PER CURIAM.

Eric Rollins appeals after the district court<sup>1</sup> revoked his supervised release and sentenced him to six months in prison and a life term of supervised release. His counsel has moved to withdraw and filed a brief challenging the revocation sentence as substantively unreasonable. Rollins filed a supplemental pro se brief arguing the sentence violates his First and Eighth Amendment rights.

After reviewing the record, we conclude the district court did not abuse its discretion in imposing the sentence. See United States v. Miller, 557 F.3d 910, 915-17 (8th Cir. 2009) (reviewing the substantive reasonableness of a revocation sentence under a deferential abuse-of-discretion standard). We also reject Rollins's challenges to the constitutionality of his sentence. See United States v. Contreras, 816 F.3d 502, 514 (8th Cir. 2016); United States v. Israel, 317 F.3d 768, 770 (7th Cir. 2003). Accordingly, we grant counsel's motion to withdraw and affirm.
