REPLY BRIEF ON CROSS-APPEAL

In its opposition to the cross-appeal of Plaintiff-Appellee Celedonia X. Yue (“Yue”), Defendant-Appellant Conseco Life Insurance Company (“Conseco”) makes five seriatim arguments why the flat statement in Karl Storz Endoscopy-Am., Inc. v. Surgical Techs., Inc., 285 F.3d 848, 857 (9th Cir. 2002) that the discovery rule does not apply to claims under Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200, et. seq. (“UCL”) governs Plaintiff’s UCL claim, notwithstanding the subsequent pronouncement of the matter as an open issue by the California Supreme Court and the anticipated pending resolution of the open question by that Court in Aryeh v. Canon Business Solutions, Inc., 116 Cal.Rptr.3d 881 (2010). None are well-taken.

First, Conseco argues that the district court was obligated to follow Karl Storz. That is precisely the problem and Yue’s reason for cross-appeal. The flat statement of California law in Karl Storz is undermined by the California Supreme Court’s subsequent express recognition in Grisham v. Phillip Morris USA, Inc., 40 Cal.4th 623, 634 n.7 (2007) that, to the contrary, application of the discovery rule is “not settled under California law.” Conseco in response simply ignores Grisham. The Ninth Circuit itself acknowledged the open question after Grisham in Betz v. Trainer Wortham & Co., 236 Fed. Appx. 253, 256 (9th Cir. 2007) (it remains “an open question under California law whether the discovery rule applies to unfair business practices claims”). Consecos in response simply ignores Betz. Certainly, at a minimum, it is fair to say that the blanket statement in Karl Storz is undercut by the California Supreme Court’s acknowledgement in Grisham that matter is instead an open question under California law.

Second, even though the California Supreme Court’s statement certainly “undermines” the reasoning of the contrary statement in Karl Storz, Consecos argues that this Court should not “overturn” Karl Storz out of a sense of “restraint and comity” to the prior panel. Third Br. at 47. It is hard to see how the panel could be offended by subsequent developments under California law or subsequent statements by the California Supreme Court on an issue it had not previously addressed. In any event, overturning Karl Storz is not the only option; indeed Plaintiff seeks only a determination that the flat statement of Karl Storz is not binding in this case. Second Br. at 66. This Court can and should simply distinguish Karl Storz, given (a) the subsequent developments in California law that admit to exceptions to the flat rule stated in Karl Storz, and (b) the district court’s finding in this case that:

the injury and the act causing the injury were both nigh to impossible for Plaintiff to detect in October 2002. Consecos does not disclose the actual cost of insurance rates to policyholders but only advises as to monthly cost of insurance charge deducted from the account value. In addition, [Consecos] did not at any point notify policyholders of the upcoming change of rates in their policies. Further, the actual increases would not be visible in a policyholder’s annual report until Year 21 when the rates increase.

ER 37-38 (citations and footnote omitted). Alternatively, simply deferring resolution of Plaintiff's cross-appeal pending the California Supreme Court's ruling in Aryeh would in no way offend comity.

Third, Consecoco disputes the suggestion that Karl Storz's flat rejection of any discovery rule is "outdated"—not because that statement is consistent with Grisham and other California case law (it plainly is not), but because many courts within this circuit have, like Judge Matz, followed Karl Storz as precedent. Third Br. at 47-48. But, by the same token, other courts within the Ninth Circuit have not, leading to inconsistent outcomes. See, e.g., Burdick v. Union Sec. Ins. Co., 2009 WL 4798873, at *10 & n. 16 (C.D. Cal. Dec 9, 2009) (applying discovery rule to UCL claim following Betz); Whelan v. BDR Thermea, 2011 WL 6182329, at *4 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 13, 2011) (declining to summarily follow Karl Storz on motion to dismiss); Vaccarino v. Midland Nat. Life Ins. Co., 2011 WL 5593883, at *5-6 (C.D. Cal. Nov. 14, 2011) (delayed discovery rule acknowledged despite Karl Storz, though inadequately pled); Portney v. CIBA Vision Corp., 2009 WL 305488, at *7 (C.D. Cal. Feb. 6, 2009) (acknowledging possible application of discovery in denying motion to dismiss); Garcia v. Coleman, 2008 WL 4166854, at *10 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 8, 2008) (assuming for purposes of summary judgment that discovery rule applies, in light of Grisham). Consecoco in response simply ignores Burdick, Whelan, Vaccarino and Garcia.

Fourth, Conseco attempts to harmonize the flat statement in Karl Storz with Broberg v. Guardian Life Ins. Co., 171 Cal.App.4th 912, 920-21, review denied, (2009). See Third Br. at 49 (“Broberg neither ‘overrules’ Karl Storz nor even disagrees with it.”). Yue should have the same opportunity to distinguish Karl Storz below: if Broberg is consistent with Karl Storz, then Yue should have the opportunity to argue application of the discovery rule in this case is consistent with Broberg.

Fifth and finally, Conseco argues that the California Supreme Court might not resolve the open issue in Aryeh despite of its grant of review, because the Supreme Court’s website not surprisingly includes a disclaimer that warns the general public that the Court may not ultimately address issues which it has accepted review. No one can deny that the Court may, for some reason, decline to resolve an issue that it specifically accepted for review. But that is not expected here. See, e.g., Beaver v. Tarsadia Hotels, 2011 WL 6098165, at *10 (S.D. Cal. Dec. 6, 2011) (declining to dismiss UCL claim on limitations grounds pending the ruling in Aryeh); see also Hameed v. IHOP Franchising, LLC, 2011 WL 590905, at *3 n.5 (E.D. Cal. Feb. 10, 2011) (noting the possibility of a resolution of the issue in Aryeh); Stern, Bus. & Prof. C. § 17200 Practice, § 5:291 (2011) (noting California Supreme Court’s acceptance of the issue in Aryeh). Application of the discovery rule to UCL claims is a major issue of California jurisprudence given the extent of UCL practice in the State. The matter is fully briefed in Aryeh and awaiting disposition.

In the unlikely event that the Supreme Court does not resolve the matter in Aryeh, this Court could, as a final alternative, certify the issue to the California Supreme Court under California Rules of Court, Rule 8.548. See, e.g., Albano v. Shea Homes Ltd. P'ship., 634 F.3d 524 (9th Cir. 2011) (certifying open issue of state law to the Arizona Supreme Court).
