FOR THE TENTH CIRCUIT

CEDRIC GREENE,

Plaintiff - Appellant,

v.

LOGISTICARE SOLUTIONS, INC.,

Defendant - Appellee.

No. 17-4109
(D.C. No. 2:16-CV-00755-BSJ)
(D. Utah)

ORDER AND JUDGMENT*

Before LUCERO, BALDOCK, and MORITZ, Circuit Judges.

Cedric Greene brought suit against Logisticare Solutions, Inc., alleging negligent infliction of emotional distress. On July 18, 2016, the district court dismissed Greene's complaint sua sponte for lack of subject matter jurisdiction. Greene then filed a notice of appeal on April 14, 2017. We abated Greene's appeal and remanded the case to the district court with directions to treat the notice of appeal as a motion to reopen time to file an appeal. See Fed. R. App. P. 4(a)(6). The district court denied Greene's motion to reopen as untimely. Accordingly, we dismissed Greene’s appeal for lack of jurisdiction. Greene then filed a second Rule 4(a)(6) motion to reopen, which the district court also denied. Greene now timely appeals that decision.

* After examining Greene's brief and the appellate record, this panel has determined unanimously that oral argument wouldn't materially assist in the determination of this appeal. See Fed. R. App. P. 34(a)(2); 10th Cir. R. 34.1(G). The case is therefore ordered submitted without oral argument. This order and judgment isn't binding precedent, except under the doctrines of law of the case, res judicata, and collateral estoppel. But it may be cited for its persuasive value. See Fed. R. App. P. 32.1; 10th Cir. R. 32.1.

We generally review a district court’s denial of a Rule 4(a)(6) motion for abuse of discretion. Ogden v. San Juan Cty., 32 F.3d 452, 455 (10th Cir. 1994). But Greene makes no effort to explain whether—let alone how—the district court abused its discretion in denying his second Rule 4(a)(6) motion. Thus, we affirm. See Nixon v. City and Cty. of Denver, 784 F.3d 1364, 1366 (10th Cir. 2015) (“[T]he first task of an appellant is to explain to us why the district court’s decision was wrong.”); Johnson v. Johnson, 466 F.3d 1213, 1215 (10th Cir. 2006) (affirming ruling that went unchallenged on appeal).
