CARPENTER, J.

Presently before the Court is Defendant State Farm Mutual Automobile Insurance Company's ("State Farm") Motion for Summary Judgment. For the following reasons, State Farm's Motion will be GRANTED.

FACTS

Underlying this Motion is Shannon Moffitt-Ali's ("Plaintiff") claim for underinsured motorist ("UIM") coverage relating to injuries she sustained in a motor vehicle collision on December 2, 2012.<sup>1</sup> At the time of the accident, Plaintiff was a passenger in a vehicle operated by her step-daughter, Javonna Moffitt-Ali ("Defendant Moffitt-Ali").<sup>2</sup> Defendant Moffitt-Ali was driving westbound on Delaware Route 4 at the same time Rachel Reaume ("Reaume") was traveling eastbound when the two vehicles collided.<sup>3</sup> The collision allegedly occurred as a result of both drivers' negligence.<sup>4</sup>

At the time of the accident, Reaume's vehicle was insured by State Farm with a liability coverage limit of $25,000.<sup>5</sup> Defendant Moffitt-Ali was operating a vehicle owned by Troy B. Moffitt-Ali and insured by a Liberty Mutual Insurance Company ("Liberty Mutual") policy with liability coverage limits of $100,000, as well as UIM coverage of $100,000.<sup>6</sup> Plaintiff also had her own insurance policy through State Farm, which included UIM coverage of $25,000.<sup>7</sup>

Plaintiff's claim against Reaume was resolved in exchange for the $25,000 limits of her liability policy.<sup>8</sup> Plaintiff then filed the present case against Defendant Moffitt-Ali, Liberty Mutual, and State Farm on April 14, 2014.<sup>9</sup> Liberty Mutual has since tendered both the bodily injury liability and UIM policy limits.<sup>10</sup> On October 21, 2015, this Court signed a partial stipulation of dismissal with prejudice with respect to all claims against Liberty Mutual.<sup>11</sup>

Plaintiff now seeks secondary UIM coverage through her policy with State Farm.<sup>12</sup> State Farm filed the instant Motion for Summary Judgment on October 21, 2015. State Farm contends Plaintiff is not entitled to access her UIM coverage because the combined liability coverage of the tortfeasors in this matter, Reaume and Defendant Moffitt-Ali, exceeded Plaintiff's underinsured limits. Plaintiff argues that she remains entitled to access her UIM benefits because one of the tortfeasor's liability coverage was less making her underinsured as to that policy.

The Court heard oral argument on December 4, 2015. On January 13, 2016, the Court signed an Order reflecting the parties' agreement to stipulated damages of $25,000, the State Farm UIM policy limits, should Plaintiff's claim survive summary judgment. This is the Court's decision on the matter.

STANDARD OF REVIEW

In reviewing a motion for summary judgment pursuant to Rule 56, the Court must determine whether any genuine issues of material fact exist.<sup>13</sup> Specifically, the moving party bears the burden of showing that there are no genuine issues of material fact so that he is entitled to judgment as a matter of law.<sup>14</sup> Further, the Court must view all factual inferences in a light most favorable to the non-moving party.<sup>15</sup> Therefore, summary judgment will not be granted if it appears that there is a material fact in dispute or that further inquiry into the facts would be appropriate.<sup>16</sup>

DISCUSSION

Title 18, Section 3902 of the Delaware Code was enacted to provide innocent victims of motor vehicle accidents a means of recovering for injuries

“inflicted by impecunious tortfeasors.”<sup>17</sup> The statute aims to achieve this objective by permitting “a claim for UIM benefits where an operator of an underinsured motor vehicle causes the claimant bodily injury.”<sup>18</sup> The necessary first step in seeking to collect UIM benefits, then, is to show that the tortfeasor was operating an underinsured motor vehicle.<sup>19</sup> This threshold determination is governed by 18 Del. C. § 3902(b)(2), which, prior to its 2013 amendment, provided:

An underinsured motor vehicle is one for which there may be bodily injury liability coverage in effect, but the limits of bodily injury liability coverage under all bonds and insurance policies applicable at the time of the accident total less than the limits provided by the uninsured motorist coverage. These limits shall be stated in the declaration sheet of the policy.<sup>20</sup>

This definition has since been amended to provide that a vehicle is underinsured if the limits of all applicable policies “are less than the damages sustained by the insured.”<sup>21</sup> However, this language affects only those policies renewed or secured after the amendment's July 3, 2013 effective date, which is not the case here.<sup>22</sup>

Accordingly, whether Plaintiff is entitled to UIM coverage will “depend[] upon the applicable policy limits.”<sup>23</sup> In other words, an underinsured tortfeasor for present purposes is one “with liability policy limits that are less than the limits of the claimant's uninsured motorist coverage.”<sup>24</sup>

In the context of this initial comparison, an injured claimant is permitted to look to the limits of “any one” applicable UIM policy.<sup>25</sup> While addressing a different, yet related, issue in Colonial Insurance Co. of Wisconsin v. Ayers, the Court held that a claimant is precluded from stacking UIM benefits “for purposes of the threshold inquiry into whether... [UIM] coverage provided by any one UIM policy is triggered.”<sup>26</sup> While rejecting the construction asserted by the plaintiff there as contrary to the “unambiguous language of the statute,” the Court’s comments as to the reading of § 3902 are helpful to a resolution of the issue presented in this litigation:

The General Assembly...used the plural term “policies” to describe the liability coverage...to be considered but simultaneously used the singular term “policy” to characterize the [UIM] coverage to which [it]...was to be compared. Moreover, with regard to “bodily injury liability coverage,” the statute...also employs the words “all” and “total” to indicate that liability coverage must be considered in the aggregate. The omission of the[se] terms...in reference to UIM coverage, in conjunction with...the singular word “policy,” reflects a concerted decision by the legislature to have each [UIM] policy considered separately vis-à-vis all liability policies.<sup>27</sup>

Here, the parties appear to agree Plaintiff had two UIM policies available to her at the time of the accident: the Liberty Mutual policy with UIM coverage limits of $100,000 and the $25,000 limits of her personal UIM policy with State Farm. While the Plaintiff is presently seeking to recover under her State Farm policy, she is permitted to use the limits of “any one policy”—here, the $100,000 Liberty Mutual policy—for purposes of determining UIM eligibility.<sup>28</sup> The issue, however, is whether this amount must initially be compared against the combined liability coverage limits of both alleged tortfeasors.

In its Motion for Summary Judgment, State Farm argues the alleged tortfeasors, Reaume and Defendant Moffitt-Ali, were not “underinsured” because, in total, their bodily injury liability limits equal $125,000.<sup>29</sup> According to State Farm, the Court should consider this amount as representing “the limits of bodily injury liability under all bonds and insurance policies applicable at the time of the accident total” under § 3902(b)(2).<sup>30</sup> Applying this construction, no underinsurance situation would exist because the bodily injury liability of $125,000 exceeds the $100,000 of UIM coverage under the Liberty Mutual policy.<sup>31</sup>

Plaintiff, on the other hand, responds that § 3902(b)(2) contemplates only a single tortfeasor’s total liability coverage.<sup>32</sup> Accordingly, Plaintiff argues Reaume operated an underinsured motor vehicle since her only liability coverage totaled $25,000, which is less than the Liberty Mutual UIM limits of $100,000.<sup>33</sup> In support of her position, Plaintiff emphasizes that the statutory language requiring consideration of “total” liability coverage “modif[ies] the definition of a single entity,” the underinsured motor vehicle.<sup>34</sup> In other words, Plaintiff reads the provision, not as including multiple tortfeasor scenarios, but rather as illustrating that a single tortfeasor may have more than one liability policy.<sup>35</sup>

State Farm’s position finds support in Delaware case law. In Sload v. Nationwide Mutual Insurance Co., the plaintiffs, passengers in a vehicle operated by George Sload, were injured when Sload collided with a vehicle operated by Dennis Lloyd Brown, Jr.<sup>36</sup> Both tortfeasors offered the limits of their bodily injury liability policies, with Sload’s in the amount of $100,000 and Brown’s in the amount of $15,000.<sup>37</sup> In considering whether the plaintiffs were entitled to access their UIM limits of $100,000, this Court held:

Plaintiffs received, through the combined liability policy limits of Mr. Sload and Mr. Brown, a total of $115,000 per person. Plaintiffs’ UIM limit is therefore less than the liability limits of both tortfeasors, Mr. Brown and Mr. Sload, combined and equal to the liability limits of the tortfeasor Mr. Sload, the driver of the vehicle in which Plaintiffs were riding. In either case, the total applicable liability limits are more than or equal to the UM/UIM limits, and thus, by definition, there is no “underinsured” motorist coverage available to Plaintiffs.<sup>38</sup>

The Court rejected the plaintiffs’ argument that Delaware’s UIM statute was intended to apply exclusively to single tortfeasor cases. Rather, to the Sload Court, “[a] simple reading of the statute suggests inclusion of multiple tortfeasors in the definition of underinsured motor vehicle.”<sup>39</sup> Specifically, the Court recognized the Legislature’s use of the language “all bonds and insurance policies applicable at the time of the accident” as evidencing its intent, “with regard to total liability coverage, to focus on the ‘totality of the accident’ and thus an intent to apply the statute to multiple tortfeasors.”<sup>40</sup> This rationale also appears consistent with the Delaware Supreme Court’s construction of the statute in Ayers, where the Court emphasized the legislature’s use of “the words ‘all’ and ‘total’ to indicate that liability coverage must be considered in the aggregate.”<sup>41</sup>

Ultimately, at the time of the accident, the tortfeasors in this case held combined liability coverage limits of $125,000, which Plaintiff has since recovered. This amount well-surpasses the UIM benefits available to Plaintiff under both the Liberty Mutual policy and her policy with State Farm. Thus, State Farm’s Motion for Summary Judgment is GRANTED.

CONCLUSION

While the Court believes this is a legally correct decision under the law at the time of the accident, it finds comfort that the General Assembly has recognized the previous statute was being used by insurance companies to limit coverage in cases where the plaintiff was significantly injured and the liability coverage was not sufficient to provide fair compensation. Clearly this was not intended by the framers of the original statute and was inconsistent with the intent of the law.

Fortunately the statute as changed will prevent such injustice from continuing.

Unfortunately for Plaintiff the previous statute controls and State Farm's Motion must be granted.

IT IS SO ORDERED.
