On May 23, 1977, pursuant to section 603(c) of the PERA<sup>2</sup>, the Union filed a petition for representation with the Board alleging that it represented 30% or more of a unit of employees composed of the Workmen's Compensation Referees (Referees), as defined by section 422 of the Administrative Code of 1929<sup>3</sup>, who

[A]ny individual having authority in the interests of the employer to hire, transfer, suspend, layoff, recall, promote, discharge, assign, reward or discipline other employees or responsibly to direct them or adjust their grievances; or to a substantial degree effectively recommend such action, if in connection with the foregoing, the exercise of such authority is not merely routine or clerical in nature but calls for the use of independent judgment.

43 P.S. § 1101.301(6). In addition, section 301(19) of the PERA defines "first level supervisors" as "[t]he lowest level at which an employe functions as a supervisor." 43 P.S. § 1101.301(19).

The duties placed upon the [public employer] with regard to its first-level supervisory employees are delineated in Section 704 of the PERA, which states:

Public employers shall not be required to bargain with units of first level supervisors or their representatives but shall be required to meet and discuss with first level supervisors or their representatives, on matters deemed to be bargainable for other public employes covered by this act.

43 P.S. § 1101.704. Section 301(17) of PERA, 43 P.S. § 1101.301(17), defines the concept of "meet and discuss" as "the obligation of a public employer upon request to meet at reasonable times and discuss recommendations submitted by representatives of public employes: Provided, That any decisions or determinations on matters so discussed shall remain with the public employer and be deemed final on any issue or issues raised." Meet and discuss sessions exist as a device to permit input or recommendations from public employees on policy matters affecting wages, hours and terms and conditions of employment so as to assist the public employer in ultimately making its disposition of the issues in question. *Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board v. <sup>9</sup> In particular, the Board defined the "meet and discuss" unit as follows:

R.R., p. 78a (emphasis added).

In turn, section 301 of the PERA defines "management level employe" as "[a]ny individual who is involved directly in the determination of policy or who responsibly directs the implementation thereof and shall include all employes above the first level of supervision." 43 P.S. § 1101.301(16). In addition, section 301 of the PERA removes management level employees from its provisions by excluding them from the definition of "public employe" or "employe". 43 P.S. § 1101.301(2).

A hearing was conducted before the Hearing Examiner on May 5, 1997. On November 10, 1997, the Hearing Examiner issued a Proposed Decision and Order in which he determined that Employer did not commit any unfair labor practices as alleged in the Charge, and dismissed the Charge. R.R. at 21a-27a.

On November 21, 1997, the Union filed exceptions to the Proposed Decision and Order with the Board. R.R. at 28a-32a. On August 18, 1998, the Board issued a Final Order dismissing the Union's exceptions and making the proposed decision and order of the Hearing Examiner absolute and final. R.R. at 33a-36a. level employees, thereby eliminating their "meet and discuss" rights under the provisions of the PERA, violates the United States and the Pennsylvania Constitutions.

The Union first claims that the Board erred in determining that Employer's unilateral withdrawal of recognition is not an unfair labor practice under the PERA. In particular, the Union claims that if Employer believed that the existing certified unit of WCJs was no longer an appropriate unit in light of the enactment of Act 57, Employer should have filed a unit clarification petition with the Board pursuant to 34 Pa. Code § 95.23.<sup>15</sup> The Union asserts that "[t]he unilateral declaration by the employer that the [WCJs] were management level employees no longer eligible for union representation is a wholesale breach of the procedures and protections mandated by the Public Employee Relations Act." Brief for Appellant, p. 13.

We have previously noted that the purpose of the unit clarification petition procedure under the PERA is to determine whether certain job classifications are properly included in a bargaining unit based on the actual functions of the job. Fraternal Order of Police v. Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board, 695 A.2d 926 (Pa. Cmwlth. 1997), aff'd, ___ Pa. ___, 735 A.2d 96 (1999), School District of the Township of Millcreek v. is properly included in a bargaining unit is to petition [the Board] for unit clarification according to the procedures set forth in the [B]oard's regulations at 34 Pa. Code § 95.23.").

In support of this claim, the Union cites cases in which the Board has held that an employer committed an unfair labor practice where it had either refused to bargain with employees not specifically excluded from a certified unit, or had unilaterally excluded a new position from a certified unit. However, in this case, it was not alleged that Employer either altered the job duties of WCJs or unilaterally changed the classification of WCJs. Rather, it was alleged that Employer committed an unfair labor practice in this case by implementing the provisions of section 1403 of the Act in which the General Assembly designated WCJs as "management level employees", a classification that the Board specifically excluded from the existing certified unit. As there was no allegation that Employer altered the classification of WCJs or the existing unit as defined by the Board, it is clear that the Board did not err in determining that Employer did not commit an unfair labor practice in this case. The Union's claim to the contrary is meritless.

The Union next claims that the Board erred in failing to examine the work duties and responsibilities of WCJs in determining that WCJs are management level employees. In particular, the Union alleges that an employer's unilateral classification of a position is not determinative, and the Board must analyze the duties of the WCJ position in determining whether they should be designated as "management level employees" as defined in section 301(16) of the PERA.

Again, this claim ignores the facts underlying the instant appeal. In this case, the General Assembly designated the WCJs to be "management level employees" under the provisions of section 1403 of the Act. Employer did nothing to change the classification of the WCJs or alter their duties in any manner after the Board certified the unit.

It is true that, in most circumstances, an examination of the duties of an employee's position is made prior to a determination of whether or not such employee is a "management level employe", as that term is defined in section 301(16) of the PERA. See, e.g., School District of Philadelphia v. Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board, 719 A.2d 835 (Pa. Cmwlth. 1998) (Board's determination that employees in the position of coordinator, family resource network were neither management nor supervisory level was proper where there was no substantial evidence to show that they meaningfully participated in any significant policy formation or took concrete measures to ensure the implementation of the School District's policies.).

However, because the General Assembly chose to designate WCJs as management level employees under the provisions of section 1403 of the Act, it obviated the need to examine the particular duties of the position as both the Board and this Court are powerless to alter this designation. See American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees v. Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board, 593 A.2d 4 (Pa. Cmwlth. 1991) (Although Waterways Conservation Officers are authorized to act as police under sections 901 and 902 of the Fish and Boat Code, 30 Pa.C.S. §§ 901, 902, where the General Assembly specifically expressed in section 304(b) of the Fish and Boat Code, 30 Pa.C.S. § 304(b), that these officers are not to be afforded Act 111 rights accorded other "policemen" this legislative intent controls and this Court is powerless to overrule this legislative judgment.)<sup>16</sup>

<sup>16</sup> As a corollary to this claim, the Union asserts that because section 1403 of the Act makes no reference to the PERA, the Board erred in determining that the General Assembly's

The Union next claims that the Board erred in determining that the designation of WCJs as "management level employes" in section 1403 of the Act applied to WCJs who held this position prior to its enactment. In particular, the Union contends that the "grandfather clause" of section 1406 of the Act precludes the application of the designation in section 1403 of the Act. As noted above, section 1406 of the Act provides that "[i]ndividuals who are currently serving as workers' compensation judges shall continue to serve as workers' compensation judges, subject to sections 1401(c) and 1404." 77 P.S. § 2506. Because section 1406 does not make reference to section 1403, the Union argues that the rules of statutory construction require a finding that the provisions of section 1403 do not apply to WCJs employed prior to its enactment.

In rejecting the Union's claim, the Hearing Examiner stated the following:

designation of WCJs as "management level employes" in section 1403 excluded them from the "meet and discuss" provisions of the PERA by virtue of section 301(16) of the PERA. However, it is a tenet of statutory construction that "[w]ords and phrases shall be construed according to rules of grammar and according to their common and approved usage; but technical words and phrases and such others as have acquired a peculiar and appropriate meaning ... shall be construed according to such peculiar and appropriate meaning..." Section 1903(a) of the Statutory Construction Act of 1972, 1 Pa.C.S. § 1903(a); Flaherty v. Pittsburgh School District, 660 A.2d 218 (Pa. Cmwlth. 1995); Doyle Equipment Company v. Commonwealth, 542 A.2d 644 (Pa. Cmwlth. 1988). In addition, it is also a tenet of statutory construction that "[s]tatutes or parts of statutes are in pari materia when they relate to the same persons or things or to the same class of persons or things", and "[s]tatutes in pari materia shall be construed together, if possible, as one statute." Section 1932 of the Statutory Construction Act of 1972, 1 Pa.C.S. § 1932; Hutskow v. Washowich, 628 A.2d 1202 (Pa. Cmwlth.), petition for allowance of appeal denied, 536 Pa. 633, 637 A.2d 293 (1993); Black v. Billy Penn Corp., 457 A.2d 192 (Pa. Cmwlth. 1983). Thus, it was entirely appropriate for the Board to construe the phrase "management level employe" as that phrase is used in Act 57 relating to the terms of conditions of the employment of WCJs in conjunction with the provisions of the PERA relating to the terms and conditions of employment of public employees.

[N]oting that Section 1403 of Act 57 of 1996 is not one of the listed sections which grandfathered judges are subject to and relying on the rule of statutory construction that "[e]xceptions expressed in a statute shall be construed to exclude all others", 1 Pa.C.S. § 1924, [the Union] claims that only newly hired judges are subject to Section 1403 of Act 57 of 1996, which, as noted above, requires that judges "shall be management level employes" and further requires, among other things, that they "[b]e an attorney in good standing before the Supreme Court." 77 P.S. § 2503(1). In the words of [the Union], "[i]f the existing judges do not have to be attorneys, then it follows that they do not have to be considered management level employees." (brief at 10).

[The Union]'s reading of Sections 1403 and 1406 of Act 57 of 1996 violates another rule of statutory construction – "the General Assembly does not intend a result that is absurd..." 1 Pa.C.S.A. § 1922(1). It makes no sense that the General Assembly would limit management level status to newly hired judges just because they are attorneys; rather, it seems more reasonable that the General Assembly would treat referees who became judges and newly hired judges the same as far as their unit status is concerned because, regardless of whether or not they are attorneys, their job duties are the same.

[The Union] goes on to argue that reading Sections 1403 and 1406 of Act 57 of 1996 contrary to its position violates the rule of statutory construction that "the General Assembly intends to favor the public interest as against any private interest." 1 Pa.C.S.A. § 1922(3). According to [the Union], the public interest in having harmonious employe-employer relations is favored under its reading of those sections. [The Union] does not point out how any private interest is favored by reading Sections 1403 and 1406 of Act 57 of 1996 contrary to its position, however, so there is no basis to its argument in this regard.

We agree with this reasoning. The Union cites no authority to support the proposition that the General Assembly intended to treat those WCJs hired after the enactment of Act 57 differently from those holding that position prior to its enactment. It is clear that, in enacting the provisions of section 1403 of the Act, the General Assembly removed all WCJs from the provisions of the PERA and outlined the general terms and condition of their employment. It would be illogical to conclude that the General Assembly intended to deny the PERA's "meet and discuss" rights to only those WCJs hired after the enactment of section 1403 when both new hires and existing WCJs are both afforded the protections of the Civil Service Act, work the same number of hours, perform the same job duties, and are held to the same ethical standards. In short, the Union's proposed reading of the provisions of the Act would result in an unnatural and strained interpretation of its provisions, and will not be adopted in order to reverse the Board's determination in this case. See, e.g., Commonwealth ex rel. Paulinski v. Isaac, 483 Pa. 467, 397 A.2d 760 (1979), cert. denied, 442 U.S. 918 (1979) (When interpreting constitutional provisions relating to the "grandfathering" of the then sitting City of Pittsburgh magistrates, and imposing new educational requirements and prohibited activities, the provisions should not be read in a strained or technical manner but should be given an ordinary and natural interpretation.)

Finally, the Union claims that the Board's determination that WCJs are management level employees, thereby eliminating their "meet and discuss" rights under the provisions of the PERA, violates the United States and the Pennsylvania Constitutions. In particular, the Union contends that the provisions of the Act, as applied to its members, violates: (1) their due process and equal protection rights under the United States and Pennsylvania Constitutions; (2) their right of free association under the United States and Pennsylvania Constitutions; and (3) the prohibition precluding the enactment of "special legislation" under Article III, Section 32 of the Pennsylvania Constitution. However, these claims will not be addressed on the merits in this appeal.

Although the Union raised these claims before the Hearing Examiner and the Board, both the Hearing Examiner and the Board properly determined that the Board was without jurisdiction to consider constitutional claims. See, City of Philadelphia v. District Council 33, 528 Pa. 355, 598 A.2d 256 (1991). It must be remembered that, in the instant appeal, we are reviewing the Board's determination that Employer did not commit any unfair labor practices under the provisions of the PERA. In conducting our appellate review of the Board's Final Order, we have determined that "[i]ts legal conclusions are reasonable, and not arbitrary, capricious, or incorrect as a matter of law. Monshannon Valley School District. Therefore, we will not decide these constitutional issues. See e.g., Krenzelak v. Krenzelak, 503 Pa. 373, 469 A.2d 987 (1983) (The Supreme Court should not decide a constitutional question unless absolutely required to do so.); Mt. Lebanon v. County Board of Elections of Allegheny County, 470 Pa. 317, 368 A.2d 648 (1977) (same).<sup>17</sup>

Accordingly, the order of the Board is affirmed.
