PER CURIAM.
	al appeal, Terry Sanders challenges the order of the ovised release and imposing a 20-month sentence

¹The Honorable J. Leon Holmes, United States District Judge for the Eastern District of Arkansas.

counsel has moved to withdraw, and has submitted a brief discussing the substantive reasonableness of the revocation sentence. Sanders has filed pro se briefs, arguing that the district court failed to explain adequately the revocation sentence, and challenging his underlying conviction and sentence.

Upon careful review of the record, we conclude that Sanders's revocation sentence was not substantively unreasonable, as the district court considered the 18 U.S.C. § 3553(a) factors, and there was no indication the court overlooked a relevant factor or committed a clear error of judgment in weighing the relevant factors. See United States v. Johnson, 827 F.3d 740, 744 (8th Cir. 2016) (standard of review). We further conclude that the district court adequately explained its rationale for the revocation sentence. See United States v. Krzyzaniak, 702 F.3d 1082, 1085 (8th Cir. 2013) (district court's explanation is sufficient if record as whole demonstrates court considered relevant factors). We also reject Sanders's challenge to his underlying conviction and sentence. See United States v. Miller, 557 F.3d 910, 913 (8th Cir. 2009) (defendant may challenge validity of his underlying conviction and sentence through direct appeal or habeas corpus proceeding, not through collateral attack in supervised-release revocation proceeding). Accordingly, we grant counsel leave to withdraw, and we affirm. We also deny Sanders's appellate motion to correct the presentence report.
