Before SMITH, KELLY, and ERICKSON, Circuit Judges.

PER CURIAM.

Ramon W. Ford appeals after the district court¹ revoked his supervised release and sentenced him to a below-Guidelines term of imprisonment. His counsel has moved for leave to withdraw and has filed a brief challenging the substantive reasonableness of the sentence.

We conclude the district court did not abuse its discretion in imposing the sentence. See United States v. Miller, 557 F.3d 910, 917-18 (8th Cir. 2009) (standard of review). There is no indication that the court failed to consider a relevant factor, gave significant weight to an improper or irrelevant factor, or committed a clear error of judgment in weighing the factors. See 18 U.S.C. § 3583(e); United States v. Larison, 432 F.3d 921, 923 (8th Cir. 2006) (considerations for reasonableness of sentence); cf. United States v. Lazarski, 560 F.3d 731, 733 (8th Cir. 2009) (when court imposed below-Guidelines-range sentence, it was “nearly inconceivable” that it abused its discretion in not varying downward still further).

Accordingly, we grant counsel’s motion to withdraw and affirm the judgment.
