PER CURIAM.

After Arkansas inmate Larry Jones brought a civil rights suit challenging a prison mailroom policy that had been applied to him, the district court<sup>1</sup> dismissed the suit without prejudice as against defendants Ray Hobbs and Grant Harris, and granted summary judgment to defendant Sherry Conrad. Jones appeals, and we affirm.

Upon careful de novo review, we agree with the district court that Jones failed to exhaust his administrative remedies as to defendants Hobbs and Harris, because he did not name either of them in his grievance papers, as required by the grievance policy of the Arkansas Department of Correction. See King v. Iowa Dep't of Corr., 598 F.3d 1051, 1052 (8th Cir. 2010) (de novo review of interpretation of Prison Litigation Reform Act's administrative-exhaustion provision). As to Conrad, who was named in the grievance, we agree with the district court that she was entitled to qualified immunity. See Winslow v. Smith, 696 F.3d 716, 730-31 (8th Cir. 2012) (de novo review of summary judgment granted on basis of qualified immunity). Accordingly, we affirm. See 8th Cir. R. 47B.
