Before BENTON, KELLY, and GRASZ, Circuit Judges.

PER CURIAM.

Andrew Alexander, who was formerly detained at the Dallas County Detention Center, appeals the district court's¹ adverse grant of summary judgment in his 42 U.S.C. § 1983 action. After careful de novo review of the record and the parties' arguments on appeal, we conclude the district court properly granted summary judgment, as the record did not support Alexander's claims relating to mold and inadequate medical care. See Morris v. Craddock, 954 F.3d 1055, 1058 (8th Cir. 2020) (standard of review); Morris v. Zefferi, 601 F.3d 805, 809 (8th Cir. 2010) (noting a detainee's constitutional rights are violated if conditions of confinement amount to punishment). We also conclude Alexander's vague allegations concerning a spider infestation did not support a conditions-of-confinement claim. See Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S. 662, 678 (2009) ("To survive a motion to dismiss, a complaint must contain sufficient factual matter, accepted as true, to 'state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face.'"). Finally, we conclude Alexander's official-capacity claim failed, as he did not demonstrate a constitutional violation. See Brockinton v. City of Sherwood, 503 F.3d 667, 674 (8th Cir. 2007). Accordingly, we affirm. See 8th Cir. R. 47B.
