Decided: February 9, 2017

Louis C. Allen, Federal Public Defender, Mireille P. Clough, Assistant Federal Public Defender, Winston-Salem, North Carolina, for Appellant. Ripley Rand, United States Attorney, Lisa B. Boggs, Assistant United States Attorney, Greensboro, North Carolina, for Appellee.

PER CURIAM:

David Roa-Bahena pled guilty, pursuant to a written agreement, to illegal reentry after deportation, in violation of 8 U.S.C. § 1326(a), (b)(1) (2012). The district court sentenced Roa-Bahena to 37 months in prison, within the range established by the Sentencing Guidelines, to run concurrently with his undischarged state sentence. On appeal, Roa-Bahena challenges the substantive reasonableness of the sentence. Finding no error, we affirm.

We review the reasonableness of a sentence "under a deferential abuse-of-discretion standard." Gall v. United States, 552 U.S. 38, 41 (2007). Because Roa-Bahena does not assert any procedural sentencing error, we review only the substantive reasonableness of the sentence, "tak[ing] into account the totality of the circumstances." Id. at 51. We presume that a sentence within a properly calculated Guidelines range is substantively reasonable, rebuttable only "by showing that the sentence is unreasonable when measured against the 18 U.S.C. § 3553(a) factors." United States v. Louthian, 756 F.3d 295, 306 (4th Cir. 2014).

We have reviewed the record and discern no abuse of the district court's discretion in selecting the within-Guidelinesrange sentence. Thus, we conclude that Roa-Bahena has failed to rebut the presumption of reasonableness applied to his sentence.

Accordingly, we affirm the judgment of the district court. We dispense with oral argument because the facts and legal contentions are adequately presented in the materials before this court and argument would not aid the decisional process.
