SHIRLEY WERNER KORNREICH, J.:

NTD Construction Corp. (NTD), a defendant in the first third-party action and plaintiff in the third third-party action, moves, pursuant to CPLR 3215, for a default judgment against the following third third-party defendants: GGMG Group, Millennium Elevator, Inc., Jolt Electrical Contracting, Inc., Spray-Tech Corp., and O'Grady Construction Corp. (collectively, the TTP Defendants).¹ The TTP Defendants have not filed opposition papers. NTD's motion, however, is denied for the reasons that follow.

This case concerns a dispute over renovations performed on a building located at 119 Fulton Street in Manhattan (the Building). Familiarity with the court's prior decisions is presumed. In short, almost every entity involved with the subject renovation has been sued in this action.

The moving party, NTD, the general contractor, was sued by the first third-party plaintiffs. NTD, in turn, sued its subcontractors in the third third-party action for contribution and indemnification. NTD's operative pleading, the Second Amended Third Third-Party Complaint (the SATTPC), was filed on September 16, 2014. See Dkt. 193.

In support of the instant motion, NTD's counsel submitted an affirmation attesting to and affidavits evidencing service upon the TTP Defendants. See Dkt. 198. However, such service was limited to NTD's prior pleadings and was made via the Secretary of State between September 9, 2013 and February 11, 2014. Since the SATTPC was not filed until September 16, 2014, the affidavits of service submitted are inadequate to demonstrate that service of the operative pleading occurred. Indeed, the affirmation of service attached to the SATTPC indicates that it was only served via email on the County Clerk and all counsel of record. See Dkt. 193 at 26. Ergo, it appears that it was not served upon the TTP Defendants.

Additionally, NTD's affidavit of merit, from its CEO (Tim Devlin), is dated September 15, 2014, and appears to have been prepared in support of a contemplated default judgment motion for failure to answer NTD's prior pleadings. See Dkt. 203 at 12-14. The SATTPC was not filed until September 16. It is unclear if Devlin is actually attesting to the merit of the SATTPC.

Finally, the instant motion was filed on October 10, 2014, a mere 24 days after the SATTPC's filing. Even if service was effected, it is not clear that the time for the TTP Defendants to answer the SATTPC has elapsed.

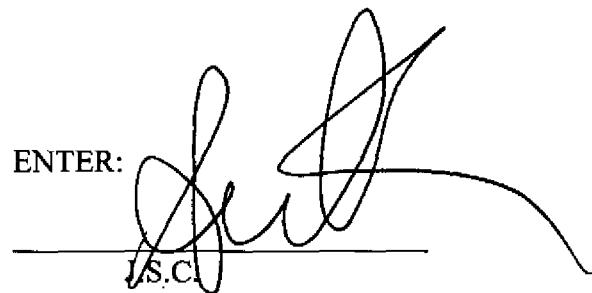

For these reasons, NTD's motion for a default judgment is denied without prejudice and with leave to refile with affidavits of service of the SATTPC and a current affidavit of merit. NTD is urged to promptly effectuate service so as to not delay the parties' contemplated global settlement efforts. It should also be noted that, as discussed with the parties at the most recent discovery conference, any default judgment granted will be as to liability only. An inquest on damages will not occur until the conclusion of the entire action. Accordingly, it is ORDERED that NTD Construction Corp.'s motion for a default judgment is denied without prejudice.
