Appeal from the United States
District Court for the Western District of Missouri.

[UNPUBLISHED]

Submitted: February 6, 2009

Before BYE, COLLTON, and GRUENDER, Circuit Judges.

PER CURIAM.

Larry Wills pleaded guilty to eight charges involving fraud and money laundering. He now appeals his 48-month prison sentence, arguing that remand is required because the district court¹ did not specifically address the 18 U.S.C. § 3553(a) factors or explain the chosen sentence. Wills made no objection to this at sentencing. The record reveals that before imposing sentence, the district court heard statements from both counsel and adopted the parties' agreed-upon advisory Guidelines imprisonment range of 46-57 months. We are thus satisfied that the court had a reasoned basis for the selected sentence, see Rita v. United States, 127 S. Ct. 2456, 2468 (2007), and there is no indication that Wills would have received a lower sentence had the court more explicitly explained its decision, see United States v. Pate, 518 F.3d 972, 975 (8th Cir. 2008). Accordingly, we affirm.
