

United States Court of Appeals
For the Eighth Circuit

No. 19-1111

United States of America

Plaintiff - Appellee

v.

Theodore Manos

Defendant - Appellant

Appeal from United States District Court for the District of Nebraska - Omaha

Submitted: November 21, 2019

Filed: November 26, 2019

[Unpublished]

Before GRUENDER, WOLLMAN, and KOBES, Circuit Judges.

PER CURIAM.

Shortly before Theodore Manos began serving a life term of supervised release in the District of Nebraska, he filed a motion to transfer jurisdiction over his supervision to the District of Minnesota and to modify some conditions of his release.

The district court¹ denied Manos's motion, initially and upon reconsideration, and he appeals.

Because Manos was not yet on supervised release when he requested a transfer of jurisdiction and a modification of terms, we conclude that the district court did not abuse its discretion in denying his motion. See 18 U.S.C. § 3605 (sentencing court may transfer jurisdiction over person on supervised release to another district court with concurrence of that court); see also United States v. Henkel, 358 F.3d 1013, 1015 (8th Cir. 2004) (noting that prisoner may apply to district court for appropriate modification under 18 U.S.C. § 3583(e)(2) upon release).

¹The Honorable Joseph F. Bataillon, United States District Judge for the District of Nebraska.