Attorneys for Cross-Appellants and Appellees Warner Bros. Entertainment Inc. and DC Comics

Pursuant to Ninth Circuit Rule 31-2.2(b), cross-appellants and appellees Warner Bros. Entertainment Inc. and DC Comics (collectively, “DC”) request a 43-day extension of the due date for their Principal and Response Brief from January 23, 2012, to March 6, 2012. Cross-appellee and appellant Laura Siegel Larson has consented to this extension and does not oppose DC’s motion. Declaration of Daniel M. Petrocelli (“Petrocelli Decl.”) Ex. A.

DC has not previously sought any extension. Ms. Larson filed an unopposed motion to extend the due date for her Principal Brief by 45 days, and the Court granted that motion. Appeal No. 11-55863, Docket No. 11.

There is good cause for granting this motion given the complexity of the issues in this case, the need for parity in briefing, and the trial schedule of DC’s lead counsel, Daniel Petrocelli, who has two federal trials set to commence on January 24, 2012 and February 7, 2012, respectively. Petrocelli Decl. ¶ 3.

No transcript has been designated, and thus no court reporter is in default with regard to any designated transcript.

DC has exercised diligence, and upon the granting of this motion, will file its initial brief on or before March 6, 2012.
