prior cases, 17 including Descamps v. United States, 133 S. Ct. 2276 (2013). Dkt. #9 at 2. In support, the 18 Government cites this Court’s prior holding in Williams v. United States, C16-0939-RSM, Dkt.
19 #12 (W.D. Wash. Oct. 11, 2016). However, after reviewing the petition and the remainder of the 20 record, the Court concludes that this petition is indeed based on the rule announced in Johnson 21 and, for the reasons cited by Petitioner in his Reply, this case is factually and legally distinct 22 from Williams. See Dkt. #12 at 12-13.

1 The Government next argues that Petitioner’s motion is procedurally barred because at 2 sentencing “Bill never disputed that his residential burglary conviction or assault in the second 3 degree convictions were crimes of violence.” Id. at 8 (citing United States v. Mejia-Mesa, 153 4 F.3d 925, 929 (9th Cir. 1998)). The Government also points out that Petitioner failed to take an 5 appeal of this matter. Id. The Government argues that this renders Petitioner’s current claims 6 procedurally defaulted unless he can “show both (1) ‘cause’ excusing his double procedural 7 default, and (2) ‘actual prejudice’ resulting from the errors of which he complains.” Id. (citing 8 United States v. Frady, 456 U.S. 152, 168 (1982)).

9 Petitioner argues that he can show cause and actual prejudice. Dkt. #12 at 17 (citing 10 Bousley v. United States, 523 U.S. 614, 622 (1998), and Reed v. Ross, 468 U.S. 1, 16 (1984)).
11 Petitioner argues that the Government’s identical arguments as to procedural default have been 12 rejected repeatedly in this District. Id. at 16-17 (citing cases).

13 The Court agrees with Mr. Bill that his claims are not procedurally defaulted under the 14 cited case law, including the multiple previous decisions of this Court, because Mr. Bill’s 15 Johnson claim was not previously reasonably available to him and because there was actual 16 prejudice. Accordingly, Mr. Bill has overcome the procedural bar set forth by the Government.

17 E. The Merits of the Petition

18 The Government argues “[t]he record does not indicate that the Court relied on the 19 residual clause when evaluating Bill’s conviction.” Dkt. #9 at 25. The Government argues that 20 it is in fact Petitioner’s burden, not the Government’s, to show that the residual clause was relied 21 on, and that a silent record goes in favor of the Government. Id. 24-26 (citing, inter alia, 22 Simmons v. Blodgett, 110 F.3d 39, 42 (9th Cir. 1997)). The Government also argues that the 23 Court’s reliance on the parties’ stipulation forecloses Petitioner’s claim that a Johnson error 24

1 | occurred at his sentencing. Id. at 26 (citing United States v. Carter, 2016 WL 3919829, at *4-*5
2 | (D. Haw. July 18, 2016)).

3 | The Government concedes that “[i]f the Court concludes that Bill’s 2255 Motion is not
4 | procedurally barred and timebarred, and also concludes that Johnson applies retroactively, and
5 | that there is a basis to dispute the validity of the predicate convictions, then resentencing is
6 | required.” Dkt. #9 at 28-29. The Government further concedes that “at a new sentencing
7 | hearing, Bill’s prior residential burglary conviction should not be considered a crime of 8 | violence.” Id. at 29 (citing via footnote Mathis v. United States, 136 S. Ct. 2243 (2016); United
9 | States v. Cisneros, 826 F.3d 1190, 1193-96 (9th Cir. 2016)). The Government argues that Mr.
10 | Bill’s prior second degree assault conviction should be considered a violent felony in a
11 | subsequent new sentencing hearing. Id. at 29-32.

12 | On Reply, Petitioner argues that the Court must apply the harmless-error analysis, not the 13 | preponderance of the evidence standard, when determining whether the Court relied on the 14 | unconstitutional residual clause. Dkt. #12 at 3 (citing Brecht v. Abrahamson, 507 U.S. 619, 637
15 | (1993)). Petitioner cites to a recent case in this District laying out the justification for applying
16 | this standard in the context of a 2255 petition. Id. at 4-5 (citing Dietrick v. United States, Nos.
17 | C16-705 MJP, CR11-253 MJP, 2016 WL 4399589, at *3 (W.D. Wash. Aug. 18, 2016)).
18 | Petitioner argues that “when the reviewing Court faces a situation in which the fact finder was
19 | presented with both an unconstitutional route to a conclusion (the residual clause) and a
20 | constitutional one (the remaining clauses) and the Court is in ‘equipoise’ which route the fact
21 | finder took, the benefit of the doubt accrues to the petitioner.” Id. at 5 (citing Zant v. Stephens,
22 | 462 U.S. 862, 881 (1983); O’Neal v. McAninch, 513 U.S. 432, 434 (1995)). Petitioner argues that 23 | Simmons, supra, in inapposite because in the instant matter “the contested issue is not an 24 |

1 extrajudicial fact but the legal reasoning of a sentencing judge implicit in the case’s procedural 2 history.” Id. at 5-6 (citing cases). Petitioner argues that the Government’s “demand for a record
3 showing this Court’s explicit verbal reliance on the residual clause” would impose “an arbitrary 4 and unjust condition for relief.” Id. at 3. Petitioner argues that even if the Brecht/O’Neal
5 standard did not apply, Mr. Bill would still meet the burden of showing that the Court previously 6 relied on the Residual Clause because the Court would have had no other part of the sentencing 7 guideline to rely on. Id. at 7-8. Petitioner argues that “the Court may grant relief based solely on 8 the government’s concession that residential burglary no longer qualifies as a crime of violence 9 after Johnson” and that “even assuming Mr. Bill has one remaining prior crime of violence, his 10 adjusted offense level must still be corrected from 23 to 19, resulting in a Guideline range of 57 11 to 71 months, not the 84 to 105 months originally calculated.” Id. at 2.

12 The Court agrees with Petitioner that the Brecht/O’Neal harmless error standard applies 13 to this case. The parties agree that the record is silent on whether the Court explicitly considered 14 the residual clause at sentencing. However, the Court agrees with Petitioner that the benefit of 15 the doubt should accrue to the Petitioner and that the Court likely could not have reached the 16 guidelines range conclusion that it did without reliance on the now-unconstitutional residual 17 clause, regardless of the agreement of the parties at the time. Accordingly, as the Court has 18 concluded that this Motion is not procedurally barred or timebarred, and now concludes that it 19 relied on the now-unconstitutional residual clause, resentencing is required.

20 IV. CONCLUSION

21 Having considered Petitioner’s motion, Respondent’s answer thereto, and the remainder 22 of the record, the Court hereby finds and ORDERS:

- 23 1. Petitioner’s Motion under § 2255 (Dkt. #1) is GRANTED.
24

- 1 2. The Court VACATES and sets aside the Judgment in Case No. 2:11-CR-00103-2 RSM
- 3 3. The Court will resentence Petitioner, permit him to submit objections to his 4 Presentence Report pursuant to Federal Rule of Criminal Procedure 32(i)(1)(D), and 5 allow both sides to argue for an appropriate and lawful sentence, at a date to be 6 scheduled by the Court.
- 7 4. The parties shall contact the Court's In-Court Deputies with their recommendations 8 and availability for an appropriate sentencing date for the Court's consideration.
- 9 5. The Clerk of the Court is directed to forward a copy of this Order to Petitioner and 10 all counsel of record.
