Funding solutions should be coordinated with the State, which is expected to be an instrumental party in any new financing transaction or other revenue generating or cost cutting transactions (e.g., Belle Isle lease, regional transportation authority, funding to support Detroit Downtown Development Authority and possible new arena and commercial developments).

Again, receipt of State funding out-of-court may implicate eligibility concerns.

Debt negotiations should account for need for some excess debt capacity to cover potential shortfalls, provide flexibility and, if needed, fund any legacy debt solutions.

PART V -
ADDITIONAL PROCESS POINTS

Pay Careful Attention to Political Implications of Restructuring

- All Decisions and Actions Will Have Political Implications and Consequences
- Political Implications of Proposals Should Be Identified and Vetted as Early as Possible
- Ensure that All Statements Are Consistent with Overall Communications Plan

The Jones Day team has extensive experience in cases of national significance and understands this imperative.

[Speaker Notes For Slide: 51]

Every decision and action taken by the City in responding to its financial crises will have political implications and, potentially, political consequences.

Political aspects of all proposed actions have to be identified and vetted as early as possible.

Every statement (including any court filings or arguments in court) must be consistent with an overall communications plan.

Statements made in collective bargaining must be carefully considered. Prospect of negotiation positions and statements being leaked to media outlets is significant.

Must be strong sensitivity to public relations campaigns by various constituencies.

The Jones Day team has extensive experience in cases of national significance and interest and understands these imperatives.

Understand and Anticipate Positions of Creditors

- Employees/Retirees Will Argue:
 - Obligations Cannot Be Modified as a Matter of Law
 - Modifications Make City Less Attractive to Qualified Job Candidates
 - Continuing Contractual Relationship Should Be Preferred over Debt
- Debtors/Monoline Insurers Will Argue:
 - Repayment of Debt Essential to Continuing Access to Credit Markets
 - State Has a Moral/Practical Obligation to Ensure Repayment
 - Defer – and Provide Security for – Obligations Instead of Impairment
- City Responses Must Be Reasoned and Consistent
- Concessions Will Not Be Made to Give Any Group an Unfair Advantage
- Critically, New Revenues Must Be Preserved for Reinvestment
 - New Funders Cannot Be Compelled to Accede to Creditor Demands
 - Earmark New Money for Legally/Politically Sound Revitalization Activities

Speaker Notes For Slide: 53

Anticipated Positions of Creditors:

Municipal employees and their representatives will contend: Obligations to them cannot be modified as a matter of law.

Obligations to employees should not be modified because the City has to be able to attract job candidates and cannot fall behind pay and benefit packages provided by either nearby municipalities or other unionized businesses.

Obligations to employees do not have to be impaired to the same extent as borrowed money creditors because their claims are connected to contracts that have to continue in effect.

Debt holders and insurers will contend:

Repayment of borrowed money claims is essential to access to financing markets going forward. This argument is used to justify extreme budget austerity and asset sales, whether or not beneficial on a long term basis.

The State of Michigan has a moral or practical obligation to ensure repayment of City debt. This argument is used to attempt to convince the State to contribute State resources to the satisfaction of City debt and to induce the State to make choices favoring debt repayment over other priorities.

Deferral of obligations, even if ability to pay in the future is uncertain or questionable, is a preferred approach to deal with inability to satisfy obligations. Usually this approach is coupled with demands for security that will improve the position of borrowed money creditors in any subsequent debt restructuring.

The City must be prepared to respond to these competing points of view in a reasoned and consistent manner.

Concessions should not be made to one group – such as debtholders – to give them an unfair advantage.

Most critically, as the City gains access to new revenues, it must develop an approach that preserves those revenues for reinvestment in the City and not just to pay off preexisting debts.

As seen in the Chrysler case, new funders or buyers cannot be compelled to accede to creditor demands.

New money may be earmarked for revitalization activities as long as the transaction is legally and politically sound.

Plan of Adjustment Issues

- Enabling Legislation May Be Necessary
 - E.g., Authorization of Financing Techniques
 - Identify and Draft Necessary Legislation Early to Avoid Delays
- Best Interests Test
 - Demonstrate Reasonable Efforts to Satisfy Debts to the Extent Possible
- Cram Down: Impose Terms of Plan on Dissenting Creditor Classes
 - A Municipality Must Raise Taxes to the Extent Possible Without Triggering a “Death Spiral”
 - Expert Testimony on Tax Burdens May Be Needed

It is crucial to focus on the plan approval standards throughout the debt adjustment process in case a Chapter 9 case is required.

Speaker Notes For Slide: 55]

Plan of Adjustment

The goal of a chapter 9 filing for Detroit would be to emerge with a successful "Plan of Adjustment," in which the City's debts are reduced and/or restructured in a manner that is feasible given its budget and consistent with its long term revitalization strategy

The Plan of Adjustment is a document that would establish the treatment of the various classes of creditors' claims against Detroit.

Enabling Legislation May Be Necessary

Often, transactions contemplated by or specified in a Plan of Adjustment must be also authorized by legislation.

Examples of such legislation include authorization of financing techniques.

Needed legislation should be identified and drafted as early in the process as possible to avoid delays as bills move their way through the legislature.

Key Confirmation Standards

Best Interests Test

Applicable to all creditors, whether or not the creditor is in a class that has accepted the plan.

As generally applied, requires a troubled municipality to make reasonable efforts under all the circumstances to satisfy its debts to the greatest extent possible. The strategy outlined above should help us support this finding.

Cram Down

Confirmation of a non-consensual plan is possible under chapter 9.

Senior classes must be paid before more junior classes can receive any distribution.

Applied to municipalities with unlimited taxing power, a municipality must use its ability to raise taxes the extent possible without triggering a "death spiral" that would ultimately destroy the municipality.

Traditionally, this question has been determined based upon expert testimony.

Tax burdens in other comparable municipalities should be important as well.

It is crucial to focus on these standards through the debt adjustment process and continuing to build the case that if necessary, the City can confirm a Plan of Adjustment that does not provide for payment in full of all indebtedness.

Any Chapter 9 Process Should Be Comprehensive

- Plans of Adjustment Address Narrow Range of Economic Compromises
- Other Fundamental Changes Must Occur Outside the Plan Context
- Any Chapter 9 Process Should Pursue as Many Revitalization Initiatives as Possible
- Negotiating in Chapter 9 – or Its Shadow – Is a Powerful Tool for Revitalization
- The City Should Take Advantage of Its Opportunity for Long-Term, Comprehensive Solutions

[Speaker Notes For Slide: 57]

Any Chapter 9 Process Should Be Comprehensive

A chapter 9 Plan of Adjustment can only accomplish a narrow band of economic compromises.

This type of debt restructuring is critical, but other fundamental changes of great importance can only occur outside of the Plan of Adjustment.

If a chapter 9 case is commenced, the City should use the process to address as many additional items as possible, not just the core debt readjustment issues in a Plan of Adjustment.

Negotiating in the chapter 9 environment – or even in the shadow of chapter 9 – is a powerful tool to pursue the City's revitalization agenda.

Key Restructuring Lessons

- Develop Comprehensive Plan, Supported by Defensible Budget and Assumptions
- Develop Out-of-Court Approach That Translates to Chapter 9
- Set Clear Positions Early
- Be Inclusive and Communicate
- Pursue Shared Sacrifice Without Compromising Long-Term Revitalization Goals

Speaker Notes For Slide: 59]

Key Restructuring Lessons

Develop comprehensive plan, supported by defensible budget and assumptions.

Develop out-of-court approach that will work if needed in chapter 9.

Set positions early.

Be inclusive and communicate.

Pursue shared sacrifice without compromising long-term revitalization goals.

PART VI – OTHER ISSUES

JONES
DAY

Select Asset Monetization Issues

- Evaluate Impact of Any Asset Sale on Chapter 9 Eligibility
- Water and Sewer
 - Various Legal and Practical Challenges Facing Monetization of DWSD Assets
 - Regional Stakeholders Will Seek Input
 - Consider Collaboration with EPA and Regional Partners to Develop Creative Solutions
- Lease/Operating Agreements
 - Could Evaluate for Airport or Other Assets
 - Recent Collaborations with State Could Be a Model
- Airport Privatization Under FAA Pilot Program

Speaker Notes For Slide: 62]

Asset Sale/Privatization/Monitization Issues (Select Issues)

Concerns regarding eligibility for Chapter 9 may be implicated by asset monetization.

Any transaction should be reviewed and structured to address any eligibility issues (e.g., earmarking of funds).

Water and Sewer

Detroit Water and Sewer Department services much of southeast Michigan (Wayne, Oakland, Macomb counties).

Much of the DWSD's infrastructure is owned and operated by these surrounding counties (and the communities located therein), complicating efforts at restructuring. DWSD services nearly 100 "first-tier" and "second-tier" customers (e.g., from the surrounding counties), all of whom would seek input with respect to restructuring.

Monetization of assets could be challenging.

The Detroit City Charter prohibits the sale of "any city-owned public utility furnishing water and sewerage services, unless approved by a majority of city voters voting on the question at a regular or special election."

Statutes/codes/caselaw may require that funds received from disposition be allocated (e.g., to pension/OPEB liabilities) in a fashion that frustrates ability to allocate funds towards restructuring initiatives.

Monetization of assets may trigger consequences under existing debt and derivative documents.

Open question whether limited universe of "purchasers" could assume liabilities.

An emergency manager, a chapter 9 proceeding or changes to law could be required to overcome obstacles.

Consider different rate structures, regional authority.

EPA litigation complicates the circumstances.

Possibly could explore with EPA and other recipients of services how to make this self-sustaining and profitable.

Negotiating in the shadow of bankruptcy could provide useful leverage for creative solutions.

Combination Lease/Operating Agreement

Could be used for airport or other assets.

The proposed Belle Isle lease may be a model for this kind of transaction.

With respect to the Coleman Young airport, for example, Detroit could evaluate entering into an arrangement combining a lease of airport property with an airfield operating agreement, with the end result being similar to the transfer of possession and operating responsibility to a private operator while falling short of a full lease of the airport.

Under this model, Detroit would remain responsible for major operating and development decisions, but the burden of operating the airport on a daily basis would be alleviated.

Might be more attractive to airport than FAA pilot program to sell asset that we can discuss (comes with various conditions).

Airport Privatization Under FAA Pilot Program [Do-emphasize in light of potential unavailability of program]

Privatization of Detroit airports historically impeded by federal aviation law preventing cities from retaining the proceeds of an airport sale or transfer.

A recent FAA pilot program – adopted by Congress in 1996 – for the privatization of airports, however, may allow Detroit to privatize an airport freed from federal restrictions on the use of proceeds.

Program recently used to sell Midway Airport, with cash value going to the City of Chicago

Under the program, the FAA is authorized to exempt up to ten airports from the relevant federal statutory and regulatory requirements (i.e., to repay Federal grants, return

Prepare for Legal Challenges

- In a Chapter 9 Setting, Legal Challenges of Various Actions Are Inevitable
 - Jones Day Is Well Positioned to Address These Challenges
 - Substantial 6th Circuit Experience
 - Knows How to Expedite Review
- Various Challenges to PA 436/Emergency Manager Authority Possible
 - Challenges at Ballot Box: Renewed Referendum Process
 - Other Legal Challenges in Court
 - Challenges Could Cause Delay, Threaten Progress
 - Jones Day Can Work With the City's Current Advisors to Address Efficiently

[Speaker Notes For Slide: 64]

Prepare for Legal Challenges

If a chapter 9 case is commenced, it is anticipated that parties will to raise numerous legal challenges to the City's efforts. Jones Day is well prepared and positioned to address these challenges. We have substantial 6th Circuit experience. Also know how to expedite proceedings.

The City also should be prepared to address expected challenges to PA 436 and the Authority of any Emergency Manager. These challenges could delay restructuring initiatives or threaten to overturn progress made under these authorities.

Challenges could include:

Challenges at Ballot Box. Critics of PA 436 have already indicated that legal challenges to the law will be forthcoming. Stand Up for Democracy (which led the effort to reject PA 4) has suggested that it will begin a similar referendum process with respect to PA 436 (although appropriation component of PA 436 may insulate it). Legal Challenges. Critics of PA 436 are likely to challenge the statute on grounds that the powers over contracts granted to emergency managers (including the power to reject, modify or terminate CBAs) violate the Contracts Clause of the U.S. Constitution. Further challenges could include (1) whether PA 436 can be insulated from the referendum process through inclusion of a minor appropriation, (2) whether the law properly grants unelected emergency managers the power to displace elected officials/disenfranchise the electorate and (3) whether PA 436 was properly enacted in light of the voter rejection of PA 4 (which has been characterized by some as "substantially similar").

EPA Litigation Issues

- Restructuring Strategy Must Account for EPA Litigation and Rulings of Judge Cox
- Consider Approaches to Consolidate Issues with the Rest of the Restructuring Process
- Consider How EPA Litigation Could Impede or Assist Detroit in Chapter 9

[Speaker Notes For Slide: 66]

Other EPA Litigation Issues

Need to coordinate strategy with relevant aspects of EPA litigation, including rulings regarding CBAs and bargaining

Consider approaches to consolidate these discrete issue with the rest of the restructuring process.

Consider how EPA case could impede or be used to assist in any chapter 9 case.

2] The Board shall, in the exercise of its powers, be subject to the supervision and control of the court. The court may, in its discretion, remove any member of the Board who is not acting in good faith or who is incompetent, inefficient, or unable to perform his or her duties. The court may also, in its discretion, remove any member of the Board who is not acting in good faith or who is incompetent, inefficient, or unable to perform his or her duties.

Governor,

Kevyn will meet with the Detroit Pensions tomorrow after all. There will be no exchange of documents. The premise is that what is discussed shall remain confidential, but I don't expect that to happen. The main focus will be to explain how he has come to the underfunded number he reported to the creditors. He will not translate that into an impact on retirees or employees' vested rights or what share of monies available to unsecured creditors would go to the pension plans. Because pensions have such a long life there are a lot of creative options we can explore to address how they will be treated in a restructuring.

On Thursday, we expect to receive financials that will help us better understand the potential negative impact on pensions and what options may be available to us to avoid them.

Tomorrow's meeting could lead to questions directed to you about your view on this topic. In my view, its too early in the process to respond to hypothetical questions. We remain in many ways at the informational stage. I have some thoughts as to how you could address some pointed questions if you are interested in hearing them.

Regards,

Andy

Subject: Forbearance Agreement with Swap Counterparties - City of Detroit

Gentlemen:

Yesterday, 16 July, The City of Detroit executed a Forbearance Agreement with Bank America Merrill Lynch and UBS, its swap counterparties. This was an important development for the following reasons:

1. Demonstrates the City's ability to negotiate in good faith with important creditors and achieve a mutually satisfactory result.
2. The City has been in default to the swap counterparties. This agreement provides that BAML and UBS will forbear from pursuing remedies. These remedies include blocking the City's access to taxes on gaming revenues (approximately $180 million per year) or demanding the immediate payment of the present value of the swaps (between $280 and $340 million).
3. The City now has the option of redeeming the swaps at 75% of present value until 31 October 2013. This would result in the City saving between $70 and $85 million. Please note that the City stipulated in the 14 June 2013 plan that it is valuing its secured debt (ie., secured by revenue pledges) at 100%. Therefore, redeeming the swaps (secured by gaming tax revenues) at a substantial discount is real savings for the City.
4. The swaps were intended to hedge interest rate risk associated with the Pension Certificates of Participation. The Forbearance Agreement should reduce the cost (both in dollars and time) of potential litigation associated with these transactions.

Miller Buckfire and Jones Day are available at any time to discuss this Agreement and answer any questions. I hope you find this brief note helpful as you consider the overall situation.

RULES

Rule 408..... 18, 20

The Michigan Council 25 of the American Federation of State, County & Municipal Employees, AFL-CIO and Sub-Chapter 98, City of Detroit Retirees (the AFSCME retiree chapter for City of Detroit retirees) (collectively, “AFSCME”) -- the representative of the interests of between at least forty and fifty percent (40-50%) of the about 11,943 retired City of Detroit (the “City” or “Debtor”) non-uniformed employees (the “Retired AFSCME Employees”), and about 2,523 active City employees (the “Active AFSCME Employees”, or about seventy percent (70%) of the active non-uniformed union-represented employees, and together with the Retired AFSCME Employees, collectively, the “AFSCME Detroit Employees”) -- through its counsel and in accordance with the Court’s First Order Establishing Dates and Deadlines [Docket No. 280] (the “Scheduling Order”) submits this pretrial brief (the “Pretrial Brief”) regarding the upcoming trial on the City’s eligibility for relief under chapter 9 of the Bankruptcy Code¹ and respectfully states as follows:

¹ AFSCME previously submitted extensive legal and factual arguments in The Michigan Council 25 of the American Federation of State, County & Municipal Employees, AFL-CIO and Sub-Chapter 98, City of Detroit Retirees’ Amended Objection to the City of Detroit’s Eligibility to Obtain Relief Under Chapter 9 of the Bankruptcy Code [Docket No. 1156] (the “AFSCME Eligibility Objection”). The AFSCME Eligibility Objection was submitted in opposition to the City’s (A) Statement of Qualifications Pursuant to Section 109(c) of the Bankruptcy Code [Docket No. 10] (the “Statement of Eligibility”); (B) Memorandum in Support of Statement of Qualifications Pursuant to Section 109(c) of the Bankruptcy Code [Docket No. 14] (the “Eligibility Brief”); (C) declarations of Kevyn D. Orr [Docket No. 11] (the “Orr Declaration”), Gaurav Malhotra [Docket No. 12] (the “Malhotra Declaration”) and Charles M. Moore [Docket No. 13] (the “Moore Declaration”); (D) City of Detroit’s Consolidated Reply to Objections to the Entry of an Order for Relief (the “Debtor’s Reply”) [Docket No. 765]; and (E) The State of Michigan’s Response to Eligibility Objections Raising Only Legal Issues [Docket No. 756] (the “State’s Response”), and in support of the AFSCME Eligibility Objection, AFSCME relied on the (a) Declaration of Steven Kreisberg [Docket No. 509] (the “Kreisberg Declaration”); (b) Supplemental Declaration of Steven Kreisberg [Docket No. 1162] (the “Supp. Kreisberg Declaration”); and (c) Declaration of Michael Artz [Docket No. 1159] (the “Artz Declaration”).

Given AFSCME’s extensive AFSCME Eligibility Objection, AFSCME incorporates by reference as if fully set forth herein all facts presented (or otherwise incorporated therein) and arguments asserted in the AFSCME Eligibility Objection which will be presented at trial, and AFSCME further reserves the right to argue and rely upon all evidence and arguments presented to this Court in filed pleadings, oral argument, and at trial.

To the extent this Pretrial Brief addresses issues previously covered by other filings or oral argument, this Pretrial Brief is intended to supplement but in no way to limit any of those prior filings or arguments.

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

1. For all the reasons set forth in the AFSCME Eligibility Objection, and as will be demonstrated at trial and as further set forth herein, the City's petition for relief under chapter 9 of the Bankruptcy Code should be dismissed. First, chapter 9 of the Bankruptcy Code violates federalism under the United States Constitution through an unholy alliance permitting federal encroachment on the states' governance rights over fiscal affairs in exchange for an unlawful extension of state powers in excess of those the state would otherwise possess under the law and which denies Michigan citizens their constitutional right to make the rules for their own bankruptcy. Second, Michigan Public Act 436 of 2012, the Local Financial Stability and Choice Act, MCL § 141.1541, et seq. ("PA 436") and Governor Snyder's (the "Governor") purported authorization thereunder authorizing the Emergency Manager to file for chapter 9 protection runs afoul of the Michigan Constitution as applied in this chapter 9 case by not explicitly prohibiting the diminishment or impairment of vested pension rights in bankruptcy, which rights are prescribed in the Michigan Constitution, and further offends the Constitutional rights of individual Detroit citizens to local self-governance. Third, the evidence presented in the AFSCME Eligibility Objection, additional evidence presented herein, and evidence to be adduced at trial collectively will demonstrate that the City has failed to establish that it engaged in good faith negotiations with the City's creditors or that these negotiations were impracticable under section 109(c) of the Bankruptcy Code, and indeed the entire chapter 9 petition was filed in bad faith. Fourth, the City does not qualify for chapter 9 relief because it failed to establish that it is insolvent. Finally, the Bankruptcy Court lacks authority or jurisdiction over matters related to the federal constitutionality of chapter 9 of the Bankruptcy Code or the state constitutionality of PA 436.

2. The evidence discussed herein and further to be presented at trial will demonstrate that the City, led by its unelected, politically appointed Emergency Manager, Kevyn D. Orr (“Orr” or the “EM”), hastily commenced this unconstitutional, unlawfully authorized chapter 9 proceeding seeking the haven of bankruptcy to illegally attempt to slash pension and other post-employment benefit obligations and cram such reductions down the throats of current and former City employees such as the AFSCME Detroit Employees. These proceedings were commenced without any good faith negotiations with the City’s retirees or unions such as AFSCME, and the chapter 9 filing was a fait accompli long prior to the appointment of Orr as the City’s EM – in fact, at a time when Orr was still a partner at the City’s lead bankruptcy counsel’s law firm (the “Law Firm”).

3. While AFSCME expects that the City’s witnesses will testify that chapter 9 bankruptcy was always the last option and the City preferred an out-of-court settlement, those are nothing more than talking points. In reality, the City’s strategy of holding “check the box” meetings with creditors pre-petition at which the City purposefully refused to bargain in good faith was for the sole purpose of “making its record”. Indeed, the City’s eventual strategy (under the leadership of Orr) was first suggested by the Law Firm beginning with a “pitch” presentation made by the Law Firm to the City on January 29, 2013 (the “Pitch Presentation”, a copy of which is attached to the Supp. Kreisberg Declaration, Exhibit B) in the presence of State of Michigan (the “State” or “Michigan”) officials who wanted to steer the City towards chapter 9.

4. Apparently, as discussed further below, the State officials at the January 29, 2013 pitch (including the Governor’s Transformation Manager, Richard Baird (“Baird”)) liked what they heard and decided that the Law Firm would be their firm of choice, with Orr and his extensive bankruptcy experience being utilized as the EM to complement the Law Firm's legal ability to move the City swiftly into chapter 9. Thus, the day after the Pitch Presentation was given, on January 30, 2013, Baird reached out to The Law Firm about the potential of hiring Orr as the EM, and this led to discussions between the Governor, Baird, Orr, other State officials and the Law Firm, and the ultimate hiring of both Orr and the Law Firm to guide the City into chapter 9.

5. As discussed extensively in the AFSCME Eligibility Objection and for the reasons further set forth herein, in light of recent Supreme Court precedent, chapter 9 of the Bankruptcy Code violates the United States Constitution and should be struck down by an Article III Court with authority and jurisdiction to make this crucial Constitutional law determination.

6. However, to the extent this Court disagrees and determines that it has jurisdiction to uphold the Constitutionality of chapter 9 generally, this Court should find that the City is not eligible for relief under chapter 9 pursuant to sections 109(c) and 921(c) of the Bankruptcy Code.

STATEMENT OF FACTS

7. Orr currently serves as the EM of the City under PA 436.

8. The Governor appointed Orr as EM for the City on March 14, 2013, effective as of March 25, 2013. On March 28, 2013, upon the purported effectiveness of PA 436, Orr became, and continues to act as, EM for the City under PA 436.

9. On June 14, 2013, Orr issued a "Proposal for Creditors" which expressly stated that "there must be significant cuts in accrued, vested pension amounts for both active and currently retired persons." The same day, Orr publicly threatened, in an interview with the

Detroit Free Press Editorial Board,² that vested pension benefits would not be protected in a chapter 9 proceeding authorized by the Governor pursuant to PA 436, and that any state laws protecting vested pension benefits would “not . . . protect” retirees in bankruptcy court. The EM stated as follows in the interview:

Q You said in this report that you don't believe there is an obligation under our state constitution to pay pensions if the city can't afford it?

A. The reason we said it that way is to quantify the bankruptcy question. We think federal supremacy trumps state law. Which the Ninth Circuit agrees with for now.

A. It is what it is - so we said that in a soft way of saying, “Don't make us go into bankruptcy.” If you think your state-vested pension rights, either as an employee or a retiree - that's not going to protect you. If we don't reach an agreement one way or the other, we feel fairly confident that the state federal law, federalism, will trump state law or negotiate. The irony of the situation is we might reach a deal with creditors quicker because employees and retirees think there is some benefit and that might force our hand. That might force a bankruptcy.

10. As discussed below and as will be further established at trial, the Governor (and other State officials) and the EM were well aware both prior to and subsequent to the issuance of the letter on July 18, 2013 from the Governor to the EM authorizing the EM to have the City commence its chapter 9 case without any conditions or limits (the “Governor’s Authorization Letter”) of the City’s intentions to modify and/or terminate vested pension obligations in chapter 9 without limit in derogation of the Michigan Constitution.

A. The Webster Litigation And The Governor’s Unconditional Authorization

11. On July 3, 2013, against the backdrop of the threatening statements made by Orr regarding Michigan state law and protected pension benefits, plaintiffs (the “Webster Plaintiffs”) Gracie Webster (a City retiree) and Veronica Thomas (a current employee of the City vested in her pension) commenced a lawsuit against the State of Michigan, the Governor and the State Treasurer seeking: (a) a declaratory judgment that PA 436 violated the Constitution of the State of Michigan to the extent that it purported to authorize chapter 9 cases within which vested pension benefits might be sought to be compromised; and (b) an injunction preventing the defendants from authorizing any chapter 9 case for the City within which vested pension benefits might be sought to be reduced. See Webster v. State of Mich., No. 13-734-CZ (Ingham County Cir. Ct. July 3, 2013) (the “Webster Litigation”).³

12. In briefing submitted in support of a preliminary injunction and declaratory order against the Governor, the Webster Plaintiffs explained that Article IX, Section 24 of the Michigan Constitution provides that “[t]he accrued financial benefits of each pension plan and retirement system of the state and its political subdivisions shall be a contractual obligation thereof which shall not be diminished or impaired thereby;” that there could not be a more clear and plain constitutional mandate; and that Article IX, Section 24 means what it says: accrued pension benefits shall not be reduced.

13. Further, as the Webster Plaintiffs noted, the Official Record of the 1963 Michigan Constitutional Convention makes clear that no governmental entity or its officials can do anything to diminish or impair vested pension benefits: “This is a new section that requires that accrued financial benefits of each pension plan and retirement system of the state and its political subdivisions be a contractual obligation which cannot diminished or impaired by the action of its officials or governing body.” 2 Official Record, Constitutional Convention 1961, p. 3402.

14. The Webster Plaintiffs also noted that PA 436 explicitly recognizes that accrued pension benefits shall not be diminished or impaired outside the bankruptcy context. For example:

- Section 11 of PA 436 requires that an emergency manager develop a written financial and operating plan for the local government and that such plan “shall provide” for “the timely deposit of required payments to the pension fund for the local government.”
- Section 13 of PA 436 authorizes the emergency manager to eliminate the salary, wages or other compensation and benefits of the chief administrative officer and members of the governing body of the local government, but expressly provides that “[t]his section does not authorize the impairment of vested pension benefits.”
- Section 12(m) of PA 436 authorizes an emergency manager under certain circumstances to be appointed as the sole trustee of a local pension board and to replace the existing trustees, and requires that “the emergency manager shall fully comply with . . . Section 24 of Article IX of the state constitution . . .” when acting as the sole trustee.

15. But, in violation of Article IX, Section 24 of the Michigan Constitution, PA 436 fails to similarly forbid the Governor explicitly from authorizing a chapter 9 bankruptcy filing if accrued pension benefits may be sought to be diminished or impaired as a consequence of that filing. Section 18 of PA 436, which purportedly empowers the Governor to authorize a municipality to file for bankruptcy under chapter 9, nowhere prohibits the Governor from authorizing such a filing if accrued pension benefits may be sought to be diminished or impaired. Clearly, the Legislature understood and honored the Michigan constitutional mandate not to diminish or impair accrued pension benefits outside of bankruptcy. Just as clearly, the Legislature omitted any constitutional protection against the impairment or diminishment of accrued pension benefits when the Governor purports to authorize a chapter 9 bankruptcy filing under Section 18 of PA 436.

16. In other words, if accrued pension benefits may be diminished or impaired, in violation of Article IX Section 24 of the Michigan Constitution, the section of PA 436 purporting to authorize this bankruptcy, Section 18, must be unconstitutional as applied.

17. On July 18, 2013, the same date this chapter 9 case was commenced, the Ingham County Circuit Court for the State of Michigan (the “State Court”) entered a temporary restraining order (the “TRO”, attached to the Kreisberg Declaration, Exhibit A) enjoining the Governor, the State Treasurer and the other defendants in the Webster Litigation from authorizing a chapter 9 filing and taking any further action “with respect to any filing which has already occurred” including the authorizing of an “unconditional” chapter 9 filing (i.e. one in which the EM would represent himself as having authority to modify and/or terminate pension obligations without limit in derogation of the Michigan Constitution).

18. Despite the issuance of the TRO and the State Court’s clear directive to the Governor regarding not authorizing any further filings by the City, the Governor did not seek to prevent the City from filing all of its “first day pleadings.” Indeed, the Governor authorized and the EM directed the chapter 9 filing just minutes before the July 18, 2013 TRO hearing was set to begin (and during a brief delay in the TRO hearing requested by the Governor’s attorney) in order to potentially “cut off” any argument that the filing was not properly authorized (because the Governor knew and the EM expected that the State Court Judge was prepared to grant the TRO).

19. On July 19, 2013, the State Court held a further hearing on the Webster Litigation and entered an Order of Declaratory Judgment (the “Declaratory Judgment,” attached to the Kreisberg Declaration as Exhibit B). The Declaratory Judgment (a) finds PA 436 unconstitutional and of no force and effect to the extent it permits the Governor to authorize the EM to proceed under chapter 9 in any manner that threatens to diminish or impair pension benefits and (b) rules that the Governor must direct the EM “to immediately withdraw the chapter 9 petition ... and ... not authorize any further chapter 9 filing which threatens to diminish or impair accrued pension benefits.” See Declaratory Judgment at 3.

20. To the extent there was any authorization for the chapter 9 filing, the State Court clearly ordered that the Governor revoke it to the extent it was intended to lead to the diminishment or impairment of accrued pension benefits. However, subsequent to the issuance of the Declaratory Judgment, on July 25, 2013, this Court granted the City’s motion to extend the automatic stay, which, inter alia, stayed pending appeals of the Declaratory Judgment (and other similar state court proceedings). See Docket No. 166.

(i) The Governor (And Other State Officials) And City Intended Through The Chapter 9 Filing To Impair And/Or Terminate Vested Pension Benefits, And The Governor Was Aware Of This Prior To His Authorizing The Chapter 9 Filing

21. The evidence obtained to date (and as will be further demonstrated at trial) reveals that the Governor (and other State officials) and the EM were well aware both prior to and subsequent to the issuance of the Governor’s Authorization Letter of the City’s intentions to modify and/or terminate vested pension obligations in chapter 9 without limit in derogation of the Michigan Constitution.

22. First, the June 14 Restructuring Plan (defined below) expressly provided that “there must be significant cuts in accrued, vested pension amounts for both active and currently retired persons”, and the Governor has admitted in deposition testimony to (i) having viewed drafts of the June 14 Restructuring Plan; (ii) being specifically aware that the Restructuring

Plan provided for significant cuts to accrued, vested pensions for active and retired employees; and (iii) being specifically aware when he signed the July 18 letter authorizing the City's chapter 9 filing that Orr's position was "that there had to be significant cuts in accrued pension benefits." See Governor Snyder October 9, 2013 Transcript (the "Governor 10/9 Transcript", a copy of which is attached to the Artz Declaration, Exhibit A),⁴ at 46:3-23; 63:9-64:18. Furthermore, in a letter dated July 16, 2013 from Orr to the Governor (and Treasurer Andy Dillon) recommending that the City be authorized to immediately commence a chapter 9 bankruptcy case, Orr noted that the City met with all of the City's unions and four retiree associations to "solicit the unions and retirees' view on their preferred way to address the dramatic, but necessary, benefit modifications." See Orr Declaration, Exhibit J, p. 8 (emphasis added). The Governor admitted to reading this letter. See Governor 10/9 Transcript, at 52:13-15.

23. Additionally, the City has unequivocally admitted that it intends to impair or diminish vested pension benefits of City active and retired employees through this chapter 9 proceeding. See, e.g., City of Detroit, Michigan's Objections and Responses to Detroit Retirement Systems' First Requests for Admission Directed to the City of Detroit Michigan [Docket No. 849], at p. 12 (admitting that "City intends to seek to diminish or impair the Accrued Financial Benefits of the participants in the Retirement Systems through this Chapter 9 Case."); see also Kevyn Orr September 16, 2013 Transcript (the "Orr 9/16 Transcript", a copy of which is attached to the Artz Declaration, Exhibit B), at 252:25-253:16; 288:2-9

(admitting that City intended to diminish or impair accrued pension benefits of Detroit pensioners, preferably through a consensual plan but preserving all rights to do so possibly through the use of the cramdown provisions of the bankruptcy code).

B. The Facts In The Record And To Be Further Adduced At Trial Demonstrate Why PA 436, As Applied To The Facts And Circumstance Here, Violates The Strong Home Rule Provisions Of The Michigan Constitution

24. PA 436 effectively, but unconstitutionally, adopts a new charter for Detroit which substitutes the unelected Emergency Manager for the Mayor and City Council collectively – including by granting the EM the power to, inter alia, issue orders directing the mayor and city council; set the local government budget unilaterally; enter into, and break, contractual agreements for the City, including CBAs, loans, and property transfers; seize control of the pension fund from its trustees; and, most relevant here, act exclusively on the local government’s behalf in chapter 9.

25. Here, the evidence shows (as will be further adduced at trial) that the EM (and the City’s agents directed by the EM) has exercised a variety of purely local governmental powers – despite being a “contractor to the State of Michigan”, as the EM has described himself (See Orr 10/4 Transcript, at 454:10-14) – ranging from his explicit suspension of the City Charter, to discrete financial decisions about purely local City expenditures, to control over potential attempts by the City to raise revenue. For example: (i) Order No. 10, issued by the EM on July 8, 2013, suspends the Detroit Charter’s requirement for filling vacancies on City Council. See <http://www.detroitmi.gov/Portals/0/docs/EM/Order%2010.pdf> (last accessed Oct. 7, 2013); (ii) Order No. 6, issued by the EM on May 2, 2013, directs the precise amount of deposits from the City to the Public Lighting Authority. See <http://www.detroitmi.gov/Portals/0/docs/EM/Order%206.pdf> (last accessed Oct. 7, 2013); and

(iii) Order No. 5, issued by the EM April 11, 2013, requires that the EM approve in writing of any transfers of the City's real property.

26. Furthermore, Mayor Bing has testified extensively that following the appointment of the EM, (i) the Mayor was no longer involved in discussions with unions or coalitions of unions because "that was under the purview of the Emergency Manager"; (ii) the EM (and the consultants retained by the EM) were involved in City's budgeting functions to the exclusion of the Mayor; and (iii) among other concerns, the EM and the City's consultants (like Conway MacKenzie) were exploring outsourcing and reaching conclusions with regard to numbers prior to completing the RFP process first. See Bing 10/14 Transcript, at 106:11-108:9.

27. In addition to undertaking the aforementioned purely local acts, which are reserved by Article VII of the Michigan Constitution to the local electors rather than the state which appointed and controls the EM, the EM has continued to exert complete control over all aspects of the City's local affairs during the instant bankruptcy proceedings. This includes the EM's unilateral direction of the bankruptcy process itself, which he has controlled without being subject to any state-law standard of review for his discretion or judicial review thereof.

28. The EM's actions in removing control over the City's operations and finances from elected officials has prevented the City from taking actions designed to raise revenue and avoid insolvency and instead has facilitated the EM's attempt to will the City into insolvency, as discussed below (and to be further supported by facts adduced at trial), thus rendering this entire bankruptcy proceeding a harm stemming from the unconstitutionality of PA 436's grant of authority to the EM (and the consultants controlled by the EM, including Ernst & Young and Conway MacKenzie) of the means of controlling all aspects of the City's finances.

C. The City's Pre-petition Machinations And Subsequent Meetings (But Not Negotiations) With Creditors Such As AFSCME

(i) The City's Bankruptcy Was Orchestrated Based On The Advice Of The City's Lead Bankruptcy Counsel And Discussed Before The EM Was Even Hired

29. As demonstrated herein and will be further shown at trial, in emails, documents and deposition testimony that surfaced following the City's chapter 9 filing going back to late January 2013, long prior to any alleged good faith negotiations with creditors (more about this point below), secret discussions were being held between Detroit and officials in the Governor's office and the Law Firm suggesting that the best course for the City would be to send it through chapter 9 bankruptcy. These facts collectively expose Orr's and the City's charade of pre-petition "negotiations" (in reality, one-sided meetings) in the month prior to the City's chapter 9 filing. In fact, all along, the clear goal was for the City to end up in chapter 9.

30. For example, the Law Firm was among a number of firms to provide a presentation made to the City on January 29, 2013 in the presence of State officials. See Pitch Presentation (dated January 29, 2013); see also Orr 9/16 Transcript, at 18:12-21:20 (discussing how Orr came with the Law Firm in late January to pitch for the City's restructuring work before a "restructuring team [of] advisors"); Baird 10/10 Transcript, at 13:11-15:10. During that pitch, Orr (among other lawyers that would be working on the proposed engagement) was presented primarily as a "bankruptcy and restructuring attorney." Orr 9/16 Transcript, at 21:3-6; see also Bing 10/14 Transcript, at 12:7-13:7 (indicating that Baird explained to Mayor Bing that Baird was "impressed with him [Orr], that he had been part of the bankruptcy team representing Chrysler" and that Orr primarily had restructuring experience in the context of bankruptcy).

31. As part of the Pitch Presentation, the Law Firm presented, in part, the following playbook for the City's road to chapter 9: (i) the difficulty of achieving an out of court settlement and steps to bolster the City's ability to qualify for chapter 9 by establishing a good faith record of negotiations (Pitch Presentation, pp. 13; 16-18; 22-23; 28); (ii) the EM could be used as "political cover" for difficult decisions such as an ultimate chapter 9 filing (Pitch Presentation, p. 16); (iii) warning that pre-chapter 9 asset monetization could implicate the chapter 9 eligibility requirement regarding insolvency, thus effectively advising the City against raising money in order to will itself into insolvency (Pitch Presentation, p. 17); and (iv) describing protections under state law for retiree benefits and accrued pension obligations and how chapter 9 could be used as means to further cut back or compromise accrued pension obligations otherwise protected by the Michigan constitution (Pitch Presentation, pp. 39; 41).

32. Following the Law Firm's pitch in late January 2013, State officials (including Baird) informed attorneys at the Law Firm and Orr that they were interested in bringing Orr on board as EM, and Orr began to consider the offer. See Orr 9/16 Transcript, at 24:24-25:31:5; Baird 10/10 Transcript, at 19:2-20. Orr commented regarding his proposed consideration for appointment as EM and discussed with his law firm at the time how to go about leading the City into chapter 9. In an email (attached to the Kreisberg Declaration, Exhibit 1) dated January 31, 2013, Orr's colleague at the firm stated in an email to Orr that the "ideal scenario would be that [Michigan Governor] Snyder and [Detroit Mayor] Bing both agree that the best option is simply to go through an orderly Chapter 9. This avoids an unnecessary political fight over the scope/authority of any appointed Emergency Manager appointed and, moreover, moves the ball forward on setting Detroit on the right track." Kreisberg Declaration, Exhibit

1.⁵ Indeed, this was a similar suggestion made by the Law Firm in the Pitch Presentation. See Pitch Presentation, p. 16 (“Ultimately, the Emergency Manager could be used as political cover for difficult restructuring decisions.”).

33. Orr’s colleague then stated his own reservations about whether an emergency manager would be useful outside of bankruptcy where his “ability to actually do anything is questionable given the looming political and legal fights” Id. In contrast, he observed in an earlier email, “[m]aking this a national issue . . . provides political cover for the state politicians” and gives them an “incentive to do this right” because “if it succeeds, there will be more than enough patronage to allow [them] to look for higher callings—whether Cabinet, Senate, or Corporate.” See Kreisberg Declaration, Exhibit 2.⁶

34. As noted above, others involved in the discussions prior to the chapter 9 filing included Baird, the Governor’s Transformation Manager. In an email also dated January 31, 2013, Orr, in anticipation of a conversation he was to meet with Baird “in a few minutes” about whether to accept the EM position, observed that PA 436 “is a clear end-around the prior initiative” to repeal the previous Emergency Manager statute, Public Act 4, “that was rejected by the voters in November.” See Kreisberg Declaration, Exhibit 3.⁷ According to Orr “although the new law provides the thin veneer of a revision it is essentially a redo of the prior rejected law and appears to merely adopt the conditions necessary for a chapter 9 filing.” Id.

35. In a further email dated January 31, 2013, Orr indicated that Baird wanted Orr to be hired as the EM and his firm to represent the City (regardless of whether Orr took the EM job), and that Orr indicated that he would be glad to work together with the City, even if not as EM, indicating that “I [Orr] and the firm are committed to working in lockstep with the [C]ity.” See Kreisberg Declaration, Exhibit 4.⁸

(ii) No Good Faith Negotiations Took Place Following The Appointment Of The EM With Parties Such As AFSCME Prior To The City’s Chapter 9 Filing

36. As indicated above, the die was cast for the City’s inevitable chapter 9 filing prior to the March appointment of Orr as EM. Following Orr’s appointment, the City and Orr maneuvered to establish the veneer of formal pre-petition creditor negotiations, when in reality, Orr and the Governor knew all along that the non-interactive meetings would be held on a pro forma basis so the City could attempt to establish alleged good faith negotiations.

37. The facts belie the notion of any pre-filing negotiations, whether in good faith or otherwise. Indeed, the City itself admitted both in letters and at the meetings held in the month or so prior to the filing that the City was only interested in one-way discussions, not negotiations. As discussed below, evidence obtained in discovery reveals (as will be further established at trial) that while these meetings were ongoing – indeed, before ever meeting face-to-face with union representatives alone – the City had already made a determination as early as the beginning of July 2013 that it would be filing for chapter 9 protection on or about July 19, 2013.

38. On June 14, 2013, the City held a meeting of representatives of the City’s creditors (the “June 14 Meeting”) to present the City’s comprehensive restructuring plan/

“Proposal for Creditors” (the “Restructuring Plan”, attached to the Kreisberg Declaration as Exhibit C). Even prior to these meetings, Orr confirmed that the City’s discussions of a predecessor to its ultimate Restructuring Plan, the EM’s May 12, 2013 “Financial and Operating Plan”, would not involve any negotiations, explaining that “it is under the [PA 436] statute, it is my plan and it’s within my discretion and obligation to do it. This isn’t a plebiscite, we are not, like, negotiating the terms of the plan. It’s what I’m obligated to do.” See Kevin Orr Interview to Detroit WWJ Newsradio 950/AP, Detroit EM Releases Financial Plan; City Exceeding Budget By $100M Annually, May 12, 2013, available at <http://detroit.cbslocal.com/2013/05/12/kevin-orr-releases-financial-plan-for-city-of-detroit/> (emphasis added).

39. On June 17, 2013, Steven Kreisberg, AFSCME’s director of collective bargaining and health care policy, submitted a letter requesting from the EM various categories of information, assumptions, and data for AFSCME to honestly review all the information presented and begin good faith negotiations. See Kreisberg Declaration, Exhibit 5. AFSCME made this request prior to a scheduled June 20, 2013 meeting with unions (including AFSCME) representing the City’s non-uniform employees regarding the City’s pensions. At that meeting, the City represented that the meeting was “not a negotiation.” See Kreisberg Declaration, ¶ 17. Furthermore, the letter inviting AFSCME to the June 20 meeting characterized the purpose of the meeting as being to “review” the Restructuring Plan (not negotiate it) and to have AFSCME “learn” about the Restructuring Plan. Kreisberg Declaration, Exhibit 6.

40. In a letter dated June 27, 2013 to an AFSCME local union, the City indicated that it was posting certain information to a data room and was looking forward to the unions’

41. In a follow up letter to the City dated July 2, 2013, Mr. Kreisberg again reiterated his request for information and data, including the backup data supporting the City retiree benefits proposal (support for which previously consisted of only a one-page financial summary). AFSCME requested relevant information and the opportunity (in conjunction with a meeting scheduled with the City’s unions on July 10-11) to begin meaningfully engaging “in a good faith negotiation of these issues.” See Kreisberg Declaration, Exhibit 8.

42. In a response letter to Mr. Kreisberg on July 3, 2013, the City advised that it would not meet separately with AFSCME, and that the July 10, 2013 scheduled meeting with the unions would be a “discussion” (again not a negotiation). See Kreisberg Declaration, Exhibit 9. Similarly, in an email dated June 28, 2013, the City confirmed that it wanted to meet on July 10, 2013 to “discuss” its “developing pension restructuring proposal,” clearly implying that the proposal itself was not even complete yet. See Kreisberg Declaration, Exhibit 10. Additionally, and tellingly, at that July 10, 2013 meeting, counsel for the City attempted to invoke Rule 408 confidentiality provisions stating that doing so was a tool used in every bankruptcy, so it should be invoked that day. See Supp. Kreisberg Declaration, ¶ 7. This statement made more than a week before bankruptcy was authorized or filed further demonstrating that the City intended to file for bankruptcy in any event.

43. At the July 10, 2013 meeting, the City announced at the inception that the meeting would be a discussion but not a negotiation. See Kreisberg Declaration, ¶ 18. At a similar meeting with AFSCME and certain and other unions held on July 11, 2013, again there was no negotiation.

44. Despite this evidence, it appears that the City now seeks to characterize its limited requests to creditors for feedback – but admitted refusal to bargain with them – on the Restructuring Plan at the four meetings held regarding that plan as satisfying chapter 9’s good faith negotiation requirement. Yet, in the City’s reply brief regarding eligibility and recent deposition testimony by Orr, the City and Orr have explicitly denied that the City’s discussions with creditors were negotiations. See Debtor’s Reply, at p. 55 n.49; Orr 9/16 Transcript, at 137:25-138:8 (“Q. And was there any bargaining that took place at those sessions [on June 20th, July 10th, and July 11th] where the City said it would be willing to agree to something that was different from what was in June 14? A. Here again, I’m going to stay away from bargaining as a legal conclusion, duty to bargain is suspended. I will say there was a back and forth and my understanding discussions and invitations for further information.”).

45. Furthermore, and critically, Orr recently testified that media reports prior to the City’s chapter 9 filing that the City was planning on filing on July 19, 2013 were inaccurate. Orr 9/16 Transcript, at 301:19-302:8 (indicating that there was no plan for the City to file on July 19, 2013 and that Orr’s plan was “to have the permission, the authority, to file them and make that call at some point after I transmitted my letter of July 16 [requesting authorization from the Governor to file for chapter 9].”). Yet, evidence produced in discovery includes an Excel/spreadsheet document attached to e-mails circulated (i) to and from Bill Nowling (who works in the EM’s office) sent to individuals in the Governor’s office, entitled “Chapter 9 Communications Rollout” which makes clear that during the same time period that the City was purporting to conduct ongoing “good faith negotiations” with creditors regarding the Restructuring Plan, in fact the City was, as early as July 1, 2013 planning on filing for chapter 9 on Friday, July 19, 2013. See Supp. Kreisberg Declaration, Exhibit C (spreadsheet document dated July 4, 2013 attached to e-mail from EM's office to State officials entitled "Chapter 9 Communications Rollout" indicated that Friday, July 19, 2013 was "FILING DAY").

46. Additionally, Treasurer Dillon, one of the state officials intimately involved in the hiring of the EM and in advising to the Governor to authorize the chapter 9 filing, testified that his understanding of the June 14 Restructuring Plan was that the document was not really a proposal (even though it was so labeled), rather the EM was just "laying out the facts for creditors so they could understand the financial condition of [the] City. . . This is the economic reality of the City of Detroit. From there, as you know, there was various meetings with various creditors to discuss can we get this thing settled out of court." Dillon 10/10 Transcript, at 65:4-24.

(iii) The City's Bad Faith Refusal To Negotiate With Unions Such As AFSCME Has Continued Following The City's Bankruptcy Filing

47. The City's pattern of bad faith refusal to negotiate any of its proposals regarding pensions or health insurance benefits changes has continued post-petition.

48. For example, on August 2, 2013, the City convened a meeting of local union representatives and discussed active health insurance. See Kreisberg Declaration, ¶ 19. However, during that meeting, the City specifically advised those in attendance (including AFSCME representatives) that the meeting was not a negotiation. Id at ¶ 20. Mr. Kreisberg sent a follow up letter to the City on August 6, 2013 requesting good faith bargaining, and referenced cost savings estimates which AFSCME previously proposed in prior negotiations with the City before the development of the Emergency Manager's initial financial restructuring plan in May. See Kreisberg Declaration, Exhibit 11. In an August 8, 2013 response, the City advised that it would not engage in collective bargaining with AFSCME, but rather simply “discuss any feedback they may have regarding its health care restructuring plans.” See Kreisberg Declaration, Exhibit 12.

49. On August 14, 2013, the City held a follow up meeting with AFSCME on the subject of active medical benefits but did not accept any counterproposals or suggestions, but simply responded by further explaining its current intention with respect to active medical benefits.

50. Given Orr’s repeated statements to the media about the City’s willingness to bargain with its unions, AFSCME has been surprised by the City’s unwillingness to negotiate, pre or post-petition. While AFSCME has repeatedly stated its desire to move forward with constructive negotiations with the City on behalf of all AFSCME Detroit Employees, AFSCME cannot negotiate with an employer that is unwilling to come to the table for arms-length talks.

(iv) The City Has Previously Negotiated Labor Concessions With Unions That Modified Both Active And Retiree Benefits

51. The City argues, in part, that negotiations with its retirees were impractical or impossible as the City could not bind the disparate group of retirees in any agreement. However, the City should be well aware (and indeed its advisors have admitted) that in February 2012, City labor negotiators reached a tentative agreement (the “Tentative Agreement”) with a “Coalition of City of Detroit Unions”, including several AFSCME local bargaining units. See Supp. Kreisberg Declaration, ¶ 4, Exhibit A (attaching copy of the Tentative Agreement). Pursuant to deposition testimony given by Gaurav Malhotra of Ernst & Young (“E&Y”) on September 20, 2013 (one of the City’s restructuring advisors), E&Y was actively involved “in assisting quantify some of the savings in conjunction and collaboration with the City as the City negotiated with the – its unions [regarding the Tentative Agreement].” See Gaurav Malhotra September 20, 2013 Transcript (the “Malhotra 9/20”).

Transcript”, a copy of which is attached to the Artz Declaration, Exhibit C), at 86:20-23. Mayor Bing also testified that he was well aware of the Tentative Agreement ratified by the unions and that would have resulted in savings for the City, but such agreement was ultimately never implemented by the State. See Bing 10/14 Transcript, at 100:15-101:13

52. While the Tentative Agreement was never implemented, changes with respect to benefits in the proposed Tentative Agreement would have directly impacted retiree benefits, and indeed, based on projections at the time, AFSCME understands that the Tentative Agreement could have saved the City approximately $50 million annually, a number which included retiree health benefit changes. See Supp. Kreisberg Declaration, ¶¶ 5-6.

53. Despite this evidence, Orr has testified that he was unaware of the Tentative Agreement (and, thus implicitly, unaware of the City’s prior success at bargaining in good faith with the City’s unions, which led to changes to both active and retired employees’ benefits):

- 15 Q. Are you aware of a coalition among certain of the
- 16 City's unions put together in order to try and deal
- 17 with some of the restructuring issues with regard to
- 18 labor that you've been focused on?
- 19 A. A coalition? Can you please explain? Informal
- 20 coalition or the retiree committee or --
- 21 Q. Not the retire committee. A coalition of unions with
- 22 regard to trying to deal with some of the labor issues
- 23 that you --
- 24 A. Under the AFSCME umbrella?
- 25 Q. No, no, no.

Page 237

- 1 A. Or separate union? I'm trying to -- I'm trying to
- 2 understand.
- 3 Q. Well, I think your answer indicates to me that perhaps
- 4 the answer is no.
- 5 A. Yeah. Okay.

Orr 9/16 Transcript, at 237:15-237:5. Given that Orr himself was unaware of the City's ability to negotiate deals affecting both active employees and retirees outside of bankruptcy, the City's assertion that negotiations regarding changes to retiree and pension benefits were "impracticable (if not impossible)" is misguided. Orr could not possibly have attempted to negotiate in good faith if he had not done even the most preliminary investigation as to whether Detroit's several unions had ever negotiated with the city collectively in the past, indeed the very recent past.

D. The City Has Failed to Establish It Is Insolvent, And The City's Chapter 9 Case Was Not Commenced Due to Any Imminent Financial Emergency, Rather To Avoid The Webster Litigation (And Other State Court Proceedings)

54. The City at first glance seems to provide thick volumes which it calls evidence regarding its alleged insolvency. See, e.g., Orr Declaration, ¶¶ 52-57; Malhotra Declaration, ¶¶ 10-26; Moore Declaration, ¶¶ 9-20. However, as demonstrated below (and will be further shown at trial), what becomes apparent from reviewing these declarations (which serve as the basis for the City's insolvency arguments) is that (i) each often cross-relies (as purported evidence as to the truth of particular statements) on other (non-expert) testimony, other documents prepared by the City, or other assumptions/evidence convenient to the City but without any real foundation. See, e.g., Orr Declaration, ¶¶ 52-57 (citing, in part, the June 14 Restructuring Plan and Malhotra Declaration as evidence); Moore Declaration, ¶¶ 13-14 (estimating pension underfunding using what the "City" believes are more realistic assumption)); Malhotra Declaration, ¶¶ 11; 15; 21-22 (discussing manner in which City's financial forecasts and projections were prepared based on certain complex assumptions, calculations and input from other City officials). Furthermore, the City offers no expert witness to testify regarding the City's asserted insolvency despite the City having spent millions of dollars and having gone out and hired a multitude of legal, financial, actuarial and restructuring advisors. Ultimately, the fact remains that despite the pile of “evidence” submitted by the City, the City does not have a single witness who can stand up as an expert and testify as to the City’s insolvency.

55. Furthermore, the City misleadingly cited its insolvency as what drove its chapter 9 filing, not the imminent state court rulings in the Webster Litigation and other state court proceeding, further casting doubt on the reality of its conclusion that it is insolvent. See, e.g., Debtor’s Reply, at pp. 65-66. Yet, in reality (and as will be further demonstrated at trial), the discovery process has revealed several interesting facts that cut against insolvency as the true basis for the filing (see Debtor’s Reply, at p. 65-66), and indeed Orr’s recent testimony indicates that insolvency was not the driving factor behind the filing on July 18, 2013, rather the filing at that time was driven by the state court litigations. Orr testified:

19 When did you decide that the timing of the 20 Chapter 9 filing should be July 18th or July 19th?
21 A. Well, I didn't. I decided to make the request and my 22 intent was to have the ability to file available and 23 possibly executed as soon as I got it. It was without 24 talking or waiving privileges from my counsel or 25 counsel and investment bankers, the concerns about us

Orr 9/16 Transcript, at 220:19-221:6-10.

56. In addition, the City's evidence regarding insolvency is built upon unproven assertions regarding, inter alia, the alleged unfunded amount of the City's pension and other retiree benefits. Indeed, in the June 14 Restructuring Plan discussing the actuarial accounting underfunding on the City's pension plans, the City suggested that such underfunding using more "realistic assumptions" would be approximately $3.5 billion, up from the $644 million from the City's 2011 reported underfunding. Restructuring Plan, pp. 23, 109 (noting that "preliminary analysis indicates that the underfunding in the GRS and the PFRS is approximately $3.5 billion); see also Orr Letter Dated July 16, 2013 to Governor Snyder and Treasurer Dillon (copy attached as Exhibit J to Eligibility Brief (recommending chapter 9 filing and discussing $3.5 billion in underfunding of pension liabilities)).

57. However, these allegedly "realistic assumptions" were directly dictated by the City to their actuarial advisor, Milliman, Inc. For example, Charles Moore of Conway MacKenzie admitted in his deposition that the City really had no idea what the underfunded portion of the pension obligations might be (as of September 18, 2013) because "until the City completes its analysis [which is had not yet done] and completes its own actuarial valuation, neither the City nor its actuary [Milliman] nor I would be able to say what all the assumptions are that could be used to either overstate or understate the funded position [of the pensions]." See Charles Moore September 18, 2013 Transcript (the "Moore 9/18 Transcript", a copy of which is attached to the Artz Declaration, Exhibit D), at 62:2-7; see also Moore 9/18 Transcript, at 63:10-12 (indicating that 7 percent rate of return figure used by Milliman in running certain calculations regarding pension underfunding "was used for illustrative purposes" only and was not recommended by any specific actuary). Furthermore, in an e-mail dated July 9, 2013 from Treasurer Dillon to the Governor and others regarding a meeting Orr would be having with the Detroit retirement systems on July 10, 2013, Treasurer Dillon indicated that “[b]ecause pensions have such a long life there are a lot of creative options we can explore to address how they [the pensions] will be treated in a restructuring.” See Supp. Kreisberg Declaration, Exhibit D. Dillon further testified that from the period July 9, 2013 through the City’s filing date, the City remained in the “informational stage” regarding the pension issue and what the underfunding status meant for retirees. Dillon 10/10 Transcript, 119:1-25. Dillon explained as follows:

1 Q. The last question is relating to Exhibit 5 which has
2 already been marked. It's the July 9th email.
3 The email states “Tomorrow's meeting could
4 lead to questions directed to you about your view on
5 this topic.” It's relating to the pension issue.
6 Is that a fair characterization of the 7 email?

8 A. Right.

9 Q. "In my view, it's too early in the process to 10 respond to hypothetical questions. We remain in
11 many ways in the informational stage. I have some 12 thoughts as to how you could address some pointed
13 questions if you're interesting in hearing them."

14 What pointed questions were you expecting?

15 A. Anything from -- well, going back in time here, but
16 just obviously the whole gamut of questions
17 regarding what the underfunding status could mean to
18 retirees, and I thought that the situation was not
19 understood enough for the Governor to go on record
20 yet because I couldn't even tell him with any degree
21 of confidence what level of funding these pension
22 funds had, so why should he get in the middle of a
23 debate about this. It's obviously a very charged
24 and sensitive issue, and it was my free political 25 comments to him.

Q. And this was really just over a week before the
2 filing. That was your stance?

3 A. Yeah. I don't -- yeah, obviously. But I don't -- I
4 think it was in the context of this meeting that

5 Kevyn was going to have with the committee that
6 drove this email.

7 Q. Did anything change between the ninth and the filing
8 on the 18th that changed your opinion regarding what
9 you, I believe, just stated was too early to tell
10 him with any degree of confidence what level of 11 funding the pension funds had I believe is what you
12 just stated.

13 A. Yeah, I have not -- my opinion is pretty much the 14 same.

15 Q. The last sentence of the email says "I have some 16 thoughts as to how you could address some pointed
17 questions if you're interesting in hearing them."

18 What were your ideas for how to answer the
19 questions?

20 A. I don't recall specifically at this point.

21 Q. Did you ever have a conversation with him regarding 22 your thoughts on how to answer the questions?

23 A. No.

24 Q. You mentioned in the email "Because pensions have 25 such a long life there are a lot of creative options

1 we can explore to address how they will be treated
2 in restructuring."

3 What were your creative options that you
4 had on the table?

5 A. There's dozens. I mean, I don't have one that I
6 would pick out. But pension funds do have a long
7 life and there's a lot of creative things that can
8 be done, so I -- I don't have one or two that I
9 would just throw out, but I do know that there's a
10 lot of ways to address that issue.

11 Q. Have there been any formal reports or proposals
12 identifying and explaining what you consider to be 13 these creative options?

14 A. No.

15 Q. Were these creative options ever explored with the 16 pension systems directly --

17 A. Not to my knowledge.

Dillon 10/10 Transcript, 119:1-121:17 (emphasis added).

58. In fact, experts who reviewed the actuarial assumptions of Detroit's pension systems concludes that the current assumptions generally fall within industry standards. See, e.g., Detroit's Current Pension Assumptions Fall Within Standards: Morningstar, available at <http://www.mandatepipeline.com/news/detroits-current-pension-assumptions-fall-within-standards-morningstar-242817-1.html> (last visited October 8, 2013).

59. Furthermore, as discussed above, the Law Firm highlighted at the January 29, 2013 pitch that "Asset monetization outside of bankruptcy may implicate eligibility requirement that City be insolvent (e.g., measured by short-term cash)" (Pitch Presentation, p. 17), and the City accordingly chose not to monetize certain assets prior to the filing to limit the appearance of short-term cash on the books. This is evidenced, in part, by the (i) recent announcement by the EM of the deal to lease Belle Isle to the Governor and (ii) Orr's strong hints that he is considering monetizing artwork at the Detroit Institute of Arts.⁹

60. Additionally, the City's financial projections which serve, in part, as the City's basis for establishing insolvency (which themselves were built on various assumptions not established by any expert testimony) fail to consider the possibility of possible funding sources outside those included in the City's financial projections. For example, Malhotra testified that the City's financial projections assume that the City will have no other funds beyond the City's general fund and that the water and sewer fund was not incorporated into the City's projections. See Malhotra 9/20 Transcript, at 44:21-45:17. Yet, Orr testified that with respect to the pension underfunding (which is cited throughout the City's Eligibility Brief and included as one of the major factors in the City's insolvency in numerous documents and pleadings), of the estimated $644 million in underfunding (based on the pensions funds' 2012 calculations), the majority of that underfunding is attributable to the water and sewer fund which generates its own revenue and which "does have some capacity" to raise rates to generate more funds. See Kevyn Orr October 4, 2013 Transcript (the "Orr 10/4 Transcript", a copy of which is attached to the Artz Declaration, Exhibit E), at 377:1-380:13.

61. Finally, it bears noting that on July 16, 2013, the City reached a deal with its swap counterparties, which provided for such parties to (i) forbear from pursuing remedies and (ii) allowed the City to redeem the swaps until October 31, 2013 which would result in the City saving between $70 and $85 million. See Supp. Kreisberg Declaration, Exhibit E (e-mail from Ken Buckfire dated July 17, 2013). Given these immediate savings and other possible avenues (noted above) for the City avoiding bankruptcy, it is clear that the City's filing had very little to do with any purported insolvency and everything to do with the City's plan to impair or modify its pension obligations.

ARGUMENT

I. THE CITY'S PETITION VIOLATES THE UNITED STATES CONSTITUTION

62. AFSCME notes for the Court's consideration at trial that under principles of constitutional avoidance, the Court should only consider AFSCME's constitutional challenge if the Court determines that the City is otherwise eligible for chapter 9. Thus, the constitutional challenge is only relevant if the City has proven, among other things, that it is insolvent. Without conceding that AFSCME is insolvent, should the Court reach such a determination, the Court would then necessarily have to consider and rule on AFSCME's argument that for a truly insolvent municipality, chapter 9 – specifically including the prohibition at 11 U.S.C. § 903(1) of state municipal debt adjustment statutes requiring less than 100% creditor consent, such as that approved in *Asbury Park*¹⁰ – represents an unconstitutional Hobson’s choice that forces the state (and municipality) into a situation where the state essentially must allow for federal interference to achieve the necessary debt adjustments. Moreover, the mere possibility of a state statute which can be used to adjust debts consistent with the Contracts Clause obviates the perceived need for a federal municipal bankruptcy statute which formed the underpinning of the Court’s decision in Bekins.¹¹

63. The Constitution does not simply disappear once a bankruptcy petition is filed, even for holders of unsecured claims. See, e.g., City of New York v. New York, N. H. & H. R. Co., 344 U.S. 293 (1953) (unsecured creditors possess right to notice and hearing under Fifth Amendment before debts can be discharged). So too with the Contracts Clause found at Article I, Section 10 of the U.S. Constitution. Article I, Section 10 contains three clauses, the last two of which permit Congress to consent to a number of otherwise-unconstitutional state acts, for example the right to “enter into any Agreement or Compact with another State,” an example of which was the contract at issue in United States Trust.¹² The Contracts Clause, however, is found in the first clause of Section 10, which grants Congress no right to consent to a violation thereof. Thus, assuming arguendo that the City is correct that the intent of chapter 9 and PA 436 are both to skirt the constraints of the Contracts Clause by means of Congressional consent, Congress lacks the authority under Article I to grant that consent, and the Contracts Clause further prevents the State from passing a law like PA 436 intending to end-run the Contracts Clause. The result would be equally unconstitutional, and absurd, if Congress were to pass a statute, under its Section 8 power to coin money, which set up Article I courts to approve applications from individual states to coin their own money despite the blanket prohibition in Article I, Section 10 against states doing so.

¹¹ United States v. Bekins, 304 U.S. 27 (1938).

¹² United States Trust Co. of N.Y. v. New Jersey, 431 U.S. 1 (1977).

64. Third, no state, as argued supra, can “consent” to “enlarge the powers of Congress; none can exist except those which are granted.” Ashton v. Cameron County Water Improvement Dist. No. 1, 298 U.S. 513, 531 (1936). The City’s attempt to distinguish the Court’s line of federalism cases since *New York v. United States*¹³ completely misses this point by insisting that chapter 9 does not violate the federalism principles articulated in those cases merely because “chapter 9 is ‘administered’ by the federal bankruptcy court, not the States.” Debtor’s Reply, at p. 16. But these cases cannot be oversimplified and read in a vacuum as the City suggests. The Court’s new federalism stands not for the narrow proposition that Congress cannot force states to administer federal regulatory programs, but for a broader constitutional rule: “if a power is an attribute of state sovereignty reserved by the Tenth Amendment, it is necessarily a power the Constitution has not conferred on Congress,” and “the Constitution has never been understood to confer upon Congress the ability to require the States to govern according to Congress’ instructions” even with “the ‘consent’ of the governmental unit whose domain is thereby narrowed.” New York, 505 U.S. at 156, 162, 182.

65. Chapter 9 does exactly that – if a state consents, a federal bankruptcy judge enforces a set of instructions from the Code, most notably the requirements for plan confirmation, and takes over municipal decision-making during the bankruptcy by controlling the municipality’s right not to engage in discovery or mediation and by wielding the power to appoint a trustee to recover preferential transfers over the municipality’s objection. These elements of chapter 9 – which the City entirely ignores in its brief – violate the Supreme Court’s clear direction that “[t]he Constitution’s division of power among the three branches is violated where one branch invades the territory of another, whether or not the encroached-upon branch approves the encroachment.” Id. at 182. The City points to general language in section 903 of the Bankruptcy Code prohibiting interference with “political or governmental powers,” (Debtor’s Reply, at p. 18), but that language is belied by other provisions of the Code explicitly permitting interference by the bankruptcy judge.

66. The City’s related argument that “chapter 9 operates much like federal programs that extend the benefits of federal money to States that voluntarily submit to federal requirements,” (Debtor’s Reply, at pp. 16-17) is inapposite because the state does not obtain money in exchange for taking some action clearly within its power but desired by the federal government, rather the state reacquires its inherent power under Asbury Park to access a process for adjusting its debts. In exchange for a power it already would possess in the absence of chapter 9, the state is forced to give the federal government control over state sovereign functions not available to Congress under the Constitution.

67. This aspect of chapter 9 – its nullification of all state laws for municipal debt adjustment in favor of an exclusive federal remedy which subjects state and local officials to federal rules – highlights the accountability problem of allowing state and local officials to represent to their constituents that the only way to escape financial catastrophe is to access chapter 9 and accept the rules therein, such as claim priorities in the Code, which voters in the state might wish to alter. For if a state declines Congress’s offer of access to chapter 9, it has no recourse to adjust municipal debts en masse as a result of section 903. Yet if a municipality is as financially distressed as the City contends it is, it faces the problem which motivated the Court in Asbury Park to find that states can design their own debt adjustment statutes consistent with the Contracts Clause: the City has no reasonable alternative.¹⁴ Under such circumstances, state and local government officials face an unconstitutional conundrum: accept federal interference with their sovereign fiscal self-management, or default on municipal debt in violation of the Contracts Clause. If the former is chosen, the City accepts rules and instructions from a federal judge, which state and local officials can refer to when attempting to shift blame for the hard decisions of municipal reorganization instead of confronting a local debate over legislation at the state level about how to adjust municipal debt.

II. THE CITY IS NOT ELIGIBLE TO FILE FOR CHAPTER 9 PROTECTION UNDER SECTION 109(C) OF THE BANKRUPTCY CODE

68. The City, as a purported municipal debtor, bears the burden of establishing it is eligible for relief under chapter 9, and for all of the reasons asserted previously (and as will be further demonstrated at trial), the City necessarily fails to carry its burden with respect to the following eligibility requirements: (i) valid authorization under Michigan state law (section 109(c)(2) of the Bankruptcy Code); and (ii) good faith negotiations or impracticability of such negotiations (section 109(c)(5) of the Bankruptcy Code). Further, as has become apparent through discovery and as shown above and in the AFSCME Eligibility Objection (and AFSCME expects will be further shown at trial), the City's evidence regarding insolvency is woefully inadequate, supported by no expert testimony or other reliable evidence, and accordingly the City fails to satisfy the insolvency requirement under section 109(c)(3) of the Bankruptcy Code.

69. Finally, the evidence reveals that the City's bankruptcy petition was filed in bad faith and not motivated by a proper purpose under chapter 9 and should be dismissed pursuant to section 921(c) of the Bankruptcy Code.

70. It bears noting that at Orr's original deposition on September 16, 2013 (and subsequent October 4, 2013 deposition) and at other State officials depositions, Orr and various State officials (including the Governor, Dillon, and Baird) continued to hide behind the common interest privilege to essentially cover up any discussions or communications between City and State government officials under an alleged common interest privilege.

71. While this Court determined the common interest privilege may apply to such communications, AFSCME believes that the discussions and deliberations between City and State officials leading up to the City's filing for chapter 9 in the period prior to July 18, 2013 – discussions which the City and State have clearly worked hard to keep secret – relate to the crux of AFSCME's (and other objectors') arguments that the City filed its chapter 9 petition in bad faith, without real negotiations with significant creditors, and that the authorization was tailored by City and State officials to circumvent the Michigan constitution's Pensions Clause. Given the presumption that government is supposed to be transparent (e.g., FOIA statutes), and the fact that significant e-mails between the State, City and the Law Firm (including between the State and Orr) were already produced in this and other litigations, to the extent that the common interest ever applied, such privilege has been waived and AFSCME asserts its continued objection to the City and State refusing to give deposition testimony or provide documents (some of which may have been waived by prior documents produced and deposition testimony given by the State and City in this and other proceedings) subject to an asserted common interest privilege.

72. AFSCME believes that it already has sufficient evidence to rebut the City’s case regarding authorization, good faith negotiations, general bad faith filing, and insolvency, but notes that the City and State’s continued reliance on a purported common interest should be reconsidered and AFSCME provided further testimony and documents so AFSCME can have proper due process.¹⁵

A. The City Is Not Authorized By Michigan State Law To Be A Debtor Under Chapter 9

73. As set forth in the AFSCME Eligibility Objection and as will be further demonstrated at trial, the Governor’s blanket grant of permission to file for bankruptcy under Section 18 of PA 436 violated the Michigan Constitution because it failed to explicitly prohibit the impairment or diminishment of vested pension rights, which the Governor was fully aware was the intention of the instant chapter 9 petition. Moreover, the appointment of the Emergency Manager under PA 436 violates the “strong home rule” provisions of the Michigan Constitution. Where, as here, a state constitution bars the purported state law authorization, a chapter 9 petition must be dismissed. See In re City of Harrisburg, PA, 465 B.R. 744 (Bankr. M.D. Pa. 2011) (analyzing Pennsylvania Constitution to determine whether city was authorized to file under chapter 9).

74. AFSCME notes that the arguments raised in the AFSCME Eligibility Objection (and raised or to be raised at oral argument) that (i) the Governor’s authorization violated of Article IX, Section 24 of the Michigan State Constitution (the “Pensions Clause Arguments”) and (ii) PA 436 offends the “strong home rule” of Detroit (and the Emergency Manager is not lawfully authorized to file for bankruptcy on behalf of the City or to act as its representative during chapter 9 proceedings) (the “Home Rule Arguments”) are, in part, as applied arguments (i.e. arguments that involve the establishment of certain facts), and have been established (to the extent necessary) based on the factual evidence discussed above and as will be further adduced at trial.

¹⁵ AFSCME did not appeal the Court’s common interest ruling which was interlocutory, but reserves the right to argue on appeal that the City and State’s failure to testify and produce documents on relevant subject matters, including regarding the EM and State’s plans for the EM commencing the City’s chapter 9 case, prevent AFSCME from a full and fair opportunity to litigate its objections to the City’s eligibility. Accordingly, AFSCME reserves all rights in this regard, including all appellate rights upon entry of a final appealable order regarding the City’s eligibility.

75. Thus, for the Home Rule Arguments, the evidence discussed herein, in the AFSCME Eligibility Objection, and to be further adduced at trial demonstrates that the EM, an unelected contractor of the State, has and continues to make local laws for the City. Furthermore, regarding the Pensions Clause Arguments, the evidence already adduced reveals, and AFSCME will further establish at trial, that the intent of the City to reduce vested pension rights in chapter 9 was well known to the Governor when he granted the EM authorization to commence the chapter 9 filing, and to the EM when he requested that permission and when he ultimately filed the petition, and that therefore each of those acts violated the Pensions Clause.

B. The City Failed To Participate In Any Good Faith Negotiations With Creditors Prior To Filing For Bankruptcy As Required For Eligibility Under Chapter 9

76. The City cannot meet its burden under section 109(c)(5) of the Bankruptcy Code of proving that it conducted good faith negotiations with its creditors or that such negotiations were impracticable.

77. Congress enacted the “negotiation” requirement of section 109(c) to prevent capricious filings of chapter 9 petitions, and Courts do not “view lightly the negotiation requirements of 11 U.S.C. § 109(c)(5).” See In re Villages at Castle Rock Metro. Dist. No. 4, 145 B.R. 76, 85 (Bankr. D. Colo. 1990); In re Town of Westlake, Tex., 211 B.R. 860, 867-68 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 1997) (suggesting that section 109(c)(5) requires that a municipality have an intent to negotiate with creditors it intends to impair). “The ‘creditor protection’ provided by section 109(c)(5). . . insures that the creditors have an opportunity to negotiate concerning a plan on a level playing field with the debtor before their rights are further impaired by the provisions of section 362 of the Code.” Sullivan County, 165 B.R. at 78-79).

78. In Cottonwood Water, the Court explained the good faith negotiation requirement under section 109(c)(5) of the Bankruptcy Code as follows:

Congress consciously sought to limit accessibility to the bankruptcy court by municipalities [by requiring] . . . the municipal entity, before rushing to . . . Court, to first seek to negotiate in good faith concerning the treatment the creditors may be expected to receive under a plan to be filed under section 941 of the [Bankruptcy] Code. . . . The ‘creditor protection’ provided by section 109(c)(5) . . . insures that the creditors have an opportunity to negotiate concerning a plan on a level playing field with the debtor before their rights are further impaired by the provisions of section 362 of the [Bankruptcy] Code.

79. Accordingly, the burden is on the City to demonstrate (i) that it engaged in good faith negotiations with its creditors concerning the possible terms of a plan or (ii) why it was unable to engage in such negotiations. ASFSCME respectfully submits that the City cannot demonstrate any negotiations with creditors such as AFSCME, let alone “good faith” negotiations, and further given that the City conducted no pre-petition negotiations with significant creditors such as AFSCME, the City should not be heard to argue that negotiations were impracticable.

(i) The City Failed To Negotiate With Creditors Such As AFSCME

80. The City claims it satisfies the section 109(c)(5)(B) requirement for negotiating with its creditors prior to the bankruptcy filing by negotiating with creditors, including unions such as AFSCME, in a few meetings held with its unions where the City discussed its restructuring proposals and took certain questions. See Eligibility Brief, pp. 53-61 (citing, inter alia, Orr Declaration, ¶¶ 90-96). What the City fails to mention is that, as discussed extensively above and as indicated by Orr himself prior to the scheduling of these meetings, it was made clear throughout these series of 3 or 4 relatively short meetings that the meetings were “discussions” and the City was not willing to conduct any negotiations. The City argued that the EM “openly invited the City’s creditors to contact the City and its advisors to begin negotiations.” Eligibility Brief, p. 55. In fact, the City rebuffed negotiations, which require concessions from both sides and collaboration between the debtor and its significant creditors. The City (acting through Orr) simply was not interested in negotiations (and as Orr indicated regarding the predecessor to the ultimate Restructuring Plan, the EM’s May 12, 2013 “Financial and Operating Plan”, “[t]his isn’t a plebiscite, we are not, like, negotiating the terms of the plan”).

81. In re Ellicott School Building Authority is directly on point. There, the debtor held three public meetings with large creditors regarding its proposed restructuring, although creditors were advised that the economic provisions of the proposed plan were not negotiable. 150 B.R. 261, 266 (Bankr. D. Colo. 1992). The court held that even though the debtor conducted three public meetings explaining its proposed plan of restructuring to bondholders, it did not negotiate in good faith because it indicated that the economic terms of its proposed plan were non-negotiable. Id. (debtor must be open to negotiating the substantive terms of a proposed plan); cf. Int’l Ass’n of Firefighters, Local 1186 v. City of Vallejo (In re City of Vallejo), 408 B.R. 280, 289 (9th Cir. B.A.P. 2009) (finding that the city did not satisfy section 109(c)(5)(B) because it “never negotiated with Unions or any of its creditors over the possible terms of a plan of adjustment.”); Sullivan County, 165 B.R. at 78-79 (“The ‘creditor protection’ provided by section 109(c)(5) . . . insures that the creditors have an opportunity to negotiate

82. The City’s a “take it or leave it” Restructuring Plan proposal that was not really open to any negotiations (good faith or otherwise) should be rejected as the court did in Ellicott School. The City failed to engage in any negotiations with its significant creditors such as AFSCME regarding the Restructuring Plan. Flatly refusing to conduct any negotiations (despite repeated requests by AFSCME both prior to and subsequent to the City’s bankruptcy filing) falls far short of the standard required under section 109(c)(5) of the Bankruptcy Code.

83. The City has publicly proclaimed its willingness to negotiate, yet it and its representatives’ (i) statements that the meetings held to discuss the Restructuring Plan were not negotiations and (ii) continued bad faith refusal for a period of time post-petition (until required mediation began) to hold negotiations (despite requests from AFSCME to jump start negotiations) makes it more than clear that the City has conducted no good faith negotiations with AFSCME and similarly situated creditors.

84. Moreover, as described extensively above and will be further demonstrated at trial, to the extent that the City held a series of pre-petition meetings with creditors to discuss its Restructuring Plan, such meetings were simply scheduled as part of the EM and City’s plan to bolster the City’s “record (i.e. for future litigation)” as suggested by the City’s lead bankruptcy counsel in the Pitch Presentation back in January 2013. In addition, the evidence further reveals that the City had planned on filing for chapter 9 as of early July 2013 by the specific date of Friday, July 19, 2013 – even as alleged creditor “negotiations” were ongoing – regardless of how the discussions were progressing. See Supp. Kreisberg Declaration, Exhibit C (spreadsheet document dated July 4, 2013 attached to e-mail from EM’s office to State officials entitled “Chapter 9 Communications Rollout” indicated that Friday, July 19, 2013 was “FILING DAY”). This evidence further establishes that the City was not really interested in any serious negotiations.

(a) Despite The City’s Creative Arguments To The Contrary, The City Cannot Escape The Fact That It Refused To Negotiate In Good Faith

85. In the City’s reply brief and in recent deposition testimony provided by Orr on October 4, 2013, the City and Orr have now taken the position that while the City may have made statements that its pre-petition meetings with the unions regarding its Restructuring Plan were not a “negotiation”, such characterizations were simply to avoid any argument that the City triggered obligations to collectively bargain, which obligations may be suspended by PA 436. See Debtor’s Reply, at p. 55 n.49; supra, ¶ 44. The City now argues that it was flexible in its negotiations and willing to consider other proposals, but received no counter-proposals from creditors, despite requests for same. The City’s statements in that regard, however, do not establish the good faith negotiations required by the Bankruptcy Code. Requesting “feedback” or “invitations for further information” simply does not satisfy the City’s burden of proof.

86. AFSCME (and other objectors) offered on more than one occasion to engage in good faith bargaining and negotiations which were continually rebuffed by the City, and indeed as of late June/early July 2013, the City did not even have any complete proposal with respect to the restructuring of pension and other retiree benefits. Rather, the City’s proposal to its creditors was no more than an ultimatum, with the City showing no real intention of negotiating economic or substantive terms. As noted, the City was interested in and spent months mapping out its path to chapter 9, and never had any real intention of bargaining in good faith.

(ii) Even Assuming That The City Engaged In Negotiations, Such Negotiations Did Not Relate To A Plan That Is In The Best Interests Of Creditors As Required By Section 109(c)(5)(B)

87. While AFSCME submits that the City did not engage in any good faith negotiations with creditors such as AFSCME prior to the City's chapter 9 filing, even assuming this Court were to find otherwise, the City also has not satisfied section 109(c)(5)(B) of the Bankruptcy Code because the plan or terms of a plan being negotiated must be a plan that can be effectuated in chapter 9. See Sullivan County, 165 B.R. at 78 (debtor failed to meet burden of showing that it negotiated in good faith because the plan that was proposed was not a plan that could be effectuated in chapter 9); Cottonwood Water., 138 B.R. at 979 (finding that "in order for this Debtor to be entitled to the entry of an order for relief, it must be prepared to show that it engaged in good faith negotiations with its creditors concerning the possible terms of a plan to be effected pursuant to section 941 of the Bankruptcy Code.").

88. Here, the proposed Restructuring Plan is patently unconfirmable because it unconstitutionally looks to reduce or eliminate guaranteed vested pension benefits pursuant to a plan that would presumably be crammed down on creditors, including those City retirees and employees that participate in the various pension and other retirement benefit plans, without their consent. Given that creditors owed pension obligations have absolute rights to those vested pension benefits under Michigan law as set forth extensively above, and one of the main goals of this proceeding is to modify vested pension and other retiree benefits, the City has no ability to confirm any plan of adjustment modifying such rights. See 11 U.S.C. §943(b)(4) (stating that the Court shall confirm a chapter 9 plan only if "the debtor is not prohibited by law from taking any action necessary to carry out the plan.").

89. Additionally, the Restructuring Plan is not in the "best interests of creditors" and thus could not be confirmed pursuant to section 943(b)(7) of the Bankruptcy Code. The "best interests of creditors” test in the context of a chapter 9 case does not compare treatment under a plan of liquidation, but rather to other alternatives to creditors to the plan. See, e.g., In re Sanitary & Improvement Dist., #7, 98 B.R. 970, 974 (Bankr. D. Neb. 1989); (“Section 943(b)(7) [with respect to the best interest of creditor’s provision] ... simply requires the court to make a determination of whether or not the plan as proposed is better than the alternatives.”); In re Mount Carbon Metropolitan Dist., 242 B.R. 18, 34 n.50 (Bankr. D. Colo. 1999) (“The ‘best interest’ requirement of § 943(b)(7) is generally regarded as requiring that a proposed plan provide a better alternative for creditors than what they already have.”) (citing 4 Collier on Bankruptcy, 943.03[7] (Lawrence P. King, ed., 15th ed.1999)).

90. Had there been no chapter 9 filing by the City, pension creditors could not be impaired under the Michigan Constitution, and any impairment of those rights under a plan of adjustment would violate Michigan law and be patently non-confirmable. Accordingly, because the Restructuring Plan proposes to unconstitutionally wipe out guaranteed vested pension benefits, the proposal cannot satisfy the requirements of good faith negotiations over a plan that could be effectuated in chapter 9.

91. Orr failed to consider before filing for bankruptcy protection or since the filing, an equitable argument for the pension fund beneficiaries that other creditors extending debt after funding concerns surfaced publically should be subject to equitable subordination/fraudulent conveyance under Bankruptcy Code sections 510(c) and 544(b)/548(a) and pension benefits should take priority over those claims.

92. Further, under Bankruptcy Code section 928(b), Orr should be exploring whether certain other creditors should bear the burden of some of the City’s operating expenses during bankruptcy process, before benefit cuts are implemented.

93. The City in its reply brief (see Debtor’s Reply, at p. 58 n.50) argues that AFSCME is incorrect that to satisfy the good faith negotiation requirement of section 109(c)(5)(B), negotiations must be conducted regarding the terms of a confirmable plan. The City cites no authority for rejecting AFSCME’s arguments in this regard, and the weakness of the City’s argument is belied by its relegation to a footnote. There can be no doubt that the reference to good faith negotiations of the terms of a plan in section 109(c)(5)(B) of the Bankruptcy Code is to negotiations of the terms of a plan that can be effectuated in chapter 9, i.e., a confirmable plan, as argued above. It is illogical for the statute to reference negotiations regarding an unconfirmable plan. Were that the case, then the whole point of good-faith negotiations would be meaningless and rendered moot, or simply, be deemed bad faith. As one recent court has explained in the chapter 9 context:

The structure of the sentence [i.e. section 109(c)(5)(B)] strongly implies that in the negotiations, municipalities are seeking the creditors’ agreement to a bankruptcy plan. What other agreements can they be seeking?

In re Mendocino Coast Recreation and Park District, No. 12-cv-02591-JST, 2013 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 139697, at *19 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 27, 2013) (emphasis in original; emphasis added).

94. The City attempts to rebut AFSCME’s reliance on Sullivan County and Cottonwood, supra, with respect to the meaning of a plan in section 109(c)(5)(B) of the Bankruptcy Code. Debtor’s Reply, at p. 58 n.50. Although Sullivan does acknowledge that a formal plan is not required, that court states that, to be in good faith, negotiations must “revolve around the negotiating of the terms of a plan that could be effectuated if resort is required to chapter 9 of the Bankruptcy Code.” Sullivan, at 78. For a plan to be effectuated under chapter 9, it clearly must satisfy the parameters of and be confirmable under section 943(b) of the Bankruptcy Code and be in the best interests of creditors. The Sullivan court’s statement that the plan need not be a “formal plan”, id., at 78, is underscored by the language that follows (and conveniently omitted by the City):

While the statutory requirement does not require a formal plan as such, some sort of comprehensive plan is required as one of the ‘screening factors’ to avoid a too early and rapid resort to the bankruptcy courts by municipalities.

Sullivan, 165 B.R. at 78 (emphasis added). This language is telling and clearly negates the City’s position with respect to the nature of the “plan.” Both the Sullivan, supra, and Cottonwood, supra, courts concluded that, even where the parties engaged in good-faith pre-petition negotiations, the municipality failed to satisfy section 109(c)(5)(B) because the negotiations did not include the terms of a plan under chapter 9 of the Bankruptcy Code. The City would further have this Court ignore the finding in Ellicott, adopting the well-reasoned analysis of Cottonwood, that a municipality must establish that “‘it engaged in good faith negotiations with creditors concerning the possible terms of a plan to be effected under section 941 of the Bankruptcy Code.’” Ellicott, 150 B.R.at 266 (citing Cottonwood, 138 B.R at 138) (emphasis added). The City failed to negotiate in good faith as any purported negotiations were not related to a plan that could be effectuated under section 941 and 943(b) of the Bankruptcy Code. The City, therefore, does not satisfy section 109(c)(5)(B) of the Bankruptcy Code.

(iii) Negotiations With Certain Categories Of Creditors Such As AFSCME Were Not Impracticable

95. The City alleges that it alternatively qualifies for eligibility under section 109(c)(5)(C) of the Bankruptcy Code because negotiations were impracticable.

96. As with the other eligibility requirements, the burden of proving impracticability rests with the City. See In re Pierce County Housing Authority, 414 B.R. 702, 713 (Bankr. W.D. Wash. 2009); Vallejo, 408 B.R. at 289 (citing Valley Health, 383 B.R. at 161). Courts considering section 109(c)(5)(C) define the ordinary meaning of “impracticable” as “not practicable; incapable of being performed or accomplished by the means employed or at command; infeasible.” See, e.g., Vallejo, 408 B.R. at 298 (citing Valley Health, 383 B.R. at 163). Whether negotiations were impracticable is fact specific and depends upon the circumstances of the case. See Vallejo, 408 B.R. at 298.

97. The City alleges that negotiations were impracticable because, in part, the City had (i) numerous series of bonds and indebtedness held by multiple holders and (ii) approximately 20,000 retirees not represented by any formal agent or committee and other potential involuntary creditors. Furthermore, the City claims that the refusal of certain creditor constituencies to engage in good faith negotiations rendered negotiations impracticable.

98. In fact, AFSCME believes that the exact opposite is true here. The City predetermined that its pre-bankruptcy negotiations (which, as discussed above, were not negotiations) would fail. As discussed extensively above, the Governor and his staff orchestrated for several months prior to the hiring of Orr as EM to bring in Orr, as an experienced bankruptcy attorney, to lead the City on a clear path towards a chapter 9 filing, and any negotiations were a façade – the City went through the motions of pre-petition meetings but, as is evident from its pre-petition conduct vis a vis AFSCME, never had any intention of negotiating outside of bankruptcy.

99. While the City alleges that it has over 100,000 creditors, it is clear that the main creditors the City had to negotiate with were the unions, its retirees, and the bond trustees.

100. Moreover, as discussed extensively supra, The City itself has in the past negotiated with its unions with respect to concessionary agreements which changes impacted retiree benefits outside of a chapter 9 proceeding (even where such unions were not explicitly representing their retirees). Thus, it is a red herring to say that negotiating medical benefits or pensions is impractical per se.

101. While courts have made clear that impracticability can be demonstrated by the volume of creditors to negotiate with, in no case AFSCME is aware of did a court find that negotiations were impracticable where the Debtor did not even attempt to negotiate pre-petition with its largest creditors such as AFSCME (and after repeated requests to do so). In Ellicott School, the court determined that the debtor holding “public meetings to which all bondholders were invited” showed that negotiations were practicable.

102. AFSCME is not suggesting that pre-petition negotiations could have bound everyone or must have involved all of the City’s thousands of creditors. Rather, some level of negotiation with principal creditors could have led the City to a non-bankruptcy solution. By way of analogy, section 109(c)(5)(B) of the Bankruptcy Code contemplates pre-bankruptcy negotiations with creditors that municipality intends to impair, not all creditors.¹⁶

103. Given the City’s lack of negotiations with creditors such as AFSCME and similar union representatives that could have negotiated regarding the largest portion of the City’s unsecured debt, the City’s arguments that negotiations were impracticable should be rejected.

104. In reality, the City was not truly interested in negotiating in good faith (whether or not such negotiations were impractical) because the City strongly desired a swift landing in chapter 9.

¹⁶ Importantly, the City describes in the Orr Declaration that of the City has nearly $12 billion in unsecured debt, but 75% of that (approximately $9.2 billion) relates to accounting liabilities for post-employment benefit or underfunded pension liabilities.

C. The City’s Petition Should Be Dismissed Under Section 921(c) As Filed In Bad Faith

105. The City’s bankruptcy petition is subject to dismissal pursuant to section 921(c) of the Bankruptcy Code because the filing was in bad faith. Section 921(c) of the Bankruptcy Code provides that “[a]fter any objection to the petition, the court, after notice and a hearing, may dismiss the petition if the debtor did not file the petition in good faith or if the petition does not meet the requirements of this title.”

106. “Good faith is not defined in the Bankruptcy Code.” In re McCurtain Mun. Auth., No. 07-80363, 2007 WL 4287604, at *4 (Bankr. E.D. Okla. Dec. 4, 2007). Courts have determined, however, that the primary function of the good faith requirement in chapter 9 is to “ensure the integrity of the reorganization process by limiting access to its protection to those situations for which it was intended.” Sullivan County, 165 B.R. at 80 (citation omitted); see also In re City of Stockton, California, 493 B.R. 772, 794 (Bankr. E.D. Cal. 2013) (“Section 921(c) “good faith” serves a policy objective of assuring that the chapter 9 process is being used in a manner consistent with the reorganization purposes of the Bankruptcy Code”); Villages at Castle Rock, 145 B.R. at 81 (describing good faith as requirement that “prevents abuse of the bankruptcy process by debtors whose overriding motive is to delay creditors without benefiting them in any way or to achieve reprehensible purposes”) (internal quotation marks and citation omitted).

107. While good faith in the chapter 9 context is not defined in the Bankruptcy Code, courts have looked to discussions of good faith in the chapter 11 context to determine whether a chapter 9 petition has been filed in good faith. McCurtain Mun. Auth., 2007 WL 4287604, at *4 (referencing chapter 11 good faith standards to determine whether chapter 9 petition was filed in good faith) (quoting Villages at Castle Rock, 145 B.R. at 81); County of Orange, 183

B.R. at 608 (observing that “courts have ... applied to chapter 9 cases the judicial reasoning that developed in chapter 11 cases” regarding good faith); Sullivan County, 165 B.R. at 82 (examining and applying chapter 11 good faith requirements to chapter 9 petition)).

108. In the chapter 11 context, courts explain that the requirement of good faith prevents abuse of the bankruptcy process by debtors whose overriding motive is to delay creditors without benefitting them in any way or to achieve reprehensible purposes. Moreover, a good faith standard protects the jurisdictional integrity of the bankruptcy courts by rendering their powerful equitable weapons . . . available only to those debtors and creditors with ‘clean hands.’

In re Little Creek Dev. Co., 779 F.2d 1068 (5th Cir. 1986).

109. Relevant considerations regarding good faith under chapter 9 include “whether the City’s financial problems are of a nature contemplated by chapter 9, whether the reasons for filing are consistent with chapter 9, the extent of the City’s pre-petition efforts to address the issues, the extent that alternatives to chapter 9 were considered, and whether the City’s residents would be prejudiced by denying chapter 9 relief.” Stockton, 493 B.R. at 794.

110. Here, a review of the various relevant factors considered by courts when analyzing good faith under section 921(c) lead to the inescapable conclusion (which will be further demonstrated at trial) that the City’s chapter 9 case was filed in bad faith and with unclean hands.

111. First, the City’s filing came several minutes prior to a Michigan State Court issuing a TRO enjoining the Governor from authorizing the filing. The State lawyers at the hearing on the TRO asked for a short delay when they realized that an adverse ruling was forthcoming with respect to the City’s ability to authorize any chapter 9 authorization which did not proscribe the reduction of pension benefits violated the Michigan constitution. During that recess, the City filed for chapter 9 protection. Thus, the City commenced this proceeding

“in the dark of night” to avoid a ruling it viewed as not in its favor. Such a filing is the antithesis of the careful, deliberative decision to file required under chapter 9, as “[t]he legislative history indicates that the strict hurdles to filing Chapter 9 were implemented to ensure that it was considered by a municipality only as a last resort.” Pierce County, 414 B.R. at 714 (citation omitted) (noting debtor decided to file a chapter 9 petition only after several years of failed negotiations and attempts at mediation); cf. Valleo, 408 B.R. at 295 (“The evidence needs to show that the ‘purpose of the filing of the chapter 9 petition not simply be to buy time or evade creditors.’”). The City filed chapter 9 to evade what it viewed as an imminent negative state court ruling – enjoining this very filing.

112. Moreover, as discussed above, while the City was purporting to negotiate with its creditors in good faith by holding several meetings, such meetings were employed as a mere strategy to bolster the record and never truly given the chance to succeed. The City simply does not have “clean hands”.

113. Additionally, as discussed extensively above, the City did not reasonably consider any alternatives to chapter 9, did not give negotiations any real chance to succeed, and was preparing for a chapter 9 filing months before any creditor meetings to discuss restructuring options even started (and indeed had finalized a decision to file as of early July 2013 well before significant creditor meetings were scheduled to take place), and refused to negotiate with major creditors such as AFSCME as required. Simply put, the predetermined filing was done in bad faith and should be dismissed.

114. The City argues in its reply brief that the reason for filing the chapter 9 petition was not the imminent entry of the State Court TRO, but rather “to adjust its debts and resolve its liquidity crises [consistent] with the rehabilitative purposes of Chapter 9.” Debtor’s Reply, at p. 65. The City states further that it was no secret that Chapter 9 was an option if negotiations with creditors proved impracticable (which, of course, AFSCME disputes as set forth supra). Id. at 65-66. However, the City has not and cannot establish that negotiations with its creditors were impracticable under Section 109(c)(5)(C). Thus, any reliance by the City on the impracticability of negotiations with creditors to establish good faith is misplaced.

115. Moreover, the City's attempts to lay blame on the movants in the state court TRO proceeding by suggesting that it was the City's preparation for bankruptcy that prompted the request for the TRO (see City Reply, at 66, n. 56), rather than the opposite (i.e. that the imminent entry of the TRO prompted the chapter 9 filing) is incorrect. Indeed, as discussed above, Orr admitted that the filing was being driven by the state court litigations and that he was being "irresponsible" by not authorizing the filings when he did.

116. The City relies on the McCurtain Municipal Authority, decision to support its position regarding the timing of its filing and the state court TRO hearing. In McMurtain, a creditor filed an application for the appointment of a receiver the day before the trustees of the municipal authority met to discuss a chapter 9 filing. Notice of the trustees' meeting was provided before the filing of the application for the receiver. The municipal authority argued that the potential appointment of a receiver may have been a concern, but it was not the only reason for the authority to ultimately file its petition. McCurtain at *5 (identifying other concerns considered by the authority trustees that precipitated the chapter 9 filing).

117. Here, in contrast, the evidence show that the City very much sought to avoid the effects of the State Court litigation and a ruling that the Governor could not authorize a filing that did not place contingencies on the EM from changing pension benefits in a chapter 9. The City likely would have considered giving creditors more time to negotiate (as was required for any significant bargaining to take place), and there was no cash crisis and the City had actually as of July 17, 2013 inked a deal with its swap counterparties which helped the City's anticipated liquidity. The City has simply not proceeded in good faith.

D. The City Has Failed To Meet Its Burden Of Proving Its Insolvency, And Only Does So Based On Assumptions Used By The City To Show Its Insolvency

118. The Bankruptcy Code does not offer relief to a city simply because it is suffering economic difficulties. See, e.g., In re City of Bridgeport, 129 B.R. 332, 339 (Bankr. D. Conn. 1991) (although City projected $16 million budget deficit, it was not insolvent, and "financial difficulties short of insolvency are not a basis for chapter 9 relief"); In re Hamilton Creek Metro. Dist., 143 F.3d 1381, 1386 (10th Cir. 1998) (debtor not eligible for relief simply because it was severely economically distressed).

119. In order to carry its burden on insolvency, the City must prove either that it is "(i) generally not paying its debts as they become due unless such debts are the subject of a bona fide dispute; or (ii) unable to pay its debts as they become due." 11 U.S.C. § 101(32)(C). The test under the first prong requires current non-payment of obligations, but the test under the second prong is prospective, looking to the debtor's future inability to pay. Bridgeport, 129 B.R. at 336-37. Solvency is measured as of the petition date. See, e.g., In re Town of Westlake, Texas, 211 B.R. 860, 866 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 1997) (citing cases).

121. First, the City “deliberately budget[ed and] spen[t] itself into insolvency (so as to qualify under § 101(32)(C)(ii)), when other realistic avenues and scenarios [were] possible.” Town of Westlake, 211 B.R. at 867. Second, “[t]he mere fact that a municipality has adopted a budget that reflects a cash flow shortfall is not independently sufficient to meet the requirement of the ‘unable to pay’ test.” COLLIER ON BANKRUPTCY ¶ 900.02[2][c][i] (16th ed. 2011). A municipal budget “must be evaluated in light of past and current practices, the practices of similar municipalities, and the extant facts and circumstances.” Id.

122. The City puts forward three declarations from Orr, Malhotra and Moore which appear to provide a voluminous amount of data to “establish” the City’s insolvency, including on the basis of budget and service delivery insolvency, negative cash flows and inability to increase revenues or reduce expenses.

123. However, as discussed above and as will further be demonstrated at trial, when one digs into all of the “facts” cited by these three declarants, it becomes apparent that the City failed to provide this Court or the citizens of Detroit evidence to establish insolvency.

124. It is telling (and should be shocking to all citizens of Detroit and Michigan) that despite spending millions of dollars of taxpayer funds on the City’s chapter 9 cases to hire a multitude of bankruptcy and restructuring professionals, the City fails to offer even one person to stand up as an expert and testify to the City’s insolvency. Courts in the non-chapter 9 context note that “[i]t is generally accepted that whenever possible, a determination of insolvency should be based on . . . expert testimony . . .” Brandt v. Samuel, Son & Co., Ltd. (In re Longview Aluminum, L.L.C.), Case No. 03B12184, 2005 Bankr. LEXIS 1312, at *18-*19 (Bankr. N.D. Ill. July 14, 2005); see also Lawson v. Ford Motor Co. (In re Roblin Indus.), 78 F.3d 30, 38 (2d Cir. 1996); Klein v. Tabatchnick, 610 F.2d 1043, 1048 (2d Cir. 1979) (stating that “a finding on the issue of insolvency often depends upon the factual inferences and conclusions of expert witnesses”).

125. Here, the insolvency “evidence” offered by the City focuses on the non-expert testimony of Orr, Malhotra, and Moore. This testimony relies on unaudited and unfounded assumptions, unsupported statements and a complete lack of expert opinion. For example, as purported evidence for the City’s insolvency, Orr (see Orr Declaration, ¶¶ 52-57) cites to the June 14 Restructuring Plan prepared by the City and to conclusory statements by Malhotra, one of the City’s restructuring advisors (who of course all had one goal in mind: demonstrating insolvency).

126. While the City alleges that it was forced to suspend certain payments to “conserve its dwindling cash”, the main portion of the payments not made revolve around the City’s pension obligations, and those obligations are subject to dispute as to the ultimate amount required to be paid, and indeed evidence (discussed above and to be further adduced at trial) shows that (i) the City may have funds (or be able to raise funds from other sources such as revenues generated from the water and sewer fund) not calculated as part of its financial projections to cover such shortfalls and (ii) the City apparently chose to not actually calculate through an expert report the correct underfunding liability with respect to the pension obligations (despite presenting “definitive” numbers of such underfunding in the Restructuring Plan and other documents produced by the EM and his staff). Treasurer Dillon admitted that as late as the filing date, the City had not calculated the correct underfunding liability with respect to the pension obligations. Thus, the City “deliberately budget[ed and] spen[t] itself into insolvency (so as to qualify under § 101(32)(C)(ii)), when other realistic avenues and scenarios [were] possible.” Town of Westlake, 211 B.R. at 867.

128. Here, the City’s past and current practices, as well as current facts and circumstances, not only show that the City has many available (but unexplored) options to enable it to pay its debts as they become due, but also that the City chose to deliberately not monetize certain assets (or explore the value of such assets) prior to the filing to limit the appearance of cash or revenue on its books. It is telling that the City’s prized artwork collection and potential deal to lease Bell Isle are only now on the table – if these assets and other possible increased tax revenue collection could have collectively solved all of the City’s short term cash issues. But, as indicated above, the City did not want such assets monetized because the City’s goal and clear path was to end up in chapter 9, which the City believed provided the only means to attack its vested pension obligations.

129. Thus, in light of all of the above, the information provided in the City’s current budget provides at most only “insufficient credible proof” of insolvency. Town of Westlake, 211 B.R. at 867; see also Bridgeport, 129 B.R. at 338 (requiring concrete proof “that [the city] will be unable to pay its debts as they become due in its current fiscal year or, based on an adopted budget, in its next fiscal year” and noting that “[o]bviously, it is necessary for cities to make informed financial projections”).

130. The City’s current financial difficulties currently are actually less severe than in some prior years, the City entered into a deal prior to the chapter 9 filing with its swap counterparties which potentially freed up significant cash and did not make the filing imminent, and AFSCME believes (and as will be further demonstrated at trial) that there are numerous means already shown to be available to solve the City's current financial difficulties and generate sufficient funds to pay its debts coming due in the coming fiscal year. AFSCME recognizes that all parties (including current and former employees) will be required to sacrifice, but reasonable concessions outside of bankruptcy – which is not necessary and which the City does not and cannot qualify for based on all the reasons discussed above – from all significant creditors would easily bring the City back to financial stability.

CONCLUSION

For the reasons set forth herein, AFSCME respectfully requests that this Court issue an order following the eligibility trial dismissing the City's chapter 9 petition and granting such other and further relief as is just and proper under the circumstances.

VIDEO TECHNICIAN: Today's date is October the 10th, 2013, and we're on the record at 1:56 p.m. This is the video deposition of Mr. Richard Baird and we're at 211 South Washington Street in Lansing, Michigan. Can the witness be sworn, please.

-RICHARD BAIRD-

called as a witness, being first duly sworn, was examined and testified as follows:

EXAMINATION

15 BY MR. DeCHIARA:

16 Q. Good afternoon, Mr. Baird. My name is Peter DeChiara. I'm a lawyer with the law firm of Cohen, Weiss and Simon LLP. We represent the United Auto Workers International Union in this case.

18 Did you prepare in any manner for this deposition?

20 A. Yes.

21 Q. What did you do?

22 A. I reviewed emails, reviewed other depositions and discussed with my attorneys.

1 Q. What depositions did you review?

2 A. I reviewed the depositions for Kevyn Orr and for Governor Snyder and my own deposition from a case brought by Robert Davis.

3 Q. Okay. That was the May 24th, 2013 deposition?

4 A. I don't recall the exact date.

5 Q. Okay. It was in Davis versus Local Emergency Financial Assistance Loan Board?

6 A. Yes.

7 Q. And it was in the spring of this year?

8 A. Yes.

9 Q. Other than your attorneys, did you speak to anyone else in preparation for this deposition?

10 A. No.

11 Q. Other than the deposition that you gave in the Davis case, have you given any other depositions in 2013?

12 A. No.

13 Q. What about in 2012?

14 A. No.

15 Q. Are you familiar with an organization called MI Partners?

16 A. Yes.

17 Q. What is MI Partners?

18 A. It's actually MI Partners LLC, a limited liability corporation, which is owned by me.

1 Q. Okay. Are you an employee of MI Partners LLC?
 2 A. I am.
 3 Q. And what's your position?
 4 A. I am its president.
 5 Q. Are there any other employees?
 6 A. No.
 7 Q. Are there any other owners?
 8 A. No.
 9 Q. What business is MI Partners in?
 10 A. Provides consulting services, mainly organizational,
 11 talent, strategy.
 12 Q. And how many clients does MI Partners have?
 13 A. One.
 14 Q. And who is that or what is that?
 15 A. It is the New Energy to Reinvent and Diversify.
 16 Q. And what services does MI Partners provide to New 17 Energy to Reinvest and Diversify?
 18 A. New Energy to Reinvent and Diversify is -- 19 Q. I'm sorry, is it Reinvent or Reinvest?
 20 A. Reinvent.
 21 Q. I'm sorry, Reinvent.
 22 A. Is the fund which covers my fees. My services are 23 provided to the Governor, his executive office and 24 his extended leadership team.
 25 Q. Do you receive any monies -- do you or do MI

1 Partners receive any monies directly from the State?
 2 A. No.
 3 Q. Does New Energy to Reinvent and Diversify receive
 4 any monies from the State?
 5 A. I don't know.
 6 Q. Okay. Do you know whether -- I'm just going to 7 refer -- so I don't have to keep repeating that
 8 name, I'm just going to refer to it as NERD,
 9 N-E-R-D. Is that okay? Do you understand what I'm 10 talking about?
 11 A. I will know the fund you're referring to.
 12 Q. Does NERD receive any monies from any of the 13 creditors in the Detroit bankruptcy case?
 14 A. I don't know.
 15 Q. Okay. Do you know whether NERD receives any monies
 16 from the Jones Day law firm?
 17 A. I don't know.
 18 Q. Do you know whether it receives any monies from 19 Kevyn Orr?
 20 A. I don't know.
 21 Q. Do you know who or what finances NERD?
 22 A. I don't know the donors. I've been advised that 23 they are private donors, but I have no way of 24 knowing who they are.
 25 Q. And for how long has this arrangement existed

1 whereby NERD pays MI Partners for you to provide
 2 consulting services to the Governor and his staff?
 3 A. Since January of 2011.
 4 Q. Apart from the arrangement I just mentioned, do you
 5 have any other paid employment?
 6 A. Employment, no.
 7 Q. Do you have any other paid consultancy work that you
 8 perform?
 9 A. No.
 10 Q. Are you an employee of the State of Michigan?
 11 A. No.
 12 Q. Okay. But you have a Michigan government email
 13 address?
 14 A. Yes.
 15 Q. Okay. And do you have -- do you or MI Partners have 16 offices out of which you work?
 17 A. I have an office out of which I work at Romney and I
 18 have an office off premise in Michigan.
 19 Q. Do you or MI Partners pay rent for your office in 20 the Romney Building?
 21 A. No.
 22 Q. Have you played any -- as part of your consultancy
 23 for the Governor and his staff, did you play or have 24 you played any role in connection with the 25 restructuring of the City of Detroit?

1 A. Define restructuring.
 2 Q. The efforts by the City of Detroit to get its 3 economic house in order beginning before the 4 bankruptcy, from whenever it began doing that, up
 5 and through to today.
 6 A. I have not consulted with the City of Detroit on its 7 restructuring directly.
 8 Q. Okay. Have you worked -- in your consultancy for 9 the Governor, has part of your work for the Governor
 10 been in connection with the -- Detroit's
 11 restructuring efforts?
 12 A. No. Again, I have been involved in talent
 13 identification assessment but not in the direct
 14 restructuring efforts for the City of Detroit.
 15 Q. Okay. Other than talent identification, have you
 16 performed any other work that had to do with or that 17 related in some way to Detroit?
 18 A. I would -- I have been part of meetings where if 19 asked an opinion, I would provide an opinion. If I
 20 saw an area where I had some experience or value, I
 21 would render that opinion. But in terms of specific 22 services of a restructuring nature, no.
 23 Q. Do you as a regular matter as part of your work for 24 the Governor and his staff attend official meetings
 25 of the Governor and his staff?

Page 13

1 A. Yes.
 2 Q. Okay. And how frequently do you do that?
 3 A. Define frequently. Every day?
 4 Q. Well, why don't you just tell me how often you do
 5 it.
 6 A. Well, every day I'm probably in some meetings with 7 members of his staff.
 8 Q. Would it be fair to say you work intimately with the 9 Governor and his staff?
 10 A. Sure.
 11 Q. Did you attend a meeting on January 29, 2013, at 12 which various law firms were making a pitch to be 13 hired as restructuring counsel by the City of 14 Detroit?
 15 A. I don't recall the exact date, but it was toward the 16 end of January.
 17 Q. Okay. I'd like to show you a document which I'll 18 mark as Exhibit 1.
 19
 20 (Deposition Exhibit 1 was marked.)
 21
 22 BY MR. DeCHIARA:
 23 Q. And for the record, I'll identify Exhibit 1 as a
 24 document that on the first page says Presentation to 25 the City of Detroit; Detroit, Michigan; January 29,

1 2013, and it's Bate stamped the first page at the 2 bottom DTMI 00128731.
 3 Mr. Baird, looking at Exhibit 1, does that 4 refresh your recollection of the date of what I'll 5 call the pitch meeting?
 6 A. Well, the document's dated January 29th. If it was 7 delivered the same day then I was there.
 8 Q. Okay. Who else besides you on behalf of the State
 9 was at that meeting?
 10 A. I'm not sure I recall everyone, but Andy Dillon was 11 there, and Tom Saxton from Treasury was there.
 12 Those would be the only ones I recall from the State
 13 right now.
 14 Q. Do you have a recollection of what was -- do you
 15 have a recollection of the meeting?
 16 A. Yes.
 17 Q. Okay. And Jones Day was one of the law firms that 18 made a pitch?
 19 A. Correct.
 20 Q. Do you have any recollection of what the people from 21 Jones Day said at the meeting?
 22 A. I mean, that was eight, nine months ago but a
 23 directional recollection, yes.
 24 Q. What's the best of your recollection?
 25 A. My recollection is that Jones Day -- well, first of

1 all, let me say that this was not a formal pitch.
 2 This meeting was set up to provide the City, the
 3 emergency -- I'm sorry, the program management
 4 director and the CFO with some parameters associated
 5 with what needs to be going into an RFP that had yet
 6 to be completed.
 7 So this was simply bringing together a
 8 number of law firms with relevant experience to 9 discuss things that the City should contemplate
 10 keeping in mind for a future RFP.
 11 Q. Okay. Before I -- I have a -- I had asked you a
 12 question about what was said by the Jones Day
 13 people, but before I ask you that, let me ask you do
 14 you know whether Jones Day provided any services
 15 paid or unpaid or legal advice to the State prior -- 16 at any time prior to this meeting?
 17 A. I don't know. I was not aware of any such services
 18 provided.
 19 Q. Okay. All right. So what's the best of your 20 recollection of what the Jones Day people said at 21 the meeting?
 22 A. Well, they went through this presentation.
 23 Q. You're referring to Exhibit 1?
 25 Q. Okay.

1 A. They introduced themselves. They talked about their
 2 background and their qualifications. They talked
 3 about experience that they had in Detroit and in 4 Michigan. They discussed the fact that out-of-court
 5 solutions are absolutely preferred, and they talked
 6 about their experience in out-of-court
 7 restructuring.
 8 And then they talked about various -- the 9 experience that they had both in out-of-court
 10 restructurings and in-court restructurings.
 11 Q. Did they say anything about a potential bankruptcy
 12 filing by the City of Detroit?
 13 A. I don't recall specifically, but certainly they 14 indicated a continuum of potential proceeding
 15 depending on what transpired prior to the last 16 resort, which would be a Chapter 9 filing.
 17 Q. That's what they said? They said that would be a
 18 last resort?
 19 A. I don't recall if they said that specifically, but 20 members of our team made it very clear that it was 21 our intent to stay out of the courts.
 22 Q. When you say our team, who are you referring to?
 23 A. Mainly Treasury, and I think that would be shared by 24 the City leadership that were put in place under the 25 consent agreement, the CFO and the program

1 management director.
 2 Q. Okay. Do you recall whether Kevyn Orr spoke at the
 3 meeting?
 4 A. Yes, he did.
 5 Q. And do you recall what he said?
 6 A. He talked about his background and credentials. He 7 talked about his experience with Chrysler. He 8 talked about his broad restructuring expertise. He 9 talked about his ties to Detroit. His mother was a
 10 professor at University of Michigan. He had 11 relatives that continued to have ties in Michigan.
 12 He recalled even elements of his education where he
 13 spent a fair amount of time in Detroit.
 14 It was clear that -- I was impressed by the 15 fact that he had a passion for the City, and I was 16 very impressed by his knowledge of Michigan and the 17 City from his years as an undergrad and law school
 18 student.
 19 Q. At the meeting, did you speak to Mr. Orr one-on-one?
 20 At the meeting or after the meeting. When I say
 21 after, I mean that day.
 22 A. I did not speak to -- if you mean one-on-one, did
 23 the two of us have a one-on-one conversation.
 24 Q. Right. Did you break off and have a one-on-one?
 25 A. No. No, I did not.

Page 18

1 Q. Okay. Let me ask you also, did either Jones Day or
 2 Mr. Orr at that meeting say anything about Detroit's
 3 pensions or pension liability?
 4 A. I don't recall.
 5 Q. Let me turn your attention to page 41 of Exhibit 1.
 6 A. Did I just lose my mic?
 7 VIDEO TECHNICIAN: Yeah, you did.
 8 THE WITNESS: What page was that, 41?
 9 BY MR. DeCHIARA:
 10 Q. Right. And I'd like to draw your attention in 11 particular to the very last line on page 41. I'll 12 read it for the record. It says "If needed,
 13 Chapter 9 could be used as a means to further cut
 14 back or compromise "accrued financial benefits"
 15 otherwise protected under the Michigan
 16 Constitution."
 17 Do you recall any spoken statements by the 18 people from Jones Day along the lines of what's -- 19 what I just read?
 20 A. I do not.
 21 Q. Did you get a copy of what's been marked as
 22 Exhibit 1?
 23 A. I believe I did.
 24 Q. And did you -- after the meeting, did you share it
 25 with anybody?

1 A. No.
 2 Q. Now, the day after the meeting, you called Jones
 3 Day; isn't that correct?
 4 A. I did.
 5 Q. Okay. And why did you call Jones Day?
 6 A. Specifically, I called Stephen Brogan, the managing 7 partner for Jones Day, and I asked him for 8 permission to speak with Kevyn Orr about the 9 potential of an emergency manager position if, in 10 fact, Detroit were found to be in emergency
 11 financial distress and the Governor found it
 12 necessary to recommend to the ELB an EM candidate.
 13 Q. So you were as of January 30th interested in Mr. Orr
 14 as a potential candidate to be EM?
 15 A. I was interested in Mr. Orr after seeing him and his 16 background and experience. I was very impressed,
 17 and that's why I made the call the next day.
 18 Q. Right, but is it fair to say you were interested in 19 him as a potential candidate for EM?
 20 A. Yes.
 21 Q. And before you made the call, did you speak to the 22 Governor about your interest in Mr. Orr?
 23 A. I don't recall. I don't think so.
 24 Q. Did you speak to Mr. Dillon?
 25 A. Yes.

1 Q. And what did you and Mr. Dillon -- can you recount
 2 what you said to Mr. Dillon and what he said to you?
 3 A. I spoke to Mr. Dillon at the close of the same day,
 4 which according to this was January 29th, and I
 5 indicated to him that I was very impressed with 6 Mr. Orr and that I was going to call Mr. Brogan the 7 next day and see if there was any potential that I
 8 could talk to Mr. Orr.
 9 Q. And what did Mr. Dillon say, if anything, in 10 response to that?
 11 A. My recollection is that he said I don't think you 12 could ever get him, but he would be an extremely 13 quality candidate.
 14 Q. Okay. Other than the reasons you've already 15 testified to today, are there any other reasons you
 16 were interested in Mr. Orr as a potential candidate
 17 for EM?
 18 A. Yeah. Really two. One is that it was always our 19 intent to see if we could not solve the incredible
 20 financial problems by avoiding a Chapter 9 filing,
 21 and to be honest it was that meeting where it became 22 clear to me that somebody who knew their way around
 23 the courts would actually stand a much better chance
 24 of keeping us out of the courts in terms of our 25 negotiations with creditors and other stakeholders.

1 Q. I think you said there were two.
 2 A. Yeah.
 3 Q. Was that --
 4 A. That was one. I'm sorry.
 5 Q. What was the second?
 6 A. The second one was that he was -- I didn't learn
 7 this then, but in my first conversation with him I
 8 learned that he was the son of a teacher and he was 9 also the son of a minister, and as part of the 10 conversation I had with him going forward I felt 11 that the man's character was exactly what we would 12 be looking for. If we could convince him to do this 13 role he'd do it for the right reasons.
 14 Q. I'd like to show you a document I'll mark as 15 Exhibit 2.
 16
 17 (Deposition Exhibit 2 was marked.)
 18
 19 BY MR. DeCHIARA:
 20 Q. And it's a one-page document which is stamped at the 21 bottom JD-RD 0000113.
 22 Mr. Baird, if I can refer your attention to 23 the bottom of Exhibit 2, is that an email you wrote
 24 to Corinne Ball on January 30th, 2013?
 25 A. Yes.

1 Q. And does this refresh your recollection about the
 2 date on which you called Steve Brogan?
 3 A. Yes. It was the day after this date, yes.
 4 Q. Right. So -- well, the email is dated January 30th,
 5 and the email says in the second sentence "Was on 6 phone with Steve Brogan."
 7 So is it accurate that you called Steve 8 Brogan on January 30th?
 9 A. As I testified, I called Steve Brogan on 10 January 30th.
 11 Q. Okay. So the meeting at which Jones Day made a
 12 presentation the day before was January 29th?
 13 A. Correct.
 14 Q. What did Steve Brogan say when you spoke to him?
 15 A. Steve said that you're killing me, I just asked this 16 man to be the managing partner of our Miami office.
 17 He also said we would not stand in the way of 18 anything that any of our partners wanted to do, but 19 frankly, I think the chances of your getting him
 20 would be highly unlikely.
 21 With that said, I would give you permission
 22 to talk to him, and I made it -- no, I take that 23 back. It's not that I would give you permission to 24 talk to him. I retract that. He said I will talk
 25 to him, and if there is an interest in him speaking

1 with you I will ask that he call you.
 2 At that time I thanked Steve and I told him
 3 that I want you to know whether he talks to us or 4 not, you will -- Jones Day will neither be hurt nor 5 helped if there's any further discussions about
 6 Kevyn in this particular role.
 7 Q. Hurt or helped in what regard?
 8 A. With regard to their bid -- potential bid to do work
 9 for the City of Detroit.
 10 Q. And were you in a position to make that commitment
 11 to Jones Day as to what the decisionmaking of the 12 City of Detroit would be?
 13 A. Actually, on reflection, no.
 14 Q. But you made it anyway.
 15 A. I did.
 16 Q. Okay. Did Mr. Brogan tell you why he thought it
 17 was highly unlikely that you'd be able to get
 18 Kevyn Orr?
 19 A. He said he had two young children, a wife who was a 20 surgeon at Johns Hopkins and the fact that he'd just 21 committed to do the Miami deal, and he thought this 22 would be too much of a deviation from those plans.
 23 Q. Did you speak to Mr. Orr that day, January 30th, 24 2013?
 25 A. I don't recall.

1 Q. Let me show you a document that may help your
 2 recollection. I'm going to mark it as Exhibit 3.
 3
 4 (Deposition Exhibit 3 was marked.)
 5
 6 BY MR. DeCHIARA:
 7 Q. Mr. Baird, is Exhibit 3 an email --
 8 A. Well --
 9 Q. Well, can you identify the top email on Exhibit 3?
 10 MR. SHERWOOD: Is this the document 303 at 11 the end?
 12 BY MR. DeCHIARA:
 13 Q. Yes. I'm sorry, let me read the Bate stamp. It's 14 stamped at the bottom JD-RD 000303.
 15 A. Okay. First of all, you asked me if I spoke to 16 Kevyn Orr on the same day as I spoke to Stephen
 17 Brogan --
 18 Q. Right.
 19 A. -- and I said I did not recall.
 20 And according to this email which you've 21 handed me it appears that I spoke to Kevyn Orr the 22 very next day, the 31st.
 23 Q. Okay. So this refreshes your recollection that you
 24 spoke to him the next day?
 25 A. Yes.

1 Q. Okay. And what did you -- was it just you and 2 Mr. Orr on the phone when you spoke to him on 3 January 31st, 2013?
 4 A. I believe so.
 5 Q. And to the best of your recollection tell us what
 6 you said and what he said in that discussion.
 7 A. I'm going to finish reading this --
 8 Q. Sure.
 9 A. -- for a moment.
 10 Q. Feel free to do that.
 11 A. Okay. Your question?
 12 Q. So apart from the document, although feel free to 13 look at the document, what is your recollection of 14 what you said and what he said in the telephone call
 15 you had with him on January 31st?
 16 A. My recollection is I told him that we were very 17 impressed with his presentation, I was very 18 impressed with his background and experience and 19 that I'd asked Steve Brogan for permission to talk
 20 to him.
 21 I said that we did not know whether or not
 22 Detroit would have to have an emergency manager
 23 recommended and appointed, but in the event that
 24 such were the case would he under any circumstances
 25 be willing to consider I think I called it joining

1 the Governor's irrational act club.
 2 Q. What did he say?
 3 A. He shut it down pretty summarily. And he indicated
 4 the reasons I'd already mentioned, that he had young
 5 children, you know, his schedule -- the scheduling
 6 protocol with a surgeon wife made the situation
 7 already difficult, he'd just agreed to take the 8 Miami job, and he said he really didn't see under 9 any circumstances how this might work.
 10 And I said did you talk to your wife about 11 it? He said well, no, not yet. And I said well,
 12 let me just tell you a little bit about other
 13 members of the team, let me tell you a little bit
 14 about what we've learned about Detroit, and let me
 15 ask if you would at least take a night and sleep on 16 it and talk to your wife about this because,
 17 frankly, this is the kind of a situation that, you
 18 know, a lot of people would not be able to step up
 19 to, but I firmly think that you are one who could.
 20 Q. Was there any discussion in the conversation about a 21 potential filing for bankruptcy by the City of 22 Detroit?
 23 A. No, I don't think so.
 24 Q. Okay. Let me now show you a document I'll mark as 25 Exhibit 4.

 2 (Deposition Exhibit 4 was marked.)
 3
 4 BY MR. DeCHIARA:
 5 Q. For the record, it's one-page document. Exhibit 4
 6 is a one-page document stamped at the bottom JD-RD
 7 0000327. In the bottom portion of Exhibit 4 there's 8 an email.
 9 Mr. Baird, is that an email that you wrote
 10 to the various people identified in the email?
 11 A. Yes, I recall -- I recall writing this.
 12 Q. Okay. And it refers, does it not, to a schedule
 13 for Mr. Orr to meet with various people on 14 February 11th?
 15 A. Correct.
 16 Q. And it refers to a schedule for a 2:30 p.m. meeting
 17 with the Governor and with yourself, correct?
 18 A. Correct.
 19 Q. Did that meeting take place on February 11th?
 20 A. I believe it did.
 21 Q. And was anyone else present for that meeting other 22 than the three of you; Mr. Orr, yourself and the 23 Governor?
 24 A. No.
 25 Q. And do you recall what was discussed in that

1 meeting?
 2 A. Kevyn's background was discussed, the Governor's
 3 passion and commitment for Detroit was discussed. A
 4 fair amount of discussion around the two of them and 5 their law school experiences being a year apart was 6 discussed, and that's -- again, most of it was spent
 7 talking about Kevyn and his background and
 8 experience and some was reminiscing about Michigan
 9 law school days.
 10 Q. Was there any discussion of a potential bankruptcy
 11 filing by the City of Detroit?
 12 A. I don't recall; however, in the process of talking
 13 with Kevyn, it would have been -- we would have 14 discussed the fact that we need to do everything
 15 possible to fix the problem, and the courts should 16 be avoided, but if they can't be avoided then it
 17 would have been -- it would have been misleading to 18 suggest that that wasn't a possibility.
 19 Q. When you say -- who is the we in that sentence?
 20 A. Well, you asked me about a specific meeting. It
 21 would have been Governor Snyder and me.
 22 Q. So it's the two -- the Governor and yourself who 23 were saying what you just said in the prior 24 sentence?
 25 A. Yes.

1 Q. In your prior answer?
 2 A. Yes.
 3 Q. Okay.
 4 A. You have to understand, in general, it's difficult
 5 to talk about the financial way forward and the 6 operating way forward for Detroit without
 7 contemplating all of the avenues of rescue
 8 available. Restructuring is clearly the optimum,
 9 but in the absence of proper movement or ability to 10 negotiate, you can't have a discussion about the 11 future without looking at all of the options.
 12 And, of course, the actual discussion with 13 Kevyn at this point was simply an option because we 14 didn't know if the review would ultimately find 15 Detroit in a state of emergency at this point. What 16 we did know by this point is that there were several 17 areas under the consent agreement that were falling
 18 short of what had been agreed.
 19 Q. In the February 11th meeting with you and the 20 Governor and Mr. Orr, did any of the three of you
 21 talk about pensions or pension liability in Detroit?
 22 A. No, I don't believe so.
 23 Q. Did you have meetings or discussions with Mr. Orr
 24 between the -- well, actually, let me back up.
 25 Was the January 31 telephone call that you

1 had with Mr. Orr the first time you had a
 2 conversation with him?
 3 A. Except for the public back and forth on the 29th.
 4 Q. Okay. So between the 31st of January and this 5 February 11th meeting, did you have additional 6 discussions with Mr. Orr?
 7 A. I don't recall explicitly, but I'm sure that I did.
 8 Q. Okay. Do you recall whether in any of those 9 discussions you talked about Detroit's pensions or 10 pension liability?
 11 A. I don't believe so.
 12 Q. Okay. Did you talk about the prospect of or a
 13 possibility of Detroit filing for bankruptcy?
 14 A. I don't recall.
 15 Q. Now, Mr. Orr was appointed as EM, correct?
 16 A. He was recommended by the Governor to the Emergency
 17 Loan Board, and the Emergency Loan Board appointed
 18 him as EM, yes.
 19 Q. And do you know the date that that appointment
 20 became effective?
 21 A. I don't remember the exact date. It was around mid 22 March.
 23 Q. Now, is it correct that before Mr. Orr was appointed 24 as EM, emergency manager, he had earlier been 25 appointed under a prior statute, PA 72, as the EFM,

1 the emergency financial manager?
 2 A. I think that is correct.
 3 Q. And when did -- when did he become -- when was he
 4 appointed as EFM?
 5 A. I don't recall the exact date.
 6 Q. Do you recall the ballpark in relation to mid March?
 7 Was it -- actually, let me strike that.
 8 In relation to the mid March effective date
 9 of Mr. Orr's appointment as EM, was his appointment
 10 as EFM days before or weeks before? Do you have 11 some order of magnitude?
 12 A. My recollection is it was days before PA 72 was in 13 effect when he was appointed and then 436 came into 14 effect I think a matter of days thereafter.
 15 Q. Okay. So he was -- is it fair to say he was 16 appointed as EFM in early to mid March?
 17 A. Again, I remember mid March. That's all I remember.
 18 Q. Okay. I'd like to show you a document I'll mark as 19 Exhibit 5.
 20
 21 (Deposition Exhibit 5 was marked.)
 22
 23 BY MR. DeCHIARA:
 24 Q. And for the record, I'll identify it as a three-page 25 document that's stamped at the bottom. The stamp on

1 the first page is JD-RD 0000216.
 2 MR. WERTHEIMER: That's five you said?
 3 MR. DeCHIARA: Yes.
 4 BY MR. DeCHIARA:
 5 Q. Mr. Baird, if you could look at the email at the 6 bottom half of Exhibit 5. If you want to take the 7 time to look at the whole document, why don't you do
 8 that.
 9 A. Well, I'll let you know if I need to.
 10 Q. All right.
 11 A. I recall the document.
 12 Q. Okay. All right. So is it accurate that the email
 13 at the bottom of Exhibit 5 is an email that you
 14 wrote to Kevyn Orr on February 20th, 2013?
 15 A. I believe so.
 16 Q. What were you -- what was the reference in the first
 17 sentence to the summary of partnership?
 18 A. Mayor Bing crafted a document that he described as a 19 working arrangement or working partnership or 20 something, I forget exactly -- summary of 21 partnership perhaps is what he called it, and he 22 gave that to me in a meeting. We discussed it.
 23 I told him that if, in fact, there was to 24 be an emergency manager for Detroit that this would 25 be something that he or she would have to review. I

1 also said that this would be a good aspirational
 2 document but that it would be imprudent to bind a
 3 future emergency manager to something that he or she 4 had not developed.
 5 Q. Had the emergency manager at that point been chosen?
 6 A. No.
 7 Q. Let me refer you to the second -- the second
 8 sentence of your email. It says "Told him that 9 there were certain things I would not think we could 10 agree to without your review, assessment and 11 determination (such as keeping the executive team in 12 its entirety)."
 13 A. Uh-huh.
 14 Q. Now, the you in that -- the your in that sentence
 15 refers to Mr. Orr, correct?
 16 A. Correct.
 17 Q. So is it -- am I reading this correctly that what 18 you're saying to Mr. Orr in this sentence is that 19 unless Mr. Orr agreed to certain things that you
 20 spell out in this sentence -- or you were saying
 21 that Mr. Orr's agreement to certain things that you
 22 refer to in this sentence were necessary.
 23 A. No. I don't think that would be correct.
 24 What I intended is that Kevyn Orr had not 25 yet agreed if recommended to serve in this capacity.

1 He was still doing his own due diligence determining 2 if he could separate from his firm, a number of 3 other issues. What he did say to me is that if he
 4 were, in fact, to go forward it would be important
 5 to him that he have a working relationship with the 6 Mayor. And that's actually where this document came 7 from because I'd mentioned to the Mayor that that
 8 would be important. At this point, the Mayor didn't 9 know who Kevyn Orr was.
 10 So the purpose of writing this to Kevyn was 11 that so he could have an understanding of where the 12 Mayor's thought process was and so that he could use
 13 this information in the event that he and the Mayor
 14 met, which we had been discussing doing because of 15 the fact that he wanted a strong working
 16 relationship with the Mayor.
 17 Q. Okay. In the sentence it's -- I'll quote part of 18 the sentence. It says "...I would not think we 19 could agree to without your review, assessment and
 20 determination."
 21 Who is the we in that sentence?
 22 A. I think I used a poor choice of words. I was 23 referring to myself, looking at this, and having 24 some difficulty with a few of the issues here. And 25 so I think the we would be certainly me, and I may

1 have been thinking at the time of what I thought the 2 chief of staff and/or the Governor might be
 3 thinking, but I don't recall who my we was other
 4 than me.
 5 Q. Let me read the third sentence. It says "Will 6 broker a meeting via note between you and the 7 Mayor's personal assistant who is not FOIAble."
 8 That's F-O-I-A-b-l-e.
 9 A. Uh-huh.
 10 Q. Did you attempt to broker a meeting -- did you
 11 broker a meeting between Mr. Orr and the Mayor's
 12 personal assistant?
 13 A. I brokered a connection via note.
 14 Q. And when did you do that?
 15 A. I don't recall, but it would have been fairly soon
 16 after this.
 17 Q. Okay. And can you explain what you mean by broker a
 18 meeting by a note?
 19 A. That I would introduce them to one another, provide 20 their contact information, and step back and ask 21 them to work out when and where they would meet to 22 determine the kind of relationship they might seek 23 to have.
 24 Q. Were there other candidates for EM who were still 25 being considered as of February 20th, 2013?

1 A. Yes.
 2 Q. Did you broker a meeting between the Mayor's
 3 personal assistant and those other candidates?
 4 A. No.
 5 Q. Did you write an email similar to this one to the 6 other candidates where you said I would not think we
 7 could agree to without your review, assessment and
 8 determination?
 9 A. No.
 10 Q. Do you know whether Mr. Bing -- I'm sorry, Mr. Orr
 11 met with the Mayor's personal assistant?
 12 A. I don't know.
 13 Q. Okay. What did you mean by the phrase who is not 14 FOIAble?
 15 A. The Mayor and Kevyn wished to meet privately, and so
 16 the person who was going to set that up was someone
 17 the Mayor had recommended set it up because she, I
 18 believe, was not a City employee.
 19 Q. Oh, so the Mayor's personal assistant was not a City
 20 employee?
 21 A. I believe when I said personal, it was personal
 22 assistant.
 23 Q. And why did you tell Mr. Orr in this email that the 24 personal assistant was not FOIAble?
 25 A. Because she was not -- it was my understanding she

1 was not a City employee.
 2 Q. Why did you think that was something -- that she was
 3 not FOIAble, why did you think that was something
 4 worth mentioning to Mr. Orr in this email? What did
 5 it matter?
 6 A. Because the Mayor wished for a private meeting, not 7 a meeting that would be publicly disclosed.
 8 Q. Did Mr. Orr say anything about whether he wanted a
 9 private meeting?
 10 A. I don't recall. He said he wanted a meeting. I
 11 don't recall him saying he wanted a private meeting.
 12 Q. Okay. So who was it that wanted the meeting or was 13 it both? The Mayor or Mr. Orr?
 14 A. Mayor Bing wanted to meet the potential candidate,
 15 and Mr. Orr wanted to assess a potential working 16 relationship with Mayor Bing as one of the 17 conditions for success in the event he accepted the 18 recommendation.
 19 Q. How did Mr. Bing know that Mr. Orr was a candidate?
 20 A. I told him.
 21 Q. Okay. Did you tell him who the other candidates
 22 were?
 23 A. No. And I didn't tell him Mr. Orr's name until such 24 time as he -- the two of them expressed a desire to 25 meet.

1 Q. Okay. I'd like to mark as Exhibit 6 another
 2 document which I'll have the court reporter show
 3 you.
 4
 5 (Deposition Exhibit 6 was marked.)
 6
 7 BY MR. DeCHIARA:
 8 Q. And for the record, I'll identify it as a multipage
 9 document. The first page is stamped at the bottom
 10 JD-RD 0000459.
 11 Mr. Baird, let me refer your attention to 12 the email that's in the middle of the first page of 13 Exhibit 6. Is that an email that you wrote to Kevyn
 14 Orr on February 22nd, 2013?
 15 A. Is that the one timed 11:35 a.m.?
 16 Q. I'm looking at the one that says 11:41 a.m.
 17 A. Okay.
 18 Q. That's sort of smack in the middle. Or at least the 19 date code is sort of right in the middle of -- 20 A. Yes, I believe I sent that.
 21 Q. Okay. And do you recall this email?
 22 A. Vaguely I recall it.
 23 Q. It says "Kevyn, about to be in a car for several 24 hours so I thought I would send this to you prior to 25 hearing back from the G a final time."

1 The G is the Governor?
 2 A. Yes.
 3 Q. Okay. And then it continues "If you agree with what
 4 I have done to the doc based on everyone's input,
 5 and agree that you should be the one to provide it
 6 to the Mayor as fully endorsed by the Governor and 7 the Treasurer (and you), then I think that clearly
 8 establishes that you are already behaving as an
 9 agent of the State committed to getting Detroit back
 10 on track."
 11 What was the doc? And I assume that was 12 short for document?
 13 A. Yes.
 14 Q. What was the document you were referring to?
 15 A. It would have been the summary of partnership that 16 the original draft had been provided by Mayor Bing.
 17 Q. Okay. So you were showing -- in this email you were 18 showing Mr. Orr certain modifications you had made
 19 to the document; is that correct?
 20 A. Yes.
 21 Q. And were you looking for his input?
 22 A. I was looking for input and/or agreement.
 23 Q. From Mr. Orr?
 24 A. Yes.
 25 Q. Okay. Did you -- this is two days after the

1 document we were discussing in Exhibit 5.
 2 Were there still other candidates for the
 3 EM position as of February 22nd, 2013?
 4 A. There was one other candidate.
 5 Q. Okay. Did you send that other candidate an email
 6 like this looking for the other candidate's input
 7 and agreement to the document you refer to in 8 Exhibit 6?
 9 A. No.
 10 Q. Okay. Did Mr. Orr give you his input and/or 11 agreement?
 12 A. I believe he did.
 13 Q. Okay. And did his giving the input or agreement
 14 clearly establish to you that he was already
 15 behaving as an agent of the State?
 16 A. No. The use of the term agent of the State was my 17 attempt at continuing the recruiting pressure on 18 Kevyn Orr because he was clearly not an agent of the 19 State.
 20 Q. But nonetheless you wrote to him saying that if he 21 did what you were asking, he -- that would clearly
 22 establish that he was already behaving as an agent
 23 of the State.
 24 Am I reading what you wrote there
 25 correctly?

1 A. The man had not formally committed to the role, and 2 I was attempting to recruit him. And it was in that
 3 context that I put that statement, which now would 4 appear to be a little presumptuous on my part.
 5 Q. Just to be clear, at this point Mr. Orr was still a
 6 partner at the Jones Day law firm?
 7 A. I believe so.
 8 Q. Okay. Well, in fact, he didn't cease to be a
 9 partner until he became EM -- or EFM; is that
 10 correct?
 11 A. I never saw his withdrawal from the partnership, so
 12 you'd have to talk to them about that.
 13 Q. Okay. Do you have a general understanding about 14 when he severed his ties with the firm?
 15 A. My understanding is he was no longer a partner when 16 he became the EM.
 17 Q. Was he a partner when he became the EFM?
 18 A. No. Well, I don't know, but my understanding was 19 that he was not.
 20 Q. Are you familiar with a provision of the Michigan
 21 State Constitution, Article 9 Section 24, that 22 refers to pensions?
 23 A. I am.
 24 Q. What's your understanding of that provision?
 25 A. Would you like to read it?

1 Q. No, I just want to know what your general
 2 understanding is of the provision.
 3 A. Well, I'm not an attorney so I'm not going to give a
 4 legal interpretation.
 5 Q. And just for the record, I'm not seeking one.
 6 A. Okay. Good.
 7 Q. But you do have some idea what the provision is 8 about?
 9 A. I've read the provision.
 10 Q. Okay. What's your understanding of it?
 11 A. My understanding of it is that the Constitution
 12 protects pensions to the extent that they are fully 13 accrued and then they cannot be altered.
 14 There is some degree of difference of 15 opinion about whether a fully-funded pension has the 16 same protection under the Constitution as one that 17 is not fully funded.
 18 Q. And do you have a view on that subject?
 19 A. No.
 20 Q. Have you ever discussed Article 9 Section 24 with 21 anybody?
 22 A. Yes.
 23 Q. With whom have you discussed it?
 24 A. I don't recall. Various people.
 25 Q. Have you ever discussed it with Kevyn Orr?

Page 43

1 A. Yes.
 2 Q. And on one occasion or more than one occasion?
 3 A. One occasion.
 4 Q. What occasion was that?
 5 A. It was early on in our conversation where I
 6 indicated to him that I was aware of the existence
 7 of the article and that he should be aware of it as 8 well. He said he was aware of it. And that was our 9 discussion.
 10 Q. And was this -- can you locate this conversation in 11 time? Was it, for example, before the February 11th
 12 meeting that you and Mr. Orr and the Governor had?
 13 A. No, sir, I can't. During the course of a
 14 recruitment you cover an awful lot of ground and you 15 answer a lot of questions and you raise lots of 16 issues, and you do the best you can to help an 17 individual get to the best answer as it relates to 18 an opportunity like this.
 19 Q. Okay. Was it -- the conversation before Mr. Orr
 20 became EM?
 21 A. Yes. I believe it was.
 22 Q. It was while you were recruiting him, correct?
 23 A. Yes.
 24 Q. Okay. So you -- just so I understand, you on one 25 occasion brought up to him, Mr. Orr, the subject of

1 Article 9 Section 24?
 2 A. I brought up to him the fact that the Michigan
 3 Constitution has a provision as it relates to 4 pensions and he should be aware of it.
 5 Q. And what did he respond?
 6 A. He said he was aware of it.
 7 Q. Did you have any further discussion about Article 9
 8 Section 24?
 9 A. No.
 10 Q. Okay. Other than Mr. Orr -- well, strike that.
 11 Did you ever speak to the Governor about
 12 Article 9 Section 24?
 13 MR. ELLSWORTH: Object to the extent that 14 it may call for lawyer-client privileged
 15 information.
 16 BY MR. DeCHIARA:
 17 Q. Okay. I'm going to modify my question to ask you to 18 exclude occasions on which you spoke to the Governor
 19 in the presence of counsel.
 20 A. The answer would be no.
 21 Q. Did you ever speak to Mr. Dillon about Article 9
 22 Section 24 with the same caveat as to not in front
 23 of counsel?
 24 A. I don't think so.
 25 Q. Do you recall speaking to anyone at Jones Day about

1 Article 29 -- Article 9 Section 24 of the Michigan
2 Constitution?

3 MR. ELLSWORTH: Same objection.
4 MR. DeCHIARA: Okay.
5 BY MR. DeCHIARA:
6 Q. Let me modify it to say before Jones Day was 7 retained by the City, did you speak to anyone at 8 Jones Day about Article 9 Section 24?
9 A. No, I don't believe so.
10 Q. Did you ever speak to the Attorney General of the 11 State of Michigan about Article 9 Section 24?
12 A. No.
13 MR. ELLSWORTH: Objection; attorney-client.
14 BY MR. DeCHIARA:
15 Q. Did you ever speak to Mr. Orr about what could or 16 should be done about Detroit's pension liability?
17 A. No.
18 Q. Outside of the presence of counsel, did you ever
19 have a discussion on that subject with the Governor?
20 A. No.
21 Q. What about with Mr. Dillon?
22 A. No.
23 Q. What about with anyone else on the staff of Mr. Orr
24 or on the staff of the Governor or the staff of 25 Mr. Dillon, again, outside the presence of counsel?

1 A. I recall one conversation where I requested some 2 analytics on the distribution of pensioner income,
3 so instead of dealing with averages I could see the 4 distribution between those at the low end, those at 5 the high end and where it all fell so I could at 6 least have some understanding of what any impact
7 would be in the event of pension reduction.
8 Q. Who did you have that conversation with?
9 A. I know I had it with Kevyn Orr once and I believe I
10 had it with Andy Dillon once.
11 Q. When was your conversation with Mr. Orr on the 12 subject?
13 A. It would have been after he was the emergency
14 manager, but I don't recall how long he'd been in 15 that role.
16 Q. Okay. Was it before the bankruptcy filing?
17 A. I don't believe so.
18 Q. You think it was after the bankruptcy filing?
19 A. I think it was.
20 Q. Okay. And did you say that you requested data on 21 pensions from somebody?
22 A. I requested data on -- whether the data existed on 23 the distribution by pension amount, numbers of 24 pensioners and pension amount, for the current 25 roughly 20,000 pensioners.

1 Q. And who -- did you ask Mr. Orr for this data?
2 A. I asked Mr. Orr to see if the data could be obtained
3 because I thought it was relevant.
4 Q. And what would it be relevant to in your -- why did
5 you think it was relevant?
6 A. At the time I was wondering if it was possible for 7 the State to consider legislation that would provide
8 an incremental safety net to those at the lower end
9 of the spectrum.
10 Q. And you said you thought that was relevant. What 11 did you think it was relevant to?
12 A. Well, it was relevant to a question I had, and I
13 didn't know the answer so I asked to get the data.
14 Q. What was the question you had?
15 A. My question was whether or not there were other 16 avenues to provide relief to those pensioners that 17 conceivably could be impacted at the lower end of 18 the continuum.
19 And that was not based on discussions with 20 anybody else, it was simply a question that I had 21 because I didn't know the answer.
22 Q. And the question you had, when you say the person --
23 the pensioners who would be impacted, were you
24 thinking impacted in that their accrued pension
25 benefits might be reduced?

1 A. Yes.
2 Q. And did Mr. Orr provide you the data you requested?
3 A. No.
4 Q. Did he -- when you asked him for it, what did he 5 say, if anything?
6 A. He said it was a good question and he'd get back to 7 me. But to the best of my recollection, he didn't.
8 Q. Did you ever follow up?
9 A. I honestly can't remember.
10 Q. Okay. Did he say anything other than it's a good
11 question?
12 A. Nope.
13 Q. You said you had a conversation with Andy Dillon on 14 the same subject. When was your conversation with 15 him on this subject?
16 A. It would have been about the same time. This was 17 after the bankruptcy had already been filed and 18 there was a lot of noise about whether pensions
19 would be impacted, and I was trying to ascertain the 20 practical implications if they were.
21 Q. And did you ask Mr. Dillon for the data on the 22 distribution of the number of pensioners and --
23 A. No.
24 Q. -- the amount of pensions?
25 A. No. I asked -- I actually told him that I'd ask

1 Kevyn, that I'd made that question to Kevyn.
 2 Q. And did Mr. Dillon say anything in response when you
 3 told him that?
 4 A. Good question.
 5 Q. Did he ever -- did he or anyone on his staff ever
 6 get back to you with the data you were looking for?
 7 A. Not that I recall.
 8 Q. Did you speak to anyone about your idea to have 9 legislation that would provide an incremental safety
 10 net for the people on the low end of the spectrum?
 11 A. I spoke with Dennis Muchmore about it, the 12 Governor's chief of staff, and he's the only one.
 13 Q. And what did he say, if anything?
 14 A. He didn't know. He said I don't know what the 15 appetite for that would be, but it's a good
 16 question.
 17 Q. Now, were you -- when you spoke to Mr. Muchmore,
 18 were you proposing that Mr. Muchmore take steps to 19 see if such legislation could be enacted?
 20 A. No. I was asking a question about in the event that 21 pensions were impacted what is the practical
 22 implication to those depending on the money every 23 month. I wanted to know.
 24 Q. And do you know now as you sit here today? Have you
 25 ever seen that data?

1 A. No, I have not.
 2 Q. Okay. But did you speak to Mr. Muchmore about the 3 idea of the legislation you described?
 4 A. I just mentioned to him -- I asked him the question
 5 what do you think the appetite would be, and he said
 6 he didn't know.
 7 Q. Okay. Do you know whether there had been any 8 discussions by the Governor and his staff about the 9 legislation you described?
 10 A. No, I don't.
 11 Q. Have you ever followed up?
 12 A. Not on that, no.
 13 Q. Do you have any sense without having seen the data
 14 of what the practical impact would be on the 15 individuals at the low end of the spectrum if their 16 accrued pension benefits were reduced?
 17 A. Only anecdotal.
 18 Q. And what's your anecdotal knowledge?
 19 A. Anecdotal knowledge is that the majority of the 20 pensioners are at the lower end of the spectrum and 21 so the implications of a pension reduction probably 22 couldn't be directed toward the higher end of the 23 spectrum at a sufficient level to make it feasible.
 24 Q. So your understanding is that -- to make what 25 feasible?

1 A. Let me back up. I'm a numbers guy. I wanted to 2 know of the 20,000 pensioners that exist, where do
 3 they fall along a distribution continuum.
 4 What I was looking to see is whether the 5 distribution, the standard deviation was such that 6 if there was a reduction that the number -- would 7 the numbers be material if that reduction were 8 weighted toward the larger pension earners versus 9 the lower pension earners.
 10 And, anecdotally, I was told that the 11 number of pension earners are at the lower end and 12 that the standard deviation is not very great.
 13 Q. So in order for there to be a meaningful savings by 14 the City if it reduced pensions, it would have to 15 reduce the pensions of many of those people who are 16 at the low end of the spectrum; is that -- am I
 17 understanding that correctly?
 18 A. Anecdotally, that's my understanding.
 19 Q. Okay. And did you have any practical -- I'm 20 sorry -- did you have any sense, anecdotally or 21 otherwise, of what the real world impact would be on 22 those individuals on the low end of the spectrum if 23 their pensions were reduced?
 24 A. No, because the data never materialized for me.
 25 Q. Do you have any sense whether if pensions of those

1 people at the low end of the spectrum were reduced
 2 it would be difficult for those individuals to make 3 ends meet?
 4 A. I don't know.
 5 MR. ELLSWORTH: I wasn't sure he heard your 6 question because he was retrieving his microphone.
 7 BY MR. DeCHIARA:
 8 Q. Did you hear my question?
 9 A. Would you repeat it?
 10 Q. Sure. Do you have any sense whether if the pensions
 11 of those people at the low end of the spectrum were 12 reduced, would it be difficult for those individuals
 13 to make ends meet?
 14 A. I would have no way of knowing in the absence of 15 real data.
 16 Q. Are you familiar with a letter that the Governor
 17 signed on July 18th, 2013, in which he purported to 18 authorize the filing of the bankruptcy of the City
 19 of Detroit?
 20 A. I know that that letter existed.
 21 Q. Okay. Did you see the letter in any draft or 22 nonfinal forms before the Governor signed it?
 23 A. No.
 24 Q. Did you participate in any way in the preparation of 25 that letter?

1 A. No.

2 Q. Did the Governor speak to you about the preparation
3 of that letter?

4 A. No.

5 Q. Did he speak to you about the contents of the letter
6 before he signed the letter?

7 A. No.

8 Q. Did you have anything at all to do with that letter?

9 A. No.

10 Q. Okay. You're aware, are you not, that a couple days
11 before the Governor signed that letter that Mr. Orr
12 had sent the Governor a letter in which Mr. Orr
13 requested permission to file for bankruptcy, right?

14 A. I am aware. I don't recall having seen that letter
15 but I am aware one was sent.

16 Q. Have you ever seen that letter?

17 A. I don't think so.

18 Q. Did Mr. Orr ever speak to you about that letter
19 before he sent it?

20 A. He spoke to me, yes.

21 Q. And was it on one or more than one occasion?

22 A. No, just on one occasion.

23 Q. Let me represent to you the letter was dated
24 July 16th, 2013.

25 When did you speak to Mr. Orr about the

1 letter?

2 A. I don't recall, but it would have been very near 3 when it was sent.

4 Q. Near before or near after?

5 A. Maybe right at the time it was sent. I recall a
6 conversation with Kevyn where he said I'm going to 7 do this.

8 Q. Okay. What else, if anything, do you recall about
9 that conversation?

10 A. The reason I recall it is because he had asked me to 11 circle back to members of the consulting
12 restructuring team to talk to them about their scope
13 and service and fees because it was -- these were 14 conversations he had planned to have but hadn't had 15 a chance, and so I did that.

16 Q. So about the time that -- I just want to see if I'm 17 understanding your testimony.

18 About the time that Mr. Orr sent his 19 July 16th letter to the Governor requesting 20 permission to file for bankruptcy, he spoke to you
21 about the letter?

22 A. I believe he did.

23 Q. Okay. Did he call you?

24 A. I don't recall.

25 Q. Did he initiate the contact?

1 A. I don't recall.

2 Q. Was it a face-to-face meeting or a telephone call?

3 A. I believe it was telephone.

4 Q. And to the best of your recollection, can you
5 recount what you said and what he said in that 6 telephone call?

7 A. I honestly don't recall other than he said I haven't
8 completed my conversations with the restructuring
9 team relative to their scope and services and fee
10 projections, and I agreed to do that on his behalf.

11 Q. Who was the restructuring team?

12 A. These would have been the principals associated with 13 Conway MacKenzie, Ernst and Young, Jones Day, and 14 Miller Buckfire.

15 Q. And Mr. Orr said he wanted to complete a 16 conversation with those individuals you just 17 mentioned about their fees?

18 A. Yeah. He had been engaged with them around putting 19 a fine point on their fee estimates as opposed to a 20 broad -- you know, sort of broad here's what we 21 think it might cost, but he hadn't had the, you
22 know, detailed discussions and so he asked if I
23 would do that.

24 Q. And did you do that?

25 A. I did.

1 Q. And what, if anything, did that have to do with the
2 July 16th letter that Mr. Orr sent to the Governor
3 to request permission to file for bankruptcy?

4 A. I think it was important because the fees and the 5 scope once the filing had been completed would not
6 have been subject to much in the way of reduction.

7 Q. Did you have any other -- was that the extent of 8 your conversation with Mr. Orr on that occasion?

9 A. Yes.

10 Q. And did you have any other discussions with Mr. Orr
11 about his July 16th letter before he sent the 12 letter?

13 A. No.

14 Q. Do you -- are you aware that in the Governor's
15 letter, the July 18th, 2013 letter, the Governor
16 said that he was not going to impose contingencies
17 on the filing? Are you familiar with that?

18 A. No, I don't recall actually having ever seen the 19 letter.

20 Q. Okay. Are you aware that there were certain state
21 court lawsuits that were filed prior to the 22 bankruptcy filing concerning issues related to 23 Article 29 Section 24 of the Michigan Constitution?

24 MR. WERTHEIMER: Article 9.

25 MR. DeCHIARA: Thank you.

Page 57

1 BY MR. DeCHIARA:
 2 Q. Article 9 Section 24 of the Michigan Constitution?
 3 A. No.
 4 Q. Did you ever discuss with the Governor the timing of 5 the bankruptcy filing, meaning outside of the scope
 6 of counsel, did you ever discuss with the Governor
 7 when it would be best to -- for the City of Detroit
 8 to file for bankruptcy?
 9 A. No.
 10 Q. Are you aware that the State or at least the 11 Governor's office had prepared a schedule that 12 indicated that the bankruptcy filing was to occur on 13 July 19th, 2013, but it actually occurred the prior 14 day? Are you aware of that?
 15 A. I'm aware of a communications schedule that had the 16 19th I think as the date.
 17 Q. And are you aware that the filing actually occurred 18 the day before?
 19 A. I was aware of the filing when it occurred, which 20 occurred the day before.
 21 Q. Okay. Do you have any understanding or knowledge as 22 to why it occurred the day before it had been 23 planned to occur?
 24 A. No.
 25 Q. Did you ever -- outside of the presence of legal

Page 58

1 counsel, did you ever discuss that with the
 2 Governor?
 3 A. No.
 4 Q. Okay. Did you speak with the Governor outside of 5 the presence of legal counsel since he had his 6 deposition taken yesterday?
 7 A. Yes.
 8 Q. Did you speak about his deposition?
 9 A. No.
 10 Q. I'd like to show you a document -- well, are you
 11 aware of a document that Mr. Orr presented to 12 creditors on January 14th, 2013 called --
 13 MR. WERTHEIMER: June 14th.
 14 MR. DeCHIARA: Thank you.
 15 BY MR. DeCHIARA:
 16 Q. June 14th, 2013 called Proposal for Creditors?
 17 A. May I see it?
 18 Q. Yes.
 19 A. Yes, I am familiar with this document.
 20 Q. Okay. And did you participate in its preparation?
 21 A. No.
 22 Q. Did you comment on it before it was in its final
 23 form?
 24 A. No.
 25 Q. Were you asked to review it before it was made

1 final?
 2 A. No. Well, not that I recall.
 3 Q. Not that you recall?
 4 A. Yeah. If somebody asked me, it's an email I never 5 saw because I didn't review it.
 6 Q. Okay. Okay. Did you speak to the Governor outside
 7 of the presence of legal counsel about the 8 June 14th, 2013 proposal?
 9 A. I don't believe so.
 10 Q. Did you speak to Mr. Dillon?
 11 A. Yes.
 12 Q. Outside of the presence of legal counsel about the 13 June 14th, 2013 proposal?
 14 A. No.
 15 Q. You spoke to him, but it was in the presence of 16 legal counsel?
 17 A. Yes.
 18 Q. Okay. Did you speak to anyone on the Governor's
 19 staff or Mr. Dillon's staff outside of legal counsel
 20 about the June 14th, 2013 proposal?
 21 A. No.
 22 Q. Did you speak to Mr. Orr about his proposal at any 23 time on or before June 14th, 2013?
 24 A. No.
 25 Q. Did you speak to him about -- did you speak to

Page 60

1 Mr. Orr outside of the presence of legal counsel
 2 about the proposal after June 14th, 2013?
 3 A. I attended that meeting and told him I thought he 4 did a good job in its presentation.
 5 Q. By that meeting you mean the June 14th, 2013
 6 meeting?
 7 A. Yes.
 8 Q. Okay. Do you recall Mr. Orr at the June 14th, 2013
 9 meeting saying words to the effect to the people who 10 were in attendance that this was not a negotiation?
 11 A. No.
 12 Q. Are you denying he said it or you just don't 13 remember if he said it or not?
 14 A. I don't recall him using those words.
 15 Q. Okay. Is it true that those in attendance on 16 June 14th, 2013 in order to be able to speak had to 17 fill out a card and have the card read by someone?
 18 A. I don't know.
 19 Q. I'd like to show you a document which I'll mark as 20 Exhibit 7.
 21
 22 (Deposition Exhibit 7 was marked.)

 24 BY MR. DeCHIARA:
 25 Q. For the record, it's a one-page document stamped at

 2 MR. WERTHEIMER: Seven?
 3 MR. DeCHIARA: Yes.
 4 BY MR. DeCHIARA:
 5 Q. Do you recall receiving this email from Mr. Dillon
 6 on July 18th -- on July 8th, 2013?
 7 A. Let me just finish reading it.
 8 Q. Please.
 9 A. I believe I've seen this before, yes.
 10 Q. In the first sentence Mr. Dillon refers to the 11 Detroit consultants.
 12 Do you know who he's referring to?
 13 A. No. I mean, when he says weekly call with the 14 Detroit consultants, that generally includes Jones
 15 Day, Miller Buckfire, Ernst and Young, Conway
 16 MacKenzie, and at times Milliman.
 17 Q. In the second paragraph it says "We met with the 18 consultants to get briefed on the pension issue this 19 afternoon. I invited Baird and Tedder to join."
 20 Did you join that briefing?
 21 A. I don't believe so, but I don't recall.
 22 Q. Next sentence says "Bottom line, the situation is 23 not good and the view of the consultants is that 24 current pensions have to be cut significantly."
 25 Did you have any conversations with

1 Mr. Dillon about that view that current pensions
 2 have to be cut significantly outside of the presence
 3 of legal counsel?
 4 A. I don't recall. I've had -- I have had discussions
 5 with Andy relative to the funding levels of pensions
 6 and have had discussions with him about the 13th
 7 Check, but I do not recall a specific discussion
 8 around the pensions have to be cut significantly.
 9 Q. Do you have a view yourself -- or strike that.
 10 As of the time of this email, July 8th,
 11 2013, at that period of time did you have a view
 12 yourself as to whether current pensions had to be 13 cut significantly?
 14 A. My view of what's been reported publicly is that the 15 pension funding is not sustainable for the current 16 obligations and future obligations.
 17 Q. What do you mean the pension funding?
 18 A. The funding level of the pension -- the pension
 19 funds.
 20 Q. When you say the funding, do you mean the 21 contributions that are being made are not
 22 sufficient?
 23 A. That's correct.
 24 Q. Okay. And have you -- and, therefore, is it your 25 view because the funding is insufficient that the

1 pensions that are being paid out of the funds need
 2 to be cut significantly?
 3 A. I'm not an actuary, and I don't know the answer to 4 that question.
 5 Q. But do you have a view on that question or an 6 opinion?
 7 A. I have an opinion.
 8 Q. What's your opinion?
 9 A. My opinion is that underfunded -- significantly
 10 underfunded pensions are not sustainable long-term
 11 for current workers or for workers who are more than 12 just a few years away from retirement.
 13 Q. Therefore, is it your view that the Detroit 14 pension -- accrued pension liabilities need to be 15 reduced?
 16 A. No. It's my view that there's not enough money for 17 the current pension obligations and the future
 18 pension obligations. It's not my call whether they 19 get reduced or not.
 20 Q. Well, whether it's your call or not, I'm just asking
 21 do you have a view as to whether or not --
 22 A. My view --
 23 MR. ELLSWORTH: I object to the form, and 24 he's already answered the question.
 25 BY MR. DeCHIARA:

1 Q. Can you answer the question, Mr. Baird?
 2 Do you have a personal view as to whether
 3 or not Detroit's accrued pension liabilities need to 4 be reduced?
 5 A. My view is that if the pensions are underfunded that 6 there will come a time when the obligations cannot 7 be met, and you can't create money out of nothing.
 8 It's not my place to ascertain where the 9 money comes from. It is my place to say to you I
 10 have an opinion that the current pension funds are 11 not sustainable in the current model.
 12 Q. Okay. But you're aware, are you not, that whether 13 or not -- the question of whether or not Detroit's
 14 pension liabilities should be cut is a matter that's 15 been a matter of sharp debate in Detroit over the 16 course of the last few months?
 17 A. I'm aware there's been a lot of debate around this 18 issue.
 19 Q. Okay. And have you ever spoken to the Governor
 20 outside of the presence of legal counsel about this 21 issue, about this debate?
 22 A. Not that I recall.
 23 Q. Okay. Have you ever spoken to anyone on the 24 Governor's staff outside of legal counsel on this -- 25 about this debate?

1 A. Not that I recall.
 2 Q. Same question for Mr. Dillon and Mr. Dillon's staff.
 3 A. Generally speaking, I know we've had discussions but 4 nothing explicit or a course of action forward.
 5 Q. What's your best recollection of the discussions
 6 you've had with Mr. Dillon --
 7 A. Very --
 8 Q. -- outside of the presence of legal counsel?
 9 A. Very general discussions around the sustainability
 10 of the current model and whether it can survive.
 11 Q. Did Mr. Dillon ever say to you words to the effect
 12 that he believed that the pension liabilities of the 13 City of Detroit need to be reduced?
 14 A. No, I don't recall him ever saying that. I recall
 15 him saying that the issues are significant.
 16 Q. Have you ever spoken to Mr. Orr or his -- anyone on 17 his staff outside the presence of legal counsel
 18 about this subject?
 19 A. No.
 20 Q. I'd like to show you a document I'll mark as
 21 Exhibit 8.

 4 A. Okay.
 5 Q. Do you recall receiving this email from Andy Dillon
 6 on July 9th, 2013?
 7 A. No.
 8 Q. Have you ever seen this email before?
 9 A. I don't recall seeing this email before. I get 10 hundreds of emails every day and I don't look at all 11 of them.
 12 Q. If you look at the second paragraph of the email, 13 let me just read it. It says "On Thursday, we 14 expect to receive financials that will help us
 15 better understand the potential negative impact on 16 pensions and what options may be available to us to 17 avoid them."
 18 A. Uh-huh.
 19 Q. Did you ever speak to Mr. Dillon outside of the 20 presence of legal counsel about what options might 21 be available to avoid the potential negative impact
 22 on pensions?
 23 A. No.
 24 Q. Let me read the last sentence of the email. It says
 25 "I have some thoughts as to how you could address

1 some pointed questions if you were interested in
 2 hearing them."
 3 I believe the you in there is -- well,
 4 actually, I don't know who the you in there is. The 5 email was sent -- oh, I guess it's addressed to the 6 Governor. So I assume the you in that email is the 7 Governor.
 8 But let me nonetheless ask you, Mr. Baird,
 9 did Mr. Dillon ever share any thoughts he had with 10 you outside of the presence of legal counsel
 11 regarding thoughts he had about issues related to 12 Detroit's pension liability other than what you've 13 testified to already today?
 14 A. No, not outside presence of legal counsel.
 15 Q. I'd like to show you a document I'll mark as

 24 simply can you identify this document?
 25 A. I'm not sure. Some of the content appears familiar,

Page 68

1 but this format of the document is not familiar to
 2 me.
 3 Q. Okay. So you're not -- can you testify where this 4 document came from or what it is?
 5 A. I couldn't tell you that, no.
 6 MR. DeCHIARA: I have no further questions.
 7 Thank you for your time, Mr. Baird.
 8 THE WITNESS: Thank you.

 15 EXAMINATION
 16 BY MR. WERTHEIMER:
 17 Q. Mr. Baird, my name is Bill Wertheimer. I represent 18 what we've been calling the Flowers plaintiffs,
 19 which are a group of Detroit retirees who filed one
 20 of the lawsuits that preceded the bankruptcy, and 21 I'm going to ask you a few questions.
 22 You testified about a conversation you had 23 with Kevyn Orr right around the time that he sent 24 the letter to the Governor seeking authorization for 25 bankruptcy. Do you recall that?

1 A. I do.
 2 Q. Did he in any way indicate why he was going to make
 3 the request at that time?
 4 A. No. Well, I don't recall that he did.
 5 Q. Do you recall asking him anything about that, you
 6 know, why now Kevyn or what's happening or --
 7 A. No.
 8 Q. Do you recall whether you were surprised about it;
 9 that is the timing, not the act?
 10 Or put another way had you had any kind of 11 a warning or anything going on that would lead you
 12 to think that --
 13 A. I had seen a communications document that had 14 Friday, the -- I don't remember the exact date, but 15 Friday, might have been the 19th?
 16 Q. Right. Friday was the 19th.
 17 A. Right, Friday the 19th as the date that it appeared 18 we'd go forward.
 19 Q. Had you seen that document before the conversation
 20 with Orr?
 21 A. No.
 22 Q. After?
 23 A. After.
 24 Q. Okay. Is the document you saw what was marked at 25 the Governor's deposition as Exhibit 6 or something

1 like it?
 2 A. Yes.
 3 Q. Okay. And do you remember how you came to see that
 4 document? Was it emailed to you, were you talking
 5 to somebody about it?
 6 A. No, I believe it was emailed to me.
 7 Q. Do you remember by who?
 8 A. I don't.
 9 Q. Do you remember whether you talked to anybody about 10 it between its issuance and the actual filing?
 11 A. Talked about the communications plan?
 12 Q. Well, broader than the communications plan but just 13 the fact that it was going to be -- the bankruptcy
 14 was going to occur.
 15 A. No.
 16 Q. Now, you also testified that you had had 17 conversations or a conversation I think you said
 18 with Orr where you asked him a question about the 19 distribution of the income of retirees?
 20 A. Yes.
 21 Q. And you also talked to the Governor's is it chief of 22 staff, Mr. Muchmore?
 23 A. Yes.
 24 Q. About that same issue, not asking a question but 25 about --

1 A. I related my conversation with Kevyn to Dennis.
 2 Q. Can you put a time frame on these conversations?
 3 Can you tell us approximately when they occurred?
 4 A. I believe it was after the filing because of all of 5 the public consternation around pensions, and I --
 6 as I testified earlier, I wanted to know what the 7 practical impact of any action would be.
 8 Q. And if I understand it right, the reason you wanted 9 to know is that was kind of the germ of an idea for 10 maybe some legislation that might be able to at 11 least in some way ameliorate the condition or the 12 problem?
 13 A. Correct. I was thinking unilaterally, which I'm 14 known to do.
 15 Q. I understand. Well, you anticipated my next
 16 question.
 17 At the point you had these conversations,
 18 was it your understanding that it was the Governor's 19 position that the State was not going to be putting 20 any money into Detroit at least as it would relate
 21 to the retiree issue?
 22 A. I don't recall if I would know whether that was the 23 Governor's position, but I was well aware that the 24 legislative appetite for funding to Detroit was 25 highly -- was very low.

1 Q. Okay. Okay. Had you had any conversations up to 2 that point with the Governor where -- excluding
 3 conversations with counsel present -- where you
 4 discussed that fact; that is, we're not going to be 5 able to get legislation through to do anything about
 6 that?
 7 A. No, not explicitly.
 8 Q. Implicitly.
 9 A. Not even implicitly. I don't recall any
 10 conversations with the Governor talking about a 11 strategy where funds would be appropriated for 12 Detroit.
 13 Q. Do you recall as of the point that you made this 14 inquiry of Orr and had the conversation with 15 Muchmore that the Governor publicly was taking the 16 position that although the State might be willing to 17 assist relative to services for residents of the 18 City, it would not be willing to put money in for 19 pensions or anything other than services for the 20 City?
 21 A. I wasn't part of those conversations --
 22 Q. Okay.
 23 A. -- if they existed.
 24 Q. All right. You were shown -- well, it's your 25 deposition, Exhibit No. 1. This is the Jones Day --

1 A. Uh-huh.
 2 Q. -- pitch from January 31st.
 3 A. Yep. Yep.
 4 Q. The pages you were shown, and I'm going to show them
 5 to you again, where there's these ref -- one or more
 6 references to pensions is in part four of the 7 written presentation entitled Components and 8 Considerations for Restructuring Plan.
 9 MR. ELLSWORTH: Do you have a page number,
 10 Mr. Wertheimer?
 11 MR. WERTHEIMER: Yeah, that's page 34.
 12 MR. ELLSWORTH: Thank you.
 13 MR. WERTHEIMER: Sure.
 14 BY MR. WERTHEIMER:
 15 Q. Do you recall who from Jones Day was presenting this 16 part of the pitch? And, again, I'm assuming it was 17 actually presented to you. This isn't just a
 18 writing that they handed out.
 19 A. That's correct.
 20 Q. Okay. Go ahead, then.
 21 A. I believe it was Bruce Bennett.
 22 Q. Did Mr. Orr make any part of the presentation?
 23 A. He did.
 24 Q. What part did he make?
 25 A. His was predominantly a presentation around his

Page 74

1 background, credentials, experience, and his ties to
 2 Michigan.
 3 Q. Not as to any of the specific parts unless there's 4 some reference to Orr and his background in this
 5 document?
 6 A. That's correct.
 7 Q. Okay. Now, I think if you take a look at page 43, I
 8 think that's what counsel showed you before, you'll 9 see the bottom line literally on page 43 reads
 10 "Chapter 9 could be used or threatened..." -- I'm 11 sorry, let me let you get there.
 12 A. Okay.
 13 Q. Take a look at the bottom line. "Chapter 9 could be 14 used or threatened as a means to accomplish a
 15 compromise of benefit cost rejecting or compromising
 16 claims." Do you see that?
 17 A. I do see it.
 18 Q. Do you recall the presentation including that point?
 19 A. I do not recall that specific point, and I note that 20 these are speaker notes which may or may not have 21 been articulated.
 22 Q. Well, that's one of the reasons I'm asking.
 23 A. Because this is the first time I've seen -- I don't 24 have a version --
 25 Q. In this form. I understand.

Page 75

1 A. -- like this.
 2 Q. I understand. And I think you were -- I had 3 misspoke before. You were not shown that page by 4 previous counsel.
 5 You were shown I think if you turn to page
 6 41 the question referenced it. Again, the bottom
 7 line, "If needed, Chapter 9 could be used as a means
 8 to further cut back or compromise accrued financial 9 benefits otherwise protected under the Michigan
 10 Constitution."
 11 Do you recall that point even in a general
 12 way being made in the presentation?
 13 A. This was back in January.
 14 Q. Right.
 15 A. And I don't recall the specific point, but every one
 16 of those firms would have discussed all of the 17 various approaches, strategies, options and whatever
 18 their background and experience had them -- had 19 taught them from other municipal situations.
 20 So generally, it could have been made, but 21 I don't recall it.
 22 Q. All right. Do you recall that by the time all those 23 pitches were made that you were of the understanding
 24 that the lawyers, whether Jones Day or one of the 25 other firms, were of the view that Chapter 9 could

1 be used as a means to cut back these Michigan --
 2 these benefits that are otherwise covered by this
 3 Michigan constitutional provision?
 4 A. No, I am not. Not explicitly.
 5 I do recall discussions around Chapter 9
 6 but not as it pertains specifically to any Michigan
 7 Constitution article.
 8 Q. Do you recall -- and I think the time frame is May,
 9 I could find it somewhere, but Kevyn Orr was already 10 emergency manager, he was interviewed by the Detroit
 11 Free Press and rather publicly, and in a way that 12 ended up getting spread around publicity wise,
 13 talked about the fact that in a Chapter 9 filing the 14 pension rights of retirees could be trumped, was the 15 word he used, by federal law.
 16 Do you recall generally the Emergency
 17 Manager making that point at around that point in 18 time?
 19 A. I've made it a practice to not read the Detroit
 20 newspapers these days.
 21 Q. All right. I'll accept that. Do you recall that at 22 least by that point in time you knew that, in fact,
 23 that Orr was taking that position; that is, that he 24 was using Chapter 9 -- I don't want to use
 25 pejorative terms --

Page 77

1 A. No.
 2 Q. -- but that he was using the possibility of a
 3 Chapter 9 as a way to try and convince people to sit
 4 down and talk with him --
 5 A. What I --
 6 Q. -- particularly retirees?
 7 A. Right.
 8 Q. Go ahead.
 9 MR. ELLSWORTH: Just let him get his 10 question out before you answer.
 11 THE WITNESS: Yeah. No, no, I got it.
 12 You'll have to ask Kevyn Orr, but were I he, I would 13 use every possible means to get people to the table
 14 before petitioning The Court, and I believe he was 15 doing exactly that.
 16 BY MR. WERTHEIMER:
 17 Q. Okay, fair enough.
 18 At the point he filed bankruptcy, do you
 19 have an understanding as to whether there was any 20 way that the City could deal with the problem of 21 pensions without going into bankruptcy?
 22 A. Repeat the question.
 23 Q. As of let's say the time the bankruptcy was filed,
 24 as of that time, did you have an understanding that 25 bankruptcy was going to be the only way that the

1 City could deal with its pension problem without
 2 asking for State assistance, State assistance that
 3 you knew you'd have -- that the Governor would have 4 difficulty getting?
 5 A. I had not contemplated it in terms of the City's 6 pension problem. I have contemplated it in terms of 7 $18 billion in liability and bondings that couldn't
 8 be paid and debt service that it was becoming clear
 9 to me that in the absence of any negotiated
 10 agreements with any of the major constituencies that 11 bankruptcy was becoming more and more evident with 12 each passing month.
 13 Q. You had mentioned that you had a -- when I say you
 14 mentioned, you testified in response to earlier
 15 counsel's questions that you do recall having one
 16 conversation with Orr about the issue of this 17 state constitutional provision that protects
 18 pensions.
 19 Do you recall that?
 20 A. I do.
 21 Q. Okay. Can you put a time frame on that at all?
 22 A. It was back during the early interaction with Kevyn.
 23 I had gotten in the habit of carrying a small
 24 Constitution with me because I was referring to it
 25 on a regular basis across many things, and so I knew

1 the article was there and I said to Kevyn, are you
 2 aware of this? He said we're aware.
 3 Q. He didn't go beyond that at all. He didn't suggest
 4 in any way, shape or form how he intended to deal
 5 with it?
 6 A. No, not to me.
 7 Q. Okay. And do you have a memory as to what triggered
 8 you to talk to him about it at that point in time
 9 other than that you had the Constitution in your 10 pocket?
 11 A. No, sir, other than -- you asked about the trigger.
 12 During the recruitment process, we covered
 13 a lot of ground, and that ground included all the 14 reasons you should do this and all the reasons you
 15 shouldn't do it. And it was a discussion that took 16 place over a few weeks, and I don't recall any 17 specific trigger other than an old T square saying
 18 here are the pros and the cons and the things you
 19 ought to be thinking about it.
 20 Q. All right. It's part of you giving him information?
 21 A. Yes, that's fair.
 22 Q. That you are hoping will be helpful to him?
 23 A. That would be a fair characterization.
 24 MR. WERTHEIMER: Okay. All right. I have 25 nothing further. Thank you.

1 EXAMINATION
 2 BY MR. SHERWOOD:
 3 Q. Good afternoon, Mr. Baird. I'm Jack Sherwood from 4 Lowenstein Sandler, and we represent AFSCME in the 5 City's bankruptcy. I have a few questions. I'll 6 try not to go over ground that's already been 7 covered.
 8 Let me just go back to your engagement by 9 the Governor. In reviewing your testimony from the 10 prior case, did that start in January 2011?
 11 A. It did.
 12 Q. And I think you also testified that the EM selection
 13 process began in October or November 2012; is that
 14 right?
 15 A. I would not characterize it as a selection process,
 16 but I would characterize it as I began thinking
 17 about planning for the future in a substantive way
 18 about that time.
 19 Q. And I think you said that you were looking for 20 sources and candidates. Does that sound right?
 21 A. Yes. I would through my own network or the network
 22 of people that I knew and trusted, I would look for 23 individuals that had characteristics, and then I
 24 would talk to them about either their potential for 25 a role like this or whether they knew of

1 individuals.
 2 So that's what I meant by sources or
 3 candidates.
 4 Q. Right. So a source is someone who isn't necessarily 5 a candidate but might refer someone, a candidate, to 6 you, correct?
 7 A. They could be both.
 8 Q. Okay. Was Jones Day or anyone from Jones Day a
 9 source that you contacted?
 10 A. Prior to meeting Steve Brogan, no.
 11 Q. And when did you meet Steve Brogan?
 12 A. January 29th, it appears.
 13 Q. So prior to that, no sources from Jones Day. How 14 about Miller Buckfire source?
 15 A. Yes. Ken Buckfire was a source.
 16 Q. I want to talk a little bit about NERD. We'll use
 17 that acronym again. They pay your bills, correct?
 18 A. They pay my fees, yes.
 19 Q. And that's been the case since January of 2011?
 20 A. Correct.
 21 Q. Can you just give me a little more detail on how 22 that came about?
 23 A. Do you have specific questions, because I've 24 testified already.
 25 Q. I -- yeah. I'd like to know how it came about.

Page 82

1 A. Okay. My original agreement with Governor Snyder
 2 was once we pulled the cabinet and his direct
 3 reports together after he was elected during the 4 transition period that I would be returning to my
 5 home at that time in Illinois.
 6 On the first day after his inauguration,
 7 the first working day, he asked me if I would
 8 consider staying on for a year, and I said I would.
 9 And he said -- I said but I don't make for a very
 10 good bureaucrat or government employee, and he said
 11 if you would make me -- if you would make, you know,
 12 the team your exclusive client, how much would it
 13 cost? And I gave him a very cut rate amount, and he 14 said we could cover that out of this fund to further
 15 good government at non-taxpayer expense.
 16 Q. And would you describe the fund as a lobbyist fund?
 17 A. A lobbyist?
 18 Q. Yeah.
 19 A. What would a lobbyist fund be?
 20 Q. I don't know. I guess you're --
 21 A. If you tell me what a lobbyist fund is, I'll tell
 22 you if I think it's a lobbyist fund.
 23 Q. Well, is --
 24 MR. WERTHEIMER: It's not good.
 25 BY MR. SHERWOOD:

Page 83

1 Q. Would you describe the New Energy to Reinvent and,
 2 what is it, Diversify?
 3 A. Yes.
 4 Q. Would you describe that as an entity that engages in 5 lobbying?
 6 A. No.
 7 Q. And do you know who manages NERD?
 8 A. No.
 9 Q. And you don't know who is on the board? You don't 10 know who the officers, directors are --
 11 A. No.
 12 Q. -- or trustees?
 13 A. Nope.
 14 Q. You just know the name of the person who signs your 15 check; is that right?
 16 A. I do. I know who I submit the invoice to and I know
 17 who signs the check. Outside of that, I don't know
 18 anything else.
 19 Q. You don't know who any of their backers are?
 20 A. Don't know a single donor.
 21 Q. Okay. The January 29th meeting -- a couple more
 22 questions -- was Mr. Buckfire there?
 23 A. He was.
 24 Q. And what role did he play in organizing the meeting?
 25 A. Ken advised Andy, Chris Andrews and Jack Martin, the

1 City's CFO at the time, on considerations and 2 capabilities of firms that specialized in
 3 restructuring.
 4 And so he identified the firms that he
 5 thought had significant expertise in the areas that 6 would be of greatest interest to the City, and he 7 said these are the firms that we should bring in to 8 help you understand how to construct a request for 9 proposal to a broader variety of firms.
 10 Q. Did he devise some type of scoring system for the 11 firms at that meeting?
 12 A. Not that I saw, no.
 13 Q. How about afterwards?
 14 A. No. I'm trying to recall, and I don't think I ever 15 saw any sort of a scoring mechanism for any of these 16 firms.
 17 Q. Did you have any role in the selection of Jones Day
 18 as the City's counsel?
 19 A. I did not.
 20 Q. Did you express any preference to the City as to who 21 should be retained as counsel?
 22 A. I believe Jack Martin asked my opinion from what I
 23 thought at that meeting and from my prior experience
 24 with firms when I was with Price Waterhouse Coopers,
 25 and I believe that I gave him my opinion at the

1 time.

2 And my opinion was that I didn't think he

3 would go wrong with several of the firms, but that I

4 thought Jones Day by and large had more of the fire

5 power in the various areas that the firm -- that the 6 City was looking for than the others did.

7 Q. During the Jones Day presentation -- hold it. Let 8 me step back.

9 I think you said something like one of the 10 reasons you chose Jones Day was that they have --

11 they'd do a better job of keeping Detroit out of

12 bankruptcy.

13 Do you remember testifying to that?

14 A. No, I don't believe I testified to that. I do

15 recall what I intended to say if that wasn't it.

16 Q. What did you intend to say? Did you think Jones Day

17 had offered the City a better chance to stay out of

18 Chapter 9?

19 A. I don't know that Jones Day as a firm had -- I don't

20 have an opinion whether Jones Day as a firm is --

21 would help the City stay out of Chapter 9 or not.

22 It was my contention that in the 23 recommendation of Kevyn Orr as a great candidate for 24 the emergency manager, that his background and

25 experience would serve as a significant reminder to

Page 86

1 folks that they should negotiate in good faith to

2 stay out of the courts because here is a man who

3 understood exactly how to navigate the courts.

4 Q. But isn't it true that Mr. Orr and Jones Day were of

5 the view at all times that it would be extremely

6 difficult to keep the City of Detroit out of

7 Chapter 9?

8 MR. ELLSWORTH: I object to foundation.

9 THE WITNESS: I don't know that.

10 BY MR. SHERWOOD:

11 Q. Can you look at page 13 of the presentation.

12 A. Uh-huh.

13 Q. And if you look at the end of it, basically you'd

14 agree that this slide talks about out-of-court

15 solutions being preferred, but the conclusion at the 16 end is that they are extremely difficult to achieve

17 in practice. Do you see that?

18 A. I do see it.

19 Q. Did anyone from Jones Day convey this message to the 20 group at the meeting on January 29th?

21 A. I don't recall explicitly, no.

22 Q. And if you look at the next page, page 14, you know

23 even for the speaker notes it says an out-of-court

24 solution requires consensus or near consensus of 25 affected constituencies. This is extremely hard to

1 achieve in practice.

2 Do you recall as part of the oral

3 presentation someone from Jones Day saying that the

4 idea that the City of Detroit is going to avoid

5 Chapter 9 is pretty farfetched?

6 A. I don't recall anyone saying that the idea was 7 farfetched.

8 Q. Well, do you recall them using words like that?

9 A. No, I don't.

10 Q. You don't recall words like extremely difficult, as 11 it says on the slide?

12 A. Well, I don't recall those words, but I wouldn't 13 dispute them.

14 Q. Do you recall words like -- do you recall Mr. Orr

15 having conversations with you wherein he suggested

16 that it would be extremely difficult to achieve an

17 out-of-court solution to Detroit's fiscal problems?

18 MR. ELLSWORTH: Objection to the extent

19 that it would disclose lawyer-client conversations.

20 BY MR. SHERWOOD:

21 Q. Do you recall any such conversations outside the 22 presence of counsel?

23 A. Again, which conversations? That achieving success

24 out of court is difficult?

1 A. Yes, I do recall those conversations.

2 Q. Do you recall those conversations with Mr. Orr

3 outside of the presence of counsel, correct?

4 A. No, not with Mr. Orr.

5 Q. With who?

6 A. With the principals at McKenna Long.

7 Q. Is that a law firm?

8 A. Yes.

9 Q. And who do they represent?

10 A. We asked them for -- I guess when I say we, Andy

11 Dillon asked them for their best rationale on how to 12 keep us out of the courts and what the implications,

13 you know, of going into the courts were, to educate

14 the team on our resolve to stay out of the courts.

15 MR. ELLSWORTH: Excuse me. Was that

16 another presenter, just to clarify this.

17 BY MR. SHERWOOD:

18 Q. Was McKenna Long making a presentation?

19 A. They were one of the firms in presence at this

20 meeting.

21 Q. Did they have that conversation with you at that

22 meeting or is that something that occurred before or

23 after that meeting?

24 A. It occurred before.

25 Q. How long before?

Page 89

1 A. I don't recall.
 2 Q. And at the time, McKenna Long wasn't retained by the 3 City as its counsel?
 4 A. No, they weren't retained by anyone.
 5 Q. Okay. What was their view on the prospects for 6 keeping the City of Detroit out of Chapter 9, if you
 7 remember?
 8 A. I don't think they opined on the prospects.
 9 Q. What did they opine on?
 10 A. They opined on all of the benefits associated with 11 staying out. They were part of the education
 12 process for why you should stay out of the courts.
 13 Q. And but just to be clear, did they opine on the --
 14 on the likelihood that Detroit would be able to stay
 15 out of bankruptcy and still resolve its financial 16 issues in sort of an out-of-court restructuring?
 17 A. No.
 18 Q. They never opined on that?
 19 A. No.
 20 Q. Getting back to Jones Day, did you recall them
 21 making a presentation at the January 28th meeting
 22 where they stressed the importance of making a
 23 record of good faith negotiations?
 24 A. It was the 29th, now that I've been educated.
 25 Q. Okay. I'm sorry. The 29th meeting.

1 Did they -- at that meeting did they stress
 2 the importance of making a record of negotiations
 3 with creditors?
 4 A. Did Jones Day stress the importance of making a
 5 record of negotiations?
 6 Q. Right.
 7 A. I don't recall that explicitly.
 8 Q. Now, if we can look at B-5 -- I call it Baird 5.
 9 Can you get that one, sir? I'm really not asking
 10 about this document, but it's February of 2013, and 11 the email from you to Kevyn Orr on February 20th
 12 talks about brokering a meeting between Mr. Orr and 13 the Mayor.
 14 Was it important from your perspective to 15 broker peace between the Mayor and Mr. Orr?
 16 A. It was my belief that a good working relationship 17 between the two of them would be in the best
 18 interest of the City.
 19 Q. What about the City Council? Did you have the same 20 view towards the relationship between Mr. Orr and 21 the City Council for the City of Detroit?
 22 A. If your question is do I believe that a good
 23 relationship between Kevyn Orr and the City Council
 24 would be in the City's best interest, the answer
 25 would be yes.

1 Q. I guess the question is given that, right, did you
 2 try to broker some type of meeting between Mr. Orr
 3 and the City Council?
 4 A. No.
 5 Q. Why not?
 6 A. Because I did not think that it was possible.
 7 Q. There were members of the City Council that 8 supported Mr. Orr; were there not?
 9 A. I don't know.
 10 Q. And I know that certain members of the City Council
 11 were very vocal against him or any other emergency
 12 manager; is that right?
 13 A. I read the papers, and there were arguments against 14 it that came from members of Council that I recall,
 15 yes.
 16 Q. Ultimately, were you able to broker a working
 17 relationship between Mr. Orr and the Mayor?
 18 A. You'd have to ask Mr. Orr and the Mayor.
 19 Q. From your perspective, do you think --
 20 A. I can't opine. I testified that Kevyn Orr thought 21 it important to meet the Mayor and to determine if 22 they could work together if he were to accept the 23 Governor's recommendation. The Mayor indicated the 24 same about Kevyn Orr.
 25 We did the best to articulate a framework

1 under which that working relationship could exist,
 2 and you'll have to talk to those two men as to how
 3 successful that arrangement turned out to be.
 4 Q. Now, in February of 2013, I guess we'll use B-5 just
 5 for time purposes. I think you testified that there
 6 was one other candidate that still was sort of in 7 the running at that point in time?
 8 A. There was a candidate that we had agreed -- we 9 meaning the Governor and his Chief of Staff and 10 Treasurer, that we had agreed had the requisite
 11 capabilities and had indicated a willingness to do
 12 the job, but we wished to continue the vetting of 13 Kevyn to determine whether he would be a better
 14 candidate.
 15 Q. Had you determined at this point that Mr. Orr was 16 the top candidate February 2013?
 17 A. I don't -- I believe I was still doing due diligence
 18 at this particular time, I think, but I was 19 cautiously optimistic that Kevyn might be the better
 20 candidate.
 21 Q. And at this time, again, February 20th, 2013, do you
 22 know whether the Governor shared that view?
 23 A. I don't recall on the timetable if that were the 24 case or not.
 25 Q. What about Mr. Dillon?

Page 93

1 A. I think Mr. Dillon, you'd have to ask him as to
 2 whether he thought Kevyn was the better of the two
 3 candidates.
 4 Q. Did Mr. Dillon express to you who he thought was the 5 better of the two candidates?
 6 A. At some point after Kevyn had indicated that he 7 could work his way clear of a withdrawal from his 8 firm and that if nominated by the Governor he would 9 be in a position to accept an appointment by the 10 ELB, yes, I think Andy indicated to me at that time
 11 that he thought Kevyn was the better of the two 12 candidates.
 13 Q. Now, was the other candidate an attorney?
 14 A. No.
 15 Q. Was the other candidate a man or a woman?
 16 A. A man.
 17 Q. Was the other candidate local?
 18 A. Define local.
 19 Q. A Detroit resident?
 20 A. No.
 21 Q. A surrounding area of Detroit resident?
 22 A. I don't -- I won't dance here. I'll tell you he 23 was -- his residence was south but he had been a
 24 Detroit resident.
 25 Q. Did the person have restructuring experience?

Page 94

1 A. He did.
 2 MR. WERTHEIMER: I'm sorry, did you say he
 3 was a Detroit resident?
 4 THE WITNESS: He had been a Detroit
 5 resident, but he was not at the time that I had 6 discussed with him.
 7 MR. WERTHEIMER: I just missed it. Thank
 8 you.
 9 BY MR. SHERWOOD:
 10 Q. I'd like to ask you to look again at Exhibits 7 and 11 8. If you could get those and look at 7 first.
 12 You got this email, Exhibit 7; is that
 13 correct?
 14 A. Yeah, I'm looking at 7.
 15 Q. I'm looking at the second paragraph and it appears
 16 that Mr. Dillon is reporting to the Governor and 17 others including yourself when he says he "...met
 18 with the consultants to get briefed on the pension
 19 issue this afternoon", which consultant -- do you
 20 know what consultants he's referring to?
 21 A. No. I testified earlier that there are weekly
 22 consultant meetings, and I gave you the names of who 23 were on those calls but I don't recall who he 24 specifically is referring to here.
 25 Q. Do you know if they were the consultants for the

1 City or some other consultants?
 2 A. I don't.
 3 Q. And he concluded that the situation was not good and 4 that current pensions had to be cut significantly,
 5 correct?
 6 A. Well, I mean, I'm reading this. It says "Bottom
 7 line the situation's not good and the view of the 8 consultants is that current pensions have to be cut
 9 significantly." I don't know which consultants he's 10 referring to.
 11 Q. Okay. So if you look at -- so at least at some 12 point as of this date certain consultants were 13 telling Mr. Dillon and Governor Snyder that the 14 pensions had to be cut significantly.
 15 Can we agree on that?
 16 A. I can agree that I'm reading the same line that 17 you're reading.
 18 Q. Okay. Let's look at B --
 19 MR. ELLSWORTH: Were you finished with your 20 answer, Rich?
 21 THE WITNESS: Yes.
 22 MR. SHERWOOD: I'm sorry.
 23 BY MR. SHERWOOD:
 24 Q. Let's look at the next, Exhibit 8. And this exhibit
 25 also deals with the issue of pension liability.

Page 96

1 Would you agree?
 2 A. It would appear so.
 3 Q. And in this email Mr. Dillon reports that in 4 Mr. Orr's discussion with the pension, he is not 5 going to translate the underfunded amount into an
 6 impact on retirees or employees vested rights.
 7 Do you see that?
 8 A. I do.
 9 Q. When you read this email on July 9th, the day after 10 you got Exhibit 7, did you ask Mr. Dillon or the 11 Governor why Mr. Orr is refusing to send a message 12 on the underfunding amount to the representatives of 13 the pensions?
 14 A. I don't recall asking that question, no.
 15 Q. Did it appear to you that Mr. Orr was not being 16 candid with the pensions by not reporting the fact
 17 that they had to be cut significantly?
 18 A. I'm sorry, say that again.
 19 Q. Did it occur to you that Mr. Orr might not be being 20 candid with the pensions by not reporting to them
 21 the fact that the pensions had to be cut
 22 significantly?
 23 A. That would be pure speculation on my part.
 24 Q. But this situation didn't cause you to make any 25 recommendations to Mr. Dillon or the Governor or

Page 97

1 Mr. Orr; is that your testimony?
 2 A. Yes. I get copied on a lot of emails but I've 3 testified that pension liability, pension models are 4 frankly outside of my wheelhouse, and that's not my 5 area of focus in consulting to the Governor or his 6 team.
 7 Q. You testified that one of the things you did in the 8 pensions is look at the practical impact on the 9 people losing their pensions.
 10 Do you remember that testimony?
 11 A. I testified that I was -- it was desirable for me to 12 see what that impact was but that I never received
 13 the data to actually understand the impact.
 14 Q. And but you said you talked to the Governor about 15 that and I think Mr. Orr and Mr. Dillon and they all
 16 said that that was a good question.
 17 Do you recall that testimony?
 18 A. I don't recall talking to the Governor about that.
 19 I recall talking to Mr. Orr about that. And I
 20 recall saying to Andy that I had that conversation
 21 with Mr. Orr.
 22 Q. And is it -- am I right -- or tell me why you
 23 thought that was important.
 24 A. I'm a curious guy. I don't know what to tell you.
 25 I thought it was important because I did not

Page 98

1 understand -- this would be the third time I've
 2 testified to this. I did not understand what the 3 distribution of those 20,000 pensioners was and what 4 it meant in real dollars and real lives, and that 5 was a question that I wanted to know the answer to,
 6 and so I was looking for the data set to ascertain
 7 that.
 8 Q. And the pensioners whose benefits are being cut, you
 9 understand, do you not, that they don't have a
 10 safety net like people in private industry do?
 11 MR. ELLSWORTH: Objection as to the form.
 12 Go ahead and answer, Rich.
 13 THE WITNESS: Which pensioners are being 14 cut?
 15 BY MR. SHERWOOD:
 16 Q. Well, to the extent pensioners are being cut, they 17 don't have a safety net like the PBGC, right?
 18 A. Well, I know that they don't have a PBGC; that's
 19 correct.
 20 Q. Are you aware of any other safety net that they 21 might have?
 22 A. I'm only aware of safety nets that exist for all
 23 citizens once they get below a certain poverty line.
 24 Q. But they don't relate to their pension, do they?
 25 A. I believe that certain benefits are contingent upon

1 what your income is, and whether that income comes
 2 from a pension or some other form it's your income.
 3 Q. So you're suggesting that these other government
 4 programs act as a safety net in lieu of the PBGC for 5 lost pension benefits?
 6 A. No, I think you're suggesting that.
 7 Q. I'm just trying to understand what you're saying.
 8 I'm not trying to argue with you. I'm just trying 9 to --
 10 A. What question is it you would like me to answer?
 11 Q. I'd like to know why -- whether you consider the 12 fact -- in your investigation of the practical
 13 impact on people, were you doing that investigation
 14 out of concern for the people who were losing or 15 stood to lose their pensions because they didn't 16 have a safety net? That's what I want to know.
 17 A. Okay. I am not aware of what safety net does or 18 doesn't exist for them currently. I was interested
 19 in what the practical implications of material
 20 savings would be against the distribution of those 21 receiving pensions.
 22 And it was the answer to that question that 23 led me to ask another question which is whether or 24 not there might be an appetite for legislative 25 remedy in the absence of safety net.

1 Is that sufficiently clear?
 2 Q. Let me read it. And in terms of appetite for 3 legislative remedy, your prior testimony was that 4 your understanding was that that appetite was very
 5 low and that's why the inquiries kind of stopped
 6 there?
 7 A. My understanding is that the appetite for a large
 8 scale appropriation to Detroit was pretty low.
 9 I didn't have an opinion about whether or 10 not there was an appetite for incremental safety net
 11 for impacted pensioners were they to be impacted. I
 12 was simply asking the question.
 13 Q. The June 14th meeting, you were at the meeting and I
 14 think you testified something like that you
 15 indicated that you thought Mr. Orr did a good job
 16 presenting the June 14th proposal.
 17 Do you remember that topic?
 18 A. Yes, I do.
 19 Q. Do you know whether at that meeting Mr. Orr or 20 anyone on behalf of the City of Detroit requested
 21 that the parties there provide counterproposals to 22 the proposal that was being made on June 14th?
 23 A. I don't recall the term counterproposal, but I do
 24 recall an invitation being put out to the group that 25 says once you've digested this financial information

1 and you understand the wherewithal what exists, to
 2 the extent that you want to sit down and negotiate
 3 in good faith now is not the time to do that, but
 4 there will be that time and here's the information
 5 that you need in order to interact intelligibly.
 6 I do recall that.
 7 Q. And that meeting was approximately a month before
 8 the bankruptcy filing.
 9 Were there follow-up -- were you present at 10 any follow-up meetings after the June 14th meeting?
 11 A. With creditors?
 12 Q. Right.
 13 A. No.
 14 Q. Did anyone report to you on the status of follow-up 15 meetings with creditors that occurred after the 16 June 14th meeting?
 17 A. With counsel, yes.
 18 Q. What about without counsel?
 19 A. Not that I recall.
 20 Q. And what was said?
 21 MR. ELLSWORTH: Well, I -- I object to the 22 extent that would call for disclosure of 23 lawyer-client conversations.
 24 I think Mr. Baird said that the 25 conversations that he had were with counsel present.

1 He can clarify if I heard that wrong.
 2 THE WITNESS: No, that's correct. Counsel
 3 was present.
 4 BY MR. SHERWOOD:
 5 Q. But counsel was -- was counsel reporting back on how 6 the negotiations were going with the creditor
 7 groups?
 8 A. No.
 9 Q. Who was making that report?
 10 A. Kevyn Orr.
 11 Q. What did he say?
 12 MR. ELLSWORTH: Well, I object again. If 13 counsel was present during that discussion then 14 that's subject to the attorney-client privilege and 15 I object.
 16 MR. SHERWOOD: Are you instructing him not 17 to answer --
 18 MR. ELLSWORTH: Yes.
 19 MR. SHERWOOD: -- a conversation between 20 Mr. Orr and him --
 21 MR. ELLSWORTH: If it was a one-on-one
 22 conversation.
 23 MR. SHERWOOD: -- reporting on what
 24 happened at negotiations with creditors? I just 25 want to make sure.

Page 103

1 MR. ELLSWORTH: It was --
 2 THE WITNESS: This was not a one-on-one.
 3 MR. ELLSWORTH: Was counsel present?
 4 THE WITNESS: Yes.
 5 MR. ELLSWORTH: I object, and I'm
 6 instructing him not to answer.
 7 BY MR. SHERWOOD:
 8 Q. Were you involved in any negotiations or did anyone
 9 report to you on negotiations with the bondholder
 10 creditors of the City of Detroit?
 11 MR. ELLSWORTH: Again, to the extent that 12 would require a disclosure of lawyer-client
 13 privileged conversations, I object.
 14 MR. SHERWOOD: I just want a yes or no. I
 15 mean, I don't want the content.
 16 MR. ELLSWORTH: That's fine.
 17 THE WITNESS: Updates of those discussions
 18 were provided with counsel present.
 19 BY MR. SHERWOOD:
 20 Q. And none of that happened outside the presence of 21 counsel?
 22 A. No.
 23 Q. During your discussions with Mr. Orr prior to his 24 appointment, did he ever say to you that the 25 appointment of an emergency manager and the filing

Page 104

1 of a Chapter 9 provides political cover for the
 2 Governor and/or the Mayor in regard to the process
 3 of making the tough decisions that face the City of 4 Detroit in the context of the restructuring?
 5 A. He never said that to me.
 6 Q. Did anyone ever say that in your presence?
 7 A. Say it, no.
 8 Q. Write it?
 9 A. I saw an email where it was written, so I know that 10 somebody said it.
 11 Q. Okay. I think I might have a copy of that email.
 12 Maybe I'll show it to you. Let's look at this one.
 13
 14 (Deposition Exhibit 10 was marked.)
 15
 16 BY MR. SHERWOOD:
 17 Q. We've marked this as Baird 10. You haven't seen it
 18 yet though, huh?
 19 A. Okay. Is this one where I need to start at the 20 bottom and read it through? This doesn't look like
 21 any that I've ever seen before.
 22 Q. Yeah, it's really just two pages. If you start on 23 the second page -- actually, you are referred to in 24 this, so why don't we take a second to go through 25 this and start with the --

1 MR. ELLSWORTH: Rich, do you need a chance
2 to read it?
3 THE WITNESS: Yeah, I need to read this.
4 BY MR. SHERWOOD:
5 Q. Okay. Tell me when you're done.
6 A. Okay, I've completed reading it.
7 Q. Let's start with the email on page 301, which is the 8 second page. And Corinne Ball is talking to Kevyn, 9 and she talks about the Bloomberg Foundation and 10 whether we should talk to you, Mr. Baird, about 11 financial support for the project and the EM. And 12 then she refers to Harry Wilson from the Auto Task
13 Force told me about the Foundation and its interest.
14 I can ask Harry for contact info. This kind of 15 support in ways nationalizes the issue and the 16 project. Do you see that?
17 A. I do.
18 Q. Do you know whether the Bloomberg Foundation and 19 Harry Wilson, whether they were ever brought to your 20 attention by anyone at Jones Day?
21 A. They were not.
22 Q. So this is the first you're hearing of this?
23 A. No. I've seen not this entire string of email, but 24 I have seen -- from some emails that were provided
25 in discovery to me, I've seen this, the 1-31-13

1 8:10 a.m., and I have seen all the way up through
2 the 1-31 11:01 a.m. from Kevyn Orr to Dan Moss, but 3 I have not seen this last piece which is from 4 Dan Moss to Kevyn Orr.
5 Q. And by this last piece, you're referring to really
6 the top of the email string, correct?
7 A. The top of the email string, right. The most recent 8 string of this.
9 Q. So as of January 31st, 2013, do you know who 10 Dan Moss is?
11 A. I believe -- I don't know exactly who he is, but I
12 know he's a colleague of Kevyn Orr's at Jones Day.
13 That's all I know. I've heard the name.
14 Q. As of January 31st, 2013, did Mr. Orr suggest to you
15 that Chapter 9 would be the best solution for the 16 City of Detroit for political reasons?
17 A. No, he did not.
18 Q. Did he suggest to you that Chapter 9 would not be an 19 alternative as of January 31st, 2013?
20 A. I don't believe he placed any priority of any sort 21 on Chapter 9 to me in any conversation or 22 communication.
23 Q. During the course of your discussions with Mr. Orr,
24 did he emphasize the need to have the unqualified
25 support from the Governor during the -- during his

1 tenure as emergency manager?
2 A. I'm not sure I would use the term unqualified
3 support, but I certainly would testify that he 4 believed that support from the Governor for the 5 undertaking at hand was going to be an important
6 consideration.
7 Q. Did he say why that was important?
8 A. Yes, he did. That he recognized that this was going 9 to be a thankless job, a job where he would probably 10 be vilified and called a traitor to his race and to 11 his Democrat background, and that it would require a
12 great deal of resolve to overcome the difficulties
13 of the past decades that have gotten Detroit to 14 where it is today.
15 Q. Did he also seek the support of the Financial 16 Advisory Board?
17 A. At the -- well, yes, but not during the recruitment
18 process.
19 Q. When did he make the request that the Financial 20 Advisory Board should provide him with support and 21 oversight?
22 A. You'd have to --
23 Q. If he ever did.
24 A. Well, I have heard from members of the Financial 25 Advisory Board that he has made those overtures, but

1 you'd have to ask him as to when and context.
2 Q. But he never had any discussions with you about
3 whether it would be beneficial to get support from 4 the Financial Advisory Board and how he was going to 5 go about that?
6 A. In general, Counselor, I think he -- we had a lot of 7 discussions about he was going to need all the 8 support he could get from every corner he could get 9 it from including the FAB and City Council.
10 Q. All right. Can I have one second? I think I'm done
11 but I don't want to close the record until I'm sure.
12 I just need one second.
13 (A pause was had in the proceedings)
14 MR. SHERWOOD: All right. I think that's 15 all. Thank you. I appreciate it.
16 THE WITNESS: Okay. Thank you.
17 MR. ELLSWORTH: Anybody else?
18 VIDEO TECHNICIAN: Deposition's concluded

MS. NELSON: This is for purposes of the record of the Governor's deposition that was taken on October 9th.

There was a request at the conclusion of the Governor's dep for the production of an email which is the transmission email from the Governor's office to Kevyn Orr of what was marked as Governor's Exhibit 2, which was his July 18th, 2013 letter authorizing the filing of the bankruptcy.

I have produced this email and provided it to all counsel that are present today and we have agreed to mark it as Governor's Exhibit 11. The email is dated Thursday, July 18th, 2013. It was transmitted at 3:47 p.m., and the subject is high priority, and the attachment which is identified as 2013 0718 155044034 dot pdf is identical to the attachment identified in Governor's Exhibit 10 that was marked at the deposition yesterday.

And the subject matter I would point out between Governor's Exhibit 11 and Governor's Exhibit 10 is also identical, high priority. So for purposes of the record we're marking this as Governor's Exhibit 11. It is the email that was discussed and is now being produced that was the transmission of the July 18th letter from the Governor's office to Kevyn Orr at 3:47 p.m.

And I would also note on the record that the 7-18 letter was attached to the filing that was made with the petition. I believe the time stamp for The Court was 4:06 p.m. for that as well.

VIDEO TECHNICIAN: Today's date is October the 10th, 2013 and we're on the record at 9:20 a.m.

This is the video deposition of Treasurer Andrew Dillon. We're at the Treasury Building, 430 West Allegan in Lansing, Michigan.

Can the Secretary be sworn, please.

-TREASURER ANDREW DILLON-
called as a witness, being first duly sworn, was examined and testified as follows:

EXAMINATION

BY MR. SHERWOOD:

Q. Treasurer Dillon, good morning. My name is Jack Sherwood from Lowenstein Sandler, and we represent AFSCME in the Detroit bankruptcy case.

Thanks for being here today.

Have you ever been deposed before?

A. I believe so.

Q. Okay. On how many occasions?

A. A couple probably.

Q. Okay. Let me just give you some of the ground rules as a reminder.

My questions and your answers will be taken down by the court reporter and videotaped. You're under oath so it's like you're testifying in court.

Do you understand that?

A. Yes.

Q. And to the extent that you can wait for me to ask a full question before answering, that would be good, make it easier for the court reporter.

Your attorney might object from time to time, and to the extent that she does, obviously, you'll take your advice from her.

If you don't know the answer to a question or you don't understand a question, please let me know, and I'll try to clear it up for you.

Do you understand those --

A. Yes.

Q. -- instructions?

Is there any reason why you can't testify

1 truthfully today?
 2 A. No.
 3 Q. And are you taking any medications or suffering from 4 any illnesses or under the care of a doctor --
 5 A. No.
 6 Q. -- for any medical condition at this time?
 7 A. No.
 8 Q. Okay. Can you just briefly -- you are the Treasurer
 9 of the State of Michigan; is that right?
 10 A. Yes.
 11 Q. And can you -- how long have you held this post?
 12 A. Since January 1 of '11.
 13 Q. And what did you do before that? Just give me, you
 14 know, your previous work history before that.
 15 A. I served in the Michigan Legislature for six years,
 16 the last four as the Speaker of the House.
 17 Q. And prior to that?
 18 A. I worked for a private equity fund based out of 19 Chicago.
 20 Q. What was the name of that firm?
 21 A. Wynnchurch Capital.
 22 Q. For how long were you at Wynnchurch?
 23 A. Three years.
 24 Q. And what three years were those? Was it like --
 25 A. '01 to '04.

1 Q. And what was your position there?
 2 A. I was a managing partner. I found opportunities for 3 them to buy -- companies to buy.
 4 Q. And did Wynnchurch specialize in any type of 5 industry or financial products?
 6 A. Middle market companies based in the midwest or 7 Canada was the focus.
 8 Q. And how long have you known Governor Snyder?
 9 A. I met him for the first time when I was in the 10 Legislature, and it was just a brief meeting. I
 11 drove to Ann Arbor to meet him because Governor
 12 Granholm at the time had announced the 21st Century
 13 Jobs Fund plan, and I had a private equity
 14 background but not a venture capital background, and 15 his name came to me as someone who understood
 16 venture capital.
 17 So I asked for a meeting, drove to Ann
 18 Arbor. We met for half hour to an hour, and I
 19 incorporated his thoughts and ideas into the 21st
 20 Century Jobs plan. And I didn't see him after that 21 until he was running for Governor.
 22 Q. And when was that about?
 23 A. Probably 2010.
 24 Q. Did he appoint you as the Treasurer of the State?
 25 A. Yes.

1 Q. And how did that come to pass?
 2 A. Got a phone call in the fall of 2010, I believe it
 3 was, and they asked if I would consider the
 4 position. Initially, I respectfully declined
 5 because I was ready to go back to the private
 6 sector. And I reconsidered about two weeks later,
 7 called back and said if you haven't filled it, I'll 8 do it.
 9 Q. What was it about the job that excited you?
 10 A. I was having lunch with a friend of mine. He just 11 said, hey, it's a great opportunity, why would you
 12 say no to that.
 13 And even though I had spent six years in 14 Lansing, I didn't fully appreciate the role of the 15 Treasurer for the State, and it's a fascinating job
 16 and fascinating time to have it.
 17 Q. When you say a fascinating time, what do you mean?
 18 Is it because of economic challenges facing
 19 Michigan?
 20 A. Local units primarily, yes.
 21 Q. Things like school boards and cities and the like?
 22 A. Right.
 23 Q. Did you have, going into the job, discussions with 24 Governor Snyder about your view of the financial 25 situations that existed in the local government

Page 12

1 units here in the State of Michigan?
 2 A. I don't recall. There may have been some high-level
 3 discussions in December '10 where we understood that
 4 there could be a lot of troubled cities and school
 5 districts in the cue, so it was on our radar before
 6 we started but nothing about my philosophy, what I
 7 would do in this role.
 8 Q. Okay. So when you say high-level discussions, can 9 you tell me what you recall specifically about the 10 high -- or even generally about the high-level
 11 discussions?
 12 A. We understood that we would be inheriting some 13 financial crises throughout the state and we thought
 14 there was more to come and -- but we never got into,
 15 you know, he didn't grill me about what's my 16 philosophy and how would I approach, you know, the 17 challenges that would come our way.
 18 Q. Did you have any relevant experience in your career
 19 as a Legislator or Speaker of the House or in your 20 private career that you thought you could bring to 21 bear to address the financial issues facing the 22 local units of government here in the State?
 23 A. A little bit. I have an accounting and a law
 24 degree, but I had three jobs that translated some 25 relevance. I'd spent three years with GE Capital.

1 We tended to -- they were called the lender of last
2 resort, so we financed tough credits typically.
3 From there I went to a bankrupt steel mill
4 and helped the owner try to restart that mill, so
5 that was kind of hands-on operational restructuring.
6 And then a lot of the companies we chased
7 at Wynnchurch would either be growth companies or 8 turnarounds, so I would say there was a nine-year
9 window there where I had some experience in the area
10 of turnarounds.
11 Q. What did you do to prepare for your deposition
12 today?
13 A. About a month ago I had a meeting. A couple of 14 Attorney Generals came to -- we didn't know if this 15 deposition was even going to happen because I don't 16 think the judge had ruled yet. And then last week I
17 had a meeting to prepare, and I think that meeting
18 lasted about two hours.
19 Q. Who was in that meeting?
20 A. My friend here to my right and --
21 MR. SCHNEIDER: Matthew Schneider.
22 THE WITNESS: And we have one other.
23 MS. NELSON: Oh, Mark Donnelly, just to 24 refresh his memory.
25 BY MR. SHERWOOD:

Page 14

1 Q. So it was Mark Dowling? Who's he with?
2 MS. NELSON: Mark Donnelly.
3 MR. SHERWOOD: I'm sorry.
4 MS. NELSON: Assistant Attorney General.
5 BY MR. SHERWOOD:
6 Q. Sorry. Who else?
7 A. Just the three and myself.
8 Q. Matthew Schneider is with who?
9 A. The Attorney Generals' office. We had a brief
10 meeting this morning at 8:30.
11 Q. Same crew?
12 A. Just the two this morning.
13 Q. I'd like to start talking a little bit about some of 14 the legislation, the State legislation.
15 Do you know what PA 4 is, correct?
16 A. Yes.
17 Q. And my understanding is that was signed into law in 18 March of 2011; is that right?
19 A. I don't recall the specific date but, generally
20 speaking, I think that's pretty close.
21 Q. And PA 4, the predecessor to PA 4 was a statute that 22 people call PA 72; is that right?
23 A. Right.
24 Q. Can you just generally describe your role in the 25 drafting or passage of either of those statutes?

1 A. PA 72 is before my time. I believe it was 1990 give 2 or take.
3 PA 4, we started talking about it during
4 the transition period. We understood that PA 72 had 5 some limitations. So there was a few folks during 6 the transition that started looking at what you
7 could do to Public Act 72 to improve it, make it a
8 better tool for the State.
9 So my involvement was on the front end at 10 high level, thematic direction of what would later
11 become --
12 MR. WERTHEIMER: I'm sorry, high level
13 what?
14 THE WITNESS: Thematic. But in terms of 15 specific language or, you know, getting under the 16 hood of the actual words that were being 17 incorporated into the bills, I had very limited if 18 any role.
19 BY MR. SHERWOOD:
20 Q. So is it fair to say that PA 4 was passed at the 21 initiative of Governor Snyder?
22 A. I don't know the mechanics, but I would say -- I
23 mean, we obviously at the administration level were 24 focused on it and we had ideas about it in terms of 25 who -- typically what happens is if the

1 administration wants a law passed they'll work with
2 the Legislature and find a sponsor, and I wasn't
3 part of that but I assume that probably happened
4 here.
5 Q. And is it fair to say that PA 4 was promoted by the 6 Governor to the Legislature?
7 A. I believe so.
8 Q. Okay. And you talked about PA 4 containing
9 improvements.
10 What was it about PA 72 that needed to be 11 improved?
12 A. Well, what we found is -- typically for a 13 governmental unit 75 give or take percent of your 14 costs are wages and benefits which leaves you -- if 15 you have a unit that might have a three-year
16 collectively bargained agreement in place, that 17 takes 75 percent of the ability to reduce expenses
18 off the table. It leaves you 25 percent of the 19 remaining spent. Typically, in government it's very 20 difficult to increase the revenue side of the 21 equation.
22 So that would be the major theme --
23 thematic difference I think from 72 to Public Act 4.
24 Q. So let me make sure I'm hearing you right. Was 25 there something about PA 4 that enabled the State to

1 deal with wage and benefit issues that presented
 2 themselves to these local government units?
 3 A. Yeah. And I would add also it enabled us to get in 4 earlier because typically if you can get into a
 5 situation earlier you might be able to avoid more
 6 Draconian or drastic measures that have to be
 7 implemented.
 8 So I'd say the primary goal of Public Act 4
 9 was to allow the State to have an earlier road in 10 the crisis that a particular school district or 11 city's encountering. And then in the law we spent a 12 lot of time on this issue about, you know, the 13 constitutionality of can you modify a CBA. And by 14 the word CBA, I use collectively bargained
 15 agreement.
 16 But the thought was that we have two 17 conflicting constitutional provisions here. One is 18 the prohibition against impairing of contracts and 19 then the other is the duty of the State to provide 20 for the public health, safety and welfare. So those 21 are your competing constitutional provisions, as I
 22 understand it.
 23 And where we came out on that, to my
 24 memory, is that -- that if you temporarily modify.
 25 So the thought wasn't that you just blow up a

1 contract or you permanently change the terms of the
 2 contract, but in order to deal with the crisis to 3 protect the public health, safety and welfare, the 4 thought was that the State has the ability to 5 temporarily modify until the crisis or the emergency
 6 is over.
 7 To me that's the two primary differences
 8 between PA 72 and PA 4.
 9 Q. And how is it that PA 4 specifically gave the State
 10 more power to address those issues?
 11 A. On the front end I'd have to review PA 72 and 12 compare it to PA 4 before I would feel comfortable
 13 answering that, but PA 72 did not have a provision
 14 that allowed for a temporary modification of the 15 CBA.
 16 Q. Did PA 72 have a provision for the appointment of an 17 emergency manager?
 18 A. Yes.
 19 Q. And PA 4 retained that?
 20 A. Right. And they had two different terms. I think 21 under 72 it was emergency financial manager, an EFM.
 22 Q. Right.
 23 A. Under PA 4 it was changed to just an emergency
 24 manager.
 25 There's another big difference I guess as

Page 19

1 well which was my memory is that under schools, an
 2 EFM could pursue a Chapter 9 without the Governor's
 3 consent but not for a city.
 4 Q. I'm sorry, I just want to make sure the record's
 5 clear. I'm reading it here.
 6 Did PA 4 allow a school board to file
 7 Chapter 9 without the Governor's consent?
 8 A. I don't believe -- well, again, I'd like to look at 9 PA 72 but my memory was --
 10 MS. NELSON: He's speaking about PA 4.
 11 THE WITNESS: Oh, PA 4.
 12 MS. NELSON: His question was to PA 4.
 13 THE WITNESS: No, under PA 4 both cities
 14 and school districts require the Governor's approval
 15 for a filing.
 16 BY MR. SHERWOOD:
 17 Q. Okay. Now, I assume you're aware that PA 4 during 18 2011 and 2012 was heavily criticized by certain
 19 members of the population here in Michigan, correct?
 20 A. I recall some of that.
 21 Q. And it was referred to as a dictatorship law,
 22 undemocratic, emergency managers don't answer to the 23 public. Does that sound familiar to you?
 24 A. I have a recollection of that, yes.
 25 Q. And, actually, some of that criticism was directed

Page 20

1 at you, correct?
 2 A. Correct.
 3 Q. And certainly Governor Snyder as well.
 4 Do you think that that was fair criticism?
 5 A. I think it's just a harsh reality that when you have
 6 a -- whether it be a school district or a city in a
 7 severe financial crisis that you've got to have
 8 someone that can make decisions. And often times
 9 what you'll find is the governance more in cities
 10 maybe than school districts is -- makes it very 11 difficult to navigate through a financial crisis.
 12 So I understand the criticism but the stark
 13 reality is that it's the best path that I'm aware of 14 to solve a financial crisis.
 15 Q. Now, PA 4 was submitted for a referendum in November
 16 of 2012; is that right?
 17 A. I believe so, yeah.
 18 Q. And did you take a position with respect to the 19 proposed referendum with respect to PA 4?
 20 MS. NELSON: Are you speaking in his 21 official capacity as Treasurer or in his personal,
 22 because his personal capacity is privileged.
 23 I assume you're speaking in his official
 24 capacity as Treasurer did he take a position?
 25 MR. SHERWOOD: I never heard of a personal

Page 21

1 capacity of privilege.
 2 MS. NELSON: It's right to vote, his right
 3 to vote.
 4 MR. SHERWOOD: Okay.
 5 BY MR. SHERWOOD:
 6 Q. In your capacity as Treasurer.
 7 A. I don't recall. I do recall that there was six
 8 measures on the ballot and there was really no one
 9 out there advocating in favor of preserving the law,
 10 Public Act 4, but I don't recall if we ever issued a 11 statement from the Treasurer's Office defending
 12 Public Act 4.
 13 Q. Did you have any conversations with the Governor
 14 about this proposed referendum with respect to PA 4?
 15 A. I think we had a few, and I think there was, as I
 16 said, six measures and some were deemed -- you know,
 17 you can't fight a six-front battle, right, so I
 18 think we all thought PA 4 was a necessary law and we 19 hoped it would be preserved.
 20 But there was other measures on the ballot,
 21 and often times the electorate only has so much
 22 attention span, so I think we weren't out there
 23 putting a full court press on to preserve the law.
 24 Q. Why did you think -- or when you say we, are you
 25 talking about, you the Treasurer, and the Governor?

1 Why did you think that was a necessary law?
 2 A. Because in my experience Public Act 72, you know,
 3 wasn't as effective as the residents or the children
 4 in school districts needed, and I thought that
 5 Public Act 4 was a significant improvement.
 6 Q. One of the other criticisms that I read about about 7 PA 4 was that it protected bondholders over other
 8 types of creditors.
 9 Are you familiar with that type of 10 criticism being lodged during the referendum
 11 process?
 12 A. Not specifically.
 13 Q. What about generally?
 14 A. I just don't recall. I mean, I'm certain it was 15 probably used as a talking point for those that 16 wanted to repeal PA 4, but I don't have a specific 17 recollection of it.
 18 Q. Do you remember talking to a publication called Bond
 19 Buyer Online about the referendum to repeal PA 4?
 20 A. I've spoken to them several times so I don't know 21 the specific interview that you're referring to.
 22 Q. Do you recall saying to Bond Buyer Online that the 23 criticism of PA 4 reflects a lack of understanding
 24 of the municipal market?
 25 A. I -- that sounds like something I would say, but I

Page 23

1 don't specifically recall saying that.
 2 Q. Tell me what is it about the municipal market that 3 PA 4 helped.
 4 A. Can you restate that?
 5 Q. What is it -- how does PA 4 help a city or a school
 6 board or a city like the state of Detroit deal with 7 the municipal market?
 8 A. Can you read my statement again one more time?
 9 Q. It says that "Criticism of PA 4 reflects a lack of 10 understanding of the municipal market."
 11 Actually, I have a copy of it if that will 12 help.
 13 A. That's fine. I think if you can go in and address
 14 issues you're going to make that particular unit
 15 more financially stable, and thus you'll have a 16 healthier community that can provide services and 17 pay its obligations.
 18 Q. I guess we can mark this as Exhibit 1.
 19
 20 (Deposition Exhibit 1 was marked.)
 21
 22 BY MR. SHERWOOD:
 23 Q. Sorry about the small type and everything, but it
 24 says -- this is just something I pulled off line.
 25 It says Critics of Public Act 4 argue that

1 the law protects bondholders above other creditors,
 2 an argument that Dillon said lacks an understanding
 3 of the municipal market.
 4 A. Okay, this helps, having read it.
 5 Q. Okay, sorry.
 6 A. Often times when a unit gets into financial trouble
 7 they can't access the market on their own. So the 8 way that they can access the market is they'll work
 9 with Treasury where we will say, all right, if 10 you're going to borrow money we tell the bond money
 11 providers that we will intercept the money, make 12 certain that you get paid first.
 13 So if someone wanted to say that an
 14 unsecured creditor or a nonbond creditor of a
 15 community could be pari passu, on equal footing of 16 an existing bondholder, in that circumstance they'd 17 be misguided because when the bond deal got done for 18 the troubled unit we have an agreement with the 19 trustee typically that will intercept the revenues
 20 that come from the State to the unit, pay the debt
 21 of the bonds, and then whatever surplus is left goes
 22 to the City.
 23 So once that deal is put in place, you
 24 can't undo it, per se, and then say well, we're just 25 not going to pay the bondholders so we can put more

Page 25

1 money into the City so they can pay their bills.
 2 So I think what I'm referring to here is
 3 that situation where there's a trustee in place or 4 an intercept agreement where the State has an
 5 obligation to make certain that the bond providers
 6 are paid first. And once that's in place you can't 7 undo it.
 8 Q. Okay. And by an intercept agreement, you're -- I
 9 mean, would that be something like a security
 10 interest in a pledged flow of funds from a
 11 particular source?
 12 A. Can you restate that?
 13 Q. By intercept agreement that's not a concept I've 14 heard before, but I have heard things like 15 collateral, pledge, assignment, security interest.
 16 Is that what you mean?
 17 A. I think you're too narrow. There's several 18 different ways to do this. For example, and this 19 happens in school districts where state aid can be 20 intercepted first.
 21 In Detroit, for example, there's a trustee
 22 set up that collects the casino revenues before they 23 go to the City, and that trustee then transfers
 24 those payments to certain creditors of the City.
 25 So sometimes it's a state acting, sometimes

1 it could be a private entity, a trustee, that
 2 receives the monies first, and I think there could
 3 be a variety of ways these get structured.
 4 Q. Okay. And by saying -- you say "I appreciate Main
 5 Street saying everyone should share in the pain, but
 6 troubled cities have to structure their deals in a
 7 certain way to get access to the market."
 8 So you're saying that with respect to 9 creditors that have intercept agreements, they don't
 10 have to share the pain with Main Street?
 11 A. It's harder for them to, I think, because they do --
 12 if -- they have a -- typically, in this case, and I
 13 don't want to overstate it and be too broad here,
 14 but when there's an intercept agreement in place I
 15 think it effectively serves like a filed lien, like 16 a mortgage on a home.
 17 There may be exceptions to that, but
 18 generally speaking, yes, and you'll find some older
 19 communities before they got in financial trouble
 20 they might have gone out and done unsecured
 21 borrowing, right? So there's no intercept there.
 22 They're then unsecured and in the pool of all the 23 unsecureds.
 24 When you have an intercept, you know, I
 25 want to be careful not to say every intercept

1 agreement creates a secured, you know, lender but
 2 probably most would be effectively a secured lender.
 3 Q. So are you saying that it's your view that to the 4 extent that a bondholder has an intercept agreement
 5 in a restructuring, particularly in the 6 restructuring of the City of Detroit, that they
 7 don't have to share the pain with the other
 8 creditors of the City?
 9 A. I don't think I understand your question because 10 restructuring at what point? I mean, a city can be 11 restructuring before Treasury is even involved so.
 12 Q. Before or after? At any time? I mean, at what 13 point is it appropriate if ever for the bondholders
 14 with intercept agreements or other special
 15 collateral arrangements to share the pain?
 16 A. Well, it's my -- I mean, some of this calls for a
 17 legal -- a lot of this calls for a legal conclusion,
 18 but it's my understanding that if you're let's say a 19 revenue bondholder, right, you're a -- typically,
 20 you're a secured lender, and you're entitled to the 21 revenue streams that you negotiated at the front end
 22 of the deal.
 23 So in Detroit's case you have a lot of 24 revenue bondholders that are entitled to revenue
 25 streams that come in to pay for water and sewer

1 services. Their collateral is that revenue stream,
 2 and if that revenue stream is inadequate to service
 3 the debt then they could be in harms's way. And
 4 it's my understanding that that's how Chapter 9
 5 would deal with revenue bondholders.
 6 There's a myriad of different ways. I
 7 don't mean to be evasive, but there's a lot of 8 different ways where intercept agreements can get 9 negotiated. I think that the one as it relates to 10 the casino revenues in Detroit is rather unique, and 11 it may not reflect kind of a standard borrowing that 12 may take place going forward.
 13 We did a financing a year and a half ago
 14 for Detroit. It was $137 million deal and that to 15 my knowledge my staff helped secure that, but that 16 was done with an agreement to intercept State
 17 revenue sharings to make certain that that debt was 18 serviced.
 19 So if the lenders did their job and got the 20 legal requirements that they need to have the 21 priority their first right to that revenue stream,
 22 then they're probably protected. If they have 23 defects in the legal work or they don't have a
 24 contractual right to that revenue stream, they 25 probably will be treated like any other creditor.

Page 29

1 Q. Well -- all right. So let me just move forward now
2 to the striking down of PA 4 by the voters of the 3 State. That happened in November of 2012; is that
4 right?
5 A. Right.
6 Q. And as State Treasurer, did you have a view on how 7 if at all this would impact Wall Street's view on 8 the subdivisions, the government subdivisions of the 9 State of Michigan and specifically the City of 10 Detroit?
11 A. At least one and maybe more credit rating agencies
12 said the fact that the State of Michigan had Public
13 Act 4 on the books was a credit positive. They 14 viewed it as a favorable environment for lending
15 into the State.
16 So when it got repealed, as it relates to 17 at least those one, maybe two credit rating
18 agencies, it would be deemed a credit negative that 19 Michigan now doesn't have that law which they deemed 20 to be a credit positive on the books.
21 And we then reverted back to Public 72
22 which was in my mind, you know, a good start, but it
23 needed some improvements to be effective.
24 Q. Would the repeal of Public Act 4 have any impact on 25 the credit rating of the State of Michigan?

1 A. Indirectly. I mean, the State has its own credit
2 rating and its own revenues and expenses and
3 obligations. Local units are stand-alone and have
4 their own responsibilities and obligations. So I
5 would only say it's indirectly.
6 I think if -- the rating agencies, I think
7 if they view that a state is mismanaging its local
8 units I think that they would view that negatively
9 on the State, but it doesn't directly provide a 10 commentary on whether or not the State is going to 11 repay its debt.
12 Q. You said that the markets reflected PA 4 as a credit
13 positive. What was it about PA 4 based on your 14 experience that had a positive impact on the credit 15 rating of the government subdivisions here in 16 Michigan?
17 A. Well, I mean, I think we should pull the statements
18 that were issued by the ratings agencies. I don't 19 remember if it was Moody, Standard or Poor or Fitch.
20 I think it might have been Moody's. I mean, they 21 issued actually statements saying it's a credit
22 positive.
23 I think they appreciate a state that is 24 proactively managing its finances as well as those 25 of their cities and school districts.

Page 31

1 Q. So is it the view of Wall Street or the credit
2 markets that where a state has the power to go in
3 and take over or manage a political subdivision,
4 that is positive from the perspective of the 5 markets, based on your experience?
6 MS. NELSON: Compound question, form,
7 foundation. Do you want to talk about a takeover?
8 You said take over or manage.
9 MR. SHERWOOD: You can object.
10 MS. NELSON: Form, foundation.
11 MR. SHERWOOD: And --
12 MS. NELSON: Compound.
13 MR. SHERWOOD: -- Treasurer Snyder can tell
14 me if he doesn't understand the question.
15 Now, can you read back the question?
16 MR. WERTHEIMER: Actually, it's Treasurer
17 Dillon.
18 MR. SHERWOOD: I'm sorry.
19 THE WITNESS: I got a promotion at the 20 deposition.
21 MR. SHERWOOD: Hold on. Let her read back
22 the question.
23 THE WITNESS: Actually, if I give you a
24 comment maybe you can rephrase it. That will make 25 it easier, because you're asking me to say what the

Page 32

1 credit markets think, and I'm not the credit
2 markets.
3 BY MR. SHERWOOD:
4 Q. I understand that, but as State Treasurer and a
5 person with substantial experience both in private 6 life and public life, I think you can give me your
7 perception of why PA 4 was viewed by the credit
8 markets as something that was attractive --
9 A. Yeah.
10 Q. -- and I'd like you to do that.
11 A. Detroit's a good example. The health of your 12 biggest city has an impact on the health of the 13 State, right, and if you have a city of 700,000
14 folks that don't have access to public safety, kids
15 can't walk safely to school, there's no lights on,
16 that's going to have a negative impact on the 17 State's economy.
18 So my personal opinion is yes, that's a
19 credit positive, that if you have a state that 20 proactively tries to prevent those types of health,
21 safety and wellness crises within their state to 22 have a healthy vibrant city, it's good to make the 23 state healthy and vibrant.
24 Q. But isn't it in the first instance the job of the 25 city government to fulfill those needs and address

Page 33

1 those concerns?
 2 A. That's how we've set it up.
 3 Q. And are you saying that in the case of Detroit, city
 4 government did not fulfill those needs?
 5 A. I think we've found there are circumstances where 6 local units have been unable to provide essential
 7 services or gotten themselves too far into debt that 8 it becomes very difficult to navigate out of.
 9 Q. What was your understanding of the repeal of PA 4?
 10 How did that operate practically? Did that mean,
 11 based on your understanding, that there was no
 12 emergency manager law as of the date of that repeal?
 13 A. My memory is the Attorney General told us that upon 14 the repeal of PA 4, PA 72 was the law that we should 15 follow.
 16 Q. And but didn't -- wasn't that opinion struck down by 17 the Supreme Court of the State of Michigan?
 18 A. I don't recall that.
 19 Q. Okay. Was that opinion challenged in court?
 20 A. It may have been. I don't recall.
 21 Q. And you don't know what the result of that legal 22 challenge was?
 23 A. I don't ever remember that PA 72 was not a law that 24 we at Treasury were supposed to rely upon during 25 these windows where PA 4 was repealed and before

1 PA 436 took effect.
 2 Q. All right. So let's turn to PA 436 real quick.
 3 Why was PA 436 implemented if PA 72 was in 4 effect?
 5 A. Because the same reason we put PA 4 in place. We 6 thought PA 72 could be improved upon. So after the 7 election there's a few meetings where we really did
 8 gather what were the criticisms of PA 4 and looked 9 to see if we could improve PA 4 to make it address
 10 those concerns.
 11 And then as we had worked with PA 4 for a
 12 period of time, we identified some areas that we 13 would want to seek improvement, and I'll give you
 14 one example. Often times we would want to give the 15 reigns, the power back to the local electeds, and in 16 order to do that under Public Act 4 you'd have to 17 end the emergency. And we were uncomfortable about 18 that because we were prepared to give -- return the 19 power before we were a hundred percent certain that 20 the financial emergency was over.
 21 So if you see in 436 what we did was we put 22 in place something called a Transition Advisory 23 Board, and that allows us to transfer power back to 24 the Mayor and the City Councils without having to 25 terminate the emergency status, so it allows us to

1 get out sooner. That would be something we learned
 2 during, you know, using or relying on Public Act 4.
 3 We also looked at, you know, various
 4 criticisms and we tried to put more local
 5 involvement into Public Act 436. So, for example,
 6 you'll see if the locals don't like a decision, a 7 material decision being made by a manager, they're 8 given a chance to come up with a better idea. And 9 there's various ingredients like that that we added
 10 to address some of the criticisms of PA 4.
 11 Q. So in enacting PA 436 after the repeal of PA 4, it
 12 was not your view that the Legislature and the 13 Governor were going against the will of the voters?
 14 A. I think we tried to accommodate the criticisms we 15 heard during the campaign.
 16 Q. Well, the voters didn't -- they didn't like the EM
 17 law. They thought it was a dictatorship, they 18 thought it was undemocratic.
 19 How specifically did 436 address the 20 concern of, you know, the EM law being a
 21 dictatorship?
 22 A. Well, for example, one of the changes were, you
 23 know, it wasn't just right to emergency. We had a 24 path for a consent agreement, we had a path for 25 emergency, we had a path for a restructuring, and

Page 36

1 then the fourth option was an actual Chapter 9 in
 2 case someone was really out of cash.
 3 So we tried to create options for the local
 4 units and we tried to give them a chance to come up
 5 with better ideas if they didn't like the plans of 6 the manager. From the meetings I sat in, I think
 7 there was a sincere effort to address that. And,
 8 you know, my memory was that the vote on PA 4 was 9 not a landslide. It was actually -- there was not 10 anyone advocating for the protection of PA 4, and 11 the vote was pretty close.
 12 If -- it wasn't one of six ballot measures
 13 and the only one -- I think it was the only one that 14 you wanted a vote the other way. I forget whether 15 it was yes or no kept the law, but it was the only 16 one where I think you had to vote yes to keep it and 17 all the other ones, you know, required a no vote.
 18 So it was a pretty close vote without one
 19 advocate out there saying why this law makes sense.
 20 And in my experience, I don't know that a lot of 21 people spent a lot of time really reading through PA
 22 4 and why it was necessary.
 23 Q. Did any of the changes between PA 4 and PA 436 deal
 24 specifically with the ability of the emergency
 25 manager to file bankruptcy?

1 A. I don't recall if there's differences there.
 2 Q. In your discussions with Mr. Orr, did you discuss
 3 with him the differences between PA 4 and PA 436?
 4 A. I don't recall. I do know that we spent time
 5 briefing him on how 436 works, and I know he spent a
 6 lot of time reading the statutes, and I think he had 7 a good understanding of what 436 was, but in terms
 8 of a discussion where we compared the two, I don't 9 recall that.
 10 Q. Give me one second. Did you have any role -- I'm 11 sorry. We okay?
 12 VIDEO TECHNICIAN: We haven't gone off the 13 record.
 14 MR. SHERWOOD: Good.
 15 BY MR. SHERWOOD:
 16 Q. Did you have any role in the drafting of PA 436?
 17 A. Not in the drafting, but as I indicated earlier,
 18 there was some meetings probably late November,
 19 early December about trying to address and improve
 20 Public Act 4.
 21 So there was some high-level themes that I
 22 attended meetings and discussed, but in terms of the 23 actual drafting of language, I didn't have any role 24 in that.
 25 Q. Let's mark this as Exhibit 2.

1
 2 (Deposition Exhibit 2 was marked.)
 3
 4 MS. NELSON: Do you have a copy that I can
 5 look at?
 6 MR. WERTHEIMER: For the record, all of us
 7 have seen this before.
 8 BY MR. SHERWOOD:
 9 Q. All right. So we've marked as D-2 Section 24 of the 10 State Constitution. It's just an excerpt of the 11 Constitution which says "The accrued financial 12 benefits of each pension plan and retirement system
 13 of the State and its political subdivision shall be 14 a contractual obligation thereof which shall not be 15 diminished or impaired thereby."
 16 Are you familiar with this provision of the 17 State Constitution?
 18 A. I am aware it existed and I now just read it.
 19 Q. Okay. Based on your review and understanding of PA
 20 436, does PA 436 in any way impact Section 24 of the 21 Michigan Constitution?
 22 MS. NELSON: Objection; calls for a legal
 23 conclusion.
 24 BY MR. SHERWOOD:
 25 Q. I just want your understanding.

Page 39

1 A. Can you restate the question?
 2 Q. During your consideration of PA 436 and your 3 discussions about it, did anyone ever come out and 4 say anything like let's try to modify Section 24 of 5 the Constitution?
 6 A. No, but when we did Public Act 4 we had this
 7 discussion.
 8 Q. Okay. And what was said in that discussion?
 9 A. I asked various lawyers that were involved, you
 10 know, how does this shake out? You know, you have 11 these -- you know, can you -- the key item of PA 4
 12 that raised a lot of concerns was the ability to 13 temporarily modify CBAs, and I have a different unit
 14 too.
 15 So we discussed this provision when we 16 drafted PA 4, and the answer I recall getting at the 17 time was that you have these competing provisions;
 18 the responsibility to provide for the public, health
 19 safety and welfare as well as that you can't impair
 20 contracts.
 21 And I believe there's a case back in the 22 thirties, and don't hold me to this, but I think
 23 there was one case that addressed this issue a long
 24 time ago. So in my mind the issue was resolved for 25 me during the PA 4 discussions, so when 436

1 resurfaced I didn't revisit the discussion but
 2 others may have.
 3 Q. Was it your understanding based on your experience
 4 and knowledge somehow under the authority of PA 436
 5 that the State of Michigan or the City of Detroit
 6 could disregard the constitutional provision
 7 protecting pension and retirement benefits?
 8 A. I'm sorry, could you read it?
 9 MR. SHERWOOD: You can read it back.
 10 (Reporter read pending question.)
 11 THE WITNESS: Could you read it one more
 12 time?
 13 (Reporter read record as follows:
 14 "Q. Was it your understanding based on your 15 experience and knowledge somehow under the 16 authority of PA 436 that the State of 17 Michigan or the City of Detroit could 18 disregard the constitutional provision
 19 protecting pension and retirement
 20 benefits?").
 21 THE WITNESS: No, I don't think PA 436 gave 22 you that right. I think you have economic 23 realities.
 24 For example, I have a different unit where 25 their pension fund is funded at less than 10

1 percent, and I do recall asking for legal advice
 2 about if that thing runs to zero, what happens? And 3 it's a unit that can't afford to raise taxes or 4 service that.
 5 And the memory I have is that, yeah, it's
 6 still there in the Constitution, but if the unit
 7 can't pay the pension they can't pay the pension.
 8 So I would say 436 --
 9 BY MR. SHERWOOD:
 10 Q. Why doesn't that logic also apply to the bondholder
 11 creditors of the City of Detroit? If the unit can't 12 pay, doesn't have enough to pay its pension
 13 obligations and its obligations to Wall Street, why
 14 doesn't that logic also apply?
 15 MS. NELSON: Objection; calls for a legal
 16 conclusion and for speculation.
 17 THE WITNESS: I'm not certain that it
 18 doesn't. If the unit doesn't have the money to pay
 19 their bondholders, there's a problem, and I guess
 20 that's what Chapter 9 is for or some type of effort
 21 to resolve it in a different way.
 22 We do that all the time working with units
 23 to see if we can restructure and help them
 24 restructure debts that they may have. But if 25 there's no money to pay, whether it be payroll or a

1 pension or a bondholder, there's no money.
 2 BY MR. SHERWOOD:
 3 Q. But I think you testified earlier that, you know,
 4 because certain bondholders have the protection of 5 entitlement to revenue streams that they should have 6 exclusive claims to those streams; is that right?
 7 A. I don't know if I said they should have, but I think
 8 that if they've done their legal work and they've 9 got the right to that stream, I think the courts
 10 will recognize they have the right to that revenue
 11 stream.
 12 Q. By the same token, the holders of vested pension and 13 retirement benefits have the protection of the 14 Constitution of the State of Michigan which prevents 15 those benefits from being diminished or impaired in 16 any way.
 17 Why is it that they have to make sacrifice
 18 in the context of the Chapter 9 case but not the 19 bondholders?
 20 MS. NELSON: Objection; form, foundation,
 21 assumes facts not in evidence. There's no plan
 22 that's even been filed that suggests that.
 23 MR. SHERWOOD: You can object to form.
 24 MS. NELSON: Form, foundation, speculation,
 25 improper hypothetical, and assumes facts not in

Page 43

1 evidence.
 2 THE WITNESS: Yeah, I mean, I think those 3 are decisions that would be made by a judge at some
 4 point.
 5 BY MR. SHERWOOD:
 6 Q. Well, didn't the Governor make that decision by 7 appointing the emergency manager?
 8 A. I don't believe so.
 9 Q. Wasn't one of the purposes of 436 to enable an
 10 emergency manager to file Chapter 9?
 11 A. I -- I mean, it was in PA 72, it was in PA 4, it was 12 in 436. I don't think that PA 436 changed that. In 13 fact, the law we were relying on at the time was 14 PA 72 that allowed for filing of a Chapter 9, so I
 15 don't think I accept that premise.
 16 Q. Let's -- this has been marked a hundred times, but 17 let's mark this as Dillon 3. It's the July 18th,
 18 2013 authorization letter.
 19
 20 (Deposition Exhibit 3 was marked.)
 21
 22 MR. WERTHEIMER: It's now Orr 11, Snyder 2
 23 and Dillon 3.
 24 MR. SHERWOOD: Orr 11, Snyder 2 and 25 Dillon 3, okay.

Page 44

1 BY MR. SHERWOOD:
 2 Q. Treasurer Dillon, I assume you've seen Dillon 3
 3 before?
 4 A. Yes.
 5 Q. Okay. Did you review this in preparation for your 6 deposition today?
 7 A. I did take a glance at it, yes.
 8 Q. Turning to the last page in the contingencies
 9 paragraph, that's a reference to PA 436.
 10 It says "...my approval of the 11 recommendation to commence a Chapter 9 proceeding
 12 may place contingencies on such a filing.... I am
 13 choosing not to impose any such contingencies today.
 14 Federal law already contains the most important
 15 contingency - a requirement that the plan be legally
 16 executable."
 17 Are you familiar with that language?
 18 A. I am.
 19 Q. Did you help the Governor draft this letter?
 20 A. I did not.
 21 Q. Did you see it in draft form before it went out?
 22 A. I did not.
 23 Q. Okay. In PA 436, do you have an understanding of 24 why that legislation provided that the Governor
 25 could place contingencies on a Chapter 9 filing?

Page 45

1 A. I wasn't part of the drafting of the language, so I
2 don't feel that I can answer that question.
3 Q. During the time leading up to the issuance of this
4 letter on July 18th, 2013, did you have discussions
5 with anybody about this contingency provision of 6 436?
7 A. I believe there was a -- yes, I did.
8 Q. And who did you have those discussions with?
9 A. I don't recall specifically. I had -- there was a
10 conference call, I believe, of the Governor's --
11 folks from the Governor's office as well as some 12 from Treasury where we discussed the pros and cons
13 of the issue and that was, you know, days before the 14 Governor's letter came out.
15 And then I had a brief conference call with 16 some Jones Day lawyers about the concept of it as 17 well.
18 Q. All right. So I think you talked about two 19 conversations?
20 A. I believe that's what I recall.
21 Q. All right. So let's leave out the Jones Day
22 discussion for now.
23 During the first conversation --
24 discussion, what was said about this provision in PA
25 436 concerning contingencies?

Page 46

1 MS. NELSON: Objection; attorney-client
2 privilege.
3 BY MR. SHERWOOD:
4 Q. Were attorneys present during that conference?
5 MS. NELSON: You need to answer verbally.
6 THE WITNESS: Oh, yes. Yes, I believe Mike
7 Gadola was on the conference call.
8 BY MR. SHERWOOD:
9 Q. Who is Mike Gadola?
10 A. He's the Governor's general counsel.
11 Q. And was he there to give legal advice?
12 A. I assume so.
13 Q. All right. But when you were -- when -- you can do
14 nothing but assume he was there. He was just there?
15 He wasn't there providing legal counsel to the folks
16 on the phone?
17 A. That was my understanding, that he was the 18 Governor's general counsel and he was advising us on 19 that issue.
20 Q. Did you view the conversation as one that was 21 confidential and privileged? Did you say anything
22 that you wouldn't say if a lawyer was in the room?
23 MS. NELSON: Which question would you like
24 him to answer first? You have two questions there.
25 MR. SHERWOOD: Okay.

Page 47

1 BY MR. SHERWOOD:
2 Q. Did you view the conversation as confidential?
3 A. Yes.
4 Q. Did you say anything that you wouldn't have said if 5 a lawyer was not in the room?
6 A. I don't believe so. I don't recall all the 7 specifics of that discussion.
8 Q. But you do know that the contingency provision of PA
9 436 was discussed on that call, right?
10 A. Yes.
11 Q. And then there was a follow-up call which -- when 12 did that call take place? Can you tell me the date
13 of the call, approximately?
14 A. No, but it would be within a week of the Governor's
15 letter coming out, I believe.
16 Q. Okay. And then the call with Jones Day that you
17 also described, did that happen before, did that 18 happen later?
19 A. I believe it happened before that conference call.
20 Q. Okay. So first there was a conference call where 21 Jones Day participated, and who was on that call?
22 A. There was -- I don't recall specifically. The call
23 happened in my office. I probably had one or two of 24 my staff on the call, and then who was on the other
25 end of Jones Day, I don't recall any names, to be

1 honest with you.
2 Q. Did you ever suggest to the Governor that in
3 authorizing the filing of Chapter 9 the Governor
4 should place a contingency on his authorization that 5 prohibited the emergency manager from violating the 6 constitutional rights of the City's pension and 7 benefit claimants?
8 A. I don't recall having done that.
9 Q. Was that your view?
10 A. I don't believe so. I mean, I appreciated that we 11 had an issue here, but I didn't tell the Governor
12 hey, you can't do that without having a contingency
13 in this constitutional provision.
14 Q. Did the Governor ever solicit your point of view
15 with respect to that issue?
16 A. No.
17 Q. Did you ever suggest to the Governor that the use of 18 the language that's set forth in D-3 under 19 contingencies, that the use of that language was a
20 way to sort of punt the issue to the federal court?
21 A. No. I didn't discuss any of this paragraph with the 22 Governor.
23 VIDEO TECHNICIAN: Secretary Dillon, you're
24 losing your microphone.
25 BY MR. SHERWOOD:

Page 49

1 Q. So you're not aware of any discussions where the use
 2 of this language in D-3 was viewed as a way to avoid
 3 having to make a decision as to the constitutional
 4 protections for pension benefits and the like?
 5 A. The first time I saw this letter was on freep dot
 6 com, so I didn't have discussions with the Governor
 7 about this provision.
 8 Q. Did you ever discuss just the idea with the Governor
 9 of how it would -- how he would authorize the filing
 10 of a Chapter 9 given the constitutional protection
 11 for vested pension and retirement benefits?
 12 A. I don't recall any specific discussion in that 13 context.
 14 Q. What about general discussions in that context?
 15 A. Yeah, I don't recall. I mean, I may have shared
 16 with him the advice I got about another unit who I
 17 was worried about where I knew that they didn't have 18 any funding in their pension plan and that when the 19 money runs out, you know, the view was that the 20 State was not liable for making up that difference.
 21 We may have -- I may have shared that
 22 opinion I got from a lawyer, but I don't remember
 23 the specific date or time or window when that may 24 have been shared, but I'm pretty certain I probably 25 did share that concept with him.

Page 50

1 Q. During your conversations with the Governor, did
 2 you -- either you or the Governor indicate to one
 3 another that you were looking for a way to avoid the 4 constitutional obligation to not impair the rights
 5 of vested pensions and benefits?
 6 MS. NELSON: Objection; asked and answered.
 7 Go ahead.
 8 THE WITNESS: Can you read that question
 9 back?
 10 (Reporter read pending question.)
 11 THE WITNESS: We never had a discussion
 12 about the desire to circumvent the Constitution in 13 any way.
 14 MR. SHERWOOD: Can we take a five-minute
 15 break at this point?
 16 VIDEO TECHNICIAN: Going off the record at
 17 10:21 a.m.
 18 (A brief recess was taken.)
 19
 20 (Deposition Exhibit 4 was marked.)
 21
 22 VIDEO TECHNICIAN: We're back on the record
 23 at 10:30 a.m.
 24 BY MR. SHERWOOD:
 25 Q. Okay, Treasurer Dillon, I've showed you what's been

Page 51

1 marked as Dillon 4, and I realize these are emails
 2 that you probably have not seen before, but they are 3 emails that were sent by the emergency manager where 4 he describes the new EM law as a "end around the 5 prior initiative that was rejected by the voters in 6 November."
 7 MS. NELSON: I'm going to object to your
 8 characterization it was sent by the emergency
 9 manager.
 10 At the date of January 31st, 2013, Kevyn
 11 Orr was not the emergency manager.
 12 MR. SHERWOOD: Okay. And you can only
 13 object to form and privilege so, please, no more
 14 speaking objections.
 15 BY MR. SHERWOOD:
 16 Q. Would you agree with Mr. Orr's statement on 17 January 31st, 2013, that the EM law was a "end 18 around the prior initiative that was rejected by the 19 voters in November"?
 20 A. I don't. I recall sincere meetings where we 21 examined what were the criticisms of the PA 4 and 22 tried to address them in the new legislation.
 23 Q. So you don't agree with his characterization?
 24 A. No.
 25 Q. Do you know -- if you look down to the bottom

Page 52

1 paragraph where Mr. Orr states that "...although the 2 new law provides the thin veneer of a revision it is 3 essentially a redo of the prior rejected law and 4 appears to merely adopt the conditions necessary for 5 a Chapter 9 filing."
 6 Do you agree with that statement?
 7 A. No, because I -- we spoke earlier about the tab
 8 added, the four options that the locals have, the 9 18-month window for which an EM can serve.
 10 So, I mean, those were sincere efforts on 11 the part of the Governor as well as my staff to 12 address issues that were raised during the ballot
 13 initiative.
 14 Q. So you disagree with this statement by Mr. Orr as 15 well; is that your testimony?
 16 A. I disagree with his characterization.
 17 Q. Does the new law 436 adopt the conditions necessary
 18 for a Chapter 9 filing?
 19 A. I believe it does. I don't have a legal opinion to 20 that effect, but I think it's -- 72 had it, 4 had it
 21 and I believe 436 has it. So we didn't need 436
 22 because we had 72 at the time, so --
 23 Q. Was there any discussion that you were a part of 24 where the start date for Mr. Orr was discussed?
 25 A. Sure. Yes.

1 Q. And was there ever a discussion about sort of 2 coordinating the start date for Mr. Orr with the 3 expiration of the old EM law?
 4 A. I don't recall.
 5 Q. Do you recall that initially the start date for 6 Mr. Orr was going to be somewhere in mid March of 7 2013?
 8 A. I believe -- my memory is his actual start date had 9 more to do with his schedule than ours.
 10 Q. Did his start date have anything to do with the 11 expiration of the old EM law and the -- I guess the 12 start date for the new EM law, 436?
 13 A. I don't believe so.
 14 Q. So you weren't party to any conversations with 15 Mr. Orr or the Governor where it was discussed that 16 the start date for the EM should sort of coincide
 17 with either the expiration of the old law or the 18 effective date of the new law?
 19 A. I don't recall that discussion. It's not that it
 20 didn't happen, I just don't recall it.
 21 Q. Yeah, because the effective date of the new law is 22 March 28th, 2013, and I believe that's the same date
 23 that he was formally appointed. Isn't that right?
 24 A. My memory is he served three days under 72 give or 25 take and then the new law kicked in, so he actually

Page 54

1 served under both is my memory.
 2 Q. Okay. Do you -- were you part of the search team
 3 for the emergency manager?
 4 A. I don't think we had an official search team, but 5 yes, I was involved.
 6 Q. Who else was involved with you?
 7 A. Primarily Rich Baird.
 8 Q. And were you at the meeting on I think it was 9 January 28th, 2013, at the airport in Detroit where 10 the law firms were interviewed?
 11 A. Yes.
 12 Q. And Mr. Baird was there as well?
 13 A. Yes.
 14 Q. And I think Mr. Buckfire was there?
 15 A. Most likely.
 16 Q. Anyone else on the side of the City and the State
 17 that you remember?
 18 A. I believe Tom Saxton and Brom Stibitz from Treasury
 19 were there. I believe Chris Andrews and Jack Martin
 20 from the City were there. I believe we may have had 21 some members of the Financial Advisory Board there.
 22 There may have been a few others I don't recall.
 23 Q. Had you known or heard of Mr. Orr before that
 24 meeting?
 25 A. No.

1 Q. Why was it that people from the State were at a
 2 meeting to select counsel for the City of Detroit?
 3 A. Well, the City, as you might recall at the time, was 4 under a consent agreement, and we were struggling
 5 with that and we were bringing in some professionals
 6 to help with the City. And December it involved an 7 investment bank and some restructuring firms; E and 8 Y and Conway MacKenzie, and then the last piece of 9 the puzzle was the law firm.
 10 Q. And before that meeting, where did the search for an 11 emergency manager stand? How many candidates -- how 12 many serious candidates did you guys have at that 13 point?
 14 A. Before the -- what meeting?
 15 Q. Before the meeting at the airport with the law
 16 firms.
 17 A. At the Jones Day?
 18 I don't recall specifically but there
 19 wasn't a lot. You know, we -- at that point I would 20 say we thought we had very few candidates that, A,
 21 could do it and, B, were willing to do it.
 22 Q. And how did it develop that Mr. Orr was identified
 23 as a candidate? Did it happen at that meeting or 24 after that meeting?
 25 A. I believe it was after that meeting Rich called me,

Page 56

1 Rich Baird called me and said what do you think of
 2 Orr? And it was just a phone conversation is how it
 3 started is my memory.
 4 Q. And before that meeting, your only knowledge of or 5 exposure to Mr. Orr was his being part of the Jones
 6 Day pitch team; is that fair to say?
 7 A. Right.
 8 Q. And your first notice that Mr. Orr was a prospect
 9 was -- came from Mr. Baird?
 10 A. Right.
 11 Q. Do you know whose idea it was to propose Mr. Orr as 12 a candidate?
 13 A. I believe it was Mr. Baird.
 14 Q. And what was your reaction?
 15 A. I was favorably inclined to explore it. We had only
 16 met him for -- I forget how long those interviews
 17 lasted but give or take an hour. So I had never met 18 him before then, so my experience with him is 19 limited.
 20 Q. What was it about Mr. Orr that in your view made him
 21 qualified to be the emergency manager?
 22 A. There's two primary attributes that I appreciated.
 23 One was he had a restructuring background which 24 clearly we needed and we'd been struggling in the 25 City, both from an operational as well as a balance

Page 57

1 sheet restriction.
 2 The other is my experience as Treasurer
 3 dealing with emergencies in other cities, it's 4 really important that the manager has the right
 5 personality because there's a way to do the job and 6 a way that calms the critics and the community, and
 7 there's a way to kind of ruffle feathers. And I
 8 liked Mr. Orr's disposition. I thought he would 9 have the ability to communicate a clear message as 10 to the reason why what is being done is being done,
 11 and I thought that in many ways that is in large
 12 measure probably the most important requirement.
 13 Q. Did there come a time when you expressed your 14 support of Mr. Orr as the potential emergency
 15 manager?
 16 A. Yeah. I had one meeting with him in my memory, and 17 it was a lunch really and it was more social -- as 18 much social as business related, but coming away
 19 from that meeting I was impressed and supportive,
 20 and I know Rich was doing a lot of the groundwork to 21 vet him as a potential candidate and I trust Rich's
 22 judgment.
 23 Q. During those meetings with Mr. Orr, did you discuss
 24 the path to Chapter 9 for the City of Detroit?
 25 A. No. I think it was more us sharing with him what

Page 58

1 our experience is in dealing with emergencies and
 2 how the law works, and in a way I think it was more
 3 information coming from Treasury to Orr than the 4 other way around.
 5 Q. During the Jones Day legal presentation at the 6 airport on the 28th of January, did Jones Day lay
 7 out to the group a path to Chapter 9 for the City of 8 Detroit?
 9 A. No.
 10 Q. Did they provide a written slide show or 11 presentation that laid out bankruptcy issues and 12 restructuring issues?
 13 A. We interviewed six firms that day, I believe. I
 14 don't remember the specifics of any particular
 15 pitch. I do know that Chapter 9 was a discussion, 16 you know, in probably most all of the firms that we 17 met with, but I don't -- I have zero memory of any 18 discussion about a path.
 19 Q. And just for the record, I've been saying the 20 January 28th meeting in the airport. I'm told that 21 it's really January 29th.
 22 A. Okay.
 23 Q. So, for the record, we're talking about the same
 24 meeting.
 25 During your discussions with Mr. Orr, did

Page 59

1 he -- did you or he address the political issues
 2 that were confronted by the Governor in terms of the 3 emergency manager statute and treatment of 4 retirement and pension benefits for the City
 5 employees?
 6 A. I don't recall that.
 7 Q. You don't recall that at all?
 8 A. I don't recall the specifics of our discussion. I
 9 remember the lunch meeting where I think it was, as 10 I said before, more of us sharing with him what the 11 role of an EM is like and less some lessons that 12 were learned by us.
 13 It wasn't like -- I don't recall any 14 circumstance where I was with Kevyn and I felt like 15 I was getting a tutorial about how did we get into 16 Chapter 9. I don't have any memory of something
 17 like that.
 18 Q. But during those discussions certainly you discussed
 19 the pension exposure, the exposure to the pension
 20 and the obligation to pay retiree benefits and the 21 impact that -- of that on the financial affairs of 22 the City of Detroit, didn't you?
 23 A. We would have discussed the City's cash position
 24 because that was front and center at the time. You
 25 know, do they have enough cash to navigate through

Page 60

1 the next year was probably the biggest issue.
 2 And I suspect we would have high-level
 3 discussions about the balance sheet of the City, but
 4 there was no discussion about, you know, how do you
 5 circumvent any liability and there was no talk about
 6 hair cutting bondholders or pensioners or walking
 7 away from health care, but there was general
 8 discussions I'm sure about the condition of the 9 balance sheet.
 10 Q. And you don't recall any specific discussions with 11 Mr. Orr in all of your interaction with him where 12 pension and health care obligations of the City
 13 were discussed and plans for dealing with those 14 obligations were discussed?
 15 MS. NELSON: I'm going to object to form
 16 and foundation. Is there a time frame?
 17 BY MR. SHERWOOD:
 18 Q. Well, I guess it would be January --
 19 MS. NELSON: You said all his
 20 conversations. Are you --
 21 MR. SHERWOOD: January 28th through the 22 filing date of July 18th.
 23 MR. WERTHEIMER: Yeah.
 24 THE WITNESS: Yes.
 25 BY MR. SHERWOOD:

Page 61

1 Q. So you had discussions with him about those issues?
 2 A. Yes.
 3 Q. And what did you say and what did he say?
 4 MS. NELSON: Well, I'm going to object
 5 because that will intrude on attorney-client
 6 privileged communications, so you're going to have 7 to parse it out.
 8 BY MR. SHERWOOD:
 9 Q. Did you have any conversations without counsel
 10 present?
 11 A. Yes.
 12 Q. Okay. And what was said during those?
 13 A. I mean, there was dozens of conversation so it's 14 hard for me to pick out one particular one and have 15 a clear memory of what was said.
 16 Q. Did you talk about the number, how much of -- how 17 much the pension was underfunded with Mr. Orr
 18 outside the presence of counsel?
 19 A. There was discussions about what the funding status
 20 of the pensions was, and it was and continues to be 21 a bit of a moving target. So we discussed that yes, 22 there's a study being done to estimate what is the 23 current funding status of the pension funds.
 24 Q. Did you discuss with him outside the presence of 25 counsel the cost of health care to the retired City

1 employees and the impact of that on the City's
 2 finances going forward?
 3 A. I'm sure we did.
 4 Q. Did you discuss with him the fact that Section 24 of
 5 the State --
 6 MR. WERTHEIMER: Article 9 Section 24.
 7 BY MR. SHERWOOD:
 8 Q. Article 9 Section 24 of the Michigan Constitution
 9 provided that financial benefits of each pension
 10 plan and retirement system shall not be diminished
 11 or impaired?
 12 A. There was a general understanding that there was a 13 constitutional protection of pensions that was 14 understood by folks from day one. So I think it
 15 would be a premise of all discussions that were had.
 16 Q. That was something that you understood, right?
 17 A. I understood that there was a constitutional
 18 provision, yes.
 19 Q. And based on your discussions with Mr. Orr, did you
 20 understand that he understood the constitutional
 21 protection?
 22 A. I'm -- I believe he understood there was a provision
 23 in the Michigan Constitution that addressed this
 24 issue.
 25 Q. And certainly the Governor understood that as well?

Page 63

1 A. I believe he did.
 2 Q. And you guys all had that understanding before the 3 bankruptcy was filed, correct?
 4 A. Yes.
 5 Q. And was it your understanding in the course of the 6 restructuring of the City of Detroit that a proposal
 7 was made on June 14th to address those liabilities?
 8 A. I attended that and I probably flipped through the 9 book during the presentation, and I believe there
 10 was an area that covered that topic, yes.
 11 Q. And would you describe the treatment of the claims
 12 of the pensions and retirement systems as being 13 diminished or impaired under that proposal?
 14 A. I'd like to see it before I comment on it.
 15 Q. You'd like to see the proposal?
 16 A. The language in there, yeah.
 17 Q. While they're looking for it, do you know -- if you
 18 look at -- and I'm sorry, everybody's seen this, but 19 it has been previously marked as Snyder 3, and this 20 is the June 14th proposal for creditors.
 21 And if you turn to page 109 there is a
 22 underlined bullet point on treatment of pensions.
 23 MR. WERTHEIMER: Just for the record,
 24 that's one or another of us line. It isn't on the 25 original document.

Page 64

1 MR. SHERWOOD: Yeah.
 2 THE WITNESS: I recall this and my memory
 3 is that the intent of this document was to lay out
 4 the facts for the creditors so that they could
 5 understand the financial condition of the City.
 6 BY MR. SHERWOOD:
 7 Q. Can I have it back? Oh, you lost the page.
 8 A. Sorry.
 9 Q. That's okay, I'll find it.
 10 But it does say at the bottom of page 109
 11 that "Given the underfunding amount, there must be
 12 significant cuts in accrued vested pension amounts
 13 for both active and currently retired employees",
 14 correct?
 15 A. That's what the document says.
 16 Q. And would you -- is it your view that the -- that 17 significant cuts in accrued vested pension amounts
 18 for both active and currently retired persons is 19 consistent with the Michigan Constitution,
 20 Section 24?
 21 A. That's a legal question that in my mind the courts
 22 will decide.
 23 Q. Okay. But it's really not a legal question. It's 24 pretty obvious that it is a violation of the 25 Constitution, isn't it?

Page 65

1 A. I don't agree with that.
 2 MS. NELSON: Objection; argumentative.
 3 BY MR. SHERWOOD:
 4 Q. And without giving your -- as a Treasurer, as a
 5 former Legislator, is it your view or do you agree
 6 that the proposed treatment on June 14th, 2013,
 7 providing for cuts in accrued vested pension amounts
 8 for both active and currently retired persons would 9 be violative of Section 24 of the Michigan
 10 Constitution?
 11 A. No, because that doesn't provide for it. To my 12 mind, and this is how this Governor does business,
 13 is he hires good people and lets them do their job.
 14 To me that document was laying out the 15 facts for creditors so they could understand the 16 financial condition of City.
 17 Q. So this wasn't a proposal even though it's -- even 18 though the title of the document is proposal for 19 creditors?
 20 A. I think he's just laying out the facts. This is the 21 economic reality of the City of Detroit. From 22 there, as you know, there was various meetings with 23 various creditors to discuss can we get this thing
 24 settled out of court.
 25 Q. Did you participate in any of those meetings?

Page 66

1 A. I don't believe so.
 2 Q. Were you given reports by the emergency manager as 3 to how those meetings were going?
 4 A. We typically had a weekly either meeting or call
 5 where we were given an update on the status of 6 events.
 7 Q. Who was on the weekly meeting call?
 8 A. It would be Kevyn and some of the members from his 9 team, various members of the Governor's office as 10 well as my office.
 11 Q. And what was reported in terms of the progress that 12 the emergency manager was or wasn't making with the 13 out-of-court negotiations?
 14 MS. NELSON: I'm going to object to the 15 extent that it calls for attorney-client
 16 communications and instruct him not to answer.
 17 That, in fact, is what it calls for.
 18 BY MR. SHERWOOD:
 19 Q. Did you have any communications with Mr. Orr outside
 20 the presence of counsel --
 21 A. Yes.
 22 Q. -- concerning -- concerning negotiations with 23 creditors before the Chapter 9?
 24 A. Yes.
 25 Q. And what did you say during those communications?

Page 67

1 A. I was mostly just listening because I was getting an 2 update about how things were going.
 3 Q. What was the -- what did he say?
 4 A. The only specific memory I have would be the one
 5 dealing with the SWOPS, discussions with the SWOP
 6 providers and whether or not there could be a
 7 settlement reached with them.
 8 Q. What did Mr. Orr say about the SWOPS?
 9 A. He reached an agreement with two of the SWOP
 10 providers that he could get a discount on the monies
 11 owed on the SWOPS, and that's my only memory of a
 12 specific -- I knew every week that he was meeting
 13 with various creditors, but that's the only one that 14 I remember kind of a specific deliverable for.
 15 Q. And do you recall anything else about those 16 nonprivileged conversations?
 17 Did he report that the negotiations were 18 going well, that they were going poorly, that they 19 were not going at all, anything along those lines or 20 do you just recall the specific discussion about the 21 SWOPS?
 22 A. Yeah. I -- there was, I think, just general
 23 comments that they weren't real productive, right,
 24 that we weren't making progress.
 25 Q. Did he say why?

Page 68

1 A. I'm sure he did, but it would require going through
 2 each of the various creditors that he met with at 3 the time so I don't have specific memories of each.
 4 The only one I have a specific memory right
 5 now about would be very difficult discussions with 6 the suretys, the insurance companies, a lot of 7 unwillingness to embrace what the economic realities
 8 were, and then a lot of concern about the number of 9 retirees and the unions not wanting to represent the 10 retirees, making it difficult to negotiate for 11 20,000 people.
 12 Q. Did he say it was impossible to negotiate with all 13 of the creditors of the City of Detroit? Did he 14 reach that conclusion in your presence?
 15 A. I don't recall the specific words he used but 16 clearly he was expressing that it was very difficult
 17 to work and negotiate with a pool of creditors that 18 include 20,000 individuals, yes.
 19
 20 (Deposition Exhibit 5 was marked.)
 21
 22 BY MR. SHERWOOD:
 23 Q. Treasurer Dillon, we've marked as Dillon 5 an email
 24 from you dated July 9th to the Governor and others.
 25 Are you familiar with this email?

Page 69

1 A. Yes.

2 Q. And it says that "Kevyn will meet with the Detroit
3 pensions tomorrow after all."

4 I want to ask you about the word after all.

5 Was there a suggestion before you wrote this email
6 that Kevyn was not going to meet with the Detroit
7 pensions?

8 A. Yeah. I think before that there was some thought
9 that that meeting was going to get cancelled.

10 Q. And who was going to cancel it?

11 A. My memory is Kevyn might have. There was a lawsuit
12 that was filed that I think caused some 13 consternation about whether or not he should meet
14 with them.

15 Q. So initially Mr. Orr was considering not meeting
16 with the pensions on July 10th, 2013, and then he 17 changed his mind and decided to meet with them?

18 A. My memory is there was a plan to meet with them,
19 then some lawsuits got filed which I think he 20 contemplated not going forward with the meeting.
21 And from reading this, apparently he went forward
22 with the meeting.

23 Q. Going down to the last paragraph it says "Tomorrow's 24 meeting could lead to questions directed to you
25 about your view on this topic."

1 Obviously, you is the Governor, and the
2 Governor's view on this topic, I assume this topic
3 is the Detroit pensions. Would that -- is that
4 right? Am I right saying those things?

5 A. Right.

6 Q. So and then you -- then you say "...it's too
7 early in the process to respond to hypothetical
8 questions. We remain in many ways in the 9 informational stage."

10 Does that mean that at this point in time,
11 July 9th, 2013, you were still in the informational
12 stage vis-a-vis the Detroit pensions?

13 A. We were learning things. We were learning about an 14 annuity program that the City had offered employees.
15 We were learning that there was alternative
16 investments that were made that were not written 17 down. We were learning what assumptions the 18 City's actuarial firm was making versus the ones
19 that Milliman was hired to really appreciate and 20 understand what was the level of underfunding.

21 So on that date in question I couldn't tell
22 you that these funds were funded at X percent
23 because there was too many moving pieces to the 24 puzzle.

25 Q. So your advice to the Governor was in response to

Page 71

1 questions about his view on the Detroit pensions was
2 to just say it was too early in the process and you
3 were still in the informational stage; is that
4 right?

5 A. That's right.

6 Q. And this was before the Governor authorized
7 Chapter 9 filing, correct?

8 A. Correct.

9 Q. Did that -- did your view of the Governor's -- what
10 the Governor's position should be change before
11 July 18th, in the next week?

12 A. No.

13 MR. SHERWOOD: All right. I'm going to 14 stop here, Treasurer. Thank you.

15 I reserve the right if we have time to ask
16 a question or two later, but I think as a courtesy
17 to my -- the other lawyers here I'm going to turn
18 over the mic to them.

19 Thank you for your testimony this morning.
20 Should we take a quick break?

21 VIDEO TECHNICIAN: Off the record 11:02
22 a.m.

23 (A brief recess was taken.)

24 VIDEO TECHNICIAN: We're back on the record
25 at 11:06 a.m.

1 EXAMINATION

2 BY MR. WERTHEIMER:

3 Q. Mr. Dillon, my name is Bill Wertheimer. We've met
4 off the record. I'm going to be asking you some
5 questions.

6 I represented and represent what we've
7 called the Flowers Plaintiffs. That is one of the 8 group of retirees that filed lawsuits in state court
9 before the bankruptcy was filed.

10 You indicated early in your testimony that 11 you were involved in some discussions shortly after 12 you took office as Treasurer about replacing Public
13 Act 72. Do you recall that?

14 A. Uh-huh. Yes.

15 Q. You need to say your answer.

16 A. Yes.

17 Q. And you talked about competing constitutional
18 provisions, one of them being the constitutional 19 provision relating to public health, safety,
20 welfare, correct?

21 A. Correct.

22 Q. And as I understand it, your focus at the time had 23 to do with your ability to modify CBAs; is that
24 right?

25 A. That's right.

Page 73

1 Q. Would the competing constitutional provision that
 2 you were discussing at the time have been the 3 impairment of contracts provision?
 4 A. Yes.
 5 Q. So it wasn't the provision dealing specifically with
 6 pensions?
 7 A. Correct.
 8 Q. Am I right?
 9 A. Right?
 10 Q. Okay, that's what I thought.
 11 Do you recall any discussions that dealt 12 with the pension provision in those discussions that 13 led up to Public Act 4?
 14 A. Not specifically, and if -- it may have been at the 15 time, but when I look back now my memory is really 16 it was the two competing ones were the impairment of 17 contract and the health, safety and welfare.
 18 So not that we never discussed nine, but
 19 those were really the two that were the focal point
 20 for me, and it's very likely that the other
 21 Article 9 provision was discussed as well, but I
 22 don't have as much memory about that.
 23 Q. You don't have a memory about it.
 24 When you were talking after the referendum
 25 where Public Act 4 went down and you're now talking

1 about a replacement for that, were there any
 2 specific discussions relating to the Article 9
 3 provision; that is, the one relating to pensions?
 4 A. Not to my memory.
 5 Q. Do you recall any consideration at all as to whether 6 you should put any kind of contingencies in the 7 statute in -- at that point in the statute where 8 you're giving the emergency manager or the City the 9 ability to file for bankruptcy?
 10 A. I was not part of discussions in that regard, and I
 11 was not close to the actual drafting and movement of 12 the legislation through the Legislature.
 13 Q. Okay. You have been -- would it be fair to say
 14 you've been closely involved in the Detroit
 15 situation from the time you took office in January 16 of 2011?
 17 A. Yes.
 18 Q. Could you briefly tell us what your role has been 19 since then and how that role has changed, briefly,
 20 from January of 2011 up to date?
 21 A. Yeah. To the best I can, because it goes back a 22 long time. There's been a lot of activities in 23 between.
 24 Q. I understand. And we've got underlying documents
 25 with dates and stuff and titles, but I just want

1 kind of a general framework.
 2 A. I mean, just generally speaking, Detroit was on our
 3 radar when we came in. We knew it was, you know,
 4 potentially in trouble. But the first six months I
 5 think that the dealings were rather limited. I
 6 recall we had some issues regarding Flint and DPS
 7 that predated our more active engagement with
 8 Detroit.
 9 And then Detroit started to experiencing,
 10 you know, cash crunches. And one of the consultants
 11 we used at DPS, we asked if he would help with 12 Detroit. That was Gora Mahatra (ph.) from Ernst and 13 Young. And really the focus on the early end was 14 just understanding the City's cash position and 15 making certain that they would be able to meet
 16 payroll and their essential obligations.
 17 And I had always told the Governor that to 18 me kind of the trigger number was if the City got 19 below 50 million in cash, I would come to him at 20 that point and likely recommend that we begin a 21 review, an emergency review. And that was kind of 22 our benchmark is to -- I didn't want to be in a
 23 situation where the City got below 50 and then we're 24 starting a review because it might be too late to 25 help the City at that point.

1 So on the early end it was a partnership
 2 with the City and just working with them, and then
 3 when the cash got tight, you know, we moved into the 4 initial -- there was two reviews, right, the initial
 5 review which I think happened in '11 that led to a
 6 consent agreement and --
 7 Q. And the consent agreement was when, approximately?
 8 A. April, I think of '12 --
 9 Q. '12, okay.
 10 A. -- is my memory.
 11 And so during that, prior to the consent
 12 agreement there was a lot of obviously negotiations
 13 to get to that point so that we had an understanding
 14 and that the City had the ability to address their 15 issues on their own. And then it wasn't until 16 December of '12 where I had a meeting with Chris
 17 Andrews, and the City had gone through -- don't hold
 18 me to the number -- but tens of millions of dollars
 19 of cash from September through December where their 20 disposable cash was eroding rapidly.
 21 And immediately after that meeting, I
 22 called the Governor and I said I think they're at 23 the $50 million threshold and I think we have to 24 commence another review immediately. I believe that 25 was because the law had changed. So the initial

Page 77

1 review was no longer valid because it was done under
 2 a prior law. So we initiated the new review in 3 December of '12 which led ultimately to the 4 emergency manager's appointment.
 5 Once the manager was appointed our
 6 day-to-day active role diminished somewhat.
 7 Q. Let me ask you a question about that.
 8 Do you have one-on-one conversations with 9 Mr. Orr?
 10 A. Yes.
 11 Q. How often?
 12 A. It varies. One-on-ones would be -- it could be 13 twice in a week or it could be zero in a week.
 14 Depends what issues are brewing.
 15 Q. What about larger discussions with other people
 16 ever, either in person or telephone conferences?
 17 How often with Mr. Orr since he's been appointed?
 18 A. We have a standing meeting on Mondays where it could 19 be face-to-face or it could be over the phone where 20 it's just a briefing on what happened last week,
 21 what's happening next week, where are we.
 22 Q. Has your role stayed essentially the same from the 23 time Mr. Orr took over or did it at all change when 24 he filed Chapter 9?
 25 MS. NELSON: Objection; form, foundation.

Page 78

1 You said when he took over and then when he filed
 2 Chapter 9.
 3 MR. WERTHEIMER: Well, there were two
 4 different times and I'm just trying to find out
 5 whether --
 6 BY MR. WERTHEIMER:
 7 Q. Go ahead.
 8 A. I think it's pretty much the same.
 9 Q. Okay.
 10 A. When he first came in, we gave him time to find out
 11 where the desks were and chairs and gave him time to 12 assemble and then -- but the weekly standing meeting
 13 was pretty much a given.
 14 Q. At either the weekly meetings or in your one-on-one
 15 conversations with Mr. Orr, have you ever discussed
 16 with him either the subject of Article 9 Section 24
 17 of the Constitution specifically or generally the 18 fact that the State Constitution does have some 19 special protections for pensions?
 20 Has that subject matter come up in any of 21 these conversations?
 22 MS. NELSON: Objection; attorney-client
 23 privilege. If you want to go ahead and establish 24 whether those conversations occurred with or without 25 counsel, then he can appropriately answer.

Page 79

1 BY MR. WERTHEIMER:
 2 Q. I'll ask you to exclude any conversations where your 3 counsel was present, so either the one-on-ones or if 4 in any of these group meetings you did not have 5 attorneys present.
 6 A. I don't have any specific memory of a discussion
 7 about Article 9 with Mr. Orr.
 8 Q. How about discussions about the fact that there was 9 this state provision that protected pensions?
 10 A. I'm -- I presume that it was discussed early on and 11 it was understood by people that there was this
 12 provision in the Constitution.
 13 Q. Including Mr. Orr? That is, I assume you're saying
 14 that this came up in some way in your conversations?
 15 A. Yes.
 16 Q. Okay. Did it also come up in your conversations
 17 that the only practical way to deal with this issue
 18 absent getting consent from the 20,000 retirees or 19 the unions on their behalf was the filing of a
 20 Chapter 9?
 21 A. I don't recall that conversation.
 22 Q. Isn't that, in fact, your understanding; that is,
 23 isn't it your understanding as you sit here that the 24 only practical way that the State could have dealt 25 with the State constitutional provision other than

1 honoring it and the State coming in and making good
 2 on the pensions was for a bankruptcy to be filed?
 3 A. Not necessarily.
 4 Q. How else, as you sit here, do you think it could as 5 a practical matter be dealt with?
 6 MS. NELSON: Objection; calls for a legal
 7 conclusion.
 8 BY MR. WERTHEIMER:
 9 Q. Go ahead, Mr. Dillon.
 10 A. There's another unit that I referenced earlier that 11 has virtually no funding in their pension fund,
 12 right? So, I mean, my understanding is the law is 13 very unsettled here, right?
 14 Q. Which law?
 15 A. That the law is unsettled.
 16 Q. Just the law generally?
 17 A. Right.
 18 Q. Go ahead.
 19 A. So if you have a unit that basically exhausts all of 20 their pension monies and then has no means by which 21 to honor those pension payments, what happens? I
 22 can't sit here and tell you, but I've had 23 discussions. I've asked for legal advice on what 24 happens, and the advice I got was --
 25 MS. NELSON: It's attorney-client

Page 81

1 privilege.
 2 THE WITNESS: Oh, okay.
 3 BY MR. WERTHEIMER:
 4 Q. You know as you sit here -- I'm assuming, I'm 5 asking -- that the Attorney General has filed papers
 6 in the bankruptcy in which he has said that it's his 7 legal opinion that Article 9 Section 24 applies in 8 the bankruptcy; do you not?
 9 MS. NELSON: Objection to form and
 10 foundation. As we indicated yesterday, an Attorney
 11 General opinion has a specific -- you're saying
 12 legal opinion.
 13 MR. WERTHEIMER: Margaret.
 14 MS. NELSON: You're talking about a brief.
 15 MR. WERTHEIMER: Margaret, you are entitled 16 to make an objection. You are not entitled to 17 comment.
 18 MS. NELSON: Well, your characterization of 19 a legal opinion is incorrect. So my objection is 20 form, foundation,
 21 MR. WERTHEIMER: That's fine.
 22 MS. NELSON: And calls for a legal
 23 conclusion.
 24 MR. WERTHEIMER: Thank you.
 25 BY MR. WERTHEIMER:

Page 82

1 Q. Could you answer?
 2 A. I'm aware that the Attorney General has intervened,
 3 but I haven't read his brief and I don't know the 4 position he's taken.
 5 Q. Haven't you read the press reports?
 6 A. Yeah.
 7 Q. And, I mean, you know that the Attorney General's 8 position is, would it be fair to say, not consistent
 9 with the position that Emergency Manager Orr has 10 stated publicly to the Detroit Free Press and 11 others?
 12 A. I don't mean to be difficult, but that's an overly
 13 broad statement because in my mind -- I haven't read
 14 what the Attorney General is saying. He may be 15 acknowledging that this constitutional provision
 16 exists, which I assume is one position.
 17 How that's dealt with in a Chapter 9
 18 proceeding, I don't know if the AG's opined or taken
 19 a position on that, so I don't know.
 20 Q. Okay. Has the Attorney General ever communicated to 21 you as the head of Treasury the opinion that 22 Article 9 Section 24 applies in the bankruptcy?
 23 A. I haven't discussed this topic with the Attorney
 24 General. And by that I mean the person, Bill
 25 Schuette.

1 Q. I understand. That's what I thought you meant.
 2 Have you had any one-on-one discussions
 3 with the Governor about -- either specifically about
 4 Article 9 Section 24 or generally about the fact
 5 that there is a state constitutional provision that 6 protects pensions?
 7 MS. NELSON: Objection; asked and answered.
 8 You can go ahead and answer again.
 9 THE WITNESS: No.
 10 BY MR. WERTHEIMER:
 11 Q. The subject has never come up between the two of
 12 you?
 13 A. Well, you said one-on-one.
 14 Q. You're right, I did say one-on-one.
 15 Has it ever come up in group meetings
 16 without attorneys present?
 17 A. And what precisely was that again? Can we -- 18 Q. A conversation in which you discussed either the 19 specifics of Article 9 Section 24 or generally the 20 fact that there is a state constitutional provision
 21 that protects pensions.
 22 A. I don't recall.
 23 Q. Do you recall that in early July initially two 24 lawsuits were filed against you in your official
 25 capacity and against the Governor in his that

1 related to what was going on in Detroit and this
 2 pension provision we've been asking you about?
 3 A. That rings a bell.
 4 Q. Okay. Did you learn -- do you recall whether you
 5 learned about them the day they were filed? And if 6 it helps, they were filed on July 3rd.
 7 A. I don't know the exact number but I think there are 8 give or take a hundred lawsuits against the Governor
 9 and I related to this topic, so I'm nervous about 10 saying I have specific memory on any particular one,
 11 but --
 12 Q. You mean among these hundred cases you can't 13 differentiate either the Flowers or the Webster case
 14 or the case that the pension boards brought that 15 specifically dealt with the ability of the Governor
 16 to authorize a bankruptcy in the face of Article 9
 17 Section 24? You really can't differentiate?
 18 A. I recall that those suits got filed. The day and 19 the time I got notified, I don't recall.
 20 Q. Okay. Do you recall learning that there was going
 21 to be a hearing on requests for injunctive relief
 22 that would have in some way precluded the Governor's 23 ability to authorize a bankruptcy and that that
 24 hearing was scheduled for July 22nd?
 25 A. I recall that there was a hearing scheduled. I

Page 85

1 don't recall the specific date.
 2 Q. Okay. But you knew about it before the hearing
 3 itself?
 4 A. Yes.
 5 Q. A week, 10 days before?
 6 A. I don't recall.
 7 Q. Did you have any discussions internal at Treasury
 8 about the fact that there was going to be this 9 hearing at which a state court judge was going to be 10 asked to issue injunctive relief along the lines
 11 I've suggested?
 12 MS. NELSON: Objection; attorney-client
 13 privilege. If you want to sort that out because he 14 does have as legal counsel Fred Headen.
 15 BY MR. WERTHEIMER:
 16 Q. Again, let's exclude any conversations where your 17 attorneys were present for the purpose of either
 18 giving advice or potentially giving advice.
 19 Did you have any conversations excluding
 20 those between the time you learned of the lawsuit
 21 and learned that there was going to be a hearing
 22 later in July?
 23 A. I don't recall any conversations where a lawyer was 24 not present for that topic.
 25 Q. So you were -- and how many conversations did you

Page 86

1 have about that subject matter with lawyers present?
 2 A. I don't recall, but I would say three or less.
 3 Q. Okay. Did you at any point learn that the 4 Governor's office planned to -- in conjunction with
 5 the Detroit Emergency Manager planned to file
 6 bankruptcy the Friday before that Monday hearing or
 7 July 19th?
 8 A. I was aware that there was a sequence of events, a 9 time schedule for when things would happen. And my 10 memory was I wasn't -- I don't know if I wasn't in 11 Lansing or I wasn't, you know, having meetings at 12 the Governor's office during that window and right
 13 prior to the filing.
 14 I wasn't having meetings in those three-
 15 and four-day window with them, so I knew there was a
 16 schedule and a timeline, but I wasn't having direct
 17 discussions with the Governor's office.
 18 Q. Did you know that the plan was to file for 19 bankruptcy before the court hearings?
 20 A. I -- can you restate the question?
 21 Q. Yes. Did you at least know that the plan was that 22 if the plan went forward, the bankruptcy filing
 23 would occur before the hearings that were scheduled
 24 in the cases that had been filed against you and the 25 Governor?

1 A. I don't remember the sequence of the dates so -- and
 2 I wasn't part of that decision so I --
 3 Q. Okay.
 4 A. I'd have to see some documents to show, yeah, this 5 is the time schedule we discussed on such and such 6 date, and I don't remember the date the hearing was 7 scheduled on the Flowers case.
 8 Q. Let me show you what we marked yesterday at the 9 Governor's deposition Snyder Exhibit 6, and let me
 10 just direct your -- I'm going to show it to you but 11 I'm going to direct your attention because there's a
 12 lot of information in the document.
 13 It looks to me from the upper right as 14 though this is a document created the 17th of July,
 15 which would have been the Wednesday, and it's a
 16 rollout plan that indicates that the Governor's
 17 going to sign the authorization 8 p.m. on Thursday
 18 the 18th, and then the filing is going to be the 19 morning of the 19th, and all kinds of events follow
 20 that up to and including Fox News Sunday and George 21 Stephanopoulos and Frank Beckman and you name it.
 22 A. Uh-huh.
 23 Q. Let me just ask you have you ever seen that
 24 document?
 25 A. I don't have a specific memory of it. I think we

Page 88

1 met that Monday where the timeline was discussed.
 2 Q. The preceding Monday?
 3 A. Yeah.
 4 Q. Which would have been the 15th? Am I right?
 5 A. I believe so.
 6 Q. Okay.
 7 A. I don't know if this got circulated at that meeting
 8 or was just discussed.
 9 Q. Well, does it refresh your memory as to what the 10 plan was?
 11 A. Generally speaking, yes.
 12 Q. Okay. And the plan was to -- the Governor would 13 sign it Thursday night and Orr would file on Friday,
 14 right?
 15 A. That's my memory.
 16 Q. Do you recall that the plan changed at the last
 17 minute?
 18 A. I believe it may have. Yes. I think it --
 19 Q. Were you involved in any conversations with anyone
 20 excluding conversations where attorneys were present
 21 for the purpose of giving legal advice where anyone
 22 gave a reason for that change of plan?
 23 A. I was not present for any of those discussions.
 24 Q. Did you hear secondhand?
 25 A. No.

1 Q. You never heard why Orr moved it up by a day or it
2 was moved up by a day?
3 A. No, and, in fact, it was -- I'd like to look at my 4 schedule because I don't know if I was even in 5 Lansing during those dates.
6 Q. Okay. But you do -- you have no memory as to ever
7 knowing the reason why it was moved up. That's just 8 what I want to know about.
9 A. I've heard speculation on the street.
10 Q. We're not talking about the street, but if the 11 street includes people at Treasury --
12 A. No. No.
13 Q. -- or people in the Governor's office?
14 A. No one briefed me on why the date moved.
15 Q. Okay. I'm going to show you what we had marked
16 yesterday at the Governor's deposition as Exhibit 8.
17 This is an email from you to the Governor a
18 day before the one that you were previously shown.
19 Could you take a look at that, please.
20 Do you recall sending that email to the 21 Governor?
22 A. Yes.
23 Q. And would I be correct I guess in my arithmetic that
24 last Wednesday would have been July 3rd, as you
25 begin last Wednesday.

Page 90

1 A. That sounds about right.
2 Q. Okay. And for the record, that's when the Flowers
3 and Webster's cases were filed, on July 3rd.
4 Is that -- would that have been the
5 reason -- would that be the information you learned
6 on that last Wednesday?
7 A. I don't believe so.
8 Q. What was it, if you recall? There's a reference to 9 Detroit consultants, that's why I am --
10 A. Yeah. No, I think this had to do with the level of 11 funding for the pensions, how it was getting 12 measured. So I was -- the filing of the suit
13 wouldn't tie into this comment about their thought
14 about the impact on the ability to pay pensions.
15 So the number was moving about how well
16 funded the pension plans were, and there were 17 several issues that we were learning about; the 18 annuity program, the failure to write down
19 alternative assets that were on the books, the 20 actuarial assumptions to get to the level of 21 funding, calculus.
22 So there was a lot of activity around the 23 pensions in trying to get our arms around it at that 24 time and --
25 Q. Do you recall, if you look further down in the first

Page 91

1 paragraph, the sentence that reads "I learned today
2 that due to the pension funds recent suits against
3 you and me...", is that a reference -- can you tell
4 me what that's a reference to?
5 A. I don't have a specific recollection about if it was 6 the Flowers suit or not.
7 Q. It may have been?
8 A. Probably was.
9 Q. Probably was. Okay.
10 And in this email you're telling the 11 Governor in the next paragraph that the consultants
12 think that current pensions have to be cut
13 significantly, correct?
14 A. I expressed the view of the consultants, yes.
15 Q. Did you agree with that view?
16 A. To me it was -- there's a lot of -- to value the 17 level of funding of a pension fund requires a lot of 18 assumptions on a lot of different factors, and to me
19 it was very fluid. And I think there was an earlier
20 email we looked at before where I just -- I think my 21 advice to the Governor was let's -- we're in the 22 informational stage, so I viewed it that way.
23 I was troubled though by, for example, the 24 annuity program which I thought was very damning and 25 damaging to the status of the pension funds. You

Page 92

1 know, The 13th Checks that go out. There's a lot of 2 activities that I thought were doing damage to the 3 pension funds, but until I really knew what the 4 funding status was it was hard to form an opinion
5 about what the impact would be on retirees.
6 Q. Okay. Did you have any personal conversations with 7 the Governor around these issues at this time or was 8 it just the email -- the two emails?
9 A. From reading the one email it looks like I called 10 him.
11 Q. Right. Do you remember whether you just left a
12 message or you had a substantive conversation?
13 A. I think we spoke briefly, yeah.
14 Q. What was the content of that conversation?
15 A. It was one of these issues that was bubbling up that 16 I wanted to get on his radar so --
17 Q. Do you remember which one?
18 A. I'd have to guess, but it would be in this area that 19 I was referring to. But there was one in 20 particular.
21 Q. Are you referring to the Flowers, Webster litigation
22 or are you referring to this other litigation you've 23 been talking about?
24 A. Not litigation. I think I was referring to the 25 information we were learning about the health of the

Page 93

1 pension funds.
 2 Q. Okay. All right.
 3 Did you have any conversations with the
 4 Governor about the issue of whether Orr should file
 5 for bankruptcy say in the couple weeks preceding the 6 filing?
 7 MS. NELSON: Again, are you speaking just 8 one-on-one other than attorney-client?
 9 BY MR. WERTHEIMER:
 10 Q. One-on-one or in group conversations -- I don't 11 want -- I'm not asking you to violate the 12 attorney-client privilege. I think you understand
 13 what we're getting at here.
 14 A. Yeah.
 15 Q. So my questions you should assume are modified in 16 that respect.
 17 A. Yeah, so can you restate the question?
 18 (Reporter read record as follows:
 19 "Q. Did you have any conversations with the 20 Governor about the issue of whether Orr
 21 should file for bankruptcy say in the 22 couple weeks preceding the filing?")
 23 THE WITNESS: I have a question for my 24 lawyer.
 25 MR. WERTHEIMER: That's fine. If you want

Page 94

1 to take a break or just go outside.
 2 VIDEO TECHNICIAN: Off the record 11:35
 3 a.m.
 4 (A brief recess was taken.)
 5 VIDEO TECHNICIAN: We're back on the record
 6 at 11:37 a.m.
 7 THE WITNESS: Yeah, I don't recall any
 8 conversations with the Governor outside the presence
 9 of counsel on that topic.
 10 BY MR. WERTHEIMER:
 11 Q. Okay. If you take a look at the July 9 -- do you
 12 have that one in front -- that's five. This one
 13 here.
 14 A. Okay.
 15 Q. And let me direct your attention to the first 16 paragraph. You're telling the Governor that the 17 emergency manager's going to meet relative to the 18 pensions the next day, and then a couple of 19 sentences down you say he, meaning Orr, will not 20 translate that into an impact on retirees or 21 employees' vested rights or what share of monies
 22 available to unsecured creditors would go to the 23 pension plans.
 24 What was your understanding of why Orr was 25 not going to do that? What's the point, and why are

Page 95

1 you telling the Governor?
 2 That's -- your attorney's going to object.
 3 That was three questions.
 4 A. Okay.
 5 MS. NELSON: Yes, which one would you like
 6 him to answer first?
 7 MR. WERTHEIMER: He can do it in order or 8 however he'd like.
 9 MS. NELSON: Well, I don't know that he's 10 going to remember them all by the time he gets to 11 the last one.
 12 THE WITNESS: I mean, to me the building
 13 block is what's the funded status. And that issue
 14 was fluid, and I think that's the first issue that 15 if you're going to reach a settlement with your 16 creditors it's important to understand, all right,
 17 what's the funding level. From there you can start
 18 to figure out how do you solve this equation going 19 forward. So I was comfortable with that.
 20 BY MR. WERTHEIMER:
 21 Q. Well, isn't there a political reason to not 22 translate it into the impact on retirees because the 23 impact is going to be negative? All we need to do
 24 is look at the June 14th creditors' proposal to know
 25 that, don't we?

Page 96

1 MS. NELSON: Objection; form, foundation,
 2 calls for speculation.
 3 BY MR. WERTHEIMER:
 4 Q. Go ahead.
 5 A. That wasn't my thinking. My thinking was until you
 6 really know the funding status, it's hard to really
 7 understand what the impact may be.
 8 So it was more important to understand that 9 first.
 10 Q. Okay. I have nothing further. Thank you.
 11 MS. NELSON: Is everybody done?
 12 MR. SHERWOOD: I have one or two followup,
 13 but I'll let you go first.
 14 MS. GREEN: You can go. Do your followup
 15 first. We'll wait.
 16 MR. SHERWOOD: Can I use this microphone?
 17 MS. NELSON: Well, you're the Retiree
 18 Committee and I don't believe you --
 19 MR. GALLAGHER: We're not the Committee,
 20 we're the Retirement Systems.
 21 MS. NELSON: I'm sorry, the Retirement
 22 Systems. You did not subpoena -- did not issue a
 23 subpoena to the Treasurer, and it's my understanding 24 the parties that didn't subpoena aren't entitled to 25 question.

1 MR. GALLAGHER: Why would they not be
2 entitled to question?
3 MS. NELSON: Because you didn't subpoena
4 the witness. I thought that was in the judge's
5 order.
6 MR. WERTHEIMER: I've got the judge's
7 order.
8 MS. NELSON: Not the one that we signed.
9 Isn't that in his discovery order, only the parties
10 seeking the discovery?
11 MR. WERTHEIMER: I'm not sure. Let me
12 look. Let me look.
13 MR. SHERWOOD: Do we have to have this on 14 the record?
15 MS. NELSON: No, we don't have to do this 16 on the record.
17 VIDEO TECHNICIAN: Off the record at 11:40
18 a.m.
19 (Discussion held off the record.)
20 VIDEO TECHNICIAN: We're back on the record
21 at 11:43 a.m.
22 RE-EXAMINATION
23 BY MR. SHERWOOD:
24 Q. Treasurer Dillon, Jack Sherwood again for AFSCME. I
25 have just a few follow-up things. It won't be too

Page 98

1 much longer, for me anyway. Just following up on
2 the --
3 MS. NELSON: Famous last words of a lawyer.
4 BY MR. SHERWOOD:
5 Q. Following up on the sequence of events that led to 6 the -- on the bankruptcy filing timeline, you know,
7 there was a -- you talk about this July 18th date
8 and you gave prior testimony that you didn't really 9 know what the impact of Flowers and Webster was on 10 that date.
11 Do you recall that discussion?
12 A. Yes.
13 Q. Do you know what drove the filing date of the 18th
14 in the first place? Was there any compelling reason
15 to file on July 18th that you're aware of?
16 A. We were briefed a few times on the schedule, and 17 the -- just there's a lot of events that have to 18 happen postfiling. So I was briefed on it. I don't 19 recall the specifics other than that the process to 20 go through a nine is lengthy, and there was a desire
21 on the Governor's part if you're going to do this he 22 wants it to be fast and efficient.
23 And so we got briefed on several occasions
24 about a calendar and all the events that would have 25 to follow. So precisely that date, I don't think

1 there was a specific reason other than there's a
2 lengthy process involved with this and it was to
3 deal with that timing.
4 Q. All right. And I think in one of the exhibits the 5 original date reflected the 19th as the proposed
6 filing date.
7 Do you know when the 19th or the 18th was 8 established as the proposed filing date?
9 A. I don't recall.
10 Q. Do you know whether it was before July 1st?
11 A. It was after July 1st.
12 Q. So it's your clear recollection that the 18th or the 13 19th was established as the filing date after 14 July 1st? That's your testimony?
15 A. I don't remember being briefed on a specific date,
16 you know, weeks ahead of time. I remember --
17 Q. Is it possible that it could have been established
18 as the filing date before July 1st?
19 A. If it was, no one told me about it.
20 Q. Are you familiar with the New Energy to Reinvest
21 Diversity Funds a/k/a the NERD Funds?
22 A. I'm sorry?
23 Q. Are you familiar with an organization called New 24 Energy to Reinvest Diversity, also known as NERDs?
25 A. I'm aware that this fund exists.

Page 100

1 Q. Do you know what the purpose of the fund is?
2 A. I don't.
3 Q. Do you know whether any of the funds from NERDs,
4 N-E-R-D-s, are being used to fund any expenses of
5 the emergency manager?
6 A. I've read about it in the paper. Rich Baird is 7 closer to that than I am. He may be able to give 8 you more precise information.
9 Q. Do you know any of the major donors for the NERDs
10 Fund?
11 A. No.
12 Q. Do you recall meeting with Al Garrett and Ed McNeil
13 in December of 2012 regarding the City of Detroit?
14 A. I have met with them several times. I have a vague
15 memory of that.
16 Q. And for the record, who are Al Garrett and 17 Ed McNeil?
18 A. Al is the head of AFSCME in Detroit and Ed works for 19 him.
20 Q. Was the last time you met with them December 2012?
21 A. I'm not certain but probably. I think I've seen Ed
22 since then, but I don't recall meeting with Al since
23 then.
24 Q. During that meeting, did you discuss ways to 25 increase revenues for the City of Detroit to satisfy

Page 101

1 its liabilities?

2 A. I don't have specific memory of that, but it sounds

3 familiar.

4 Q. And at that point in time do you recall that there

5 was over $700 million owed to the City by various

6 parties?

7 A. I recall that and I recall that we looked into it,

8 and the information I got back from my staff is that

9 it's virtually uncollectible.

10 Q. What did your staff base that conclusion on?

11 A. I have a Department of Collections here within 12 Treasury so we have some people that are skilled in 13 collections, and they looked at what was available

14 to Detroit, and the view of the world was that over

15 90 percent of these are uncollectible.

16 Q. Did you provide Mr. Orr with access to your people

17 that worked on collection of this $700 million?

18 A. Indirectly. I mean, we made them available to the 19 City. That might have predated Kevyn.

20 Q. What is the basis for the conclusion that this money

21 is uncollectible?

22 A. It'd be a variety of reasons. Agings, can't find

23 who owes the money. It would probably be five or

24 six different reasons that make up the vast majority

25 of that conclusion.

Page 102

1 Q. In February of 2012, were you involved with an

2 effort to have a tentative agreement with a

3 coalition of unions?

4 A. No, but --

5 MS. NELSON: That's all you --

6 THE WITNESS: No.

7 BY MR. SHERWOOD:

8 Q. Did you have any discussions or were you aware that

9 there was a coalition of unions that were working on

10 a tentative agreement in February of 2012?

11 A. I was aware that the City was working with their

12 unions to negotiate solutions to wage and benefit

13 costs.

14 Q. What, if any, was your role in connection with that 15 Coalition-City negotiation?

16 A. My memory is none until they came up with tentative

17 agreements.

18 Q. What was the view of yourself with respect to the 19 tentative agreements?

20 A. I had them reviewed by labor experts, and the advice

21 that came back to me is that they were not something

22 that should be agreed to.

23 Q. Why not?

24 A. A variety of reasons. That it -- fundamental issues

25 about management versus, you know, the ability of

1 the City to manage itself with some of the

2 provisions of the agreements were problematic.

3 We had -- I don't remember the number of

4 issues, but there was substantial number of issues

5 that were problematic.

6 Q. Did you communicate those issues to the coalition of 7 unions?

8 A. I don't recall.

9 Q. Who did you communicate those issues to?

10 A. To the City. I do recall one meeting I had with 11 Joe Duncan, but that may have been after the fact

12 about this issue. But our communications would have

13 been with the City itself.

14 Q. Isn't it true that the tentative agreement that the 15 City and the unions were working on would have saved

16 the City money?

17 A. I know that they believed it would.

18 Q. And you didn't agree with them?

19 A. The advice that I got from the people I had review

20 this for me was that we shouldn't support these

21 tentative agreements because they won't work. They

22 won't help solve the City's problems.

23 Q. And, in fact, you didn't -- or the Governor didn't

24 support the tentative agreements; isn't that right?

25 A. I don't know if the Governor had any role with

1 respect to the tentative agreements.

2 Q. So that was your decision to make?

3 A. Yes.

4 Q. And you decided not to support these tentative

5 agreements with the union, correct?

6 A. Correct.

7 Q. Even though those tentative agreements might have

8 saved the City money?

9 MS. NELSON: Objection; asked and answered.

10 BY MR. SHERWOOD:

11 Q. Do you recall whether health care savings were 12 negotiated as part of that tentative agreement with 13 the unions?

14 A. I'd have to review them to recall that.

15 Q. You don't recall whether health care savings for the 16 City was part of the tentative agreement

17 negotiation?

18 MS. NELSON: Asked and answered.

19 THE WITNESS: I don't recall.

20 MR. SHERWOOD: Okay. I just wanted to make 21 sure.

22 BY MR. SHERWOOD:

23 Q. What about efforts to use amnesty as a means of 24 collecting funds by the City, has that been

25 explored?

1 A. I believe the City did it.
 2 Q. Was it done in 2012?
 3 A. I -- I don't recall.
 4 Q. Have any -- with respect to $700 million worth of 5 receivables that we talked about, has any effort
 6 been used to use amnesty as a means to collect that 7 money?
 8 A. I recall that the City put in place an amnesty
 9 program. Whether any of those receivables in that 10 700 million were collected through that program, I
 11 can't answer.
 12 Q. When was the last time the City implemented an 13 amnesty program?
 14 A. I don't know.
 15 Q. Was one -- has one been implemented since December
 16 2012?
 17 A. I know that they did one recently. I don't recall
 18 the date.
 19 Q. Okay. Now I'm really done. Thank you.
 20 EXAMINATION
 21 BY MS. GREEN:
 22 Q. Hi, Mr. Dillon.
 23 A. Hello.
 24 Q. I'm Jennifer Green. I represent the Retirement
 25 Systems for the City of Detroit.

Page 106

1 Following up with the prior line of
 2 questioning, you said you think you were traveling
 3 the day the petition was filed; is that correct?
 4 A. I don't recall.
 5 Q. Do you recall where you were when you first found
 6 out the petition was filed?
 7 A. No.
 8 Q. Were you not aware that day that it was going to be 9 filed?
 10 A. I knew from the meeting on the Monday that there was 11 a schedule, and I had no reason to believe that that 12 schedule would change or not change so I was not 13 aware of any changes until after it happened.
 14 Q. So was it a surprise when you found out that the 15 petition had indeed been filed?
 16 A. It wasn't like there was this iron clad schedule
 17 that wasn't movable, so I don't think I really gave 18 it a lot of thought.
 19 Q. You mentioned earlier that the first time that you
 20 saw the Governor's authorization letter was online
 21 on freep dot com. Do you recall?
 22 A. (Nodding head up and down.)
 23 MR. WERTHEIMER: You need to say your 24 answer.
 25 THE WITNESS: Oh. Yes.

Page 107

1 BY MS. GREEN:
 2 Q. Do you remember where you were or what time it was
 3 that you were reading about this, that the petition
 4 had been filed?
 5 A. Vague recollection. I was in the Detroit area when 6 I read it. The letter, I believe, was addressed to 7 me so I imagine it came in hard copy, but the first
 8 time I read it was online.
 9 Q. Would have been that night, do you recall?
 10 A. I don't recall.
 11 Q. Did you not see the email prior to the filing that 12 had sent the authorization letter?
 13 A. I don't recall.
 14 Q. Do you recall getting the email with the 15 authorization letter?
 16 A. I do not. In fact, I don't know if it came via hard
 17 copy or email.
 18 Q. You testified earlier that you did not have a role
 19 in drafting PA 436. Who was involved in drafting it
 20 as far as outside counsel?
 21 A. I guess I want to be -- 436? I want to be careful.
 22 There was meetings let's say late November, early
 23 December with me and some folks on my staff as well
 24 as the Governor's office where we talked high level
 25 about how could we address some of the issues that

Page 108

1 led to the repeal of PA 4.
 2 Once those themes were kind of framed out
 3 then it would be handed off to folks on my staff as
 4 well as the Governor's staff that moved legislation
 5 through the Legislature. And my involvement in any 6 nuance from that point was pretty much over.
 7 Q. So you don't know?
 8 A. I can name some of the people that were part of
 9 that.
 10 Q. Oh, okay. Who would that be?
 11 A. Howard Ryan on my staff, Brom Stibitz, and the 12 Governor's office I can only guess who it was, but,
 13 you know, there's someone responsible for dealing 14 with the Legislature. I assume he was involved.
 15 Q. Who was that?
 16 A. Dick Posthumus.
 17 Q. What about with respect to PA 4; you said you didn't 18 have a role in drafting PA 436 but what about PA 4?
 19 A. It would be the same. High level, you know,
 20 directional and then pretty much the same team I
 21 just described would have been the arms and legs on 22 the ground executing the process through the 23 Legislature.
 24 Q. Do you know who outside of the Legislature or 25 outside of the State of Michigan would have been

Page 109

1 consulted with respect to PA 4?
 2 A. Well, during the transition -- if it's lawyers can I
 3 disclose lawyers?
 4 MS. NELSON: With respect to PA 4, is
 5 that --
 6 THE WITNESS: Initial formation of PA 4.
 7 MS. NELSON: If they're attorney-client
 8 privileged communications, no, they're privileged.
 9 THE WITNESS: Yeah. So some were lawyers
 10 and then some were just people that were on the 11 transition advisory board. Like Bob Daddow was 12 involved, Mark Murray was on the Treasury transition
 13 aspect, Brom Stibitz from my staff was involved. I
 14 don't recall -- Dick Posthumus, I believe, was 15 involved. I don't recall others that were 16 nonlawyers that were part of the consultants.
 17 BY MS. GREEN:
 18 Q. What about restructuring consultants? Did you have 19 any restructuring consultants that took part in the 20 process?
 21 A. For PA 4?
 22 Q. Yes.
 23 A. I don't recall that.
 24 Q. Isn't it true that Jones Day actually provided you
 25 with review and comment of PA 4 at certain times?

Page 110

1 A. No.
 2 Q. Did they write memos to you regarding PA 4 or any of 3 the topics related to the pensions or Chapter 9?
 4 A. I don't recall.
 5 Q. Were you involved in an RFP process relating to 6 either Chapter 9, the pensions or the emergency
 7 manager law in 2011?
 8 A. Can you restate the question?
 9 Q. Were you involved in an RFP process in 2011 relating 10 to either PA 4 or the emergency manager law?
 11 A. We did an RFP process here in Treasury that you
 12 could say was related to PA 4 to get a short list of 13 firms that we could work with when we have a crisis.
 14 Q. And who were they at that time?
 15 A. And there's a list we can provide, and I could name
 16 some of the firms that were on it, but not all.
 17 Q. Was Jones Day one of the firms that was looked at 18 during the 2011 RFP process?
 19 A. No.
 20 Q. Is it possible that they would have submitted an RFP
 21 related to that and you just didn't know about it?
 22 A. It's possible.
 23 Q. Do you remember having conversations with Jones Day
 24 attorneys relating to PA 4 in 2012?
 25 A. No.

Page 111

1 Q. If there's an email dated 3-2-2012 from Jones Day
 2 that just said we spoke to someone in Andy's office,
 3 do you recall those types of conversations back in 4 2012?
 5 A. Can you show me the --
 6 Q. Yeah. I only have one. We just got it a day ago so
 7 I apologize, I don't have copies for everyone. We 8 copied some of them.
 9 MR. SHERWOOD: Is it Bate stamped?
 10 MS. GREEN: It is.
 11 MR. WERTHEIMER: Can you identify it?
 12 MS. GREEN: Yeah.
 13 THE WITNESS: Yeah, the only person I
 14 recall knowing prior to 2013 from Jones Day was 15 Corinne Ball.
 16 BY MS. GREEN:
 17 Q. What about Heather Lennox?
 18 A. I don't think I met her prior to 2013.
 19 Q. Yeah, can we mark that -- well, the problem is I
 20 only have one copy and it has my handwriting on it
 21 because we just got the document, but I can state
 22 for the record the Bates number if that's 23 appropriate. We can have an agreement on that.
 24 The Bates number is DTMI 00234878 to 880 is 25 the last page.

1 MR. SHERWOOD: DTMI 00234.
 2 MS. GREEN: 878.
 3 MR. WERTHEIMER: Why don't we just mark it
 4 and you can identify that it should not include any
 5 of the underlining and handwriting.
 6 MS. GREEN: That's fine.
 7 MS. NELSON: Well, why don't we just have
 8 her produce one that doesn't have handwriting on it
 9 and mark it.
 10 MR. WERTHEIMER: That would be fine too.
 11 MS. NELSON: And mark it -- what's the next 12 one, six?
 13
 14 (Deposition Exhibit 6 marked post deposition.)
 15
 16 MS. GREEN: I do have copies of the next
 17 one, which we can mark as Exhibit 7.
 18
 19 (Deposition Exhibit 7 was marked.)
 20
 21 BY MS. GREEN:
 22 Q. Do you recognize this email?
 23 A. Yeah. Okay. I mean, I forgot about this but I
 24 think when we were working on the consent agreement
 25 we were seeking advice from Huron Consulting and

Page 113

1 Miller Buckfire. They used various law firms on 2 occasion.
3 And in this case, I don't know that I ever
4 actually met Heather other than maybe over the 5 phone, but we were -- through Huron or through 6 Miller Buckfire we were getting advice from various
7 law firms, Jones Day being included.
8 They weren't a vendor to the Treasury
9 Department.
10 Q. And did Jones Day also weigh in on the drafting in 11 preparation of the consent agreement?
12 A. From my reading of this, they did.
13 Q. Do you recall receiving a blackline copy from Jones
14 Day at any time relating to the consent agreement
15 between the City and the State?
16 A. I don't recall. We may have but we had counsel
17 representing us, and this may have been just 18 friendly free advice, but there's other people that 19 can answer that question more precisely than I.
20 Q. Do you recall getting any free advice, any memos
21 given to you by Jones Day during this process?
22 A. I'd have to look in my files to know.
23 Q. Do you know if any of those memos have been produced 24 by the State of Michigan in this case?
25 A. I don't know. I'd have to look.

Page 114

1 Q. Would you recall if any of those memos were related
2 to Chapter 9 filing or the pension obligations of
3 the City of Detroit?
4 A. I don't recall any memos covering those topics.
5 Q. During the vetting process for the City of Detroit's
6 restructuring counsel, were you involved in the 7 interview on the 29th of the law firms?
8 A. Yes.
9 Q. I should have restated it. Were you involved in 10 putting together the list of questions that would be 11 asked of the law firms on the 29th?
12 A. I don't believe so.
13 Q. Do you recall the interview topics that were asked
14 of the law firms on the 29th?
15 A. I don't recall. I mean, we had a group I described 16 earlier in the deposition who was there. I think 17 everyone was -- felt free to ask the questions that 18 they had.
19 Q. Do you know who was responsible for putting together
20 the list of interview topics for the law firms at 21 the 29th meeting?
22 A. I don't think it was that structured. I think
23 Miller Buckfire played a significant role in who was 24 invited, and the City worked with them and may have 25 added some names to who was invited.

Page 115

1 I don't remember walking in with any
2 proposed questions to ask. We did have a huge
3 volume of submissions from each of the firms.
4 Q. And the State is paying in part the professional
5 fees that are being incurred by the City of Detroit
6 in the Chapter 9 process, correct?
7 A. We agreed to pay half of the cost up to five million
8 prior to the bankruptcy filing.
9 Q. And after the bankruptcy filing?
10 A. Then we suspended contributions. There may be one
11 exception to that. I don't recall specifically but 12 there might have been one vendor contract we 13 supported after the filing.
14 Q. Do you know which one that would have been?
15 A. I'd have to check.
16 Q. Were you familiar with an email from the Treasury
17 Department which sent the Milliman report to the 18 local media?
19 A. Can I see it?
20 Q. Yeah. This can be eight.
21 MS. NELSON: Is in your only copy?
22 MS. GREEN: No, there's several in there.
23 MS. NELSON: Are you going to mark it?
24 MS. GREEN: Eight.
25

Page 116

1 (Deposition Exhibit 8 was marked.)
2
3 BY MS. GREEN:
4 Q. Who is Terry Stanton from the Treasury Department?
5 A. He works for Treasury. He's a public information
6 officer.
7 Q. So he's one of your employees?
8 A. Yes.
9 Q. Have you ever seen the email that's in front of you?
10 A. I don't believe I have.
11 Q. Were you made aware after the fact that Mr. Stanton
12 had leaked the Milliman report to Mr. Pluta?
13 MS. NELSON: Objection; form, foundation to 14 the term leaked.
15 BY MS. GREEN:
16 Q. You can still answer.
17 A. Can you restate the question?
18 Q. My question was were you aware after the fact that 19 even if you didn't see this email, were you aware 20 that Mr. Stanton had provided the Milliman report to 21 the news media?
22 A. I imagine he would have advised me that he did this 23 or was going to do it.
24 Q. So if you read the email it does state that the 25 Milliman report was incomplete at the time that it

1 was provided to the media, and it states it's being
 2 done solely off the record and it's critical this
 3 information is not traced back to the Department
 4 because it has not been finalized.
 5 Is it the practice of the Treasury
 6 Department to allow admittedly incomplete
 7 information regarding the pensions to be leaked to 8 the media?
 9 A. I would say it's unusual.
 10 Q. Why would it be critical, as stated in the email,
 11 for the Milliman summary that Mr. Stanton had asked 12 for to be deleted and not in connection to the 13 Treasury Department?
 14 A. Does it say deleted in here? Oh, yeah. I see.
 15 Okay.
 16 I assume he didn't want to -- yeah, he
 17 thought it was out there with other news media.
 18 Rick Pluta must have been asking about it, so he 19 shared with him that which he thought other media
 20 outlets probably already had.
 21 Q. You mentioned that there was a cap for the fees that 22 the State would pay in connection with the 23 Chapter 9. Have we reached --
 24 A. Actually, you mischaracterized it.
 25 Q. I'm sorry, what was your --

Page 118

1 A. We offered to pay 50 percent of consulting fees
 2 prior to the filing.
 3 Q. Up to five million?
 4 A. Up to five million.
 5 Q. And so in June of 2013 that would have been prior to 6 the filing and the State was still contributing to a
 7 portion of those fees, correct?
 8 A. I believe so.
 9 Q. We can mark this as Exhibit 9.
 10
 11 (Deposition Exhibit 9 was marked.)
 12
 13 BY MS. GREEN:
 14 Q. Do you recall sending this email?
 15 A. I do.
 16 Q. Is it safe to say the five million dollar cap has 17 been maxed out?
 18 A. What I was reviewing was both the forecast as well 19 as the historical, so I was looking at more than 20 just the history.
 21 Q. So what is the summary of fees that you were
 22 referring to?
 23 A. We were given an estimate of what the fees were 24 looking like and I reviewed it and wasn't very 25 happy.

Page 119

1 Q. The last question is relating to Exhibit 5 which has
 2 already been marked. It's the July 9th email.
 3 The email states "Tomorrow's meeting could
 4 lead to questions directed to you about your view on
 5 this topic." It's relating to the pension issue.
 6 Is that a fair characterization of the
 7 email?
 8 A. Right.
 9 Q. "In my view, it's too early in the process to 10 respond to hypothetical questions. We remain in
 11 many ways in the informational stage. I have some 12 thoughts as to how you could address some pointed
 13 questions if you're interesting in hearing them."
 14 What pointed questions were you expecting?
 15 A. Anything from -- well, going back in time here, but
 16 just obviously the whole gamut of questions
 17 regarding what the underfunding status could mean to
 18 retirees, and I thought that the situation was not
 19 understood enough for the Governor to go on record
 20 yet because I couldn't even tell him with any degree
 21 of confidence what level of funding these pension
 22 funds had, so why should he get in the middle of a
 23 debate about this. It's obviously a very charged
 24 and sensitive issue, and it was my free political 25 comments to him.

Page 120

1 Q. And this was really just over a week before the
 2 filing. That was your stance?
 3 A. Yeah. I don't -- yeah, obviously. But I don't -- I
 4 think it was in the context of this meeting that
 5 Kevyn was going to have with the committee that
 6 drove this email.
 7 Q. Did anything change between the ninth and the filing
 8 on the 18th that changed your opinion regarding what
 9 you, I believe, just stated was too early to tell
 10 him with any degree of confidence what level of 11 funding the pension funds had I believe is what you
 12 just stated.
 13 A. Yeah, I have not -- my opinion is pretty much the 14 same.
 15 Q. The last sentence of the email says "I have some 16 thoughts as to how you could address some pointed
 17 questions if you're interesting in hearing them."
 18 What were your ideas for how to answer the
 19 questions?
 20 A. I don't recall specifically at this point.
 21 Q. Did you ever have a conversation with him regarding 22 your thoughts on how to answer the questions?
 23 A. No.
 24 Q. You mentioned in the email "Because pensions have 25 such a long life there are a lot of creative options

Page 121

1 we can explore to address how they will be treated
 2 in restructuring."
 3 What were your creative options that you
 4 had on the table?
 5 A. There's dozens. I mean, I don't have one that I
 6 would pick out. But pension funds do have a long
 7 life and there's a lot of creative things that can
 8 be done, so I -- I don't have one or two that I
 9 would just throw out, but I do know that there's a
 10 lot of ways to address that issue.
 11 Q. Have there been any formal reports or proposals
 12 identifying and explaining what you consider to be
 13 these creative options?
 14 A. No.
 15 Q. Were these creative options ever explored with the 16 pension systems directly --
 17 A. Not to my knowledge.
 18 Q. -- to your knowledge?
 19 I don't have any further questions.
 20 MR. SHERWOOD: Anybody else have questions?
 21 MR. WERTHEIMER: I do not.
 22 RE-EXAMINATION
 23 BY MR. SHERWOOD:
 24 Q. I have one question about D-7, which I hadn't seen
 25 before the deposition. It's an email to you from

Page 122

1 Heather Lennox.
 2 I just want to know what your understanding
 3 of the sentence "Many provisions in here are 4 designed to take advantage of PA 4 while it is still
 5 in existence, but this also references other state
 6 laws that would buttress the FCB and PCA powers..."
 7 What is FCB -- what is your understanding
 8 of what FCB and PCA powers, what that means?
 9 A. FCB I don't know. She might be referring to 10 Financial Control Board, but as opposed to the FAB
 11 I'm surmising.
 12 PCA is not ringing a bell either.
 13 Q. At this time there was a Financial Control Board in 14 existence, right?
 15 A. No, I think that -- well, I think it was part of the 16 financial stability agreement, the creation of the 17 FAB, I think.
 18 Q. And PCA, you don't know what that means?
 19 A. I'm not recalling offhand, no.
 20 Q. Was it -- did you express a desire to buttress the 21 powers of the Financial Control Board and insulate
 22 those powers from attack in the event of a repeal?
 23 A. Can you restate the question? I'm sorry.
 24 Q. Was it -- were you interested at this point in time, 25 in March of 2012, to take steps to buttress the

Page 123

1 power of the Financial Control Board and insulate
 2 those powers from being attacked in the event PA 4
 3 was repealed?
 4 A. I don't know if buttress is the right word. If 5 you're going to put in place all the structuring and 6 negotiate a consent agreement with the City, there's 7 other ways -- other legal basis to do that through 8 interlocal agreements. There's other laws that we 9 could look to that would give us the authority to 10 have this agreement have meaning to it.
 11 So the thought was, you know, identify all
 12 those legal arguments that would give legal standing
 13 to the Financial Advisory Board and the consent
 14 agreement is my memory.
 15 MR. SHERWOOD: That's all.
 16 MS. NELSON: All right, we're done. Thank
 17 you.
 18 THE WITNESS: Thank you.

14 EXAMINATION

15 BY MR. ULLMAN:

16 Q. Good morning, Mr. Mayor.

17 A. Good morning.

18 Q. Have you ever been deposed before?

19 A. Yes.

20 Q. Okay, so I assume you're generally familiar with the 21 process, but let me just go over a few ground rules.

22 I will ask questions and you will give me answers and

23 I would appreciate it if you could wait until I finish

24 asking the question before you start giving the answer

25 and I'll wait until you answer before asking the next

4 THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We are on the record.

5 This is disk one of the video deposition of David Bing

6 being taken at number 2 Woodward Avenue, 11th Floor in

7 Detroit, Michigan. Today is Monday, October 14th,

8 2013, the time is 9:27 (sic) a.m.

9 This is in re City of Detroit, Michigan,

10 Case Number 13-53846, pending in U.S. Bankruptcy Court

11 for the Eastern District of Michigan.

12 My name is Patrick Murphy, legal

13 videographer, our court reporter today is

14 Jeanette Fallon and we both represent Esquire

15 Deposition Solutions.

16 The attorneys will now introduce themselves

17 for the record.

18 MR. ULLMAN: This is Anthony Ullman from

19 Dentons, counsel for the Official Committee of

20 Retirees.

21 MR. ELLISON: Josh Ellison from Cohen Weiss

22 and Simon LLP, counsel for the UAW.

23 MS. LEVINE: Sharon Levine, Lowenstein

24 Sandler, for AFSCME.

25 MR. ESSAD: Ernest Essad, Williams,

Page 8

1 question; otherwise, the court reporter can't get

2 things down if both of us are speaking; okay?

3 If at any point there's anything in a

4 question that I ask that you don't understand, let me

5 know and I'll rephrase it and if you don't indicate

6 that you don't understand the question, the assumption

7 will be that you do; okay?

8 A. Sure.

9 Q. Okay. Now, you are currently the Mayor of Detroit; is 10 that right?

11 A. That is correct.

12 Q. And when did you -- when were you elected Mayor, when 13 did you become Mayor?

14 A. I was elected Mayor May 5th, 2009.

15 Q. And is it correct that at that time when you were 16 elected Mayor that Detroit was in fiscal difficulties?

17 A. That would be correct.

18 Q. And can you describe just in very general terms, I'm

19 not looking for detail, but just generalities what

20 steps if any you took to attempt to address that

21 situation?

22 A. Detroit, when I came in office, was $330 million

23 accumulated deficit over several different years.

24 Budget for the 2009 period -- '09 and '10 was already

25 in place when I got here. There were several areas

1 that we had to make cuts. Revenue was going south and
2 the only way that we thought that we could maintain a
3 balanced budget was in cuts. Most of those cuts
4 occurred with layoffs and retirements. There were 5 some areas over in the transportation area that we
6 made some significant improvements, but overall I made
7 it very clear that we could not balance our budget
8 just with cuts, we had to try to generate revenue and 9 that was an ongoing problem.
10 Q. So I take it then that as of the end of 2012, Detroit
11 was still, notwithstanding the efforts you made, in 12 substantial financial difficulties?
13 A. That would be correct.
14 Q. Now, of course you're aware that Kevyn Orr has been 15 appointed the Emergency Manager?
16 A. That is correct.
17 Q. Did you have any involvement in the selection of 18 Mr. Orr as Emergency Manager?
19 A. None whatsoever.
20 Q. And when was Mr. Orr appointed the Emergency Manager?
21 Actually to be technically accurate I believe he was 22 first appointed Emergency Financial Manager; is that
23 right?
24 A. That would be correct.
25 Q. Okay, and then he became automatically the Emergency

Page 10

1 Manager under the new law; is that right?
2 A. Under 436, yes.
3 Q. So when, as you understood it, was Mr. Orr selected as
4 the Emergency Financial Manager?
5 A. I met Mr. Orr in mid February of 2012. I was asked to 6 go down and meet him at the law firm of Jones Day in 7 Washington, D.C. I met him, spent maybe a half a day
8 with him, because he at that time was the leading 9 candidate to be selected.
10 (Ms. Green enters deposition room.)
11 Q. Okay, and did you have an understanding as of that 12 time whether Mr. Orr had in fact or a decision had 13 been made to appoint Mr. Orr, assuming he took the 14 appointment?
15 MR. CULLEN: Objection, foundation, form,
16 but you can address the question.
17 A. I believe Mr. Orr had not made his mind up at that 18 point. In my meeting and conversation with him he was 19 going through a process to see whether or not, if the 20 job was offered to him, whether or not he would 21 accept.
22 Q. Okay. And what was your understanding as to the 23 situation from the other side, from the State side?
24 As you understood it, had the State decided that Orr
25 was the man they wanted if he took the job?

1 A. I believe that the State had made the decision that
2 Orr not only was a leading candidate but was their 3 choice.
4 Q. And do you know as of that time when you met with 5 Mr. Orr in you said mid February were there any other
6 candidates that the State was actively considering?
7 A. If there were, I didn't know, because I met no one
8 else.
9 Q. Okay. How was Mr. Orr's name first brought to your 10 attention? How did you first come to hear of him
11 being a candidate for the Emergency Financial Manager
12 or Emergency Manager position?
13 A. I was contacted by phone by Rich Baird of the 14 Governor's office who said that they thought that they 15 had identified a key candidate for the position of 16 Emergency Financial Manager, so Rich Baird was the one
17 who made contact with him.
18 Q. And do you recall when that contact was?
19 A. Pardon?
20 Q. When, do you recall?
21 A. That would have been in late January, early February.
22 Q. And did Mr. Baird give you any further information
23 about Mr. Orr's background or qualifications for the 24 Emergency Financial Manager position?
25 A. Yes, he did. He said he had met -- in an interview

Page 12

1 process that I was not a part of, they were
2 interviewing counsel for the City and Mr. Orr was part
3 of the Jones Day law firm and I think through that 4 interview process Baird was impressed with him and,
5 therefore, moved down the road to try to select him as 6 the candidate.
7 Q. And did Mr. Baird at that time give you any
8 indications as to what he believed Mr. Orr's
9 qualifications were to serve as Emergency Financial
10 Manager?
11 A. No, he didn't. He said he was impressed with him,
12 that he had been part of the bankruptcy team
13 representing Chrysler and I guess from that ordeal was 14 pretty impressed with him.
15 Q. And did you ask Mr. Baird anything else about 16 Mr. Orr's qualifications to serve as Emergency
17 Financial Manager?
18 A. He -- yes, I did, and he felt --
19 Q. Thank you.
20 A. -- and he felt that not only was he a lawyer that 21 dealt with bankruptcy for over 30 years but also had 22 some qualifications as it related to restructuring. I
23 think it was important to Lansing that the financial 24 manager would be of African-American descent. Kevyn
25 also I understand was a graduate of the University of

Page 13

1 Michigan and had some understanding of Detroit and our
 2 issues, so those were the background qualifications
 3 that he gave me.
 4 Q. And did Mr. Baird indicate that Orr had qualifications
 5 concerning restructuring outside the context of
 6 bankruptcy?
 7 A. That would be no.
 8 Q. Did you ask Mr. Baird anything further about Mr. Orr's
 9 qualifications?
 10 A. But they were very generic, the questions that I was 11 asking, trying to find out if in fact he was going to 12 be selected, you know, how were we going to work
 13 together, because I was not in support of an Emergency
 14 Manager.
 15 Q. And did you ask Mr. Baird how you and the Emergency
 16 Manager were going to work together during that 17 conversation?
 18 A. The answer would be yes and the conversation was that 19 he would be responsible, meaning Kevyn Orr would be 20 responsible for really trying to restructure the 21 balance sheet in the -- for the City of Detroit and 22 that me and my administration would continue to try to 23 restructure City government and run the City on a
 24 day-to-day basis.
 25 Q. That was the plan or the idea, the concept, in -- this

Page 14

1 was around -- did you say this was in the February
 2 time frame or January time frame? I forget.
 3 A. That would have been in the February time frame.
 4 Q. So that was the concept that was articulated to you in 5 the February time frame?
 6 A. That is correct.
 7 Q. And is that how things in fact turned out?
 8 A. That is not how things have turned out.
 9 Q. Had you yourself -- you were aware prior to the time
 10 that you were told about Mr. Orr in the conversation
 11 with Mr. Baird that you just related that there was an 12 Emergency Manager that was being sought; correct?
 13 A. That is correct.
 14 Q. And had you yourself proposed any candidates for that 15 position?
 16 A. The answer would be no.
 17 Q. Did you have any discussions with people on your staff
 18 about possibly proposing one or more candidates for 19 that position?
 20 A. That answer would be no, because I along with my staff
 21 were not in favor of an Emergency Manager coming on.
 22 Q. Do you recall any discussions or communications via 23 email or otherwise with Kriss Andrews about the 24 possibility of proposing a candidate for Emergency
 25 Manager?

1 A. The answer would be yes. I've had conversation with
 2 Kriss and Kriss indicated that he was aware of someone
 3 that he felt could come in and work with us as an
 4 Emergency Manager.
 5 Q. Okay, and just so the record is clear, I made
 6 reference to Kriss Andrews, you made reference to 7 Kriss, who is Kriss Andrews?
 8 A. Kriss Andrews was the -- his title was director of --
 9 he actually was COO, but he had a different title.
 10 I'm trying to remember what that title was now.
 11 Q. Perhaps program management director?
 12 A. Director of program management.
 13 Q. Okay. And he had been brought on by you, is that 14 right, or had he been here before you came on?
 15 A. Kriss was selected by Lansing for that position.
 16 Q. And do you know when he had been put in that position
 17 by Lansing?
 18 A. Kriss came in in May of 2012.
 19 Q. Is he still in that same position?
 20 A. Kriss is no longer with City government. He left in 21 July of '13.
 22 Q. And do you know why he left?
 23 A. He was asked to leave by Lansing.
 24 Q. Let me show you a document that we'll mark as Bing
 25 Exhibit 1.

Page 16

1 (Marked Exhibit No. 1.)
 2 Q. Are you familiar with what we've marked as Exhibit
 3 Bing 1, Mr. Mayor?
 4 A. I am familiar with this document.
 5 Q. And just for the record it bears Bates numbers DM --
 6 I'm sorry, DTMI0007955, that's the starting number.
 7 And it's an email from Kriss Andrews to the Mayor,
 8 December 6th, 2012.
 9 Now, before I -- first of all, can you tell
 10 me what this is? Can you identify this for me?
 11 A. This is a memo from Kriss Andrews to me recommending
 12 an individual that he knew that he thought could work
 13 well with us as we move to an Emergency Manager.
 14 Q. Did you have a good working relationship with 15 Mr. Andrews?
 16 A. Very good working relationship with, yes.
 17 Q. And you had previously indicated that you had been 18 against the appointment of an Emergency Manager. Why 19 was that?
 20 A. We thought, meaning this administration thought we --
 21 we could run the City without an Emergency Manager
 22 coming in.
 23 Q. Now turning back to Exhibit Bing 1, Mr. Andrews is 24 writing this email to you and he starts out with a
 25 phrase, though the Group did not agree.

Page 17

1 Do you have an understanding as to what
2 Group Mr. Andrews is referring to? And that's Group
3 with a capital G.
4 A. I think that would have been the representation from 5 Lansing.
6 Q. And who was in that Group? Was that --
7 A. It would have been Rich Baird, it would have been 8 Andy Dillon and I'm not sure who else may have 9 represented the State.
10 Q. And was this Group concerned with the selection of the 11 emergency -- or an Emergency Manager?
12 A. That would be yes.
13 Q. Now, if you go down -- so in this email, as I
14 understand it, Mr. Andrews is proposing a candidate
15 that he says might be a good fit as Emergency Manager
16 who, as he writes, would align with your, meaning the 17 Mayor's, reform agenda; right?
18 A. That's correct.
19 Q. Now, in the third paragraph Mr. Andrews writes, I
20 realize he, referring to the candidate being proposed,
21 does not meet the standards of what the State would 22 want but he would meet the standards of what we would 23 want with you firmly in place to pursue your agenda.
24 Do you have an understanding of what
25 Mr. Andrews is referring to in that paragraph?

Page 18

1 A. Yeah, I think what he meant is the State -- you know,
2 my agenda had been laid out for some time going all
3 the way back to 2011 and some of the things that we
4 wanted to do and focus on did not necessarily align
5 with what the State wanted us to do and Kriss felt 6 that this individual would be much more aligned with 7 us.
8 Q. And in brief can you tell me what some of those items
9 were?
10 A. You know, we had somewhere around 21 different items
11 that the State and our administration agreed upon from 12 a restructuring standpoint, but I knew it was 13 impossible for us to attack all of those at one time
14 and have any success, so I selected about six
15 different areas that we should focus on. Number one
16 being public safety. Number two, public lighting.
17 Number three, public transportation. Number four,
18 eradication of blight. And number five, the support
19 and maintenance of our recreation and parks system.
20 Q. And I take it from your prior answer that the State
21 had different priorities?
22 A. I think the State had different priorities. They were 23 never spelled out to us, if you will. Because of the 24 21 that we had agreed upon, I think maybe their focus
25 and mine just wasn't aligned.

Page 19

1 Q. And do you recall whether the State had a particular
2 focus with which you disagreed or that you did not
3 think should be the priority?
4 A. I don't really recall that.
5 Q. Now, Mr. Andrews in his email says, I realize he,
6 meaning the candidate attached, does not meet the 7 standards of what the State would want.
8 Do you have an understanding as to what
9 Mr. Andrews is referring to when he writes that this 10 person would not meet the standards of what the State
11 would want?
12 A. I think the standards that he was referring to was 13 whatever the State wanted that person to do, that 14 person would do it and this person was going to be 15 much more aligned with our agenda as opposed to the 16 State's.
17 Q. And did you have discussions with Mr. Andrews on that 18 point?
19 A. Yes.
20 Q. And is that what he conveyed to you orally as well as 21 in writing?
22 A. Yes.
23 Q. And did you have any discussions with Mr. Andrews as 24 to whether Mr. Orr was a person who would essentially
25 follow what the State wanted him to do?

Page 20

1 MR. CULLEN: Objection, foundation, form.
2 You can address the question.
3 A. Kriss at that time had not met Mr. Orr --
4 Q. Uh-huh.
5 A. -- so I don't think he had a determination one way or 6 the other about Mr. Orr.
7 Q. And did you have conversations on that topic with 8 Mr. Andrews subsequent to the appointment of Orr as 9 Emergency Manager?
10 A. The answer would be yes.
11 Q. Okay, and what was the substance of those 12 conversations?
13 A. Based on the meeting that I had with Kevyn in 14 Washington, he seemed to understand the plight that we 15 were facing here in Detroit and seemed to be willing 16 to work with us on our agenda.
17 Q. And did he ultimately work with you on your agenda?
18 A. Not to my satisfaction.
19 Q. And did you form an impression as to whether Mr. Orr 20 was someone who was essentially willing to do what the 21 State wanted him to do?
22 MR. CULLEN: Objection, foundation, form.
23 A. He was chosen by the State and so he was taking his 24 direction from the State.
25 Q. And is there anything else that leads you to believe

Page 21

1 that he was willing to do essentially what the State
2 was asking him to do?
3 MR. CULLEN: Objection, foundation, form.
4 A. The answer would be no.
5 Q. I take it from your prior testimony that you never in 6 fact proposed this individual that was recommended as 7 a possible candidate by Mr. Andrews; is that right?
8 A. That would be correct.
9 Q. I'm going to show you another document, which was 10 previously marked as Exhibit 6 to the deposition of 11 Mr. Orr, which commenced on September 16 and was 12 continued on October 4th.
13 And just so the record is clear, there are 14 other documents I'm going to show you that were marked
15 as exhibits to the Orr deposition that began on 16 September 16 and continued on October 4 and I'm going
17 to refer to those just generically as Orr Deposition
18 Exhibits and I say that -- we'll use that terminology,
19 because there was a prior deposition with Mr. Orr in 20 connection with the SWAP issues. So when I refer to 21 Orr deposition, it's referring to the ones that were 22 done on September 16th and October 4th. Is that okay?
23 A. Okay.
24 Q. Have you ever seen this Orr Exhibit 6 before, which 25 begins with Bates number JD-RD-0000216, or parts of

1 it?
2 A. I have.
3 Q. And have you seen the entire document or only parts of
4 it?
5 A. Parts of it.
6 Q. And what part would that be?
7 A. That would be the summary of partnership.
8 Q. And can you tell me what that is? Can you identify
9 that?
10 A. The conversation that I had with Rich Baird and made
11 reference to as I met with Kevyn, I asked for some 12 things that I thought were germane to helping to turn
13 the City around and I spoke to Kevyn about that, I
14 spoke to Rich Baird about that, and I guess Rich Baird
15 and Kevyn spoke after my meeting with Kevyn. So I
16 don't remember seeing the front -- this front page
17 from Rich Baird.
18 Q. Okay, and the document you're referring to is what 19 appears on Bates pages 217 and 218; is that right?
20 A. That would be correct.
21 Q. And this was in fact a summary of partnership document
22 that was -- it was not drafted by you; was it?
23 A. No, it was not.
24 Q. It was given to you by Mr. Baird?
25 A. No, this was -- I think this was prepared by Kriss

Page 23

1 Andrews.
2 Q. Okay, and if you look at the first page of the 3 document, this is an email from Mr. Baird saying -- by 4 the way, just so the record's clear, just tell me
5 quickly who Mr. Baird is. We've used his name and 6 actually haven't identified him.
7 A. He is the advisor to Governor Snyder.
8 Q. And in this email dated February 20th, which is to 9 Mr. Orr, Baird writes, FYI, the summary of partnership
10 prepared by the Mayor from the outline I gave him last
11 week.
12 So I think you indicated that the summary
13 of partnership was actually drafted by Mr. Andrews
14 from your office or the COO for the City?
15 A. Yes.
16 Q. And had Mr. Baird given you an outline previously?
17 A. Not an outline, but he did give me some areas that he 18 thought we could agree upon.
19 Q. Was that in written form?
20 A. Yes.
21 Q. And that was one of the things that Mr. Andrews used
22 to prepare the summary of partnership?
23 A. That is correct.
24 Q. If you'd look at the first page of this document,
25 Mr. Baird is writing about a conversation that he had

1 with you. He says, told him, meaning you, Mr. Mayor,
2 that there were certain things I would not think we
3 could agree to without your, meaning Mr. Orr's,
4 review, assessment and determination such as keeping
5 the executive team in its entirety.
6 Do you have an understanding what that's
7 referring to?
8 MR. CULLEN: Objection, foundation, form.
9 Mr. Baird's note, he's never seen it before.
10 Q. You can answer my question, Mr. Mayor.
11 A. One of the things that I wanted to keep intact was my 12 executive team. It took me a couple years to really 13 put that team together and I thought not keeping that 14 team together would not be good in terms of helping us
15 turn the City around so I wanted to keep my team in 16 place.
17 Q. Okay, and was Mr. Andrews part of that team?
18 A. He was.
19 Q. And did you have a discussion about keeping the 20 executive team in place with Mr. Baird, as is 21 recounted by Mr. Baird in this email?
22 A. That would be correct.
23 Q. And can you tell me the substance of the conversation
24 on that point you had with Mr. Baird?
25 A. Once again, because it took such a long time, I didn't

Page 25

1 want to see a lot of turnover, additional turnover.
 2 With an Emergency Manager coming in, if we started
 3 losing some of our key players that have been there
 4 with me to put a plan together and then try to execute
 5 the plan, relieving or dismissing any of those people
 6 I thought would be a negative, would take us backwards
 7 and not forward.
 8 Q. And by this in terms of timing, we had talked before
 9 about the call or conversation you had with Baird when 10 he first told you about Mr. Orr as being considered
 11 for the Emergency Manager position. The conversation
 12 we're talking about now, is this part of the same
 13 conversation or is it subsequent?
 14 A. Same conversation.
 15 Q. Okay. And in the email that Mr. Baird writes, he 16 says, that Mr. Baird told you during this conversation
 17 that there were some things that he, Baird, couldn't
 18 agree to without first getting Orr's approval.
 19 Do you recall that?
 20 A. Yes.
 21 Q. Can you tell me what -- as much as you can about that 22 subject matter?
 23 A. No guarantees in terms of making sure that the 24 executive team in its entirety stayed in place with 25 their pay level.

Page 26

1 Q. And did he talk to you specifically about having a
 2 need to get, as he puts it here, the review,
 3 assessment and determination from this -- on that
 4 subject from Mr. Orr? In other words, did he tell you
 5 that he needed to run that by Orr and get Orr's
 6 approval?
 7 A. Yes, he did.
 8 MR. CULLEN: Objection, foundation, form.
 9 Q. And did he tell you why he needed to get approval from 10 Mr. Orr?
 11 A. I think he wanted to make sure that Orr was 12 comfortable with the staff that was already here.
 13 Q. Because the Emergency Manager would have the power to 14 fire the staff; wouldn't he?
 15 A. That is correct.
 16 Q. Now, if you look at some of the items that are on this
 17 list in the partnership, like number 4, number 5, 6,
 18 7, what are those? Can you just tell me briefly?
 19 MR. CULLEN: Objection, foundation, form.
 20 You want him to go through them one by one, counsel?
 21 MR. ULLMAN: Yeah, just a brief summary of 22 what each of these points is.
 23 Q. And these are things, as I say, were prepared by 24 Mr. Andrews and had been discussed at least in concept
 25 with Mr. Baird; is that right?

Page 27

1 MR. CULLEN: Objection, foundation, form.
 2 A. That is correct. Number 4 I will respond to. Wanted
 3 to make sure that if I called an executive meeting or 4 Mr. Orr called an executive meeting, we wanted to make 5 sure that all the key people were invited to the 6 meeting and so that, you know, everybody would know
 7 what was going on. That was number 4.
 8 As relates to number 5, back in December of 9 '12 I had agreed with the Governor in concept that the 10 State would lease Belle Isle and run it as a State
 11 park, which would relieve us from an expense of 12 roughly $6 million a year, it would allow my 38 13 recreation department employees to be redeployed to 14 other parks across the City and also the State would 15 invest somewhere up to 10 to $20 million to upgrade
 16 Belle Isle over a three-year period.
 17 Q. Okay.
 18 A. I don't know if there were other ones that you --
 19 Q. Number 6 briefly. This is --
 20 A. Okay. We had put together over maybe an 18-month
 21 period with a lot of input from a lot of constituents
 22 across the City developing the Detroit Future City
 23 Plan and I wanted to make sure that we didn't just put 24 that plan on a shelf somewhere. That with so many of 25 our constituents involved in that process we needed to

Page 28

1 use that as a blueprint to move forward and I never
 2 got heavily involved with Kevyn on the financial
 3 initiatives as it relates to reducing the long-term
 4 liabilities, managing cash flow, achieving the 5 long-term sustainable financial stability. He's 6 basically taken that upon himself.
 7 Q. Okay. And what was the Detroit Future City framework
 8 that's referred to in point six?
 9 A. It's a booklet, a plan, that was put together over an
 10 18-month period by -- I don't even -- I think it said
 11 they had over 30,000 meetings with constituents all 12 across the City so everybody had some input into what 13 the City's future would look like.
 14 Q. Okay. And those -- those initiatives, were they -- 15 let me ask you this more as a question. Were the 16 initiatives outlined in that booklet that you
 17 mentioned intended to assist in reducing long-term
 18 liabilities and manage cash flow and achieve long-term
 19 and sustainable financial stability?
 20 MR. CULLEN: Objection, foundation, form.
 21 A. I don't believe -- not with any specificity. It was 22 more of the areas that we were going to focus on in 23 the City, so I don't think it had a lot to do with the 24 financial stability of the City.
 25 Q. Okay. And when had that booklet been put together?

Page 29

1 Did you say?
2 A. It was about six months ago so it was in -- probably
3 in March/April of '13.
4 Q. Well, this email is dated February of 2013.
5 A. That -- that book did not come out for public
6 consumption I think until sometime in '13. I think it
7 was really the March/April time frame.
8 Q. Okay. So at this point in time what you're referring 9 to in this draft partnership agreement is something --
10 a booklet that had been drafted but had not yet been 11 published?
12 A. That would be correct.
13 Q. Okay. And what is number 7 on this list?
14 A. There were a lot of negotiations that had gone on 15 prior to Mr. Orr coming on board and we wanted to go
16 back and relook at a lot of those initiatives, things
17 that we had already been negotiating with labor, but 18 once again, I never -- since Kevyn came on board, I
19 never sat in another meeting where labor initiatives
20 were discussed.
21 Q. Now, as of the date of this email, and this is around
22 the time of your conversation with Mr. Baird, had you
23 spoken with anyone else from the State about Mr. Orr
24 as a candidate for the Emergency Manager or Emergency
25 Financial Manager position?

Page 30

1 A. Mostly that was done with Rich Baird, but I do think
2 the Governor and I may have had a brief conversation
3 in one of our meetings, because Baird had made the 4 recommendation to the Governor and I think the 5 Governor was receptive to his -- to his
6 recommendation.
7 Q. And do you recall any discussions with the Governor as
8 to the qualifications of Mr. Orr to serve as Emergency
9 Financial Manager or Emergency Manager?
10 A. No.
11 Q. If you turn back to the first page of this Exhibit Orr
12 Number 6, in the bottom email on the first page
13 Mr. Baird is saying, will broker a meeting via Note
14 between you, meaning Mr. Orr, and the Mayor's personal
15 assistant who is not FOIAable.
16 Do you have an understanding as to what
17 that's referring to?
18 MR. CULLEN: Objection, foundation, form.
19 A. I don't think he wanted to send something on my 20 personal email. I don't have -- I should say my City
21 email, because I don't have a personal email, so he 22 wanted to send it to somebody else, he didn't want to 23 send it on a City email.
24 Q. Do you ever recall any discussions with Mr. Baird in 25 which Mr. Baird indicated that he didn't want to send

Page 31

1 anything to you on your City email?
2 A. No.
3 Q. Do you have an understanding as to why Mr. Baird would 4 not want to send something to you under City email?
5 A. No.
6 Q. Who is the personal assistant that's referred to here?
7 A. Her name is Sue Ray, R-A-Y.
8 Q. And do you recall Ms. Ray getting an email from 9 Mr. Baird to set up a meeting between you and Mr. Orr?
10 A. I don't recall that. I mean, I knew the meeting, it
11 was by phone that Mr. Baird and I talked about going
12 down to meet Kevyn.
13 Q. I'm going to show you another document which we --
14 which was previously marked as Orr Deposition Exhibit
15 7.
16 And for the record this first page of this
17 document bears Bates numbers JD-RD-0000459.
18 A. Okay.
19 Q. Okay. Mr. Mayor, have you ever seen this document or 20 parts of it before?
21 A. I don't recall seeing this.
22 Q. And if I can direct your attention to the last two 23 pages of the document, there's a summary of 24 partnership again.
25 A. Okay.

Page 32

1 Q. Do you recall --
2 A. This --
3 Q. -- seeing specifically the last two pages?
4 A. The last two pages, yes.
5 Q. Okay. And that is, is it not, a revised version of 6 what appears at the end of what we've put in the 7 record as Orr Exhibit 6?
8 MR. CULLEN: Objection, foundation, form.
9 You can address the question.
10 A. I have read all of this. I don't know if this is 11 different from the other one that we saw.
12 Q. Okay, I guess if you look at the date of the last one,
13 you'll see it's dated February 18 and this one is 14 dated February 21.
15 A. Twenty-one.
16 MR. CULLEN: Is there a question, counsel?
17 Q. Do you see that?
18 MR. CULLEN: I beg your pardon?
19 MR. ULLMAN: I asked him if he saw the 20 dates.
21 MR. CULLEN: Okay.
22 A. Yes, I see the dates.
23 Q. Okay. And I think if you look at the text -- do you
24 recall getting an updated version or one or more
25 versions of this partnership agreement?

Page 33

1 A. Yes.

2 Q. And I think if you look at the text, you'll see that

3 there are indeed some differences, some of which I'm

4 going to ask you about.

5 A. Okay.

6 Q. First of all, if you look at the first page of this

7 exhibit, there's a note from Mr. Orr who says he spoke

8 with the Mayor this morning, he's writing as of 9 February 22nd, and we're all set to meet Monday

10 morning.

11 The Monday would be the 25th.

12 A. Okay. Yes.

13 Q. Okay, did you in fact meet with Mr. Orr on February

14 25th, Monday?

15 A. If -- yeah, I mean, I think we can go back and track

16 my travel day, and yeah, I do remember going then. I

17 don't know if it was the 25th or not, but I only went

18 there once.

19 Q. Okay, so it was around -- that's the meeting that

20 Mr. Orr --

21 A. Yes.

22 Q. -- is referring to in his email?

23 A. Yes.

24 Q. You said it took place at Jones Day in Washington?

25 A. Correct.

1 Q. So you actually physically traveled up to Washington

2 to meet with Mr. Orr?

3 A. That is correct.

4 Q. Is there a particular reason he didn't come down to 5 Detroit to meet with you?

6 A. I don't know if there was a reason that he wouldn't

7 come here. He wasn't -- I guess he felt more

8 comfortable with me coming to Washington as opposed to 9 his coming here.

10 Q. Okay. And do you recall discussing a summary of 11 partnership document with Mr. Orr at the meeting?

12 A. Yes.

13 Q. And let me just ask you in particular about number 7

14 here. And if you compare this with a version number 7

15 on what's attached to Orr Deposition Exhibit 6, you'll

16 see that the earlier version from Exhibit 6 has item 7

17 as labor and it says labor initiatives will be pursued

18 jointly by the Mayor and the manager.

19 A. Just a moment here. Now, give me your question again,

20 please.

21 Q. If you look at the first version which is attached to

22 Orr 6, number 7 says labor initiatives will be pursued

23 jointly by the Mayor and the manager?

24 A. Uh-huh.

25 Q. And if you look at number 7 on the February 21 version

Page 35

1 attached to Orr Exhibit 7, item 7 has been revised to

2 say labor, retiree and benefit initiatives will be

3 pursued jointly by the Mayor and the manager to the 4 extent permitted by law.

5 A. And the question is?

6 Q. Okay, do you recall any discussion as to the reason

7 for those changes?

8 A. No.

9 Q. Do you recall any discussion -- let me ask you this.

10 Do you have an understanding as to what

11 labor, retiree and benefit initiatives are being

12 referred to in item 7 of the summary agreement at the 13 end of Orr Deposition Exhibit 7?

14 A. Yes, I do.

15 Q. And what are those?

16 A. One of the things that was being discussed even before

17 Kevyn came on board was the healthcare cost, which we

18 wanted to change. We knew also that we needed to take

19 a look at the pension funds. But we had made no

20 determination as to what direction that we were going

21 to go in.

22 Q. And did you have any discussion with Mr. Orr at this

23 meeting in DC concerning pension related issues?

24 A. No, not to my knowledge, no, I don't remember that.

25 Q. In item 7 on this document it refers to initiatives

1 will be jointly pursued to the extent permitted by

2 law. Do you have an understanding as to what that

3 phrase was referring to?

4 A. No, I don't.

5 Q. Did you have any discussion with Mr. Orr at the

6 meeting in DC as to legal constraints on actions that

7 could be taken to address various of the City's

8 financial issues?

9 A. No.

10 Q. Now, this last document is around February 22nd. You

11 had said that you had -- you were taking a look at

12 issues relating to healthcare and pensions but nothing

13 -- no determinations had been made?

14 A. That's correct.

15 Q. And what -- what avenues, what possibilities, were you

16 exploring as regards pensions?

17 A. We were looking at the potential of moving everything

18 to a 401(k) plan, because we knew that we couldn't

19 continue to fund the pension as it had historically

20 been funded. It was -- it was obviously hurting us.

21 The same thing would be true on the healthcare side.

22 We had looked back three or four years where we saw

23 the healthcare costs were increasing by double numbers

24 on an annualized basis and from an affordability

25 standpoint we knew that we could no longer continue to

1 do that.

2 Q. Now, with respect to the pensions had you given any

3 consideration to how the pension clause in the 4 Michigan Constitution affected your ability to take

5 various actions that you might like to take?

6 A. No.

7 MR. CULLEN: Again -- just going to ask if

8 you had a time frame, counsel, but if it's no, it's 9 no.

10 Q. I'm asking about the time frame we're talking about 11 here as of the end of February of 2013.

12 A. No.

13 Q. At this point in time were you -- I've made reference

14 to the pension clause in the Michigan Constitution.

15 As of February 2013 were you aware of that?

16 Let me withdraw that and ask you, first of 17 all, do you understand what I'm referring to when I

18 use the term pension clause?

19 A. Maybe you want to explain it.

20 Q. Okay. Well, let me show you another document that

21 we've also had marked at the Orr deposition. This is

22 Orr Deposition Exhibit 5. And what we have as Exhibit

23 5 from the Orr deposition is a copy of the Michigan

24 Constitution, Article 9, Section 24.

25 A. Okay.

1 Q. Have you ever seen that provision before?

2 A. No.

3 Q. You never saw it before today?

4 A. I don't recall it, no.

5 Q. Were you -- prior to seeing it now, were you aware

6 that there is a clause in the Michigan Constitution

7 that provides certain protection for vested pension

8 rights and payments in respect thereof?

9 MR. CULLEN: Objection, foundation, form.

10 You can address the question.

11 A. I think those responsibilities rested with the labor

12 law department. I mean, I didn't get involved in

13 that.

14 Q. So your testimony is similarly that you were

15 completely unaware up till now that there is a clause

16 in the Michigan Constitution that deals specifically

17 with issues pertaining to pensions and payments

18 associated therewith?

19 A. No, I mean --

20 MR. CULLEN: Objection, foundation, form.

21 Q. You can answer the question.

22 MR. CULLEN: You can answer the question,

23 if you can unpack it.

24 THE WITNESS: Yeah.

25 A. I mean, I read in the paper like everybody else, so

Page 39

1 this is not -- seeing this here today at this time is

2 not the first time that I'm aware of it. I mean, I've 3 read -- I read the paper.

4 Q. Okay. And were you aware of this clause in the

5 Michigan Constitution at the time while you as Mayor

6 were considering issues that might be taken to lower

7 the pension costs that the City of Michigan -- of 8 Detroit was facing?

9 MR. CULLEN: Objection, foundation, form.

10 You can address the question to the extent you

11 understand it.

12 A. The answer would be no.

13 Q. I think you indicated there was another -- there was a

14 department within the City that was responsible for 15 pension related issues?

16 A. That would be correct.

17 Q. Okay. And who was the head of that?

18 A. What's his -- I'm trying to think of the name right

19 now. I can't -- yes, Lamont Satchel. He heads up our 20 labor law department.

21 Q. And does Mr. Satchel have access to legal advice,

22 legal counsel provided by the City of Detroit?

23 A. I'm sure he does. He's a lawyer himself.

24 Q. And do you recall any discussions with Mr. Satchel as

25 to any constitutional limits on the City's ability to

Page 40

1 take steps with respect to pension rights and related

2 payments?

3 MR. CULLEN: Objection, foundation, form,

4 calls for a -- to the extent you're calling beyond the

5 fact of any such conversations, for the substance of 6 any conversations which would be privileged.

7 Q. You can answer the question.

8 A. No, I had none of those conversations with 9 Mr. Satchel.

10 Q. Okay. I'm going to show you another document. This

11 one we will mark as Bing Number 2.

12 (Marked Exhibit No. 2.)

13 A. Okay.

14 Q. Okay, for the record what we've marked as Bing 2 is a

15 chain of emails, this top one is November 27, 2012.

16 Beginning Bates page number is DTMI00079928.

17 Have you ever seen these emails before,

18 Mr. Mayor?

19 A. Yes, I have.

20 Q. And what was the context in which you saw them?

21 A. That Leonard Fleming, who is a reporter for the

22 Detroit News, wanted to write an article on how close

23 we were to bankruptcy, and I think Bob got in contact

24 with Kriss and Kriss put that document -- put this

25 email together for Bob answering the question from the

1 media.

2 Q. Okay. And Mr. Andrews writes in the top email, this

3 is recounting his conversation with Leonard Fleming,

4 he says, I made the following three major points: The

5 first one is we fully intend to be successful without

6 the use of bankruptcy.

7 Do you have an understanding of what

8 Mr. Andrews was referring to there?

9 A. Yeah, if we could continue to get the support that we

10 needed from the State on our 21 initiatives that we

11 agreed upon, we should not have to go the route of

12 bankruptcy.

13 Q. And did that -- the substance of what you just said

14 reflect conversations that you had had with Mr. Kriss

15 -- I'm sorry, with Mr. Andrews --

16 A. Yes.

17 Q. -- apart from the email?

18 A. That would be yes.

19 Q. So is it correct then that at least as of the date of 20 this email, which is November 2012, November 27, 2012,

21 the possibility of filing for Chapter 9 had been

22 discussed with you and members of your team?

23 A. I wasn't part of that, maybe Kriss was part of that,

24 but not myself.

25 Q. Okay. But you said you were aware that this -- I'm

Page 42

1 sorry, I thought you said you were aware that the idea

2 was to be successful without the need to file

3 bankruptcy?

4 A. Correct.

5 Q. So the possibility of filing bankruptcy had been

6 something that had been discussed and I take the

7 conclusion was you didn't think you needed to go that

8 route?

9 A. That would be correct.

10 Q. And when did those discussions take place?

11 A. I can't -- I mean, it was in -- I'm sure at the end of 12 2012 and ongoing up until bankruptcy was actually

13 filed.

14 Q. And with whom did you have those discussions?

15 A. That would have been internally with the leadership

16 team, Jack Martin, Kriss, the executive team. None of 17 us wanted to go in that direction.

18 Q. Who is Jack Martin?

19 A. Jack Martin was the CFO.

20 Q. And you made reference to a leadership team. Does

21 that involve individuals other than Martin and

22 Andrews?

23 A. It would have involved -- I don't know if -- I don't

24 think Portia was part of that at that time; but it

25 would have been I think Kirk Lewis was still here, who

Page 43

1 was Deputy Mayor; I think at that time I'm not sure

2 that Chris Brown, I don't remember when he left, but

3 Chris Brown was part of that leadership team; and

4 Bob Warfield.

5 Q. And what was the basis on which the people involved in

6 those discussions concluded that the City's finances

7 could be redressed without the need to file a Chapter

8 9 bankruptcy?

9 MR. CULLEN: Objection, foundation, form.

10 You can address the question.

11 A. We all felt that if we got the kind of resources that

12 we needed, the support that we needed from the State,

13 that we could manage our way through the catastrophe

14 without necessarily going bankrupt, filing for

15 bankruptcy.

16 Q. And was that through a combination of raising revenue

17 and cutting costs?

18 A. That would be correct.

19 Q. And the proposal -- the means by which you would do

20 that or wanted to try to do that, was that set out in 21 a document?

22 A. There were several different documents that had been

23 prepared internally. In terms of raising revenue was

24 the collection of taxes, which was a big thing for us,

25 but still, I mean, we wanted to go back to the State,

Page 44

1 we thought that from a cash flow standpoint we saw

2 where we were running out of money, we saw where we

3 were hitting the wall, we needed some support from the

4 State and we did get that to the tune of a

5 $137 million loan that we got. The State was to

6 release over time certain amounts of that loan. We

7 had to repay I think an $80 million loan that we had

8 prior to the 137. I don't recall all of the details

9 right now, but I do know that some of the initiatives

10 that we and the State had agreed upon releasing those

11 funds was contingent upon us making sure that those 12 were deliverables that we could live up to.

13 Q. And was the -- did the initiatives that you had --

14 that you described and that were proposing entail the 15 City of Michigan -- I keep saying that. Let me

16 withdraw that and start again.

17 Did the initiatives that you described for 18 cost cutting, raising revenue, require the City of 19 Detroit doing anything that was prohibited by Michigan

20 law?

21 MR. CULLEN: Objection, foundation, form.

22 A. I don't know.

23 MR. CULLEN: You're asking for a legal

24 conclusion.

25 A. I don't know the answer to that.

Page 45

1 Q. Well, did you -- as part of this initial -- this
2 restructuring program, were you aware in any way that 3 anything that was being proposed was contrary to the 4 laws or Constitution of the State of Michigan?
5 A. No.
6 Q. And do you recall specifically how if at all the 7 pension liabilities were to be dealt with under your 8 proposed approach?
9 A. No.
10 Q. Would that be set out in whatever documents there are 11 that describe your initiatives?
12 A. I didn't understand your question.
13 Q. Would the approach to pensions be set out in whatever
14 documents exist that describe the initiatives that 15 you've referred to?
16 A. Those probably were internal meetings between the CFO
17 and the COO and probably people from the labor
18 department. Those aren't meetings that I sat in.
19 Q. So you don't recall the specifics of how the pension
20 issues were --
21 A. No.
22 Q. -- being dealt with?
23 A. No.
24 Q. But as you understood it, the City's -- if the 25 proposed restructuring, the initiatives that you put

Page 46

1 in place went through, you believe that the City would
2 be able to survive without bankruptcy and would
3 continue to be able to meet its legal obligations?
4 MR. CULLEN: Objection, foundation, form.
5 A. The answer would be we wanted that opportunity.
6 Q. Okay. And you thought that if you had that 7 opportunity, you could make it happen; is that right?
8 A. That would be correct.
9 Q. But you weren't given that opportunity; were you?
10 A. That is correct.
11 Q. Let me go back to what we've marked as Orr Exhibit --
12 that we haven't marked but we've identified as Orr
13 Deposition Exhibit 7, which has the proposed summary
14 of partnership.
15 A. Uh-huh.
16 Q. Was this partnership agreement, the document that 17 appears here where it has a draft label on it, was 18 that ever made final?
19 A. Not to my knowledge.
20 Q. When you met with Mr. Orr on -- at the end of February 21 in DC, you indicated that you discussed this with him,
22 though; correct?
23 A. Correct.
24 Q. And did he tell you that he was -- that he was 25 agreeable to it?

1 A. He was agreeable in working together, but we didn't go
2 step by step and say that I agree or I don't agree.
3 Q. Okay. So did you have an understanding as when you
4 left that meeting in DC whether Mr. Orr had in fact
5 agreed to the points that were set out in this summary
6 of partnership document?
7 MR. CULLEN: Objection, foundation, form.
8 A. One of the areas that I do recall and me saying is 9 that it made reference to keeping the executive team
10 intact. He wanted the opportunity to make an 11 assessment himself.
12 Q. Okay, and did he make an assessment?
13 MR. CULLEN: Objection, foundation, form.
14 A. I think over the time that he's been here, I don't 15 think he personally made an assessment. I think there
16 were others who may have made an assessment and made
17 recommendations to him.
18 Q. And was your team -- your executive team left intact?
19 A. No.
20 Q. And who was gotten rid of besides Mr. Andrews, if 21 anyone?
22 A. Jack Martin is no longer here as the CFO. Karla
23 Henderson, who was the group executive for planning
24 and development and BC, is no longer here. I think
25 before Kevyn came on Kirk Lewis was already gone. I

Page 48

1 do think that Chris Brown was already gone. As of 2 today our purchasing director is no longer here,
3 Andre DuPerry. Richard Kay, who was the director of 4 the lighting department, is no longer here. The 5 director of DDOT is no longer here. I think there --
6 that's right off the top of my head. I think there
7 were nine or ten department heads that are no longer
8 here.
9 Q. And were they asked to leave by Mr. Orr or --
10 A. For the most -- for the most part, yes. There was one
11 guy who headed up -- he was the director of homeland
12 security, he left on his own accord because of the 13 environment that he felt he could no longer work in,
14 but for the most part all of those other people were 15 asked to leave.
16 Q. Now -- and are the positions that those people held
17 vacant or have they been replaced with other people?
18 A. There's a mixed bag, quite frankly. I mean, some of 19 them -- I think you got some consultants in some of 20 those positions. I mean, I had no input at all. I
21 mean, I found out after the fact that either people
22 were removed or if somebody was coming in. I had -- I
23 never had the opportunity to interview even the new 24 CFO who came in, the new COO who came in. Those were 25 selected by Kevyn in a vacuum, as far as I'm

1 concerned.

2 Q. Moving on past February of 2013, as I recall, the

3 official appointment of Mr. Orr as the emergency -- I

4 forget whether it was the Emergency Financial Manager

5 or Emergency Manager, but it took place sometime

6 around the end of March. Is that generally consistent

7 with your recollection?

8 A. Yeah, I think March 25th was his first day.

9 Q. And from the meeting in DC up to March -- say March

10 25th, did you have any conversations with Mr. Orr?

11 A. I may have had one phone -- one other phone

12 conversation with him.

13 Q. And do you recall what the substance of that call was

14 about?

15 A. I think more than anything else it was making sure

16 that when he came on board, we were having a press

17 conference, introducing him as the Emergency Financial

18 Manager and wanted me to stand with he and the

19 Governor at that, because we didn't want, quote

20 unquote, a divided house, if you will, and I thought

21 it was better since an Emergency Manager was coming on 22 board, it was no sense in us continuing to fight that.

23 If he could be helpful to turn this City around, it

24 would be better we do it together.

25 Q. So in that phone conversation was there any discussion

1 of Chapter 9 filing?

2 A. No.

3 Q. Was there any discussion of anything related to

4 pensions?

5 A. No.

6 Q. I'm going to show you another document, Mr. Mayor,

7 which we'll mark as Bing Number 3.

8 (Marked Exhibit No. 3.)

9 Q. For the record what we've marked as Bing Exhibit --

10 what is this, 4? Three. Actually I think we had

11 previously marked this as Exhibit 22 to the Orr

12 deposition, but since I've forgotten about that, now

13 we'll just leave it as Bing Number 3, but I believe it

14 is the same document.

15 Do you recognize this document, Mr. Mayor?

16 A. Yes.

17 Q. For the record it's entitled City of Detroit

18 Restructuring Plan, dated March 23, begins with Bates

19 number DTMI00129416.

20 A. Yes.

21 Q. And just briefly tell me what this is and I'll ask you

22 a few questions about it.

23 A. Well, it speaks to the things that we were working on,

24 the recommendations that we had put together to get us

25 through a very tumultuous time in the City of Detroit.

Page 51

1 We knew that this plan was going to negatively impact

2 a lot of folks in order for us to move forward with

3 implementation, but it was all about trying to manage

4 our way through without going to the route of

5 bankruptcy.

6 Q. And this was a document that was put together by you

7 and people on your team; is that right?

8 A. That would be correct.

9 Q. And I see we've been going for a little over an hour,

10 an hour and 20 minutes. It's probably a good time for

11 a break, but let me ask you first up to this time this

12 is now March 13, towards the -- by the end of March

13 had you had any conversations with anyone else from

14 the Governor's staff or with the Governor himself

15 about Mr. Orr as the Emergency Financial Manager or

16 the Emergency Manager?

17 MR. CULLEN: Objection, foundation, form.

18 You can address the question.

19 A. It was obvious to me in this time frame that Lansing

20 had made their selection, so, I mean, that's something

21 that I couldn't control so it was more important to

22 me, once again, to be part of the team to help fix the

23 City as opposed to constantly fighting and pushing --

24 and pushing back. I didn't think that would get us

25 anywhere.

1 Q. Okay. So after you had your initial conversations

2 with Baird in February, you then met with Orr in the

3 end -- towards the end of February also in DC, and

4 then Orr -- there was an official announcement at the 5 end of March saying Orr's the new EM or the new EFM.

6 Prior to the meeting in DC and the official

7 announcement of Orr, did you have any contact with

8 anyone from the State about Mr. Orr's being made the 9 Emergency Manager or Emergency Financial Manager?

10 A. The answer would be very little, if any, because they

11 had the right to make the decision, they made the 12 decision, so once again, I would prefer to work with 13 the individual seeing what we could do together to fix

14 the City, a broken City.

15 Q. Okay, so let me just ask more directly. Did you have

16 advanced notice before the public announcement that

17 the City -- the State was going to come out and make 18 an announcement saying Kevyn Orr is our man?

19 A. Yes.

20 Q. And when were you told?

21 A. That had to be in early -- early to mid March.

22 Q. And do you remember the specifics of that discussion,

23 who told you what was said?

24 A. Whether that was Rich Baird or Andy Dillon, it wasn't

25 the Governor.

1 Q. And other than them telling you that Orr was the man,
2 did you have any other discussions about Mr. Orr with 3 anyone from the State up till the end of March when 4 the formal announcement was made?
5 A. No.
6 MR. ULLMAN: Okay, why don't we just take a
7 short break now, because we've been going for awhile.
8 THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Okay, we're off the 9 record, 11:40 a.m. This completes disk one.
10 (A brief recess was taken.)
11 THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We are back on the 12 record at 11:48 a.m. This is disk two of the 13 deposition of David Bing. Please proceed.
14 BY MR. ULLMAN:
15 Q. Mr. Mayor, I would like you to refer to what we've 16 marked as Bing Exhibit 3 and ask you to turn to the 17 Bates page ending in 421 at the bottom.
18 A. Uh-huh.
19 Q. I guess before I ask you a specific question about 20 this, this document in general was intended to lay out
21 ways to raise -- both raise and save money from the 22 City's perspective; is that right?
23 A. That would be correct.
24 Q. And laid out in here were perhaps not all but a number
25 of the initiatives that you've previously made

Page 54

1 reference to; is that right?
2 A. That would also be correct.
3 Q. And I see in some of them there are cost savings that 4 are identified or potential cost savings in
5 parentheses. We were just looking at this page 421;
6 is that right?
7 A. Correct.
8 Q. Now, with respect to item 2C on the page I've asked
9 you to refer to, it's headed identified future cost
10 savings initiatives and there's a parenthetical saying
11 that's in process and there's a long list of various 12 items that the City is pursuing at this time, and the 13 last one says asset monetization strategies; do you 14 see that?
15 A. Yes.
16 Q. Can you explain what that is referring to?
17 A. There was real estate that I knew we had been in 18 discussions in terms of selling some real estate.
19 They also had been -- even going back in the 20 Kilpatrick administration there was discussion about
21 selling our rights in the Detroit/Windsor tunnel.
22 There was -- there was a recreation center that we had 23 a proposal on, a closed recreation center. Those were 24 some of the things that we talked about potentially 25 for monetization.

1 Q. Did you have an understanding at the time this
2 document was prepared, which was March 2013, as to 3 what the potential or estimated value of the real
4 estate that you referred to was?
5 A. The UAW building across the street is for UAW, that 6 was a $5 million proposal. The recreation center was 7 a $1.7 million proposal. I don't recall, because I
8 think there was an updated assessment being done on 9 the valuation for the tunnel.
10 Q. Okay, I'm not sure -- can you explain a little more
11 briefly what you meant about the UAW? You said that 12 there was a --
13 A. There's a building across the street, it's city-owned,
14 but the UAW has been leasing the building.
15 Q. You mean across the street from where we're sitting 16 here now?
17 A. From where we're sitting, yes, across the street on 18 Jefferson Avenue.
19 Q. Okay.
20 A. The UAW is leasing that building from the City. They 21 made a proposal to purchase the building and we had 22 really come to an agreement in principle to the tune
23 of about $5 million.
24 Q. And what happened?
25 A. It's never closed. It has never closed at this point.

Page 56

1 Q. So am I to understand it was effectively taken out of 2 your hands and you don't know what happened to it
3 since?
4 A. That would be --
5 MR. CULLEN: Objection, foundation, form.
6 Go ahead.
7 Q. You can answer the question.
8 A. That would be correct.
9 Q. And the Windsor tunnel, you said you're not certain 10 what the current -- there may be an updated valuation?
11 A. There may be an updated valuation. If I were to go
12 back 60 to 90 days or maybe even more than that, I
13 knew that there was an updated evaluation being done.
14 Q. And what was the valuation that you were familiar with 15 as of March --
16 A. I don't recall. I don't recall what that was.
17 Q. Then you made also reference to a recreation center.
18 You said it was closed but there was some proposal
19 that was made to purchase it; is that right?
20 A. Correct, to the tune of about 1.7 million.
21 Q. Do you know who made that proposal?
22 A. That was the Salvation Army.
23 Q. And as of the time as around March 13th, was that 24 something that looked like it was proceeding towards 25 this closing?

1 A. Yes, it did.

2 Q. And was that taken out of your hands also?

3 A. Yes, it was.

4 Q. And that like the other real estate you mentioned was 5 taken out of your hands by the Emergency Manager and 6 his team I take it?

7 A. The whole process --

8 MR. CULLEN: Objection, foundation, form.

9 A. -- yeah.

10 Q. And did there come a time when someone -- how did this 11 process come about that it was taken out of your 12 hands? Did the Emergency Manager or someone from his 13 staff actually tell you or your staff, don't worry
14 about these things anymore, it's not your business or 15 words to that effect?

16 MR. CULLEN: Objection.

17 A. No.

18 MR. CULLEN: Foundation, form.

19 Q. How did it come about that it was taken out of your 20 hands?

21 A. I actually went to the Emergency Manager and told him
22 about these potential deals and in order for them to 23 go forward, he had to sign-off on it. He said to me
24 that it looked like they were decent deals and that he 25 would, but obviously that hasn't happened yet.

Page 58

1 Q. And has there been any follow-up with the Emergency
2 Manager between him and you as to why he hasn't signed
3 off?

4 MR. CULLEN: Objection, foundation, form.

5 A. I think more than anything else he wants to look at 6 some of the bigger issues that he's got to deal with 7 as opposed to these things which he may consider, you
8 know, not big issues.

9 Q. Even though if these things went through, they would 10 at least bring in some immediate cash; is that right?

11 A. They would.

12 Q. As part of the asset monetization, did you give any 13 consideration to try to monetize art that is owned by 14 the City of Detroit and maintained at the Detroit
15 Institute of Arts?

16 A. The answer would be no.

17 Q. And was there a particular reason you didn't give any 18 consideration to that?

19 A. Back at that time when we were thinking about it, that 20 never came up, that was never a conversation that we 21 had internally. I think since he's been on board, the 22 subject obviously has gotten a lot of heat and a lot
23 of visibility. I'm not sure what's going to happen
24 there.

25 Q. Okay. And do you -- let me ask it this way.

Page 59

1 Did you as of the March 2013 time frame
2 have any understanding, just a general understanding,
3 as to what the value was of the art that's owned by
4 the City of Detroit?

5 MR. CULLEN: Objection, foundation, form.

6 A. The answer would be no.

7 Q. And as you sit here today, do you have any 8 understanding as to the value of the art that's owned
9 by the City of Detroit?

10 MR. CULLEN: Same objection.

11 A. The answer would still be no.

12 Q. Are you aware of reports in the press stating that the 13 city-owned art could easily be worth billions of 14 dollars?

15 A. I have read that, yes.

16 Q. And do you have any reason to believe those reports
17 are inaccurate?

18 MR. CULLEN: Objection, foundation, form.
19 Of what they report or the value or what, counsel?

20 MR. ULLMAN: I think my question was clear.

21 Q. You can answer my question.

22 A. I know that he's engaged Christie's to do an 23 evaluation and I'm not sure that that's complete yet,
24 so I have no idea of what the value may or may not be.

25 Q. Okay. Let me ask you to turn now to the next page of

Page 60

1 this document, which is ending in Bates page 422. And
2 this heading says, and I quote, "The Mayor's plan
3 includes strategies to implement changes that will
4 significantly reduce general fund long-term
5 liabilities."
6 Do you see that?

7 A. Yes.

8 Q. And so we're clear, what in brief is the general fund?

9 A. That's the -- the general fund is what we use to run
10 the City on a day-to-day basis.

11 Q. Now, in subpoint A, 3A, you give some -- you give two 12 subpoints, two bullets. The second one says,
13 approximately 6 billion of City debt is owed by the 14 water and sewer department and does not have an impact
15 on the general fund. Do you see that?

16 A. Yes.

17 Q. Can you explain what you were referring to by those 18 words?

19 A. That -- that debt is paid by the users of the water
20 and sewerage department, so there's a revenue stream
21 that pays that debt down, so it's not part of the 22 general fund.

23 Q. Okay, and as you put it here, that that debt, while
24 it's on the books as City debt because the department
25 of water and sewer is part of the City, that doesn't,

Page 61

1 as you put it, have an impact on the general fund
2 because it's -- the water and sewer debt is paid for 3 by the department of water and sewer?
4 A. That would be correct.
5 Q. And that, as I understand it, is run as a separate 6 authority and has its own books and records and is 7 solvent; is that right?
8 A. That would be correct.
9 Q. You then go on in the next point, sub B, to refer to 10 pension unfunded liabilities, and you say
11 approximately 650 million of unfunded liability as of 12 FY 2012 of which only 250 million relates to general
13 fund.
14 A. Uh-huh.
15 Q. Do you see that? And could you tell me what you meant
16 when you wrote that?
17 MR. CULLEN: Objection, foundation, form.
18 A. I believe that makes reference to both the payment to 19 the pension fund and maybe even to the healthcare
20 benefits.
21 Q. Okay, I'm going to be a little more specific. The 22 language of this restructuring plan states that 23 there's 650 million of unfunded pension liability. Do
24 you see that?
25 A. Uh-huh.

Page 62

1 Q. And then it says of that only 250 million relates to
2 the general fund.
3 Can you tell me what that's referring to?
4 A. No, not right off the top of my head I can't, no.
5 Q. So you don't recall what that level of detail is as to 6 the --
7 A. Correct, correct, correct.
8 Q. Then the next bullet it -- well, I guess -- do you
9 recall where the 650 million liability -- unfunded
10 liability number comes from?
11 A. We have not -- we're not current with our pension
12 contributions.
13 Q. I guess let me ask it a little -- let me mark then 14 another document. We'll mark this as Bing 4.
15 (Marked Exhibit No. 4.)
16 Q. And Bing 4 for the record is an excerpt from a
17 document entitled Comprehensive Annual Financial 18 Report for the City of Detroit for its fiscal 19 year-ended June 30, 2012 and I've attached just two 20 pages of it because it's a very long document.
21 Okay, Mr. Mayor? You've seen -- you know
22 what the Comprehensive Annual Financial Report is;
23 right?
24 A. Yes.
25 Q. And I've attached the pages that pertain to the

Page 63

1 pensions and if you look on page 124, it talks about
2 the unfunded AAL on line 3 of that table.
3 A. Uh-huh.
4 Q. And which stands for unfunded actuarial -- as I
5 understand it, actuarial accrued liability?
6 A. Correct.
7 Q. And then if you look at the table, it says for the 8 General Retirement System there's a number of 9 approximately 640 million and on the Police and Fire
10 Retirement System it's about 4 million. Do you see
11 that?
12 A. Yes.
13 Q. And is it correct that that -- so that adds up to 14 about 644 million. Does that correspond to the 15 650 million that's in the restructuring plan that we 16 have as Exhibit 3?
17 A. Yes, yes.
18 MR. CULLEN: Objection, foundation, form.
19 Q. And when you -- the restructuring document refers to 20 the unfunded liability at fiscal year 2012, is that 21 referring to the valuation that's referred to at the 22 top of page 124 of Bing 4 where it says, and I quote,
23 "The funded status of each plan as of June 30, 2011,
24 the most recent actuarial valuation date, is as 25 follows" and then gives a table?

Page 64

1 MR. CULLEN: Objection, foundation, form.
2 A. And your question was?
3 MR. ULLMAN: Do you want to read it back?
4 If you don't understand, I'll rephrase it, but --
5 THE WITNESS: Yes. I just need --
6 Q. Would it be easier if I just rephrased the question?
7 A. Go ahead.
8 Q. Okay. When you referred to the approximately 9 650 million of unfunded liability as of fiscal year
10 2012, okay, the unfunded liability as of 2012, is that 11 referring to the underfunding as reported as of the 12 June 30, 2011 actuarial valuation which is referred to 13 on the top of page 124?
14 A. The answer would be --
15 MR. CULLEN: Objection, foundation, form.
16 When you say when you refer, you mean -- are you
17 implying that he wrote this document personally?
18 MR. ULLMAN: No, he and his team.
19 Q. I'm obviously referring to that in the general sense.
20 I didn't intend to imply that you physically drafted
21 this, Mr. Mayor. I understand this was put together
22 by you and people working for you.
23 A. And the answer to that would be yes.
24 Q. And also under this -- going back to page 422 of 25 Exhibit 3 under the subheading B under pension

1 unfunded liabilities it says, the City is developing a
2 plan to reduce the unfunded liability.
3 Do you have any recollection as to the 4 specifics of that plan?
5 A. No, I don't.
6 Q. Now, you recall -- or let me ask you.
7 Are you aware that on June 14th, 2013 the
8 Emergency Manager had a meeting with creditors?
9 A. I'm aware.
10 Q. Prior to the time that he was appointed or I should 11 say -- let me withdraw that.
12 Prior to the time that the Emergency
13 Manager's appointment was formally announced and June
14 14, 2013, did you have any conversations with the 15 Emergency Manager himself?
16 A. Yes.
17 Q. And do you recall how many?
18 A. We don't -- we don't meet that often. You know, if we 19 meet once or twice a week, that's about it and the 20 meetings are usually very short meetings. Usually 21 called by me.
22 Q. And can you say how long a typical meeting would last?
23 A. Thirty minutes tops.
24 Q. During that time between March 25th and June 14th do
25 you recall any discussions with the Emergency Manager

Page 66

1 concerning pensions, anything to do with pensions?
2 A. I -- yes.
3 Q. And tell me what you recall.
4 A. You know, the general conversation was that pensions
5 are a major problem that we have and we've got to 6 address it.
7 Q. And do you recall when those conversations took place?
8 A. Probably more in the May time frame.
9 Q. And was there any conversation with the Emergency
10 Manager as to how the Emergency Manager intended to 11 address the issues of pensions?
12 A. No.
13 Q. Was there any discussion with the Emergency Manager
14 during the period I've been asking about, the end of 15 March and June 14, about the City's filing for Chapter
16 9 bankruptcy?
17 A. I think the only conversations we may have had about 18 that is that's the last resort and that's from him
19 saying, you know, that's not the direction we want to 20 go in and it would be last resort.
21 Q. Did the emergency -- did you have any discussions with 22 the Emergency Manager in which he indicated that he
23 had any approaches or thoughts as to how to address
24 issues relating to pensions other than filing for 25 Chapter 9 bankruptcy?

Page 67

1 A. No.
2 Q. And did you have any conversations with him in which
3 he specifically referred to a Chapter 9 bankruptcy as 4 a way to deal with the pension issues?
5 A. I believe the answer to that would be yes. I can't be 6 very specific, I don't recall, but I think -- I
7 believe that conversation -- or a conversation like
8 that did occur.
9 Q. Okay, and can you give me, as best you can recall, a
10 time frame as to when?
11 A. I think it would be in that same May time frame in one
12 of our discussions.
13 Q. And can you tell me with as much specificity as you
14 can remember what the Emergency Manager said during 15 that conversation?
16 A. Once again, with not a lot of specifics, but in order
17 to fix the problems of the City where -- I know this 18 number has been thrown out a lot, the $3.5 billion of 19 unfunded liabilities, etc., etc., I mean, he talked
20 about that, but that was a generality and so it was no
21 more -- it was not more specific than that.
22 Q. But he referred to Chapter 9 as a way to get rid of or 23 address what he referred to as a 3.5 billion unfunded
24 liability?
25 A. As a possibility.

Page 68

1 MR. CULLEN: Objection, foundation, form.
2 You can answer.
3 A. As a possibility.
4 Q. And did Mr. Orr tell you at that time that the 5 unfunded liability was indeed 3.5 billion?
6 A. The answer to that would be yes.
7 Q. And did he tell you that that had been shown through 8 an actuarial valuation?
9 A. The answer to that would be yes.
10 Q. During that conversation or any other conversation
11 with Mr. Orr during the March 25 through June 14 time
12 frame, was there any discussion with Mr. Orr of what 13 we've referred to previously and I've shown you the 14 pension clause in the Michigan Constitution or any 15 other legal impediments to -- affecting pension
16 rights?
17 A. No.
18 Q. Let me ask you the same questions now -- well, let me
19 preface it by saying you're aware, of course, that 20 there was a bankruptcy filing on July 18.
21 A. That would be correct.
22 Q. Okay. Now, during the period between June 14, that 23 was when the creditor proposal was issued, and the 24 filing, did you have any conversations with Mr. Orr?
25 A. About?

1 Q. Just in general first.
2 A. Yeah, we probably had general conversations, but
3 nothing relative to the filing.
4 Q. Okay. So between June 14th and July 18th did you have 5 any conversations with Mr. Orr regarding pensions at 6 all?
7 A. No.
8 Q. Any discussions with Mr. Orr at all regarding the 9 possibility of a Chapter 9 filing?
10 A. No.
11 Q. So I take it the Chapter 9 filing a complete surprise
12 to you?
13 A. Yes, it was.
14 Q. I've asked you conversations with Mr. Orr concerning 15 pensions and Chapter 9. Going back, we don't have to 16 do it in two time frames, but between March 25th which 17 is when the -- the last point we asked about and July 18 18th, did you have any conversations with anyone from 19 the State about the City's unfunded pension liability?
20 A. No.
21 Q. And during that same time frame did you have any 22 conversations with anyone from the State about the 23 possibility of a Chapter 9 bankruptcy filing?
24 A. No.
25 Q. Now, you said you were not made aware in advance of

Page 70

1 the bankruptcy filing. I take it you were made aware
2 of the bankruptcy filing after it happened?
3 A. No. The day that he was going to file is when he told
4 me he was going to file.
5 Q. Okay. And did he -- what was the substance of what he 6 told you? Did he just say we're filing or did he give 7 any explanation?
8 A. That's all he said, we're filing, today.
9 Q. And what time did he say that? Do you remember?
10 A. This was in the afternoon so it had to be somewhere
11 between 3 and 4 o'clock, somewhere in there I think.
12 Q. And at that time he didn't give you any explanation as 13 to why?
14 A. No.
15 Q. And did you have conversations with Mr. Orr subsequent 16 to the filing discussing the reasons why the filing
17 had been done?
18 A. No.
19 Q. Did Mr. Orr ever discuss with you the reasons for the 20 timing, the specific timing, of the filing?
21 A. No, he didn't.
22 Q. Did you have any discussions with anyone from the 23 State as to the specifics of the timing of the 24 bankruptcy filing?
25 A. No.

1 Q. Now, were you aware that around -- as of the time the 2 bankruptcy filing was made that there was state court
3 litigation that was ongoing that was challenging the 4 ability of the Emergency Manager to file for Chapter
5 11 -- I'm sorry, for Chapter 9 in the first place?
6 A. I read that in the paper.
7 Q. Okay. Did you ever hear that the City made its 8 bankruptcy filing at the time it did in order
9 effectively to get it in before the state court issued
10 what the City expected to be an adverse ruling?
11 A. No.
12 MR. CULLEN: Objection, foundation, form.
13 A. I think I read that in the paper the following day.
14 Q. Now, I think you had indicated previously that you had 15 been opposed to the idea of the City having to file
16 for bankruptcy, you didn't think it was necessary; is 17 that right?
18 A. That's correct.
19 Q. And I remember you gave -- one last -- a couple last
20 questions.
21 You gave an interview with the Emergency
22 Manager I think it was either the day of or the day
23 after the filing. Do you recall that? You -- I think
24 you talked about a troubling day for Detroit.
25 A. Somewhat remember that, yeah.

Page 72

1 Q. And you introduced Mr. Orr who then made his comments.
2 In the course of that press conference you made the 3 statement to the effect that Mr. Orr and his team have 4 brought together -- have brought together a lot of 5 history of success or words to that effect. Do you
6 recall making that statement?
7 A. No.
8 Q. Do you -- are you aware of any history of success that 9 Mr. Orr and his team have?
10 A. Only Chrysler.
11 Q. Only in the context of bankruptcy?
12 A. Yeah.
13 Q. Are you aware of any success or history of success
14 that Mr. Orr has had outside the context of 15 bankruptcy?
16 A. No.
17 Q. Now, you obviously, you know, have been following even 18 if you've not been directly involved in what the 19 Emergency Manager has been doing; right?
20 A. Uh-huh.
21 Q. And you've been looking at or since obviously Detroit
22 is impacted by what he's doing in terms of both
23 reducing liabilities and trying to raise or conserve
24 cash; right?
25 A. Correct.

Page 73

1 Q. Now, when exactly did Kriss Andrews leave? I forget.
2 You may have told me.
3 A. It was late July of '13.
4 Q. And did you just have discussions with Mr. Andrews
5 before the time he left as to -- with the job that the 6 Emergency Manager was doing, whether he was doing a
7 good job or a bad job, being effective or not being 8 effective?
9 A. Yes.
10 Q. And can you relate -- were you in agreement with the 11 views of Mr. Andrews or did you and he have different
12 views?
13 MR. CULLEN: Objection, foundation, form.
14 That's an unfair question, counsel. Which views?
15 Q. You can answer my question.
16 A. I was in agreement with Mr. Andrews.
17 Q. And can you tell me what the substance of the 18 discussions were and in particular the views expressed
19 by Mr. Andrews with which you agreed?
20 A. I think he felt as far as --
21 MR. CULLEN: Objection, foundation. You
22 can address it.
23 A. I think he felt as far as the balance sheet issues
24 were concerned that Kevyn had the ability to help
25 solve problems in that realm, but from a restructuring

Page 74

1 standpoint he didn't think that he had the requisite
2 skills to do an effective restructuring.
3 Q. Now, was this -- these were discussions -- let me ask
4 it this way.
5 Was this a discussion that took place at 6 one point in time or was this --
7 A. It was ongoing.
8 Q. These were ongoing discussions with Mr. Andrews? Just 9 during what time frame?
10 A. I think from probably April through June.
11 Q. Let me mark as the last exhibit I will show you Bing 12 5.
13 (Marked Exhibit No. 5.)
14 MR. ULLMAN: I'll just state for the record
15 what we've marked as Bing 5 is an email from 16 Kriss Andrews to Mayor Bing dated July 10, 2013. The 17 first page bears Bates numbers DTMI00098861.
18 Q. Are you familiar with what we've marked as Exhibit
19 Bing 5, Mr. Mayor?
20 A. Yes.
21 Q. And can you tell me what this is?
22 A. I asked Kriss, because at this time I knew he was 23 leaving and I asked him to give me a kind of overview
24 in terms of what he'd seen since Kevyn came on board
25 and this is the feedback that I got from him.

Page 75

1 Q. Okay, and did you have an oral discussion with 2 Mr. Andrews about this?
3 A. Yes, I did.
4 Q. Okay, and did you advise Mr. Andrews that you
5 concurred in the views that he expressed here?
6 MR. CULLEN: Objection, foundation, form.
7 A. I would say the answer would be yes.
8 Q. And then did you in fact agree with the views
9 expressed in this document, Bing 5, by Mr. Andrews?
10 MR. CULLEN: Objection, foundation, form.
11 A. The answer would be yes.
12 Q. Okay, and let me just go through some of this briefly.
13 I think in the first couple of paragraphs Mr. Andrews
14 essentially says that he's giving the Emergency
15 Manager good mark -- good marks in long-term
16 liabilities, stating at least in his view that the 17 Emergency Manager was building on many of the 18 initiatives that you had started previously?
19 A. Correct.
20 Q. And did you agree with that assessment?
21 A. Yes.
22 Q. Then Mr. Andrews goes on and starts discussing
23 operations, which he says are a different matter
24 altogether and basically his -- Mr. Andrews'
25 conclusion is that the Emergency Manager, and I quote,

Page 76

1 "threw away the head start we gave him. He frankly is
2 not competent at all. In fact, he's embarrassingly
3 incompetent and only listened to his equally
4 incompetent staff and did not well-exercise the added
5 powers he had."
6 So Mr. Andrews gives him an A in long-term
7 liabilities and an F in operations.
8 And did you agree with that assessment by
9 Mr. Andrews?
10 MR. CULLEN: Objection. Every word of it,
11 counsel? Is that what you're asking?
12 MR. ULLMAN: My question is pretty plain.
13 You can answer.
14 MR. CULLEN: No, it's an objectionable
15 question, but he can answer it.
16 MR. ULLMAN: Then your objection stands and 17 the question would be answered.
18 A. From my vantage point, you know, I'm not going to give 19 him a grade from A to F in either one of those areas,
20 but I would agree that his strength was in dealing 21 with the long-term liabilities and not operations.
22 Q. And Mr. Andrews goes so far as to say that in at least
23 Mr. Andrews' view that he's not doing a competent job
24 in the restructuring aspect and the operational
25 aspect. Did you agree with that?

Page 77

1 MR. CULLEN: Objection, form and
2 foundation.
3 A. Yes, I would.
4 Q. And he gives -- he, meaning Mr. Andrews, goes on to 5 discuss some specific points that he believes, he
6 Mr. Andrews, believes support that conclusion. I want
7 to ask you about some of those.
8 Mr. Andrews -- he has items 1 through 4
9 initially. Mr. Andrews first talks about issues
10 with -- you called it DDOT?
11 A. Yes.
12 Q. And he says that they were ready to choose -- I guess
13 MV is someone, is a person?
14 A. No, that's a company --
15 Q. Oh.
16 A. -- that manages transportation.
17 Q. Okay. And then it goes on to say, the Emergency
18 Manager slowed the process down and he says that 19 although he, meaning Orr, gave me a poor excuse for so
20 doing, it does not hold water.
21 Can you tell me in your own words, what was 22 the situation, the issue, with DDOT?
23 A. We had poor management at best at DDOT. And before we 24 wanted to make any long-term decisions, what to do
25 with the transportation department, we felt we had to

Page 78

1 get a capable management team in there to do the
2 assessment and make some improvements before we made
3 any final long-term decision and so we chose -- we had 4 chosen MV and Kevyn stopped that process and
5 ultimately, maybe three months later, chose the same
6 company that we recommended. So we think we lost
7 time.
8 Q. Okay, and so during that three-month period the same
9 prior, as you characterize it, bad management
10 continued in place?
11 A. Yes.
12 Q. And that resulted in continued -- were they losing
13 money, DDOT?
14 A. Yes.
15 Q. So it continued -- that perpetrated -- or perpetuated
16 at least for that three-month period the same
17 operation losing money?
18 MR. CULLEN: Objection, foundation, form.
19 A. We didn't see any improvement in efficiencies plus the 20 fact they were still the same kind of complaints that 21 we were getting from the ridership and we felt that if 22 there had been a management team in there sooner, we 23 could have probably made some improvements.
24 Q. Okay. And have there been improvements since MV was 25 put in place as the manager?

1 A. I would say yes, but they've only been there for the 2 last four to six weeks so maybe it's too soon to
3 really do a good assessment, but they are the right
4 company and I believe given time and tools, they will 5 make major improvements.
6 Q. Okay, and does DDOT have any importance as concerns
7 Detroit's financial viability in terms of being able 8 to offer public transportation to citizens or things
9 like that?
10 MR. CULLEN: Objection.
11 Q. Is that something that's important to have in place
12 for recovery?
13 MR. CULLEN: Objection, foundation -- I'm 14 sorry. I didn't know whether there was going to be 15 another clause in the question.
16 MR. ULLMAN: No, no more clauses.
17 MR. CULLEN: Okay. Objection, foundation,
18 form.
19 MR. ULLMAN: Duly noted.
20 Q. You can answer.
21 A. As one of my initiatives, one of my key initiatives,
22 public transportation is one of the top five
23 initiatives from my vantage point, because it impacts
24 so many of our citizens who have either got to travel,
25 a lot of them don't have cars, a lot of them work

1 outside of the City and if you don't have dependable
2 public transportation, it does create a major issue.
3 Plus we've been subsidizing DDOT out of our general
4 fund for some time so the quicker that we can fix it,
5 the less subsidizing we have to get -- get over to 6 DDOT.
7 Q. Let me go onto -- the next item listed is number 2.
8 Mr. Andrews writes, we should also be progressing on 9 providing the new management team in PLD.
10 Can you tell me what --
11 A. Public lighting department.
12 Q. Ah, okay. And can you explain what the issue is here?
13 A. We have 88,000 lights in our City with about 40,000
14 that are working. We have a system that is so 15 outdated that even with new technology, you know, we 16 -- we can't fix it. So there's got to be a huge 17 investment into public lighting. It's something that 18 we've been talking about for years and years. We have 19 a plan to put in place to invest in a new lighting
20 grid across the entire City and, once again, we 21 haven't moved the needle on that at all. We had a
22 Lighting Authority legislation was passed in December
23 of 2012 and we had an opportunity I think to put some 24 lights on in different parts of the City, but it
25 hasn't happened as I speak to you now.

Page 81

1 Q. And do you know why it -- why things have been, in the
2 words of Mr. Andrews, been slowed down?
3 A. Once again, I would say to you, and this is more
4 hearsay than anything else and this would be from --
5 MR. CULLEN: Objection, foundation.
6 A. What I hear is Lansing wants to take some credit for 7 fixing the lighting system and they're trying to get 8 the funding, 100 -- I think it's $150 million they 9 want to go to the bond market. That hasn't happened
10 yet. So the investment that's necessary to put on 11 lights and start to fix the system has taken much
12 longer than any of us anticipated.
13 Q. Now, at the time that Mr. Andrews wrote this email to 14 you, he was still part of your team; right?
15 A. Correct.
16 Q. He was still the -- what was his title? Was it
17 program manager director?
18 A. Program director.
19 Q. And you had asked him to write this email to you as 20 part of his job duties?
21 A. Yes.
22 Q. To inform you as to --
23 A. How things were going, yes.
24 Q. And that's what this is? This is the email that he 25 wrote while in the -- employed in the capacity of

1 program manager director in response to your request
2 that he do so?
3 A. That would be correct.
4 Q. And this was within the ordinary scope of his job
5 activities?
6 A. Yes.
7 Q. And you had asked him as part of his job to observe
8 and monitor what was going on in the City under the 9 direction of the Emergency Manager and report back to 10 you?
11 A. Yes.
12 Q. Now, Mr. Andrews writes in this -- and this is on both 13 points one and two, he writes, and I quote, "He" --
14 the he there referring to Mr. Orr -- "He told me a 15 disaster at DDOT would not be a problem for him since 16 it would highlight how screwed up the City is." And 17 then similarly, if you look at number 2, Mr. Andrews
18 writes that the EM slowed the process here also and 19 said the same thing, a disaster at PLD would not be a 20 bad thing because it would highlight how messed up the 21 City is.
22 Did you ever have any conversations with 23 Mr. Orr in which Mr. Orr conveyed the substance of 24 what is reported here by Mr. Andrews to you?
25 A. No.

Page 83

1 Q. Going onto number 3, it says, similar issues surfaced
2 around the Lighting Authority.
3 Let me ask you. What's the difference
4 between the PLD and the Lighting Authority?
5 A. Lighting Authority is independent of PLD. The 6 Lighting Authority is more regional. We had had 7 legislation passed and so those people on the 8 authority are not employees of the City, it's 9 independent.
10 Q. And do they have -- do they deal with different --
11 with lights in different parts of Detroit than PLD?
12 I'm not sure what the interplay between the two is.
13 A. No, it would be the exact same PLD, but see, with PLD,
14 we don't control all the lighting in the City, DTE
15 controls probably at least 40 percent of the lights in 16 the City because they have upgraded and they have made 17 the necessary technology, investments in 40 percent of 18 lights in the City so their grid works, ours doesn't.
19 Q. DTE is what?
20 A. Detroit -- DTE, Detroit -- Detroit Edison.
21 Q. Detroit Edison supplies the electricity or -- 22 A. PLD also has the ability to generate electricity, but 23 once again, it's such an old, outdated entity they've 24 not made any kind of investments in their system in 30
25 or 40 years, so a lot of the system is just broken, it

Page 84

1 can't even be fixed, you can't even get replacement
2 parts.
3 Q. Okay, just -- so you had indicated there were 88,000
4 lights --
5 A. Correct.
6 Q. -- in Detroit? And some of those --
7 A. Some of them are on the grid with DTE.
8 Q. Okay. And those are DTE's responsibility?
9 A. Correct.
10 Q. And some are the responsibility of PLD?
11 A. That would be correct.
12 Q. And that's about how many?
13 A. That's probably around 55,000.
14 Q. And then are others the responsibility of the Lighting
15 Authority?
16 A. No, no.
17 Q. That's why I'm still a little unclear as to how the 18 Lighting Authority factors into this.
19 A. We went to the outside, because we thought that one of 20 the things we were thinking about doing was 21 outsourcing the responsibility of lighting the City of 22 Detroit. We didn't think that we had the capacity or 23 the capability to do that internal so we were talking 24 to DTE as an alternative source, but we wanted to have 25 the Lighting Authority in place because DTE did not

1 want to make the necessary investment, so we had to do
 2 that through this Lighting Authority by issuing bonds.
 3 Q. Okay, so one option was to work with DTE, but that
 4 didn't look like it was going to work so the Lighting
 5 Authority is a regional authority and you were going
 6 to like bring them in through the floating of bonds to 7 have them help take over and fix the lights in 8 Detroit; is that it?
 9 A. Yep, yep, yep.
 10 Q. And is there a name of this authority or is that a
 11 particular name?
 12 A. No, Detroit Lighting Authority.
 13 Q. Just called the --
 14 A. Yeah.
 15 Q. There you go. Works for me.
 16 Okay, and so what is -- can you explain the 17 issue that Mr. Andrews is writing about here in item 3
 18 when he says similar issues surfaced with the Lighting
 19 Authority?
 20 A. We -- one of the big issues that we have is with our 21 union employees, because as you start talking about 22 outsourcing, in a lot of cases they may very well lose
 23 a job, they're at risk, and as far as the lighting --
 24 the lighting department is concerned, you're not 25 talking about a lot of people and there were

Page 86

1 negotiations, I'm not involved in that, where those
 2 people who wanted to stay as City employees could be
 3 transferred over to an outside third-party and 4 wouldn't lose their jobs. So a lot of those
 5 negotiations were going on, but what Kriss is saying
 6 is that Kevyn slowed that process down which kept us
 7 from moving forward to try to get the investment in 8 place and start to get lights on in the City.
 9 Q. And is that process still ongoing to where --
 10 A. That's ongoing.
 11 Q. And are people -- but it's just ongoing, as I think
 12 you had said, in a slower way than you had expected it
 13 would be given the work -- the groundwork that you had 14 done?
 15 A. That would be correct.
 16 MR. CULLEN: Objection, foundation, form.
 17 Q. And Mr. Andrews writes that they went to Kevyn and got 18 a deal which forces the City to put in more money than 19 they need and essentially saying a better deal than 20 they were able to negotiate with the City without the 21 Emergency Manager.
 22 Do you have an understanding as to what
 23 Mr. Andrews is referring to here?
 24 A. If I recall, there's a tax that's about $12.5 million
 25 a year that I think I recall that is utilized once the

1 -- once you've gone out and you've secured the bonds,
 2 you can use this tax to pay down the loan, and this
 3 Authority did not need the $12.5 million in year one,
 4 but he's -- I think he told me that Kevyn gave them
 5 the $12.5 million and his feeling was that they only
 6 needed as a startup entity 2 to $3 million. Why not 7 use the rest of the money to put into other areas that 8 the City needs and I think that's what his -- what he 9 was referring to.
 10 Q. Okay. In item 4 Mr. Andrews makes a number of -- I
 11 guess it's some general observations. One is ordering 12 us not to coordinate with the consultants we hired to 13 help us.
 14 Do you have an understanding as to what
 15 that's referring to?
 16 A. Yeah, Kriss was told not to -- not to have any contact 17 with the consultants and that the consultants that 18 were coming in were very inexperienced people, that 19 had really no knowledge of Detroit and of municipal 20 government, so it really slowed the process down.
 21 Q. And did Mr. Andrews tell you that he had been told not 22 to have contacts with the consultants?
 23 A. Yes.
 24 Q. And when did -- did he tell you that directive was 25 given?

Page 88

1 A. Oh, that was given by Kevyn. I don't know the exact
 2 timing of that. It had to be in the April/May time
 3 frame.
 4 Q. And up to the point of that directive had Mr. Andrews
 5 been having contact with the consultants?
 6 A. Yes.
 7 Q. And is that something you would know due to your 8 supervision of Mr. Andrews?
 9 A. Yes.
 10 Q. And after that directive was given did Mr. Andrews
 11 continue to have contact with the consultants?
 12 A. No.
 13 Q. And then Mr. Andrews goes on to say, putting in place
 14 very inexperienced staff to control things.
 15 Do you have an understanding as to what
 16 Andrews was referring to there?
 17 A. All the consultants.
 18 Q. Well, he's referring specifically to staff. Is
 19 that --
 20 A. Well, they -- they became staff.
 21 Q. Oh, okay. Anyone in particular?
 22 A. It's a bunch of them.
 23 Q. You mean these were people that Mr. Andrews -- Mr. Orr
 24 brought in to take on positions in the City management
 25 structure to replace people that you had previously

Page 89

1 installed; is that right?
 2 A. That would be correct.
 3 Q. And can you just give me -- you don't have to name
 4 names but give me some of the positions where you
 5 believe he put in people who are inexperienced or very 6 inexperienced.
 7 MR. CULLEN: Objection, foundation, form.
 8 Which is it?
 9 MR. ULLMAN: I think we'll go with very
 10 inexperienced.
 11 A. He brought on a CFO from the outside to replace Jack
 12 and everybody said from day one he was not a good fit.
 13 I believe he'll be relieved of his duties for other
 14 reasons this week. Kriss was replaced by Gary Brown, 15 who was a City Council -- City Councilman who has 16 never run anything much less 11 different departments
 17 reporting to him. He was a police officer before he 18 became a City Councilman and he took Kriss' place.
 19 Karla has not been replaced at all, Karla Henderson,
 20 who I think was one of our high profile leaders that 21 really did an outstanding job in blight elimination
 22 and planning for the City. She's not been replaced to 23 my knowledge. Only recently our director of 24 purchasing has left and he has not been replaced. So
 25 a lot of the key people that they're taking out, what

Page 90

1 they're doing is putting in consultants in those
 2 positions and, you know, they're learning on the fly
 3 and just, once again, it's not efficient.
 4 Q. I think you mentioned specifically two people who were 5 replaced who you didn't believe were good people or 6 experienced people. You mentioned CFO, Jack Martin,
 7 as I recall, and then Kriss Andrews himself who was 8 replaced by Gary Brown. Anyone else that was put out
 9 and replaced by someone that you believe to be not 10 suited, not experienced enough for the job apart from 11 those two? And put aside positions that are currently 12 unfilled.
 13 A. No, those would be the two key along with Karla and 14 Karla's just hasn't been replaced. They may be 15 looking for a person for that, I don't know, but some 16 of the other positions they've just put young
 17 consultants in those positions. My big concern there
 18 is at some point in time we will come out of 19 bankruptcy and if you don't have the people internally
 20 that know the system and you have all these 21 consultants doing the job that City employees ought to 22 be doing, when Kevyn leaves, which could be within the 23 next 11 months, and those consultants leave, you
 24 haven't developed anybody to run the City on a
 25 day-to-day basis. That's my biggest concern. We

Page 91

1 don't even have a line item in our budget for
 2 training. Somebody's got to get trained to do these 3 jobs on a long going basis.
 4 Q. So when you said -- you made some reference to young
 5 consultants that were brought in. Is it the case that 6 the Emergency Manager has put in staff positions
 7 people who are actually consultants rather than 8 long-term employees of the City?
 9 A. Yes.
 10 MR. CULLEN: Objection, foundation, form.
 11 Q. And do you know the names or positions of those 12 people?
 13 A. No, I don't.
 14 Q. But that's at a lower level so you don't know the 15 specific names?
 16 A. Correct.
 17 Q. But it's your understanding that that's what's 18 happened?
 19 A. Correct. I get feedback from a lot of my department
 20 heads and directors that that's what's going on and 21 they're frustrated as hell.
 22 Q. And can you tell me who are some of these department
 23 heads who are --
 24 A. All of them.
 25 Q. Mr. Andrews also says that the Emergency Manager is

Page 92

1 not listening to Conway MacKenzie. Do you see that at 2 the top of Bates page 862?
 3 A. Yes, I see that.
 4 Q. Do you have an understanding of what he was referring
 5 to there?
 6 A. No, I don't. Conway MacKenzie is the restructuring --
 7 the primary restructuring firm, but I'm -- you know, I
 8 have no contact with them at all.
 9 Q. So you don't know the specifics of what Mr. Andrews
 10 was referring to?
 11 A. No, no, I don't.
 12 Q. Okay. Let me just go quickly through the last couple
 13 of things. Mr. Andrews continues in this email
 14 stating that the Emergency Manager and his team also 15 pursued wrong things and he gives a list. First he 16 talks about focusing on outsourcing solid waste. Do
 17 you have an understanding of what the issue is there?
 18 A. Yeah, trash is getting picked up, garbage and trash is 19 getting picked up. Maybe not as efficient as it
 20 should be, but it's not like it's not happening. You
 21 know, there may be a delay of several hours or maybe a
 22 day and he's saying that's not an area to overly
 23 concern itself with. You know, the real issues still 24 are the things that I focused on earlier.
 25 Q. Mr. Andrews states in this paragraph that the

Page 93

1 announced savings of 15 million are ridiculous and he
 2 says they don't really know what the savings are, if 3 there are any.
 4 Do you see that? Do you have an
 5 understanding of what's referred to there?
 6 A. Yeah, I think you first got to know your internal 7 costs and I think what Kriss is saying if you don't 8 know your internal costs, how do you know that when 9 you go out, without quoting other companies, that 10 you're going to save this money? And so, you know,
 11 that work had not been quoted out.
 12 Q. I'm sorry, what work had not been quoted out?
 13 A. Trash and garbage pickup.
 14 Q. I'm -- I'm not -- I'm sorry, I'm not following.
 15 A. Solid waste.
 16 Q. It had not been quoted out. I thought there was an 17 RFP that was put out for solid waste?
 18 A. It may have been now, but before -- but I think he was 19 given information on this 15 million savings before
 20 any information came back from the RFP.
 21 Q. Oh, you're saying that there was an announcement that 22 there would be a savings of 15 million --
 23 A. Right.
 24 Q. -- before the specifics of the RFP were in --
 25 A. Correct.

Page 94

1 Q. -- compared so you could then compare with what the 2 internal --
 3 A. What the internal cost was, correct.
 4 Q. Okay. And at that time were the internal costs -- had 5 they been tabulated, calculated?
 6 A. I don't know the answer to that.
 7 Q. Number 2 on this last list of Mr. Andrews is moving
 8 PDD to DEGC.
 9 Can you tell me what that refers to?
 10 A. You got to learn the acronyms here. Planning and 11 development and DEGC is Detroit Economic Growth
 12 Corporation, and you know you got two functions that 13 do planning for the City of Detroit. DEGC is a little 14 different. They're basically about new business
 15 coming into town and they're more growth oriented than 16 anything else. They don't get into the nitty-gritty
 17 of managing what happens in city departments on a
 18 day-to-day basis. We don't think, meaning my 19 administration, don't think that that's a good use of 20 the skill sets that we have in the two departments.
 21 There may be some things and we've even heard from 22 HUD, which is a big supporter of our Planning
 23 Department, there are things that we can't transfer to 24 DEGC. And so when people just with blinders on 25 saying, you know, take all the responsibilities from

Page 95

1 the Planning Department and shift it over to DEGC,
 2 DEGC doesn't even want all of that, doesn't make -- we
 3 don't think it makes a lot of good sense right now.
 4 Q. Okay. And there's also the last point that 5 Mr. Andrews makes, number 3, is about putting a new 6 chief in place. I think he's suggesting it should be 7 an existing person as opposed to someone brought in 8 from the outside?
 9 A. Too late. That's done. Traditionally -- historically
 10 I should say the police chief and the fire
 11 commissioner were always appointees selected by the 12 Mayor. With the kind of problems that we've had from 13 a public safety standpoint and with the turnover of 14 police chiefs since I've been in office, they made a
 15 change so that the Mayor no longer selected the police
 16 chief. The police chief was selected by Lansing going
 17 back -- actually he started July 1st, but they didn't 18 follow the process and we have a police commission
 19 that purportedly has the responsibility of selecting 20 and interviewing and they have a process of 21 identifying police chiefs. It didn't happen that way
 22 with them. And I had no input into it at all and when 23 I found out that they were ready to name a police
 24 chief and they showed me a couple names, they had no
 25 internal candidates at all and I went to Kevyn and

Page 96

1 said, you know, you got to -- we've got almost 3,000
 2 police officers in the City of Detroit, you can't make 3 me believe that we don't have somebody internally who 4 has the capability and capacity to be considered and 5 at the 11th hour they did interview two internal 6 candidates but the reality is that the die was cast.
 7 The guy who they selected is the guy that's here now
 8 from Cincinnati.
 9 Q. And then lastly, if you look at the second to the last
 10 paragraph in this email, Mr. Andrews makes reference
 11 to a gag order or gag orders from Kevyn, which he says
 12 only support the very poor reporting.
 13 Do you have an understanding as to what
 14 he's referring to when he uses the phrase gag orders
 15 from Kevyn?
 16 A. I think anytime -- we got a different kind of press
 17 here. I don't know. Are you from here?
 18 Q. I'm from New York.
 19 A. Okay, our press may be worse than New York press.
 20 Q. That's a matter of opinion.
 21 A. Having said that, having said that, the negative
 22 stories about Detroit is pretty rampant and you know,
 23 I guess things happen internally that you would hope
 24 would maybe stay inside, but our press does a pretty
 25 good job of digging and so when something happens

1 internally and the press gets ahold of it, I think
2 what Kevyn is saying, you know, there must be a leak
3 somewhere so, you know, we don't -- we want to make 4 sure that that stops, we don't need to read about some 5 of the things that are being discussed internally,
6 etc., etc., so I'm putting a gag order out and 7 anybody -- if I find out that you are the leak, then
8 I'm going to have to deal with you appropriately.
9 Q. Okay. And then actually as I see in the email above
10 this Mr. Andrews says, we need to talk, we need to 11 plan this communication well, how do we get out a
12 message that helps matters.
13 Do you know what he was referring to by 14 planning this communication well?
15 A. I'm not 100 percent sure on that, but it's one of the 16 things that we talk about internally a lot. You know,
17 I have an administration that have accomplished a lot 18 of things and because the focus is always on the 19 negative things that are happening, we're trying to 20 figure out -- there are some good stories. I mean,
21 even yesterday with 60 Minutes, I guess, it was all
22 pretty negative about the City. It's the same thing
23 over and over and over. Nobody talks about some of 24 the positive things that are going on and I think in 25 deference to staff, I want people to understand that

Page 98

1 they've accomplished a lot and so we wanted -- I think
2 Kriss and Bob wanted to make sure that our press
3 understood that there were good things, that we had 4 accomplished things, etc., etc. It's not all about
5 the Emergency Manager coming in and now things start
6 to happen. It's about things were already happening.
7 MR. ULLMAN: Okay, I have no further
8 questions at this time. I will pass the witness.
9 THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We'll go off the record
10 at 12:49.
11 (A brief recess was taken.)
12 THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Back on the record,
13 12:52. Go ahead.
14 EXAMINATION
15 BY MR. ELLISON:
16 Q. Good afternoon, Mr. Mayor. I just have a few
17 questions so I'll be very brief.
18 How many discussions did you have with 19 Mr. Baird about the Emergency Manager; do you recall?
20 A. No more than two.
21 Q. And when was the last one?
22 A. I think after -- after I met with Kevyn.
23 Q. So that would have been in the February or March time
24 frame?
25 A. In late February, yeah.

Page 99

1 Q. And earlier you had mentioned Treasurer Andy Dillon.
2 Did you have any discussions with him about the
3 Emergency Manager?
4 A. Not as much. Rich seemed to have taken the lead on 5 that. I think the Treasurer was more involved in what 6 was happening in Detroit in 2012 as opposed to 2013.
7 I've not seen a lot of him in 2013.
8 Q. But did you have any discussion about --
9 A. No, no with Andy, no.
10 Q. Did you have any discussions with him about Detroit's
11 pension issues?
12 A. With Andy, no.
13 Q. Okay. And how about Governor Snyder? Have you had 14 any discussions with him about the Emergency Manager?
15 A. Just once.
16 Q. And when was that?
17 A. That was before I went to DC to meet Kevyn.
18 Q. And what was the substance of that conversation, if 19 you remember?
20 A. That they think that they found the right guy.
21 Q. How long was the conversation?
22 A. Short conversation.
23 Q. Did you say anything back or was it him simply 24 informing you that --
25 A. Just informing me.

Page 100

1 Q. Did you have any discussions with the Governor about
2 the possibility of filing for bankruptcy?
3 A. No.
4 Q. And did you have any discussions with him about the 5 City's pension issues?
6 A. No.
7 MR. ELLISON: That's all I have for the
8 witness.
9 EXAMINATION
10 BY MS. LEVINE:
11 Q. Good afternoon, Mr. Mayor.
12 A. Good afternoon.
13 Q. Sharon Levine, Lowenstein Sandler, for AFSCME.
14 A. Okay.
15 Q. Just a couple more questions.
16 Prior to -- going back 18 months before the 17 bankruptcy filing, are you aware that there were 18 negotiations with the City and a coalition of unions
19 with regard to certain tentative agreements?
20 A. Yes.
21 Q. Were you involved in those negotiations?
22 A. Yes.
23 Q. Is it your understanding that those negotiations with 24 your unions actually did result in tentative
25 agreements?

Page 101 1 A. Yes. 2 Q. And is it your understanding that those tentative 3 agreements were ratified by the unions? 4 A. Yes. 5 Q. Were those -- and was it your understanding that those 6 tentative agreements would have resulted in savings 7 for the City? 8 A. Yes. 9 Q. Were the tentative agreements -- were the tentative 10 agreements ever implemented by the City? 11 A. No. 12 Q. Do you know why? 13 A. They were rejected by the Treasurer, Andy Dillon. 14 Q. After the rejection of the tentative agreements did 15 there come a point in time where you were involved in 16 further negotiations with your unions with regard to 17 concessions, specifically including meetings with 18 Ernst & Young? 19 A. I wasn't actually involved in any of that so I'm not 20 100 percent sure what other meetings occurred after we 21 didn't get the tentative agreements implemented. 22 Q. Were there meetings -- were you aware of meetings 23 between various union representatives and E&Y or 24 Ernst & Young? 25 A. Yes.	Page 103 1 finish? 2 A. Kriss and Jack Martin would have been the two guys, 3 the CFO and the COO would have been the guys that were 4 heading that up, and I would think HR guy had to be 5 involved in that who's no longer here, Patrick Aquart, 6 and then our labor person would have been involved in 7 that, and they reported to either Jack or Kriss. 8 Q. To your knowledge did those meetings result in 9 tentative agreements or any agreements with the 10 unions? 11 A. Not to my knowledge. 12 Q. Why did those -- did those discussions come to a halt? 13 A. I believe they did, once the determination was made 14 that an Emergency Manager was imminent. 15 Q. Following the appointment of the Emergency Manager, 16 were you -- are you aware of any further discussions 17 with your unions or coalition of unions before the 18 filing of the Chapter 9 case? 19 A. I'm sure there were ongoing meetings, but I've not 20 been involved in any of them because that was under 21 the purview of the Emergency Manager. 22 Q. How are you sure that there were ongoing meetings if 23 you weren't involved? 24 A. Just conversations, you hear conversation, people let 25 you know what's going on.
Page 102 1 Q. When did those occur? 2 A. Those would have been late 2012 and maybe the first 3 quarter of '13. 4 Q. And who was present at those meetings on behalf of the 5 City? 6 MR. CULLEN: Objection, foundation. 7 Q. Are you aware who was in attendance at those meetings 8 on behalf of the City? 9 A. That would have been our top labor guy, I don't know 10 if he was by himself. I don't know if Kriss was still 11 involved in it, Andrews. I'm not sure from the City's 12 perspective who all may have been there. 13 Q. But these took place before the Emergency Manager was 14 appointed in March of 2013; correct? 15 A. Correct. 16 Q. And these were done under -- although you weren't 17 physically there, they were done under your 18 supervision and control and the people who were 19 involved in those conversations reported to you; is 20 that correct? 21 A. No, they reported to Kriss. 22 Q. To Kriss Andrews and Kriss Andrews reported to you? 23 A. Yes, Kriss -- 24 Q. In other words, they weren't done -- 25 MR. CULLEN: Could you let the witness	Page 104 1 Q. So what -- with whom did you have a conversation that 2 indicated to you that there were ongoing meetings with 3 the coalition of unions after the appointment of the 4 Emergency Manager? 5 A. Jack or Kriss. 6 Q. And when did those meetings take place? 7 A. Once again, it was sometime in the first quarter of 8 '13. I don't know that there were ongoing meetings. 9 Once Kevyn got here I do think there were still 10 meetings, but like I said, I'm not involved in that at 11 all anymore. 12 Q. So while you were in control, there were negotiations 13 with the coalition of unions that resulted in a TA 14 where the unions ratified those TAs and those were not 15 implemented because Mr. Baird declined to implement 16 them; is that your understanding? 17 A. Not -- 18 MR. CULLEN: Objection, foundation, form. 19 A. Not Mr. Baird. That was the Treasurer, Andy Dillon. 20 Q. Andy Dillon, okay. 21 After the appointment of Emergency Manager 22 you're not sure what meetings took place, although you 23 did hear around the halls that some meetings were 24 ongoing? 25 A. Yes.

Page 105 1 Q. Before the Emergency Manager was appointed were you 2 involved in budgeting for the City? 3 A. At a very high level. Not so much in budgeting. I 4 mean, the budget director -- 5 Q. Who was responsible -- and did the budget director 6 report to you? 7 A. No, he reported to the CFO. 8 Q. And did the CFO report to you? 9 A. Correct. 10 Q. Okay, since the appointment of the Emergency Manager 11 do you know who's involved in budgeting for the City? 12 A. Brent Hartzell. Brent Hartzell. H-A-R-T-Z-E-L-L. 13 He's the budgeting director. 14 Q. And to whom does he report? 15 A. He reported directly to the new CFO, the guy that I 16 don't think's going to be here after this week, 17 Jim Bonsall. 18 Q. And does he report to you? 19 A. I've never seen an org chart. I've asked for it on 20 several occasions and I've never seen one. 21 Q. So you're not sure what the reporting org chart would 22 be after the appointment of the Emergency Manager? 23 A. That is correct. 24 Q. Do you know whether or not any of the consultants 25 retained by the financial manager are involved in the	Page 107 1 restructuring standpoint. Maybe Ernst & Young from a 2 financial standpoint. 3 Q. But that's not the -- that's not the -- the line of 4 folks we just discussed with regard to budgeting? 5 MR. CULLEN: Objection, foundation, form. 6 A. I'm not sure your question. 7 Q. Before the Emergency Manager was appointed when you 8 did budgeting, did you look at things in your budget 9 like what, for example, you would spend on solid 10 waste? 11 A. Yes. 12 Q. And did you consider in the budget whether or not 13 there were ways to save costs with things such as 14 solid waste? 15 A. Yes. 16 Q. Okay, and one of the things that you talked about 17 earlier was whether or not you could save money if you 18 outsourced? Without the City would save money by 19 outsourcing various function such as solid waste; 20 correct? 21 A. Correct. 22 Q. And one of the concerns you had was it appeared people 23 were reaching conclusions with regards to numbers 24 about those savings without having gone through an RFP 25 process first; is that correct?
Page 106 1 budgeting functions? 2 A. I'm sure they are. 3 Q. But you're not involved in those meetings? 4 A. No. 5 Q. And you don't get reports from those meetings? 6 A. No. 7 Q. You discussed earlier a conversation that you had with 8 Kriss around outsourcing. I believe that was with 9 regard to solid waste; is that correct? 10 A. Correct. 11 Q. And I believe you testified that one of the concerns 12 you had was that there was an estimated savings from 13 outsourcing that had been announced before RFPs had 14 gone out and the actual numbers had come in; is that 15 correct? 16 MR. CULLEN: Objection, foundation, form. 17 A. Maybe not before the proposals went out, but before 18 they came back in I think that number of 15 million 19 was out there. 20 Q. Since the appointment of the Emergency Manager, is 21 there somebody who's specifically looking at whether 22 or not outsourcing specific City functions would save 23 money for the City? 24 MR. CULLEN: Objection, foundation, form. 25 A. I think that would be Conway MacKenzie from a	Page 108 1 A. That would be correct. 2 Q. Okay. My question to you is who's the point person 3 now under the Emergency Manager who was looking at 4 these outsourcing issues? 5 A. I would assume it's somebody from Ernst & Young and 6 somebody from Conway MacKenzie. 7 Q. Do you have any -- have you had any conversations with 8 that person? 9 A. Neither, neither organization. 10 Q. From the period from November 2012 through March of 11 2013 did you have any discussions with anybody from 12 Lansing with regard to the ability to restructure 13 Detroit without the need to appoint an Emergency 14 Manager or an Emergency Financial Manager? 15 A. I think I made it clear to all of those that we were 16 in contact in Lansing that that was not the direction 17 that I supported. 18 Q. And did you -- did you have an opportunity to discuss 19 with the folks in Lansing your particular ideas with 20 regard to how to restructure or rehabilitate Detroit? 21 A. Yes, they had -- they had what we would call a -- we 22 gave them a lot of information in terms of department 23 by department what we thought we needed to do to 24 either create savings or generate some revenue from a 25 reorganization standpoint.

Page 109 1 Q. During the course of those discussions did you ever 2 have conversations with anybody in Lansing about the 3 prospect of filing a Chapter 9 without appointing an 4 Emergency Manager? 5 A. No. 6 Q. Did your plan or plans or any of the issues you 7 discussed include modifying vested pension benefits? 8 A. Yes. 9 Q. With whom did you have discussions with regard to 10 modifying vested pensions? 11 A. I had personally no discussion. I think the COO and 12 the CFO had those discussions, I believe probably with 13 Andy. 14 Q. Was there any discussion to your knowledge of how to 15 implement a change to vested pension benefits given 16 the Michigan State Constitution? 17 A. No. 18 Q. Did your plan or the plans that were adopted by you 19 include privatization? 20 A. Of? 21 Q. Anything. 22 A. I think we looked at privatization, yes. I mean, we 23 just talked about the DDOT, we just talked about PLD, 24 as two. 25 Q. So in connection with outsourcing or privatization did	Page 111 1 insurance to cover certain otherwise provided pension 2 benefits that are now lost? 3 MR. CULLEN: Objection, foundation, form, 4 asks for a legal conclusion. 5 A. I wouldn't know the answer to that. 6 Q. I'm asking your understanding. I'm going to try 7 again. 8 Do you understand that in a Chapter 11 9 corporate case if there's a defined pension benefit 10 plan that's terminated, the PBGC provides federal 11 insurance protection for the pension beneficiaries? 12 MR. CULLEN: Why don't you just ask him the 13 foundation question whether he has any understanding 14 about that whatsoever? 15 MS. LEVINE: I did. That's the start of 16 the question is -- is it his understanding. 17 MR. CULLEN: Well, that's not the rest of 18 the question, but I'll object to the form and the 19 foundation and you can address the question. 20 A. You have to ask me the question again I think. 21 Q. If the pension is terminated -- if Detroit's pension 22 is terminated, is there any federal program that 23 provides pension benefits for the retirees who have 24 now lost their benefits? 25 A. Not to my knowledge.
Page 110 1 your plan include a process for evaluating or valuing 2 whether or not there really truly would be savings to 3 the City as a result of that job loss? 4 A. Yes, that was done through the purchasing department. 5 Q. And what was your process for evaluating outsourcing? 6 A. I can't tell you the process. 7 Q. But did it include getting RFPs before you announced 8 what the purported savings would be? 9 A. Yes, yes. 10 Q. Did your plan include the sale of assets? 11 A. Some. 12 Q. And you discussed them previously with counsel? 13 A. Correct. 14 Q. So I won't do that again. 15 A. Correct. 16 Q. Did your plan include a loss of City jobs? 17 A. Yes. 18 Q. Do you recall how many? 19 A. I don't -- we -- I think it was a number of 1,500 jobs 20 in total. 21 Q. How many of those were nonuniform employees? 22 A. I don't know the answer to that. 23 Q. Do you understand that in a Chapter 11 corporate case 24 if a pension is terminated, the PBGC or the Pension 25 Benefit Guaranty Corp, provides federally provided	Page 112 1 Q. In a Chapter 11 case or in a bankruptcy case that 2 doesn't involve a municipality, is there a federal 3 program that provides benefits to pension 4 beneficiaries who've lost their benefit from a private 5 pension? 6 MR. CULLEN: Objection, foundation, form. 7 A. I wouldn't know the answer to that. 8 Q. In the plans that you discussed with Lansing what was 9 your understanding of how retirees were going to live 10 post restructuring if pension benefits were going to 11 be cut? 12 A. Never had that conversation. 13 Q. Did you have any input into the retention of 14 restructuring counsel for the City? 15 A. No. 16 Q. How did you learn that Jones Day was retained as the 17 City's restructuring counsel? 18 A. There was a meeting in the airport in the December 19 time frame of 2012. Representing the City was 20 Kriss Andrews and Jack Martin and they're the ones 21 that made me aware. 22 Q. Since November of 2012 have you had any conversations 23 with House Speaker Bolger with regard to Detroit's 24 financial issues? 25 A. No.

Page 113 1 Q. Any conversations with Randy Richardville? 2 A. I think I was up in Lansing and at that time it was 3 really trying to get the legislature to vote and pass 4 some legislation for the Lighting Authority and the 5 Regional Transportation Authority. 6 Q. And what were those conversations that you had with -- 7 A. We needed them to support it, because we were in dire 8 need of both. 9 Q. Did they agree to support it? 10 A. They did. The legislation was passed in December. 11 Q. Did that provide State assistance? 12 A. It's supposed to. That hasn't happened yet. 13 Q. What's your understanding why that hasn't happened 14 yet? 15 A. They had to get the Authorities' board together and 16 they've been working on that for a long time for both 17 authorities, but I think they're both in play right 18 now and they have both chosen the leadership for the 19 Regional Authority for Transportation as well as for 20 the Lighting Authority. 21 Q. Prior to the appointment of the Emergency Manager did 22 you have any involvement to trying to get access to 23 federal assistance for Detroit? 24 A. Absolutely. 25 Q. Since the appointment of the Emergency Manager do you	Page 115 1 A. Yes, I've met with our business community leadership, 2 I've met with most of our foundations and I think 3 because of that we've gotten the kind of support we've 4 gotten. 5 Q. Have you continued to have those discussions since the 6 appointment of the Emergency Manager? 7 A. Yes. For the record let me be specific about that. 8 MR. CULLEN: Always a bad idea, but go 9 ahead. 10 A. You know, I've been able to raise -- I raised 11 $8 million from our corporate community to assist us 12 with 100 police vehicles, with 23 brand-new fleet of 13 EMS vehicles. From the corporate and foundation 14 community, I've been able to generate $14 million to 15 keep our recreation and parks open. So -- and that's 16 been ongoing. So all of this was before the Emergency 17 Manager and since the Emergency Manager I've continued 18 to do that and will continue. 19 MS. LEVINE: If I can confer for a second. 20 THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We're off the record, 21 1:14. 22 (A brief recess was taken.) 23 THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Back on the record, 24 1:17. Go ahead. 25 MS. LEVINE: Thank you. Just a couple more
Page 114 1 continue to have involvement in trying to get federal 2 assistance for Detroit? 3 A. Absolutely. 4 Q. Who were you talking to before the appointment of the 5 Emergency Manager? 6 A. Three to four of the different secretaries under the 7 Obama administration. 8 Q. And who have you been talking to since the appointment 9 of the Emergency Manager? 10 A. The same ones, except now there's a new department, 11 there's a new Secretary of Transportation. 12 Q. Prior to the appointment of the Emergency Manager did 13 you have any discussions other than what we've just 14 been talking about with anybody in Lansing with regard 15 to assistance for Detroit? 16 A. Yes. We have talked -- I mean, I've had ongoing 17 conversations with the Treasurer as well as the 18 Governor. 19 Q. Have you continued those discussions post the 20 appointment of the Emergency Manager? 21 A. No. 22 Q. Prior to the appointment of the Emergency Manager did 23 you have any discussions with anybody about accessing 24 private or not-for-profit assistance to help with the 25 financial issues in Detroit?	Page 116 1 questions. 2 BY MS. LEVINE: 3 Q. We've had some discussion with regard to quoting 4 potential savings from outsourcing without RFPs having 5 gone out. To your knowledge as we sit here today have 6 RFPs -- have any RFPs gone out and come back? 7 A. Not to -- not to my knowledge. I'm not involved in it 8 anymore and I know there's a concern from our 9 purchasing department that the process isn't being -- 10 they got a process that's not being followed. 11 Q. And as we sit here today, is it your understanding 12 that that concern persists? 13 A. Yes. 14 Q. And that's part of the discussion we had earlier where 15 you just hear things in the hall? 16 A. Yes. 17 Q. Is it your understanding that Miller Buckfire has been 18 retained by the City? 19 A. Yes. 20 Q. When were they retained? 21 A. I think they may have been retained back in the 22 December/January time frame. 23 Q. Were they retained as a restructuring professional? 24 A. I think they were as the bank -- the corporate bank 25 representing the City.

1 Q. Did you hire them?
 2 A. No.
 3 Q. Who retained them?
 4 A. I think -- once again, most of these companies were 5 being -- they were being pressed by the -- we were
 6 pressed by the State to my understanding, the State
 7 had a lot of input into the selection process and in 8 some cases where the City has a responsibility for 9 paying part of the fees, you know, I've always had a 10 problem that I was not at the table to participate in 11 the selection process.
 12 Q. Do you pay part of the fees for Miller Buckfire?
 13 A. Yes.
 14 Q. Does the State pay part of the fees for Miller
 15 Buckfire?
 16 A. Yes.
 17 Q. Does the NERD Fund pay part of the fees for Miller
 18 Buckfire?
 19 A. I wouldn't know that.
 20 Q. Do you have a copy of Miller Buckfire's retention or 21 engagement letter?
 22 A. I would think we have that. I don't -- I don't have 23 it personally, but I would think we do in the purchase
 24 department and maybe in the law department.
 25 MS. LEVINE: We would request a copy of

Page 118

1 that letter. I know that there's been a lot of 2 documents that have been produced but we didn't happen
 3 to see what in there so we would make that specific 4 request.
 5 MR. GREEN: And if I may add the 2012
 6 engagement letter from Miller Buckfire as well. I
 7 understand they were initially engaged the prior year.
 8 There may be two engagement letters.
 9 MR. MOSS: Please put that in a letter so
 10 we make sure we get it part of the record. We'll take 11 a look.
 12 MS. LEVINE: So the request will be for any 13 engagement letters or contracts with Miller Buckfire
 14 and we'll clarify that.
 15 Q. During the deposition last week with Treasurer Dillon
 16 he made a reference to a report with regard to certain 17 tax write-offs or uncollected taxes. Are you familiar 18 with that?
 19 A. No, I'm not. Not specifically.
 20 Q. Are you familiar with any issue with regard to 21 potential tax write-offs where the taxes could have 22 been collected?
 23 MR. CULLEN: Objection, foundation, form.
 24 A. No, I'm not. You know, we've got uncollected taxes
 25 that go back ten, 12 years, and so prior

Page 119

1 administrations in my -- in my perspective a lot of
 2 that should have been written off a long time ago but
 3 they've been carrying it on books and I just think
 4 that's the wrong approach.
 5 Q. Under your administration were -- how many -- how much
 6 did you write-off in what you believe to be 7 uncollected taxes?
 8 A. I'm not sure of that. I would have to get with the 9 CFO.
 10 Q. Do you have an approximate number?
 11 A. No, I don't.
 12 MS. LEVINE: I don't have anything further.
 13 Thank you.
 14 THE WITNESS: Thank you.
 15 MR. GREEN: No, I don't have any questions.
 16 MR. CULLEN: We don't need the Pistons
 17 question on the record?
 18 MR. ESSAD: No.
 19 MR. CULLEN: Thank you very much.
 20 THE VIDEOGRAPHER: This completes the 21 deposition. We're off the record, 1:22.

Chapter 9

Case No. 13-53846

Hon. Steven W. Rhodes

Notice Regarding Briefing on "Good Faith Negotiations"

Parties to the eligibility trial are invited to file briefs on: (1) whether the case law that addresses good faith negotiation under 11 U.S.C. §§ 1113 and 1114, and in labor law, should apply when determining eligibility under 11 U.S.C. § 109(c), and (2) if so, how that case law suggests that the issue should be resolved in this case. The briefs shall be filed by November 13, 2013, and shall not exceed 8 pages. No extensions of that limit will be granted.

AFSCME'S SUPPLEMENTAL BRIEF REGARDING ELIGIBILITY

Pursuant to this Court’s Order Regarding Further Briefing On Eligibility [Docket No. 1217], AFSCME submits this supplemental brief. The guiding principle of AFSCME’s arguments is: whether the state constitution by PA 436 or the federal constitution by chapter 9, legislation cannot rewrite or violate a constitution. The City fails to meet the eligibility requirements because this chapter 9 filing violates both the state and federal constitutions generally and as applied in this case, including by seeking to impair or diminish vested pension benefits. This Court should not allow the challenges facing a distressed municipality, however daunting, to be solved by violating fundamentally protected constitutional rights.¹

I. STATE CONSTITUTIONAL PENSION RIGHTS ARE NON-DISCHARGEABLE RIGHTS NOT PRE-EMPTED BY THE CODE

Because the Pensions Clause creates a constitutional right, not a statutory priority, chapter 9 does not preempt it. Instead, this constitutional right renders the City’s accrued pension obligations non-dischargeable. Even where a state law not enshrined in a state constitution advances “an essential state interest,” the Bankruptcy Code “must be clear and manifest” if it is “[t]o displace” the state law. BFP v. Resolution Trust Corp., 511 U.S. 531, 545 (1994). “[W]here the intent to override” state law “is doubtful, our federal system demands deference to long-established traditions of state regulation.” Id. at 546.

First, no provision in chapter 9 preempts state constitutional rights, let alone the right to accrued public pensions, which have long been subject to state regulation. To the contrary, chapter 9 explicitly protects state law. See, e.g., 11 U.S.C. §§ 109(c)(2), 903, and 943(b)(4). Most important, a chapter 9 bankruptcy is impossible without state consent. As a result, chapter

9 cannot preempt state constitutional rights where, as here, that consent is given by state statute. For even assuming arguendo that “a state’s authorization . . . is a declaration of state policy that the benefits of Chapter 9 take precedence over control of its municipalities” and that therefore state statutes conflicting with chapter 9 are made inapposite once a state authorizes a municipal bankruptcy, In re City of Vallejo, 432 B.R. 262, 268 (E.D. Cal. 2010), state legislatures lack the power to declare by statute that state policy takes precedence over the higher authority of the state constitution. Rather than preempt state constitutional rights, chapter 9 requires that state constitutional rights be honored at the outset as a condition of authorization under Section 109(c)(2), as a mechanism of state control under Section 903, and as a limit on the terms of the plan under Section 943(b)(4).

For this reason, Matter of Sanitary & Imp. Dist. No. 7, 98 B.R. 970 (Bankr. D. Neb. 1989), does not support the proposition that the City can impair its constitutional pension obligations through chapter 9. The issue there was whether Nebraska statutes, not the Nebraska constitution, which “grant a priority of payment in favor of bonds over warrants” applied in chapter 9. 98 B.R. at 973. The bankruptcy was authorized by a state statute. See id. at 971 (citing Neb. Rev. Stat. Section 77–2419). The court’s holding that state priorities could be overcome in bankruptcy merely allowed the state authorization statute to trump the state priority statute. State statutes routinely trump one another, and state legislatures are free to rewrite their own statutes as a matter of legislative prerogative. But a state legislature cannot, by merely passing a statute, rewrite the state constitution. Likewise, the Michigan legislature cannot authorize municipal bankruptcy by passing PA 436 and thereby rewrite the Pensions Clause, let alone write the Pension Clause out of the Michigan Constitution.

Second, the Supreme Court clearly instructed that “the federal bankruptcy court should take whatever steps are necessary to ensure that” a creditor is “afforded in federal bankruptcy court the same protection he would have under state law if no bankruptcy had ensued.” Butner v. United States, 440 U.S. 48, 56 (1979). Under Michigan law, an AFSCME retiree’s constitutional right, as distinct from a statutory priority, provides that accrued pension “shall not be diminished or impaired,” “shall be funded during” the year in which they “arise,” and “shall not be used for financing unfunded accrued liabilities.” The Constitution thus provides not a mine-run contract right, but an absolute guarantee of non-reduction and affirmative funding. See AFSCME Am. Elig. Obj. ¶¶ 119-20, 138-43. Butner further holds that the Code should not “afford . . . rights that are not” available “as a matter of state law.” Id. Allowing pension rights expressly protected from reduction or non-funding to be discharged as unsecured claims would operate to convert a constitutional right to a claim on par with other unsecured creditors, thereby creating a right of equal treatment for other non-pension creditors they would not have outside of bankruptcy because the Pensions Clause is stronger than the Contracts Clause. See AFSCME Am. Elig. Obj. ¶¶138-43. This result would violate the Code by allowing other non-pension creditors to receive “a windfall merely by reason of the happenstance of bankruptcy.” Id. at 55.

Third, not only should the rights created by the Pensions Clause survive bankruptcy under Butner because they are constitutional rights rather than statutory priorities, but separately, the Pensions Clause is an exercise of the right to enact “state or local laws designed to protect public health or safety” which cannot be disregarded by the debtor. Midlantic Nat’l Bank v. New Jersey Dep’t of Env. Protection, 474 U.S. 494, 502 (1986). In Midlantic, the Supreme Court held that a bankruptcy trustee’s power to abandon property of the estate under chapter 11 did not include the power to violate state or local environmental protection laws because “the efforts of the trustee to marshal and distribute the assets of the estate must yield to the governmental interest in public health and safety.” Id. Even a liquidating debtor cannot ignore state disposal requirements if doing so would create a public “hazard with no one clearly responsible for remedial action.” In re Wall Tube & Metal Prods. Co., 831 F.2d 118, 122 (6th Cir. 1987).

If the City cannot dump its toxic waste in violation of state law, surely it cannot put its elderly pensioners in harm’s way by taking away their only source of income and violating their constitutional rights. For just as this “Bankruptcy Court does not have the power to authorize an abandonment without formulating conditions that will adequately protect the public’s health and safety” from environmental danger, Midlantic, 474 U.S. at 507, this Court does not have the power to authorize cuts to vested pension rights which the Michigan Constitution recognizes as sacrosanct and not protected by federal government insurance. Until this Court holds conclusively that the state is responsible for the accrued pensions in full (or another funding source is provided by agreement), the Bankruptcy Code will not allow abandonment of this constitutional obligation.

II. CHAPTER 9 VIOLATES THE U.S. CONSTITUTION REGARDLESS OF WHO TECHNICALLY “IMPAIRS” CONTRACT RIGHTS

For three reasons, the City’s argument that chapter 9 is constitutional because the federal government, not the state, technically orders the impairment is flawed.

First, chapter 9 unconstitutionally permits the federal government to consent to a state impairment of contracts. Article I, Section 10, which contains the Contracts Clause, has three paragraphs. The second and third paragraphs prohibit states from taking certain acts “without the consent of Congress.” The first, in contrast, contains a wholesale prohibition on defined state actions, including, along with the impairment of contracts, printing money and the entering into of any treaty, alliance, or confederation, with no exception for federal consent.

The plain language of Article I, Section 10 therefore makes clear that Congress cannot pass a law consenting to an impairment of contracts by the state. Supreme Court case law supporting this interpretation is found in Rhode Island v. Massachusetts, 37 U.S. 657 (1838), where the Supreme Court held that it had original jurisdiction over a boundary controversy between states. Reaching that holding required the Court to analyze Article I, Section 10. The Supreme Court interpreted the “first clause” as “a positive prohibition against any state” taking certain actions, and stated conclusively that “no power under the government could make such an act valid, or dispense with the constitutional prohibition.” 37 U.S. at 724-25. The Court thus left no doubt that Article I, Section 10, Clause 1 does not allow an end-run of state contracts.

The plan approval process in chapter 9 constitutes such unconstitutional federal consent. State and municipal actors take all the major steps on the road to debt adjustment: specific legal authorization of chapter 9, filing of the petition, and proposal of the plan. See 11 U.S.C. §§ 109(c)(2) & 941. Only then does the federal bankruptcy court provide consent – and violate the Contracts Clause – by confirming a plan proposed by the municipality. See 11 U.S.C. § 943(b).

This issue is a question of first impression on which this Court is not bound by precedent. Any comments in Justice Cardozo’s dissent in Ashton are not precedent binding this Court. See, e.g., United States v. Jahns, 2012 WL 928725, at *6 (N.D. Ohio Mar. 19, 2012) (“Dissenting Supreme Court opinions are not binding precedent.”). While the City points to language in Bekins which it claims “zeroes in on that they’re dealing with this particular issue,” Tr. 10/15/13 at 157:12-13, in fact Bekins identified the sole issue decided in that section of the opinion: “whether the exercise of the federal bankruptcy power in dealing with the composition of the debts of the [municipality], upon its voluntary application and with the State’s consent, must be deemed to be an unconstitutional interference with the essential independence of the State as preserved by the Constitution.” 304 U.S. at 49. Thus, the Bekins Court reconsidered the federalism holding from Ashton, nothing more.

Second, even assuming arguendo (and, AFSCME submits, incorrectly) that chapter 9 only involves state consent to federal impairment, Bekins is no longer good law. Asbury Park and the Court's federalism jurisprudence since New York render Bekins inapposite because chapter 9 unconstitutionally allows a state to lose sovereign powers by consent.

Both the Court's decision in Bekins and Justice Cardozo's dissent in Ashton hinged on two since-disproven notions: (1) that "composition of debts . . . was not available under state law" due to the Contracts Clause, Bekins, 304 U.S. at 54; and (2) that "dispensing with the consent of the state" would render a federal municipal bankruptcy law "a dislocation of that balance between the powers of the states and the powers of the central government which is essential to our federal system." Ashton, 298 U.S. at 538 (Cardozo, J., dissenting). See also Bekins, 304 U.S. at 51-52 ("It is of the essence of sovereignty to be able to make contracts and give consents bearing upon the exertion of governmental power.")

As we know from Asbury Park, the first assumption is not true because "the necessity compelled by unexpected financial conditions to modify an original arrangement for discharging a city's debt is implied in every such obligation." 316 U.S. at 511. Thus, although the Contracts Clause continues to apply as a limit on the precise features of "a state insolvency act," id. at 513, such acts are allowed under the Constitution as an exercise of a state's "autonomous regulation" of the "peculiarly local" problem of "the fiscal management of its own household." Id. at 509.

The second assumption is untrue because in New York the Supreme Court made clear that state consent cannot enlarge the powers of Congress. AFSCME Am. Elig. Obj. ¶¶ 82-84. As noted, both Justice Cardozo's dissent in Ashton and the Court's opinion in Bekins assumed that state consent was precisely what was required to "remove the obstacle," 304 U.S. at 52, and extend the power of municipal bankruptcy legislation to Congress. But this enlargement of federal power is what New York forbids – the incursion into the sovereign powers of another branch of government by the consent of that branch. The Bekins Court apparently tolerated that incursion because it thought the City “was powerless” to adjust debts under state law and therefore acted “in aid, and not in derogation, of its sovereign powers” by consenting to federal bankruptcy. 304 U.S. at 54. Since Asbury Park made clear that the City is not so powerless, state consent to federal control in chapter 9 is an encroachment on a sovereign power and therefore is unconstitutional under New York.

Third and in the alternative, further assuming arguendo (and, AFSCME submits, incorrectly) both that chapter 9 does not violate the constitutional prohibition on federal consent to state impairment and that Bekins is still good law, chapter 9 as amended violates the only remaining reasonable reading of Bekins consistent with the subsequently decided Asbury Park because use of a state municipal debt adjustment scheme requiring less than 100% creditor consent must be a remedy available to states. At the very least, therefore, the federal municipal bankruptcy statute ceased to be constitutional four years after Asbury Park when Congress amended it to deny states the sovereign right to adjust the debts of their own municipalities with less than 100% creditor consent, which is still the law today under Section 903(1).

If a municipality is so insolvent that it has no choice but to adjust its debts, Section 903(1) unconstitutionally forces it to reach 100% creditor consent and effectively compels it to resort to chapter 9. Doing so likewise forces the municipality to enlist its officers in designing a plan of adjustment according to federal rules and policies rather than different state rules and policies which might otherwise have been available under state insolvency law passed consistent with Asbury Park – for, as the City observed, Section 903(1) constitutes a “prohibition on competing state municipal schemes.” Tr. 10/15/13 at 161:12-13. Congress’s attempt to coerce states into chapter 9 regardless of their desire to manage their affairs differently constitutes “overreaching in violation of the Tenth Amendment.” 16 Collier’s on Bankruptcy P 903.03[2].

The City’s counterargument that the Code’s prohibition on competing state municipal schemes represents “recognition that they’re not possible or workable” and that therefore Congress could not have “coerced anybody,” Tr. 10/15/13 at 161:12-13. 22, is inaccurate. The House “favored” amending the statute to revive states’ rights under Asbury Park in order to provide for “the availability of state composition proceedings as a less drastic alternative than bankruptcy,” but the Senate “opposed” the House “in the interest of national uniformity,” and “[t]he Senate’s view ultimately prevailed[.]” 16 Collier on Bankruptcy § P 903.LH[2]. This attempt to undo Asbury Park to deny to States an “alternative” to chapter 9 was unconstitutional coercion. See Dickerson v. United States, 530 U.S. 428, 437 (2000) (“Congress may not legislatively supersede our decisions interpreting and applying the Constitution.”).

III. SECTION 109(C)(2) APPLIES A STATE LAW STANDARD AND BECAUSE PA 436 VIOLATES THE STATE CONSTITUTION THEREFORE THE CITY IS NOT ELIGIBLE FOR CHAPTER 9

As a threshold matter, because the state-law-authorization eligibility requirement in Section 109(c)(2) refers explicitly to “State law,” every court to consider the issue has correctly held that Section 109(c)(2) is “governed by a state rule of decision.” In re City of Stockton, 475 B.R. 720, 728-29 (Bankr. E.D. Cal. 2012) (collecting cases). An analogy between Section 109(c)(2) and the Supreme Court’s 11th Amendment sovereign immunity jurisprudence confirms this result for two reasons. First, under Palmer v. Ohio, 248 U.S. 32 (1918), the question of whether a state has waived sovereign immunity by passing a state law remains a question of state, not federal, law. See Lee-Thomas v. Prince George’s County Public Schools, 666 F.3d

244, 249-50 (4th Cir. 2012). Second, cases which have used a federal standard when deciding whether the state has waived sovereign immunity in other circumstances are distinguishable because the 11th Amendment, unlike Section 109(c)(2), does not explicitly refer to state law.

The State suggests that under its interpretation of the Michigan Constitution, the State could pass a law granting to the Governor the right to pick the mayor of Detroit. Tr. 10/16/13 at 14:8-12. But if, as the State contends, “[i]t’s not too simplistic” to say that the City “sets its own form of government through its charter unless the state dictates otherwise through its legislation,” Tr. 10/16/13 at 13:7-14, then the need for a home rule provision in the Constitution vanishes; local government could simply be governed by statute. However, it remains a bedrock principle of Michigan constitutional law that the Legislature cannot select the mayor of Detroit, or any other local representative. Any power the Legislature may have to amend the powers of local governments does not extend to the ability to appoint the EM because the legislature at most defines what powers the elected government has but not who will exercise those powers. As the Michigan Supreme Court has held, the Michigan Constitution incorporates the holdings of the Cooley Court establishing “the importance of elected representatives in any scheme of local government.” Brouwer, 377 Mich. at 653. At the local level, “while the people are suffered to go through the forms of an election, there shall not rest in some authority at a distance, the power to deprive the election of any valuable significance.” Id. (citation omitted). Local voters have the right to elect local officials, and the State cannot substitute unelected persons in their stead.

The State next argues that PA 436 “allows the emergency manager to simply execute the same executive powers that the elected officials of the community would have” and that therefore, because he is a local official as opposed to a state official, the Legislature has simply delegated to the EM the same powers it has delegated to the local government Tr. 10/16/13 at 16:21-23. The State argues that the EM can execute local power because he is a local official, not a state official, and thus the EM is delegated the same powers delegated to the local government. This argument fails for two reasons. First, the EM is a state official, not a local official. See AFSCME Am. Elig. Obj. ¶173. Second and regardless, the Legislature lacks the power to delegate local authority because under Article IV, Section 29 local authority already belongs to the local electors –inherently, with nothing left to delegate. See AFSCME Am. Elig. Obj. ¶ 151. The State unconstitutionally delegated this power without any state law standards to guide the EM during bankruptcy. Because local authority derives from the local electors, the State incorrectly suggests that the EM “is guided by the same standards that would have applied to the local officials when they were exercising that power.” Tr. 10/16/13 at 17:14-16. For if the Mayor or City Council take actions in bankruptcy which the people of Detroit dislike, the people of Detroit who elected them can vote them out of office. Not so for the EM.

CONCLUSION

AFSCME respectfully requests that this Court issue an order dismissing the City’s chapter 9 petition, or, in the alternative, ensuring that accrued pension benefits protected by Article IX, Section 24 of the Michigan Constitution are not endangered by this bankruptcy.

CITY OF DETROIT'S SUPPLEMENTAL BRIEF IN SUPPORT OF ENTRY OF AN ORDER FOR RELIEF

The City of Detroit (the "City") respectfully submits this supplemental brief in support of the entry of an Order for Relief¹ in this chapter 9 case and in response to supplemental briefs (each, a "Supplemental Brief") filed by certain Objectors.

I. PA 436 Does Not Violate Art. II, § 9 of the Michigan Constitution

The Objectors suggest that PA 436 violates Article 2, Section 9 of the Michigan Constitution because it is allegedly a "contrive[d] mechanism[] designed specifically to 'thwart' the referral process." See, e.g., RDPMA Supplemental Brief, at 8-9.² This assertion is unwarranted.

Under Michigan law, the motives of the Michigan legislature in passing PA 436 (or any provision thereof) are irrelevant to an inquiry into the statute's constitutionality. Michigan United Conservation Clubs v. Secretary of State, 630 N.W.2d 297 (Mich. 2001), is instructive on this point. Concurring with the Michigan United majority's reversal of the Court of Appeals' holding that a statute including an appropriations provision was nevertheless subject to referendum, Chief Justice Corrigan observed that the Legislature's subjective motivation for making a $1,000,000 appropriation ... – assuming one can be accurately identified – is irrelevant. Intervening defendant contends that ... the "purpose" of the appropriation ... was to evade a referendum. This argument is misplaced. This Court has repeatedly held that courts must not be concerned with the alleged motives of a legislative body in enacting a law, but only with the end result – the actual language of the legislation....

² A related argument offered by the RDPMA – that PA 436 is ineffective and violates Article 2, Section 9 by virtue of having been enacted by the State legislature prior to having been approved by a majority of the Michigan voters – improperly assumes an identity between the rejected PA 4 and PA 436 and is easily dispatched. Unlike PA 4, PA 436 has never been the subject of a referendum pursuant to Article 2, Section 9, and cannot be the target of such power. Voter approval of PA 436 was not a prerequisite to the effectiveness thereof. Likewise, Objectors identify no constitutional prohibition against PA 436's passage solely because it addressed subject matter similar to the recently-rejected PA 4 and none should be implied.

[T]o make legislation depend upon motives would render all statute law uncertain.... Therefore the courts do not permit a question of improper legislative motives to be raised, but they will in every instance assume that the motives were public and befitting the station. They will also assume that the legislature had before it any evidence necessary to enable it to take the action it did take.

Mich. United, 630 N.W.2d at 298-99 (Corrigan, C.J., concurring) (quoting Cooley, Constitutional Law, pp. 154-55).³ The Michigan Supreme Court has made clear that, if the State's citizens believe its legislators to have been improperly motivated, their recourse is not the judiciary, but the constitutional powers of referendum and initiative and the ballot box. See, e.g., Houston, 810 N.W.2d at 256 ("[I]t is the responsibility of the democratic, and representative, processes of government to check what the people may view as political or partisan excess by their Legislature."); Mich. United, 630 N.W.2d at 298 (emphasizing that "the intervening defendant retains a direct remedy, the initiative process. Under our state constitution, this remedy is available even when the Legislature has made an appropriation....").⁴

Even if Michigan law did not prohibit an inquiry into the motivations of Michigan's legislators (which it does), the evidence does not demonstrate that the State included appropriations provisions in PA 436 for the sole purpose of improperly insulating the legislation from referendum. The RDPMA's citation to the deposition testimony of Howard Ryan, the State's Rule 30(b)(6) witness, shows only that (A) the appropriations provision was included in the legislation at an early stage in its development and (B) that PA 436 was intended to provide the State with options in the event of a municipal financial emergency should PA 4 be rejected. See RDPMA Supplemental Brief, at 4-5. There is nothing in the testimony cited by the RDPMA that suggests – much less that demonstrates – that such provisions were included for the allegedly improper purpose of frustrating

⁴ Consideration of the evidentiary challenges inherent in the attempt to divine a legislature's motivations demonstrates that the Michigan Supreme Court's long-standing rule against such attempts is well-founded. For example, it would be essentially impossible for a court to determine the intentions of the sundry legislators in each of the legislature's two houses involved in a bill's passage. Even if such a determination were possible, the court would be charged with determining whose intent was relevant (the majority's? a majority of the majority?) and possibly whether such intent was the legislators' sole or even primary motivation. See Houston, 810 N.W.2d at 256 ("[T]his Court possesses no special capacity, and there are no legal standards, by which to assess the political propriety of actions undertaken by the legislative branch.").

Article 2, Section 9.⁵ Mr. Ryan is not a State legislator and, thus, did not vote on the bill, nor could he divine the intent of each legislator that voted on the bill.⁶

Moreover, the inclusion of appropriations provisions in PA 436 is simply irrelevant to an inquiry into the constitutionality of the statute. The inclusion of appropriation provisions may be relevant to a frustrated attempt to subject legislation to the referendum process. See Mich. United, 630 N.W.2d at 299-300 (Young, J., concurring) (describing an unsuccessful attempt to subject legislation to referendum). Yet even a successful challenge to the inclusion of such provisions would not render the legislation unconstitutional; it would merely render it subject to referendum. Where no such challenge has been made and no referendum process ever initiated (as is the case with PA 436), there is no practical, much less constitutional, consequence to the inclusion of such provisions.

Accordingly, PA 436 does not violate Article 2, Section 9 of the Michigan Constitution and the City's satisfaction of section 109(c)(2) of the Bankruptcy Code cannot be undermined by the circumstances of PA 436's passage.

II. Bekins Confirms That Impairment of Municipal Contractual Obligations is Effected by the Bankruptcy Court

Numerous Objectors – concerned that the Pensions Clause's prohibition on impairment of pension obligations "[]by" the State would not apply to potential impairments of such obligations pursuant to a plan of adjustment – contest the proposition that any impairment of the City's various contractual obligations in this chapter 9 case will be effected not by the City or the State, but by the federal government through the Court. E.g., AFSCME Supplemental Brief, at 4-8; Retiree Associations Supplemental Brief, at 7-8. Yet the United States Supreme Court in United States v. Bekins, 304 U.S. 27 (1938), made clear that it is federal, and not state, power being exercised. Citing the legislative history of former Chapter X of the Bankruptcy Act (the predecessor to chapter 9), the Bekins court identified the dilemma confronting "taxing agencies" (i.e., Chapter X's version of "municipality") in the absence of federal relief: an inability to pay their debts on one hand and the lack of recourse to state municipal debt adjustment regimes forbidden by the Contracts Clause on the other. "There is no hope for relief through statutes enacted by the States, because the Constitution forbids the passing of State laws impairing the obligations of existing contracts. Therefore, relief must come from Congress, if at all." Bekins, 304 U.S. at 51 (citing S. Rep. No. 911, 75th Cong., 1st Sess.)

(emphasis added).

Chapter X resolved this dilemma:

In the instant case we have cooperation to provide a remedy for a serious condition in which the States alone were unable to afford relief.... The natural and reasonable remedy through composition of the debts of the district was not available under State law by reason of the restriction imposed by the Federal Constitution upon the impairment of contracts by state legislation. The bankruptcy power is competent to give relief to debtors in such a plight.... Through [the State's] cooperation with the national government the needed relief is given.

Id. at 53-54. Thus, Bekins confirms that, through consenting to the filing of a municipality's bankruptcy petition, a State that is constitutionally forbidden from impairing a municipality's improvident contracts nevertheless may allow such municipality to obtain relief from the entity that is empowered to impair such contracts: the federal government, acting through the bankruptcy court.

That federal power is exercised to impair municipal contracts in bankruptcy was likewise recognized in Justice Cardozo's dissent in Ashton v. Cameron County Improvement District No. 1, 298 U.S. 513 (1936), which dissent was joined by three of the Justices in the Bekins majority, including Chief Justice Hughes, the author of Bekins.

The Act does not authorize the states to impair through their own laws the obligation of existing contracts. Any interference by the states is remote and indirect.... If contracts are impaired, the tie is cut or loosened through the action of the court of bankruptcy approving a plan of composition under the authority of federal law. There, and not beyond in an ascending train of antecedents, is the cause of the impairment to which the law will have regard. Impairment by the central government through laws concerning bankruptcies is not forbidden by the Constitution. Impairment is not forbidden unless effected by the states themselves. No change in obligation results from the filing of a petition by one seeking a discharge, whether a public or a private corporation invokes the jurisdiction. The court, not the petitioner, is the efficient cause of the release.

Ashton, 298 U.S. at 541-42 (Cardozo, J., dissenting) (citations omitted). This rationale would be adopted by the Bekins majority just two years later in confirming the constitutionality of chapter 9's predecessor. Accordingly, longstanding Supreme Court precedent confirms that it is the federal – and not state – government that impairs contractual obligations in chapter 9, and the Objectors' arguments to the contrary must be rejected.

III. The Pensions Clause Enjoys No Special Status in Chapter 9

The Objectors contend that the constitutional status of the Pensions Clause renders it qualitatively different than mere state statutory law and, thus, insulates it from pre-emption by the federal Bankruptcy Code. See AFSCME Supplemental Brief, at 2. The Objectors, however, offer no citation that might support their differentiation of one form of state law from another for pre-emption purposes. Indeed, as demonstrated in the City's prior briefing, far from being forbidden, the pre-emption of state constitutional law – notably, the various state contracts clauses – is a commonplace in municipal bankruptcies. See Ass'n of Retired Emps. v. City of Stockton (In re City of Stockton), 478 B.R. 8, 16 (Bankr. E.D. Cal. 2012) ("The federal bankruptcy power also, by operation of the Supremacy Clause, trumps the similar contracts clause in the California state constitution.").

The Pensions Clause similarly establishes no special priority for claims for pension underfunding. It merely establishes that such claims are contractual obligations of the State. Accordingly, arguments that claims for underfunding require separate classification under a plan of adjustment or that such claims should be exempted from discharge (see Retirement Systems' Supplemental Brief, at 6-8), in addition to being premature and irrelevant to a determination of eligibility, should be rejected.

Finally, multiple Objectors (see, e.g., AFSCME Supplemental Brief, at 3-4) identify the Supreme Court's decision in Midlantic National Bank v. New Jersey Department of Environmental Protection, 474 U.S. 494 (1986), as a source of protection for rights created by the Pensions Clause, which are characterized as necessary to public health and safety. The Objectors offer no citation in support of the proposition that the impairment of monetary claims implicates public health and safety, and the City's research has uncovered none. Accordingly, this argument must be rejected.

For the foregoing reasons, and those set forth in the Prior Submissions and City Pre-Trial Brief, the Court should enter an Order for Relief in this case.

I. Summary of Opinion

For the reason stated herein, the Court finds that the City of Detroit has established that it meets the requirements of 11 U.S.C. § 109(c). Accordingly, the Court finds that the City may be a debtor under chapter 9 of the bankruptcy code. The Court will enter an order for relief under chapter 9.

Specifically, the Court finds that:

- The City of Detroit is a “municipality” as defined in 11 U.S.C. § 101(40).
- The City was specifically authorized to be a debtor under chapter 9 by a governmental officer empowered by State law to authorize the City to be a debtor under chapter 9.
- The City is “insolvent” as defined in 11 U.S.C. § 101(32)(C).
- The City desires to effect a plan to adjust its debts.
- The City did not negotiate in good faith with creditors but was not required to because such negotiation was impracticable.

The Court further finds that the City filed the petition in good faith and that therefore the petition is not subject to dismissal under 11 U.S.C. § 921(c).

The Court concludes that it has jurisdiction over this matter under 28 U.S.C. § 1334(a), and that the matter is a core proceeding under 28 U.S.C. § 157(b)(2).

II. Introduction to the Eligibility Objections

The matter is before the Court on the parties’ objections to the eligibility of the City of Detroit to be a debtor in this chapter 9 case under 11 U.S.C. § 109(c).

A. The Process

By order dated August 2, 2013, the Court set a deadline of August 19, 2013 for parties to file objections to eligibility. (Dkt. #280) That order also allowed the Official Committee of Retirees, then in formation, to file eligibility objections 14 days after it retained counsel.

One hundred nine parties filed timely objections to the City's eligibility to file this bankruptcy case under § 109 of the bankruptcy code. In addition, two individuals, Hassan Aleem and Carl Williams, filed an untimely joint objection, but upon motion, the Court determined that these objections should be considered timely. (Dkt. #821, ¶ VIII, at 7) Accordingly, the total number of objections to be considered is 110.

In pursuing their eligibility objections, the parties represented by attorneys filed over 50 briefs through several rounds.

Because the constitutionality of chapter 9 was drawn into question, the Court certified the matter to the Attorney General of the United States under 28 U.S.C. § 2403(a), and permitted the United States to intervene. (Dkt. #642 at 7) The United States then filed a brief in support of the constitutionality of chapter 9 (Dkt. #1149) and a supplemental brief (Dkt. #1560).

Also, because the constitutionality of a state statute was drawn into question, the Court certified the matter to the Michigan Attorney General under 28 U.S.C. § 2403(b), and permitted the State of Michigan to intervene. The Michigan Attorney General filed a "Statement Regarding The Michigan Constitution And The Bankruptcy Of The City Of Detroit." (Dkt. #481) He also filed a brief regarding eligibility (Dkt. #756) and a supplemental response (Dkt. #1085).

In an effort to organize and expedite its consideration of these objections, the Court entered an "Order Regarding Eligibility Objections" on August 26, 2013 (Dkt. #642) and a "First Amended Order Regarding Eligibility Objections" on September 12, 2013 (Dkt. #821). Those orders divided the objections into two groups - those filed by parties with an attorney, which were, generally, organized groups (group A), and those filed by individuals, mostly without an attorney (group B). Individuals without an attorney (group B) filed 93 objections. The remaining 17 objections were filed by parties with an attorney. The objections filed by attorneys were then further divided between objections raising only legal issues and objections that require the resolution of genuine issues of material fact.¹

The Second Amended Final Pre-Trial Order concisely identifies which parties assert which objections. (Dkt. #1647 at 4-11) This opinion will not repeat that recitation.

B. Objections Filed by Individuals Without an Attorney

On September 19, 2013, the Court held a hearing at which the individuals who filed timely objections without an attorney had an opportunity to address the Court. At that hearing, 45 individuals addressed the Court. These objections are discussed in Part V, below.

C. Objections That Raise Only Legal Issues

On October 15 and 16, 2013, the Court heard arguments on the objections that raised only legal issues. These objections are addressed in Parts VII-XII, below. Summarily stated, these objections are:

1. Chapter 9 of the bankruptcy code violates the United States Constitution.
2. The bankruptcy court does not have the authority to determine the constitutionality of chapter 9 of the bankruptcy code.

¹ In their many briefs, some parties narrowly focused their arguments in support of their objections. Other parties, however, asserted an expansive range and number of more creative arguments in support of their objections. This opinion may not address every argument made in every brief. Nevertheless, the Court is satisfied that this opinion does address every argument that is worthy of serious consideration. To the extent an argument is not addressed in this opinion, it is overruled.

3. Public Act 436 of 2012 violates the Michigan Constitution and therefore the City was not validly authorized to file this bankruptcy case as required for eligibility by 11 U.S.C. § 109(c)(2).

4. The bankruptcy court does not have the authority to determine the constitutionality of P.A. 436.

5. Detroit's emergency manager is not an elected official and therefore did not have valid authority to file this bankruptcy case, as required for eligibility by 11 U.S.C. § 109(c)(2).

6. Because the governor's authorization to file this bankruptcy case did not prohibit the City from impairing the pension rights of its employees and retirees, the authorization was not valid under the Michigan Constitution, as required for eligibility by 11 U.S.C. § 109(c)(2).

7. Because of the proceedings and judgment in Webster v. The State of Michigan, Case No. 13-734-CZ (Ingham County Circuit Court), the City is precluded by law from claiming that the governor's authorization to file this bankruptcy case was valid, as required for eligibility by 11 U.S.C. § 109(c)(2).

D. Objections That Require the Resolution of Genuine Issues of Material Fact

Beginning on October 23, 2013, the Court conducted a trial on the objections filed by attorneys that require the resolution of genuine issues of material fact. These objections are addressed in Parts XIII-XVII, below. Summarily stated, these objections are:

8. The City was not "insolvent," as required for eligibility by 11 U.S.C. § 109(c)(3) and as defined in 11 U.S.C. § 101(32)(C).

9. The City does not desire "to effect a plan to adjust such debts," as required for eligibility by 11 U.S.C. § 109(c)(4).

10. The City did not negotiate in good faith with creditors, as required (in the alternative) for eligibility by 11 U.S.C. § 109(c)(5)(B).

11. The City was not “unable to negotiate with creditors because such negotiation [was] impracticable,” as required (in the alternative) for eligibility by 11 U.S.C. § 109(c)(5)(C).

12. The City’s bankruptcy petition should be dismissed under 11 U.S.C. § 921(c) because it was filed in bad faith.

In addition, in the course of the briefing, parties asserted certain new and untimely objections. These are addressed in Part XVIII, below.

III. Introduction to the Facts Leading up to the Bankruptcy Filing

The City of Detroit was once a hardworking, diverse, vital city, the home of the automobile industry, proud of its nickname - the “Motor City.” It was rightfully known as the birthplace of the American automobile industry. In 1952, at the height of its prosperity and prestige, it had a population of approximately 1,850,000 residents. In 1950, Detroit was building half of the world’s cars.

The evidence before the Court establishes that for decades, however, the City of Detroit has experienced dwindling population, employment, and revenues. This has led to decaying infrastructure, excessive borrowing, mounting crime rates, spreading blight, and a deteriorating quality of life.

The City no longer has the resources to provide its residents with the basic police, fire and emergency medical services that its residents need for their basic health and safety.

Moreover, the City’s governmental operations are wasteful and inefficient. Its equipment, especially its streetlights and its technology, and much of its fire and police equipment, is obsolete.

To reverse this decline in basic services, to attract new residents and businesses, and to revitalize and reinvigorate itself, the City needs help.

The following sections of this Part of the opinion detail the basic facts regarding the City's fiscal decline, and the causes and consequences of it. Section A will address the City's financial distress. Section B will address the causes and consequences of that distress. Section C will address the City's efforts to address its financial distress. Part D will address the facts and events that resulted in the appointment of an emergency manager for the City. Finally, Parts E-G will address the facts and events that culminated in this bankruptcy filing.

The evidence supporting these factual findings consists largely of the following admitted exhibits:

Exhibit 6 - the City's "Comprehensive Annual Financial Report" for the fiscal year ended June 30, 2012.

Exhibit 21 - "Preliminary Review of the City of Detroit," from Andy Dillon, State Treasurer, to Rick Snyder, Governor, December 21, 2011;

Exhibit 22 - "Report of the Detroit Financial Review Team," from the Detroit Financial Review Team to Governor Snyder, March 26, 2012;

Exhibit 24 - "Preliminary Review of the City of Detroit," from Andy Dillon, State Treasurer, to Rick Snyder, Governor, December 14, 2012;

Exhibit 25 - "Report of the Detroit Financial Review Team," from the Detroit Financial Review Team to Governor Snyder, February 19, 2013;

Exhibit 26 - Letter from Governor Rick Snyder to Mayor Dave Bing and Detroit City Council, March 1, 2013;

Exhibit 28 - Letter from Kevyn D. Orr, Emergency Manager, to Governor Richard Snyder and State Treasurer Andrew Dillon, July 16, 2013;

Exhibit 29 - "Authorization to Commence Chapter 9 Bankruptcy Proceeding," from Governor Richard Snyder to Emergency Manager Kevyn Orr and State Treasurer Andrew Dillon.

Exhibit 38 - Graph, "FY14 monthly cash forecast absent restructuring"

Exhibit 41 - "Financial and Operating Plan," Kevyn D. Orr, Emergency Manager, June 10, 2013;

Exhibit 43 - "Proposal for Creditors," City of Detroit, June 14, 2013;

Exhibit 44 - "Proposal for Creditors, Executive Summary," City of Detroit, June 14, 2013;

Exhibit 75 - "Financial and Operating Plan," Kevyn D. Orr, Emergency Manager, May 12, 2013;

Exhibit 414 - Declaration of Kevyn Orr in Support of Eligibility. (Dkt. #11)

The Court notes that the objecting creditors offered no substantial evidence contradicting the facts found in this Part of the opinion, except as noted below relating to the City's unfunded pension liability.

A. The City's Financial Distress

1. The City's Debt

The City estimates its debt to be $18,000,000,000. This consists of $11,900,000,000 in unsecured debt and $6,400,000,000 in secured debt. It has more than 100,000 creditors.

According to the City, the unsecured debt includes:

$5,700,000,000 for “OPEB” through June 2011, which is the most recent actuarial data available. “OPEB” is “other post-employment benefits,” and refers to the Health and Life Insurance Benefit Plan and the Supplemental Death Benefit Plan for retirees;

$3,500,000,000 in unfunded pension obligations;

$651,000,000 in general obligation bonds;

$1,430,000,000 for certificates of participation (“COPs”) related to pensions;

$346,600,000 for swap contract liabilities related to the COPs; and $300,000,000 of other liabilities, including $101,200,000 in accrued compensated absences, including unpaid, accumulated vacation and sick leave balances; $86,500,000 in accrued workers’ compensation for which the City is self-insured; $63,900,000 in claims and judgments, including lawsuits and claims other than workers’ compensation claims; and $13,000,000 in capital leases and accrued pollution remediation.

As noted, the objecting parties do not seriously challenge the City’s estimates of its debt, except for its estimates of its unfunded pension liability. The plans and others have suggested a much lower pension underfunding amount, perhaps even below $1,000,000,000. However, they submitted no proof of that. The Court concludes that it is unnecessary to resolve the issue at this time, because the City would be found eligible regardless of any specific finding on the pension liability that would be in the range between the parties’ estimates. Otherwise, the Court is satisfied that the City’s estimates of its other liabilities are accurate enough for purposes of determining eligibility, and so finds.

2. Pension Liabilities

The City’s General Retirement System (“GRS”) administers the pension plan for its non-uniformed personnel. The average annual benefit received by retired pensioners or their beneficiaries is about $18,000. AFSCME Br. at 3 (citing June 30, 2012 General Retirement System of City of Detroit pension valuation report). (Dkt. #505) Generally these retirees are eligible for Social Security retirement or disability benefits.

The City's Police and Fire Retirement System ("PFRS") administers the pension plan for its uniformed personnel. The average annual benefit received by retired pensioners or their beneficiaries is about $30,000. Generally, these retirees are not eligible for Social Security retirement or disability benefits. Retirement Systems Br. at 5 (citing 20 C.F.R. § 404.1206(a)(8), 20 C.F.R. § 404.1212). (Dkt. #519)

The Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation does not insure pension benefits under either plan.

For the five years ending with FY 2012, pension payments exceeded contributions and investment income by approximately $1,700,000,000 for the GRS and $1,600,000,000 for the PFRS. This resulted in the liquidation of pension trust principal.

As noted, the two pension plans and the City disagree about the level of underfunding in the plans. Gabriel Roeder Smith & Company is the funds' actuary. In its reports for the two pension plans as of June 30, 2012, it found an unfunded actuarial accrued liability ("UAAL") of $829,760,482 for the GRS. Ex. 69 at 3. It found UAAL of $147,216,398 for the PFRS. Ex. 70 at 3.

The City asserts that the actuarial assumptions underlying these estimates are aggressive. Most significantly, the City believes that the two plans project unrealistic annual rates of return on investments net of expenses - 7.9% by GRS and 8.0% by PFRS, and that therefore their estimates are substantially understated. As stated above, the City estimates the underfunding to be $3,500,000,000.

Using current actuarial assumptions, the City's required pension contributions, as a percentage of eligible payroll expenses, are projected to grow from 25% for GRS and 30% for PFRS in 2012 to 30% for GRS and 60% for PFRS by 2017. Changes in actuarial assumptions would result in further increases to the City's required pension contributions.

3. OPEB Liabilities

The OPEB plans consist of the Health and Life Insurance Benefit Plan and the Supplemental Death Benefit Plan. The City's OPEB obligations arise under 22 different plans, including 15 different plans alone for medical and prescription drugs. These plans have varying structures and terms. The plan is a defined benefit plan providing hospitalization, dental care, vision care and life insurance to current employees and substantially all retirees. The City generally pays for 80% to 100% of health care coverage for eligible retirees. The Health and Life Insurance Plan is totally unfunded; it is financed entirely on a current basis.

As of June 30, 2011, 19,389 retirees were eligible to receive benefits under the City's OPEB plans. The number of retirees receiving benefits from the City is expected to increase over time.

The Supplemental Death Benefit Plan is a pre-funded single-employer defined benefit plan providing death benefits based upon years of creditable service. It has $34,564,960 in actuarially accrued liabilities as of June 30, 2011 and is 74.3% funded with UAAL of $8,900,000.

Of the City's $5,700,000,000 OPEB liability, 99.6% is unfunded.

4. Legacy Expenditures - Pensions and OPEB

During 2012, 38.6% of the City's revenue was consumed servicing legacy liabilities. The forecasts for subsequent years, assuming no restructuring, are 42.5% for 2013, 54.3% for 2014, 59.5% for 2015, 63% for 2016, and 64.5% for 2017.

5. The Certificates of Participation

The transactions described here are complex and confusing. The resulting litigation is as well. Nevertheless, a fairly complete explanation of them is necessary to an understanding of the City's severe financial distress.

a. The COPs and Swaps Transaction

In 2005 and 2006, the City set out to raise $1.4 billion for its underfunded pension funds, the GRS and PFRS. The City created a non-profit Service Corporation for each of the two pension funds, to act as an intermediary in the financing. The City then entered into Service Contracts with each of the Service Corporations. The City would make payments to the Service Corporations, which had created Funding Trusts and assigned their rights to those Funding Trusts. The Funding Trusts issued debt obligations to investors called "Pension Obligation Certificates of Participation. ("COPs").² Each COP represented an undivided proportionate interest in the payments that the City would make to the Service Corporations under the Service Contracts.

The City arranged for the purchase of insurance from two monoline insurers to protect against defaults by the funding trusts that would result if the City failed to make payments to the ² Confusingly, in some of the exhibits, these COPs are referred to as "POCs." See, for example, Financial and Operating Plan, June 10, 2013. Ex. 41 at 15.

Service Corporations under the Service Contracts. This was intended to make the investments more attractive to potential investors. One insurer was XL Capital Assurance, Inc., now known as Syncora. The other was the Financial Guaranty Insurance Company.

Some of the COPs paid a floating interest rate. To protect the Service Corporations from the risk of increasing interest rates, they entered into hedge arrangements with UBS A.G. and SBS Financial (the “Swap Counterparties”). Under the hedges, also known as “swaps” (bets, really), the Service Corporations and the Swap Counterparties agreed to convert the floating interest rates into a fixed payment. Under the swaps, if the floating interest rates exceeded a certain rate, the Swap Counterparties would make payments to the Service Corporations. But if the floating interest rates sank below a certain rate, the Service Corporations would make payments to the Swap Counterparties. Specifically, there were eight pay-fixed, receive-variable interest rate swap contracts, effective as of June 12, 2006, with a total amount of $800,000,000.

Under the swaps, the City was also at risk if there was an “event of default” or a “termination event.” In such an event, the Swap Counterparties could terminate the swaps and demand a potentially enormous termination payment.

The Swap Counterparties also obtained protection against the risk that the Service Corporations would default on their quarterly swap payments. The parties purchased additional insurance against that risk from Syncora and the Financial Guaranty Insurance Company. Syncora’s liability for swap defaults is capped at $50,000,000, even though the Swap Counterparties’ claims may be significantly greater. This insurance is separate from the insurance purchased to protect against a default under the COPs.

b. The Result

In 2008, interest rates dropped dramatically. As a result, the City lost on the swaps bet. Actually, it lost catastrophically on the swaps bet. The bet could cost the City hundreds of millions of dollars. The City estimates that the damage will be approximately $45,000,000 per year for the next ten years.

c. The Collateral Agreement

As the City's financial condition worsened, the City, the Service Corporations and the Swap Counterparties sought to restructure the swap contracts. In June 2009, they negotiated and entered into a Collateral Agreement that amended the swap agreements. The Collateral Agreement eliminated the "Additional Termination Event" and the potential for an immediate demand for a termination payment. The City agreed to make the swap payments through a "lockbox" arrangement and to pledge certain gaming tax revenues as collateral. The City also agreed to increase the interest rate of the swap agreements by 10 basis points effective July 1, 2010. It also agreed to new termination events, including any downgrading of the credit ratings for the COPs.

Two accounts were set up: 1) a "Holdback Account" and 2) a "General Receipts Subaccount." U.S. Bank was appointed custodian of the accounts. The casinos would pay developer payments and gaming tax payments to the General Receipts Subaccount daily. The City would make monthly deposits into the Holdback Account equal to one-third of the quarterly payment that the Service Corporations owed to the Swap Counterparties. When the City made that monthly payment, U.S. Bank would release to the City the accumulated funds in the General Receipts Subaccount. If the City defaulted, the Swap Counterparties could serve notice on U.S.

Bank, which would then hold or “trap” the money in the General Receipts Subaccount and not disburse it to the City.

Syncora was not a party to the Collateral Agreement.

d. The City’s Defaults Under the Collateral Agreement

In March, 2012, the COPs were downgraded, which triggered a termination event. The Swap Counterparties did not, however, declare a default.

In March, 2013, the appointment of the emergency manager for the City was another event of default. Again however, the Swap Counterparties did not declare a default.

As of June 28, 2013, the City estimated that if an event of default were declared and the Swap Counterparties chose to exercise their right to terminate, it faced a termination obligation to the Swap Counterparties of $296,500,000. This was the approximate negative fair value of the swaps at that time.

On June 14, 2013, the City failed to make a required payment of approximately $40,000,000 on the COPs. This default triggered Syncora’s liability as insurer on the COPs and it has apparently made the required payments. However, the City has made all of its required payments to the Swap Counterparties through the Holdback Account. The City contends that as a result, Syncora has no liability to the Swap Counterparties on its guaranty to them.

e. The Forbearance and Optional Termination Agreement

Following the City’s defaults on the Collateral Agreement, the parties negotiated. On July 15, 2013 (three days before this bankruptcy filing), the City and the Swap Counterparties entered into a “Forbearance and Optional Termination Agreement.” Under this agreement, the Swap Counterparties would forbear from terminating the swaps and from instructing U.S. Bank to trap the funds in the General Receipts Subaccount. The City may buy out the swaps at an 18-

25% discount, depending on when the payment is made. That buy-out would terminate the pledge of the gaming revenues. Syncora was not a party to this agreement.

When the City filed this bankruptcy case, it also filed a motion to assume the “Forbearance and Optional Termination Agreement.” (Dkt. #17) Syncora and many other parties have filed objections to the City’s motion. However, because there are serious and substantial defenses to the claims made against the City under the COPs, these objections assert that the agreement should not be approved. After several adjournments, it is scheduled for hearing on December 17, 2013.

f. The Resulting Litigation Involving Syncora

Meanwhile, back on June 17, 2013, Syncora sent a letter to U.S. Bank declaring an event of default, triggering U.S. Bank’s obligation to trap all of the money in the General Receipts Subaccount. The City responded, taking the position that because it had not defaulted in its swap payments and because Syncora has no rights under the Collateral Agreement, Syncora had no right to instruct U.S. Bank to trap the funds.

U.S. Bank did trap approximately $15,000,000. This represented a significant percentage of the City’s monthly revenue.

As a result, on July 5, 2013, the City filed a lawsuit against Syncora in the Wayne County Circuit Court. It sought and obtained a temporary restraining order that resulted in U.S. Bank’s release of the trapped funds to the City. On July 11, 2013, Syncora removed the action to the district court in Detroit and filed a motion to dissolve the temporary restraining order. On July 31, 2013, Syncora filed a motion to dismiss the complaint. On August 9, 2013, the district referred the matter to this Court. It is now Adversary Proceeding #13-04942. On August 28, 2013, this Court ruled that the gaming revenues are property of the City and therefore protected by the automatic stay. Tr. 9:17-21, August 28, 2013. (Dkt. #692) As a result, on September 10, 2013, the temporary restraining order was dissolved with the City's stipulation. Syncora's motion to dismiss the adversary proceeding remains pending. It has been adjourned due to a tolling agreement between the parties.

Adding to this drama, on July 24, 2013, Syncora filed a lawsuit against the Swap Counterparties in a state court in New York, seeking an injunction to prevent the Swap Counterparties from performing their obligations under the Forbearance and Optional Termination Agreement. The Swap Counterparties then removed the action to the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York. That court, at the request of the Swap Counterparties, transferred the case to the federal district court in Detroit, which then referred it to this Court. It is Adversary Proceeding No. 13-05395.

g. The COPs Debt

Returning, finally, to the underlying obligations - the COPS, the City estimates that as of June 30, 2013, the following amounts were outstanding:

$480,300,000 in outstanding principal amount of $640,000,000 Certificates of Participation Series 2005 A maturing June 15, 2013 through 2025; and $948,540,000 in outstanding principal amount of $948,540,000 Certificates of Participation Series 2006 A and B maturing June 15, 2019 through 2035.

6. Debt Service

Debt service from the City's general fund related to limited tax and unlimited tax GO debt and the COPS was $225,300,000 for 2012, and is projected to exceed $247,000,000 in 2013.³ The City estimates that 38% of its tax revenue goes to debt service rather than to city services. It further estimates that without changes, this will increase to 65% within 5 years.

7. Revenues

Income tax revenues have decreased by $91,000,000 since 2002 (30%) and by $44,000,000 (15%) since 2008. Municipal income tax revenue was $276,500,000 in 2008 and $233,000,000 in 2012.

Property tax revenues for 2013 were $135,000,000. This is a reduction of $13,000,000 (10%) from 2012.

Revenues from the City's utility users' tax have declined from approximately $55,300,000 in 2003 to approximately $39,800,000 in 2012 (28%).

Wagering taxes receipts are about $170–$180,000,000 annually. However, the City projects that these receipts will decrease through 2015 due to the expected loss of gaming revenue to casinos opening in nearby Toledo, Ohio.

State revenue sharing has decreased by $161,000,000 since 2002 (48%) and by $76,000,000 (30.6%) since 2008, due to the City's declining population and significant reductions in statutory revenue sharing by the State.

8. Operating Deficits

The City has experienced operating deficits for each of the past seven years. Through 2013, it has had an accumulated general fund deficit of $237,000,000. However, this includes the effect of recent debt issuances - $75,000,000 in 2008; $250,000,000 in 2010; and ³ References to a specific year in the financial sections of this Part are to the City's fiscal year, July 1 to June 30.

$129,500,000 in 2013. If these debt issuances are excluded, the City's accumulated general fund deficit would have been $700,000,000 through 2013.

In 2012, the City had a negative cash flow of $115,500,000, excluding the impact of proceeds from short-term borrowings. In March 2012, to avoid running out of cash, the City borrowed $80,000,000 on a secured basis. The City spent $50,000,000 of that borrowing in 2012.

In 2013, the City deferred payments on certain of its obligations, totaling approximately $120,000,000. As set forth in the next section, these deferrals were for current and prior year pension contributions and other payments. With those deferrals, the City projects a positive cash flow of $4,000,000 for 2013.

If the City had not deferred these payments, it would have run out of cash by June 30, 2013.

Absent restructuring, the City projects that it will have negative cash flows of $190,500,000 for 2014; $260,400,000 for 2015; $314,100,000 for 2016; and $346,000,000 for 2017. The City further estimates that by 2017, its accumulated deficit could grow to approximately $1,350,000,000.

9. Payment Deferrals

The City is not making its pension contributions as they come due. It has deferred payment of its year-end Police and Fire Retirement System contributions. As of May 2013, the City had deferred approximately $54,000,000 in pension contributions related to current and prior periods and approximately $50,000,000 on June 30, 2013 for current year PFRS pension contributions. Therefore, the City will have deferred $104,000,000 of pension contributions.

Also, the City did not make the scheduled $39,700,000 payments on its COPs that were due on June 14, 2013.

B. The Causes and Consequences of the City's Financial Distress

A full discussion of the causes and consequences of the City's financial distress is well beyond the scope of this opinion. Still, the evidence presented at the eligibility trial did shed some important and relevant light on the issues that are before the Court. These "causes" and "consequences" are addressed together here because it is often difficult to distinguish one from the other.

1. Population Losses

Detroit's population declined to just over 1,000,000 as of June 1990. In December 2012, the population was 684,799. This is a 63% decline in population from its peak in 1950.

2. Employment Losses

From 1972 to 2007, the City lost approximately 80% of its manufacturing establishments and 78% of its retail establishments. The number of jobs in Detroit declined from 735,104 in 1970 to 346,545 in 2012.

Detroit's unemployment rate was 6.3% in June 2000; 23.4% in June 2010; and 18.3% in June 2012. The number of employed Detroit residents fell from approximately 353,000 in 2000 to 279,960 in 2012.

3. Credit Rating

The City's credit ratings are below investment grade. As of June 17, 2013, S&P and Moody's had lowered Detroit's credit ratings to CC and Caa3, respectively. Ex. 75 at 3.

4. The Water and Sewerage Department

The Detroit Water and Sewerage Department (“DWSD”) provides water and wastewater services to the City and many suburban communities in an eight-county area, covering 1,079 square miles. DWSD’s cost of capital is inflated due to its association with the City. This increased cost of capital, coupled with the inability to raise rates and other factors, has resulted in significant under-spending on capital expenditures.

5. The Crime Rate

During calendar year 2011, 136,000 crimes were reported in the City. Of these, 15,245 were violent crimes. In 2012, the City’s violent crime rate was five times the national average and the highest of any city with a population in excess of 200,000.

The City’s case clearance rate for violent crimes is 18.6%. The clearance rate for all crimes is 8.7%. These rates are substantially below those of comparable municipalities nationally and surrounding local municipalities.

6. Streetlights

As of April 2013, about 40% of the approximately 88,000 streetlights operated and maintained by the City’s Public Lighting Department were not working.

7. Blight

There are approximately 78,000 abandoned and blighted structures in the City. Of these, 38,000 are considered dangerous buildings. The City has experienced 11,000 – 12,000 fires each year for the past decade. Approximately 60% of these occur in blighted or unoccupied buildings.

The average cost to demolish a residential structure is approximately $8,500.

The City also has 66,000 blighted vacant lots.

8. The Police Department

In 2012, the average priority one response time for the police department was 30 minutes. In 2013, it was 58 minutes. The national average is 11 minutes.

The department's manpower has been reduced by approximately 40% over the last 10 years.

The department has not invested in or maintained its facility infrastructure for many years, and has closed or consolidated many precincts.

The department operates with a fleet of 1,291 vehicles, most of which have reached the replacement age of three years and lack modern information technology.

9. The Fire Department

The average age of the City's 35 fire stations is 80 years, and maintenance costs often exceed $1,000,000 annually. The fire department's fleet has many mechanical issues, contains no reserve vehicles and lacks equipment ordinarily considered standard. The department's apparatus division now has 26 employees, resulting in a mechanic to vehicle ratio of 1 to 39 and an inability to complete preventative maintenance on schedule.

In February 2013, Detroit Fire Commissioner Donald Austin ordered firefighters not to use hydraulic ladders on ladder trucks except in cases involving an "immediate threat to life" because the ladders had not received safety inspections "for years."

During the first quarter of 2013, frequently only 10 to 14 of the City's 36 ambulances were in service. Some of the City's EMS vehicles have been driven 250,000 to 300,000 miles and break down frequently.

10. Parks and Recreation

The City closed 210 parks during fiscal year 2009, reducing its total from 317 to 107 (66%). It has also announced that 50 of its remaining 107 parks would be closed and that another 38 would be provided with limited maintenance.

11. Information Technology

The City's information technology infrastructure and software is obsolete and is not integrated between departments, or even within departments. Its information technology needs to be upgraded or replaced in the following areas: payroll; financial; budget development; property information and assessment; income tax; and the police department operating system.

Payroll. The City currently uses multiple, non-integrated payroll systems. A majority of the City's employees are on an archaic payroll system that has limited reporting capabilities and no way to clearly track, monitor or report expenditures by category. The current cost to process payroll is $62 per check ($19,200,000 per year). This is more than four times the general average of $15 per paycheck. The payroll process involves 149 full-time employees, 51 of which are uniformed officers. This means that high cost personnel are performing clerical duties.

Income Tax. The City's highly manual income tax collection and data management systems were purchased in the mid-1990s and are outdated, with little to no automation capability. An IRS audit completed in July 2012, characterized these systems as "catastrophic."

Financial Reporting. The City's financial reporting system ("DRMS") was implemented in 1999 and is no longer supported. Its budget development system is 10 years old and requires a manual interface with DRMS. 70% of journal entries are booked manually. The systems also lack reliable fail-over and back-up systems.

C. The City's Efforts to Address Its Financial Distress

The City has reduced the number of its employees by about 2,700 since 2011. As of May 31, 2013, it had approximately 9,560 employees.

The City's unionized employees are represented by 47 discrete bargaining units.⁴ The collective bargaining agreements covering all of those bargaining units expired before this case was filed.⁵

The City has implemented revised employment terms, called "City Employment Terms" ("CET"), for nonunionized employees and for unionized employees under expired collective bargaining agreements. It has also increased revenues and reduced expenses in other ways. It estimates that these measures have resulted in annual savings of $200,000,000.

The City cannot legally increase its tax revenues. Nor can it reduce its employee expenses without further endangering public health and safety.

D. A Brief History of Michigan's Emergency Manager Laws

Before reviewing the events leading to the appointment of the City's emergency manager, a brief review of the winding history of the Michigan statutes on point is necessary.

In 1990, the Michigan Legislature enacted Public Act 72 of 1990, the "Local Government Fiscal Responsibility Act." ("P.A. 72") This Act empowered the State to intervene with respect to municipalities facing financial crisis through the appointment of an emergency financial manager who would assume many of the powers ordinarily held by local elected officials.

⁵ The Financial and Operating Plan reports 48 collective bargaining agreements. Ex. 75 at 13. The discrepancy is not explained but is not material.

Effective March 16, 2011, P.A. 72 was repealed and replaced with Public Act 4 of 2011, the “Local Government and School District Fiscal Accountability Act.” (“P.A. 4”)

On November 5, 2012, Michigan voters rejected P.A. 4 by referendum. This rejection revived P.A. 72. See Order, Davis v. Roberts, No. 313297 (Mich. Ct. App. Nov. 16, 2012):⁶

Petitioner’s reliance on the anti-revival statute, MCL 8.4, is unavailing. The plain language of MCL 8.4 includes no reference to statutes that have been rejected by referendum. The statutory language refers only to statutes subject to repeal. Judicial construction is not permitted when the language is unambiguous. Driver v Naini, 490 Mich 239, 247; 802 NW2d 311 (2011). Accordingly, under the clear terms of the statute, MCL 8.4 does not apply to the voters’ rejection, by referendum, of P A 4.

See also Davis v. Weatherspoon, 2013 WL 2076478, at *2 (E.D. Mich. May 15, 2013); Mich. Op. Att’y Gen No. 7267 (Aug. 6, 2012), 2012 WL 3544658.

P.A. 72 remained in effect until March 28, 2013, when the “Local Financial Stability and Choice Act,” Public Act 436 of 2012, became effective. (“P.A. 436”) That Legislature enacted that law on December 13, 2012, and the governor signed it on December 26, 2012.

E. The Events Leading to the Appointment of the City’s Emergency Manager

The following subsections review the events leading to the appointment of the City’s emergency manager.

⁶ This order is available on the Michigan Court of Appeals website at: http://publicdocs.courts.mi.gov:81/COA/PUBLIC/ORDERS/2012/313297\(9\)_order.PDF_order.PDF)

1. The State Treasurer's Report of December 21, 2011

On December 6, 2011, the Michigan Department of the Treasury began a preliminary review of the City's financial condition pursuant to P.A. 4.

On December 21, 2011, Andy Dillon, the state treasurer, reported to the governor that "probable financial stress" existed in Detroit and recommended the appointment of a "financial review team" pursuant to P.A. 4. Ex. 503 at 3. (Dkt. #11-3) In making this finding, Dillon's report cited:

the inability of the City to avoid fund deficits, recurrent accumulated deficit spending, severe projected cash flow shortages resulting in an improper reliance on inter-fund and external borrowing, the lack of funding of the City's other post-retirement benefits, and the increasing debt of the City[.]

More specifically, his report found:

(a) The City had violated § 17 of the Uniform Budget and Accounting Act (Public Act 2 of 1968) by failing to amend the City's general appropriations act when it became apparent that various line items in the City's budget for fiscal year 2010 exceeded appropriations by an aggregate of nearly $58,000,000, and that unaudited fiscal year 2011 figures indicated that expenditures would exceed appropriations by $97,000,000.

(b) The City did not file an adequate or approved "deficit elimination plan" with the Treasury for fiscal year 2010. The Treasury found that the City's recent efforts at deficit reduction had been "unrealistic" and that "City officials either are incapable or unwilling to manage its own finances."

(c) The City had a "mounting debt problem" with debt service requirements exceeding $597,000,000 in 2010 and long term debt exceeding $8,000,000,000 as of June 2011, excluding the City's then-estimated $615,000,000 in unfunded actuarial pension liabilities and

$4,900,000,000 in OPEB liability. The ratio of the City's total long term debt to total net assets for 2010 was 32.64 to 1, which was far greater than other identified cities.

(d) The City was at risk of a termination payment, estimated at the time to be in the range of $280,000,000 to $400,000,000, under its swap contracts.

(e) The City's long term bond rating had fallen below the BBB category and was considered "junk" - speculative or highly speculative.

(f) The City was experiencing significant cash flow shortages. The City projected a cash balance of $96,100,000 as of October 28, 2011. This was nearly $20,000,000 lower than the City's previous estimates. It would be quickly eroded and the City would experience a cash shortage of $1,600,000 in April 2012 and would end 2012 with a cash shortfall of $44,100,000 absent remedial action.

(g) The City had difficulty making its required payments to its pension plans. In June of 2005, the City issued $1,440,000,000 of new debt in the form of Pension Obligation Certificates ("COPs") to fund its two retirement systems with a renegotiated repayment schedule of 30 years.

2. The Financial Review Team's Report of March 26, 2012

Under P.A. 4, upon a finding of "probable financial stress," the governor was required to appoint a financial review team to undertake a more extensive financial management review of the City. On December 27, 2011, the governor announced the appointment of a ten member Financial Review Team. The Financial Review Team was then required to report its findings to the governor within 60-90 days.

On March 26, 2012, the Financial Review Team submitted its report to the governor. This report found that "the City of Detroit is in a condition of severe financial stress[.]" Ex. 22. This finding of "severe financial stress" was based upon the following considerations:

(a) The City's cumulative general fund deficit had increased from $91,000,000 for 2010 to $148,000,000 for 2011 and the City had not experienced a positive year-end fund balance since 2004.

(b) Audits for the City's previous nine fiscal years reflected significant variances between budgeted and actual revenues and expenditures, primarily due to the City's admitted practice of knowingly overestimating revenues and underestimating expenditures.

(c) The City was continuing to experience significant cash depletion. The City had proposed adjustments to collective bargaining agreements to save $102,000,000 in 2012 and $258,000,000 in 2013, but the tentative collective bargaining agreements negotiated as of the date of the report were projected to yield savings of only $219,000,000 for both years.

(d) The City's existing debt had suffered significant downgrades. Among the reasons cited by Moody's Investor Service for the downgrade were the City's "weakened financial position, as evidenced by its narrow cash position, its reliance upon debt financing, and ongoing negotiations with its labor unions regarding contract concessions." Ex. 22 at 10.

3. The Consent Agreement

In early 2012, the City and the State of Michigan negotiated a 47 page "Financial Stability Agreement," more commonly called the "Consent Agreement." Ex. 23. The Consent Agreement states that its purpose is to achieve financial stability for the City and a stable platform for the City's future growth. It was executed as of April 5, 2012. Under § 15 of P.A. 4, because a consent agreement within the meaning of P.A. 4 was negotiated and executed, no emergency manager was appointed for the City, despite the finding by the Financial Review Team that the City was in "severe financial stress."

The Consent Agreement created a “Financial Advisory Board” (“FAB”) of nine members selected by the governor, the treasurer, the mayor and the city council. The Consent Agreement granted the FAB an oversight role and limited powers over certain City reform and budget activities. The FAB has held, and continues to hold, regular public meetings and to exercise its oversight functions set forth in the Consent Agreement.

4. The State Treasurer’s Report of December 14, 2012

On December 11, 2012, the Department of Treasury commenced a preliminary review of the City’s financial condition under P.A. 72. On December 14, 2012, Andy Dillon, State Treasurer sent to Rick Snyder, Governor a memorandum entitled “Preliminary Review of the City of Detroit.” Ex. 24. This was after the voters had rejected P.A. 4 and P.A. 72 was revived.

Treasurer Dillon reported to the governor that, based on his preliminary review, a “serious financial problem” existed within the City. Ex. 24 at 1. This conclusion was based on many of the same findings as his earlier report of December 21, 2011. Ex. 21. In addition he reported that:

(a) City officials had violated the proscriptions in sections 18 and 19 of P.A. 2 of 1968 in applying the City’s money for purposes inconsistent with the City’s appropriations.

(b) The City had projected possibly depleting its cash prior to June 30, 2013. However because of problems in the financial reporting functions of the City, the projections continued to change from month to month. This made it difficult to make informed decisions regarding the City’s fiscal health. The City would not be experiencing significant cash flow challenges if City officials had complied with statutory requirements to monitor and amend adopted budgets as needed. In sum, such compliance requires the ability to produce timely and accurate financial information, which City officials have not been able to produce.

(c) The City incurred overall deficits in various funds including the General Fund. The General Fund's unrestricted deficit increased by almost $41,000,000 from $155,000,000 on June 30, 2010 to $196,000,000 on June 30, 2011, and is projected to increase even further for 2012. This would not have happened if the City had complied with its budgets.

5. The Financial Review Team's Report of February 19, 2013

Upon receipt of Treasurer Dillon's report, the governor appointed another Financial Review Team to review the City's financial condition on December 18, 2012. This was also done under P.A. 72.

On February 19, 2013, the Financial Review Team submitted its report to the governor, concluding, "in accordance with [P.A. 72], that a local government financial emergency exists within the City of Detroit because no satisfactory plan exists to resolve a serious financial problem."⁷ Ex. 25.

This finding by the Financial Review Team of a "local government financial emergency" was based primarily upon the following considerations:

(a) The City continued to experience a significant depletion of its cash, with a projected $100,000,000 cumulative cash deficit as of June 30, 2013. Cost-cutting measures undertaken by the mayor and city council were too heavily weighted to one-time savings and non-union personnel.

⁷ The Financial Review Team also submitted a "Supplemental Documentation of the Detroit Financial Review Team." Ex. 25. This supplement was "intended to constitute competent, material, and substantial evidence upon the whole record in support of the conclusion that a financial emergency exists within the City of Detroit." Id.

(b) The City's cumulative general fund deficit had not experienced a positive year-end fund balance since 2004 and stood at $326,600,000 as of 2012. If the City had not issued substantial debt, the accumulated general fund deficit would have been $936,800,000 by 2012.

(c) The City's long-term liabilities exceeded $14,000,000,000 as of June 30, 2013. Approximately $1,900,000,000 would come due over the next five years. The City had not devised a satisfactory plan to address these liabilities.

(d) The City Charter contains numerous restrictions and structural details that make it extremely difficult to restructure the City's operations in a meaningful or timely manner.

(e) The management letter accompanying the City's fiscal year 2012 financial audit report identified numerous material weaknesses and significant deficiencies in the City's financial and accounting operations.

(f) Audits for the City's last six fiscal years reflected significant variances between budgeted and actual revenues and expenditures, owing primarily to the City's admitted practice of knowingly overestimating revenues and underestimating expenditures.

6. The Appointment of an Emergency Manager for the City of Detroit

On March 1, 2013, after receiving the Financial Review Team Report of February 19, 2013, the governor announced his determination under P.A. 72 that a "financial emergency" existed within the City. Ex. 26. By that point, P.A. 436 had been enacted but it was not yet effective.

On March 12, 2013, the governor conducted a public hearing to consider the city council's appeal of his determination.

On March 14, 2013, the governor confirmed his determination of a “financial emergency” within the City and requested that the Local Emergency Financial Assistance Loan Board (“LEFALB”) appoint an emergency financial manager under P.A. 72.

On March 15, 2013, the LEFALB appointed Kevyn Orr as the emergency financial manager for the City of Detroit. Second Amended Final Pre-Trial Order, ¶ 42 at 11. (Dkt. #1647)

On March 25, 2013, Mr. Orr formally took office. Second Amended Final Pre-Trial Order, ¶ 43 at 11. (Dkt. #1647)

On March 28, 2013, the effective date of P.A. 436, P.A. 72 was repealed, and Mr. Orr became the emergency manager of the City under §§ 2(e) and 31 of P.A. 436. M.C.L. §§ 141.1542(e) and 141.1571.

The emergency manager acts “for and in the place and stead of the governing body and the office of chief administrative officer of the local government.” M.C.L. § 141.1549(2). He has “broad powers in receivership to rectify the financial emergency and to assure the fiscal accountability of the local government and the local government’s capacity to provide or cause to be provided necessary governmental services essential to the public health, safety, and welfare.” M.C.L. § 141.1549(2).

F. The Emergency Manager’s Activities

1. The June 14, 2013 Meeting and Proposal to Creditors

On June 14, 2013, Mr. Orr organized a meeting with approximately 150 representatives of the City’s creditors, including representatives of: (a) the City’s debt holders; (b) the insurers of this debt; (c) the City’s unions; (d) certain retiree associations; (e) the Pension Systems; and (f) many individual bondholders. At the meeting, Mr. Orr presented the June 14 Creditor Proposal,

Ex. 43, and answered questions. At the conclusion of the meeting, Mr. Orr invited creditor representatives to meet and engage in a dialogue with City representatives regarding the proposal.

This proposal described the economic circumstances that resulted in Detroit's financial condition. It also offered a thorough overhaul and restructuring of the City's operations, finances and capital structure, as well as proposed recoveries for each creditor group. More specifically, the June 14, 2013 Creditor Proposal set forth:

(a) The City's plans to achieve a sustainable restructuring by investing over $1,250,000,000 over ten years to improve basic and essential City services, including: (1) substantial investment in, and the restructuring of, various City departments, including the Police Department; the Fire Department; Emergency Medical Services; the Department of Transportation; the Assessor's Office and property tax division; the Building, Safety, Engineering & Environment Department; and the 36th District Court; (2) substantial investment in the City's blight removal efforts; (3) the transition of the City's electricity transmission business to an alternative provider; (4) the implementation of a population-based streetlight footprint and the outsourcing of lighting operations to the newly-created Public Lighting Authority; (5) substantial investments in upgraded information technology for police, fire, EMS, transportation, payroll, grant management, tax collection, budgeting and accounting and the City's court system; (6) a comprehensive review of the City's leases and contracts; and (7) a proposed overhaul of the City's labor costs and related work rules. Ex. 43 at 61-78.

(b) The City's intention to expand its income and property tax bases, rationalize and adjust its nominal tax rates, and various initiatives to improve and enhance its tax and fee collection efforts. Ex. 43 at 79-82.

(c) The City's intention to potentially realize value from the Detroit Water and Sewerage Department ("DWSD") through the creation of a new metropolitan area water and sewer authority. This authority would conduct the operations under the City's concession or lease of the DWSD's assets in exchange for payments in lieu of taxes, lease payments, or some other form of payment. Ex. 43 at 83-86.

Regarding creditor recoveries, the City proposed:

(a) Treatment of secured debt commensurate with the value of the collateral securing such debt, including the repayment or refinancing of its revenue bonds, secured unlimited and limited tax general obligation bonds, secured installment notes and liabilities arising in connection with the swap obligations. Ex. 43 at 101-109.

(b) The pro rata distribution of $2,000,000,000 in principal amount of interest-only, limited recourse participation notes to holders of unsecured claims (i.e., holders of unsecured unlimited and limited tax general obligation bonds; the Service Corporations (on account of the COPs); the pension systems (on account of pension underfunding); retirees (on account of OPEB benefits); and miscellaneous other unsecured claimants. The plan also disclosed the potential for amortization of the principal of such notes in the event that, for example, future City revenues exceeded certain thresholds, certain assets were monetized or certain grants were received. Ex. 43 at 101-109.

(c) A "Dutch Auction" process for the City to purchase the notes. Ex. 43 at 108.

At this meeting, Mr. Orr also announced his decision not to make the scheduled $39,700,000 payments due on the COPs and swaps transactions and to impose a moratorium on principal and interest payments related to unsecured debt.

2. Subsequent Discussions with Creditor Representatives

Following the June 14, 2013 meeting at which the proposal to creditors was presented. Mr. Orr and his staff had several other meetings.⁸

On June 20, 2013, Mr. Orr's advisors met with representatives of the City's unions and four retiree associations. In the morning they met with representatives of "non-uniformed" employees and retirees. In the afternoon they met with "uniformed" employees and retirees. In these meetings, his advisors discussed retiree health and pension obligations. Approximately 100 union and retiree representatives attended the two-hour morning session. It included time for questions and answers. Approximately 35 union and retiree representatives attended the afternoon session, which lasted approximately 90 minutes.

On June 25, 2013, Mr. Orr's advisors and his senior advisor staff members held meetings in New York for representatives and advisors with all six of the insurers of the City's funded bond debt; the pension systems; and U.S. Bank, the trustee or paying agent on all of the City's bond issuances. Approximately 70 individuals attended this meeting. At this five-hour meeting, the City's advisors discussed the 10-year financial projections and cash flows presented in the June 14 Creditor Proposal, together with the assumptions and detail underlying those projections and cash flows; the City's contemplated reinvestment initiatives and related costs; and the retiree benefit and pension information and proposals that had been presented to the City's unions and pension representatives on June 20, 2013.

Also on June 25, 2013, the City's advisors held a separate meeting with U.S. Bank and its advisors to discuss the City's intentions with respect to the DWSD, and the special revenue bond debt related thereto; the City's proposed treatment of its general obligation debt, including the COPs; and various other issues raised by U.S. Bank.

On June 26 and 27, 2013, Mr. Orr's advisors held individual follow-up meetings with each of several bond insurers. On June 26, 2013, the City team met with business people, lawyers and financial advisors from NPFGC in a two-hour meeting and Ambac Assurance Corporation in a 90-minute meeting. Financial Guaranty Insurance Corporation had originally requested a meeting for June 26, 2013 but subsequently cancelled. On June 27, 2013, the City team met with business people, lawyers and financial advisors from Syncora in a 90-minute meeting and Assured Guaranty Municipal Corporation in a 90-minute meeting.

On July 10, 2013, the City and certain of its advisors held meetings with representatives and advisors of the GRS, as well as representatives and counsel for certain non-uniformed unions and retiree associations and representatives and advisors of the PFRS, as well as representatives and counsel for certain uniformed unions and retiree associations. Each meeting lasted approximately two hours. The purposes of each meeting were to provide additional information on the City's pension restructuring proposal and to discuss a process for reaching a consensual agreement on pension underfunding issues and the treatment of any related claims.

On July 11, 2013, the City and its advisors held separate follow-up meetings with representatives and advisors for select non-uniform unions and retiree associations, the GRS, certain uniformed unions and retiree associations, and the PFRS to discuss retiree health issues.

G. The Prepetition Litigation

On July 3, 2013, two lawsuits were filed against the governor and the treasurer in the Ingham County Circuit Court. These suits sought a declaratory judgment that P.A. 436 violated the Michigan Constitution to the extent that it purported to authorize chapter 9 proceedings in which vested pension benefits might be impaired. They also sought an injunction preventing the defendants from authorizing any chapter 9 proceeding for the City in which vested pension benefits might be impaired. Flowers v. Snyder, No. 13-729-CZ July 3, 2013; Webster v. Snyder, No. 13-734-CZ July 3, 2013.

On July 17, 2013, the Pension Systems commenced a similar lawsuit. General Retirement System of the City of Detroit v. Orr, No. 13-768-CZ July 17, 2013.

H. The Bankruptcy Filing

On July 16, 2013, Mr. Orr recommended to the governor and the treasurer in writing that the City file for chapter 9 relief. Ex. 28. (Dkt. #11-10) An emergency manager may recommend a chapter 9 filing if, in his judgment, “no reasonable alternative to rectifying the financial emergency of the local government which is in receivership exists.” M.C.L. § 141.1566(1).

On July 18, 2013, Governor Snyder authorized the City of Detroit to file a chapter 9 bankruptcy case. Ex. 29. (Dkt. #11-11) M.C.L. § 141.1558(1) permits the governor to “place contingencies on a local government in order to proceed under chapter 9.” However, the governor’s authorization letter stated, “I am choosing not to impose any such contingencies today. Federal law already contains the most important contingency - a requirement that the plan be legally executable, 11 USC 943(b)(4).” Ex. 29. at 4. Accordingly, his authorization did not include a condition prohibiting the City from seeking to impair pensions in a plan.

At 4:06 p.m. on July 18, 2013, the City filed this chapter 9 bankruptcy case.⁹ (Voluntary Petition, Dkt. #1)

IV. The City Bears the Burden of Proof.

Before turning to the filed objections, it is necessary to point out that the City bears the burden to establish by a preponderance of the evidence each of the elements of eligibility under 11 U.S.C. § 109(c). Int'l Ass'n of Firefighters, Local 1186 v. City of Vallejo (In re City of Vallejo), 408 B.R. 280, 289 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2009); In re City of Stockton, Cal., 493 B.R. 772, 794 (Bankr. E.D. Cal. 2013).

V. The Objections of the Individuals Who Filed Objections Without an Attorney

As the Court commented at the conclusion of the hearing on September 19, 2013, the individuals' presentations were moving, passionate, thoughtful, compelling and well-articulated. These presentations demonstrated an extraordinary depth of concern for the City of Detroit, for the inadequate level of services that their city government provides and the personal hardships that creates, and, most clearly, for the pensions of City retirees and employees. These individuals expressed another deeply held concern, and even anger, that became a major theme of the hearing - the concern and anger that the State's appointment of an emergency manager over the City of Detroit violated their fundamental democratic right to self-governance.

The Court's role here is to evaluate how these concerns might impact the City's eligibility for bankruptcy. In making that evaluation, the Court can only consider the specific requirements of applicable law - 11 U.S.C. §§ 109(c) and 921(c). It is not the Court's role to examine this bankruptcy or these objections to this bankruptcy from any other perspective or on any other basis. For example, neither the popularity of the decision to appoint an emergency manager nor the popularity of the decision to file this bankruptcy case are matters of eligibility under the federal bankruptcy laws.

To the extent that individual objections raised arguments that do raise eligibility concerns, they are addressed through this opinion. It appears to the Court that these individuals' concerns should mostly be addressed in the context of whether the case was filed in good faith, as 11 U.S.C. § 921(c) requires. To a lesser extent, they should also be considered in the context of the specific requirement that the City was "insolvent." 11 U.S.C. § 109(c)(3). Accordingly, the Court will address these concerns in those Parts of this opinion. See Part XIII (insolvency) and Part XVII (good faith), below.

VI. The City of Detroit Is a "Municipality"
Under 11 U.S.C. § 109(c)(1).

With its petition, the City filed a "Memorandum in Support of Statement of Qualifications Pursuant to Section 109(c) of the Bankruptcy Code," asserting that the City is a "municipality" as defined in 11 U.S.C. § 101(40) and as required by 11 U.S.C. § 109(c)(1). (Dkt. #14 at 8-9) In the "Second Amended Final Pre-Trial Order," the parties so stipulated. (Dkt. #1647 at 11) Accordingly, the Court finds that the City has established this element of eligibility and will not discuss it further.

VII. The Bankruptcy Court Has the Authority to Determine the Constitutionality of Chapter 9
of the Bankruptcy Code and Public Act 436.

A. The Parties' Objections to the Court's Authority Under *Stern v. Marshall

Several objecting parties challenge the constitutionality of chapter 9 of the bankruptcy code under the United States Constitution. Citing the Supreme Court's decision in Stern v. Marshall, 131 S. Ct. 2594 (2011), these parties also assert that this Court does not have the authority to determine the constitutionality of chapter 9.

Several objecting parties also challenge the constitutionality of P.A. 436 under the Michigan Constitution. Some of these parties also assert that this Court does not have the authority to determine the constitutionality of P.A. 436.

The Official Committee of Retirees filed a motion to withdraw the reference on the grounds that this Court does not have the authority to determine the constitutionality of chapter 9 or P.A. 436. It also filed a motion for stay of the eligibility proceedings pending the district court's resolution of that motion. In this Court's denial of the stay motion, it concluded that the Committee was unlikely to succeed on its arguments regarding this Court's lack of authority under Stern. In re City of Detroit, Mich., 498 B.R. 776, 781-87 (Bankr. E.D. Mich. 2013). The following discussion is taken from that decision.

B. Stern, Waldman, and Global Technovations

In Stern v. Marshall, the Supreme Court held that the "judicial power of the United States" can only be exercised by an Article III court and "that in general, Congress may not withdraw from judicial cognizance any matter which, from its nature, is the subject of a suit at the common law, or in equity, or admiralty." 131 S. Ct. at 2608-12. The Supreme Court held that a bankruptcy court therefore lacks the constitutional authority to enter a final judgment on a debtor's counterclaim that is based on a private right when resolution of the counterclaim is not necessary to fix the creditor's claim. 131 S. Ct. at 2611-19. The Court described the issue before it as "narrow."¹⁰ 131 S. Ct. at 2620.

The Sixth Circuit has adhered to a narrow reading of Stern in the two cases that have addressed the issue: Onkyo Europe Elect. GMBH v. Global Technovations Inc. (In re Global Technovations Inc.), 694 F.3d 705 (6th Cir. 2012), and Waldman v. Stone, 698 F.3d 910 (6th Cir. 2012).

In Global Technovations, the Sixth Circuit summarized Stern as follows:

Stern's limited holding stated the following: When a claim is "a state law action independent of the federal bankruptcy law and not necessarily resolvable by a ruling on the creditor's proof of claim in bankruptcy," the bankruptcy court cannot enter final judgment. Id. at 2611. In those cases, the bankruptcy court may only enter proposed findings of fact and conclusions of law. Ibid.

694 F.3d at 722. Based on this view of Stern, the Global Technovations court held that the bankruptcy court did have the authority to rule on the debtor's fraudulent transfer counterclaim against a creditor that had filed a proof of claim. Id.

In Waldman, the Sixth Circuit summarized the holding of Stern as follows:

When a debtor pleads an action under federal bankruptcy law and seeks disallowance of a creditor's proof of claim against the estate—as in Katchen [v. Landy], 382 U.S. 323, 86 S. Ct. 467

¹⁰ Outside of the Sixth Circuit, the scope of Stern has been somewhat controversial. See generally Joshua D. Talicska, Jurisdictional Game Changer or Narrow Holding? Discussing the Potential Effects of Stern v. Marshall and Offering a Roadmap Through the Milieu, 9 SETON HALL CIRCUIT REV. 31 (Spring 2013); Michael Fillingame, Through a Glass, Darkly: Predicting Bankruptcy Jurisdiction Post-Stern, 50 HOUS. L. REV. 1189 (Symposium 2013); Tyson A. Crist, Stern v. Marshall: Application of the Supreme Court's Landmark Decision in the Lower Courts, 86 AM. BANKR. L.J. 627 (Fall 2012); Hon. Joan N. Feeney, Statement to the House of Representatives Judiciary Committee on the Impact of Stern v. Marshall, 86 AM. BANKR. L.J. 357 (Summer 2012).

698 F.3d at 919. Based on this view of Stern, the Waldman court held that the bankruptcy court lacked authority to enter a final judgment on the debtor’s prepetition fraud claim against a creditor that was not necessary to resolve in adjudicating the creditor’s claim against the debtor.

These cases recognize the crucial difference to which Stern adhered. A bankruptcy court may determine matters that arise directly under the bankruptcy code, such as fixing a creditor’s claim in the claims allowance process. However, a bankruptcy court may not determine more tangential matters, such as a state law claim for relief asserted by a debtor or the estate that arises outside of the bankruptcy process, unless it is necessary to resolve that claim as part of the claims allowance process. See City of Cent. Falls, R.I. v. Central Falls Teachers’ Union (In re City of Cent. Falls), R.I., 468 B.R. 36, 52 (Bankr. D.R.I. 2012) (“[A]lthough the counterclaim at issue in Stern arose under state law, the determinative feature of that counterclaim was that it did not arise under the Bankruptcy Code.”).

C. Applying Stern, Waldman, and Global Technovations in This Case

The issue presently before the Court is the debtor’s eligibility to file this chapter 9 case. A debtor’s eligibility to file bankruptcy stems directly from rights established by the bankruptcy code. As quoted above, Waldman expressly held, “When a debtor pleads an action under federal bankruptcy law,” the bankruptcy court’s authority is constitutional. 698 F.3d at 919. In this case, the debtor has done precisely that. In seeking relief under chapter 9, it has pled “an action under federal bankruptcy law.”

The parties’ federal and state constitutional challenges are simply legal arguments in support of their objection to the City’s request for bankruptcy relief. Nothing in Stern, Waldman, or Global Technovations suggests any limitation on the authority of a bankruptcy court to consider and decide any and all of the legal arguments that the parties present concerning an issue that is otherwise properly before it.

More specifically, those cases explicitly state that a bankruptcy court can constitutionally determine all of the issues that are raised in the context of resolving an objection to a proof of claim, even those involving state law.¹¹ For the same reasons, a bankruptcy court can also

¹¹ The Supreme Court has never squarely held that claims allowance, which is at the heart of the bankruptcy process, falls within the permissible scope of authority for a non-Article III court as a “public right” or any other long-standing historical exception to the requirement of Article III adjudication. Stern, 131 S. Ct. at 2614 n.7; Granfinanciera, S.A. v. Nordberg, 492 U.S. 33, 56, n.11, 109 S. Ct. 2782 (1989). However, in Northern Pipeline Const. Co. v. Marathon Pipe Line Co., 458 U.S. 50, 71, 102 S. Ct. 2858, 2871 (1982) (plurality opinion), the Court came tantalizingly close when it stated, “the restructuring of debtor-creditor relations . . . is at the core of the federal bankruptcy power . . . [and] may well be a ‘public right’[.]”

No court has ever held otherwise. On the contrary, the cases have uniformly concluded that the public rights doctrine is the basis of a bankruptcy court’s authority to adjudicate issues that arise under the bankruptcy code. For example, in Carpenters Pension Trust Fund for Northern California v. Moxley, 2013 WL 4417594, at *4 (9th Cir. Aug. 20, 2013), the Ninth Circuit held:

[T]he dischargeability determination is central to federal bankruptcy proceedings. Cent. Va. Cmty. Coll. v. Katz, 546 U.S. 356, 363–64, 126 S. Ct. 990, 163 L.Ed.2d 945 (2006). The dischargeability determination is necessarily resolved during the process of allowing or disallowing claims against the estate, and therefore constitutes a public rights dispute that the bankruptcy court may decide.

Similarly, in CoreStates Bank, N.A. v. Huls Am., Inc., 176 F.3d 187, 196 n.11 (3d Cir. 1999), the Third Circuit held, “The protections afforded a debtor under the Bankruptcy Code are congressionally created public rights.”

constitutionally determine all issues that are raised in the context of resolving an objection to eligibility.

D. Applying Stern in Similar Procedural Contexts

No cases address Stern in the context of eligibility for bankruptcy. Nevertheless, several cases do address Stern in the context of similar contested matters - conversion and dismissal of a case. Each case readily concludes that Stern's limitation on the authority of a bankruptcy court is inapplicable. For example, in In re USA Baby, Inc., 674 F.3d 882, 884 (7th Cir. 2012), the Seventh Circuit held that nothing in Stern precludes a bankruptcy court from converting a chapter 11 case to chapter 7, stating, "we cannot fathom what bearing that principle might have

In Kirschner v. Agolia, 476 B.R. 75, 79 (S.D.N.Y. 2012), the court stated, "[After Stern,] bankruptcy courts still have the ability to finally decide so-called 'public rights' claims that assert rights derived from a federal regulatory scheme and are therefore not the 'stuff of traditional actions,' as well as claims that are necessarily resolved in ruling on a creditor's proof of claim (e.g., a voidable preference claim)[.]"

Other cases also conclude that various matters arising within a bankruptcy case are within the public rights doctrine. See., e.g., In re Bataa/Kierland LLC, 2013 WL 3805143, at *3 (D. Ariz. July 22, 2013) (scope of Chapter 11 debtor's rights under easement); Hamilton v. Try Us, LLC, 491 B.R. 561 (W.D. Mo. 2013) (validity and amount of common law claim against Chapter 7 debtor); In re Prosser, 2013 WL 996367 (D.V.I. 2013) (trustee's claim for turnover of property); White v. Kubotek Corp., 2012 WL 4753310 (D. Mass. Oct. 2, 2012) (creditor's successor liability claim against purchaser of assets from bankruptcy estate); United States v. Bond, 2012 WL 4089648 (E.D.N.Y. Sept. 17, 2012) (trustee's claims for tax refund); Turner v. First Cmty. Credit Union (In re Turner), 462 B.R. 214 (Bankr. S.D. Tex. 2011) (violation of the automatic stay); In re Whitley, 2011 WL 5855242 (Bankr. S.D. Tex. Nov. 21, 2011) (reasonableness of fees of debtor's attorney); In re Carlew, 469 B.R. 666 (Bankr. S.D. Tex. 2012) (homestead exemption objection); West v. Freedom Med., Inc. (In re Apex Long Term Acute Care-Katy, L.P.), 465 B.R. 452, 458 (Bankr. S.D. Tex. 2011) (addressing preference actions, stating, "This Court concludes that the resolution of certain fundamental bankruptcy issues falls within the public rights doctrine."); Sigillito v. Hollander (In re Hollander), 2011 WL 6819022 (Bankr. E.D. La. Dec. 28, 2011) (nondischargeability for fraud).

In light of the unanimous holdings of these cases, the Court must conclude that its determination regarding the City's eligibility is within the public rights doctrine and therefore that the Court does have the authority to decide the issue, including all of the arguments that the objectors make in their objections.

on the present case.”¹² In Mahanna v. Bynum, 465 B.R. 436 (W.D. Tex. 2011), the court held that Stern does not prohibit the bankruptcy court from dismissing the debtors’ chapter 11 case. The court concluded, “[T]his appeal is entirely frivolous, and constitutes an unjustifiable waste of judicial resources[.]” Id. at 442. In In re Thalmann, 469 B.R. 677, 680 (Bankr. S.D. Tex. 2012), the court held that Stern does not prohibit a bankruptcy court from determining a motion to dismiss a case on the grounds of bad faith.¹³ This line of cases strongly suggests that Stern likewise does not preclude a bankruptcy court from determining eligibility.

E. The Objectors Overstate the Scope of Stern.

Implicitly recognizing how far its objection to this Court’s authority stretches Stern, the objectors argue that two aspects of their objection alter the analysis of Stern and its application here. The first is that their objections raise important issues under both the United States Constitution and the Michigan Constitution. The second is that strong federalism considerations warrant resolution of its objection by an Article III court. Neither consideration, however, is sufficient to justify the expansion of Stern that the objectors argue.

1. Stern Does Not Preclude This Court from Determining Constitutional Issues.

First, since Stern was decided, non-Article III courts have considered constitutional issues, always without objection.

Both bankruptcy courts and bankruptcy appellate panels have done so.¹⁴ More specifically, and perhaps more on point, in two recent chapter 9 cases, bankruptcy courts addressed constitutional issues without objection. Association of Retired Employees v. City of Stockton, Cal. (In re City of Stockton, Cal.), 478 B.R. 8 (Bankr. E.D. Cal. 2012) (holding that retirees' contracts could be impaired in the chapter 9 case without offending the constitution); In re City of Harrisburg, PA, 465 B.R. 744 (Bankr. M.D. Pa. 2011) (upholding the constitutionality of a Pennsylvania statute barring financially distressed third class cities from filing bankruptcy).

In addition, the Tax Court, a non-Article III court, has also examined constitutional issues, without objection.¹⁵ Likewise, the Court of Federal Claims, also a non-Article III court, has considered constitutional claims, without objection. This was done perhaps most famously in Beer v. United States, 111 Fed. Cl. 592 (Fed. Cl. 2013), which is a suit by Article III judges under the Compensation Clause of the United States Constitution.

Stern does not change this status quo, and nothing about the constitutional dimension of the objectors' eligibility objections warrants the expansion of Stern that they assert. As Stern itself reaffirmed, "We do not think the removal of counterclaims such as [the debtor's] from core bankruptcy jurisdiction meaningfully changes the division of labor in the current statute[.]" 131 S. Ct. at 2620. Expanding Stern to the point where it would prohibit bankruptcy courts from considering issues of state or federal constitutional law would certainly significantly change the division of labor between the bankruptcy courts and the district courts.¹⁶

C.I.R., 2012 WL 265883 (Tax Ct. 2012) (rejecting the taxpayer's challenge to the authority of an IRS office under the Appointments Clause).

This single sentence cannot be given much weight. First, it is only dicta. Second, it is against the manifest weight of the case authorities. Third, the quote assumes, without analysis, that the litigants do have an interest in having Article III courts interpret the Constitution, and thus bootstraps its own conclusion. Fourth, nothing in the Flinn Investments case states or even suggests that Stern itself prohibits a bankruptcy court from ruling on a constitutional issue where it otherwise has the authority to rule on the claim before it. Finally, the district court that issued Flinn Investments has now entered an amended standing order of reference in bankruptcy cases to provide that its bankruptcy court should first consider objections to its authority that parties raise under Stern v. Marshall. Apparently, that district court's position now is that Stern does not preclude the bankruptcy court from determining constitutional issues, including the constitutional issue of its own authority. The order is available at http://www.nysd.uscourts.gov/rules/StandingOrder_OrderReference_12mc32.pdf.

Two other cases are cited in support of the position that only an Article III court can determine a constitutional issue: TTOD Liquidation, Inc. v. Lim (In re Dott Acquisition, LLC), 2012 WL 3257882 (E.D. Mich. July 25, 2012), and Picard v. Schneiderman (In re Madoff Secs.), 492 B.R. 133 (S.D.N.Y. 2013). Both are irrelevant to the issue. Dott Acquisition did discuss

2. Federalism Issues Are Not Relevant to a Stern Analysis.

The objectors' federalism argument is even more perplexing and troubling. Certainly the objectors are correct that a ruling on whether the City was properly authorized to file this bankruptcy case, as required for eligibility under 11 U.S.C. § 109(c)(2), will require the interpretation of state law, including the Michigan Constitution.

However, ruling on state law issues is required in addressing many issues in bankruptcy cases. As the Supreme Court has observed, “[B]ankruptcy courts [] consult state law in determining the validity of most claims.” Travelers Cas. & Sur. Co. of Am. v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co., 549 U.S. 443, 444, 127 S. Ct. 1199, 1201 (2007). Concisely summarizing the reality of the bankruptcy process and the impact of Stern on it, the court in In re Olde Prairie Block Owner, LLC, 457 B.R. 692, 698 (Bankr. N.D. Ill. 2011), concluded:

[Stern] certainly did not hold that a Bankruptcy Judge cannot ever decide a state law issue. Indeed, a large portion of the work of a Bankruptcy Judge involves actions in which non-bankruptcy issues must be decided and that ‘stem from the bankruptcy itself or would necessarily be resolved in the claims allowance process,’ [131 S. Ct.] at 2618, for example, claims disputes, actions to bar dischargeability, motions for stay relief, and others. Those issues are likely within the ‘public rights’ exception as defined in Stern.

Other cases also illustrate the point.¹⁷

Stern but only in the unremarkable context of withdrawing the reference on a fraudulent transfer action. Schneiderman did not address a Stern issue at all, or even cite the case.

¹⁷ See, e.g., Picard v. Estate of Madoff, 464 B.R. 578, 586 (S.D.N.Y. 2011) (quoting In re Salander O'Reilly Galleries, 453 B.R. 106, 118 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2011)) (“It is clear” from Stern v. Marshall and other Supreme Court precedent that “the Bankruptcy Court is empowered to apply state law when doing so would finally resolve a claim.”); Anderson v. Bleckner (In re Batt), 2012 WL 4324930, at *2 (W.D. Ky. Sept. 20, 2012) (“Stern does not bar the exercise of the Bankruptcy Court’s jurisdiction in any and all circumstances where a party to an adversary

The distinction is clear. While in some narrow circumstances Stern prohibits a non-Article III court from adjudicating a state law claim for relief, a non-Article III court may consider and apply state law as necessary to resolve claims over which it does have authority under Stern. The mere fact that state law must be applied does not by itself mean that Stern prohibits a non-Article III court from determining the matter.

Moreover, nothing about a chapter 9 case suggests a different result. In City of Cent. Falls, R.I., 468 B.R. at 52, the court stated, “Nor did [Stern] address concerns of federalism; although the counterclaim at issue in Stern arose under state law, the determinative feature of that counterclaim was that it did not arise under the Bankruptcy Code. The operative dichotomy was not federal versus state, but bankruptcy versus nonbankruptcy.”

The troubling aspect of the objectors’ federalism argument is that it does not attempt to define, even vaguely, what interest of federalism is at stake here.

In Arizona v. United States, 132 S. Ct. 2492, 2500 (2012), the Supreme Court stated, “Federalism, central to the constitutional design, adopts the principle that both the National and State Governments have elements of sovereignty the other is bound to respect.” Accordingly, federalism is about the federal and state governments respecting each other’s sovereignty. It has nothing to do with the requirements of Article III or, to use the phraseology of Stern, with the “division of labor” between the district courts and the bankruptcy courts.¹⁸ 131 S. Ct. at 2620. See also City of Cent. Falls, R.I., 468 B.R. at 52, quoted above.

proceeding has not filed a proof of claim, or where the issue in an adversary proceeding is a matter of state law.”).

¹⁸ Genuine federalism concerns are fully respected in bankruptcy through the process of permissive abstention under 28 U.S.C. § 1334(c)(1).

F. Conclusion Regarding the Stern Issue

For these reasons, the Court concludes that it does have the authority to determine the constitutionality of chapter 9 under the United States Constitution and the constitutionality of P.A. 436 under the Michigan Constitution.

VIII. Chapter 9 Does Not Violate the United States Constitution.

The objecting parties argue that chapter 9 of the bankruptcy code violates several provisions of the United States Constitution, both on its face and as applied in this case. The Court will first address the arguments that chapter 9 is facially unconstitutional under the Bankruptcy Clause of Article I, Section 8, and the Contracts Clause of Article I, Section 10 of the United States Constitution. The Court will then address the argument that chapter 9, on its face and as applied, violates the Tenth Amendment to the United States Constitution and the principles of federalism embodied therein.

A. Chapter 9 Does Not Violate the Uniformity Requirement of the Bankruptcy Clause of the United States Constitution.

Article I, Section 8 of the United States Constitution provides: “The Congress shall have Power To . . . establish . . . uniform Laws on the subject of Bankruptcies throughout the United States.”

The objecting parties, principally AFSCME, assert chapter 9 violates the uniformity requirement of the United States Constitution because chapter 9 “ced[es] to each state the ability to define its own qualifications for a municipality to declare bankruptcy, chapter 9 permits the promulgation of non-uniform bankruptcies within states.” AFSCME’s Corrected Objection to Eligibility, ¶ 58 at 25 (citing M.C.L. § 141.1558). (Dkt. #505) AFSCME argues that this is particularly so in Michigan, where P.A. 436 allows the governor to exercise discretion when determining whether to authorize a municipality to seek chapter 9 relief, and also allows the governor to “attach whichever contingencies he wishes.” Id.

1. The Applicable Law

The Supreme Court has addressed the uniformity requirement in several cases. In Hanover Nat’l Bank v. Moyses, 186 U.S. 181, 22 S. Ct. 857 (1902), the Court held that the incorporation into the bankruptcy law of state laws relating to exemptions did not violate the uniformity requirement of the United States Constitution. The Court stated, “The general operation of the law is uniform although it may result in certain particulars differently in different states.” Id. at 190.

In Stellwagen v. Clum, 245 U.S. 605, 38 S. Ct. 215 (1918), the Court upheld the Bankruptcy Act’s incorporation of varying state fraudulent conveyance statutes, despite the fact that the laws “may lead to different results in different states.” Id. at 613.

In Blanchette v. Connecticut General Ins. Corps., 419 U.S. 102, 159, 95 S. Ct. 335 (1974), the Court held, “The uniformity provision does not deny Congress power to take into account differences that exist between different parts of the country, and to fashion legislation to resolve geographically isolated problems.”

The Supreme Court has struck down a bankruptcy statute as non-uniform only once. In Railway Labor Executives’ Ass’n v. Gibbons, 455 U.S. 457, 102 S. Ct. 1169 (1982), the Court struck down a private bankruptcy law that affected only the employees of a single company. The Court concluded, “The uniformity requirement, however, prohibits Congress from enacting a bankruptcy law that, by definition, applies only to one regional debtor. To survive scrutiny under the Bankruptcy Clause, a law must at least apply uniformly to a defined class of debtors.” Id. at 473.

More recently, the Sixth Circuit has addressed the uniformity requirement in two cases. In Schultz v. United States, 529 F.3d 343, 351 (6th Cir. 2008), the court concluded, “Over the last century, the Supreme Court has wrestled with the notion of geographic uniformity, ultimately concluding that it allows different effects in various states due to dissimilarities in state law, so long as the federal law applies uniformly among classes of debtors.” Summarizing the Supreme Court’s decisions in Moyses, Stellwagen, and Blanchette, the court stated, “Congress does not exceed its constitutional powers in enacting a bankruptcy law that permits variations based on state law or to solve geographically isolated problems.” Id. at 353.

In Richardson v. Schafer (In re Schafer), 689 F.3d 601 (6th Cir. 2012), the court stated, “the Bankruptcy Clause shall act as ‘no limitation upon congress as to the classification of persons who are to be affected by such laws, provided only the laws shall have uniform operation throughout the United States.’” Id. at 611 (quoting Leidigh Carriage Co. v. Stengel, 95 F. 637, 646 (6th Cir. 1899)). It added, “Schultz clarified that it is not the outcome that determines the uniformity, but the uniform process by which creditors and debtors in a certain place are treated.” Id.

2. Discussion

Chapter 9 does exactly what these cases require to meet the uniformity requirement of the Bankruptcy Clause of the United States Constitution. The “defined class of debtors” to which chapter 9 applies is the class of entities that meet the eligibility requirements of 11 U.S.C. § 109(c). One such qualification is that the entity is “specifically authorized . . . to be a debtor under such chapter by State law, or by a governmental officer or organization empowered by State law to authorize such entity to be a debtor under such chapter[.]” § 109(c)(2). As Moyses and Stellwagen specifically held, it is of no consequence in the uniformity analysis that this requirement of state authorization to file a chapter 9 case may lead to different results in different states.

It appears that AFSCME objects to the lack of uniformity that may arise from the differing circumstances of municipalities that the governor might authorize to file a chapter 9 petition. That it not the test. Rather, the test is whether chapter 9 applies uniformly to all chapter 9 debtors. It does.

Accordingly, the Court concludes that chapter 9 satisfies the uniformity requirement of the Bankruptcy Clause of the United States Constitution.

B. Chapter 9 Does Not Violate the Contracts Clause of the United States Constitution.

The Contracts Clause of the United States Constitution, which is Article I, Section 10, provides, “No State shall . . . pass any . . . Law impairing the Obligation of Contracts, . . .” AFSCME argues that chapter 9 violates the Contracts Clause. This argument is frivolous. Chapter 9 is a federal law. Article I, Section 10 does not prohibit Congress from enacting a “Law impairing the Obligation of Contracts.” Id.

As the court stated in In re Sanitary & Imp. Dist., No. 7, 98 B.R. 970 (Bankr. D. Neb. 1989):

The Court further concludes that the Bankruptcy Code adopted pursuant to the United States Constitution Article 1, Section 8 permits the federal courts through confirmation of a Chapter 9 plan to impair contract rights of bondholders and that such impairment is not a violation by the state or the municipality of Article 1, Section 10 of the United States Constitution which prohibits a state from impairing such contract rights.

Id. at 973.

Or, more succinctly stated, “The Bankruptcy Clause necessarily authorizes Congress to make laws that would impair contracts. It long has been understood that bankruptcy law entails impairment of contracts.” Stockton, 478 B.R. at 15 (citing Sturges v. Crowninshield, 17 U.S. 122, 191 (1819)).

C. Chapter 9 Does Not Violate the Tenth Amendment to the United States Constitution.

The Tenth Amendment provides, “The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectively, or to the people.”

This Amendment reflects the concept that the United States Constitution “created a Federal Government of limited powers.” Gregory v. Ashcroft, 501 U.S. 452, 457, 111 S. Ct. 2395 (1991); see also United States v. Darby, 312 U.S. 100, 124, 61 S. Ct. 451 (1941) (The Tenth Amendment “states but a truism that all is retained which has not been surrendered.”).

The Supreme Court’s “consistent understanding” of the Tenth Amendment has been that “[t]he States unquestionably do retain a significant measure of sovereign authority . . . to the extent that the Constitution has not divested them of their original powers and transferred those powers to the Federal Government.” New York v. United States, 505 U.S. 144, 156, 112 S. Ct. 2408 (1992) (quoting Garcia v. San Antonio Metropolitan Transit Authority, 469 U.S. 528, 549, 105 S.Ct. 1005 (1985) (quotation marks omitted); see also South Carolina v. Baker, 485 U.S. 505, 511 n.5, 108 S. Ct. 1355 (1988) (“We use ‘the Tenth Amendment’ to encompass any implied constitutional limitation on Congress’ authority to regulate state activities, whether grounded in the Tenth Amendment itself or in principles of federalism derived generally from the Constitution.”); United States v. Sprague, 282 U.S. 716, 733, 51 S. Ct. 220 (1931) (“The Tenth Amendment was intended to confirm the understanding of the people at the time the Constitution was adopted, that powers not granted to the United States were reserved to the states or to the people.”).

The objecting parties argue that chapter 9 violates these principles of federalism because, in the words of AFSCME, it “allows Congress to set the rules controlling State fiscal self-management—an area of exclusive state sovereignty.” AFSCME’s Corrected Objection to Eligibility, ¶ 40 at 15-16. (Dkt. #505) The Court interprets this argument as a facial challenge to the constitutionality of chapter 9. The as-applied challenge, as stated by the Retiree Committee and other objecting parties, is that if the State of Michigan can properly authorize the City of Detroit to file for chapter 9 relief without the explicit protection of accrued pension rights for individual retired city employees, then chapter 9 “must be found to be unconstitutional as permitting acts in derogation of Michigan’s sovereignty.” Retiree Committee Objection to Eligibility, ¶ 3 at 1-2. (Dkt. #805)

Before addressing the merits of these arguments, however, the Court must first address two preliminary issues that the United States raised in its “Memorandum in Support of Constitutionality of Chapter 9 of Title 11 of the United States Code” – standing and ripeness. (Dkt. #1149)

1. The Tenth Amendment Challenges to Chapter 9 Are Ripe for Decision and the Objecting Parties Have Standing.

The United States argues that the creditors who assert that chapter 9 violates the Tenth Amendment as applied in this case lack standing and that this challenge is not ripe for adjudication at this stage in the case.¹⁹ The Court concludes that the objecting parties do have standing and that their challenge is now ripe for determination.

¹⁹ The standing and ripeness issues are discussed here because the United States and the City framed this issue in the context of the Tenth Amendment challenge to chapter 9 of the

a. Standing

“As a rule, a party must have a ‘personal stake in the outcome of the controversy’ to satisfy Article III.” Stevenson v. J.C. Bradford & Co. (In re Cannon), 277 F.3d 838, 852 (6th Cir. 2002) (citing Warth v. Seldin, 422 U.S. 490, 498, 95 S. Ct. 2197 (1975), quoting Baker v. Carr, 369 U.S. 186, 204, 82 S. Ct. 691, 703 (1962)).

In a bankruptcy case, the standing of a party requesting to be heard turns on whether the party is a “party in interest.” See In re Global Indus. Techs., Inc., 645 F.3d 201, 210 (3rd Cir. 2011). A party in interest is one who “has a sufficient stake in the proceeding so as to require representation.” In re Amatex Corp., 755 F.2d 1034, 1042 (3d Cir. 1985).

11 U.S.C. § 1109(b), provides, “A party in interest, including . . . a creditor . . . may raise and may appear and be heard on any issue in a case under this chapter.” 11 U.S.C. § 901(a) makes this provision applicable in a chapter 9 case.

In the chapter 9 case of In re Barnwell County Hosp., 459 B.R. 903, 906 (Bankr. D.S.C. 2011), the court stated, “‘Party in interest’ is a term of art in bankruptcy. Although not defined in the Bankruptcy Code, it reflects the unique nature of a bankruptcy case, where the global financial circumstances of a debtor are resolved with respect to all of debtor’s creditors and other affected parties.”

In a chapter 9 case on point, In re Suffolk Regional Off-Track Betting Corp., 462 B.R. 397, 403 (Bankr. E.D.N.Y. 2011), the court held that a party to an executory contract with a municipal debtor has standing to object to the debtor’s eligibility.

bankruptcy code. To the extent that the argument might also be made to the other constitutional challenges to chapter 9, the same considerations would apply and would lead to the same conclusion.

Similarly, in In re Wolf Creek Valley Metro. Dist. No. IV, 138 B.R. 610 (D .Colo. 1992), also a chapter 9 case, the court stated, “[M]any courts have concluded that the party requesting standing must either be a creditor of a debtor . . . or be able to assert an equitable claim against the estate.” Id. at 616 (citation and quotation marks omitted). See also In re Addison Community Hospital Authority, 175 B.R. 646 (Bankr. E.D. Mich. 1994) (holding that creditors are parties in interest and have standing to be heard).

Under 11 U.S.C. § 1109(b) and these cases, it is abundantly clear that the objecting parties, who are creditors with pension claims against the City, have standing to assert their constitutional claim as part of their challenge to this bankruptcy case.

Nevertheless, the United States asserts that Lujan v. Defenders of Wildlife, 504 U.S. 555, 112 S. Ct. 2130 (1992), precludes standing here. In that case, the Supreme Court adopted this test to determine whether a party has standing under Article III of the constitution:

Over the years, our cases have established that the irreducible constitutional minimum of standing contains three elements. First, the plaintiff must have suffered an “injury in fact”—an invasion of a legally protected interest which is (a) concrete and particularized and (b) “actual or imminent, not ‘conjectural’ or ‘hypothetical.’” Second, there must be a causal connection between the injury and the conduct complained of—the injury has to be “fairly . . . trace[able] to the challenged action of the defendant, and not . . . th[e] result [of] the independent action of some third party not before the court.” Third, it must be “likely,” as opposed to merely “speculative,” that the injury will be “redressed by a favorable decision.”

Id. at 560-61 (internal citations omitted). The United States asserts that the objecting parties do not meet this standard because their injury is not “imminent” at this stage of the proceedings.

The Court concludes that the contours of standing under 11 U.S.C. § 1109(b) are entirely consistent with the constitutional test for standing that the Supreme Court adopted in Lujan. A creditor has a direct, personal stake in the outcome of a bankruptcy case and thus has standing to challenge the bankruptcy filing. Accordingly, the Court concludes that every creditor of the City of Detroit has standing to object to its eligibility to be a debtor under chapter 9.

b. Ripeness

The United States argues that the issue of whether chapter 9 is constitutional as applied in this case is not ripe for determination at this time. The City joins in this argument. City's Reply to Retiree Committee's Objection to Eligibility at 3-5. (Dkt. #918)

The premise of the argument is that the filing of the case did not result in the impairment of any pension claims. Thus the United States argues that this issue will be ripe only when the City proposes a plan that would impair pensions if confirmed. Until then, it argues, their injury is speculative.²⁰

In Miles Christi Religious Order v. Township of Northville, 629 F.3d 533 (6th Cir. 2010), the Sixth Circuit summarized the case law on the ripeness doctrine:

The ripeness doctrine encompasses "Article III limitations on judicial power" and "prudential reasons" that lead federal courts to "refus[e] to exercise jurisdiction" in certain cases. Nat'l Park Hospitality Ass'n v. Dep't of Interior, 538 U.S. 803, 808, 123 S. Ct. 2026, 155 L.Ed.2d 1017 (2003). The "judicial Power" extends only to "Cases" and "Controversies," U.S. Const. art. III, § 2, not to "any legal question, wherever and however presented," without regard to its present amenability to judicial resolution. Warshak v. United States, 532 F.3d 521, 525 (6th Cir. 2008) (en banc). And the federal courts will not "entangl[e]" themselves "in abstract disagreements" ungrounded in the here and now. Abbott Labs. v. Gardner, 387 U.S. 136, 148, 87 S. Ct. 1507, 18 L.Ed.2d 681 (1967); see Warshak, 532 F.3d at 525. Haste makes waste, and the "premature adjudication" of legal questions compels courts to resolve matters, even constitutional matters, that may with time be satisfactorily resolved at the local level, Nat'l Park Hospitality Ass'n, 538 U.S. at 807, 123 S.Ct. 2026; Grace Cmty. Church v. Lenox Twp., 544 F.3d 609, 617 (6th Cir. 2008), and that “may turn out differently in different settings,” Warshak, 532 F.3d at 525.

To decide whether a dispute has ripened into an action amenable to and appropriate for judicial resolution, we ask two questions: (1) is the dispute “fit” for a court decision in the sense that it arises in “a concrete factual context” and involves “a dispute that is likely to come to pass”? and (2) what are the risks to the claimant if the federal courts stay their hand? Warshak, 532 F.3d at 525; see Abbott Labs., 387 U.S. at 149, 87 S. Ct. 1507.

Id. at 537.

Although the argument of the United States has some appeal,²¹ the Court must reject it, largely for the same reasons that it found that the objecting parties have standing. The ultimate issue before the Court at this time is whether the City is eligible to be a debtor in chapter 9. This dispute arises in the concrete factual context of the City of Detroit filing this bankruptcy case under chapter 9 of the bankruptcy code and the objecting parties challenging the constitutionality of that very law. This dispute is not an “abstract disagreement ungrounded in the here and now.” It is here and it is now.

The Court further concludes that as a matter of judicial prudence, resolving this issue now will likely expedite the resolution of this bankruptcy case. The Court notes that the parties have fully briefed and argued the merits. Further, if the Tenth Amendment challenge to chapter 9 is resolved now, the parties and the Court can then focus on whether the City’s plan (to be filed shortly, it states) meets the confirmation requirements of the bankruptcy code.

²¹ Early in the case, the Court expressed its doubts about the ripeness of this constitutional issue in the eligibility context. The Court was concerned that the issue of whether pension rights can be impaired in bankruptcy would be more appropriately considered a confirmation issue, as the United States argues now. At the request of the objecting parties, however, the Court reconsidered that position and now agrees that the issue is ripe at this point.

Accordingly, the Court concludes that the objecting parties' challenge to chapter 9 of the bankruptcy code as applied in this case is ripe for determination at this time.

2. The Supreme Court Has Already Determined That Chapter 9 Is Constitutional.

The question of whether a federal municipal bankruptcy act can be administered consistent with the principles of federalism reflected in the Tenth Amendment has already been decided. In United States v. Bekins, 304 U.S. 27, 58 S. Ct. 811 (1938), the United States Supreme Court specifically upheld the Municipal Corporation Bankruptcy Act, 50 Stat. 653 (1937), over objections that the statute violated the Tenth Amendment. Bekins, 304 U.S. at 53-54.

In upholding the 1937 Act, the Bekins court found:

The statute is carefully drawn so as not to impinge upon the sovereignty of the State. The State retains control of its fiscal affairs. The bankruptcy power is exercised in relation to a matter normally within its province and only in a case where the action of the taxing agency in carrying out a plan of composition approved by the bankruptcy court is authorized by state law. It is of the essence of sovereignty to be able to make contracts and give consents bearing upon the exertion of governmental power. . . . The reservation to the States by the Tenth Amendment protected, and did not destroy, their right to make contracts and give consents where that action would not contravene the provisions of the Federal Constitution.

Bekins, 304 U.S. at 51-2.

The Court further noted that two years earlier, it had struck down a previous version of the federal municipal bankruptcy law for violating the Tenth Amendment. Ashton v. Cameron

County Water Improvement Dist. No. 1, 298 U.S. 513, 56 S. Ct. 892 (1936).²² The Court found, however, that in the 1937 Act, Congress had “carefully” amended the law “to afford no ground for [the Tenth Amendment] objection.” Bekins, 304 U.S. at 50. The Court quoted approvingly, and at length, from a House of Representatives Committee report on the 1937 Act:

²² It is interesting that Justice Cardozo did not participate in the Bekins decision. 304 U.S. at 54. In his dissent in Ashton two years before, he made this astute observation about the economic realities of municipal bankruptcies:

If voluntary bankruptcies are anathema for governmental units, municipalities and creditors have been caught in a vise from which it is impossible to let them out. Experience makes it certain that generally there will be at least a small minority of creditors who will resist a composition, however fair and reasonable, if the law does not subject them to a pressure to obey the general will. This is the impasse from which the statute gives relief. . . . To hold that this purpose must be thwarted by the courts because of a supposed affront to the dignity of a state, though the state disclaims the affront and is doing all it can to keep the law alive, is to make dignity a doubtful blessing. Not by arguments so divorced from the realities of life has the bankruptcy power been brought to the present state of its development during the century and a half of our national existence.

298 U.S. at 541 (emphasis added). He then made this argument regarding the constitutional foundation for municipal bankruptcy law, which, arguably, the Court in Bekins adopted:

The act does not authorize the states to impair through their own laws the obligation of existing contracts. Any interference by the states is remote and indirect. At most what they do is to waive a personal privilege that they would be at liberty to claim. If contracts are impaired, the tie is cut or loosened through the action of the court of bankruptcy approving a plan of composition under the authority of federal law. There, and not beyond in an ascending train of antecedents, is the cause of the impairment to which the law will have regard. Impairment by the central government through laws concerning bankruptcies is not forbidden by the Constitution. Impairment is not forbidden unless effected by the states themselves. No change in obligation results from the filing of a petition by one seeking a discharge, whether a public or a private corporation invokes the jurisdiction. The court, not the petitioner, is the efficient cause of the release.

Id. at 541-42 (citations omitted) (emphasis added).

There is no hope for relief through statutes enacted by the States, because the Constitution forbids the passing of State laws impairing the obligations of existing contracts. Therefore, relief must come from Congress, if at all. The committee are not prepared to admit that the situation presents a legislative no-man's land. It is the opinion of the committee that the present bill removes the objections to the unconstitutional statute, and gives a forum to enable those distressed taxing agencies which desire to adjust their obligations and which are capable of reorganization, to meet their creditors under necessary judicial control and guidance and free from coercion, and to affect such adjustment on a plan determined to be mutually advantageous.

Id. at 51 (quotation marks omitted).

Bekins thus squarely rejects the challenges that the objecting parties assert to chapter 9 in this case and it has not been overruled.

It is well-settled that this Court is bound by the decisions of the Supreme Court. In Agostini v. Felton, 521 U.S. 203, 117 S. Ct. 1997 (1997), the Court stated, “[i]f a precedent of this Court has direct application in a case, yet appears to rest on reasons rejected in some other line of decisions, the Court of Appeals should follow the case which directly controls, leaving to this Court the prerogative of overruling its own decisions.” Id. at 237 (quoting Rodriguez de Quijas v. Shearson/American Express, Inc., 490 U.S. 477, 484, 109 S. Ct. 1917 (1989) (quotation marks omitted)). See also Grutter v. Bollinger, 288 F.3d 732, 744 (6th Cir. 2002).

Nevertheless, the objecting parties assert that subsequent amendments to the municipal bankruptcy statute and subsequent Supreme Court decisions regarding the Tenth Amendment compel the conclusion that Bekins is no longer good law, or at least that it is inapplicable in this case. Specifically, in its objection, AFSCME argues that since Bekins was decided, “intervening Supreme Court precedent holds that states can fashion their own municipal reorganization statutes, but cannot consent to any derogation of their sovereign powers.” AFSCME’s

Corrected Objection to Eligibility, ¶ 44 at 17. (Dkt. #505) Although the Court concludes that Bekins remains good law and is controlling here, the Court will address these arguments.

3. Changes to Municipal Bankruptcy Law Since 1937 Do Not Undermine the Continuing Validity of Bekins.

The only relevant change to municipal bankruptcy law that AFSCME identifies is the addition of § 903 to the bankruptcy code, the substance of which was added in 1946 as § 83(i) of the 1937 Act. That section provided, “[N]o State law prescribing a method of composition of indebtedness of such agencies shall be binding upon any creditor who does not consent to such composition, and no judgment shall be entered under such State law which would bind a creditor to such composition without his consent.”

In slightly different form, § 903 of the bankruptcy code now provides:

This chapter does not limit or impair the power of a State to control, by legislation or otherwise, a municipality of or in such State in the exercise of the political or governmental powers of such municipality, including expenditures for such exercise, but—

(1) a State law prescribing a method of composition of indebtedness of such municipality may not bind any creditor that does not consent to such composition; and

(2) a judgment entered under such a law may not bind a creditor that does not consent to such composition.

11 U.S.C. § 903.

AFSCME argues that this provision created a new exclusivity in chapter 9 that forces the states to adopt the federal scheme for adjusting municipal debts. This exclusivity, the argument goes, deprives the states of the ability to enact state legislation providing for municipal debt adjustment, which is inconsistent with the principles of federalism set forth in New York v. United States, 505 U.S. 144, 112 S. Ct. 2408 (1992), and Printz v. United States, 521 U.S. 898, 117 S. Ct. 2365 (1997).

This argument fails on two levels. First, other than in one limited instance, Faitoute Iron & Steel Co. v. City of Asbury Park, N.J., 316 U.S. 502, 62 S. Ct. 1129 (1942), courts have always interpreted the Contracts Clause of the United States Constitution to prohibit the states from enacting legislation providing for municipal bankruptcies. The 1946 amendment that added the provision that is now § 903 did not change this law.

Second, neither New York nor Printz undermine Bekins. As developed above, at its core, Bekins rests on state consent. As will be developed below, like Bekins, both New York and Printz are also built on the concept of state consent. Indeed, it was the lack of state consent to the federal programs in those cases that caused the Supreme Court to find them unconstitutional.

a. The Contracts Clause of the United States Constitution Prohibits States from Enacting Municipal Bankruptcy Laws.

The Contracts Clause of the United States Constitution, Article I, Section 10, states, “No State shall . . . pass any . . . Law impairing the Obligation of Contracts[.]”

Applying this clause, the Supreme Court has stated, “When a State itself enters into a contract, it cannot simply walk away from its financial obligations.” Energy Reserves Grp., Inc. v. Kansas Power & Light Co., 459 U.S. 400, 412 n.14, 103 S. Ct. 697 (1983). “It long has been established that the Contracts Clause limits the power of the States to modify their own contracts as well as to regulate those between private parties.” U.S. Trust Co. of New York v. New Jersey, 431 U.S. 1, 17, 97 S. Ct. 1505 (1977) (citing Dartmouth College v. Woodward, 4 L. Ed. 629 (1819); Fletcher v. Peck, 3 L. Ed. 162 (1810)). Section 903 simply restates this principle.

Moreover, contrary to AFSCME’s assertion, it is clear that Bekins fully considered this issue. It found, “The natural and reasonable remedy through [bankruptcy] was not available under state law by reason of the restriction imposed by the Federal Constitution upon the impairment of contracts by state legislation.” Bekins, 304 U.S. at 54.

b. Asbury Park Is Limited to Its Own Facts.

As noted above, only one case, Asbury Park, is to the contrary. The Court concludes, however, that this case represents a very narrow departure from these principles and its holding is limited to the unique facts of that case. Indeed, the Court itself stated, “We do not go beyond the case before us.” 316 U.S. at 516.

The adjustment plan at issue in Asbury Park was “authorized” by the New Jersey state court on July 21, 1937. This was after the federal municipal bankruptcy law was struck down in Ashton and before the enactment of the municipal bankruptcy act that Bekins approved. Moreover, in Asbury Park, the bonds affected by the plan of adjustment, which the Court found were worthless prior to the adjustment, were reissued without a reduction in the principal obligation and became significantly more valuable as a result of the adjustment. Asbury Park, 316 U.S. at 507-08, 512-13.

The limited application of Asbury Park to its own facts has been repeatedly recognized. The cases now firmly establish that the Contracts Clause of the United States Constitution bars a state from enacting municipal bankruptcy legislation. In U.S. Trust Co. of New York v. New Jersey, 431 U.S. 1, 27, 97 S. Ct. 1505 (1977), the Supreme Court observed, “The only time in this century that alteration of a municipal bond contract has been sustained by this Court was in [Asbury Park].”²³

In In re Jefferson Cnty., Ala., 474 B.R. 228, 279 (Bankr. N.D. Ala. 2012), aff'd sub nom. Mosley v. Jefferson Cnty. (In re Jefferson Cnty.), 2012 WL 3775758 (N.D. Ala. Aug. 28, 2012), the court stated, “A financially prostrate municipal government has one viable option to resolve debts in a non-consensual manner. It is a bankruptcy case. Outside of bankruptcy, non-consensual alteration of contracted debt is, at the very least, severely restricted, if not impossible.” The court added, “There has been only one instance in this and the last century when the Supreme Court of the United States has sustained the alteration of a municipal bond contract outside a bankruptcy case.” Id. at 279 n.21. It further observed that Asbury Park has since been “distinguished and its precedent status, if any, is dubious.” Id.

Accordingly, the Court concludes that the addition of § 903 to our municipal bankruptcy law does not undermine the continuing validity of Bekins.

4. Changes to the Supreme Court’s Tenth Amendment Jurisprudence Do Not Undermine the Continuing Validity of Bekins.

a. New York v. United States

In New York v. United States, 505 U.S. 144, 112 S. Ct. 2408 (1992), the Supreme Court considered a Tenth Amendment objection to the Low-Level Radioactive Waste Policy Amendments Act of 1985, 42 U.S.C. § 2021b, et seq. Congress enacted that law to address the problem of identifying storage sites for low-level radioactive waste. 505 U.S. at 152-54. The Act provided three different incentives for each state to take responsibility over the nuclear waste generated within its borders. Id.

The first was a monetary incentive to share in the proceeds of a surcharge on radioactive waste received from other states, based on a series of milestones. 505 U.S. at 171. The Court found this program constitutional because it was, in fact, nothing more than an incentive to the state to regulate. Congress had “placed conditions—the achievement of the milestones—on the receipt of federal funds.” Id. at 171. The states could choose to achieve these milestones, and receive the federal funds, or not. Id. at 173. “[T]he location of such choice in the States is an inherent element in any conditional exercise of Congress’ spending power.” Id.

The Court then stated, “In the second set of incentives, Congress has authorized States and regional compacts with disposal sites gradually to increase the cost of access to the sites, and then to deny access altogether, to radioactive waste generated in States that do not meet federal deadlines.” Id. The Court held that this provision was also constitutional, again because the states retained the choice to participate in the federal program or not.

The Court explained, “Where federal regulation of private activity is within the scope of the Commerce Clause, we have recognized the ability of Congress to offer States the choice of regulating that activity according to federal standards or having state law pre-empted by federal regulation.” Id. at 173-74 (emphasis added). “[T]he choice remains at all times with the residents of the State, not with Congress. The State need not expend any funds, or participate in any federal program, if local residents do not view such expenditures or participation as worthwhile.” Id. at 174.

These two provisions of the Act passed constitutional muster precisely because states could consent to participation in the federal program or withhold their consent as they saw fit. The Court held that these two programs:

represent permissible conditional exercises of Congress’ authority under the Spending and Commerce Clauses respectively, in forms that have now grown commonplace. Under each, Congress offers the States a legitimate choice rather than issuing an unavoidable command. The States thereby retain the ability to set their legislative agendas; state government officials remain accountable to the local electorate.

Id. at 185.

In contrast, the third of these provisions - the “take title” provision” - forced the states to choose between either regulating the disposal of radioactive waste according to Congress’s standards or “taking title” to that waste, thereby assuming all the liabilities of its producers. Id. at 174-75. The Court held that this provision violated the Tenth Amendment, because it offered the states no choice but to do the bidding of the federal government. This provision, the Court determined, did not ask for state “consent” but instead “commandeered” the states.

The Court’s precedent is clear that the federal government may not require the states to regulate according to federal terms. “[T]he Constitution has never been understood to confer upon Congress the ability to require the States to govern according to Congress’ instructions.” Id. at 162. “Congress may not simply ‘commandee[r] the legislative processes of the States by directly compelling them to enact and enforce a federal regulatory program.’” Id. at 161 (quoting Hodel v. Virginia Surface Mining & Reclamation Assn., Inc., 452 U.S. 264, 288, 101 S. Ct. 2352 (1981)).

The “take title” provision did just that. Although guised as a “so-called incentive” scheme, the Court found that the “take title” provisions offered the states no real choice at all.

Because an instruction to state governments to take title to waste, standing alone, would be beyond the authority of Congress, and because a direct order to regulate, standing alone, would also be beyond the authority of Congress, it follows that Congress lacks the power to offer the States a choice between the two.

Id. at 176. The “take title” provisions did not give the states what the Court deemed the constitutionally “critical alternative[.]” Id. at 176. “A State may not decline to administer the federal program. No matter which path the State chooses, it must follow the direction of Congress.” Id. at 177.

The cornerstone of United States v. New York, then, is state consent. The federal government may constitutionally encourage, incentivize, or even entice, states to do the federal government's bidding. It may not command them to do so.

b. Printz v. United States

The Supreme Court reiterated these principles in Printz v. United States, 521 U.S. 898, 117 S. Ct. 2365 (1997), and extended them to Congressional efforts to compel state officers to act. At issue in Printz were provisions of the Brady Handgun Violence Prevention Act, 18 U.S.C. § 922, that required state and local law enforcement officers to carry out background checks for firearms dealers in connection with proposed sales of firearms. It also required that the background checks be performed in accordance with the federal law. Printz, 521 U.S. at 903-04.

The Court concluded that while state and local governments remained free to voluntarily participate in the background check program, the “mandatory obligation imposed on [law enforcement officers] to perform background checks on prospective handgun purchasers plainly runs afoul [of the Constitution].” Id. at 933. Again, the stumbling block was a lack of state consent:

We held in New York that Congress cannot compel the States to enact or enforce a federal regulatory program. Today we hold that Congress cannot circumvent that prohibition by conscripting the State's officers directly. The Federal Government may neither issue directives requiring the States to address particular problems, nor command the States' officers, or those of their political subdivisions, to administer or enforce a federal regulatory program.

521 U.S. at 935.

c. New York and Printz
Do Not Undermine Bekins.

Printz acknowledged that states could volunteer to carry out federal law. Id. at 910-11, 916-17 (describing the history of state officers carrying out federal law as involving “voluntary” action on the part of the states). Concurring, Justice O’Connor added, “Our holding, of course, does not spell the end of the objectives of the Brady Act. States and chief law enforcement officers may voluntarily continue to participate in the federal program.” Id. at 936.

By the same token, New York acknowledged that states can and do enter into voluntary contracts with the federal government whereby states agree to legislate according to federal terms in exchange for some federal benefit or forbearance. New York, 505 U.S. at 166-67.

What makes those federal programs constitutionally permissible, and the commandeering at issue in New York and Printz impermissible, is consent, and nothing more. If the state is acting voluntarily, it is free to engage with the federal government across a broad range of subject areas. The Tenth Amendment to the United States Constitution is violated only when the state does not consent.

Chapter 9 simply does not implicate the concerns of New York and Printz. As Bekins emphasized, chapter 9 “is limited to voluntary proceedings for the composition of debts.” Bekins, 304 U.S. at 47 (emphasis added). The Bekins Court explained:

The bankruptcy power is competent to give relief to debtors in such a plight and, if there is any obstacle to its exercise in the case of the districts organized under state law it lies in the right of the State to oppose federal interference. The State steps in to remove that obstacle. The State acts in aid, and not in derogation, of its sovereign powers. It invites the intervention of the bankruptcy power to save its agency which the State itself is powerless to rescue. Through its cooperation with the national government the needed relief is given. We see no ground for the conclusion that the Federal Constitution, in the interest of state sovereignty, has reduced both sovereigns to helplessness in such a case.

The federal government cannot and does not compel states to authorize municipalities to file for chapter 9 relief, and municipalities are not permitted to seek chapter 9 relief without specific state authorization. 11 U.S.C. § 109(c)(2). There is simply no “commandeering” involved. New York, 505 U.S. at 161. Chapter 9 does not compel a state to enact a specific regulatory program, as in New York. Nor does chapter 9 press state officers into federal service, as in Printz. Instead, as Bekins held, valid state authorization is required for a municipality to proceed in chapter 9.

Moreover, during the pendency of the chapter 9 case, § 904 of the bankruptcy code mandates that the bankruptcy court “may not . . . interfere with (1) any of the political or governmental powers of the debtor; (2) any of the property or revenues of the debtor; or (3) the debtor’s use or employment of any income-producing property.” 11 U.S.C. § 904. At the same time, bankruptcy code § 903 mandates, “This chapter does not limit or impair the power of a State to control . . . a municipality of or in such State in the exercise of the political or governmental powers of such municipality[.]”

Because the state and local officials must authorize the filing of a chapter 9 petition, 11 U.S.C. § 109(c)(2), and because they retain control over “the political or governmental powers” of the municipality, these state officials remain fully politically accountable to the citizens of the state and municipality. See New York, 505 U.S. at 186 (“The States thereby retain the ability to set their legislative agendas; state government officials remain accountable to the local electorate.”).

d. Explaining Some Puzzling Language in *New York

To be sure, some language in New York (not repeated in Printz) lends support to the argument that state consent cannot cure a federal law that would otherwise violate the Tenth Amendment. In New York, Justice O'Connor's opinion for the Court explained that federalism does not exist for the benefit of states, as such, but rather is a part of the constitutional structure whose purpose is to benefit individuals. 505 U.S. at 182. Justice O'Connor continued:

Where Congress exceeds its authority relative to the States, . . . the departure from the constitutional plan cannot be ratified by the "consent" of state officials. . . . The constitutional authority of Congress cannot be expanded by the "consent" of the governmental unit whose domain is thereby narrowed, whether that unit is the Executive Branch or the States."

Id.

Some of the parties in this case have seized upon this language to argue that "the Supreme Court has weakened if not rejected Bekins' foundation – that a State's consent can remedy any violation of the Tenth Amendment and principles of federalism as they affect individual citizens." Retiree Committee Objection to Eligibility, ¶ 37 at 19. (Dkt. #805)

The difficulty with this argument is that it proves too much. If this language from New York has the sweeping force that the objecting parties ascribe to it, then a state's consent could never "cure" what would otherwise be a Tenth Amendment violation. The two incentives in New York that were constitutionally sustained would instead have been struck down like the "take title" provision. As the Court emphasized in New York, "even where Congress has the authority under the Constitution to pass laws requiring or prohibiting certain acts, it lacks the power directly to compel the States to require or prohibit those acts." New York, 505 U.S. at 166.

Yet, despite Congress' inability to compel states to regulate according to federal standards, it may unquestionably invite, encourage, or entice the states to do so. New York specifically held that Congress may "encourage a State to regulate in a particular way," or "hold out incentives to the States as a method of influencing a State's policy choices." Id. The key is consent. New York further held, "Our cases have identified a variety of methods, short of outright coercion, by which Congress may urge a State to adopt a legislative program consistent with federal interests." Id. Consent to what would otherwise be an unlawful commandeering of state governments was the very basis for upholding two of the regulatory programs at issue in New York. Id. at 173-74.

It is not entirely clear, therefore, what Justice O'Connor meant when she wrote that states "cannot consent to the enlargement of the powers of Congress beyond those enumerated in the Constitution." Id. at 182. In a very real sense, the holding of New York rests on the premise that states can do just that. Congress cannot require the states to legislate with respect to the problem of radioactive waste, but it can unquestionably hold out incentives that induce the states to consent to do so. More broadly put, states can "consent to the enlargement of the powers of Congress beyond those enumerated in the Constitution." Id.

The Court can only conclude that Justice O'Connor meant something else - that a state cannot consent to be compelled. As the Court saw the "choice" in New York, it was a choice between two unconstitutional alternatives - regulating according to federal standards or taking title to all of the low level radioactive waste produced by private parties in the state. Justice O'Connor likely concluded that the latter alternative was so unpalatable that it was really no choice at all. After all, here is where the Court found that "Congress had crossed the line distinguishing encouragement from coercion." Id. at 175. Understood this way, Justice

O'Connor may have been saying nothing more than that one cannot consent to have a gun held to one's head. The idea of "consent" in such a scenario is meaningless.

If this understanding is correct, it would be incumbent upon the objecting parties to identify some way in which federal authority has compelled state action here. They have not.

Whatever the intended meaning of this language, it cannot be that state consent can never "cure" what would otherwise violate the Tenth Amendment. That meaning would sweep aside the holding of New York itself. Nor does this language undo the holding in Bekins, which, as stated before, this Court must apply until the Supreme Court overrules it.

Accordingly, the Court concludes that chapter 9 is not facially unconstitutional under the Tenth Amendment.

5. Chapter 9 Is Constitutional As Applied in This Case.

Several of the objecting parties also raise "as-applied" challenges to the constitutionality of chapter 9 under the Tenth Amendment to United States Constitution. Although variously cast, the primary thrust of these arguments is that if chapter 9 permits the State of Michigan to authorize a city to file a petition for chapter 9 relief without explicitly providing for the protection of accrued pension benefits, the Tenth Amendment is violated.

The Court concludes that these arguments must be rejected.

a. When the State Consents to a Chapter 9 Bankruptcy, the Tenth Amendment Does Not Prohibit the Impairment of Contract Rights That Are Otherwise Protected by the State Constitution.

The basis for this result begins with the recognition that the State of Michigan cannot legally provide for the adjustment of the pension debts of the City of Detroit. This is a direct result of the prohibition against the State of Michigan impairing contracts in both the United States Constitution and Michigan Constitution, as well as the prohibition against impairing the contractual obligations relating to accrued pension benefits in the Michigan Constitution.

The federal bankruptcy court, however, is not so constrained. As noted in Part VIII B, above, “The Bankruptcy Clause necessarily authorizes Congress to make laws that would impair contracts. It long has been understood that bankruptcy law entails impairment of contracts.” Stockton, 478 B.R. at 15 (citing Sturges v. Crowninshield, 17 U.S. 122, 191 (1819)).

The state constitutional provisions prohibiting the impairment of contracts and pensions impose no constraint on the bankruptcy process. The Bankruptcy Clause of the United States Constitution, and the bankruptcy code enacted pursuant thereto, explicitly empower the bankruptcy court to impair contracts and to impair contractual rights relating to accrued vested pension benefits. Impairing contracts is what the bankruptcy process does.

The constitutional foundation for municipal bankruptcy was well-articulated in Stockton:

In other words, while a state cannot make a law impairing the obligation of contract, Congress can do so. The goal of the Bankruptcy Code is adjusting the debtor-creditor relationship. Every discharge impairs contracts. While bankruptcy law endeavors to provide a system of orderly, predictable rules for treatment of parties whose contracts are impaired, that does not change the starring role of contract impairment in bankruptcy.

It follows, then, that contracts may be impaired in this chapter 9 case without offending the Constitution. The Bankruptcy Clause gives Congress express power to legislate uniform laws of bankruptcy that result in impairment of contract; and Congress is not subject to the restriction that the Contracts Clause places on states. Compare U.S. Const. art. I, § 8, cl. 4, with § 10, cl. 1.

478 B.R. at 16.

For Tenth Amendment and state sovereignty purposes, nothing distinguishes pension debt in a municipal bankruptcy case from any other debt. If the Tenth Amendment prohibits the impairment of pension benefits in this case, then it would also prohibit the adjustment any other debt in this case. Bekins makes it clear, however, that with state consent, the adjustment of municipal debts does not impermissibly intrude on state sovereignty. Bekins, 304 U.S. at 52. This Court is bound to follow that holding.

b. Under the Michigan Constitution, Pension Rights Are Contractual Rights.

The Plans seek escape from this result by asserting that under the Michigan Constitution, pension debt has greater protection than ordinary contract debt. The argument is premised on the slim reed that in the Michigan Constitution, pension rights may not be “impaired or diminished,” whereas only laws “impairing” contract rights are prohibited.

There are several reasons why the slight difference between the language that protects contracts (no “impairment”) and the language that protects pensions (no “impairment” or “diminishment”) does not demonstrate that pensions were given any extraordinary protection.

Before reviewing those reasons, however, a brief review of the history of the legal status of pension benefits in Michigan is necessary.

At common law, before the adoption of the Michigan Constitution in 1963, public pensions in Michigan were viewed as gratuitous allowances that could be revoked at will, because a retiree lacked any vested right in their continuation. In Brown v. Highland Park, 320 Mich. 108, 114, 30 N.W.2d 798, 800 (Mich. 1948), the Michigan Supreme Court stated:

We are convinced that the majority of cases in other jurisdictions establishes the rule that a pension granted by public authorities is not a contractual obligation, that the pensioner has no vested right, and that a pension is terminable at the will of a municipality, at least while acting within reasonable limits. At best plaintiffs in this case have an expectancy based upon continuance of existing charter provisions.

Similarly, in Kosa v. Treasurer of State of Mich., 408 Mich. 356, 368-69, 292 N.W.2d 452, 459 (1980), the court observed this about the status of pension benefits before the 1963 Constitution was adopted:

Until the adoption of Const. 1963, art. 9, s 24, legislative appropriation for retirement fund reserves was considered to be an ex gratia action. Consequently, the most that could be said about “pre-con” legislative appropriations for retirees was that there was some kind of implied commitment to fund pension reserves.

Id. (footnote omitted).

In the 1963 Constitution, this provision enhancing the protection for pensions was included: “The accrued financial benefits of each pension plan and retirement system of the state and its political subdivisions shall be a contractual obligation thereof which shall not be diminished or impaired thereby.” Mich. Const. art. IX, § 24.

In Kosa, 408 Mich. at 370 n.21, 292 N.W.2d at 459, the Michigan Supreme Court quoted the following history from the constitutional convention regarding article 9, section 24:

“MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. Chairman, if I may elaborate briefly on Mr. Brake’s answer to Mr. Downs’ question, I would like to indicate that the words ‘accrued financial benefits’ were used designedly, so that the contractual right of the employee would be limited to the deferred compensation embodied in any pension plan, and that we hope to avoid thereby a proliferation of litigation by individual participants in retirement systems talking about the general benefits structure, or something other than his specific right to receive benefits. It is not intended that an individual employee should, as a result of this language, be given the right to sue the employing unit to require the actuarial funding of past service benefits, or anything of that nature. What it is designed to do is to say that when his benefits come due, he’s got a contractual right to receive them. “And, in answer to your second question, he has the contractual right to sue for them. So that he has no particular interest in the funding of somebody else’s benefits as long as he has the contractual right to sue for his.”

“MR. DOWNS: I appreciate Mr. Van Dusen’s comments. Again, I want to see if I understand this. Then he would not have a remedy of legally forcing the legislative body each year to set aside the appropriate amount, but when the money did come due this would be a contractual right for which he could sue a ministerial officer that could be mandamus or enjoined; is that correct?”

“MR. VAN DUSEN: That’s my understanding, Mr. Downs.”

1 Official Record, Constitutional Convention 1961, pp. 773-774.

Id. (emphasis added).

Kosa also offered an explanation for the origin of the provision. “To gain protection of their pension rights, Michigan teachers effectively lobbied for a constitutional amendment granting contractual status to retirement benefits.” 408 Mich. at 360, 292 N.W.2d at 455 (emphasis added).

The Kosa court summarized the provision, again using contract language, as follows:

To sum up, while the Legislature’s constitutional contractual obligation is not to impair “accrued financial benefits”, even if that obligation also related to the funding system, there would be no impairment of the contractual obligation because the substituted “entry age normal” system supports the benefit structure as strongly as the replaced “attained age” system.

Id., 408 Mich. at 373, 292 N.W.2d at 461(emphasis added).

While counting such blessings as have come to them, public school employees are understandably still concerned about their pension security. In that regard, this opinion reminds the Legislature that the constitutional provision adopted by the people of this state is indeed a solemn contractual obligation between public employees and the Legislature guaranteeing that pension benefit payments cannot be constitutionally impaired.

Id., 408 Mich. at 382, 292 N.W.2d at 465 (emphasis added).

More recently, in In re Constitutionality of 2011 PA 38, 490 Mich. 295, 806 N.W.2d 683 (2011), the Michigan Supreme Court unequivocally stated, “The obvious intent of § 24, however, was to ensure that public pensions be treated as contractual obligations that, once earned, could not be diminished.” Id. at 311, 806 NW.2d at 693 (emphasis added).

That historical review begins to demonstrate the several reasons why the slight difference in the language that protects contracts and the language that protects pensions does not suggest that pensions were given any extraordinary protection:

First, the language of article IX, section 24, gives pension benefits the status of a “contractual obligation.” The natural meaning of the words “contractual obligation” is certainly inconsistent with the greater protection for which the Plans now argue.

Second, if the Michigan Constitution were meant to give the kind of absolute protection for which the Plans argue, the language in the article IX, section 24 simply would not have referred to pension benefits as a “contractual obligation.” It also would not have been constructed by simply copying the verb from the contracts clause - “impair” - and then adding a lesser verb - “diminish” in the disjunctive.

Third, linguistically, there is no functional difference in meaning between “impair” and “impair or diminish.” There certainly is a preference, if not a mandate, to give meaning to every word in written law. In Koontz v. Ameritech Servs., Inc., 466 Mich. 304, 312, 645 N.W.2d 34, 39 (2002), the Michigan Supreme Court summarized the familiar command, “Courts must give effect to every word, phrase, and clause in a statute, and must avoid an interpretation that would render any part of the statute surplusage or nugatory.” The court went on to state, however, “we give undefined statutory terms their plain and ordinary meanings.” Id.

Under Meridian Mut. Ins. Co. v. Kellman, 197 F.3d 1178, 1181 (6th Cir. 1999), discussed in more detail in Part IX A, below, this Court is bound by these commands of statutory interpretation that the Michigan Supreme Court embraced in Koontz. But if this Court gives these terms - “diminish” and “impair” - their plain and ordinary meanings, as Koontz requires, those meanings would not be substantively different from each other. The terms are not synonyms, but they cannot honestly be given meanings so different as to compel the result that the Plans now seek. “Diminish” adds nothing material to “impair.” All “diminishment” is “impairment.” And, “impair” includes “diminish.”

Fourth, the Plans’ argument for a greater protection is inconsistent with the Michigan Supreme Court’s interpretation of the constitutional language in Kosa and in In re Constitutionality of 2011 PA 38. Those cases also used contract language to describe the status of pensions. This is important because the Sixth Circuit has held that on questions of state law, this Court is bound to apply the holdings of the Michigan Supreme Court. See Kirk v. Hanes Corp. of North Carolina, 16 F.3d 705, 706 (6th Cir. 1994).

Fifth, an even greater narrative must be considered here, focusing on 1963. Bekins had long since determined that municipal bankruptcy was constitutional. That of course meant that even though states could not impair municipal contracts, federal courts could do that in a bankruptcy case. Indeed, Michigan law then allowed municipalities to file bankruptcy.²⁴

It was within that framework of rights, expectations, scenarios and possibilities that the newly negotiated, proposed and ratified Michigan Constitution of 1963 explicitly gave accrued pension benefits the status of contractual obligations. That new constitution could have given pensions protection from impairment in bankruptcy in several ways. It could have simply prohibited Michigan municipalities from filing bankruptcy. It could have somehow created a property interest that bankruptcy would be required to respect under Butner v. United States, 440 U.S. 48, 99 S. Ct. 914 (1979) (holding that property issues in bankruptcy are determined according to state law). Or, it could have established some sort of a secured interest in the municipality's property. It could even have explicitly required the State to guaranty pension benefits. But it did none of those.

Instead, both the history from the constitutional convention, quoted above, and the language of the pension provision itself, make it clear that the only remedy for impairment of pensions is a claim for breach of contract.

Because under the Michigan Constitution, pension rights are contractual rights, they are subject to impairment in a federal bankruptcy proceeding. Moreover, when, as here, the state consents, that impairment does not violate the Tenth Amendment. Therefore, as applied in this case, chapter 9 is not unconstitutional.

Nevertheless, the Court is compelled to comment. No one should interpret this holding that pension rights are subject to impairment in this bankruptcy case to mean that the Court will necessarily confirm any plan of adjustment that impairs pensions. The Court emphasizes that it will not lightly or casually exercise the power under federal bankruptcy law to impair pensions. Before the Court confirms any plan that the City submits, the Court must find that the plan fully meets the requirements of 11 U.S.C. § 943(b) and the other applicable provisions of the bankruptcy code. Together, these provisions of law demand this Court's judicious legal and equitable consideration of the interests of the City and all of its creditors, as well as the laws of the State of Michigan.

IX. Public Act 436 Does Not Violate the Michigan Constitution.

Section 109(c)(2) of the bankruptcy code requires that a municipality be “specifically authorized, in its capacity as a municipality or by name, to be a debtor under such chapter by State law, or by a governmental officer or organization empowered by State law to authorize such entity to be a debtor under such chapter.” 11 U.S.C. § 109(c)(2). The evidence establishes that the City was authorized to file this case. The issue is whether that authorization was proper under the Michigan Constitution.

Section 18 of P.A. 436, M.C.L. § 141.1558, establishes the process for authorizing a municipality to file a case under chapter 9 of the bankruptcy code:

(1) If, in the judgment of the emergency manager, no reasonable alternative to rectifying the financial emergency of the local government which is in receivership exists, then the emergency manager may recommend to the governor and the state treasurer that the local government be authorized to proceed under chapter 9. If the governor approves of the recommendation, the governor shall inform the state treasurer and the emergency manager in writing of the decision The governor may place contingencies on a local government in order to proceed under chapter 9. Upon receipt of written approval, the emergency manager is authorized to proceed under chapter 9. This section empowers the local government for which an emergency manager has been appointed to become a debtor under title 11 of the United States Code, 11 USC 101 to 1532, as required by section 109 of title 11 of the United States Code, 11 USC 109, and empowers the emergency manager to act exclusively on the local government’s behalf in any such case under chapter 9.

M.C.L. § 141.1558(1).

On July 16, 2013, Mr. Orr gave the governor and the treasurer his written recommendation that the City be authorized to file for chapter 9 relief. Ex. 28. On July 18, 2013, the governor approved this recommendation in writing. Ex. 29. Later that day, Mr. Orr issued a written order directing the City to file this chapter 9 case. Ex. 30. Thus the City of Detroit's bankruptcy filing was authorized under state law.

Nevertheless, several objectors assert various arguments that the City of Detroit is not authorized to file this case.

First, several objectors argue that the authorization is not valid because P.A. 436, the statute establishing the underlying procedure for a municipality to obtain authority for filing, is unconstitutional. Broadly stated, these are the challenges to P.A. 436:

The Retired Detroit Police Members Association ("RDPMA") challenges the constitutionality of P.A. 436 on the grounds that it was enacted immediately after the referendum rejection of a similar statute, P.A. 4.

The RDPMA also asserts that P.A. 436 is unconstitutional on the grounds that the Michigan Legislature added an appropriation provision for the purpose of evading the peoples' constitutional right to referendum.

Several objectors argue that P.A. 436 is unconstitutional because it fails to protect pensions from impairment in bankruptcy.

AFSCME asserts that P.A. 436 is unconstitutional because it violates the "Strong Home Rule" provisions in the Michigan Constitution.

A. The Michigan Case Law on Evaluating the Constitutionality of a State Statute.

The validity of P.A. 436 under the Michigan Constitution is a question of state law. Determining the several constitutional challenges to P.A. 436 requires this Court to apply state law. In Meridian Mut. Ins. Co. v. Kellman, 197 F.3d 1178, 1181 (6th Cir. 1999), the Sixth Circuit provided this guidance on determining state law:

In construing questions of state law, the federal court must apply state law in accordance with the controlling decisions of the highest court of the state. Erie R.R. Co. v. Tompkins, 304 U.S. 64, 58 S. Ct. 817, 82 L. Ed. 1188 (1938). If the state's highest court has not addressed the issue, the federal court must attempt to ascertain how that court would rule if it were faced with the issue. The Court may use the decisional law of the state's lower courts, other federal courts construing state law, restatements of law, law review commentaries, and other jurisdictions on the "majority" rule in making this determination. Grantham & Mann v. American Safety Prods., 831 F.2d 596, 608 (6th Cir.1987). A federal court should not disregard the decisions of intermediate appellate state courts unless it is convinced by other persuasive data that the highest court of the state would decide otherwise. Commissioner v. Estate of Bosch, 387 U.S. 456, 465, 87 S. Ct. 1776, 1782, 18 L.Ed.2d 886 (1967).

Similarly, in Demczyk v. Mut. Life Ins. Co. of N.Y. (In re Graham Square, Inc.), 126 F.3d 823, 827 (6th Cir. 1997), the court stated, "Where the relevant state law is unsettled, we determine how we think the highest state court would rule if faced with the same case."

The Michigan Supreme Court has not ruled directly on the validity P.A. 436. As a result, this Court must attempt to ascertain how that court would rule if it were faced with the issue.

In In re Request for Advisory Opinion Regarding Constitutionality of 2011 PA 38, 490 Mich. 295, 307-8, 806 N.W.2d 683, 692 (2011), the Michigan Supreme Court summarized its decisions on evaluating a constitutional challenge to a state law:

"Statutes are presumed to be constitutional, and courts have a duty to construe a statute as constitutional unless its unconstitutionality is clearly apparent." Taylor v. Gate Pharm., 468 Mich. 1, 6, 658 N.W.2d 127 (2003). "We exercise the power to declare a law unconstitutional with extreme caution, and we never exercise it where serious doubt exists with regard to the conflict." Phillips v. Mirac, Inc., 470 Mich. 415, 422, 685 N.W.2d 174 (2004). "Every reasonable presumption or intendment must be indulged in favor of the validity of an act, and it is only when invalidity appears so clearly as to leave no room for reasonable doubt that it violates some provision of the Constitution that a court will refuse to sustain its validity." Id. at 423, 685 N.W.2d 174, quoting Cady v. Detroit, 289 Mich. 499, 505, 286 N.W. 805 (1939). Therefore, "the burden of proving that a statute is unconstitutional rests with the party challenging it[.]” In re Request for Advisory Opinion Regarding Constitutionality of 2005 Pa. 71, 479 Mich. 1, 11, 740 N.W.2d 444 (2007)[.]

This guidance, as well as the decisions of the Michigan Supreme Court on issues relating to the right to referendum, home rule, and the pension clause, will inform this Court’s determinations on the objectors’ challenges to P.A. 436.

B. The Voters’ Rejection of Public Act 4 Did Not Constitutionally Prohibit the Michigan Legislature from Enacting Public Act 436.

On March 16, 2011, the governor signed P.A. 4 into law. P.A. 4 repealed P.A. 72. However, the voters rejected P.A. 4 by referendum in the November 6, 2012 election. Shortly after that election, on December 26, 2012, the governor signed P.A. 436 into law. It took effect on March 28, 2013.

The RDPMA argues that P.A. 436 is unconstitutional because it is essentially a reenactment of P.A. 4. The City and the State of Michigan assert that there are several differences between P.A. 436 and P.A. 4, such that they are not the same law.

The right of referendum is established in article 2, section 9 of the Michigan Constitution, which provides:

Sec. 9. The people reserve to themselves the power to propose laws and to enact and reject laws, called the initiative, and the power to approve or reject laws enacted by the legislature, called the referendum. The power of initiative extends only to laws which the legislature may enact under this constitution. The power of referendum does not extend to acts making appropriations for state institutions or to meet deficiencies in state funds and must be invoked in the manner prescribed by law within 90 days following the final adjournment of the legislative session at which the law was enacted. To invoke the initiative or referendum, petitions signed by a number of registered electors, not less than eight percent for initiative and five percent for referendum of the total vote cast for all candidates for governor at the last preceding general election at which a governor was elected shall be required.

Referendum, approval

No law as to which the power of referendum properly has been invoked shall be effective thereafter unless approved by a majority of the electors voting thereon at the next general election.

Mich. Const. art. II, § 9.

In Reynolds v. Bureau of State Lottery, 240 Mich. App. 84, 610 N.W.2d 597 (2000), the Michigan Court of Appeals considered the power of the legislature to reenact a law while a referendum process regarding that law was pending. The court explained:

[N]othing in the Michigan Constitution suggests that the referendum had a broader effect than nullification of [the 1994 act]. We cannot read into our constitution a general “preemption of the field” that would prevent further legislative action on the issues raised by the referendum. The Legislature remained in full possession of all its other ordinary constitutional powers, including legislative power over the subject matter addressed in [the 1994 act].

Reynolds, 240 Mich. App. at 97, 610 N.W.2d at 604-05.

This Michigan Court of Appeals decision strongly suggests that the referendum rejection of P.A. 4 did not prohibit the Michigan legislature from enacting P.A. 436, even though P.A. 436 addressed the same subject matter as P.A. 4 and contained very few changes.

As noted above, the Sixth Circuit has instructed, “A federal court should not disregard the decisions of intermediate appellate state courts unless it is convinced by other persuasive data that the highest court of the state would decide otherwise.” Meridian Mut. Ins. Co., 197 F.3d at 1181. No data, let alone any persuasive data, suggests that the Michigan Supreme Court would decide this issue otherwise. Accordingly, the RDPMA’s challenge on this ground must be rejected.

C. Even If the Michigan Legislature Did Include Appropriations Provisions in Public Act 436 to Evade the Constitutional Right of Referendum, It Is Not Unconstitutional.

The RDPMA also contends that P.A. 436 is unconstitutional because the Michigan legislature included appropriations provisions in P.A. 436 for the sole purpose of shielding the Act from referendum. Section 34 of P.A. 436 appropriates $780,000 for 2013 to pay the salaries of emergency managers. Section 35 of P.A. 436 appropriates $5,000,000 for 2013 to pay professionals hired to assist emergency managers.

There certainly was some credible evidence in support of the RDPMA's assertion that the appropriations provisions in P.A. 436 were motivated by a desire to immunize it from referendum. For example, Howard Ryan testified in his deposition on October 14, 2013:

Q. I'd just like to ask a follow-up to a question counsel asked you. You said that the appropriation language was put in the - early on in the process; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Based on your conversations with the people at the time, was it your understanding that one or more of the reasons to put the appropriation language in there was to make sure that it could not - the new act could not be defeated by a referendum?

A. Yes.

Q. And where did you get that knowledge from?

A. Well, having watched the entire process unfold over the past two years.

Q. The Governor's office knew that that was the point of it?

A. Yes.

Q. That your department knew that that was the point of it?

A. Yes.

Q. The legislators you were dealing with knew that that was the point of it?

A. Yes.

Howard Dep. Tr. 46:1-23, Oc. 14, 2013.²⁵

Other evidence in support includes: a January 31, 2013 e-mail addressed from Mr. Orr to partners at Jones Day, in which he observed that P.A. 436 “is a clear end-around the prior initiative” to repeal the previous Emergency Manager statute, Public Act 4, “that was rejected by the voters in November.” Ex. 403 (Dkt. #509-3) According to Mr. Orr “although the new law provides the thin veneer of a revision (sic) it is essentially a redo of the prior rejected law and appears to merely adopt the conditions necessary for a chapter 9 filing.” Ex. 403. (Dkt. #509-3)

There are, however, several difficulties with the RDPMA’s argument.

The Court must conclude that the Michigan Supreme Court would not, if faced with this issue, hold that P.A. 436 is unconstitutional. In Michigan United Conservation Clubs v. Secretary of State, 464 Mich. 359, 367, 630 N.W.2d 297, 298 (2001), that court concisely held that a public act with an appropriations provision is not subject to referendum, regardless of motive. Concurring, Chief Justice Corrigan added that even if the motive of a legislative body could be discerned as opposed to the motives of individual legislators, “This Court has repeatedly held that courts must not be concerned with the alleged motives of a legislative body in enacting a law, but only with the end result—the actual language of the legislation.” Id. at 367.

Similarly, in Houston v. Governor, 491 Mich. 876, 877, 810 N.W.2d 255, 256 (2012), the Michigan Supreme Court stated, “[T]his Court possesses no special capacity, and there are no legal standards, by which to assess the political propriety of actions undertaken by the legislative branch. Instead, it is the responsibility of the democratic, and representative, processes of government to check what the people may view as political or partisan excess by their Legislature.”

²⁵ The parties agreed to use Ryan’s deposition testimony in lieu of live testimony. However, in the pre-trial order the City had objected to this portion of testimony on the grounds of speculation, hearsay, format and foundation. (Dkt. #1647 at 118) Those objections are overruled.

In People v. Gibbs, 186 Mich. 127, 134-35, 152 N.W. 1053, 1055 (1915), the Michigan Supreme Court stated, “Courts are not concerned with the motives which actuate the members of the legislative body in enacting a law, but in the results of their action. Bad motives might inspire a law which appeared on its face and proved valid and beneficial, while a bad and invalid law might be, and sometimes is, passed with good intent and the best of motives.” See also Kuhn v. Dep’t of Treasury, 384 Mich. 378, 383-84, 183 N.W.2d 796, 799 (1971).

Finally, it must also be noted that on November 8, 2013, the Sixth Circuit vacated pending rehearing en banc the decision on which the RDPMA heavily relies. City of Pontiac Retired Employees Assoc. v. Schimmel, 726 F.3d 767 (6th Cir. 2013).

Accordingly, the Court concludes that P.A. 436 is not unconstitutional as a violation of the right to referendum in article II, section 9 of the Michigan Constitution.

D. Public Act 436 Does Not Violate the Home Rule Provisions of the Michigan Constitution.

Certain objectors argue that P.A. 436 violates Article VII, Section 22 of the Michigan Constitution, which states:

Under general laws the electors of each city and village shall have the power and authority to frame, adopt and amend its charter, and to amend an existing charter of the city or village heretofore granted or enacted by the legislature for the government of the city or village. Each such city and village shall have power to adopt resolutions and ordinances relating to its municipal concerns, property and government, subject to the constitution and law. No enumeration of powers granted to cities and villages in this constitution shall limit or restrict the general grant of authority conferred by this section.

The argument is that the appointment of an emergency manager for a municipality under P.A. 436 is inconsistent with the right of the electors to adopt and amend the City charter and the city's right to adopt ordinances. AFSCME asserts that "Michigan is strongly committed to the concept of home rule[.]" AFSCME Amended Objection at 75-91. (Dkt. #1156) "This 'strong home rule' regime reflects a bedrock principle of state law, . . . all officers of cities are to 'be elected by the electors thereof, or appointed by such authorities thereof' not by the central State Government." Id. (citing Brouwer v. Bronkema, 377 Mich. 616, 141 N.W.2d 98 (1966)). AFSCME further asserts that in authorizing the appointment of an emergency manager with broad powers that usurp the powers of elected officials, "PA 436 offends the 'strong home rule' of Detroit and that the Emergency Manager is not lawfully authorized to file for bankruptcy on behalf of the City or to act as its representative during chapter 9 proceedings." AFSCME Amended Objection at 75-91. (Dkt. #1156)

AFSCME's argument fails for the simple reason that the broad authority the Michigan Constitution grants to municipalities is subject to constitutional and statutory limits. This constitutional provision itself embodies that principle. It states, "Each such city and village shall have power to adopt resolutions and ordinances relating to its municipal concerns, property and government, subject to the constitution and law." Mich. Const. art. VII, § 22 (emphasis added).

State law recognizes the same limitation on local government authority:

Each city may in its charter provide:

(3) Municipal powers. For the exercise of all municipal powers in the management and control of municipal property and in the administration of the municipal government, whether such powers be expressly enumerated or not; for any act to advance the interests of the city, the good government and prosperity of the municipality and its inhabitants and through its regularly constituted authority to pass all laws and ordinances relating to its municipal concerns subject to the constitution and general laws of this state.

M.C.L. § 117.4j(3) (emphasis added).

Similarly, M.C.L. § 117.36, states, “No provision of any city charter shall conflict with or contravene the provisions of any general law of the state.”

Indeed, § 1-102 of the Charter of the City of Detroit states: “The City has the comprehensive home rule power conferred upon it by the Michigan Constitution, subject only to the limitations on the exercise of that power contained in the Constitution or this Charter or imposed by statute.” Id. (emphasis added). See Detroit City Council v. Mayor of Detroit, 283 Mich. App. 442, 453, 770 N.W.2d 117, 124 (Mich. Ct. App. 2009) (“The charter itself thus recognizes that it is subject to limitations imposed by statute.”).

“Municipal corporations have no inherent power. They are created by the state and derive their authority from the state.” Bivens v. Grand Rapids, 443 Mich. 391, 397, 505 N.W.2d 239, 241 (1993).

The Michigan case law establishes that the powers granted to municipalities by the “home rule” sections of the Michigan Constitution are subject to the limits of the power and authority of the State to create laws of general concern. Brimmer v. Village of Elk Rapids, 365 Mich. 6, 13, 112 N.W.2d 222, 225 (1961).

“Municipal corporations are state agencies, and, subject to constitutional restrictions, the Legislature may modify the corporate charters of municipal corporations at will. 12 C.J. [p.] 1031. Powers are granted to them as state agencies to carry on local government. The state still has authority to amend their charters and enlarge or diminish their powers.” [1] Cooley, Const. Lim. (8th Ed.), [p.] 393. * * * Its powers are plenary.

City of Hazel Park v. Mun. Fin. Comm’n, 317 Mich. 582, 599-600, 27 N.W.2d 106, 113-14 (1947).

The Home Rule provision of the constitution does not deprive the legislature of its power to enact laws affecting municipalities operation under that provision except as to matters of purely local concern. . . . The right to pass general laws is still reserved to the [e]gislature of the state, and consequently it is still competent for the state through the law making body to enact measures pursuant to the police power or pursuant to other general powers inherent in the state and to require municipalities to observe the same.

Local Union No. 876, Int'l Bhd. of Elec. Workers v. State of Mich. Labor Mediation Bd., 294 Mich. 629, 635-36, 293 N.W. 809, 811 (1940) (emphasis added). See also Mack v. City of Detroit, 467 Mich. 186, 194, 649 N.W.2d 47, 52 (2002); American Axle & Mfg., Inc. v. City of Hamtramck, 461 Mich. 352, 377, 604 N.W.2d 330, 342 (2000) (In Harsha we held that “the legislature might modify the charters of municipal corporations at will and that the State still retained authority to amend charters and enlarge and diminish their powers.”); Board of Trustees of Policemen & Firemen Retirement System v. City of Detroit, 143 Mich. App. 651, 655, 373 N.W.2d 173, 175 (Mich. Ct. App. 1985) (“Where a city charter provision conflicts with general statutory law, the statute controls in all matters which are not of purely local character.”); Oakland Cnty. Board of Cnty. Road Comm’rs v. Mich. Prop. & Cas. Guar. Ass’n, 456 Mich. 590, 609, 575 N.W.2d 751, 760 (1998) (“Like a municipal corporation, the road commission’s existence is entirely dependent on the legislation that created it, and the Legislature that may also destroy it.”).

AFSCME asserts that P.A. 436 is a “local law” because it gives the emergency manager broad authority to pass local legislation, and that therefore it violates article IV, section 29 of the Michigan Constitution. That section provides, in pertinent part, “The legislature shall pass no local or special act in any case where a general act can be made applicable[.]”

One plain difficulty with this argument is that this provision of the Michigan Constitution constrains the Michigan Legislature, not the emergency manager.

In defining a general law, the Michigan Supreme Court has stated, “A general law is one which includes all persons, classes and property similarly situated and which come within its limitations.”” Am. Axle & Mfg., Inc. v. City of Hamtramck, 461 Mich. 352, 359 n.5, 604 N.W.2d 330, 334 (2000) (citing Tribbett v. Village of Marcellus, 294 Mich. 607, 618, 293 N.W. 872 (1940), quoting Punke v. Village of Elliott, 364 Ill. 604, 608-9, 5 N.E.2d 389, 393 (1936)).

Clearly, P.A. 436 is a general law, potentially applicable to all municipalities similarly situated within the State of Michigan. According to its preamble, its purposes are: “to safeguard and assure the financial accountability of local units of government and school districts; to preserve the capacity of local units of government and school districts to provide or cause to be provided necessary services essential to the public health, safety and welfare[.]”

Accordingly, the Court finds that P.A. 436 does not violate the home rule provisions of the Michigan Constitution.

E. Public Act 436 Does Not Violate the Pension Clause of the Michigan Constitution.

Many objectors argue that the bankruptcy authorization section of P.A. 436, M.C.L. § 141.1558, does not conform to the requirements of the pension clause of the Michigan Constitution and is therefore unconstitutional. Accordingly, the objectors argue that P.A. 436 cannot provide the basis for authorization as required by 11 U.S.C. § 109(c)(2).

As noted, the premise of this argument is that under the Michigan constitution, pension benefits are entitled to greater protection than contract claims. That premise, however, is the same as the premise of the argument that chapter 9 is unconstitutional as applied in this case.

In Part VIII C 5 b, above, the Court rejected this argument, concluding that pension benefits are a contractual obligation of the municipality.

It follows that if a state consents to a municipal bankruptcy, no state law can protect contractual pension rights from impairment in bankruptcy, just as no law could protect any other types of contract rights. Accordingly, the failure of P.A. 436 to protect pension rights in a municipal bankruptcy does not make that law inconsistent with the pension clause of the Michigan Constitution any more than the failure of P.A. 436 to protect, for example, bond debt in bankruptcy is inconsistent with the contracts clause of the Michigan Constitution. For this purpose, the parallel is perfect.

Stated another way, state law cannot reorder the distributional priorities of the bankruptcy code. If the state consents to a municipal bankruptcy, it consents to the application of chapter 9 of the bankruptcy code. This point was driven home in the Stockton case:

A state cannot rely on the § 903 reservation of state power to condition or to qualify, i.e. to “cherry pick,” the application of the Bankruptcy Code provisions that apply in chapter 9 cases after such a case has been filed. Mission Indep. School Dist. v. Texas, 116 F.2d 175, 176–78 (5th Cir. 1940) (chapter IX); Vallejo, 403 B.R. at 75–76; In re City of Stockton, 475 B.R. 720, 727–29 (Bankr. E.D. Cal. 2012) (“Stockton I”); In re Cnty. of Orange, 191 B.R. 1005, 1021 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. 1996).

While a state may control prerequisites for consenting to permit one of its municipalities (which is an arm of the state cloaked in the state’s sovereignty) to file a chapter 9 case, it cannot revise chapter 9. Stockton I, 475 B.R. at 727–29. For example, it cannot immunize bond debt held by the state from impairment. Mission Indep. School Dist., 116 F.2d at 176–78.

478 B.R. at 16-17 (emphasis added).

For these reasons, the Court concludes that P.A. 436 does not violate the pension clause of the Michigan Constitution.

X. Detroit’s Emergency Manager Had Valid Authority to File This Bankruptcy Case Even Though He Is Not an Elected Official.

AFSCME and most of the individual objectors argue that the emergency manager did not have valid authority to file this bankruptcy case because he is not an elected official. The Court concludes that this argument is similar to, or the same as, the argument that AFSCME made that P.A. 436 violates the home rule provisions of the Michigan Constitution. See Part IX D above.

Accordingly, for the reasons stated in that Part, AFSCME’s argument on this point is rejected. The Court concludes that the emergency manager’s authorization to file this bankruptcy case under P.A. 436 was valid under the Michigan Constitution, even though he was not an elected official.

XI. The Governor’s Authorization to File This Bankruptcy Case Was Valid Under the Michigan Constitution Even Though the Authorization Did Not Prohibit the City from Impairing Pension Rights.

P.A. 436 permits the governor to “place contingencies on a local government in order to proceed under chapter 9.” M.C.L. § 141.1558(1). The governor did not place any contingencies on the bankruptcy filing in this case. Ex. 29 at 4. The governor’s letter did, however, state “Federal law already contains the most important contingency – a requirement that the plan be legally executable.” Ex. 29 at 4.

Several of the objectors argue that the pension clause of the Michigan Constitution, article IX, section 24, obligated the governor to include a condition in his authorization that would prohibit the City from impairing pension benefits in this bankruptcy case.

In Part IX E, above, the Court concluded that any such contingency in the law itself would be ineffective and potentially invalid. For the same reason, any such contingency in the governor’s authorization letter would have been invalid, and may have rendered the authorization itself invalid under 11 U.S.C. § 109(c).

Accordingly, this objection is overruled. The Court concludes that the governor’s authorization to file this bankruptcy case under P.A. 436 was valid under the Michigan Constitution.

XII. The Judgment in Webster v. Michigan Does Not Preclude the City from Asserting That the Governor’s Authorization to File This Bankruptcy Case Was Valid.

A. The Circumstances Leading to the Judgment

On July 3, 2013, Gracie Webster and Veronica Thomas filed a complaint against the State of Michigan, Governor Snyder and Treasurer Dillon in the Ingham County Circuit Court. They sought a declaratory judgment that P.A. 436 is unconstitutional because it permits accrued pension benefits to be diminished or impaired in violation of article IX, section 24 of the Michigan Constitution. (Dkt. #1219) The complaint also sought a preliminary and permanent injunction enjoining Governor Snyder and State Treasurer Dillon from authorizing the Detroit emergency manager to commence proceedings under chapter 9 of the bankruptcy code.

On Thursday, July 18, 2013, the state court held a hearing, apparently jointly on a similar complaint filed by the General Retirement System of the City of Detroit. According to the transcript of the hearing, it began at 4:15 p.m. Case No.13-734-CZ, Hrg Tr. 4:2, July 18, 2013. (Dkt. #1219-9) Almost immediately, counsel for the plaintiffs advised the court that the City had already filed its bankruptcy case. Hrg Tr. 6:2-9. (It was filed at 4:06 p.m. on that day.) As a result, counsel asked for an expedited process. Hrg Tr. 7:8-18. The court responded, “I plan on making a ruling Monday. I could make a ruling tomorrow, if push came to shove, but Monday probably would be soon enough. I am confident that the bankruptcy court won’t act as quickly as I will.” Hrg Tr. 7:23-8:2.

The plaintiff’s attorneys then asked that the hearing on their request for a preliminary injunction be advanced from the following Monday, which is when it had been set. Hrg Tr. 8:13-22. Counsel observed that it had been briefed by both sides. Hrg Tr. 9:1-10. After the Court confirmed through its law clerk that in fact the bankruptcy case had been filed, Hrg Tr.10:9-10, counsel asked to amend its requested relief so that the governor and the emergency manager would be enjoined from taking any further action in the bankruptcy proceeding. Hrg Tr. 10:11-17. The court responded, “Granted, as to all your requests. How soon are you going to present me with an order?” Case No.13-734-CZ, Hrg Tr. 11:1-4, July 18, 2013. (Dkt. #1219-9).

At this point, it must be observed that the judge granted this extraordinary relief with no findings and without giving the state’s representative any opportunity to be heard.

In any event, the plaintiffs’ counsel then used a previously prepared proposed order in the case that the General Retirement System filed and modified it extensively in handwriting, most of which was legible, to change the parties, the case number, and the ordering provisions. Case No.13-734-CZ, Hrg Tr.15:7-15, July 18, 2013. (Dkt. #1219-9) It states that it was signed at 4:25 p.m., which was 10 minutes after the hearing began. Case No.13-734-CZ, Hrg Tr. 17:4-5, July 18, 2013. (Dkt. #1219-9)

A further hearing was held the next day, beginning at 11:25 a.m., on the plaintiffs’ request to amend the order of the previous afternoon. Case No.13-734-CZ, Hrg Tr. 4:2, July 19, 2013. (Dkt. #1219-10) The plaintiffs’ counsel had also filed a motion that morning for a declaratory judgment and asked the court to consider it. Hrg Tr.8:2-13 The state’s attorney then agreed to allow the court to consider it. Hrg Tr. 8:24-25. The judge then addressed the parties. This portion of the transcript is quoted at length here because it is necessary to demonstrate an important point in section B, below, concerning Congress’ purpose in granting exclusive jurisdiction to the bankruptcy court over all issues that concern the validity of a bankruptcy filing:

You know what we’re doing? We are under siege here. Well, we aren’t; I’m not. Technically I am through paper, but all of you are. Detroit is. The State is. So I’m not going to go through the usual court rules and the time and all of that. You are all going to spend your weekend doing what lawyers do, and that's a lot of homework because we're going to have that hearing Monday unless you're asking me to do it now.

I'm going to hear everything because we're not going to piecemeal this. You all know the case. I know the case: I've done the homework. I don't think myself or my staff got any sleep last night. We've been doing research. I bet if I called all of your wives and asked if you got any sleep, they'd be saying, "No. When is my husband going to get some sleep," right? So we're going to have a hearing, and I don't care if it's today or Monday. I'll come here Saturday, if you would like. I don't care. Let's get some answers, let's get a bottom line, and let's get this moving to the Court of Appeals because that's where you all are headed. I don't care what side you're on. Someone is going up, right? So I have answers for you. Tell me your story. I've got the solution. You might not like it.

Can we move on?

Case No.13-734-CZ, Hrg Tr. 11:7-12:5, July 19, 2013. (Dkt. #1219-10)

The attorneys then agreed and argued the merits. The judge then stated her decision to grant the declaratory relief that the plaintiffs requested. Case No.13-734-CZ, Hrg Tr.33:18-35:19, July 19, 2013. (Dkt. #1219-10)

Later that day, the court entered an "Order of Declaratory Relief." This is the judgment on which the objecting parties rely in asserting their preclusion argument. The judgment is quoted at length here to demonstrate both its scope and its intended impact on this bankruptcy case:

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED:

PA 436 is unconstitutional and in violation of Article IX Section 24 of the Michigan Constitution to the extent that it permits the Governor to authorize an emergency manager to proceed under Chapter 9 in any manner which threatens to diminish or impair accrued pension benefits; and PA 436 is to that extent of no force or effect;

The Governor is prohibited by Article IX Section 24 of the Michigan Constitution from authorizing an emergency manager

under PA 436 to proceed under Chapter 9 in a manner which threatens to diminish or impair accrued pension benefits, and any such action by the Governor is without authority and in violation of Article IX Section 24 of the Michigan Constitution.

On July 16, 2013, City of Detroit Emergency Manager Kevyn Orr submitted a recommendation to Defendant Governor Snyder and Defendant Treasurer Dillon pursuant to Section 18(1) of PA 436 to proceed under Chapter 9, which together with the facts presented in Plaintiffs' filings, reflect that Emergency Manager Orr intended to diminish or impair accrued pension benefits if he were authorized to proceed under Chapter 9. On July 18, 2013, Defendant Governor Snyder approved the Emergency Manager's recommendation without placing any contingencies on a Chapter 9 filing by the Emergency Manager; and the Emergency Manager filed a Chapter 9 petition shortly thereafter. By authorizing the Emergency Manager to proceed under Chapter 9 to diminish or impair accrued pension benefits, Defendant Snyder acted without authority under Michigan law and in violation of Article IX Section 24 of the Michigan Constitution.

In order to rectify his unauthorized and unconstitutional actions described above, the Governor must (1) direct the Emergency Manager to immediately withdraw the Chapter 9 petition filed on July 18, and (2) not authorize any further Chapter 9 filing which threatens to diminish or impair accrued pension benefits.

A copy of this Order shall be transmitted to President Obama.²⁶

Order of Declaratory Judgment, Webster v. State of Michigan, No. 13-734-CZ (July 19, 2013).
(Dkt. #1219-8)

In their eligibility objections in this case, several of the objectors assert that this judgment is binding upon the City under the principles of res judicata or collateral estoppel. Specifically, they contend that this judgment precludes the City from asserting that P.A. 436 is constitutional and that the governor properly authorized this bankruptcy filing. In the alternative, these parties assert that the judgment is at least a persuasive indication of what the Michigan Supreme Court would hold on the issue of the constitutionality of P.A. 436.

The Court concludes that it is neither.

B. The Judgment Is Void Because It Was Entered After the City Filed Its Petition.

There is a fundamental reason to deny the declaratory judgment any preclusive effect in this bankruptcy case.

Upon the City's bankruptcy filing, federal law - specifically, 28 U.S.C. § 1334(a) - gave this Court exclusive jurisdiction to determine all issues relating to the City's eligibility to be a chapter 9 debtor. That provision states, "[T]he district courts shall have original and exclusive jurisdiction of all cases under title 11." 28 U.S.C. § 1334(a). The Sixth Circuit has explained:

Several factors highlight the exclusively federal nature of bankruptcy proceedings. The Constitution grants Congress the authority to establish "uniform Laws on the subject of Bankruptcies." U.S. Const. art. I, § 8. Congress has wielded this power by creating comprehensive regulations on the subject and by vesting exclusive jurisdiction over bankruptcy matters in the federal district courts.

Pertuso v. Ford Motor Credit Co., 233 F.3d 417, 425 (6th Cir. 2000). The court went on to quote this from MSR Exploration, Ltd. v. Meridian Oil, Inc., 74 F.3d 910, 914 (9th Cir.1996):

[A] mere browse through the complex, detailed, and comprehensive provisions of the lengthy Bankruptcy Code, 11 U.S.C. §§ 101 et seq., demonstrates Congress's intent to create a whole system under federal control which is designed to bring together and adjust all of the rights and duties of creditors and embarrassed debtors alike.

Pertuso, 233 F.3d at 417.

The wisdom of this grant of exclusive jurisdiction lies in the absolute necessity that any bankruptcy petition be filed, considered, and adjudicated in one court. Foreclosing the opportunity for parties to litigate a bankruptcy petition in multiple courts eliminates the likely consequence of a confused and chaotic race to judgment, and of the associated multiplication of expenses. It also eliminates the potential for inconsistent outcomes.

Indeed, the necessity to prohibit such collateral attacks on a bankruptcy petition is grounded in the uniformity requirement of Article 1, Section 8 of the United States Constitution, as the Ninth Circuit has observed:

Filings of bankruptcy petitions are a matter of exclusive federal jurisdiction. State courts are not authorized to determine whether a person's claim for relief under a federal law, in a federal court, and within that court's exclusive jurisdiction, is an appropriate one. Such an exercise of authority would be inconsistent with and subvert the exclusive jurisdiction of the federal courts by allowing state courts to create their own standards as to when persons may properly seek relief in cases Congress has specifically precluded those courts from adjudicating. . . . The ability collaterally to attack bankruptcy petitions in the state courts would also threaten the uniformity of federal bankruptcy law, a uniformity required by the Constitution.

Gonzales v. Parks, 830 F.2d 1033, 1035 (9th Cir. 1987) (emphasis added). The Ninth Circuit continued, "A Congressional grant of exclusive jurisdiction to the federal courts includes the implied power to protect that grant." Id. at 1036. "A state court judgment entered in a case that falls within the federal courts' exclusive jurisdiction is subject to collateral attack in the federal courts." Id.

The Court recognizes that Congress has granted to other courts concurrent jurisdiction over certain proceedings related to the bankruptcy case. 28 U.S.C. § 1334(b) provides, "[T]he district courts shall have original but not exclusive jurisdiction of all civil proceedings arising under title 11, or arising in or related to cases under title 11." However, it is not argued that this subsection applies here, and for good reason. It does not. Referring to 28 U.S.C. § 1334(b), the Ninth Circuit stated in Gruntz v. Cnty. of Los Angeles (In re Gruntz) 202 F.3d 1074, 1083 (9th Cir. 2000) (en banc), “[N]othing in that section vests the states with any jurisdiction over a core bankruptcy proceeding[.]”

Indeed, 28 U.S.C. § 1334(b) only demonstrates that Congress knew precisely how to draw the line between those matters that should be within the exclusive jurisdiction of the federal bankruptcy court and those matters over which the jurisdiction could be shared. By denying effect to the Ingham County Circuit Court judgment in this case, this Court is enforcing that line.

The Court therefore concludes that upon the filing of this case at 4:06 p.m. on July 18, 2013, the Ingham County Circuit Court lost the jurisdiction to enter any order or to determine any issue pertaining to the City’s eligibility to be a chapter 9 debtor.

The Sixth Circuit has held that a state court judgment entered without jurisdiction is void ab initio. Twin City Fire Ins. Co. v. Adkins, 400 F.3d 293, 299 (6th Cir. 2005) (“Where a federal court finds that a state-court decision was rendered in the absence of subject matter jurisdiction or tainted by due process violations, it may declare the state court’s judgment void ab initio and refuse to give the decision effect in the federal proceeding.”)

Accordingly, the state court’s “Order of Declaratory Judgment” on which the objectors rely here is therefore void and of no effect, and does not preclude the City from asserting its eligibility in this Court in this case.

C. The Judgment Is Also Void Because It Violated the Automatic Stay.

11 U.S.C. § 362(a)(3) provides that “a petition filed under section 301 . . . operates as a stay, applicable to all entities, of . . . any act . . . to exercise control over property of the estate[.]”

11 U.S.C. § 902(1) states, “In this chapter ‘property of the estate’, when used in a section that is made applicable in a case under this chapter by section 103(e) or 901 of this title, means property of the debtor[.]”

The Sixth Circuit has held, “[A]n action taken against a nondebtor which would inevitably have an adverse impact upon the property of the estate must be barred by the [§ 362(a)(3)] automatic stay provision.” Amedisys, Inc. v. Nat’l Century Fin. Enters., Inc. (In re Nat’l Century Fin. Enters., Inc.), 423 F.3d 567, 578 (6th Cir. 2005) (quoting Licensing by Paolo, Inc. v. Sinatra (In re Gucci), 126 F.3d 380, 392 (2d Cir. 1997). See also Patton v. Bearden, 8 F.3d 343, 349 (6th Cir. 1993).

The thrust of the plaintiffs’ case in Webster v. Michigan was to protect the plaintiffs’ pension rights by prohibiting a bankruptcy case which might allow the City to use its property in a way that might impair pensions. It does not matter that neither the City nor its officers were defendants. The suit was clearly an act to exercise control over the City’s property. Accordingly, it was stayed under 11 U.S.C. § 362(a)(3) and the state court’s “Order of Declaratory Relief” was entered in violation of the stay.²⁷

In Easley v. Pettibone Mich. Corp., 990 F.2d 905, 911 (6th Cir. 1993), the court stated, “In summary, we hold that actions taken in violation of the stay are invalid and voidable and shall be voided absent limited equitable circumstances.”

²⁷ The Retirement Systems argue that there was no bankruptcy stay applicable to the state court litigation until July 25, 2013 when this Court entered an order extending the automatic stay to certain state officers. That order specifically included these state court cases as examples of cases that were included in the extended stay. Retirement Systems Br. at 51. (Dkt. #519)

That order, however, did not preclude the City from arguing later that the stay of 11 U.S.C. § 362(a)(3) applied as of the bankruptcy filing. Indeed, at the hearing on the motions that resulted in these orders, the Court expressly stated: “The Court is not ruling on whether any orders entered by the state court after this bankruptcy case was filed violated the automatic stay.” Hrg. Tr. 84:10-16, July 24, 2013. (Dkt. #188)

That issue is now squarely before the Court. For the reasons stated in the text, the Court concludes that the automatic stay of § 362(a)(3) was applicable to the Flowers, Webster and General Retirement Systems state court cases from the moment the City filed its bankruptcy petition.

In this case, no equitable circumstances suggest any reason to find that the state court's order should not be voided. Instead, equitable circumstances suggest that it should be voided. When the plaintiffs' counsel appeared in the state court on July 18 and 19, 2013, they knew that the City had filed its bankruptcy petition, as did the judge. The record of those proceedings establishes beyond doubt that the proceedings were rushed in order to achieve a prompt dismissal of the bankruptcy case. The protection that the stay of 11 U.S.C. § 362(a) affords is for the benefit of both the debtor and all creditors. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Labuzan, 579 F.3d 533, 541 (5th Cir. 2009); Johnson v. Smith (In re Johnson), 575 F.3d 1079, 1083 (10th Cir. 2009). Condoning the actions that the plaintiffs took in this case would open the floodgates to similar actions by creditors in other bankruptcy cases and thereby vitiate that important protection.

Accordingly, the Court concludes that the judgment in Webster is void because its entry violated the automatic stay of 11 U.S.C. § 362(a)(3) and no equitable circumstances suggest that it should not be voided. For this additional reason, that judgment does not preclude the City from asserting its eligibility in this Court in this case.

D. Other Issues

The City disputes the application of res judicata and collateral estoppel on several other grounds. Specifically, it contends that the two hearings that resulted in the Webster judgment were confused and hurried. It also disputes whether the State was given a full and fair opportunity to be heard, and whether the judgment is binding on it, as it was not a party to the suit.

The Court concludes that in light of its conclusions that the state court lacked jurisdiction and that its judgment is void, it is unnecessary to decide these issues.

Nevertheless, the Court does comment that the transcripts of the two post-petition state court hearings on July 18 and 19, 2013 reflect a very chaotic and disorderly “race to judgment.” (Dkt. #1219-9; Dkt. #1219-10) Those proceedings are perfect examples of the very kind of litigation the Congressional grant of exclusive jurisdiction in bankruptcy to one court was designed to control and eliminate. Moreover, respect for the extraordinary gravity of the issues presented, as well as for the defendants in the case, would certainly have mandated a much more considered and deliberative judicial process. Actually, so does respect for the plaintiffs, and for the City’s other 100,000 creditors.

Finally, for the reasons stated in Part IX, above, the reasoning in the Webster declaratory judgment is neither persuasive nor at all indicative of how the Michigan Supreme Court would rule.

This objection to the City’s eligibility is rejected.

XIII. The City Was “Insolvent.”

To be eligible for relief under chapter 9, the City must establish that it is “insolvent.” 11 U.S.C. § 109(c)(3). Several individual objectors and AFSCME challenge the City’s assertion that it is insolvent.

A. The Applicable Law

For a municipality, the bankruptcy code defines “insolvent” as a “financial condition such that the municipality is-- (i) generally not paying its debts as they become due unless such debts are the subject of a bona fide dispute; or (ii) is unable to pay its debts as they become due.” 11 U.S.C. § 101(32)(C).

The test under the first prong “looks to current, general non-payment.” The test under the second prong “is an equitable, prospective test looking to future inability to pay.” Hamilton

Creek Metro. Dist. v. Bondholders Colo. Bondshares (In re Hamilton Creek Metro. Dist.), 143 F.3d 1381, 1384 (10th Cir. 1998); see also In re City of Stockton, 493 B.R. 772, 788 (Bankr. E.D. Cal. 2013) (“Statutory construction rules likewise point to a temporal aspect as the § 101(32)(C)(ii) phrase ‘as they become due’ must mean something different than its § 101(32)(C)(i) partner ‘generally not paying its debts.’”).

A payment is “due” under the first prong if it is “presently, unconditionally owing and presently enforceable.” Hamilton Creek, 143 F.3d at 1385. When a municipality is unable to meet its presently enforceable debts, it is said to be “cash insolvent.” See Stockton, 493 B.R. at 789.

When considering the second prong, courts take into account broader concerns, such as longer term budget imbalances and whether the City has sufficient resources to maintain services for the health, safety, and welfare of the community. Id.; see also In re Boise Cnty., 465 B.R. 156, 172 (Bankr. D. Idaho 2011) (“The test under § 101(32)(C)(ii) is a prospective one, which requires the petitioner to prove as of the petition date an inability to pay its debts as they become due in its current fiscal year, or, based on an adopted budget, in its next fiscal year.”)

Although each test focuses on the City’s ability to meet its financial obligations at different points in time, both are to be applied as of the time of the chapter 9 filing. Hamilton Creek, 143 F.3d at 1384-85 (citing In re Town of Westlake, 211 B.R. 860, 866 (Bank. N.D. Tex. 1997)).

Finally, the Court notes that “the theme underlying the two alternative definitions of municipal insolvency in § 101(32)(C) is that a municipality must be in bona fide financial distress that is not likely to be resolved without use of the federal exclusive bankruptcy power to impair contracts.” Stockton, 493 B.R. at 788.

B. Discussion

The Court finds that the City of Detroit was, and is, insolvent under both definitions in 11 U.S.C. § 101(32)(C). The Court has already detailed the enormous financial distress that the City faced as of July 18, 2013 and will not repeat that here. See Part III A, above.

1. The City Was “Generally Not Paying Its Debts As They Become Due.”

Specifically, in May 2013, the City deferred payment on approximately $54,000,000 in pension contributions. On June 30, 2013, it deferred an additional $5,000,000 fiscal year-end payment. Ex. 43 at 8. The City also did not make a scheduled $39,700,000 payment on its COPs on June 14, 2013. Ex. 43 at 8. It was also spending much more money than it was receiving, and only making up the difference through expensive and even catastrophic borrowings. See Part III A 5, 8 and 9, above.

These facts establish that the City was “generally not paying its debts as they become due,” as of the time of the filing. 11 U.S.C. § 101(32)(C)(i).

AFSCME asserts that this was “[t]he purposeful refusal to make a few payments comprising a relatively small part of the City’s budget.” AFSCME Pre-Trial Br. at 51. (Dkt. #1227)

The Court must reject this assertion. The evidence established that the nearly $40,000,000 pension-related COPs default was particularly serious because it put in jeopardy the City’s access to its casino tax revenue, which was one of the City’s few reliable sources of income. Eligibility Trial Tr. 185:16-186:23, Oct. 24, 2013. (Dkt. #1490)

Moreover, the City was operating on a “razor’s edge” for several months prior to June 2013. Eligibility Trial Tr. 189:9-10, Oct. 24, 2013. (Dkt. #1490)

As of May 2013, the City stopped paying its trade creditors to avoid running out of cash. Eligibility Trial Tr. 189:14-15, Oct. 24, 2013. (Dkt. #1490) But for these and other deferments, the City would have completely run out of cash by the end of 2013. Ex. 75 at 2.

2. The City Is Also “Unable to Pay Its Debts As They Become Due.”

The evidence was overwhelming that the City is unable to pay its debts as they become due.

The evidence established that there are many, many services in the City which do not function properly as a result of the City’s financial state. The facts found in Parts III B 6-12, above, further firmly support this conclusion.

Most powerfully, however, the testimony of Chief Craig established that the City was in a state of “service delivery insolvency” as of July 18, 2013, and will continue to be for the foreseeable future. He testified that the conditions in the local precincts were “deplorable.” Eligibility Trial Tr. 189:4-6, Oct. 25, 2013. (Dkt. #1501) “If I just might summarize it in a very short way, that everything is broken, deplorable conditions, crime is extremely high, morale is low, the absence of leadership.” Tr. 188:5-7 He described the City as “extremely violent,” based on the high rate of violent crime and the low rate of “clearance” of violent crimes. Tr. 190:11-191:25. He stated that the officers’ low morale is due, at least in part, to “the fact that they had lost ten percent pay; that they were forced into a 12-hour work schedule,” and because there was an inadequate number of patrolling officers, and their facilities, equipment and vehicles were in various states of disrepair and obsolescence. Eligibility Trial Tr. 192:20-193:3, 197:21-23, 198:10-199:18, Oct. 25, 2013. (Dkt. #1501)

In Stockton, the Court observed:

While cash insolvency—the opposite of paying debts as they become due—is the controlling chapter 9 criterion under § 101(32)(C), longer-term budget imbalances [budget insolvency] and the degree of inability to fund essential government services [service delivery insolvency] also inform the trier of fact’s assessment of the relative degree and likely duration of cash insolvency.

478 B.R. at 789.

Service delivery insolvency “focuses on the municipality’s ability to pay for all costs of providing services at the level and quality that are required for the health, safety, and welfare of the community.” Id. at 789. Indeed, while the City’s tumbling credit rating, its utter lack of liquidity, and the disastrous COPs and swaps deal might more neatly establish the City’s “insolvency” under 11 U.S.C. § 101(32)(C), it is the City’s service delivery insolvency that the Court finds most strikingly disturbing in this case.

3. The City’s “Lay” Witnesses

The objecting parties argue the City failed to establish its insolvency because it failed to present expert proof on this issue. See AFSCME Pre-Trial Br. at 52. (Dkt. # 1227) (“Courts in the non-chapter 9 context note that ‘it is generally accepted that whenever possible, a determination of insolvency should be based on . . . expert testimony . . .’” (citing Brandt v. Samuel, Son & Co., Ltd. (In re Longview Aluminum, L.L.C.), No. 03B12184, 2005 WL 3021173, at *6 (Bankr. N.D. Ill. July 14, 2005)). This argument arises from the fact that the City mysteriously declined to qualify its financial analysts as expert witnesses.

At trial, upon the request of the City, the Court determined that under Rule 701, F.R.E., these witnesses - Charles Moore, Ken Buckfire and Gaurav Malhotra - could testify as lay witnesses regarding the City’s finances and their projections of the City’s finances in the future. Eligibility Trial Tr. 39:20-49:8, Oct. 25, 2013. (Dkt. #1501) The Court also admitted extensive documentary evidence of the analysts' observations and projections. Tr. 49:5-8. These determinations were based upon the Court's finding that the financial consultants "had extensive personal knowledge of the City's affairs that they acquired during . . . the course of their consulting work with the city." Eligibility Trial Tr. 48:14-19, Oct. 25, 2013. (Dkt. #1501); see, e.g., JGR, Inc. v. Thomasville Furniture Indus., Inc., 370 F.3d 519, 525-26 (6th Cir. 2004); DIJO, Inc. v. Hilton Hotels Corp., 351 F.3d 679, 685-87 (5th Cir. 2003) (discussing In re Merritt Logan, Inc., 901 F.2d 349 (3rd Cir. 1990) and Teen-Ed, Inc. v. Kimball Int'l, Inc., 620 F.2d 399 (3rd Cir. 1980)). While the Court questions the City's strategy here, it is clear from these cases that there is nothing improper about the City's decision not to qualify these witnesses as experts, even though it likely could have.

The witnesses testified reliably and credibly regarding their personal knowledge of the City's finances and the basis for their knowledge. In these circumstances, the Court must reject AFSCME's argument that expert testimony is essential for a finding of insolvency under 11 U.S.C. §§ 109(c)(3) and 101(32)(C).

4. The City's Failure to Monetize Assets

Finally, the objecting parties assert that the City could have, and should have, monetized a number of its assets in order to make up for its severe cash flow insolvency. See e.g., AFSCME Pre-Trial Br. at 53. (Dkt. #1227)

However, Malhotra credibly established that sales of City assets would not address the operational, structural financial imbalance facing the City. Eligibility Trial Tr. 85:2-86:12, Oct. 25, 2013. (Dkt. #1501) Buckfire also testified similarly. Tr. 197:19-204:14. The undisputed evidence establishes that the "City's expenditures have exceeded its revenues from fiscal year 2008 to fiscal year 2012 by an average of $100 million annually." Ex. 75 at 2.

When the expenses of an enterprise exceed its revenue, a one-time infusion of cash, whether from an asset sale or a borrowing, only delays the inevitable failure, unless in the meantime the enterprise sufficiently reduces its expenses and enhances its income. The City of Detroit has proven this reality many times.

In any event, when considering selling an asset, the enterprise must take extreme care that the asset is truly unnecessary in enhancing its operational revenue.

For these reasons, the Court finds that the City has established that it is insolvent as 11 U.S.C. § 109(c)(3) requires and as 11 U.S.C. § 101(32)(C) defines that term.

XIV. The City Desires to Effect a Plan to Adjust Its Debts.

To establish its eligibility for relief under chapter 9, the City must establish that it desires to effect a plan to adjust its debts. 11 U.S.C. § 109(c)(4).

A. The Applicable Law

In Int'l Ass'n of Firefighters, Local 1186 v. City of Vallejo (In re City of Vallejo), 408 B.R. 280 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2009), the Bankruptcy Appellate Panel surveyed the case law under § 109(c)(4):

Few published cases address the requirement that a chapter 9 petitioner “desires to effect” a plan of adjustment. Those cases that have considered the issue demonstrate that no bright-line test exists for determining whether a debtor desires to effect a plan because of the highly subjective nature of the inquiry under § 109(c)(4). Compare In re County of Orange, 183 B.R. 594, 607 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. 1995) (proposal of a comprehensive settlement agreement among other steps taken demonstrated efforts to resolve claims which satisfied § 109(c)(4)) with In re Sullivan County Reg'l Refuse Disposal Dist., 165 B.R. 60, 76 (Bankr. D.N.H. 1994) (post-petition submission of a draft plan of adjustment met § 109(c)(4)).

Petitioners may satisfy the subjective requirement with direct and circumstantial evidence. They may prove their desire by attempting to resolve claims as in County of Orange; by submitting a draft plan of adjustment as in Sullivan County; or by other evidence customarily submitted to show intent. See Slatkin, 525 F.3d at 812. The evidence needs to show that the “purpose of the filing of the chapter 9 petition not simply be to buy time or evade creditors.” See Collier ¶ 109.04[3][d], at 109–32.

Local 1186, 408 B.R. at 295.

In Stockton, the court expanded:

The cases equate “desire” with “intent” and make clear that this element is highly subjective. E.g., In re City of Vallejo, 408 B.R. 280, 295 (9th Cir. BAP 2009).

At the first level, the question is whether the chapter 9 case was filed for some ulterior motive, such as to buy time or evade creditors, rather than to restructure the City’s finances. Vallejo, 408 B.R. at 295; 2 Collier on Bankruptcy ¶ 109.04[3][d], at p. 109–32 (Henry J. Sommer & Alan N. Resnick eds. 16th ed. 2011) (hereafter “Collier”).

Evidence probative of intent includes attempts to resolve claims, submitting a draft plan, and other circumstantial evidence. Vallejo, 408 B.R. at 295.

493 B.R. at 791. See also City of San Bernardino, Cal., 2013 WL 5645560, at *8-12 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. 2013); In re Boise County, 465 B.R. 156, 168 (Bankr. D. Idaho 2011); In re New York City Off-Track Betting Corp., 427 B.R. 256, 272 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2010).

“Since that ‘plan’ is to be effected by an entity seeking relief under Chapter 9, it is logical to conclude that the ‘plan’ referred to in section 109(c)(4) is a ‘plan for adjustment of the debtor’s debts’ within the meaning of section 941 of the Bankruptcy Code.” In re Cottonwood Water and Sanitation Dist., Douglas County, Colo., 138 B.R. 973, 975 (Bankr. D. Colo. 1992).

B. Discussion

Several objectors asserted that the City does not desire to effect a plan to adjust its debts.

The Court concludes that the evidence overwhelmingly established that the City does desire to effectuate a plan in this case. Mr. Orr so testified. Eligibility Trial Tr. 43:1-47:13, October 28, 2013. (Dkt. #1502) More importantly, before filing this case, Mr. Orr did submit to creditors a plan to adjust the City's debts. Ex. 43. Plainly, that plan was not acceptable to any of the City's creditors. It may not have been confirmable under 11 U.S.C. § 943, although it is not necessary to resolve that question at this time. Still, it was evidence of the City's desire and intent to effect a plan. There is simply no evidence that the City has an ulterior motive in pursuing chapter 9, such as to buy time or to evade creditors.

Indeed, the objecting creditors do not contend that there was any such ulterior motive. They assert no desire on the part of the City or its emergency manager to buy time or evade creditors. Rather, their argument is that the plan that the emergency manager has stated he intends to propose in this case is not a confirmable plan. It is not confirmable, they argue, because it will impair pensions in violation of the Michigan Constitution.

Certainly the evidence does establish that the emergency manager intends to propose a plan that impairs pensions. The Court has already so found. See Part VIII C 1, above. Nevertheless, the objectors' argument must be rejected. As established in Part VIII C 5, above, a chapter 9 plan may impair pension rights. The emergency manager's stated intent to propose a plan that impairs pensions is therefore not inconsistent with a desire to effect a plan.

Accordingly, the Court finds that the City does desire to effect a plan, as 11 U.S.C. § 109(c)(4) requires.

XV. The City Did Not Negotiate with Its Creditors in Good Faith.

A. The Applicable Law

The fifth requirement for eligibility is found in § 109(c)(5).

An entity may be a debtor under chapter 9 of this title if and only if such entity—

...
(5)(A) has obtained the agreement of creditors holding at least a majority in amount of the claims of each class that such entity intends to impair under a plan in a case under such chapter;

(B) has negotiated in good faith with creditors and has failed to obtain the agreement of creditors holding at least a majority in amount of the claims of each class that such entity intends to impair under a plan in a case under such chapter;

(C) is unable to negotiate with creditors because such negotiation is impracticable; or

(D) reasonably believes that a creditor may attempt to obtain a transfer that is avoidable under section 547 of this title.

11 U.S.C. § 109(c)(5).

This section was enacted because Congress recognized that municipal bankruptcy is a drastic step and should only be taken as a last resort. In re Sullivan Cnty. Reg'l Refuse Disposal Dist., 165 B.R. 60, 78 (Bankr. D.N.H. 1994); 5 Norton Bankr. L. & Prac. 3d § 90:25 (“It is the policy of the Bankruptcy Code that a Chapter 9 filing should be considered only as a last resort, after an out-of-court attempt to avoid bankruptcy has failed.”) Therefore, it added a requirement for pre-bankruptcy negotiation to attempt to resolve disputes.

Because § 109(c)(5) is written in the disjunctive, a debtor has four options to satisfy the requirement for negotiation: “[1] it may obtain the agreement of creditors holding a majority in amount of claims in each class [; (2)] it may show that it has negotiated with its creditors in good faith but has failed to obtain their agreement [; (3)] it may show that it is unable to negotiate with creditors because negotiation is impracticable [; or (4)] it may demonstrate that it reasonably believe[s] that a creditor may attempt to obtain a preferential transfer.” In re Ellicott Sch. Bldg. Auth., 150 B.R. 261, 265–66 (Bankr. D. Colo.1992).

The City of Detroit asserts that it has met the requirements of § 109(c)(5)(B) or, in the alternative, § 109(c)(5)(C). City’s Reply to Objections at 45-49; (Dkt. #765) City’s Pre-trial Br. at 49-67. (Dkt. #1240)

The Court finds the recent case, In re Mendocino Coast Recreation & Park Dist., 12-CV-02591-JST, 2013 WL 5423788 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 27, 2013), persuasive on this issue. In that case, the district court for the Northern District of California noted:

Mendocino Coast, 2013 WL 5423788 at *2. After a thorough analysis of the legislative history of § 109(c)(5)(B), the court was "persuaded by the Cottonwood view that Section 109(c)(5)(B) requires municipalities not just to negotiate generally in good faith with their creditors, but also to negotiate in good faith with creditors over a proposed plan, at least in concept, for bankruptcy under Chapter 9." Mendocino Coast, 2013 WL 5423788 at *5. This Court is also persuaded by that analysis.

Mendocino Coast also considered how the § 109(c)(5)(B) process compares to analogous provisions in other chapters of the bankruptcy code. The court looked to 11 U.S.C. §§ 1113(b) & (c) and 1114(f)(1), which require debtors to negotiate regarding the post-petition rejection of collective bargaining agreements and pension plans in chapter 11 proceedings. The court stated:

[T]he appropriate standard to apply [under Section 109(c)(5)] is one that is "at least as stringent as those under §§ 1113 and 1114." 1 Norton Bankr. L. & Prac. 3d § 17:8, n.19. Those statutes require courts to, inter alia, determine whether the parties "[met] to confer in good faith in attempting to reach mutually satisfactory modifications," determine whether unions have rejected proposals "without good cause," and "balance . . . the equities." 11 U.S.C. § 1113(b)(2) & (c). In doing so, courts commonly assess both parties' conduct in negotiations.

Mendocino Coast, 2013 WL 5423788 at *7. The Court reached two conclusions regarding § 109(c)(5)(B):

First, courts may consider, based on the unique circumstances of each case and applying their best judgment, whether a debtor has satisfied an obligation to have “negotiated in good faith.” Second, while the Bankruptcy Code places the overwhelming weight of its burdens on petitioners, the provisions that call for negotiation contemplate that at least some very minimal burden of reciprocity be placed on parties with whom a debtor must negotiate.

Mendocino Coast, 2013 WL 5423788 at *7.

Mendocino Coast recognized that its case did not present the issue “of what must occur in a negotiation that satisfies 109(c)(5)(B). It presents the issue of what information, if missing from the debtor’s first attempt to negotiate, bars a municipality from filing Chapter 9 even if a creditor rejects the overture and declines to negotiate.” Id. at *8.

This Court faces the same question, and therefore finds Mendocino Coast’s analysis very useful, although on the facts of this case the Court ultimately reaches the opposite conclusion.

While recognizing that a determination of what qualifies as a good-faith effort to begin negotiation can depend on several factors, Mendocino Coast was able to make its determination upon consideration of three factors.

First, the greater the disclosure about the proposed bankruptcy plan, the stronger the debtor’s claim to have attempted to negotiate in good faith. A creditor might be justified in rejecting the overture of a debtor proposing a frivolous or unclearly described adjustment plan, but a creditor is less justified in ignoring a substantive proposal.

Second, the municipality’s need to immediately disclose classes of creditors and their treatment in the first communication will depend upon how material that information would be to the creditor’s decision about whether to negotiate.

Third, the creditor’s response, and the amount of time the creditor has had to respond, may also be factors. If a creditor has had a relatively short time to respond to the municipality’s offer to negotiate, a lack of detail in the opening communication might weigh against a municipality rushing to file. On the other hand, where a creditor has been apprised of the possibility of a debt adjustment and declined to respond after a reasonable period of time, or where the creditor has explicitly responded with a refusal to negotiate, its position as an objector is significantly weakened.

Mendocino Coast, 2013 WL 5423788 at *8-9.

B. Discussion

In the present case, the City of Detroit argues that the June 14, 2013 proposal to creditors, along with its follow up meetings, was a good-faith effort to begin negotiations, and that the creditors refused to respond. It asserts, therefore, it has satisfied 11 U.S.C. § 109(c)(5)(B). City's Reply to Objections at 54-58. (Dkt. # 765)

The Court concludes, however, that the June 14 Proposal to Creditors and the follow up meetings were not sufficient to satisfy the requirements of 11 U.S.C. § 109(c)(5)(B). The first and third factors cited by Mendocino Coast weigh heavily against finding that the City's initial efforts satisfied the requirement of good faith negotiation. The Proposal to Creditors did not provide creditors with sufficient information to make meaningful counter-proposals, especially in the very short amount of time that the City allowed for the "discussion" period.

The City's proposal to creditors is a 128 page document. Ex. 43. The City invited many creditors or "stakeholders" to the meeting on June 14, 2013, when it presented the proposal. Its presentation was a 120 deck powerpoint presentation, providing information regarding the financial condition of the City and proposing across the board reductions in creditor obligations.

The restructuring proposal began on page 101. Addressed on page 109 are the proposed treatment of the unsecured general obligation bonds, the claims of service corporations on account of the COPs, the claims for unfunded OPEB liabilities, the claims for unfunded pension liabilities and the claims on account of other liabilities. Ex. 43. Charitably stated, the proposal is very summary in nature.

For example, the proposed treatment for underfunded pension liabilities is three bullet points in length. The first bullet point states that the underfunding is approximately $3.5B. The second bullet point states, “Claims for the underfunding will be exchanged for a pro rata (relative to all unsecured claims) principal amount of new Notes.” The third bullet point states, “Because the amounts realized on the underfunding claims will be substantially less than the underfunding amount, there must be significant cuts in accrued, vested pension amounts for both active and currently retired persons.” Ex. 43 at 109.

This is simply not enough information for creditors to start meaningful negotiations. Brad Robins, of Greenhill & Co. LLC, financial advisor to the Retirement Systems, testified, “The note, itself, I thought was not really a serious proposal but maybe a place holder, [because it had] no maturity, no obligation for the City to pay.” Eligibility Trial Tr. 129:1-11, Nov. 7, 2013. (Dkt. #1681)

The City asserts that it provided supporting data in an “electronic data room.” However, several witnesses testified that the data room did not contain all the necessary data to make a meaningful evaluation of the proposal to creditors. Brad Robins testified that the data room was missing “lots of information: value of assets, different projections and build-ups.” Eligibility Trial Tr. 133:7-10, Nov. 7, 2013. (Dkt. #1681) He felt that prior to the filing date, Greenhill was not given complete information to fully evaluate what was laid out in the June 14, 2013 proposal. Eligibility Trial Tr. 135:17-20, Nov. 7, 2013. (Dkt. #1681) Mark Diaz testified that he made a request to the City for additional information and did not receive a response. Eligibility Trial Tr. 192:1-5, Nov. 7, 2013. (Dkt. #1681)

Moreover, the City conditioned access to the data room on the signing of a confidentiality and release agreement. This created an unnecessary hurdle for creditors.

The creditors simply cannot be faulted for failing to offer counter-proposals when they did not have the necessary information to evaluate the City's vague initial proposal.

The proposal for creditors provided a calendar on page 113. Ex. 43. It allotted one week, June 17, 2013 through June 24, 2013, for requests for additional information. Initial rounds of discussions with stakeholders were scheduled for June 17, 2013 through July 12, 2013. The evaluation period was scheduled to be July 15, 2013 through July 19, 2013. This calendar was very tight and it did not request counter-proposals or provide a deadline for submitting them.

The City filed its bankruptcy on July 18, 2013, the day before the end of the evaluation period. Although the objecting creditors argue that in hindsight the bankruptcy filing was a forgone conclusion, they argue that the initial proposal did not make clear the City's intention to file. Regardless, the time available for creditor negotiations was approximately thirty days. Given the extraordinary complexities of the case, that amount of time is simply far too short to conclude that such a vague proposal to creditors rises to the level required to shift the burden to objectors to make counter-proposals.

In addition to the lack of detail in the initial proposal and the short response time, the Court notes that two additional factors support its conclusion.

First, the City affirmatively stated that the meetings were not negotiations. Eligibility Trial Tr. 188:22-24, 189:1-3, Nov. 7, 2013; (Dkt. #1681) Orr Dep. Tr. 129:14-18, 262:1-25, Sept. 16, 2013. The City asserts this was to clarify that the City was not waiving the suspension of collective bargaining under P.A. 436. Orr Dep. Tr. 264:23-265:7, Sept. 16, 2013 (Dkt. #1159-B); Orr Dep. Tr. 63:21-64.20, Oct. 28, 2013. (Dkt. # 1502) This explanation is inadequate, bordering on disingenuous. The City simply cannot announce to creditors that meetings are not negotiations and then assert to the Court that those same meetings amounted to good faith negotiations.

Second, the format of the meetings was primarily presentational, to different groups of creditors with different issues, and gave little opportunity for creditor input or substantive discussion. Eligibility Trial Tr. 145:7-146:3, Nov. 4, 2013. (Dkt. #1683) For example, at the end of the June 14, 2013 meeting, creditors were permitted to submit questions via notecard. Shirley Lightsey attended the June 20, 2013, July 10, 2013 and July 11, 2013 meetings and testified that there was no opportunity to meet in smaller groups to discuss retiree-specific issues. Eligibility Trial Tr.108:19-20, 109:22-23, 111:1-3, Nov. 4, 2013. (Dkt. #1683) Mark Diaz, President of the Detroit Police Officers Association, testified there was no back and forth discussion. Eligibility Trial Tr. 187:22-25, 189:1-3, Nov. 7, 2013. (Dkt. #1681)

The City argues that these meetings were intended to start negotiations and that they expected counter-proposals from the creditors. Even as a first step, these meetings failed to reach a level that would justify a finding that negotiations had occurred, let alone good faith negotiations. Moreover, the Court finds that the lack of negotiations were not due to creditor recalcitrance. Accordingly, the Court concludes that the City has not established by a preponderance of the evidence that it has satisfied the requirement of 11 U.S.C. § 109(c)(5)(B).

XVI. The City Was Unable to Negotiate with Creditors Because Such Negotiation Was Impracticable.

A. The Applicable Law

Nevertheless, the Court finds that negotiations were in fact, impracticable, even if the City had attempted good faith negotiations. “[I]mpracticability of negotiations is a fact-sensitive inquiry that ‘depends upon the circumstances of the case.’” In re New York City Off-Track

See also In re Hos. Auth. Pierce County, 414 B.R. 702, 713 (Bankr. W.D. Wash. 2009) (“Whether negotiations with creditors is impracticable depends on the circumstances of the case.”).

“Impracticable” means “not practicable; incapable of being performed or accomplished by the means employed or at command; infeasible.” Webster’s New International Dictionary 1136 (3d ed. 2002). In the legal context, “impracticability” is defined as “a fact or circumstance that excuses a party from performing an act, esp. a contractual duty, because (though possible) it would cause extreme and unreasonable difficulty.” Black’s Law Dictionary 772 (8th ed. 2004).

B. Discussion

The list of creditors for the City of Detroit is over 3500 pages. Ex. 64 (Dkt. #1059) It lists over 100,000 creditors. It is divided into fifteen schedules including the following classifications: Long-Term Debt; Trade Debt, Employee Benefits; Pension Obligations, Non-Pension Retiree Obligations; Active Employee Obligations; Workers' Compensation; Litigation and Similar Claims; Real Estate Lease Obligations; Deposits; Grants; Pass-Through Obligations, Obligations to Component Units of the City; Property Tax-Related Obligations; Income Tax-Related Obligations. Ex. 64 at 2-3. (Dkt. #1059) The summary of schedules provided with the list estimates the amount of claims and percent total for each schedule where sufficient information is available to determine those amounts. (Dkt. #1059-1) Some schedules such as Workers' Compensation and Litigation and Similar Claims do not have amounts listed because they are unliquidated, contingent and often disputed claims.

Long term debt, including bonds, notes and loans, capital lease, and obligations arising under the COPs and swaps, is listed at over $8,700,000,000 or approximately 48.52% of the City's total debt. Within this category are several series of bonds where individual bondholders are not identified. Many of these bondholders are not represented by any organization. Ex. 28 at 10.

As noted above, pension obligations are estimated at almost $3,500,000,000 or 19.33% of the City's total debt. The City estimates over 20,000 individual retirees are owed pension funds.

Ex. 28 at 9. OPEB amounts are estimated at approximately $5,700,000,000 or 31.81% of the City's total debt.

The Court is satisfied that when Congress enacted the impracticability section, it foresaw precisely the situation facing the City of Detroit. It has been widely reported that Detroit is the largest municipality ever to file bankruptcy. Indeed, one of the objectors stated that it is “by far the largest and most economically significant city ever to file for chapter 9 bankruptcy.” AFSCME’s Supplemental Br. on Good Faith Negotiations at 7. (Dkt. #1695) The sheer size of the debt and number of individual creditors made pre-bankruptcy negotiation impracticable – impossible, really.

There are, however, several other circumstances that also support a finding of impracticability.

First, although several unions have now come forward to argue that they are the “natural representatives of the retirees,” those same unions asserted in response to the City’s pre-filing inquires that they did not represent retirees. Ex. 32. For example, in a May 22, 2013 letter, Robyn Brooks, the President of UAW Local 2211, stated, “This union does not, however, represent current retirees and has no authority to negotiate on their behalf.” John Cunningham sent the same response on behalf of UAW Locals 412 and 212. In a May 27, 2013 letter, Delia Enright, President of AFSCME Local 1023, stated, “Please be advised that in accordance with Michigan law, I have no authority in which to renegotiate the Pension or Medical Benefits that retired members of our union currently receive.” Several other union representatives sent similar responses.

These responses sent a clear message to the City that the unions would not negotiate on behalf of the retirees. See Stockton, 493 B.R. at 794 (“it is impracticable to negotiate with 2,400 retirees for whom there is no natural representative capable of bargaining on their behalf.”).

Several voluntary associations, including the RDPMA, the Detroit Retired City Employees (“DRCEA”), and the Retired Detroit Police and Fire Fighters Association (“RDPFFA”), assert that they are the natural representatives of retirees. However, none assert that they can bind individual retirees absent some sort of complex class action litigation. Ex. 301 at ¶ 6; (Dkt. # 497-2) Eligibility Trial Tr. 115:15-22, Nov. 4, 2013; (Dkt. #1683) Ex. 302 at ¶6; (Dkt. #497-3) Eligibility Trial Tr.164:1-8, Nov. 4, 2013. (Dkt. #1683) Ultimately “it would be up to the individual members of the association to decide if they would accept or reject” an offer. Eligibility Trial Tr. 157:1-4, Nov. 4, 2013. (Dkt. #1683)

Further, several witnesses who testified on behalf of the retiree associations made it clear that they would not have negotiated a reduction in accrued pension benefits because they consider them to be fully protected by state law. As Shirley Lightsey testified, “The DRCEA would not take any action to solicit authority from its membership to reduce pension benefits because they’re protected by the Michigan Constitution.” Eligibility Trial Tr. 125:3-7, Nov. 4, 2013. (Dkt. #1683)

The answers to interrogatories from both organizations reveal a similar inflexibility. “[T]he purpose of the RDPFFA has always been and remains to protect and preserve benefits of retirees, not to reduce such benefits.” Ex. 83, Answers to Interrogatories No. 4. See also Answer to Interrogatories No. 6 for similar statement by DRCEA.

Indeed, as noted above, within two weeks of the June 14, 2013 meeting, some retirees had filed lawsuits attempting to block this bankruptcy based on their state law position. (Flowers v. Synder, No. 13-729-CZ July 3, 2013; Webster v. Synder No. 13-734-CZ July 3, 2013)

It is impracticable to negotiate with a group that asserts that their position is immutable. See Stockton, 493 B.R. at 794 (Bankr. E.D. Cal. 2013) (“it is impracticable to negotiate with a stone wall.”).

The Court concludes that the position of the several retiree associations that they would never negotiate a reduction in accrued pension benefits made negotiations with them impracticable.

Finally, the City has sufficiently demonstrated that time was quickly running out on its liquidity. Ex. 9. (Dkt. #12) The Court therefore rejects the objectors’ assertions that the City manufactured any time constraints in an attempt to create impracticability. Throughout the pertinent time periods, the City was in a financial emergency.

Courts also frequently find that negotiations are impracticable where pausing to negotiate before filing for chapter 9 protection would put the debtor’s assets at risk. See, e.g., In re Valley Health Sys., 383 B.R. at 163 (“Negotiations may also be impracticable when a municipality must act to preserve its assets and a delay in filing to negotiate with creditors risks a significant loss of those assets.”); 2 Collier on Bankruptcy ¶ 109.04[3][e][iii] (“[W]here it is necessary to file a chapter 9 case to preserve the assets of a municipality, delaying the filing to negotiate with creditors and risking, in the process, the assets of the municipality makes such negotiations impracticable.”).

The majority of the City’s debt is bond debt and legacy debt. Neither the pension debt nor the bond debt are adjustable except through consent or bankruptcy. Negotiations with retirees and bondholders were impracticable due to the sheer number of creditors, and because many of the retirees and bondholders have no formal representatives who could bind them, or even truly negotiate on their behalf. Additionally, the Court finds that the City’s fiscal crisis was not self-imposed and also made negotiations impracticable.

Accordingly, the Court finds that pre-filing negotiations were impracticable. The City has established by a preponderance of the evidence that it meets the requirements of 11 U.S.C. § 109(c)(5)(C).

XVII. The City Filed Its Bankruptcy Petition in Good Faith.

The last requirement for eligibility is set forth in 11 U.S.C. § 921(c), which provides, “After any objection to the petition, the court, after notice and a hearing, may dismiss the petition if the debtor did not file the petition in good faith or if the petition does not meet the requirements of this title.”

Unlike the eligibility requirements in § 109(c), “the court’s power to dismiss a petition under § 921(c) is permissive, not mandatory.” In re Pierce Cnty. Hous. Auth., 414 B.R. 702, 714 (Bankr. W.D. Wash. 2009) (citing 6 Collier on Bankruptcy ¶ 921.04[4], at 921-7); In re Cnty. of Orange, 183 B.R. 594, 608 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. 1995) (citing In re Sullivan Cnty. Reg. Refuse Disposal Dist., 165 B.R. 60, 79 (Bankr. D.N.H. 1994)) (“the court has discretion to dismiss a petition if it finds that the petition was not filed in good faith”).

The City’s alleged bad faith in filing its chapter 9 petition was a central issue in the eligibility trial. Indeed, in one form or another, all of the objecting parties have taken the position that the City did not file its chapter 9 petition in good faith and that this Court should exercise its discretion under 11 U.S.C. § 921(c) to dismiss the case.

A. The Applicable Law

“Good faith in the chapter 9 context is not defined in the Code and the legislative history of [section] 921(c) sheds no light on Congress’ intent behind the requirement.” In re New York City Off-Track Betting Corp., 427 B.R. 256, 278-79 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2010) (quoting In re Cnty. of Orange, 183 B.R. at 608) (quotation marks omitted).

In Stockton, the Court found:

Relevant considerations in the comprehensive analysis for § 921 good faith include whether the City’s financial problems are of a nature contemplated by chapter 9, whether the reasons for filing are consistent with chapter 9, the extent of the City’s prepetition efforts to address the issues, the extent that alternatives to chapter 9 were considered, and whether the City’s residents would be prejudiced by denying chapter 9 relief.

Stockton, 493 B.R. at 794.

The leading treatise lists six different factors that the courts may examine when determining whether a petition under chapter 9 was filed in good faith: (i) the debtor’s subjective beliefs; (ii) whether the debtor’s financial problems fall within the situations contemplated by chapter 9; (iii) whether the debtor filed its chapter 9 petition for reasons consistent with the purposes of chapter 9; (iv) the extent of the debtor’s prepetition negotiations, if practical; (v) the extent that alternatives to chapter 9 were considered; and (vi) the scope and nature of the debtor’s financial problems.

The essence of this good faith requirement is to prevent abuse of the bankruptcy process. In re Villages at Castle Rock Metro. Dist. No. 4, 145 B.R. at 81.

In conducting its good faith analysis, the Court must consider the broad remedial purpose of the bankruptcy code. See, e.g., Stockton, 493 B.R. at 794; see also In re Mount Carbon Metro. Dist., 242 B.R. 18, 32 (Bankr. D. Colo. 1999) (“The purpose of reorganization under Chapter 9 is to allow municipalities created by state law to adjust their debts through a plan voted on by creditors and approved by the bankruptcy court.”).

Indeed, “if all of the eligibility criteria set forth in § 109(c) as described above are satisfied, it follows that there should be a strong presumption in favor of chapter 9 relief.” Stockton, 493 B.R. at 794. This Court agrees with the analysis set forth in the Stockton case on the issue of good faith under § 921(c):

The quantum of evidence that must be produced to rebut the § 921(c) good faith presumption is appropriately evaluated in light of, first, the policy favoring the remedial purpose of chapter 9 for those entities that meet the eligibility requirements of § 109(c) and, second, the risk that City residents will be prejudiced if relief nevertheless is denied.

Stockton, 493 B.R. at 795.

B. Discussion

As explained below, the Court finds that the totality of the circumstances, coupled with the presumption of good faith that arises because the City has proven each of the elements of eligibility under § 109(c)(3), establishes that the City filed its petition in good faith under § 921(c).

1. The Objectors’ Theory of Bad Faith

In section 3, below, the Court will review the factors upon which it relies in finding that the City filed this case in good faith. First, however, it is crucial to this process for the Court to give voice to what it understands is the narrative giving rise to the objecting parties’ argument that the City of Detroit did not file this case in good faith. The Court will then, in section 2, explain that there is some support in the record for that narrative.

It must be recognized that the narrative that the Court describes here is a composite of the objecting parties' positions and presentations on this issue. No single objecting party neatly laid out this precise version with all of the features described here. Moreover, it includes the perceptions of the objecting parties whose objections were filed by attorneys, as well as the many objecting parties who filed their objections without counsel. Naturally, these views on this subject were numerous, diverse, and at times inconsistent.

The Court will use an italics font for its description of this narrative, not to give it emphasis, but as a reminder that these are not the Court's findings. As noted, this is only the Court's perception of a composite narrative that appears to ground the objectors' various bad faith arguments:

According to this composite narrative of the lead-up to the City of Detroit's bankruptcy filing on July 18, 2013, the bankruptcy was the intended consequence of a years-long, strategic plan.

The goal of this plan was the impairment of pension rights through a bankruptcy filing by the City.

Its genesis was hatched in a law review article that two Jones Day attorneys wrote. This is significant because Jones Day later became not only the City's attorneys in the case, but is also the law firm from which the City's emergency manager was hired. The article is Jeffrey B. Ellman; Daniel J. Merrett, Pensions and Chapter 9: Can Municipalities Use Bankruptcy to Solve Their Pension Woes?, 27 EMORY BANKR. DEV. J. 365 (2011). It laid out in detail the legal roadmap for using bankruptcy to impair municipal pensions.

The plan was executed by the top officials of the State of Michigan, including Governor Snyder and others in his administration, assisted by the state's legal and financial consultants - the Jones Day law firm and the Miller Buckfire investment banking firm. The goals of the plan also included lining the professionals' pockets while extending the power of state government at the expense of the people of Detroit.

Always conscious of the hard-fought and continuing struggle to obtain equal voting rights in this country and an equal opportunity to partake of the country's abundance, some who hold to this narrative also suspect a racial element to the plan.

The plan foresaw the rejection of P.A. 4 coming in the November 2102 election, and so work began on P.A. 436 beforehand. As a result, it only took 14 days to enact it after it was introduced in the legislature's post-election, lame-duck session.

It was also enacted in derogation of the will of the people of Michigan as just expressed in their rejection of P.A. 4.

The plan also included inserting into P.A. 436 two very minor appropriations provisions so that the law would not be subject to the people's right of referendum and would not risk the same fate as P.A. 4 had just experienced.

The plan also called for P.A. 436 to be drafted so that the Detroit emergency manager would be in office under the revived P.A. 72 on the effective date of P.A. 436. This was done so that he would continue in office under P.A. 436, M.C.L. § 141.1572, and no consideration could be given to the other options that P.A. 436 appeared to offer for resolving municipal financial crises. See M.C.L. § 141.1549(10) ("An emergency financial manager appointed under former 1988 PA 101 or former 1990 PA 72, and serving immediately prior to the effective date of this act, shall be considered an emergency manager under this act and shall continue under this act to fulfill his or her powers and duties."); see also id. § 141.1547 (titled, "Local government options . . .").

The plan also saw the value in enticing a bankruptcy attorney to become the emergency manager, even though he did not have the qualifications required by P.A. 436. M.C.L. § 141.1549(3)(a).

Another important part of the plan was for the state government to starve the City of cash by reducing its revenue sharing, by refusing to pay the City millions of promised dollars, and by imposing on the City the heavy financial burden of expensive professionals.

The plan also included suppressing information about the value of the City's assets and refusing to investigate the value of its assets - the art at the Detroit Institute of the Arts; Belle Isle; City Airport; the Detroit Zoo; the Department of Water and Sewerage; the Detroit Windsor Tunnel; parking operations; Joe Louis Arena, and City-owned land.

The narrative continues that this plan also required active concealment and even deception, despite both the great public importance of resolving the City's problems and the democratic mandate of transparency and honesty in government. The purposes of this concealment and deception were to provide political cover for the governor and his administration when the City would ultimately file for bankruptcy and to advance their further political aspirations. Another purpose was to deny creditors, especially those whose retirement benefits would be at risk from such a filing, from effectively acting to protect those interests.

This concealment and deception were accomplished through a public relations campaign that deliberately misstated the ultimate objective of P.A. 436 – the filing of this case. It also downplayed the likelihood of bankruptcy, asserted an unfunded pension liability amount that was based on misleading and incomplete data and analysis, understated the City’s ability to meet that liability, and obscured the vulnerability of pensions in bankruptcy. It also included imposing an improper requirement to sign a confidentiality and release agreement as a condition of accessing the City’s financial information in the “data room.”

As the bankruptcy filing approached, a necessary part of the plan became to engage with the creditors only the minimum necessary so that the City could later assert in bankruptcy court that it attempted to negotiate in good faith. The plan, however, was not to engage in meaningful pre-petition negotiations with the creditors because successful negotiations might thwart the plan to file bankruptcy. “Check-a-box” was the phrase that some objecting parties used for this.

The penultimate moment that represented the successful culmination of the plan was the bankruptcy filing. It was accomplished in secrecy and a day before the planned date, in order to thwart the creditors who were, at that very moment, in a state court pursuing their available state law remedies to protect their constitutional pension rights. “In the dark of the night” was the phrase used to describe the actual timing of the filing. The phrase refers to the secrecy surrounding the filing and is also intended to capture in shorthand the assertion that the petition was filed to avoid an imminent adverse ruling in state court.

Another oft-repeated phrase that was important to the objectors’ theory of the City’s bad faith was “foregone conclusion.” This was used in the assertion that Detroit’s bankruptcy case was a “foregone conclusion,” as early as January 2013, perhaps even earlier.

Finally, post-petition, the plan also necessitated the assertion of the common interest privilege to protect it and its participants from disclosure.

The Court will now turn to its evaluation of this narrative of bad faith on the City’s part in filing this case.

2. The Court’s Conclusions Regarding the Objectors’ Theory of Bad Faith

The Court acknowledges that many people in Detroit hold to this narrative, or at least to substantial parts of it.

The Court further recognizes, on the other hand, that State and City officials vehemently deny any such improper motives or tactics as this theory attributed to them. They contend that the case was filed for the proper desired and necessary purpose of restructuring the City's debt, including its pension debt, through a plan of adjustment. Indeed, in Part XIV, above, the Court has already found that the City does desire to effect a plan of adjustment.

The Court finds, however, that in some particulars, the record does support the objectors' view of the reality that led to this bankruptcy filing. It is, however, not nearly supported in enough particulars for the Court to find that the filing was in bad faith.

The evidence in support of the objectors' theory is as follows:

- The testimony of Howard Ryan, the legislative assistant for the Michigan Department of Treasury who shepherded P.A. 436 through the legislative process. He testified that the appropriations provisions in P.A. 436 were inserted to eliminate the possibility of a referendum vote on the law, and everyone knew that. Ryan Dep. Tr. 46:1-23, Oct. 14, 2013. To the same effect is Exhibit 403, a January 31, 2013 email from Mr. Orr to fellow Jones Day attorneys, stating, "By contrast Michigan's new EM law is a clear end-around the prior initiative that was rejected by the voters in November. . . . The news reports state that opponents of the prior law are already lining up to challenge this law. Nonetheless, I'm going to speak with Baird in a few minutes to see what his thinking is. I'll let you know how it turns out. Thanks." Ex. 403.
- Email exchanges between other attorneys at the Jones Day law firm during the time period leading up Mr. Orr's appointment as Emergency Manager and the retention of the Jones Day law firm to represent the City. For example, Exhibit 402 contains an email dated January 31, 2013 from Corinne Ball of Jones Day to Mr. Orr, which states:

Food for thought for your conversation with Baird and us - I understand that the Bloomberg Foundation has a keen interest in this area. I was thinking about whether we should talk to Baird about financial support for this project and in particular the EM. Harry Wilson-from the auto task force-told me about the foundation and its interest. I can ask Harry for contact info-this kind of support in ways 'nationalizes' the issue and the project.

Ex. 402 at 2. Exhibit 402 also contains an email dated January 31, 2013, from Dan T. Moss at Jones Day to Mr. Orr, which states:

Making this a national issue is not a bad idea. It provides political cover for the state politicians. Indeed, this gives them an even greater incentive to do this right because, if it succeeds, there will be more than enough patronage to allow either Bing or Snyder to look for higher callings—whether Cabinet, Senate, or corporate. Further, this would give you cover and options on the back end.

Ex. 402 at 2.

- Exhibit 403, containing an email dated February 20, 2013, from Richard Baird, a consultant to the governor to Mr. Orr, stating: “Told [Mayor Bing] there were certain things I would not think we could agree to without your review, assessment and determination (such as keeping the executive team in its entirety). Will broker a meeting via note between you and the Mayor’s personal assistant who is not FOIA ble.” Ex. 403 (emphasis added). The Court finds that “FOIA” is a reference to the Freedom of Information Act. Generally, FOIA provides citizens with access to documents controlled by state or local governments. See M.C.L. § 15.231.
- The Jones Day Pitch Book. As part of its “Pitch Presentation,” the Jones Day law firm presented, in part, the following playbook for the City’s road to chapter 9:
 - (i) the difficulty of achieving an out of court settlement and steps to bolster the City’s ability to qualify for chapter 9 by establishing a good faith record of negotiations, Ex. 833 at 13; 16-18; 22-23; 28;
 - (ii) the EM could be used as “political cover” for difficult decisions such as an ultimate chapter 9 filing, Ex. 833 at 16;
 - (iii) warning that pre-chapter 9 asset monetization could implicate the chapter 9 eligibility requirement regarding insolvency, thus effectively advising the City against raising money in order to will itself into insolvency, Ex. 833 at 17; and
 - (iv) describing protections under state law for retiree benefits and accrued pension obligations and how chapter 9 could be used as means to further cut back or compromise accrued pension obligations otherwise protected by the Michigan Constitution, Ex. 833 at 39; 41.
- The State’s selection of a distinguished bankruptcy lawyer to be the emergency manager for Detroit. Orr Dep. Tr. 18:12-21:20, Sept. 16, 2013 (discussing how Mr. Orr came with the Law Firm in late January to pitch for the City’s restructuring work before a “restructuring team [of] advisors”); Baird Dep.Tr. 13:11-15:10, Oct. 10, 2013. During that pitch, Mr. Orr (among other lawyers that would be working on the proposed engagement) was presented primarily as a “bankruptcy and restructuring attorney.” Orr Dep. Tr. 21:3-6, Sept. 16, 2013; see also Bing Dep.Tr. 12:7-13:7, Oct. 14, 2013 (indicating that Baird explained to Mayor Bing that Baird was “impressed with him [Mr. Orr], that he had been part of the bankruptcy team representing Chrysler” and that Mr. Orr primarily had restructuring experience in the context of bankruptcy).

- Jones Day provided 1,000 hours of service without charge to the City or the State to position itself for this retention. Ex. 860 at 1 (Email dated January 28, 2013, from Corinne Ball to Jeffrey Ellman, both of Jones Day, stating: “Just heard from Buckfire. . . . Strong advice not to mention 1000 hours except to say we don’t have major learning curve”). See also Eligibility Trial Tr. 103:23-109:17, November 5, 2013; (Dkt. #1584) Ex. 844.

Exhibit 844 provides a list of memos that attorneys at Jones Day prepared prior to June 2012, “in connection with the Detroit matter.” Heather Lennox of Jones Day requested copies of these memos for a June 6, 2012, meeting with Ken Buckfire, of Miller Buckfire, and Governor Snyder. Some of the memos include:

- (1) “Summary and Comparison of Public Act 4 and Chapter 9”
- (2) “Memoranda on Constitutional Protections for Pension and OPEB Liabilities”
- (3) “The ability of a city or state to force the decertification of a public union”
- (4) “The sources of, and the ability of the State to withdraw, the City’s municipal budgetary authority.”
- (5) “Analysis of filing requirements of section 109(c)(5) of the Bankruptcy Code (“Negotiation is Impracticable” and “Negotiated in Good Faith”)

- Exhibit 846, an email dated March 2, 2012, from Jeffrey Ellman to Corinne Ball, both of Jones Day, with two other Jones Day attorneys copied. The subject line is, “Consent Agreement,” and the body of the email states:

We spoke to a person from Andy’s office and a lawyer to get their thoughts on some of the issues. I thought MB was also going to try to follow up with Andy directly about the process for getting this to the Governor, but I am not sure if that happened.

The cleanest way to do all of this probably is new legislation that establishes the board and its powers, AND includes an appropriation for a state institution. If an appropriation is attached to (included in) the statute to fund a state institution (which is broadly defined), then the statute is not subject to repeal by the referendum process.

Tom is revisiting the document and should have a new version shortly, with the idea of getting this to at least M[iller]B[uckfire]/Huron [Consulting] by lunchtime.

- Exhibits 201 & 202, showing that Jones Day and Miller Buckfire consulted with state officials on the drafting of the failed consent agreement with the City. They continued to work on a “proposed new statute to replace Public Act 4” thereafter. Ex. 847, Ex. 851. See also Ex. 846.

- The testimony of Donald Taylor, President of the Retired Detroit Police and Fire Fighters Association. He testified about a meeting that he had with Mr. Orr on April 18, 2013: “I asked him if he was - - about the pensions of retirees. He said that he was fully aware that the pensions were protected by the state Constitution, and he had no intention of trying to modify or set aside . . . or change the state Constitution.” Eligibility Trial Tr. 140:9-13, November 4, 2013. (Dkt. #1605)
- At the June 10, 2013 community meeting, Mr. Orr was asked a direct question - what is going to happen to the City employee’s pensions? Mr. Orr responded that pension rights are “sacrosanct” under the state constitution and state case law, misleadingly not stating that upon the City’s bankruptcy filing, his position would be quite the opposite. In response to another question about whether Mr. Orr had a “ball park estimation” of the City’s chances of avoiding bankruptcy, Mr. Orr responded that, as of June 10, there was a “50/50” chance that the City could avoid bankruptcy, knowing that in fact there was no chance of that.
- State Treasurer Andy Dillon expressed concern that giving up too soon on negotiations made the filing “look[] premeditated” Ex. 626 at 2.
- The City allotted only thirty four days to negotiate with creditors after the June 14 Proposal to Creditors. Ex. 43 at 113.

The issue that this evidence presents is how to evaluate it in the context of the good faith requirement. For example, during the orchestrated lead-up to the filing, was the City of Detroit’s bankruptcy filing a “foregone conclusion” as the objecting parties assert? Of course it was, and for a long time.

Even if it was a foregone conclusion, however, experience with both individuals and businesses in financial distress establishes that they often wait longer to file bankruptcy than is in their interests. Detroit was no exception. Its financial crisis has been worsening for decades and it could have, and probably should have, filed for bankruptcy relief long before it did, perhaps even years before. At what point in Detroit’s financial slide did it lose the ability, without bankruptcy help, to restructure its debt in a way that would firmly ground its economic and social revitalization? Was it after the disastrous COPs and swaps deal in 2005? Or even sometime before?

The record here does not permit an answer to that question. Whatever the answer, however, the Court must conclude that Detroit's bankruptcy filing was certainly a "foregone conclusion" during all of 2013.

For purposes of determining the City's good faith, however, it hardly matters. As noted, many in financial difficulty, Detroit included, wait too long to file bankruptcy.

Then the issue becomes what impact does it have on the good faith analysis that Detroit probably waited too long. Perhaps it would have been more consistent with our democratic ideals and with the economic and social needs of the City if its officials and State officials had openly and forthrightly recognized the need for filing bankruptcy when that need first arose. It is, after all, not bad faith to file bankruptcy when it is needed.

City officials also could have avoided the appearance of pretext negotiations, and the resulting mistrust, by simply announcing honestly that because negotiating with so many diverse creditors was impracticable, negotiations would not even be attempted. The law clearly permits that, and for good reason. It avoids the very delay, and, worse, the very suspicion that resulted here.

The Court must acknowledge some substantial truth in the factual basis for the objectors' claim that this case was not filed in good faith. Nevertheless, for the strong reasons stated in the next section, the Court finds that this case was filed in good faith and should not be dismissed.

3. The City Filed This Bankruptcy Case in Good Faith.

Based on Stockton and New York City Off-Track Betting Corp., reviewed above, the Court concludes that the following factors are most relevant in establishing the City's good faith:

- a. The City’s financial problems are of a type contemplated for chapter 9 relief.
- b. The reasons for filing are consistent with the remedial purpose of chapter 9,
- c. The City made efforts to improve the state of its finances prior to filing, to no avail.
- d. The City’s residents will be severely prejudiced if the case is dismissed.

a. The City’s Financial Problems Are of a Type Contemplated for Chapter 9 Relief.

The Court’s analysis of this factor is based on its findings that the City is “insolvent” in Part XIII, above, and that the City was “unable to negotiate with creditors because such negotiation [was] impracticable” in Part XVI, above. 11 U.S.C. §§ 109(c)(3) and 109(c)(5)(C).

The City has over $18,000,000,000 in debt and it is increasing. In the months before the filing, it was consistently at risk of running out of cash. It has over 100,000 creditors.

“Profound” is the best way to describe the City’s insolvency, and it simply could not negotiate with its numerous and varied creditors. See In re Town of Westlake, Tex., 211 B.R. 860, 868 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 1997) (finding the debtor filed in good faith because it faced “frozen funds, multiple litigation, and the disannexation of a substantial portion of its tax base”).

It is true that the City does not have a clear picture of its assets, income, cash flow, and liabilities, likely because its bookkeeping and accounting systems are obsolete. But this only suggests the need for relief. It does not suggest bad faith. Moreover, as the City’s financial analysts’ subsequent months of work have sharpened the focus on the City’s finances, the resulting picture has only become worse. Eligibility Trial Tr. 118:4-119:5, Nov. 5, 2013. (Dkt. #1584)

The Court finds that this factor weighs in favor of finding good faith.

b. The City’s Reasons for Filing Are Consistent with the Remedial Purpose of Chapter 9.

One of the purposes of chapter 9 is to give the debtor a “breathing spell” so that it may establish a plan of adjustment. In re Cnty. of Orange, 183 B.R. 594, 607 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. 1995).

The Court’s analysis on this factor is based on its finding that the City “desires to effect a plan to adjust such debts.” 11 U.S.C. § 109(c)(4). To show good faith on this factor, “the evidence must demonstrate that ‘the purpose of the filing of the chapter 9 petition [was] not simply . . . to buy time or evade creditors.’” In re New York City Off-Track Betting Corp., 427 B.R. at 272 (quoting In re City of Vallejo, 408 B.R. at 295). Notably, this argument was not raised by the objectors in any pleadings or at trial, nor was any evidence presented to support it.

The objectors do assert that the City filed the petition to avoid “a bad state court ruling” in the Webster litigation. They argue this is indicative of bad faith. See, e.g., Second Amended Final Pre-Trial Order, ¶ 107 at 30. (Dkt. #1647) This argument is rejected. Creditor lawsuits commonly precipitate bankruptcy filings. That the suits were in vindication of an important right under the state constitution does not change this result. They were suits to enforce creditors’ monetary claims against a debtor that could not pay those claims.

The objectors also argue that the City filed the petition so that its pension obligations could be impaired and that this is inconsistent with the remedial purpose of bankruptcy. See, e.g., Second Amended Final Pre-Trial Order, ¶ 86 at 24. (Dkt. #1647) Again, discharging debt is the primary motive behind the filing of most bankruptcy petitions. That motivation does not suggest any bad faith. That the City “chose to avail itself of a legal remedy afforded it by federal law is not proof of bad faith.” In re Chilhowee R-IV School Dist., 145 B.R. 981, 983 (Bankr.

W.D. Mo. 1992). This is especially true here. The evidence demonstrated that attempting to negotiate a voluntary impairment of pensions would have been futile.

Accordingly, the Court finds that this factor also weighs in favor of finding good faith.

c. The City Made Efforts to Improve the State of Its Finances Prior to Filing, to No Avail.

Although the Court finds that the City did not engage in good faith negotiations with its creditors, Part XV, above, the Court does find the City did make some efforts to improve its financial condition before filing its chapter 9 petition. See Part III C, above.

The City's efforts are detailed in Mr. Orr's declaration filed in support of the petition. Ex. 414 at 36-49. (Dkt. #11) Those efforts include reducing the number of City employees, reducing labor costs through implementation of the City Employment Terms, increasing the City's corporate tax rate, working to improve the City's ability to collect taxes, increasing lighting rates, deferring capital expenditures, reducing vendor costs, and reducing subsidies to the Detroit Department of Transportation. Ex. 414 at 36-49. (Dkt. #11); Eligibility Trial Tr. 231:15-233:7, October 28, 2013. (Dkt. #1502) Despite those efforts, the City remains insolvent.

The fact that the City did not seriously consider any alternatives to chapter 9 in the period leading up to the filing of the petition does not indicate bad faith. By this time, all of the measures described in Mr. Orr's declaration had largely failed to resolve the problem of the City's cash flow insolvency. Ex. 414 at 36-49. (Dkt. #11); Eligibility Trial Tr. 231:15-233:7, October 28, 2013. (Dkt. #1502). In In re City of San Bernadino, Cal., 499 B.R. 776, 791 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. 2013), the Court observed:

Was there an alternative available to the City when it was faced with a $45.9 million cash deficit in the upcoming fiscal year and inevitably was going to default on its obligations as they came due? The Court answers this question 'no.' To deny the opportunity to reorganize in chapter 9 based on lack of good faith would be to ignore fiscal reality and the general purposes of the Bankruptcy Code.

The Court finds this factor also weighs in favor of finding good faith.

d. The Residents of Detroit Will Be Severely Prejudiced If This Case Is Dismissed.

The Court concludes that this factor is of paramount importance in this case. The City's debt and cash flow insolvency is causing its nearly 700,000 residents to suffer hardship. As already discussed at length in this opinion, the City is "service delivery insolvent." See Parts III B 6-11 and XIII B, above. Its services do not function properly due to inadequate funding. The City has an extraordinarily high crime rate; too many street lights do not function; EMS does not timely respond; the City's parks are neglected and disappearing; and the equipment for police, EMS and fire services are outdated and inadequate.

Over 38% of the City's revenues were consumed by servicing debt in 2012, and that figure is projected to increase to nearly 65% of the budget by 2017 if the debt is not restructured. Ex. 414 at 39 (Dkt. #11) Without revitalization, revenues will continue to plummet as residents leave Detroit for municipalities with lower tax rates and acceptable services.

Without the protection of chapter 9, the City will be forced to continue on the path that it was on until it filed this case. In order to free up cash for day-to-day operations, the City would continue to borrow money, defer capital investments, and shrink its workforce. This solution has proven unworkable. It is also dangerous for its residents.

If the City were to continue to default on its financial obligations, as it would outside of bankruptcy, creditor lawsuits would further deplete the City's resources. On the other hand, in seeking chapter 9 relief, the City not only reorganizes its debt and enhances City services, but it also creates an opportunity for investments in its revitalization efforts for the good of the residents of Detroit. Ex. 43 at 61.

This factor weighs heavily in favor of finding good faith.

C. Conclusion Regarding the City's Good Faith

While acknowledging some merit to the objectors' serious concerns about how City and State officials managed the lead-up to this filing, the Court finds that the factors relevant to the good faith issue weigh strongly in favor of finding good faith. Accordingly, the Court concludes the City's petition was filed in good faith and that the petition is not subject to dismissal under 11 U.S.C. § 921(c).

XVIII. Other Miscellaneous Arguments

The objections addressed here were asserted in briefs after the deadline to object had passed. Accordingly, these objections are untimely and denied on that ground. In the interest of justice, however, the Court will briefly address their merits.

A. Midlantic Does Not Apply in This Case

In its supplemental brief filed October 30, 2013, AFSCME asserts, "The rights created by the Pensions Clause should survive bankruptcy because the Pensions Clause is an exercise of the right to enact 'state or local laws designed to protect public health or safety' which cannot be disregarded by the debtor." AFSCME's Supplemental Br. at 3-4. (Dkt. #1467) In support of this argument, AFSCME relies on the United States Supreme Court decision in Midlantic Nat'l Bank v. New Jersey Dep't of Env. Protection, 474 U.S. 494, 106 S. Ct. 755 (1986).

In Midlantic, the Supreme Court held that "a trustee in bankruptcy does not have the power to authorize an abandonment without formulating conditions that will adequately protect the public's health and safety." 474 U.S. at 507, 106 S. Ct at 762. At issue in that case was whether a trustee in bankruptcy could abandon real property pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 544(a), when the property was contaminated with 400,000 gallons of oil containing PCB, "a highly toxic carcinogen." Id. at 497, 106 S. Ct. at 757.

The case is simply not applicable on AFSCME's point. The City has not "abandoned" its property. Moreover, AFSCME has failed to identify how the pensions clause is a "state or local law designed to protect public health or safety." Id. at 502, 106 S. Ct. at 760.

Accordingly, this objection is overruled.

B. There Was No Gap in Mr. Orr's Service as Emergency Manager

In an objection filed on October 17, 2013 (Dkt. # 1222), Krystal Crittendon asserted that Mr. Orr was not validly appointed because the rejection of P.A. 4 did not revive P.A. 72. This argument is rejected for the reasons stated in Part III D, above.

In this objection, Crittendon also contended that Mr. Orr was not validly appointed because his initial emergency manager contract expired before P.A. 436 took effect.

P.A. 436 contains a grandfathering provision which states:

An emergency manager or emergency financial manager appointed and serving under state law immediately prior to the effective date of this act shall continue under this act as an emergency manager for the local government.

M.C.L. § 141.1571.

Mr. Orr's initial emergency manager contract under P.A. 72 stated that it "shall terminate at midnight on Wednesday, March 27, 2013." Crittendon contends that therefore the contract terminated the morning of Wednesday, March 27, and that therefore he was not in office on that day. She asserts that because Mr. Orr's current emergency manager contract became effective on Thursday, March 28, 2013, there was no emergency manager serving immediately prior to the March 28 effective date of P.A. 436, and the grandfathering clause does not apply.

The City contends that the parties intended for Mr. Orr's initial contract to expire at the end of the day on March 27th and that there was no gap in his service.

In Hallock v. Income Guar. Co., 270 Mich. 448, 452, 259 N.W. 133, 134 (1935), the court assumed "midnight" meant the end of the day. Courts in other jurisdictions, however, have found that the term is ambiguous. See Amer. Transit Ins. Co. v. Wilfred, 745 N.Y.S.2d 171, 172, 296 A.D.2d 360, 361 (N.Y. 2002); Mumuni v. Eagle Ins. Co., 668 N.Y.S.2d 464, 247 A.D.2d 315 (N.Y.A.D. 1998).

In Klapp v. United Insurance Group Agency, Inc., 468 Mich. 459, 663 N.W.2d 447 (2003), the Michigan Supreme Court noted, "The law is clear that where the language of the contract is ambiguous, the court can look to such extrinsic evidence as the parties' conduct, the statements of its representatives, and past practice to aid in interpretation." Id. at 470, 663 N.W.2d at 454 (quoting Penzi v. Dielectric Prod. Engineering Co., Inc., 374 Mich. 444, 449, 132 N.W.2d 130, 132 (1965)).

The Court finds that the parties to the contracts clearly intended that there would be no gap in Mr. Orr's contracts or in his appointment. Accordingly, Mr. Orr was validly appointed under M.C.L. § 141.1572. The objection is rejected.

XIX. Conclusion:
The City is Eligible and the Court
Will Enter an Order for Relief.

The Court concludes that under 11 U.S.C. § 109(c), the City of Detroit may be a debtor under chapter 9 of the bankruptcy code. The Court will enter an order for relief forthwith, as required by 11 U.S.C. § 921(d).

The Court reminds all interested parties that this eligibility determination is merely a preliminary matter in this bankruptcy case. The City's ultimate objective is confirmation of a plan of adjustment. It has stated on the record its intent to achieve that objective with all deliberate speed and to file its plan shortly. Accordingly, the Court strongly encourages the parties to begin to negotiate, or if they have already begun, to continue to negotiate, with a view toward a consensual plan.

Signature of Ordering Party:

/s/ Sharon L. Levine _____ Date: 12/9/2013

By signing, I certify that I will pay all charges upon completion of the transcript request.

Instructions

Use. Use this form to order transcript of proceedings. Complete a separate order form for each hearing date for which transcript is ordered.

Completion. Complete the entire order form. Do not complete the shaded area which is reserved for the court's use.

Order Copy. Keep a copy for your records.

Filing with the Court. All requests must be electronically filed by attorneys. Debtors without counsel or parties without PACER access may mail or deliver the request to the court.

Withdrawal of Request. Decision to withdraw transcript request requires ordering party to (1) contact chambers; (2) notify transcriber; and (3) electronically file a notice of withdrawal. Debtors without counsel or parties without PACER access may mail or deliver the withdrawal to the court. Failure to do so will result in payment obligation to the Transcriber.

Deposit Fee. The Transcriber will notify you if a deposit fee is required and of the amount of the deposit fee. Upon receipt of the deposit, the Transcriber will process the order.

Delivery Time. Delivery time is computed from the date of receipt of the deposit fee.

Completion of Order. The Transcriber will notify you when the transcript is completed.

Balance Due. If the deposit fee was insufficient to cover all charges, the Transcriber will notify you of the balance due which must be paid to the Transcriber prior to receiving the completed order.

Type of Request:

Ordinary. A transcript to be delivered within thirty (30) calendar days after receipt of the order by the Transcriber. The charge is $3.65 per page effective November 19, 2007.

14-Day. A transcript to be delivered within fourteen (14) calendar days after receipt of the order by the Transcriber. The charge is $4.25 per page effective November 19, 2007.

Expedited. A transcript to be delivered within seven (7) calendar days after receipt of the order by the Transcriber. The charge is $4.85 per page effective November 19, 2007.

CD. Audio requests of a hearing are ordinarily completed within two (2) business days after receipt of an order. The ordering party will be notified by telephone when the CD is ready. Payment to the court (checks made payable to "Clerk of U.S. Bankruptcy Court") is required prior to picking up the CD. The charge is $52.02 per CD.

Note: Full price may be charged only if the transcript is delivered within the required time frame. For example, if an order for expedited transcript is not completed and delivered within seven (7) calendar days, payment would be at the next delivery rate.

Instructions

Use. Use this form to order transcript of proceedings. Complete a separate order form for each hearing date for which transcript is ordered.

Completion. Complete the entire order form. Do not complete the shaded area which is reserved for the court's use.

Instructions

Use. Use this form to order transcript of proceedings. Complete a separate order form for each hearing date for which transcript is ordered.

Completion. Complete the entire order form. Do not complete the shaded area which is reserved for the court's use.

Order Copy. Keep a copy for your records.

Filing with the Court. All requests must be electronically filed by attorneys. Debtors without counsel or parties without PACER access may mail or deliver the request to the court.

Withdrawal of Request. Decision to withdraw transcript request requires ordering party to (1) contact chambers; (2) notify transcriber; and (3) electronically file a notice of withdrawal. Debtors without counsel or parties without PACER access may mail or deliver the withdrawal to the court. Failure to do so will result in payment obligation to the Transcriber.

Deposit Fee. The Transcriber will notify you if a deposit fee is required and of the amount of the deposit fee. Upon receipt of the deposit, the Transcriber will process the order.

Delivery Time. Delivery time is computed from the date of receipt of the deposit fee.

Completion of Order. The Transcriber will notify you when the transcript is completed.

Balance Due. If the deposit fee was insufficient to cover all charges, the Transcriber will notify you of the balance due which must be paid to the Transcriber prior to receiving the completed order.

Type of Request:

Ordinary. A transcript to be delivered within thirty (30) calendar days after receipt of the order by the Transcriber. The charge is $3.65 per page effective November 19, 2007.

14-Day. A transcript to be delivered within fourteen (14) calendar days after receipt of the order by the Transcriber. The charge is $4.25 per page effective November 19, 2007.

Expedited. A transcript to be delivered within seven (7) calendar days after receipt of the order by the Transcriber. The charge is $4.85 per page effective November 19, 2007.

CD. Audio requests of a hearing are ordinarily completed within two (2) business days after receipt of an order. The ordering party will be notified by telephone when the CD is ready. Payment to the court (checks made payable to "Clerk of U.S. Bankruptcy Court") is required prior to picking up the CD. The charge is $52.00 per CD.

Note: Full price may be charged only if the transcript is delivered within the required time frame. For example, if an order for expedited transcript is not completed and delivered within seven (7) calendar days, payment would be at the next delivery rate.

1 THE CLERK: All rise. Court is in session. Please
2 be seated. Case Number 13-53846, City of Detroit, Michigan.

3 THE COURT: Good morning, everybody. I'd like to 4 take appearances from the attorneys who will be speaking here
5 today first. Can we do that?

6 MR. BENNETT: Thank you, your Honor. Bruce Bennett,
7 Jones Day, on behalf of the city.

8 MS. NELSON: Good morning, your Honor. Assistant
9 Attorney General Margaret A. Nelson on behalf of the State of 10 Michigan.

11 MS. LEVINE: Good morning, your Honor. Sharon
12 Levine, Lowenstein Sandler, for AFSCME.

13 MR. GORDON: Good morning, your Honor. Robert 14 Gordon of Clark Hill on behalf of the Detroit Retirement
15 Systems.

16 MR. MONTGOMERY: Good morning, your Honor. Claude
17 Montgomery, Dentons U.S., for the Official Committee of 18 Retirees.

19 MS. CECCOTTI: Good morning, your Honor. Babette
20 Ceccotti, Cohen, Weiss & Simon, LLP, for the UAW.

21 MR. WERTHEIMER: Good morning, your Honor. William
22 Wertheimer on behalf of the Flowers plaintiffs.

23 MS. PATEK: Good morning, your Honor. Barbara Patek
24 of Erman, Teicher, Miller, Zucker & Friedman on behalf of the 25 Detroit Public Safety Unions.

1 MS. CRITTENDON: Good morning, your Honor. Krystal
2 Crittendon, interested party.

3 MS. BRIMER: Good morning, your Honor. Lynn M.
4 Brimer appearing on behalf of the Retired Detroit Police
5 Members Association.

6 MR. MORRIS: Good morning, your Honor. Thomas
7 Morris of Silverman & Morris on behalf of the Retiree
8 Association parties.

9 MR. GOLDBERG: Good morning, your Honor. Jerome
10 Goldberg on behalf of interested party David Sole.

11 MR. TROY: Good morning, your Honor. Matthew Troy,
12 Department of Justice, Civil Division, on behalf of the 13 United States. It is not my intention to speak this morning, 14 your Honor, unless you have specific questions regarding our 15 filing from Friday.

16 THE COURT: Thank you, sir. Mr. Gordon.

17 MR. GORDON: Thank you, your Honor. I just wanted
18 to provide the introduction relative to our proposed 19 allocation of the time and order of presentation here this 20 morning. As your Honor can see from the document that was 21 filed, there are 11 objectors who wish to speak, and, of 22 course, they all have important points to make, but -- and we 23 very much appreciate the cooperation amongst all of them. It
24 was a good and constructive process. Not only was that easy,
25 but everyone has been very cooperative, and we've allocated

1 the time accordingly to various parties to have the 2 opportunity to speak today.

3 You will note, your Honor, a couple things. One, we 4 did not allocate the full 120 minutes in the morning.
5 There's a few minutes left over. Similarly, in the afternoon
6 there's about five minutes left over of the 90 minutes.
7 That, of course, is not intended to necessarily waive our 8 opportunity to have the full time, but we thought that would 9 build in some flexibility and some error margin as people 10 stand up and sit down to make sure that we fit within the 11 time frame.

12 Also, as footnote one indicates, the presentation
13 order does not necessarily tie -- correspond discretely with 14 each of the issues as listed in your scheduling order, your 15 Honor. There is some correlation, but various parties, as 16 the Court, I'm sure, can understand, have a number of issues
17 that they would like to address. There will be some overlap.
18 The parties are going to try to overlap as little as 19 possible, but it was not really feasible to try to identify 20 discrete issues that each party was going to take on, so
21 instead the hope is that as each party comes to the podium,
22 they'll try to give you a little bit of a road map as to the 23 particular issues that they're going to touch upon.

24 THE COURT: Thank you, and thank you for your 25 extraordinary effort in coordinating this. I'm sure it was a

1 challenge. And I also want to thank all of the attorneys for
2 cooperating with Mr. Gordon and with the Court in trying to
3 organize this as best we can. So we're going to start then 4 with AFSCME's counsel, and we're going to try to run the 5 timing mechanism for your convenience. Kelli, have we got 6 that available? I'm sorry.

7 MS. LEVINE: They were teasing me that if I'm 8 nervous, it'll take 20 minutes, but if I remember to speak
9 slowly, it'll take 35.

10 THE COURT: Okay. So for 35 minutes you may 11 proceed.

12 MS. LEVINE: Thank you, your Honor. First, we 13 appreciate the opportunity. We think these issues are 14 extremely important, and we're glad that we have the 15 opportunity to speak. Second, as Mr. Gordon correctly noted,
16 the parties who are speaking here today have made a concerted 17 effort to divide up the time and to try not to duplicate our 18 comments, so in that regard we're reserving the right to rely 19 on the filed objections along with the other arguments of 20 other counsel simply because we won't have time to do it all 21 ourselves.

22 With that, your Honor, we started this endeavor by 23 looking at PA 436 specifically concerned, as you might 24 imagine, with the pension issues and with the fact that we 25 believe that the Michigan Constitution provides for

1 protections for vested pension benefits, and then that
2 potentially conflicted with PA 436, and, therefore, we
3 started looking at the issue of whether PA 436 was, in 4 fact -- was, in fact, unconstitutional in that it allowed a
5 Chapter 9 filing in light of the pensions -- in light of the 6 pension restriction in the Constitution.

7 In addition to that, we were looking at the 8 governor's authorization in allowing the Chapter 9 filing in 9 light of PA 436 and in light of the Michigan Constitution and 10 grappling with the issue of whether or not that authorization
11 without any contingencies caused this Chapter 9 filing to be 12 unconstitutional as applied.

13 In addition to that, we grappled with the ripeness
14 issue as to whether or not all of these issues should be 15 raised now or whether they should be raised in connection
16 with a plan of adjustment, specifically, your Honor,
17 grappling with the issue as it was presented to us by our 18 members where we have folks literally sitting at their 19 kitchen table deciding whether or not they can take medicine
20 today or do they have to start taking it every other day, do
21 they feed themselves, do they feed their children, do they 22 pay rent, so we came to this Court anxious to have some of 23 these issues decided quickly.

24 On top of that, as it turns out, involved in the 25 mediations and the other efforts with regard to the serious

1 issues that are confronting Detroit, we do think
2 understanding your Honor's views of the rules of the game
3 could be useful for the parties in that process, but that's 4 really by way of introduction because what we've done, your 5 Honor, in addition to that, is we started researching how we 6 thought PA 436 fit in the overall scheme of Chapter 9 and, in 7 looking at those issues, delving into whether or not Chapter
8 9 itself was, in fact, unconstitutional, which is what we 9 will address before your Honor this morning. And I'd like
10 to, with the Court's permission, set the table a little bit
11 but promise to get into Bekins and some of the cases that are 12 cited by folks who disagree with our views later on in the 13 comments.

14 So I'd ask you, your Honor, to come back with me, if 15 you will, to elementary and high school when we first started
16 talking about what the Constitution is and what it means,
17 and, respectfully, when we go back, we remember that the 18 framers of the Constitution were fleeing an oppressive,
19 overbearing, centralized government. So when we started
20 looking at how we framed our Constitution, we were very 21 careful to make sure that there was a federal Constitution
22 that was extremely limited only to specific rights that we 23 believed should transcend every single state in the union,
24 and we've come to call those the unalienable rights, and they 25 refer to things like freedom of speech and freedom of

1 religion. And under the Tenth Amendment, your Honor,
2 everything else is reserved for the states, so specifically
3 reserved for the states are the state municipal governments'
4 rights to handle their own financial management. And this is 5 done, your Honor, not to protect the states, which would have 6 been as suggested by the New Jersey plan, but was actually 7 done to protect the individual citizens, as suggested by the 8 Virginia plan, and the specific rationale behind protecting
9 the individual citizens was in order to have accountability
10 from our government and particularly, more importantly, from 11 our local governments, which were viewed as being more
12 accessible to the citizens that they were -- that they were 13 supposed to be taking care of. So, for example, if somebody
14 infringes on my right of free speech or my right of freedom 15 of religion, I know I point my finger to D.C., and I look at 16 the federal government, and I say to the federal government,
17 who is accountable for those federally protected rights,
18 "Make them stop," but if somebody says to me that there's an 19 inappropriate use of the power over the financial management
20 of a state municipality, of, for example, Detroit, I look to 21 my local government. I look to my local politicians and my 22 local leaders, and I say, "I'm holding you accountable," and 23 we saw that working well very recently with the mayor of 24 Detroit -- with the prior -- apologies -- prior mayor of 25 Detroit, so this direct accountability, which is a

1 cornerstone of how we -- of how we run our country and how we
2 run this democracy, is there for a reason, and it's not there
3 to protect the states. It's there to protect the citizens.
4 The Constitution doesn't start "We the states." It doesn't 5 say, "I the general federal government." It starts, "We the 6 People." So now, as we indicated in our brief, we believe 7 there is what we've called this unholy alliance between the 8 state giving authorization to the federal government to run
9 this Chapter 9 process. And what we said there, your Honor,
10 is that the states are, in essence, ceding the responsibility
11 and the accountability for their own financial management, so 12 by turning over under Chapter 9 to the federal government and 13 being able to hide behind the bankruptcy process and this 14 Court, we lose that accountability that's a cornerstone of 15 what our Constitution requires of us, and we've seen that 16 already. We saw that debtor's counsel correctly noted in an 17 internal e-mail exchange back in January of 2013 that making
18 this a federal issue provides political cover, and we've seen
19 it in the depositions where we're talking to the EM and the 20 governor, and they are talking about the fact that they're 21 not exactly sure what's going to happen with the pensions.
22 The bankruptcy process takes care of that. And we would 23 respectfully submit, your Honor, that we're seeing play out
24 in real time and real life the exact loss of accountability
25 that the Constitution was designed to protect, so --

1 THE COURT: Well, but hasn't state consent been a
2 cornerstone of the Supreme Court's Tenth Amendment
3 jurisprudence?

4 MS. LEVINE: Your Honor, we'll talk about the 5 consent in Bekins, and we don't believe that what we're 6 saying here today is inconsistent with state consent. And if
7 your Honor will give me a little bit more leeway, we'll reach
8 that point --

9 THE COURT: Sure.

10 MS. LEVINE: -- because we understand the issue. So
11 one of the comments that's being made is that in order for 12 there to be -- that the reason why we can't do it at the 13 state level, the reason why the state municipal governments
14 can't do it is because it violates the contract clause, and 15 by violating the contract clause, you can't do a plan of 16 adjustment unless you have a hundred percent consent.

17 Now, we would respectfully submit, your Honor, that 18 there's two responses to that, and they are -- and I'll admit
19 they're diametrically opposed, but under either response you
20 don't get to the place where you get to take it away from the 21 states. Number one, if you believe, as suggested, that you 22 need a hundred percent consent at the state level because of 23 the contract clause, then we would respectfully submit that 24 the states can't cede control to the federal government and 25 then suddenly it becomes legal to do a plan of adjustment

1 without a hundred percent consent. And, your Honor, in doing
2 that, we're actually just reading from the Constitution
3 itself. The contract clause is in Section 10 of Article I of 4 the Constitution. Section 10, Article I, of the Constitution
5 has three subsections, one, two, and three. In the first
6 section, it talks about no state shall enter into treaties
7 with foreign countries, print money, and it's the contract
8 clause. Under sections two and three, not where the contract 9 clause sits, it says, "No State shall without the consent of 10 Congress," so by the plain reading of the Constitution, if 11 "no state shall" means no state shall, then no state shall do
12 it with or without the consent of Congress, and the framers
13 clearly understood that if they wanted the states to be able 14 to do it with the consent of Congress, they could have done
15 what they did in the two other subsections and basically 16 said, okay, instead we'll do it -- we'll do it with a federal 17 municipal bankruptcy statute where the federal government
18 will consent, and, therefore, you can violate the contract
19 clause. So our first point is under the contract clause, "no 20 state shall" means no state shall, and if we're going to be 21 intellectually honest with ourselves, that applies regardless
22 of whether or not Congress consents because it's not, as in 23 Section 10, the second and the third paragraph, "No State
24 shall without the consent of Congress."

25 THE COURT: What Supreme Court case law supports

1 this interpretation?

2 MS. LEVINE: Your Honor, we respectfully submit that
3 it's Ashton.

4 THE COURT: The case that Bekins overruled?

5 MS. LEVINE: Well, we don't believe that Bekins
6 overruled it, and if I can keep going, the alternative
7 approach -- and, frankly, the plain meaning of the statute we
8 don't believe yet -- or I'll admit we haven't found yet a
9 constitutional case that comes right out and says it is or it
10 isn't done this way, but it is the plain reading of the 11 Constitution, which we thought was --

12 THE COURT: Okay.

13 MS. LEVINE: -- a good place to start. But moving
14 past that, let's assume -- and we believe the better answer
15 is that there has to be a way to adjust debts. Then we go
16 back to where we started, your Honor, which is this is 17 absolutely a state municipal right. What Bekins was looking 18 at -- and remember Bekins was decided in -- right in the 19 middle of the Great Depression. Okay. And so up until 20 the -- up until just before Bekins was decided, there was no
21 municipal federal bankruptcy law at all. It wasn't really
22 contemplated by the framers, and I'll get into that a little 23 bit more in a minute, but what Bekins found was we now have 24 this new federal municipal bankruptcy law. There is no state
25 counterpart, so the only option that's available to the state

1 and the only way that the state can be accountable to its
2 citizens to fix this problem if there is no other option
3 available is to then consent to the federal court stepping in 4 and doing this. Consistent with that, your Honor, we
5 believe, is Asbury Park, and we would respectfully submit
6 that Asbury Park was decided after Bekins. It was decided --
7 it wasn't a unanimous decision, but there was only one
8 concurrence, so there was no dissent. It was drafted by 9 Judge Frankfurter, hardly, you know, a slouch, and it
10 specifically upheld Bekins but further found that a state --
11 in that case, New Jersey -- could correctly under its state
12 municipal authority do a plan of adjustment that did not 13 require 100 percent of consent, and in dealing with this 14 issue, it found that to be consistent with Bekins because 15 Bekins was looking at a situation where there was no state
16 alternative for the state to choose, and the state only had 17 one alternative, and it made the alternative to rely on the 18 federal statute. And it further found -- and I'm going to 19 quote just for a moment, Judge, but in dealing with this 20 issue, the Court posed and then answered this very question.
21 "Can it be that a power that was not recognized until 1938," 22 which is a federal municipal bankruptcy law, "when so
23 recognized, was carefully circumscribed to reserve full
24 freedom" -- that's how Bekins interprets it -- "to the States
25 has now been completely absorbed by the Federal Government -

1 that a State which, as in the case of New Jersey, has after
2 long study devised elaborate machinery for the autonomous
3 regulation of problems as peculiarly local as the fiscal 4 management of its own household, is powerless in this field?
5 We think not." And we think that's very telling, your Honor.
6 And by the way, Asbury Park is still good law. Like Bekins,
7 which it is consistent with, it has not been overruled, so
8 the -- then we were grappling with, well, why hasn't anybody
9 looked at this issue. What happened after Asbury Park was 10 that the Bankruptcy Act incorporated a federal municipal 11 bankruptcy statute, which is a predecessor to 903, which 12 specifically includes a provision that provides, like 903, 13 that no state can enter into a plan of adjustment unless 14 there is a hundred percent consent. We find that interesting
15 that it's the federal statute. Basically, that's Article --
16 that's Chapter 9 saying Chapter 9 is constitutional, and the 17 states can't enter into an alternate separate plan of 18 adjustment with less than a hundred percent because Chapter 9
19 says so. It's a circular argument, we would submit, your 20 Honor, that can't possibly be the reason why the states can't 21 enter into a plan of adjustment, especially in light of 22 Asbury Park, with less than a hundred percent consent.

23 In addition to that, the other telling conclusion in 24 Asbury Park was when they addressed head on the issue of the 25 contract clause, they determined that the contract clause is

1 not violated when you don't actually violate the underlying
2 contract. They were analogizing it to like the property
3 rights, so while you have a contract right and that can't go
4 away or you have a property right and that can't go away,
5 what they were talking about in Asbury Park was what's the 6 remedy, and the remedy in a Chapter 9 -- and we would
7 respectfully submit the remedy in a state -- appropriate
8 state plan of adjustment is to take what is now a valueless
9 right -- contract right because the state municipality is 10 insolvent and create a plan of adjustment that, like in the 11 corporate bankruptcy setting, creates value for a right that 12 had no value. We're not doing away with the contract, and a 13 lot of the cases that come after that -- for example, United 14 Trust that talks about taking away the bonds or changing the 15 bonds -- Asbury Park says you're not taking away the 16 contract, you're not taking away the bonds, you're not taking 17 away our retiree benefits. All you're doing is you're 18 saying, "Look, there's not enough money here to pay for it.
19 We can't get it through taxation. We need to -- we need to 20 fashion a remedy." And that, your Honor, we would 21 respectfully submit is consistent with Bekins, with Asbury
22 Park, and with an appropriate reading of the contract clause.

23 Turning now to the bankruptcy clause, there is a --
24 there is a provision that provides for a national bankruptcy
25 statute. How can Chapter 9 be unconstitutional if we have

1 a -- if we have a bankruptcy clause that says there's a
2 national uniform bankruptcy statute? Number one, we're
3 directing our comments specifically at Chapter 9. We're not
4 saying there is no statute that could be -- that could fit
5 within the parameters. But that said, one of the things we 6 would observe about the bankruptcy clause is when the framers
7 framed the Constitution, it was inconceivable to them that 8 there would be a national municipal bankruptcy law. To this 9 day there is no national municipal bankruptcy law in the EU.
10 And while Chapter 11 provides a very viable way to enable 11 commerce and Chapter 7 provides a very viable way for there
12 to be a fresh start -- and we've avoided debtor's prison and 13 all of the things that the framers were focused on at the 14 time -- there was no -- and there wasn't until the Great
15 Depression a national municipal bankruptcy law.

16 Second, we think there's a problem with Chapter 9
17 specifically because the requirement of the national 18 bankruptcy law is that it be uniform, so whether I'm here in 19 Detroit or in any other state or city in the country, I know
20 what the -- I know what the criteria is to be a corporate 21 debtor. It's right in the Code. I know what the criteria is 22 to be a Chapter 7 debtor. It's right in the Code. But 23 because Chapter 9 is struggling with the difference of the 24 separation of what's a federal power and what's a state
25 power -- and we respectfully submit struggling in a way that

1 didn't work -- Chapter 9 is not a uniform statute. There are
2 some states that have objective standards so that everybody
3 in their particular state has to meet a certain criteria in 4 order to be a Chapter 9 debtor. There are some states that 5 don't even have the ability to be a Chapter 9 debtor, and 6 then there are some states, like Michigan, where even though
7 there's a statute that purports to authorize Chapter 9
8 filings, it is completely and totally subjective with regard 9 to who qualifies, whether they get authorization to file, and 10 whether or not there are any contingencies that are attached
11 to what they do when they're in that filing.

12 THE COURT: Okay. So how do you distinguish the 13 cases that uphold the nonuniformity of exemptions in Chapter
14 7?

15 MS. LEVINE: Your Honor, one of the -- two responses
16 to that. First of all, we understand the case law that says
17 that you can have conformity in a geographic location, so we 18 understand, for example, that if every state had an objective
19 standard the way every state has its own exemptions in 20 Chapter 7, that that could meet the criteria for uniform
21 standards, but we're saying something different. In Chapter
22 9 we don't know that every state has a standard or that 23 they -- and if they don't have a -- and if they don't have a
24 standard for becoming a Chapter 9 debtor, there is no default
25 back to that which is provided under the Code. In other

1 words, in Chapter 7, if I like Detroit's exemptions, I use
2 Detroit's exemptions. If I like the federal exemptions, I
3 use the federal exemptions. But there is no place where I
4 don't get to be a debtor or I don't get exemptions.

5 THE COURT: Well, but still the question remains how 6 does a nonuniformity among states in authorizing or not 7 authorizing Chapter 9 or in having different standards for 8 seeking Chapter 9 protection make the federal law nonuniform?

9 MS. LEVINE: Well, your Honor, if you take that to 10 its natural conclusion, you can say that I have a federal law
11 that basically says you can do whatever you want, but because 12 I'm saying you can do whatever you want to everybody, it's 13 uniform. We would respectfully submit that that doesn't --

14 THE COURT: Isn't that just about what the Chapter 7
15 exemption cases say? Beyond that, federal law outside of 16 Chapter 9 applies state property law, generally speaking,
17 and, of course, the property law differs from state to state
18 to state.

19 MS. LEVINE: Yes. And that goes back to the line of 20 cases that talk about geographic, that they can be -- that 21 they can be uniform within a geographic area. The difference
22 between all of those cases -- and then I'll let the point
23 rest because you are the Judge, and we may have to agree to 24 disagree --

25 THE COURT: I'm just asking questions.

1 MS. LEVINE: But the -- but we view that, as I said
2 earlier, that those exemptions, those criteria are published.
3 Okay. So even if I know that I'm not going to follow -- that 4 if I'm going to follow state law with regard to UCC
5 priorities or if I'm going to follow state law with regard to 6 exemptions, in a specific geographic area I know exactly what 7 that is. In the states that have the subjective test with 8 regard to whether or not to file a Chapter 9, Detroit has a
9 different standard than Lansing and has a different standard
10 than other cities, and that's the issue, and the issue -- and 11 not only that, but none of those cities know what that 12 standard is. And I'll leave it there.

13 THE COURT: Okay.

14 MS. LEVINE: Your Honor, the other argument that's 15 out there is, well, doesn't the state have -- doesn't the 16 state have the ability to cede control if there's federal 17 aid. Your Honor, we would respectfully submit that's a very 18 different situation. If you're looking at a situation, for 19 example, like Sandy or like Katrina where the federal 20 government is saying we're going to give you money under 21 specific terms and conditions, that's different. Nobody is 22 saying to Detroit or nobody is saying to every single Chapter
23 9 debtor if you file Chapter 9, you get "X" amount of money
24 from the United States of America, and in exchange for that,
25 you have to follow these certain rules. There's a difference

1 between entering into a contract for money and for support
2 than ceding control just to do the plan of adjustment with no
3 financial support.

4 THE COURT: Well, but the cases in which the Supreme 5 Court has held the Tenth Amendment is violated by the federal 6 government or the federal government's legislation involve
7 what's called commandeering. Is there any of that here?

8 MS. LEVINE: Well, your Honor, we think that's -- we 9 think that is, in part, what is happening here. The 10 commandeering is they're taking away the state's right or 11 the -- to do their own financial management.

12 THE COURT: But only because the state showed up.

13 MS. LEVINE: But that's not true, and this is where 14 we go back to the Bekins --

15 THE COURT: Is there anything in Chapter 9 that 16 compelled the state to authorize the city to file this case?

17 MS. LEVINE: Yes, and this is -- and this is where 18 the argument comes. Okay. In Bekins there was no state
19 alternative at all. In Asbury Park -- so, therefore, the 20 Bekins Supreme Court made the decision that the state had no
21 choice if it wanted to adjust its debt but to come to the --
22 but to come to the federal court. In Asbury Park there was a 23 state alternative to the federal statute that was -- and that
24 was permitted by both the federal statute and the state
25 statute, so the arguments outside of the federal statute that

1 said you can't go to federal -- you can't do it statewide,
2 you have to go to federal court under the commerce clause and
3 otherwise, were rejected for some of the reasons that we're 4 discussing here today. In Chapter 9 four year -- or the 5 predecessor to Chapter 9, four years after Asbury Park, the 6 Bankruptcy Code in its municipal statute said we can adjust
7 debts at the federal level if you use the Bankruptcy Act, now
8 the Bankruptcy Code, but you, states, cannot because of how 9 we read the commerce clause only -- state municipal 10 governments cannot adjust debt except with a hundred percent
11 consent, so what the -- so what Chapter 9 says to the 12 governor is if you want to do a plan of adjustment without a 13 hundred percent consent, you must come to the federal 14 government, number one. Number two, your Honor --

15 THE COURT: Well, but the commandeering cases
16 address situations where the state and -- the federal 17 government imposes on the state to carry out some federal 18 program, some federal policy. How does that work here? So,
19 for example, in the New York case, which involved the waste, 20 right, nuclear waste or whatever, the state was forced to 21 take title to it under certain circumstances, and the Court
22 held that the state couldn't be imposed upon to do that to 23 carry out the federal policy of how to dispose of this waste.
24 How is that analogous here?

25 MS. LEVINE: Well, your Honor, the reason why we

1 believe it's analogous is because in order to do a plan of 2 adjustment, arguably there's no other way to do that without
3 using Chapter 9 unless you have a hundred percent consent,
4 and that's the commandeering. The requirement that there be 5 a hundred percent consent unless you're the federal
6 government means that the state has no ability to do a plan
7 of adjustment unless it cedes control to the federal 8 government and to the bankruptcy process.

9 Your Honor, I'm coming up on time. If I -- unless 10 your Honor has more questions, if I could just close briefly.

11 THE COURT: Well, the other question I have for you
12 is what about the cases that hold that the lower courts are 13 to apply Supreme Court precedent until the Supreme Court
14 itself overrules it, and this is, of course, the Bekins case?

15 MS. LEVINE: Well, your Honor, our -- we would 16 respectfully submit that Asbury Park was decided after 17 Bekins. Right now where the Supreme Court sits is that 18 Bekins stands for the proposition that in the face of no
19 state alternative, which is what existed there, you can turn
20 to the federal statute. Asbury Park stands for the 21 proposition that side by side an appropriate municipal 22 bankruptcy law and an appropriate state law, that's where the 23 state gets to choose, and if the state, as it did in Asbury
24 Park, chooses an appropriate state law that does permit for 25 the adjustment of debt, then the state is accountable to its

1 citizens. If the state chooses the municipal law, then the
2 state is accountable to its citizens. But either way, it's a
3 true state decision. Consistent with both of those cases, we
4 find ourselves here in Detroit with a situation where there
5 is prohibited by Chapter 9, we believe unconstitutionally, no
6 ability to have that second state decision.

7 THE COURT: Just so I understand, your argument is 8 that the current Chapter 9 is different enough from Bekins
9 because of its exclusivity that Bekins is not binding on this 10 Court.

11 MS. LEVINE: Correct, and secondarily that Bekins
12 never reached the issue because regardless of whether or not 13 Bekins had an inappropriate -- the Bekins statute had an 14 inappropriate clause, the state wasn't looking to have a 15 separate -- you know, here we have PA 436 looking to try and 16 pigeonhole itself into the strictures of Chapter 9 reviewing 17 Chapter 9 as unconstitutional.

18 Your Honor, we believe your Honor is faced with a 19 difficult decision here. We understand that Detroit is -- 20 all that's happening here is difficult. Detroit is in dire
21 financial straits, and it's not lost on any of us that the 22 decisions that you make with regard to the criteria for 23 eligibility, particularly with regard to Chapter 9, will have 24 implications for blighted cities throughout the United 25 States. We also understand that constitutional issues are

1 difficult issues. We heard -- you know, we've been grappling
2 since 9/11, for example, with the balancing between homeland
3 security and individual privacy rights. We started talking
4 earlier about the First Amendment, and as a society we
5 grapple between where does First Amendment end and where does
6 a hate crime, for example, begin. This is no less an 7 important constitutional issue because of the impact this 8 will have on state sovereignty and the ability of its 9 citizens to hold its own municipal leaders accountable.

10 Your Honor spent a long time listening to a lot of 11 individual objectors here in this courtroom talk about how 12 bad they felt things were in Detroit trying to deal with the 13 fact that their firemen were using garden hoses, you know,
14 street lights are out, all of these things, and your Honor
15 was clearly sympathetic. And it was -- and concluded that 16 hearing, we believe correctly so, by saying that this was a
17 great day for democracy, but we would also add, your Honor,
18 that despite the fact that these things are at the forefront
19 of your mind and you want to do what's right, that doesn't 20 necessarily mean that you can do what's expedious -- what's 21 expedient. Democracy is hard, and we would respectfully ask 22 that your Honor consider these issues with the same depth and 23 consideration that you've considered everything in this case
24 to date. Thank you.

25 THE COURT: Thank you. Mr. Montgomery also for 35

1 minutes.

2 MR. MONTGOMERY: Yes, sir. Thank you.

3 THE COURT: You may begin.

4 MR. MONTGOMERY: Good morning. Your Honor, my task
5 today is to discuss with you constitutionality as applied,
6 the standing and ripeness issue that the U.S. government has 7 posed to our constitutionality as applied to argument, and to 8 identify for you the predicate of that unconstitutionality as 9 applied, which, of course, we believe is the unconstitutional
10 behavior of Emergency Manager Orr and the governor in the 11 context of PA 436.

12 I'd like to set the stage briefly for you, your 13 Honor, on the question of standing by setting up two lines
14 of -- view of history here. One is that in 1963 the State of 15 Michigan amended its Constitution to protect the pensions of 16 municipal workers. Partly in reliance on that protection, a 17 small minority of the millions of people who have lived and 18 worked in the city went to work directly for the city. Of 19 those, thousands of people who worked, about 23,000 people
20 are alive today who are retirees of the City of Detroit,
21 their beneficiaries and surviving spouses.

22 Now, those 23,000 people have been, in our view,
23 stalked by the emergency manager, who, with the blessing and 24 support of his advisors, has proposed to eliminate pensions
25 through a Chapter 9 process. On July 16th the emergency

1 manager sought permission from the governor to file a Chapter
2 9. On July 18 the governor, with full knowledge of the plans
3 of his emergency manager, gave unconditional permission to 4 the emergency manager to file that Chapter 9 petition. And 5 the first overt harm has, in fact, now been announced. On 6 October 11, the city mailed its books to the retirees
7 announcing the termination of the retiree health insurance
8 program for those same 23,000 people.

9 Now, the committee that I represent, your Honor,
10 consists of nine individuals, including retirees, deferred
11 vested, retirement eligible, surviving spouses and 12 beneficiaries, all of whom are protected by the pension
13 clause, all of whom are adversely affected by the harm that 14 was just announced by the city. Each has or represents 15 vested accrued pension benefits, and they are participants in 16 the city's retirement health system.

17 The retiree committee consists of creditors
18 appointed by the U.S. Trustee to act in connection with the 19 case under 1102 and we think, therefore, have standing under 20 1109. Now, the 1109 standing of being an interested party
21 may not be sufficient for either standing or ripeness on a
22 constitutionality issue, but we say to you -- we ask your 23 Honor to look at the current situation in the following
24 analogy. When can somebody turn and defend themselves when 25 they are being threatened with harm? We think that you don't

1 actually have to wait until the harm has befallen you if the 2 threat is imminent, if the threat is capable of redress by
3 the Court, and it is identifiable. The redress by the Court
4 is, of course, denial of eligibility to the city. The threat
5 is loss of pensions as announced by the emergency manager.

6 THE COURT: Of course, if eligibility is denied, the 7 city is also denied its right to deal with all of its other
8 debts, isn't it?

9 MR. MONTGOMERY: Your Honor, that may be a temporary
10 delay because if your Honor holds that the current 11 authorization papers are not constitutional or if accepted, 12 despite their lack of constitutionality, the challenge to 13 Chapter 9 becomes insurmountable, we think that the 14 reasonable thing this Court could do if it were so inclined 15 would be to deny the city its eligibility for the reasons of 16 the challenge to the pension clause and then invite the city
17 to come back with either a conditional acceptance by the 18 governor or otherwise correct their manifest intent to 19 violate Article IX, Section 24.

20 THE COURT: Well, what do I do if in Detroit two, as 21 you propose, the bondholders come in waving the state
22 contracts clause?

23 MR. MONTGOMERY: Well, your Honor, first, we think
24 that there is a difference between Article IX, Section 24,
25 and both the federal contracts impairments clause and the

1 state's own contracts impairment clause. We think that can
2 be found in two places. First, there are extra words that
3 can be found in Article IX, Section 24. In its entirety,
4 Article IX, Section 24, has a phrase that appears at the end,
5 which says "shall not be diminished or impaired thereby," the 6 entire phrase, if I may, your Honor, "The accrued financial 7 benefits of each pension plan and retirement system of the 8 state and its political subdivisions shall be a contractual
9 obligation thereof which shall not be diminished or impaired
10 thereby," and, of course, your Honor, the second funding 11 clause, which is, "Financial benefits arising on account of 12 service rendered in each fiscal year shall be funded during 13 such year and such funding shall not be used for financing
14 unfunded accrued liabilities." Your Honor, that is, to my 15 mind, certainly textually quite different than the state's 16 own simple contract impairment clause, and we think
17 meaningfully it's different. What Section -- Article IX,
18 Section 24, does for -- in our view, your Honor, is tell the 19 state that no matter what you are doing, you cannot take a
20 step to adversely affect those accrued financial benefits,
21 and we cite, of course, the Seitz case, which is the judicial 22 probate case in which judges in the State of Michigan asked
23 for protection of their pensions, and the Michigan Supreme 24 Court agreed. We think it's also consistent with the 25 Musselman case, which the Michigan Supreme Court said that,

1 again, the funding of retirement benefits that were otherwise
2 protected or protectable had to be done, and the state could
3 not take any action to not do that. Now, of course, that's a
4 mandamus case in which the Court denied mandamus, but the 5 legal proposition was squarely stated.

6 We also think the advisory opinions that the Court
7 entered with respect to the tax exempt nature of retirement
8 benefits clearly show that the Michigan Supreme Court looks 9 to see if the state is doing something to impair the actual 10 benefit. And that particular advisory opinion dealing with 11 the tax exempt nature of retirement benefits, the Michigan
12 Supreme Court said, no, merely taxing you or removing the 13 special exemption is not an impairment of the financial 14 benefit itself, so we step back and we ask your Honor to say,
15 okay, is a plan proffered by the emergency manager with the 16 knowledge and support or blessing of the governor authorized
17 by a statute an unconstitutional series of events? Is the 18 emergency manager's action unconstitutional, is the 19 governor's action unconstitutional, or is the statute itself?
20 Knowing that there is a judicial predilection for the 21 narrowest possible reading of major problems, we submit to 22 you that your Honor can start with the emergency manager's
23 plan. Stop it. No eligibility if the emergency manager's 24 plan is to be put forward. If that isn't enough because the 25 governor authorized it, then you have to challenge the

1 governor.

2 THE COURT: Let me rewind the clock here just --

3 MR. MONTGOMERY: Sure.

4 THE COURT: -- a couple of minutes and ask you about
5 this nonimpairment provision in the Constitution. The 6 question we all are struggling with is what is the meaning,
7 the substantive meaning of that provision in the context of a
8 political subdivision that doesn't have the money to comply
9 with it? What's the meaning of it?

10 MR. MONTGOMERY: First, I think this might be a good
11 opportunity to agree with your Honor that impairment in the 12 classic sense is something the Bankruptcy Code, of course,
13 has dealt with for many years by saying the allocation of 14 assets is not all by itself impairment. I think we -- I
15 think it's fairly well established that just because a 16 creditor gets less than a hundred cents does not mean that 17 their contract is impaired. On the other hand --

18 THE COURT: I thought that's exactly what it meant.

19 MR. MONTGOMERY: That's if the state does it, but 20 that's not that the -- remember the -- it was not a taking of 21 property by the federal government to authorize the 22 Bankruptcy Code. It was --

23 THE COURT: Oh, if that's what you mean --

24 MR. MONTGOMERY: Yes.

25 THE COURT: Absolutely.

1 MR. MONTGOMERY: Totally.

2 THE COURT: Absolutely, sure.

3 MR. MONTGOMERY: But it is a taking of property if 4 the emergency manager says to its retirees, "I, either by 5 virtue of a plan I put in or otherwise, am taking your right
6 to receive pension benefits in the future," which is what he 7 is proposing. He is not merely proposing to alter the 8 funding system in violation of Article IX, Section 24. He is 9 proposing to actually eliminate or reduce already accrued
10 financial benefits.

11 THE COURT: Right, so what's -- how do we give 12 meaning to nonimpairment, as you propose is constitutionally
13 required, if the city doesn't have the money to pay? What 14 does it -- what's the meaning of that requirement?

15 MR. MONTGOMERY: Well, your Honor, I think that if 16 there is to be some allocation -- let's back up for half a
17 moment. Let us assume for the moment that, in fact, the city
18 has proposed to utilize all of its assets to deal with it, so
19 we're not talking about a situation in which the city has 20 capacity on its balance sheet or cash flows to deal with 21 something that it just refuses to do. We think that the 22 proper answer is not for the federal government to invite the 23 state to violate its own Constitution but to have the state 24 adjust its own laws, have the state, using its people, its 25 either constitutional ratification process or the state

1 through its legislative process create the system for
2 adjustments that Asbury Park tells us is still at least
3 viable. Putting that aside, whether or not Asbury Park is or 4 is not still --

5 THE COURT: Well, but hang on, Mr. Montgomery. If 6 the pension right is as inviolate as you say it is, the 7 legislature can't adjust the pensions either.

8 MR. MONTGOMERY: No, but it can adjust other
9 people's assets, other people's entitlements. It can make 10 the accommodations to its Constitution that may be required.
11 It has the capacity to levy. It has the capacity to change
12 property rights. The state legislature has those property --
13 and the only thing we are asking this Court to consider --

14 THE COURT: Well, let me ask this question then.

15 MR. MONTGOMERY: Yes, sir.

16 THE COURT: Is it your position that because of this 17 nonimpairment requirement in the Michigan Constitution, the 18 State of Michigan is a guarantor of retirees' pension rights?

19 MR. MONTGOMERY: We have not garnered nor do we 20 propose to express a view today whether or not the state is a 21 guarantor. What we are proposing to express a view today is 22 that no state actor can do something in violation of the 23 state Constitution and have that act be other than void ab
24 initio. And if those acts are void ab initio, the requisite
25 authorizations either don't exist or, if this Court has the

1 power to accept those authorizations notwithstanding their
2 unconstitutionality under Michigan law, then your Honor is 3 engaged not in aiding the sovereignty of the state, as 4 suggested was required by Bekins, but you are aiding -- you
5 are going in the direction of derogation of the sovereignty
6 of the state. And why do I say that? Because you are 7 telling the people of Michigan they can't control their own
8 Constitution, they can't control their own legislature, they 9 can't control their own executive officers, and we think that 10 is a pure Tenth Amendment problem.

11 You mentioned earlier in discussion with Ms. Levine
12 the commandeering issue. It is absolutely true, as you have 13 identified, that first states must act in aid, not in 14 derogation of sovereignty. That's the Bekins. Under Printz
15 they can't compel a state official to do something that is 16 otherwise the subject of a federal program. They can invite,
17 they can entice, but they can't commandeer. That's the 18 Printz -- that's the Brady Bill decision. And in the New 19 York versus United States case, which, again, your Honor
20 identified, you can't compel ownership of radioactive waste.
21 Again, you can create programs, you can create enticements,
22 you can create an exhaustive federal regulatory scheme that 23 keeps the states out of regulating the business, but here the 24 federal government can't, by virtue of the Tenth Amendment,
25 keep the states out of regulating the financial obligations

1 of its citizens. It can't keep the states out of the 2 business of deciding when their elected officials can or 3 cannot do something, and it is that issue that causes the as 4 applied problem as opposed to the facial and validity issues
5 that were raised by AFSCME in the arguments of Ms. Levine.
6 We think it --

7 THE COURT: I want to -- well, I want you to focus
8 on why the mere filing of this case resulted in an imminent
9 threat to the pension rights of the retirees of the city
10 because the filing itself didn't result in anyone's payments
11 being reduced; right?

12 MR. MONTGOMERY: Well, I will note for you they -- 13 on the healthcare side, they apparently are.

14 THE COURT: Well, but that's not a result of the 15 Chapter 9.

16 MR. MONTGOMERY: Well, actually, I don't think that 17 could be done under state law because these are all
18 collectively bargained -- or mostly collectively bargained,
19 and to the extent they were collectively bargained,
20 they're --

21 THE COURT: Well, but with or without the Chapter 9,
22 Mr. Orr was free to do that or not under state law.

23 MR. MONTGOMERY: Or not under state law.

24 THE COURT: There's nothing about Chapter 9 that 25 impacts his decision to do that. He hasn't asked, at least

1 as far as I know, the Court's permission to do that.

2 MR. MONTGOMERY: No. As far as we know, he hasn't
3 asked either. So if I may answer the question, which, if I
4 understood it correctly, was why is the mere filing --

5 THE COURT: An imminent injury.

6 MR. MONTGOMERY: -- an imminent threat, first, I go
7 back to the factual predicate that I think underlays this,
8 that the mere threat of filing -- excuse me -- the mere 9 threat of a filing is not the harm all by itself, but it was 10 preceded by an announced plan, the June 14 proposal, and a
11 series of other events that the emergency manager undertook
12 and statements made, which evidenced -- evidenced -- a desire
13 to violate the state Constitution. Now, the only way in the 14 emergency manager's own mind that he can do that is if he has 15 access to the Bankruptcy Court because he believes it will 16 trump the state constitution with respect to pension
17 protections. Now, right or wrong, it is the -- it is the 18 threat that those pension benefits will be eliminated as part 19 of a plan, a series of steps of which have already been 20 undertaken, the most recent of which was the filing of the 21 Chapter 9 petition. The problem we face, at least in my 22 view, your Honor, is that the world that you face today for 23 deciding whether or not the emergency manager's actions are 24 or are not constitutional under Michigan law is different in 25 the eligibility context than we think you're going to be

1 faced with at a plan confirmation context. Once you're 2 inside the box of bankruptcy -- excuse me -- everyone,
3 putting aside whether -- how vigorously we will try to get 4 state law to say something different, but everyone seems to 5 suggest that the priority schemes and the allocation schemes
6 of the Bankruptcy Code preclude a contrary result that would 7 be allowable under state law.

8 THE COURT: Oh, but you're going to fight that.

9 MR. MONTGOMERY: But, your Honor, I've lost before,
10 and I might lose again. The issue of --

11 THE COURT: Well, but if you lose, it will be on 12 legal grounds.

13 MR. MONTGOMERY: But, your Honor, it will be. If we 14 are fighting this issue at the back end of the case and we 15 are arguing, as we will if we are required to, that 16 notwithstanding 109, that the emergency manager can't propose
17 a plan in good faith in which he violates his constitutional 18 rights for --

19 THE COURT: Constitutional obligations, yeah.

20 MR. MONTGOMERY: Constitutional obligations. I
21 apologize. For that to be a viable argument, in effect, you
22 have to rule today, your Honor, that it would be a violation
23 of his constitutional obligations because if it's not a
24 violation in the context of adhering to the Bankruptcy Code
25 provisions, which some cases say only provide with respect to

1 prospective obligations -- that is, a new pension plan would
2 be subject to the protections -- well, we're not talking
3 about a new pension plan, your Honor. We're talking about 4 one that's been around for 60 or 70 years now, and we're
5 talking about a retirement plan that has people who are a
6 hundred years old.

7 THE COURT: Suppose the plan is confirmable because 8 it results in the consent of those impaired after 9 negotiation.

10 MR. MONTGOMERY: Your Honor, if our understanding of 11 the law is correct, it's going to be very hard for a state
12 official to agree in good faith to propose a plan that 13 impairs financial benefits without a hundred percent of the 14 retirees consenting either under 109 or under state law, and 15 so the -- in order to get to the point where a less than 100-
16 percent majority of the retirees are accepting the plan, you
17 have to have decided that state law doesn't control the 18 exercise of those rights.

19 THE COURT: Suppose you or one of your objecting
20 colleagues decides to assert that the Michigan Constitution
21 requires the state to guarantee the federal -- the retirees'
22 pension.

23 MR. MONTGOMERY: Well, your Honor, the -- again, you
24 are asking for advisory hypotheticals here, but --

25 THE COURT: Well, but that's what looking at

1 ripeness is all about.

2 MR. MONTGOMERY: The issue will be then not whether 3 or not the bankruptcy process has harmed the retirees because 4 it will have -- if the state is a guarantor or arguably a
5 guarantor, it must be sued, query whether or not that lawsuit
6 can be brought in the Bankruptcy Court or some other place,
7 and, secondly, the -- under the Sittler case, I believe,
8 there is a question of whether or not there's a cause of 9 action for damages for unconstitutional behavior. There may 10 be a remedy, an injunction against unconstitutional behavior,
11 but the Michigan Supreme Court has not yet adopted a per se
12 rule that says if there is a violation of the state
13 Constitution --

14 THE COURT: Suppose the state agrees that the 15 Constitution obligates it to guarantee the city's pension
16 obligations.

17 MR. MONTGOMERY: Then the state will have remedied
18 the harm caused by the bankruptcy, your Honor, but the harm
19 was still being caused by the bankruptcy.

20 THE COURT: What harm?

21 MR. MONTGOMERY: The harm was the diminution of 22 pension benefits.

23 THE COURT: Well, but if the state backs it up,
24 there's no diminution.

25 MR. MONTGOMERY: Yeah. If, as part of a plan of

1 arrangement, the state backstops -- you're right, your
2 Honor -- then the -- this is like a situation --

3 THE COURT: Okay. Okay. If I'm right about that,
4 then why is the issue ripe now as opposed to then?

5 MR. MONTGOMERY: This is like the landlord case, if 6 I may, your Honor, in which the -- I think it's Bennett
7 versus City of San Jose, which, if I may, your Honor, since
8 we didn't brief this issue, I can give you the cite for, but 9 as I'm looking for the citation, I believe that case stands
10 for the proposition that a landlord need not await the actual 11 failure to collect more rent than he could under the new 12 ordinance. He's allowed to challenge the ordinance when it's 13 being passed. All right. We think this situation is very 14 similar to that. We have a situation in which the emergency
15 manager has undertaken an act, has sought the aid of this
16 Court, and the question is do we have to wait for this Court
17 to, in effect, put it to us before --

18 THE COURT: No, no. The question isn't that. The 19 question is do you have to wait for the emergency manager to 20 actually propose a plan that impairs pensions -- that's the 21 question -- and then object to that on constitutional
22 grounds.

23 MR. MONTGOMERY: In the Thomas More Law Center case, 24 your Honor, the -- which is the commerce clause challenge to 25 minimum coverage provisions under the Affordable Care Act,

1 three and a half years in advance, the Sixth Circuit found
2 standing because notwithstanding the fact that it was a long
3 way off and many things could occur, including Congress
4 changing the law, different rules being applied, that was 5 enough because there was nothing the party asserting the 6 claim had to do in order to become injured. Now, yes, there
7 were things that any member of the law center group could do
8 that could escape the harm, but the fact that they had to 9 undertake affirmative steps to escape the harm was enough.

10 Here the only thing we can do to escape the harm
11 which the emergency manager has announced he will undertake
12 is to escape, and the only way to escape is through the gates
13 that your Honor is standing at the door of. You are the 14 keeper of the protection for the retirees. You are the one 15 who can stop the emergency manager from doing what is 16 unconstitutional under Michigan law. And apparently, by the 17 way, both the state and the city are inviting you to rule on 18 constitutionality issues, you know. They are perfectly
19 comfortable with your going down that road, your Honor, and 20 notwithstanding our hesitancy --

21 THE COURT: Does that make an otherwise not ripe
22 issue ripe?

23 MR. MONTGOMERY: No, obviously not, your Honor, but 24 we do think that where there's -- where the voluntary
25 cessation by the city or the temporary cessation or the

1 temporary abandonment of its statements that, oh, we are
2 going to impair the pensions does not create a situation that 3 moots the controversy nor do we think it eliminates the 4 ripeness of the controversy because your Honor can still see
5 the identifiable harm and can still issue an order that 6 redresses that identifiable harm by telling the city it may 7 not enter the portals of your courtroom.

8 Now, your Honor, I think we have, in effect,
9 distinguished the Barnwell case, which is cited by, I
10 believe, the U.S. government, because that was an ad hoc 11 committee of citizens instead of an 1102 committee. Here
12 we're clearly creditors. Here 1109 grants us statutory 13 standing as parties of interest, and I think we have 14 indicated to you that the harm is factual, imminent, and you
15 are at the gates.

16 One other thing I might want to sort of identify in 17 this ripeness issue, why now as opposed to what, why later,
18 of course, your Honor is familiar with the City of Stockton
19 case, and we are not urging you to adopt that case obviously,
20 but it does suggest that once in Chapter 11, the State of 21 California couldn't decide which rules it was going to 22 follow.

23 THE COURT: Chapter 9?

24 MR. MONTGOMERY: Right, in Chapter 9, the same thing
25 your Honor might decide here; that is, once inside Chapter 9,

1 the city is not free to do whatever it wants to do except
2 with respect to its own property and its own future
3 governance. That you cannot touch in any way, shape, or 4 form, but that doesn't mean that you have to approve a plan
5 that violates what your Honor thinks are the rules of the 6 road. And it is that danger that you would be called upon to 7 make a ruling inconsistent with Michigan law at the back end
8 of the case that has us asking you at the front end of the 9 case to prevent the city from engaging in that dialogue.

10 Now, the -- I think worth making as a final, if you
11 will, point -- and, again, later this afternoon you will hear
12 a more fulsome discussion, I believe, on all of the issues
13 associated with PA 436, but I think the void ab initio issue
14 is important to our constitutionality position; that is, were 15 it not for the fact that under Michigan law an 16 unconstitutional act is considered void ab initio, we think 17 you might be able to go down the road of accepting the 18 authorization papers as having been legitimately delivered to 19 your Honor without fear of violating our view of how Chapter
20 9 would be unconstitutional as applied; that is, if Michigan
21 law did not regard unconstitutional acts as void ab initio,
22 then all you would be faced with is a remediable situation
23 rather than an absence of action or an absence of 24 authorization action. And with respect to the void ab initio
25 cases, we have cited those in our brief, your Honor, and we

1 think that you should accept as a truism, if you will, the
2 simple words actually uttered by Attorney General Schuette in 3 his paper that the city lacks authority under Michigan law to 4 propose a plan that diminishes accrued pension rights. It
5 similarly lacks power to consent to any proposed action that
6 would violate the Michigan Constitution. The proposed action
7 was the petition. The proposed action was the petition as 8 part of a plan to eliminate the pension rights induced -- the 9 emergency manager got the governor to say yes to an act that 10 was unquestionably contrary to the pension clause. As a void
11 ab initio act, that means that the legitimacy of the filing
12 is called into question, pure question of state law for your 13 Honor to rule upon, pure question of whether or not, in fact,
14 the city has obtained valid authorization papers -- pretty
15 hard to be valid if the underlying actions are void ab
16 initio, which is the norm under Michigan law, and we think,
17 therefore, your Honor has two ways to go down the path of 18 blocking eligibility independently of the factual disputes
19 under 109. One is to hold that it's unconstitutional, the 20 authorization was unconstitutional because it was part of a
21 scheme to eliminate the pension rights or to say even if it
22 wasn't void ab initio, the acceptance of those actions by 23 this Court raise a huge constitutional challenge under the 24 Tenth Amendment to Chapter 9 itself. Obviously the principle
25 of limiting federal constitutionality challenges would favor

1 finding that the narrower ground would be that the emergency
2 manager couldn't have filed his papers. And I think, your
3 Honor, just because I must, I just want to argue we are not
4 arguing -- we are not rearguing today all those issues which 5 we were in front of your Honor before several weeks ago about
6 Stern v. Marshall and whether or not the Court should do
7 that. We are in front of you. You have determined that you
8 have the power to decide issues of state and federal 9 constitutionality. We are asking you to exercise that power
10 and to preclude the city's eligibility.

11 THE COURT: So if you don't -- we have a little time
12 left. I have some more questions for you.

13 MR. MONTGOMERY: Sure. Happy to engage, your Honor.

14 THE COURT: One is sort of a procedural one. You 15 mentioned that you didn't brief the ripeness issue. Would 16 you like an opportunity to do that?

17 MR. MONTGOMERY: That would be fine, your Honor.

18 THE COURT: I'd leave it to your discretion.

19 MR. MONTGOMERY: Yes, yes.

20 THE COURT: How much time --

21 MR. MONTGOMERY: We'd be happy to do that, your
22 Honor.

23 THE COURT: How much time would you like?

24 MR. MONTGOMERY: Give us a week, your Honor.

25 THE COURT: Okay. You have a --

1 MR. MONTGOMERY: Yeah. Give us a week. It'll be -- 2 if you don't mind, we'll submit it to you on the first day of 3 the trial.

4 THE COURT: Okay. I want to ask you about a couple
5 of entries in the brief that you did file.

6 MR. MONTGOMERY: Okay.

7 THE COURT: On page 27, you say -- and I want to 8 quote here. This is the brief you filed at Docket Number
9 805.

10 MR. MONTGOMERY: Yes.

11 THE COURT: You say, "As noted by the Sixth Circuit
12 in City of Pontiac Retired Employees Association, 213 Westlaw
13 4038528 at *1-2, the Michigan legislature evidenced an 14 unconstitutional, and undemocratic purpose in crafting PA
15 436," close quote. Similarly, on page 29 of that brief you 16 say, "The Michigan legislature, the Governor, and the 17 Emergency Manager have each made clear that abrogation of 18 municipal retirement compensation rights was the legislative 19 intent of the Act," referring to PA 436, "and is a central 20 purpose of this bankruptcy. That intent also was recently
21 recognized by the 6th Circuit in City of Pontiac Retired
22 Employees Association," same cite at *3. I have to say, Mr.
23 Montgomery, that I have studied that opinion by the Sixth
24 Circuit several times, and I cannot find these references. I
25 cannot find where the Sixth Circuit addressed or even

1 suggested anything about the constitutionality of PA 436. Am
2 I missing something or was this a mistake?

3 MR. MONTGOMERY: Well, unless my memory fails me,
4 your Honor, I think what we're referring to is the fact that 5 the Sixth Circuit said that PA 4, which was the immediate 6 predecessor of 436, had each of those purposes, your Honor,
7 and that, therefore, by extension --

8 THE COURT: Perhaps so, but the Court didn't say
9 anything about PA 436.

10 MR. MONTGOMERY: Well, other than that it was 11 adopted despite the fact that the referendum had overruled PA
12 4 and that it was virtually the same but for -- I believe the 13 phrase was an add-on for --

14 THE COURT: The Sixth Circuit did not say anything
15 about the purpose or intent of PA 436.

16 MR. MONTGOMERY: But it did as to 4, your Honor.

17 THE COURT: It did.

18 MR. MONTGOMERY: And it says 4 -- 436 is the same as 19 4. That's how we got there. Rightly or wrongly, that is how 20 we got there, your Honor. We say if the Sixth Circuit
21 identified a purpose of PA 4 as being the impairment of 22 pension --

23 THE COURT: Well, since you're going to file an 24 amended brief --

25 MR. MONTGOMERY: Yes, sir.

1 THE COURT: -- I want you to tell me very
2 specifically where in this City of Pontiac case the Court
3 said anything or suggested anything about the 4 constitutionality of PA 436.

5 MR. MONTGOMERY: All right. Your Honor, we will --

6 THE COURT: I agree with you it addressed it at 7 length with regard to PA 4 and expressed grave concerns about
8 it, but that's not the act before this Court today, so I
9 invite you to do that in your --

10 MR. MONTGOMERY: Of course.

11 THE COURT: -- new brief.

12 MR. MONTGOMERY: We'll add that discussion to our 13 ripeness supplemental brief.

14 THE COURT: All right. Thank you.

15 MR. MONTGOMERY: Thank you, your Honor.

16 THE COURT: Ms. Brimer, you may proceed for ten
17 minutes, please.

18 MS. BRIMER: Thank you, your Honor. Lynn M. Brimer
19 appearing on behalf of the Retired Detroit Police Members
20 Association. Your Honor, your concluding arguments or 21 discussion with Mr. Montgomery leads directly into the 22 discussion that I will have with you this morning, and that 23 has to do with the constitutionality of PA 436 under the 24 Michigan Constitution, your Honor. And first and foremost,
25 your Honor, I'd like to point out that in our brief we

1 noted -- and we cited the Schimmel case -- we noted that PA
2 436 was passed in what we believe is derogation of the 3 Michigan referendum provision in Article II, Section 9, of 4 the Michigan Constitution. It is well worth noting at the 5 outset of this discussion, your Honor, that that issue was 6 not addressed by either the city or the State of Michigan in 7 the pleadings they have filed.

8 With that, your Honor -- and I'll address that a bit 9 briefly later, your Honor. Article I, Section 1, of the 10 Michigan Constitution specifically provides that, "All 11 political power is inherent in the people. Government is 12 instituted for their equal benefit, security and protection."
13 Consistent with that maxim, Article II, Section 9, of the 14 Constitution specifically provides -- and it's a lengthy
15 provision, your Honor, so I'll read the relevant 16 provisions -- "The people reserve to themselves the power to 17 propose laws and to enact and reject laws, called the 18 initiative, and the power to approve or reject laws enacted
19 by the legislature, called the referendum. The power of the 20 referendum does not extend to acts making appropriations for 21 state institutions or to meet deficiencies in state funds."
22 As has been noted, your Honor, in a handful of cases that we 23 can find that address this case, this provision of referendum
24 is so significant and vital to our Constitution that Article
25 II, Section 9, further provides that, "No law as to which the

1 power of referendum properly has been invoked shall be
2 effective thereafter unless approved by a majority of the 3 electors voting thereon at the next general election."

4 As this Court is aware, I'm sure, on November 6,
5 2012, by referendum, the people of the State of Michigan
6 rejected Public Act 4 on a vote of 52 to 48 percent. That
7 was the Local Government and School District Act --
8 Accountability Act. On December 26, Governor Snyder approved
9 Public Act 436, the Local Financial Stability and Choice Act,
10 a virtually identical law to Public Act 4.

11 In order to avoid subjecting Public Act 436 to 12 referendum, two very minor spending provisions were tacked on 13 at the back end. Section 34 of the Act provides that for the 14 fiscal year ending 9-30, 2013, $780,000 is appropriated to 15 administer the Act, in essence, to pay the salaries of the 16 emergency managers appointed thereunder, and Section 35
17 provides that $5 million is appropriated for the same time
18 frame for the professionals such as lawyers and financial 19 consultants that are engaged under the Act. The spending 20 provision was not at all a general spending provision for the 21 State of Michigan but a very limited provision relating 22 directly to the Act.

23 We have researched, your Honor, and cannot find a
24 single instance where the voters of Michigan have 25 specifically rejected a law and shortly thereafter the

1 governor passes a very similar law, if not identical, and 2 tacked on a spending provision in an effort to remove it from 3 the otherwise democratic process of the State of Michigan.

4 There are a handful of cases in Michigan that do
5 address the referendum. In the case of Kuhn v. Department of 6 Treasury at 384 Mich. 378, 1971, the Michigan Supreme Court
7 specifically provided or held that the phrase in the preamble
8 of that -- the Income Tax Act of 1967, which provides that 9 the Act is for the purpose of meeting deficiencies in state
10 funds was not, in fact, sufficient when at the time the state
11 did not have any state deficiencies in its funding, and,
12 therefore, that provision in the preamble did not, in fact,
13 remove the Income Tax Act of 1967 from the power of 14 referendum. Unfortunately, in that case the plaintiff had 15 not complied with the requirements for referring the matter
16 to the -- or the law to the referendum, and so the Court was 17 not able to render any further opinion regarding that 18 language and its impact on the -- whether or not that case
19 had -- that law had it been brought to referendum. However,
20 it's instructive to this Court. The law at issue in that 21 case had not previously been rejected on referendum, so,
22 therefore, it does have some influence in how this Court
23 should interpret how the Michigan Supreme Court may view the 24 two spending provisions tacked onto Public Act 436. Public
25 Act 4 had, in fact, been rejected by the state through a

1 proper referendum. The spending provisions were added on in
2 an effort to remove the case -- the law from the referendum
3 in derogation of the provision in Article II, Section 9,
4 which provides specifically that no law to which the power of 5 referendum had been properly applied shall be effective
6 thereafter unless approved by a majority of the electors
7 voting thereon at the next general election.

8 THE COURT: Okay. So I have this question for you
9 regarding this argument, and it's, again, a ripeness question
10 and a standing question. How does any party have standing to 11 challenge the constitutionality of PA 436 on this ground or 12 why is it ripe until such a party has complied with all of 13 the legal requirements to have a referendum regarding that 14 put on the ballot and it being rejected because the law isn't 15 subject to a referendum because of this appropriations
16 provision?

17 MS. BRIMER: I don't believe, your Honor, that by 18 adding on the spending provision, which on its face took 19 Public Act 436 out of the referendum provision of the 20 statute -- if that is the case, your Honor, then you have 21 read out the referendum from the Michigan Constitution. I 22 think this is precisely the mechanism by which the 23 constitutionality of the law now should be challenged. When 24 that law was then relied upon for purposes of the appointment
25 of an emergency manager, that is precisely, I believe, your

1 Honor, how this would come to a court for review. On its 2 face, the governor attempted to remove this from the
3 referendum. It was removed from the referendum, but you
4 can't read that out of the law and read out of the 5 Constitution the second provision, which requires that any 6 law that has been rejected by referendum be resubmitted to 7 the electorate.

8 I see I'm running out of time, your Honor. What I
9 would like to note, your Honor, is that while you are correct
10 that the Sixth Circuit did not specifically rule on 436 --
11 I've read that case closely several times -- 436 was not
12 before the Court, and, as you'll recall, some of the matters
13 at issue in that case were what precisely is before the Court
14 because some of the arguments had not even been preserved on 15 appeal. However, I think the tone of the Sixth Circuit when 16 it said, "Apparently unaffected that voters had just rejected
17 Public Act 4, the Michigan Legislature enacted, and the 18 Michigan governor signed, Public Act 436. Act 436 largely 19 reenacted the provisions of Public Act 4, the law the 20 Michigan citizens had just revoked. In enacting 436, the 21 Michigan Legislature included a minor appropriations
22 provision, apparently" -- they didn't say "in fact," but 23 "apparently to stop Michigan voters from putting Public Act
24 436 to a referendum." I think that gives us a tone, and I
25 also think it's noteworthy, your Honor, that despite the fact

1 that the city noted on page 15 of Exhibit A to their
2 consolidated response to the objections that we had raised
3 this specific issue, it is not addressed. It is not
4 responded to by either the state or the city. It stands
5 unrefuted at this point, your Honor.

6 THE COURT: Thank you.

7 MR. GOLDBERG: Good morning, your Honor. Jerome
8 Goldberg appearing on behalf of interested party David Sole,
9 who is a city retiree, as is his wife, Joyce Sole.

10 THE COURT: And you may proceed for ten minutes, 11 sir.

12 MR. GOLDBERG: Thank you, your Honor. While I
13 certainly concur with many of the eloquent arguments put 14 forth by counsel prior to myself, I want to approach the 15 issue from a somewhat narrower point of view from the prism
16 of Michigan state law and specifically from the Michigan --
17 how Michigan state law views the issue of statutory 18 construction.

19 As we know, 11 U.S.C. 109 states that a local 20 municipality must be specifically authorized by state law to 21 file a Chapter 9 bankruptcy. The phrase "authorized by law"
22 refers to the law of the state, and I cited Bekins for that 23 principle. States act as gatekeepers to their municipalities
24 and access to relief under the Bankruptcy Code.

25 As we all know, the basis for the state law

1 authorizing the filing of this Chapter 9 is Public Act 436,
2 and Public Act 436 has several different provisions that I
3 think it's worth looking at to get an understanding for why
4 we believe the failure to include a contingency to bar the 5 impairment of pensions is violative of state law. It
6 provides the emergency -- Section 1551(c) provides the 7 emergency manager with the power to carry out the 8 modification, rejection, termination, and renegotiation of 9 contracts. Section 1552 provides the emergency manager again
10 with the power to reject, modify, or terminate, one, terms of 11 an existing contract. Section K gives the emergency manager
12 the power to reject, modify, or terminate an existing 13 collective bargaining agreement. Section 12 contains 14 provisions for the renegotiation of debt, and it's laid out
15 in Section 12. But what Section 1552(m) -- Section 12(m), 16 when it deals with the question of pensions, it explicitly 17 includes within the section, within the statute, the -- 18 states that the emergency manager must fully comply with 19 Article IX, Section 24, of the Michigan Constitution, which 20 is the constitutional prohibition on diminishing or impairing
21 contract. In addition, Section 1558 states that the governor
22 may place contingencies on a local government in order to 23 proceed.

24 When you view the statute -- the authorizing statute
25 from the prism of the Michigan rules on statutory

1 construction -- and I cited the Pohutski case, which many --
2 is the seminal case on statutory construction in the State of 3 Michigan, Pohutski -- the Michigan Supreme Court in Pohutski
4 stated, "When parsing a statute, we presume every word is 5 used for a purpose. As far as possible, we give effect to 6 every clause and sentence. 'The Court may not assume that
7 the Legislature inadvertently made use of one word or phrase
8 instead of another.' Similarly, we would take care to avoid 9 a construction that renders any part of the statute
10 surplusage or nugatory." And, in addition, Michigan courts
11 follow the doctrine of expression unius exclusion alterius,
12 the expression of one thing is the exclusion of another.

13 We would submit that in construing Public Act 436 as 14 a whole, in construing it as a whole, any -- you can't allow 15 for the filing of a Chapter 9 unless the Chapter 9 includes 16 the contingency for not impairing the pension rights under 17 Article 24. Otherwise it would negate that section or 18 declare that section void, and that would be an express
19 violation of the Michigan Rules of Statutory Construction,
20 which the Court is bound to follow at this stage in the 21 proceeding because in the eligibility proceeding, it is state
22 law, state law that is dominant. We believe, based on --

23 THE COURT: But aren't there many, many, many 24 conditions that the governor could have put on the filing in 25 order to assure the emergency manager's compliance with state

1 law?

2 MR. GOLDBERG: There are certainly different --

3 THE COURT: Equal protection, due process of law,
4 freedom of speech.

5 MR. GOLDBERG: But what I'm submitting, your
6 Honor --

7 THE COURT: There are lots of constitutional rights.

8 MR. GOLDBERG: Certainly. But what I'm submitting
9 is we have to look at the statute as it is written. That's 10 what the Michigan courts rule over and over again. Those are 11 the fundamental rules of statutory construction enunciated by 12 the Michigan Supreme Court in case after case. In this case, 13 we look at the words of the statute. We don't read into the 14 statute. We look at the words of the statute. This statute
15 contains an explicit guarantee of pensions, a guarantee --

16 THE COURT: Well, and the governor says --

17 MR. GOLDBERG: It includes Article IX.

18 THE COURT: The governor says the filing will comply
19 with state law, doesn't he?

20 MR. GOLDBERG: Well, the governor may say it, but 21 the governor is not the final arbiter, your Honor. That's 22 what the Court is for, and what we -- and the governor is not 23 above the law.

24 THE COURT: Why isn't that a sufficient protection?

25 MR. GOLDBERG: I'm sorry.

1 THE COURT: Why isn't that a specific -- a
2 sufficient protection?

3 MR. GOLDBERG: Why isn't what the governor says a --

4 THE COURT: No. Why isn't the fact that this Court
5 will apply state law a sufficient protection?

6 MR. GOLDBERG: Well, we would submit, your Honor,
7 that state law at this stage of the proceeding, at the 8 authorization stage, is the determinative factor. Once we go
9 into the -- once you make the eligibility determination, as 10 Mr. Montgomery indicated and as the case law as I've read it
11 indicates as well, that's where federal law -- there's a
12 question of federal supremacy over state law, but at this 13 stage it's state law that is determinative, and the state law
14 in this case explicitly mandates a contingency for the 15 guaranteeing of pensions. Otherwise we've written that
16 section --

17 THE COURT: If we're going --

18 MR. GOLDBERG: -- out of the authorization
19 statute --

20 THE COURT: If we're going to look at --

21 MR. GOLDBERG: -- and that's an explicit violation
22 of statutory construction.

23 THE COURT: If we're going to look at statutory law
24 and every word of it, how do you deal with the city's 25 argument that the word "thereby" in the constitutional

1 provision only prohibits the impairment of pensions by the 2 state or its political subdivisions; it does not prohibit the 3 impairment of pensions by a United States Bankruptcy Court?

4 MR. GOLDBERG: That's exactly the point, your Honor.
5 That's exactly the point. At this stage of the proceeding,
6 according to Bekins, according to Harrisburg, and according
7 to every case I've read, according to Collier's, it's state
8 law that is determinative. That's why --

9 THE COURT: And that's what I'm asking.

10 MR. GOLDBERG: That's why the question --

11 THE COURT: And that's exactly what I'm asking you
12 about. If we're going to read every word of the statute and 13 apply every word of the statute, including the word
14 "thereby," why doesn't state law permit the Bankruptcy Court
15 to impair pensions?

16 MR. GOLDBERG: Because the authorization statute
17 that this Court is relying upon, which it has to rely upon
18 because otherwise there would be no Chapter 9 filing, there
19 has to be a specific authorization under state law; correct?
20 I mean there are 20 -- many states don't have one. You have 21 to rely on the state law. That state law contains an 22 explicit clause that impair -- pensions cannot be impaired.
23 It's not just written in one place actually. It's written in 24 two places in that statute. Again, I'm submitting that down
25 the road, if we get past this eligibility question on this,

1 perhaps what you said is correct. At that point federal 2 law -- you make the determination based on federal law, but 3 right now you are duty bound to make that determination based 4 on your examination of state law and by applying the state
5 law --

6 THE COURT: What is the --

7 MR. GOLDBERG: -- principles of statutory
8 construction.

9 THE COURT: What is the exact state law language in 10 PA 436 that you rely on?

11 MR. GOLDBERG: I rely on the language -- here, let 12 me find it right here.

13 THE COURT: Okay.

14 MR. GOLDBERG: "The emergency manager shall fully 15 comply with the public employee retirement system investment
16 act and Section 24 of Article IX of the state Constitution,
17 and any actions taken shall be consistent with the pension's 18 qualified status"; that he's -- this emergency manager has to 19 abide by the constitutional impairment.

20 THE COURT: So my question for you remains if this
21 Bankruptcy Court were to approve a plan -- and I want to say
22 here I have no predisposition on this issue at all. This is 23 strictly hypothetical legal talk to figure out where we are.
24 If this Court were to approve a plan that impairs pensions --
25 again, not presuming at all that it will -- but if it did, is

1 that the city impairing pensions, or is that the Bankruptcy
2 Court impairing pensions because --

3 MR. GOLDBERG: That would be impairing --

4 THE COURT: -- the law prohibits the city from doing
5 it? There's a question about whether it prohibits the 6 Bankruptcy Court from doing it.

7 MR. GOLDBERG: That's precisely why I'm making the 8 argument, your Honor. There is a -- there is a question as 9 to whether -- once we get past the eligibility and this Court
10 is looking at the plan, whether this Court then has the 11 authority under federal law to ignore the state law and state
12 constitutional protection. I'm not saying it does, but 13 there's at least a question, and a lot of the case law
14 indicates that, but we're not at that stage right now. We're 15 at the eligibility stage, and clearly at the eligibility
16 stage it's state law that predominates. It's state law
17 that's determinative, and it's state law that this Court has 18 to look at, not federal law but state law that this Court has 19 to look at in making its determination as to whether the 20 authorization meets the muster. And what I would submit,
21 that under state law principles, as I indicated, we look at 22 the authorization statute, we look at the plain language of 23 the statute, and we look at the Michigan rules on statutory 24 construction as a -- and there's no way to allow for a filing
25 that would not have a contingency that bars the impairment of 1 pensions. It's interesting to me you raised before to Mr.

2 Montgomery --

3 THE COURT: Actually, your time has expired, so I do
4 have to ask you to wrap up.

5 MR. GOLDBERG: Okay. Well, I'll make one last
6 point. You raised very briefly to Mr. Montgomery why not 7 every contract, but, as I indicated, other contracts are 8 provided for the impairment of those contracts under the PA
9 436. It's the impairment of pensions that's explicitly taken
10 away from the authority of the emergency manager, and I
11 submit because of that that any authorization that doesn't 12 include a contingency barring the impairment of pensions
13 would violate Michigan state law and violate the Bankruptcy
14 Code, in essence, itself. Thank you.

15 THE COURT: Thank you.

16 MS. CRITTENDON: Good morning, your Honor. Krystal
17 Crittendon, and I want to thank the Court for giving me the 18 opportunity to speak this morning.

19 THE COURT: Welcome, and you may proceed for five
20 minutes.

21 MS. CRITTENDON: Thank you, your Honor. Before the 22 Court goes any further, I would just ask that the Court step
23 back and look at the process and how we got to where we are 24 from a legal foundational standpoint, and to that end, I make 25 three objections, your Honor.

1 First, the City of Detroit does not have a duly
2 appointed emergency manager because there was no EM or EFM
3 law in place at the time that appointment was made. As the 4 Court knows, in 2011, Public Act 4, commonly known as the 5 Emergency Manager Act, repealed Public Act 72. In November
6 of 2012, the people of the State of Michigan repealed Public
7 Act 4 by referendum. Pursuant to Michigan law -- and this is 8 at MCL, Michigan Compiled Law, 8.4 -- "Whenever a statute, or 9 any part thereof shall be repealed by a subsequent statute,
10 such statute, or any part thereof, so repealed, shall not be 11 revived by the repeal of such subsequent repealing statute."
12 In short, that is saying that when PA 4 repealed Public Act
13 72 and PA 4 was then repealed by referendum, PA 72 was not 14 revived. It did not spring back to life.

15 On March 14, 2013, a contract was purportedly
16 entered into between the State of Michigan and Kevyn Orr
17 appointing him EFM for the City of Detroit. However -- under 18 PA 72. However, because PA 72 was not alive at that time, 19 that appointment was not legal and is defective, and for that 20 reason, Mr. Orr is not a duly appointed emergency manager for 21 the City of Detroit.

22 The second argument, even had there been an 23 emergency manager law in place, Mr. Orr would not have been 24 an EFM at the time PA 436 came into place because his 25 contract, the contract between he and the state, was expired

1 on the day that PA 436 came into place, so he would not have
2 been grandfathered in under PA 436.

3 Finally, under Chapter 9 of the Bankruptcy Code,
4 there is no ability for there to be an involuntary
5 bankruptcy, and because the municipality would had to have 6 filed the petition, and in this case the municipality, being 7 the mayor and City Council, did not file the petition, the 8 petition filed by Mr. Orr was defective, and the filing
9 should be dismissed.

10 For those reasons -- and I see that my yellow light
11 is on -- time goes really really quickly when you have five 12 minutes, but I'd answer any questions the Court has.

13 THE COURT: How much time is left when the yellow
14 goes on, Kelli? Do you know?

15 THE CLERK: Three minutes.

16 THE COURT: It's three minutes, so you only --

17 MS. CRITTENDON: Okay.

18 THE COURT: -- had two under green and three under 19 the yellow, so --

20 MS. CRITTENDON: Okay. Thank you, your Honor.

21 THE COURT: -- you may proceed.

22 MS. CRITTENDON: Mr. Orr's contract at Section 2.2
23 of that contract provides that his contract was effective on 24 Monday, March 25th, and terminated at midnight on Wednesday, 25 March 27th. Midnight March 27th was a Wednesday morning at

1 12 o'clock a.m. The new emergency manager law, PA 436, did
2 not take place -- did not become effective until Thursday,
3 March 28th. Under 14 -- MCL 141.1572, it provides that an 4 emergency manager or emergency financial manager appointed
5 and serving under state law immediately prior to the 6 effective date of this Act shall continue under this Act as 7 an emergency manager for the local government. Because the 8 City of Detroit was without an emergency manager or emergency
9 financial manager for one full day before the Emergency
10 Manager Act, PA 436, became effective, Mr. Orr could not 11 continue in that capacity, as used in this section, because 12 he was without a contract.

13 Finally, I would just say there are a number of 14 cases under the federal Bankruptcy Court law that talk about 15 involuntary bankruptcies. This is akin to an involuntary
16 bankruptcy when someone other than the City of Detroit, which 17 is its mayor and City Council, filed the petition. And for 18 those reasons, the petition was defective. Section 109 of 19 the Bankruptcy Code talks to the authorization of the state
20 to approve a bankruptcy if filed by a municipality. In this
21 case, that is not what happened. It was the state
22 effectively filing the petition and approving the petition
23 being that the emergency financial manager, assuming that we 24 had one, would be an operative of the state and not an 25 operative of the City of Detroit. Thank you, your Honor.

1 THE COURT: Is the contract on which you rely in the 2 record of the case?

3 MS. CRITTENDON: I don't believe it is. I do have a
4 copy of the contract with me if the Court would like to see
5 it. I'm assuming that one of the parties --

6 THE COURT: If you'd like me to consider it, you
7 should --

8 MS. CRITTENDON: I will file it.

9 THE COURT: -- file it.

10 MS. CRITTENDON: I will, and I will file a brief
11 that memorializes everything that was said today.

12 THE COURT: All right.

13 MS. CRITTENDON: Thank you, your Honor.

14 MR. MORRIS: Good morning, your Honor. Thomas
15 Morris on behalf of the Retiree Association parties. The 16 Retiree Association parties who I represent include two 17 individuals. There was some discussion about the committee's 18 standing to raise certain objections. The committee argued
19 those objections very ably. We concur in those objections,
20 and that includes the concurrence of those individuals. We 21 trust that would take care of any standing issue if there
22 were one. And the comments that preceded us -- preceded me
23 were very ably made, so I'm just going to address a very few 24 points.

25 One is a point the Court -- a question the Court had

1 raised about the "thereby" language in the pensions clause.
2 It's important for the Court to note that it's the city that
3 files any plan, the city that proposes any plan, negotiates
4 any plan. Chapter 9 precludes the Court from appointing a
5 trustee, from converting the case, from interfering with the 6 city's ability to manage its fiscal affairs. A case cannot 7 be filed involuntarily under Chapter 9. As the Bekins court
8 said, quoting from the legislative history on page 51, "The 9 taxing agency itself is the only instrumentality which can 10 seek the benefits of the proposed legislation." We think 11 it's clear that any action to impair the pensions by the city
12 would, first of all, be improper, but, second of all, it
13 would be the city's action.

14 Now, the city has taken the position that somehow
15 the pensions clause of the Michigan Constitution is 16 preempted, and we disagree with that, but the city can't have 17 it both ways. They have a theory -- they've made a number of 18 multiple arguments, but they have a theory that once they got 19 into Bankruptcy Court -- or if they get -- are found
20 eligible, then the pensions clause is off. Well, if that's 21 the case -- and it's not the case, but if that were the case,
22 then it would be the action of the authorization of the 23 filing and the action of the city in filing the case which 24 would be impairing the pensions. What happens if the city is 25 found ineligible?

1 THE COURT: Well, but that's true only if as part of
2 eligibility the Court ruled on the issue of pension rights
3 and ruled in the city's favor.

4 MR. MORRIS: This ties in with arguments that were 5 made by other counsel, and if Public Act 436 enables the city
6 to impair the pensions, then Public Act 436 in that respect
7 is unconstitutional. It's inconsistent with the pensions
8 clause. Of course, the pensions clause is part of the 9 Michigan Constitution, the supreme law of our state, and the 10 Public Act 436 must comply with it. Public Act 436, in fact,
11 gives recognition to the pension clause and acknowledges it,
12 and it even authorizes the governor to make compliance with 13 the pension clause a precondition. However, that didn't 14 happen in this case, and that's one of the -- one of the 15 issues that has been raised by other counsel.

16 Your Honor, if the city is found to be ineligible,
17 from the standpoint of the retirees, the city will have to 18 make a choice. It can choose to comply with the pensions
19 clause and not impair pensions, just say we're going to 20 comply with the Michigan Constitution, or it can negotiate
21 with the retirees through their associations. That process
22 was shortcut here, and that will be one of the factual issues
23 we've raised.

24 Now, if the city goes forward with a plan that does
25 not impair pensions, one of the Court -- one of the questions

1 the Court had was what happens then, what happens if the city
2 just doesn't have the money. Well, there's an issue of 3 whether the state is liable. There's the potential issue.
4 But those are all issues apart from -- they're nonlegal
5 issues. The most the retirees can ask for is that the city
6 doesn't impair the pensions. The ultimate solution for the 7 retirees comes elsewhere. Will the city have -- will the 8 state have to step in to help the city? Will the city have 9 to do other things to raise money? I don't know, but those 10 are beyond our legal issues.

11 Your Honor, the city holds the key on this issue of 12 eligibility. It can agree to comply with the Michigan
13 Constitution or it can negotiate with the retirees and reach
14 a resolution. The proper outcome here is for the city to go
15 back -- as Section 109 intends, go back and either not impair 16 the pensions, which is our preference, or negotiate with the 17 retirees. Thank you.

18 THE COURT: Thank you.

19 MS. FLUKER: Good morning, your Honor. Vanessa 20 Fluker on behalf of Center for Community Justice and 21 Advocacy.

22 THE COURT: Would you repeat your name for me,
23 please?

24 MS. FLUKER: Vanessa Fluker.

25 THE COURT: Okay. Thank you.

1 MS. FLUKER: F-l-u-k-e-r. Your Honor, the issue I'm
2 raising today before this Court with respect to eligibility
3 is a failure of the emergency manager to comply with the 4 statutory mandates under PA 436, Section 16, which is
5 actually Section 1556. That section specifically mandates,
6 and I quote, "an emergency manager shall," not "may," not 7 "might, "shall, on his own -- his or her own or upon the 8 advice of the local inspector if a local inspector has been 9 retained, make a determination as to whether possible
10 criminal conduct contributed to the financial situation
11 resulting in the local government's receivership status. If 12 the emergency manager determines that there is a reason to 13 believe criminal conduct has occurred, the manager shall 14 refer the matter to the attorney general or local prosecuting
15 attorney for investigation." There has been some extensive
16 arguments about the tenets of statutory construction, so I
17 won't go through Pohutski step by step, but we're all aware 18 that you must adhere to the plain unambiguous language of the 19 statute.

20 In this particular instance, two of the city's 21 largest creditors, UBS and Bank of America, have been found
22 convicted -- criminally convicted in UBS's case of criminal
23 conduct involving municipal bonds. In fact, the SEC fined
24 UBS $47,207,180 in Case Number 11-2539, U.S. District Court,
25 New Jersey. Three UBS executives were indicted and convicted

1 of fraud related to municipal bond rigging, and that was in 2 New York, Southern Division, Case Number 10-1217. A Bank of 3 America executive was indicted July 19th, 2012, for bid
4 rigging of fraud municipal bonds. And what's so significant
5 about this, in the criminal conviction with the SEC case, the 6 civil penancy case, it involved a Detroit bond. This 7 provision cannot be ignored, and the mere fact that it's 8 mandatory because it indicates "shall" is very significant.
9 In fact, it is common knowledge at this point that the 10 emergency manager had knowledge of this information and did 11 not act on it. In his deposition on August 30th, 2013, he 12 was specifically asked on these issues,

13 "Are you aware of issues that have come out with 14 regard to the LIBOR specifically with UBS and Bank
15 of America in the setting of using the LIBOR as a 16 standard?

17 Answer: I am aware.

18 Question: Are you aware that UBS has been sued
19 by the Securities and Exchange Commission for 20 rigging in regard to municipal bonds?

21 In past years?

22 There was a final judgment -- yes, in past
23 years.

24 Answer: Yes. I've heard that. I have not read
25 the final judgment.

1 Question: Are you aware that Bank of America
2 has been investigated for potential bond rigging
3 with regard to the municipal bond market?

4 Answer: I am aware that Bank of America has 5 been investigated. The exact specifics of the 6 investigation I am not aware of."

7 This clearly shows that there is not just a
8 noncompliance with 1556, there's a knowing noncompliance with 9 1556. There should have been a criminal investigation, which 10 is mandated by the statute, and, in essence, is necessary to 11 even get to the point of making a recommendation for a
12 bankruptcy. How can you say that we need bankruptcy when you 13 don't know whether there is going to be fraud determined and 14 there may be funds that may be necessary to be paid back to 15 the city that can offset any debt, which also goes to the 16 issue of how are you saying that you're eligible for 17 bankruptcy when you really don't know what the debt is based 18 on the potentiality of fraud in these municipal bond
19 transactions, who are also standing --

20 THE COURT: Are you saying that the emergency
21 manager, whose term in office is limited by law, was required
22 to await what could be years of litigation to determine these 23 issues and UBS's liability before filing bankruptcy?

24 MS. FLUKER: I don't think he had to determine years
25 of litigation, but I think that it would be very evident that

1 you would look at least at the debt that you're alleging that 2 the city owes, and if there is common knowledge of such
3 information, which this is -- this is not something that you
4 have to wait years in litigation. This has been all over the 5 news, the Internet, and everything else. And as he admitted
6 in his deposition, he was aware of it, and that being the 7 case, that actually heightens the duty, in addition to the 8 mandatory language of Section 1556, which says "shall."

9 THE COURT: Shall do what?

10 MS. FLUKER: The statute specifically says the 11 emergency manager shall, on his or her own or upon the advice
12 of a local inspector, make a determination -- there had to be 13 a determination made -- whether there was criminal conduct
14 that affected the financial situation of the city. Even if 15 he didn't know all this, say for some reason this 16 information -- I see my time is up. I'll just complete this 17 sentence. Say this information he had no knowledge of.
18 There was -- we just don't know about it. He still had a
19 duty to make a determination. Well, in my estimation, 20 there's been no criminal conduct that contributed to the 21 financial situation of the city. This provision was not 22 complied with at all, and you cannot try to exercise one part
23 of the statute by totally ignoring and having noncompliance
24 with another. Therefore, I would request that this Honorable 25 Court deny eligibility for the reasons set forth by all the

1 objectors.

2 THE COURT: Thank you.

3 MS. FLUKER: Thank you.

4 THE COURT: Mr. Gordon, may I have your attention,
5 please?

6 MR. GORDON: Yes, your Honor.

7 THE COURT: Are you up next?

8 MR. GORDON: I am.

9 THE COURT: Okay. Do you want to give part of your 10 argument now, or do you want to take a lunch break now and 11 then do your entire argument after lunch? I leave it to you.

12 MR. GORDON: If it's okay with the Court, I would 13 prefer the latter, to just start after lunch.

14 THE COURT: Okay. All right. We will take our 15 lunch break now, and we will reconvene in an hour and a half,
16 so that'll be 1:20, please. Twenty after one we'll 17 reconvene.

18 MR. GORDON: Thank you, your Honor.

19 THE CLERK: All rise. Court is in recess.

20 (Recess at 11:48 a.m., until 1:20 p.m.)

21 THE CLERK: Court is in session. Please be seated.

22 Recalling Case Number 13-53846, City of Detroit, Michigan.

23 THE COURT: Good afternoon, everyone. It looks like 24 everybody is here. Actually, Mr. Gordon, with your 25 permission, before I hear from you, I have a follow-up

1 question for one of your colleagues.

2 MR. GORDON: By all means, your Honor.

3 THE COURT: Ms. Brimer, would you resume the 4 lectern, please?

5 MS. BRIMER: Should I bring something with me, your
6 Honor?

7 THE COURT: Possibly.

8 MS. BRIMER: I didn't know I was going to the 9 principal's office.

10 THE COURT: No, no, no. It's nothing like that.
11 You argued that the enactment of PA 436 violated the people's 12 referendum rights because PA 436 was so similar to PA 4.

13 MS. BRIMER: Yes, your Honor.

14 THE COURT: That was your argument. Was there a 15 statutory basis for that argument, or was it just based on 16 the people's right of referendum?

17 MS. BRIMER: It's based on the constitutional right
18 of referendum, your Honor.

19 THE COURT: Okay. So there's not a statute we 20 should be looking for on that.

21 MS. BRIMER: Not that I'm aware of, your Honor.

22 THE COURT: All right. That was it.

23 MS. BRIMER: Thank you, your Honor.

24 THE COURT: That was it. Okay. Mr. Gordon.

25 MR. GORDON: Thank you, your Honor. Just to give

1 your Honor a little bit of a road map of the things that I
2 want to touch upon, if that's of help, I thought I would
3 touch upon some of the issues regarding the state law
4 consent, some of the issues that have been raised this
5 morning, then move on to a discussion of some other 6 considerations relevant to the difference between the 7 pensions clause and the contract clause, and then address the 8 issue of what would happen if the Court ruled in our favor
9 that the accrued pension benefits cannot be impaired and what 10 that means for the restructuring, and I think I can add some 11 important information there. And then finally, if there's 12 still time, I would touch upon the collateral estoppel
13 Webster issue, which is in our papers.

14 So, your Honor, we will start with the consent
15 issues under 109(c)(2), and to be clear, in our papers, while 16 we talk -- touch upon the possibility of PA 436 being 17 unconstitutional as applied, the thrust of our papers is that 18 PA 436 needs to be read and can be read in a way that's 19 consistent with the pensions clause and so forth so that 20 there's no need to get to issues of constitutionality.
21 109(c)(2) clearly is an issue that is an issue purely of 22 state law. It is a threshold issue. It is an eligibility
23 issue, and we want to emphasize that it stands on its own,
24 and it can't be conflated with plan confirmation issues.

25 THE COURT: And with apologies, I have to stop you

1 there with this question. There seems to be a general thread
2 of assumption that whether a state has given authorization
3 under 109(c)(2) is a question of state law, as you just said.
4 I have to say that's not altogether clear to me. It seems to 5 me there might very well be an argument that the standard as 6 to whether the state has given proper authorization is a
7 federal standard, not a state standard. Why? Because in 8 addressing cases in the amendment right next door to Article
9 X -- that is, Article XI -- sorry -- Amendment XI, the 11th
10 Amendment, when we talk about sovereign immunity, the issue
11 of whether a state has given its consent or its waiver of 12 sovereign immunity is a question to be determined by federal 13 law, not state law.

14 MR. GORDON: Your Honor, in that regard, I think 15 that the Tenth Amendment is different, and it looks first to 16 respect the contours of what is reserved to the states in the 17 first instance, so here I think you have to start with 18 whether there is valid -- I think, at a minimum, the question
19 is is there valid state authorization for submitting a 20 political subdivision of the state to the jurisdiction of the 21 federal government and the federal courts. I would at least 22 put it that way. And so that does turn on state law, and we 23 would submit that all portions of state law need to be looked 24 to and harmonized in that regard, and that's sort of the 25 holding of Harrisburg, which we submit is instructive here

1 and which has not been really in any way refuted by the city.
2 And even the United States Attorney has stated that Congress
3 reserved to the state the right to regulate, and I quote,
4 "under what terms," end quote, its political subdivisions may
5 avail themselves of Chapter 9, so it really is a matter, I
6 believe, of state sovereignty, and it's up to the state to 7 determine how and when a political subdivision can avail
8 itself, and how it does that is in part expressed by the will 9 of the people, as embodied in the pension clause, and it
10 needs to be respected.

11 The response of the city and the state is on two 12 levels. One, first of all, it is asserted that the actions
13 of the governor in authorizing do not conflict with the 14 pensions clause because the authorization itself didn't
15 create any impairment and that it's unclear whether the city
16 will ultimately seek to impair, and if such impairment
17 occurs, it won't be the city or the state that has done it.
18 It'll be the Bankruptcy Court. Respectfully, we say that 19 those arguments are all unavailing. First of all, one of the 20 things that I think has not been made clear this morning is 21 some of the things that have come out in discovery. I don't 22 actually think these things are relevant, but I'll get to why
23 I think they're not relevant in a minute, but I think it's 24 important for the Court to know that in discovery propounded
25 by the Retirement Systems or conducted by the Retirement

1 Systems, the city has admitted that it was an explicit intent
2 in the restructuring plan proposed in June and in the 3 bankruptcy recommendation letter submitted on July 16th by 4 Mr. Orr that accrued pension benefits needed to be impaired.
5 The city has also admitted in admissions that its intent in 6 the Chapter 9 case is to impair and diminish accrued pension
7 benefits, so there is absolutely nothing speculative about 8 that. The governor has also testified that he was aware that 9 accrued pension benefits may be impaired. He also testified
10 that he understood that he could put conditions on the 11 consent and authorization and that he chose not to. Mr. Orr
12 also testified that he could not guarantee that if a
13 consensual plan couldn't be achieved, that he would not 14 resort to cramdown provisions in order to cram down upon the 15 retirees. So there really is nothing speculative here, and 16 for anyone to say that it is speculative is really -- I mean
17 it just is not -- it's just not factual.

18 THE COURT: Well, but what would be the --

19 MR. GORDON: The other thing is that --

20 THE COURT: What would be the impact on that 21 argument if the state, under this Constitution, does have a
22 legal constitutional obligation to guarantee the pension
23 payments, an issue not yet determined? And I don't mean to 24 suggest the outcome of that by raising this possibility.

25 MR. GORDON: Your Honor, I mean if the -- the

1 problem is that today is the day for eligibility, and we
2 don't know that today. If the state came forward today and
3 said that they would backstop, you know, the full accrued
4 pension benefits, that might be a different situation, but it
5 not being here today, that isn't --

6 THE COURT: And you're not prepared to say here
7 today that you're not going to request that conclusion, are
8 you?

9 MR. GORDON: No. I will not say that, but that's --

10 THE COURT: That would not be in your client's best
11 interest.

12 MR. GORDON: Of course not. Of course not, but that 13 has not been determined today. The state is not coming
14 forward today. And eligibility goes to whether this Court
15 even has jurisdiction, and what the city is asking is for the 16 Court to essentially suspend the issue of whether it even has 17 jurisdiction in order to get everybody together, and really 18 you're putting the will of the people and the protections of 19 the Michigan Constitution in jeopardy or being held in the 20 hold while the city wants to move forward with its proposals
21 and bring people to the table, and I would submit that that's 22 inappropriate. This is an eligibility hearing, and the 23 governor's responsibility is an affirmative responsibility to 24 uphold the Constitution. To suggest that we don't know
25 what's going to happen down the road reduces his obligation

1 to sort of a wink and nod type of standard, and we submit
2 that that is just inappropriate. He is to uphold the 3 people's will.

4 THE COURT: Well, he's to uphold the law.

5 MR. GORDON: The other thing is, your Honor, that to 6 say that someone other than the state or the emergency
7 manager would be the one impairing the benefits is just not
8 correct. As the Court well knows, the city is the one that 9 would have to propose the plan. The Court would not propose
10 the plan. Essentially what is happening here would be that 11 the governor, through the authorization, is delegating
12 authority that he does not have. He does not have the 13 authority to abrogate the state Constitution. By authorizing 14 the emergency manager to pursue the bankruptcy -- again,
15 we're at the eligibility stage -- he cannot give authority to 16 the emergency manager that he does not have, so the question
17 becomes --

18 THE COURT: The argument is he doesn't have the 19 authority to impair the pensions.

20 MR. GORDON: That's correct. If he wanted to do
21 that, he'd have to go get a constitutional amendment.

22 THE COURT: And -- okay.

23 MR. GORDON: So he does not have the authority to 24 delegate or to bestow upon anybody else the ability to 25 impair, so the question really is why wouldn't we put a

1 condition today saying that you can move forward in the 2 Chapter 9, but you can't impair the accrued pension benefits?
3 That to us complies with the requirements of the state
4 structure, and there has absolutely been no explanation of 5 why that wouldn't be done today. We think that's the real 6 question is why wouldn't you -- why wouldn't the governor put 7 that condition in or why can't the Court imply that as a
8 matter of law?

9 If I may, your Honor, I'd like to move on to the 10 pensions versus contracts issue.

11 THE COURT: Well, hold on one second. The Sixth
12 Circuit has actually addressed -- I know you're concerned
13 about time --

14 MR. GORDON: Okay.

15 THE COURT: -- the issue of how to determine
16 eligibility in bankruptcy, now not in Chapter 9, but it did
17 so in Chapter 13 because there is a factual eligibility issue
18 there, has to do with debt limits, and there are times when 19 creditors say that the debtor's debts are above the debt
20 limits, and, therefore, the debtor is not eligible, so the 21 Sixth Circuit -- the case is Pearson if you're familiar with 22 it. It says -- it recognizes that at the eligibility stage
23 of a bankruptcy, you don't want to go through the process of 24 fixing claims, but there is this law that sets debt limits,
25 so we have to give it some respect. So the solution it came

1 up with in that context was we're just going to look at 2 whether the debtor in good faith asserts that its debts are 3 below the debt limit. And for those of you who want it, it's 4 773 F.2d 751, 773 F.2d 751, a 1985 case from the Sixth
5 Circuit. Pearson is P-e-a-r-s-o-n. Why not apply a similar 6 standard to eligibility here?

7 MR. GORDON: Because there's no good faith issue
8 here. The question is very simple and can be solved today.
9 Are you going to impair pension -- accrued pension
10 obligations? You can't. The law says so. So put the 11 condition on it today, and we move forward.

12 THE COURT: So your assertion is that it wouldn't 13 even be a good faith argument by the city.

14 MR. GORDON: Doesn't matter what their intention
15 actually is. The condition should be applied today because 16 that is how -- that is the only way a --

17 THE COURT: It wouldn't be a good faith --

18 MR. GORDON: -- political subdivision can avail
19 itself --

20 THE COURT: It wouldn't be a good faith argument for 21 the city to assert that although the Michigan Constitution
22 prohibits it from impairing pensions, it does not prohibit 23 the Bankruptcy Court from impairing pensions. That would not 24 be a good faith argument?

25 MR. GORDON: No, your Honor. I think that that's

1 something that can and should be dealt with today. Let me
2 give an example. What if the only debts of the city today --
3 as we stand here today were pension obligations? Would you
4 say then we should wait and see what happens? We know what
5 would happen. Is it any different because there's other
6 creditors in the room?

7 THE COURT: Well, do we know --

8 MR. GORDON: I haven't --

9 THE COURT: Do we know -- do we know what would
10 happen? Do we know, for example, that there would be no
11 agreed upon negotiation? Do we know, for example, that the 12 state won't fill in the gap?

13 MR. GORDON: Well, let's -- I can talk about that.

14 THE COURT: Now would be the time.

15 MR. GORDON: If you want to talk about that, I'll 16 skip to that. I'll skip to that since that seems to be 17 something that is troubling your Honor or at least on your 18 mind. We have emphasized --

19 THE COURT: A question.

20 MR. GORDON: We have emphasized that the Retirement
21 Systems aren't saying the city can't proceed with a Chapter 9
22 case. It simply must condition the case upon the 23 preservation of the pensions clause. And certainly in some 24 people's minds this begs the question of whether in the event
25 the Court agreed and ruled that accrued pension benefits may

1 not be impaired, could the city still effectively reorganize
2 and restore itself to financial health through a bankruptcy,
3 and while we've indicated that there is still information
4 that we need -- and it's material information -- we continue
5 to do so -- I believe I can stand here today and say that 6 based upon the information that we do have, it is clear that 7 the city can effectively reorganize even if accrued pension
8 benefits cannot be impaired.

9 Just some thoughts and facts for your Honor. The 10 city talks about $18 billion in debt, but $6 billion of that 11 $18 billion is special revenues that are supported by the 12 Detroit Water and Sewer System, so now you really have $12
13 billion of debt that needs to be supported by the general
14 fund and other cash flows from the enterprise funds and so
15 forth. Of that $12 billion of debt, roughly half, six
16 billion, is OPEB healthcare actuarially calculated. Another
17 two billion is unsecured bond debt. So fully two-thirds of 18 the $12 billion of debt is very much subject to restructuring
19 and compromise in bankruptcy. Those are unsecured claims.
20 That's two-thirds of the $12 billion of debt right there. So 21 there's a tremendous opportunity to unburden the city of the 22 debt obligations -- of these debt obligations and the demands
23 on its cash flow.

24 In addition, although not critical to this position,
25 above the line in the emergency manager's restructuring plan

1 proposed in June is the swap periodic payment, which is
2 soaking up $50 million a year in casino tax revenues. And as
3 the Court knows -- and, again, I'm not going to argue it
4 here, but, as the Court knows, the Retirement Systems have 5 objected to the treatment of the swaps as secured in those 6 revenues both because the lien is not valid and, even if 7 valid, it does not reach the post-petition revenues. Also --
8 and if it was determined to be an unsecured claim, then you
9 have a $300 million claim now that is given unsecured status
10 and can also be a compromise in the bankruptcy.

11 Also, it should be kept in mind that we're talking
12 about accrued benefits that need to not be impaired. There
13 are obviously prospective benefits that could be impaired, so
14 there are a number of different ways that the city can 15 achieve real relief from its debts. Obviously it spreads the 16 pain in different directions, but we've -- but by looking at 17 it, your Honor, there is absolutely an opportunity to do
18 something. And when they --

19 THE COURT: Isn't there also a question of fact as 20 to what the underfunded liability is for pensions?

21 MR. GORDON: And let me get to that. It's also 22 critical for the Court to understand that if the Court ruled 23 in our favor and said that there cannot be an impairment of 24 the accrued benefits, that does not mean the Retirement
25 Systems walk away from the table. The Retirement Systems has

1 said that they are committed to working with the city to be
2 part of the solution here. That means a number of things.
3 The city has indicated that it needs to devote significant
4 cash flows in the next five years, according to the proposal
5 in June, $1.25 billion in the next five years for 6 reinvestment in the city. The Retirement Systems don't 7 object to the concept and understand that the city needs to 8 reinvest, but after that five years, that reinvestment is 9 done. The cash flows of the city become much larger again,
10 and they will improve at five years and the next five years
11 and the next five years. And the Retirement Systems can be 12 flexible because the Retirement Systems issues, the pension
13 issues, are long-term issues. They're not short-term issues.
14 So if there are cash flow issues, the Retirement Systems can 15 work with that. The $3-1/2 billion number that's been thrown 16 out there is not an amount that is due today if the pension
17 systems are not frozen and closed. That is an actuarial 18 calculation of what will be due over the next 30 years to 19 bring the funding level up to what it needs to be. That's 20 not the amount that is due on a cash flow basis tomorrow or 21 the next day, so there is flexibility there.

22 Also, it should be understood that over time if the 23 economy improves or interest rates rise, and/or, the 24 underfunding level may go up or down, so there's a lot of 25 things in play there, and when you take that all together,

1 we --

2 THE COURT: And I certainly appreciate and commend
3 your clients' willingness to work with the city, but 4 prudentially from the standpoint of ripeness apart from 5 constitutional issues, doesn't that suggest putting off until 6 plan confirmation the issue of the constitutional right?

7 MR. GORDON: Your Honor, again, I would submit that 8 that is conflating eligibility, which is one question, with 9 what can be done under a plan. If this Court does not have 10 jurisdiction because the authorization was not appropriate,
11 if you're putting -- what you're suggesting -- or the city is 12 suggesting is you're putting the uncertainty -- you're 13 putting at risk a state protected benefit in order to 14 leverage people to get in a room and negotiate. And I
15 suggest, as a matter of jurisprudence, that is inappropriate.

16 I wanted to also mention, your Honor, other benefits
17 of a ruling in favor of the concept that the pension benefits
18 cannot be impaired. It, in fact, would help the city in its 19 restructuring in other ways. Absent a ruling on this issue
20 in favor of the nonimpairment of pension benefits, the 21 parties will struggle to negotiate in the shadows of this 22 unresolved issue. What will happen is that the parties will 23 have to negotiate on a dual path against the backdrop of 24 still having these arguments under the pensions clause, under 25 Section 943, and so forth that are all or nothing arguments

1 that would -- if ruled on in a certain way, would come to the 2 conclusion that you can't impair us at all. So it makes the 3 negotiations very difficult, and it also obviously -- as long
4 as that matter is not resolved or if it's not resolved in 5 favor of the pension systems, it becomes -- it makes the case
6 much more litigious and encumbers the entire process. If the 7 Court rules in our favor -- and, again, these are just, you
8 know, some additional thoughts for the Court because I
9 understand the struggle. If the Court rules in our favor,
10 there will be less moving parts for the city to deal with and 11 for the parties to deal with, and it makes the negotiation
12 process much more streamlined. And if at some point in time
13 that decision were reversed and there was a decision that 14 said that the pension clause can be abrogated or impaired in 15 some fashion, having to revise the negotiations at that point
16 and spread the pain around a different way is a lot easier
17 than starting from the other end. If you start from the end 18 that we're at now, it's very hard, again, for the parties to 19 negotiate. And if the -- and if it's determined ultimately 20 that you can't abrogate the pension clause, then you're 21 really going back to square one, and we've lost a ton of time
22 in the negotiation process. We submit that it's much easier
23 to negotiate against a backdrop that says that the pension
24 clause must be upheld.

25 Moreover, a ruling in our favor in that regard helps

1 the city in other ways. It calms the workforce knowing the 2 accrued and prospective accrued pension benefits will be
3 protected. This will enable the city to retain its most 4 talented personnel. In addition, the ultimate commitment of 5 funds to the Retirement Systems as opposed to financial 6 creditors benefits the city because the systems will also
7 invest in the city, as they always have done. And a majority
8 of the pensioners live within the city and pay taxes and 9 consume goods and services in the city, so the Retirement
10 Systems are an economic engine that really is part of the 11 solution for the city, so I want to address all those.

12 THE COURT: Well, but so were the bondholders and 13 the bond investors.

14 MR. GORDON: They don't live in the city, and they 15 aren't putting money back into the city, your Honor. They 16 are not part of that economic engine, and if they get paid
17 their debt service, there's no --

18 THE COURT: Hang on.

19 MR. GORDON: -- guarantee that they're going to 20 reinvest in the city.

21 THE COURT: Didn't I read in the newspaper that the 22 city just got $350 million?

23 MR. GORDON: I'm sorry.

24 THE COURT: Didn't I just read in the newspaper that 25 the city just got $350 million to help with its reinvestment?

1 MR. GORDON: No, your Honor. What we read was that
2 there's a proposal to secure unidentified assets at this 3 point but probably to encumber all sorts of assets of the 4 city in order to get $350 million of which 200 million would
5 immediately go out to pay swap participants who don't deserve
6 to get paid anything as a secured creditor, and then the 7 other 150 million is going to be used in some ways that's 8 been unidentified, so basically you're encumbering assets of 9 the city for purposes that don't benefit the city in any 10 demonstrable way at this time, so I would disagree with that 11 characterization.

12 THE COURT: Okay.

13 MR. GORDON: So, your Honor, for all those reasons,
14 I think that if the Court were to rule, again, as a pragmatic
15 matter, in favor of finding that this case should not move
16 forward without the condition that there cannot be an 17 impairment and that the pension clause must be upheld, it 18 does not mean this case comes to an end by a long -- quite 19 the opposite. In our opinion, it makes this case much more
20 manageable. It makes the negotiations easier. And it, in 21 our minds, provides a much clearer path to a consensual
22 resolution.

23 THE COURT: So you think I can find them eligible
24 and find that pensions can't be impaired? How do I do that 25 because the issue is yes or no, the city is eligible.

1 MR. GORDON: That's correct, your Honor. You would
2 have to -- it would be up to the city to either -- and the 3 state to either agree to -- well, there's a couple different
4 ways.

5 THE COURT: This is the refiling scenario?

6 MR. GORDON: You could either -- you could either
7 rule that the obligation to uphold the pension clause is 8 implied by law because otherwise you don't have valid
9 authorization, there isn't valid state authorization, or you
10 can provide the option to the state and the city to 11 explicitly confirm that process.

12 THE COURT: Oh, I see. So you're saying I can read
13 into the authorization the nonimpairment of pensions even 14 though the governor explicitly rejected that.

15 MR. GORDON: The governor actually didn't. The 16 governor testified that he didn't know whether he had to 17 uphold that, and he decided to choose not to put the 18 condition on it and leave it to the courts, which we suggest 19 is not necessarily appropriate but is --

20 THE COURT: So he rejected the concept of 21 conditioning his authorization on nonimpairment of pensions.

22 MR. GORDON: He did, but he also said he was 23 basically deferring to the courts as to how that should play
24 out, which is ironic because the Webster court has already 25 ruled on that issue.

1 Your Honor, I'll turn to the pensions clause, which 2 is the contracts clause, if I may.

3 THE COURT: Sure.

4 MR. GORDON: The concept that the pensions clause is 5 the same thing as the contracts clause just applying to 6 pensions does violence to the language of the pensions
7 clause, as has already been discussed.

8 THE COURT: Right.

9 MR. GORDON: I won't get into that. Obviously we've 10 pointed out that the pensions clause is more specific and 11 that it was enacted long after the contracts clause and that 12 those things together, as a matter of the canons of 13 construction, would indicate that the pension clause must 14 mean something more and something different from the 15 contracts clause.

16 THE COURT: Right. So what more and what different?

17 MR. GORDON: Well, it starts with looking at why and 18 the environment in which these things were done and looking 19 at the actual language of the two clauses. The contracts
20 clause was adopted back when the government was being formed,
21 and it helps sort of support the structure of the government
22 as it's being developed in terms of federalism and making
23 sure that states don't impair their -- pass laws that impair
24 their own contracts or pass laws that favor their citizens
25 over other citizens. That was the general nature of it. And

1 it's directed, you'll note, to the legislature of the state.
2 The state shall not pass laws that will impair contracts. So
3 that's the contracts clause. Now you fast forward --

4 THE COURT: That's the federal contracts clause.

5 MR. GORDON: And the state, as well as the state
6 contracts clause. So then you fast forward -- I don't know
7 how long -- 150 years to 1963, and you're talking about the 8 constitutional convention and the pensions clause, and what's 9 going on at that point in time? Well, pensions are not being 10 funded. They're underfunded across the state I'm told to the 11 tune of maybe $600 million, and guess what? Front and center
12 is the City of Detroit that was not paying pensions for its 13 teachers' pensions funds. So the convention decided it
14 needed to do two things.

15 THE COURT: Well, at that point they were also not 16 being treated as contracts; right? They were being treated
17 as gifts I think was the phraseology.

18 MR. GORDON: As gratuities. That's correct, your 19 Honor. So the convention decided it needed to do two things.
20 The convention decided, first of all, to avoid municipalities
21 digging a deeper hole, they were going to put a provision in 22 the Constitution that said that local governmental units will 23 fund their current year's employer contributions in that year
24 to help avoid digging a deeper hole. Secondly, to protect 25 the accrued and unfunded liabilities and to move away from

1 the concept that they are a gratuity, the convention said
2 we're going to call it a contract but not a contract in the 3 sense of a contract but subject to the bankruptcy. I mean
4 there was no -- there was no talk about bankruptcy, nor was 5 there any talk about the contracts clause in this regard.
6 They talked about this is going to be a contract that's in 7 the concept of a solemn binding obligation that will be paid
8 over time, so it is a contract. There's a contractual right, 9 and it shall not be diminished or impaired, meaning it will 10 be paid over time by the state and its political 11 subdivisions. It is absolute. There is no -- there is no --
12 as the attorney general's papers say themselves, there is -- 13 it's impermeable unlike the contracts clause, which has 14 developed over time to say otherwise. Now, the difference is 15 in part --

16 THE COURT: But how can the -- how can the state
17 contract -- how can the state promise that given that under 18 the federal Constitution it can't print money?

19 MR. GORDON: It's a matter of insuring that what 20 dollars are available are devoted where they need to be 21 devoted.

22 THE COURT: Suppose there's not enough then.

23 MR. GORDON: I don't know the answer to that
24 question, your Honor, but that's not the issue we have here
25 today. As I've told you, I think that there is enough money

1 here.

2 THE COURT: It's an important issue.

3 MR. GORDON: There is -- I'm sorry.

4 THE COURT: It is an important issue.

5 MR. GORDON: It's an important issue, but --

6 THE COURT: It demonstrates that there's a
7 constitutional right there. It is stated there, but what's 8 it worth? What's it worth? I mean Ms. Levine posed that 9 question. What's it worth if the entity that has the 10 obligation doesn't have the means?

11 MR. GORDON: First of all, I mean every situation is 12 different.

13 THE COURT: Yeah.

14 MR. GORDON: Does it have the means today or will it
15 have the means tomorrow, over time? Musselman, a state
16 Supreme Court case, says, though, that the pension clause
17 cannot be abrogated in the face of financial exigency.
18 That's what it says. If there's a need to amend the state
19 Constitution, then it needs to be amended, but it can't be 20 abrogated by one branch of the government. The will of the 21 people has spoken. The Constitution is a limit, and it
22 circumscribes the power of the government. The government
23 can't say, "Gee, we've got an exigency here. I guess we're 24 going to ignore the state Constitution." It cannot do that.
25 The contracts clause is different, and this is the point --

1 part of the point is there are contracts and then there are
2 contracts.

3 THE COURT: Is there any other constitutional right,
4 state or federal, that is that absolute, any other?

5 MR. GORDON: Sure.

6 THE COURT: And even freedom of the press has its 7 exceptions.

8 MR. GORDON: Well, you know, if you look at even the 9 attorney general's papers, you couldn't -- the legislature
10 can't pass laws that would abrogate freedom of religion,
11 freedom of speech, things of that nature, and it puts the 12 pension clause on the same level. It is absolute in that 13 regard. There are contracts, and there are --

14 THE COURT: We have laws that limit speech. Can't 15 threaten the President; can't yell "fire" in a crowded
16 theater. You can't commit libel.

17 MR. GORDON: So that maybe there's some regulation
18 on the federal level, but this is a state issue. It is an 19 issue that has been -- it is the will of the people of the 20 state.

21 THE COURT: Even the contracts clause has its 22 limits; right?

23 MR. GORDON: Contracts clause does. The reason is 24 different, though. There are contracts, and then there are 25 contracts. And if you look at, for example, you know, some

1 contracts fall under the contracts clause, but the pensions
2 were determined to be different, and that's why you have a
3 pensions clause. That's the whole point of it. The 4 contracts clause recognizes that when you contract with the 5 government, there is an inherent reserve police power to act
6 in the public's welfare, and, therefore, to the extent
7 necessary, in certain situations they can impair contracts.
8 That's the contracts clause. Then you have the pensions
9 clause. It doesn't say that it is subject to the contracts
10 clause. It elevates pensions to a different level, and the 11 reason is fairly clear. If you look at the Musselman case,
12 in particular, again, Musselman says that Michigan
13 governmental -- and I quote. This is from 448 Mich. 503
14 where it talks about the pension clause being absolute and 15 that it -- and it recognizes that the pension clause protects
16 pensions for work performed, so I quote, "Michigan
17 governmental units do not have the option, however, of not 18 paying retirement benefits. Unlike highway construction or 19 police protection, which a governmental unit can choose to 20 receive less of, it is impossible to receive less service
21 from the pensioner. The pension payment is payment for work
22 already completed, or deferred compensation," end quote.
23 What's being referenced there is the complete difference --
24 the relationship between the public employer and labor is 25 different than the relationship between the public employer

1 and a bondholder. A bondholder makes an investment. There's
2 risk involved. That is understood, and that risk is factored
3 into the pricing of the bond. A laborer has -- the 4 relationship with the employer is different. The laborer
5 works. The employer pays. And to the extent that part of it
6 is deferred compensation in the form of a pension, so be it,
7 but it's for -- but what the pension clause protects is 8 accrued benefits.

9 THE COURT: Isn't there an argument that labor takes 10 risks with its employer, too?

11 MR. GORDON: Not in the State of Michigan, your 12 Honor, and I want to emphasize that. Michigan is only one of 13 seven or eight states in the country that has this clause.
14 This is unique to Michigan and the seven or eight other
15 states involved.

16 THE COURT: Excuse me one second. I want you to 17 ignore --

18 MR. GORDON: Oh.

19 THE COURT: No. I want you to ignore that yellow.
20 My staff advises me that Ms. Levine didn't use seven of her
21 minutes, so I'm going to yield them to you.

22 MR. GORDON: Thanks, Sharon.

23 THE COURT: So reset the clock at ten. I assume 24 that's okay with you.

25 MR. GORDON: Yes, absolutely, your Honor. I can't

1 even remember where we were now. Where were we?

2 THE COURT: Oh, I'm sorry. I interrupted your train
3 of thought. Well, take another minute to recollect --

4 MR. GORDON: Oh, yes. I think I finished that
5 point, I suppose. It really is that, you know, some contract
6 rights are just contract rights, and other contract rights do
7 rise to the level of property rights, and that's in the 8 United States Trust Company of New York versus New Jersey,
9 the Supreme Court case, 431 U.S. 1. In Michigan AFT Michigan
10 versus Michigan, 297 Mich. App. 597, the Court held that 11 withheld salary of public school employees constituted the 12 taking of property in violation of substantive due process
13 and the takings clause, so there are relationships, 14 contractual relationships relative to accrued benefits for 15 labor, pension obligations, that are treated as property.

16 THE COURT: Is there a State of Michigan case that 17 holds that pension rights are property rights?

18 MR. GORDON: Well, this relates to salary of public
19 school employees. I don't know --

20 THE COURT: Right. So I was asking you about
21 pensions.

22 MR. GORDON: About pension obligations specifically?
23 I would have to check on that, your Honor, but I believe that 24 there are pension cases in the state that talk about pension
25 rights as property, including in such a situation, as you can

1 imagine, as divorce settlements. There are pension
2 obligations that become property that get part of a property
3 settlement even, but that's just one example, but I can get
4 you --

5 THE COURT: Well, we have to be careful here because 6 a contract right is in the bundle of property rights. Every 7 contract is property of the parties to the contract; right?

8 MR. GORDON: Yes, your Honor. I'm not sure that all
9 contract rights rise to the level if they're abrogated of a
10 taking, but here vis-a-vis the pension --

11 THE COURT: Right. That's exactly the point.

12 MR. GORDON: That's right, but the pension clause --

13 THE COURT: So when the federal, you know,
14 Bankruptcy Court discharges creditors' contract rights
15 against debtors, which we do all day every day, we're not 16 taking the creditors' property rights even though we are 17 discharging those contracts or if we are it's not a Fifth
18 Amendment violation; right?

19 MR. GORDON: True. By the same token, there are 20 other property rights that are determined under state law
21 that -- cases such as Butner and Travelers respect the state
22 law property interest, and it flows through the bankruptcy.

23 THE COURT: Right, but the point is that it has to 24 be a property right under state law over and above what would 25 be the contract right, like, for example, a security

1 interest.

2 MR. GORDON: Or a state constitutionally protected
3 right that is impermeable we would submit, your Honor.

4 THE COURT: Okay.

5 MR. GORDON: It's like a nondischargeable debt, your
6 Honor, and it doesn't mean that it can't be dealt with in a
7 way that doesn't impair it but gets dealt with in a way that 8 is -- you know, provides some flexibility for the 9 reorganizing entity, but it's a nondischargeable debt.

10 THE COURT: Well, nothing in Chapter 9 provides for 11 any nondischargeable debts, is there?

12 MR. GORDON: I'm stating it by analogy, your Honor, 13 obviously.

14 THE COURT: Okay. All right.

15 MR. GORDON: By putting the condition on that you
16 can't impair, it becomes a nondischargeable debt essentially,
17 and the state has that authority to place the appropriate
18 conditions on the filing of the bankruptcy to protect the 19 statutory structure. And it's not just statute. I mean this 20 is -- the difference here again, this is really unique. It's 21 not like California or Alabama.

22 THE COURT: Hypothetically, a state legislature
23 passes a law authorizing municipalities to file Chapter 9 so
24 long as the plan provide -- the municipality's plan provides 25 for a priority of payment, and it turns out that that

1 priority of payment legislatively required by the state
2 legislature is different from the Bankruptcy Code. Let's
3 assume that. Would it be your position that no municipality
4 could file Chapter 9 in that case because the state law
5 contravenes the superior -- or the supreme federal law?

6 MR. GORDON: Well, that's an interesting question
7 because it sounds more like one of those situations where 8 once you're in bankruptcy, you have to accept the structure
9 of the Bankruptcy Code itself, and that highlights --

10 THE COURT: That's exactly what the city is arguing
11 here.

12 MR. GORDON: And that highlights the point here that 13 eligibility has to be dealt with at the eligibility stage and 14 that -- and to put off the question of whether you can impair
15 the pension clause leads to those vagaries of questions
16 about, "Well, now we're in bankruptcy. Does the Bankruptcy 17 Code have vitality and in what regard?" No. You don't get 18 to those questions unless you have valid state authorization.
19 You don't have valid state authorization unless you've taken
20 into account what provisions need to be there to protect the 21 state Constitution and other statutes, and that's sort of 22 what Harrisburg talks about. You may have facial authority
23 under one statute, but you got to look at the other statutes.
24 And in here in this case it's --

25 THE COURT: So in my hypothetical you would say

1 there's no valid authorization.

2 MR. GORDON: I would say that the state may be very 3 disappointed if it authorizes and allows the debtor into 4 bankruptcy only to find that the -- that part of the 5 protection goes away.

6 THE COURT: It's hard for me to be concerned about
7 how the state feels. Is it your position that there would be 8 no authorization, no proper authorization in that case?

9 MR. GORDON: Let me understand the hypothetical
10 then. I know time is short. The hypothetical is that the 11 state would pass a statute that says that you can file
12 Chapter 9, but the priority of payments is going to be --

13 THE COURT: But here are the priorities. Here are 14 the priorities. You got to pay bonds first, and, you know,
15 you got to pay --

16 MR. GORDON: Perish the thought.

17 THE COURT: Sorry?

18 MR. GORDON: Perish the thought, but go ahead.

19 THE COURT: Okay. Perish the thought all you like,
20 but this is the hypo.

21 MR. GORDON: Yes.

22 THE COURT: You got to -- you pay the bonds first,
23 and you got to pay trades, and then you got to pay employees'
24 wages, and then you pay pensioners last, and understand,
25 everyone who's listening to this, this is strictly

1 hypothetical. It's inconsistent with the Bankruptcy Code.
2 I'm sorry.

3 MR. GORDON: I forgot about the overflow. Sorry.

4 THE COURT: Well, and this is being recorded.
5 Anyway, it's inconsistent with the Bankruptcy Code. However,
6 whatever hypothetical you create, and the governor says, you
7 know, "We've got to comply with state law. I'm authorizing
8 this bankruptcy, but the municipality's plan has to comply
9 with the state law that sets forth these priorities." Is 10 that a proper authorization or not?

11 MR. GORDON: I would say not.

12 THE COURT: Okay.

13 MR. GORDON: Well, it's --

14 THE COURT: Now you're saying that when state law
15 says the priority has to be given to pensions --

16 MR. GORDON: Well, let me back up.

17 THE COURT: -- that's not proper if it's
18 inconsistent with the Bankruptcy Code.

19 MR. GORDON: Actually, I would say -- no. I would 20 say that the authorization is proper, but, again, a portion
21 of that authorization is actually going to come into conflict
22 with the Bankruptcy Code itself, so I think it's just a
23 flawed concept. So if you had that provision in there, I --
24 you know what? The difference is -- let me think about this.
25 I think the difference is the cases such as Vallejo and

1 others dealt with situations where someone tried to cherry
2 pick various provisions of the Bankruptcy Code after they got
3 into bankruptcy. It didn't involve the actual state
4 authorization. So here I think if you were presented with 5 that, you would have two choices. You would either have to 6 acknowledge that state authorization as is and agree to that
7 structure and say that will supersede the Bankruptcy Code
8 because that's the only way the state is allowing you to get 9 into bankruptcy, or you would have to dismiss the case.

10 THE COURT: Which should I do?

11 MR. GORDON: In that situation, I think you would 12 give the state the opportunity to decide, but in the first 13 instance, if the state doesn't do anything, you would have to 14 dismiss that case because you don't have the authority to 15 amend the Bankruptcy Code.

16 THE COURT: I would have to give them the 17 opportunity to revise the authorization?

18 MR. GORDON: That's correct, your Honor. They'd 19 either have to amend the --

20 THE COURT: How could --

21 MR. GORDON: -- authorization or understand that if 22 they go into --

23 THE COURT: How could the governor provide an 24 authorization that's inconsistent with the state statute?

25 MR. GORDON: He couldn't. He would either have to

1 go back and --

2 THE COURT: What's there to revise?

3 MR. GORDON: -- change the statute -- he'd either --
4 he has two choices.

5 THE COURT: Oh, go back and change the statute.

6 MR. GORDON: There are two choices. Either the 7 Court agrees to allow the case to go forward with that 8 structure because that's the only way the state will 9 authorize it and that's what 109(c)(2) talks about, or if 10 this Court for some reason believes that that is in conflict
11 with the Bankruptcy Code, then this -- I guess I don't know.
12 The state could either -- the state would have to go back and 13 amend its statute in some fashion. I don't really know, but 14 I think that if the state --

15 THE COURT: Or if it's constitutional, amend its
16 Constitution?

17 MR. GORDON: Wait. What couldn't be done is that 18 this Court could not accept the authorization and then say,
19 "I'm cherry picking. I'm not allowing that part of the state 20 statute to stand because that is the only way that they got 21 into bankruptcy in the first place." That's my answer, your 22 Honor. All right. Can I move on?

23 THE COURT: You can.

24 MR. GORDON: We're really out of time here probably,
25 I notice, in a minute, but I just wanted to touch upon

1 collateral estoppel because I promised I would unless your
2 Honor has a different --

3 THE COURT: No, no. You argue what you like.

4 MR. GORDON: As far as collateral estoppel is 5 concerned, your Honor, the city and the state have argued 6 that there was not a full fair opportunity to litigate in the 7 Webster matter. We've addressed that in our papers. We 8 believe that that is not accurate. There was full briefing.
9 Both sides filed cross-motions for summary disposition, so
10 they addressed the merits of the matter. The Court
11 acknowledged that there had been briefing and oral argument
12 before it entered its order. The city and the state also 13 argued that there was no privity between the city and the 14 defendants in Webster, but on September 19th, your Honor, the 15 city argued in this court that there was a common interest
16 agreement between the city and the state and that there was 17 common interest with respect to the financial situation of 18 the city and the bankruptcy, so privity is certainly there.
19 And then finally the city and the state argued that the state
20 court doesn't have authority or jurisdiction to rule on 21 eligibility issues. The Webster court didn't rule on 22 eligibility issues. It doesn't mention 109(c)(2) of the 23 Bankruptcy Code. It merely ruled on the interplay between 24 two state statutes, PA 436 and the pensions clause, and ruled
25 that those two had to be harmonized and that, therefore, any

1 authorization of a bankruptcy under PA 436 must comport with
2 the pensions clause or otherwise it was unconstitutional, so
3 it did not infringe on this Court's jurisdiction in that 4 regard. So we think that collateral estoppel is valid and 5 applies here under the Webster judgment.

6 THE COURT: Thank you.

7 MR. GORDON: Thank you, your Honor.

8 MS. CECCOTTI: Good afternoon, your Honor. Babette
9 Ceccotti for the UAW.

10 THE COURT: Good afternoon.

11 MS. CECCOTTI: And with admittedly some trepidation,
12 I am also going to cover the authorization under state law,
13 and I think -- I guess I'd like to start with just a couple
14 of threshold comments. First, I think the exchange that 15 you've had with Mr. Gordon and perhaps with others -- and I'm 16 sure it's not going to be limited there -- will probably lead
17 you to conclude that at least some of the issues that you've 18 slated as purely legal will -- are better served awaiting the 19 outcome of the trial. I'm just -- you know, Mr. Gordon took 20 you through a series of numbers. There are all kinds of 21 facts and information that are probably best developed
22 through the evidentiary record, and that may well inform your 23 Honor's views of a number of the questions that you've asked
24 here today so far, so I'll just start with that observation.
25 I'd like to just, if I might, also --

1 THE COURT: Well, just so the record is clear -- and
2 I may have indicated this before even perhaps in writing --
3 it's certainly not the Court's intention to rule on these 4 issues before the trial, and to the extent any of the facts
5 that come out at trial bear on these, sure, they'll be taken
6 into account.

7 MS. CECCOTTI: Thank you, your Honor.

8 THE COURT: But I did hold out to all of you that 9 one of the purposes of today's hearing was to see whether 10 there are any genuine issues of material fact in advance of 11 the trial so that you can address those at the trial, and I
12 intend to do that.

13 MS. CECCOTTI: Thank you, your Honor. I guess
14 the -- let me just interject another thought into the 15 exchange that you had with Mr. Gordon on your hypothetical, a 16 couple of thoughts. First, the -- and I will -- I'm going to 17 start and go through this in a little more organized way, but 18 I just wanted to make sure I get this point out. It's 19 important to keep in mind that as inviolable and as absolute
20 and as definitive as those of us on the objectors' side
21 believe the pension clause is and as much as we believe that 22 it was the right of the citizens of the Michigan -- of 23 Michigan to so provide in adopting it, remember that we are 24 here in the public sector. We are not in the private sector
25 where there is a federally regulated and federally

1 established pension insurance system so that when plans get
2 underfunded, when plan sponsors are overburdened, there is a
3 system that takes over. And I would have to say all --
4 certainly the lion's share of the decisions that have come
5 down on this topic arise because of the -- because of the way
6 that that system is constructed. There's a federal agency
7 that provides a safety net. You know, there are moral hazard
8 issues. There's a whole balancing that goes on in that 9 system. We don't have that here. Michigan pensioners have 10 Article IX, Section 24. That's it. That's what they have.
11 So as, you know, perhaps a -- it might take a bit of a leap
12 to see that that section means what it says and really,
13 really, really means what it says, I think it's important to 14 bear in mind that that is a safety net for pensions for 15 Michigan pensioners. Okay.

16 So, now, to try to get back a little bit towards 17 more of an organized progression here on the 109(c)(2)
18 issues, the governor, as we've been discussing, had issued
19 the letter of authorization -- the letter of authorization
20 without any contingencies, so I think it's in -- and your 21 Honor asked the question this morning -- a couple of 22 questions this morning that have to do with, you know,
23 where's the impairment and where's the harm and questions of 24 that nature, and why wasn't the governor's reference to 943
25 sufficient. So I think what's important to do first is take

1 a look at -- briefly just take a look at the authorization
2 letters. And, again, this is without reference to any
3 testimony or anything else that you're going to hear next
4 week. You know, just looking at the letters that were 5 attached to Mr. Orr's declaration, the July 16th
6 authorization makes quite plain in his situational
7 overview -- he says for an extended period of time, the city
8 has simply failed to make the investments required to provide
9 its residents with an adequate quality of life as limited
10 resources have been diverted elsewhere. He says the city's 11 urgent need to address large and growing legacy liabilities
12 and other substantial debts is self-evident. Failure to 13 address these liabilities will prevent -- excuse me --
14 prevent the city from devoting sufficient resources to 15 providing basic and essential services to its residents.
16 Indeed, significant additional resources are required to 17 improve health and safety. And he goes on to say that the 18 city must devote a larger share of its revenues to 19 effectively providing basic essential services to current 20 residents, attract new residents and businesses to foster
21 growth and redevelopment, ultimately begin -- and ultimately 22 begin what will be a long process of rehabilitation and 23 revitalization for the city. The city's debt and legacy
24 liabilities must be significantly reduced to permit this 25 reinvestment. Plain as day in Mr. Orr's letter. He

1 incorporates his entire proposal, the -- I don't have the 2 whole thing here. I've just got some of it. This is the
3 June 14th proposal. Goes to the governor, and the governor
4 writes back again providing the authorization and saying in 5 part that he's reaffirming his confidence that Mr. Orr has 6 the right priorities when it comes to the City of Detroit. I
7 am reassured to see his prioritization of the needs of 8 citizens to have improved services. I know we share a 9 concern for the public's -- for the public employees who gave 10 years of service to the city and now fear for their financial 11 future in retirement, and I'm confident that all of the 12 city's creditors will be treated fairly in this process. We 13 all believe that the city's future must allow it to make the 14 investment it needs in talent and infrastructure all while 15 making only promises it can keep. So I think it's very clear
16 from these letters -- excuse me -- as it is abundantly clear
17 from the proposal that the city is proposing to take 18 resources from what it's calling the legacy liabilities or,
19 fill in the blank, accrued pensions, and divert those 20 resources to the list that Mr. Orr has laid out here,
21 reinvestment and services and the like, so when we talk about 22 not impairing the pensions and who took what action and when 23 does the impairment happen, the governor's letter, we submit,
24 in fact, is the impairment because it has -- the governor is 25 stating that he is acknowledging Mr. Orr's priorities,

1 including the priorities to take money from the pensions and
2 use them to pay other things. And so when the pension clause
3 talks about -- excuse me. I'm sorry. I just lost my brief.
4 I apologize, your Honor. I think I -- I have it. So when we 5 talk about the text of Article IX, Section 24, "The accrued
6 financial benefits of each pension plan and retirement system
7 of the state and its political subdivisions shall be a
8 contractual obligation thereof which shall not be diminished
9 or impaired thereby," and we look and we are -- we see that 10 among the records in the constitutional convention is the 11 explanation that Article IX, Section 24, quote, "requires 12 that accrued financial benefits of each pension plan and 13 retirement system of the state and its political subdivisions
14 be a contractual obligation which cannot be diminished or 15 impaired by the actions of its officials or governing body," 16 the impairment occurs when the governor signs this
17 authorization with no contingencies. That's when it happens.
18 So not impairing thereby, meaning -- means very specifically 19 this document, and the "this" I'm holding up here now is the 20 governor's consent. Now, why is --

21 THE COURT: Oh, but this raises two questions.

22 MS. CECCOTTI: Sure.

23 THE COURT: Is there a scenario in which the city
24 would have the ability to meet its pension obligations in the 25 very long term unless it makes the kind of investments that

1 Mr. Orr and Mr. Snyder have suggested should be part of the 2 city's priorities? That's question number one. Question
3 number two is actually a much more important question, and 4 that is is question number one a question for now, or is it a
5 question for plan confirmation?

6 MS. CECCOTTI: It is absolutely a question for now
7 because --

8 THE COURT: What's the answer then? How can the 9 city maximize its chance of paying its pension obligations
10 unless it makes the kind of investments that Mr. Orr and Mr.
11 Snyder are talking about?

12 MS. CECCOTTI: It may be that the investments
13 themselves or the idea for the investments is fine. The 14 question is can it get there lawfully by taking money from 15 pensioners? That is the question that the state Constitution
16 answers by saying no. Now, as Mr. Gordon pointed out or as I
17 think is evident from his presentation, there's a lot of 18 numbers here, Judge. There were numbers in Mr. Orr's
19 request, his July 16th request. You're going to hear an 20 awful lot about those numbers and what they are and what they 21 are not, so I would suggest that the notion that we somehow
22 have already today, quote, no reasonable alternative in the 23 words of PA 436 I would suggest very much should await your 24 Honor's review of the evidence on all of that, so --

25 THE COURT: Okay.

1 MS. CECCOTTI: I realize it's a question that has
2 been on your mind all day, but I really think unless you
3 really want us up here freelancing numbers -- and you really
4 don't -- that it is best to simply --

5 THE COURT: I'll grant you that one.

6 MS. CECCOTTI: Right; right. But I guess my point
7 is the answer cannot be because the problem seems hard, we're 8 just going to try to find a way to say perhaps that this
9 language doesn't mean what it says because I think once you
10 start down that road, you run into all kinds of problems.
11 You run into the Chapter 9 dual sovereignty problems. You
12 run into problems of who gets to decide what, right, whether 13 this Court gets to construe Article IX, 24, to, in fact, say
14 it can be invaded. These are problems that are simply too
15 thorny -- certainly too thorny to start with, and maybe we'll 16 see where your Honor is after the evidence.

17 Okay. So why isn't the reference to 943(b) enough,
18 and I think -- and I think you've heard it, but just to say
19 it again and hopefully crystalize it a bit, I think the 20 governor assumed in wording the letter the way that he did
21 that somehow this all gets sorted out, and I think that seems 22 to be a lot of the presumption here, and I must say I am not 23 in full company with those who say that once you cross the 24 threshold of 109(c) using state law that somehow you can 25 start, you know, running around employing federal supremacy.

1 I think that that -- we'd probably have a lot more
2 conversations about that with a lot more time with a lot more
3 specificity before we get there. We think -- and we spent a
4 bunch of time on this in our brief, Judge, and given your 5 handling of the Addison case you probably didn't need all of 6 this, but our view is that you must look -- in order for 7 Chapter 9 to be constitutional, you have to look at all of 8 these pieces that import or give recognition to the state
9 law. Just to take you back to another colloquy that you had 10 with Mr. Gordon and why I think maybe that the Chapter 13
11 example isn't a good fit here, 109(c) says that an entity may 12 be a debtor under Chapter 9 if and only if such entity is 13 specifically authorized to be a debtor under such chapter by 14 state law. So while we're all here today obviously under 15 109(c) and 109(c) is in the Bankruptcy Code and so you're 16 right -- the law that must be applied is state law, and the 17 Court decides whether -- you, the Court, you, the Bankruptcy
18 Court, decide under 109(c) whether, in fact, the municipality
19 is specifically authorized to be a debtor under Chapter 9 by 20 state law or by a governmental officer empowered by state
21 law. And so I think that that may help to distinguish the 22 Sixth Circuit case that you discussed with Mr. Gordon, but it
23 also points out that getting through the door is a state law
24 question. 903 and 904 are obvious limitations on the Court's 25 authority. 943 is a limitation on the plan. All of these

1 things work together, and I think your Honor's opinion
2 actually in the Addison case on the motion to intervene was 3 exactly right in recognizing the limitations not only of the 4 Court's caution in addressing the questions precisely because
5 of the questions that 903 -- the issues that 903 and 904
6 import into the bankruptcy process, but another observation
7 which takes me back to the letters and the taking of the 8 money from the pensioners and putting it towards something
9 else, which is, I think, your court -- your observation in 10 that case that Chapter 9 is about debt adjustment and should 11 not be overburdened I think applies very well here, too, and 12 I think, again, when we get to the trial and the full array
13 of the plan and everything else comes out and we start
14 talking about that in the evidentiary context, I think that 15 it is at least a question as to whether or not this issue
16 that we're all talking about here is in a narrow sense debt
17 adjustment or whether it is more than debt adjustment and 18 whether that shouldn't inform the Court's caution in ensuring 19 that the state law is being adhered to.

20 And I guess -- and I don't often get to the point of 21 imploring at the podium. It's not always pretty, but I'm 22 going to break my rule on this whole subject of where is the 23 impairment. To me it's like a shell game. Okay. Under 24 which of these cups is the impairment; right? Is the 25 impairment -- I've told you where I think the impairment is;

1 right? I don't think the Court impairs. The debtor proposes
2 the plan. Under Chapter 9 only the debtor can propose the
3 plan. The debtor was supposed to have come up with something
4 that passes muster to meet the 109(c) criteria in advance of 5 getting to this point, and they --

6 THE COURT: Well, but the proposal of a plan, the 7 filing of a plan which proposes to impair pensions doesn't
8 result in the reduction of anyone's pension check any more
9 than the filing of the case did.

10 MS. CECCOTTI: Your Honor, I --

11 THE COURT: That doesn't happen until the Court
12 confirms it under law.

13 MS. CECCOTTI: And, your Honor, then why are we 14 talking about it? Why are we talking about it?

15 THE COURT: Answer that question.

16 MS. CECCOTTI: If it hadn't been --

17 THE COURT: I'm having my issues with that very 18 question. Why are we talking about it?

19 MS. CECCOTTI: We're talking about it because it's 20 in their proposal. We're talking about it because it was in 21 the authorization that went to the governor. We're talking 22 about it because the governor clearly recognized it or at 23 least recognized it sufficiently to draft the letter that he 24 did. We're talking about it because despite weeks and weeks
25 and weeks, no one has disabused the pensioners of the notion

1 that their pension rights are -- that they are intending to
2 impair their pension rights. That's why we're talking about
3 it. It simply does not -- here they are in Chapter 9; right?
4 They're in Chapter 9. They've got the benefit of the 5 automatic stay. They've gotten their stay against the pre-
6 petition lawsuits. They want to have a bar date motion.
7 They're getting all of the -- you know, all of the features,
8 right, of Chapter 9. And the threshold question that has to 9 be asked is can they be here, and the threshold question can 10 only relate to the form in which they show up on the court's 11 doorstep. And the form in which they show up on the court's 12 doorstep is the June 14th proposal, which is abundantly clear
13 on the subject of invading -- impairing accrued pensions.
14 What else would the Court -- what else would we be dealing 15 with? What else would your Honor be dealing with if not for 16 the fact that they evidenced their plan?

17 THE COURT: I think the answer to that question may 18 be the governor's authorization. He says we are here to 19 adjust the city's debts in conformity with law.

20 MS. CECCOTTI: He says that at that end we do that,
21 but what does it mean -- what is supposed to go on before we 22 get there? It can't be that we have a sort of quasi eligible 23 debtor going through all of the -- you know, using all of the 24 processes I just described and then we have a big 25 conflagration at the end. I mean it just --

1 THE COURT: Why not?

2 MS. CECCOTTI: Chapter 9 presupposes through the 3 front door under state law, specially authorized under -- by 4 state law. That is what 109(c) says. It is plain as day.
5 And state law means state law, and it requires giving -- if 6 they hadn't put in this -- the pages --

7 THE COURT: So in response to my question to Mr.
8 Gordon, you would say that if state law requires a different
9 priority scheme than the Bankruptcy Code, the municipality is 10 eligible only if the Court is willing to enforce that state
11 law priority scheme rather than the Bankruptcy Code priority
12 scheme?

13 MS. CECCOTTI: I think that I would say that if a
14 state legislature -- we're not talking about the Constitution
15 here. You're just talking about, in effect, the PA 436 of 16 whatever that state is. I would say that those are the 17 terms. We have -- we allow the states -- states have a
18 variety of authorization. Some of them have no
19 authorization. It is a state-by-state --

20 THE COURT: Every bankruptcy case that has addressed
21 that question has held the other way, hasn't it?

22 MS. CECCOTTI: Well, I don't know the answer to 23 that, your Honor. In the Chapter 9 context?

24 THE COURT: Yes, in the Chapter 9 context.

25 MS. CECCOTTI: Okay. Well, I --

1 THE COURT: Every Bankruptcy Court has held once
2 you're in the door, it's the Bankruptcy Code priorities that
3 apply, not the state law priorities --

4 MS. CECCOTTI: Right. Well, right. And now we're 5 getting into the --

6 THE COURT: -- because the state consents to the 7 Bankruptcy Code or it doesn't.

8 MS. CECCOTTI: Well, and I would say that a state
9 that passes a law such as your Honor proposed maybe, in fact,
10 looked at those cases and said, no, we don't really want to 11 go there. We want to -- you know, we'll let you go if it's 12 this other way. I think the through the door -- once we're 13 in the door -- I know what Harrisburg says. You know, I have 14 a lot of trouble with it just because I think that the 15 doctrine has not evolved in a sufficiently precise manner.
16 You don't always see what the conflict is. You have to come
17 up with notions of what the purpose is. Remember the ancient 18 Supreme Court cases here said bankruptcy is about discharge;
19 right? So can states have discharge laws? So we're way, way
20 far away from that now, so I think -- again, I think we'd 21 have to have a lot more conversations about what happens
22 through the door. Right now we're talking about you're at 23 the door, and you're at the door, and you're presenting 24 yourself, and what you're wearing, right, is something that 25 says we are going to violate Article IX, Section 24.

1 Just want to see if there is anything -- see if I've 2 left anything out here that I wanted to cover. I have some
3 minutes here. I guess I could barter away my minutes, Judge,
4 or I could give them to you to barter them away. Let me just 5 take a quick moment here. I think -- I mean, again, I think
6 we're going to get to the point of duplication if I continue
7 unless, your Honor, you'd like to ask me anything else. I
8 think I've hit the points I wanted to hit.

9 THE COURT: Okay. Thank you.

10 MR. WERTHEIMER: William Wertheimer, your Honor, on 11 behalf of the Flowers plaintiffs. As I'm sure your Honor
12 will recall, although it seems like ages ago now, the Flowers
13 plaintiffs were plaintiffs in one of the state court cases
14 that preceded the bankruptcy, a state court case in which we 15 were making the claim that under state law the governor was 16 required to recognize Article IX, Section 24, if and when he 17 authorized a bankruptcy. I'm not here to speak on bankruptcy
18 law. When I heard the reference to Asbury Park, I thought of 19 the street in northwest Detroit. I'm not a bankruptcy
20 lawyer.

21 THE COURT: Okay.

22 MR. WERTHEIMER: I just want to speak briefly on the 23 state law, which it was my understanding at the stay
24 proceedings everybody kind of understood, including the city
25 attorneys, that although our claim was being delayed, it was

1 not being changed in terms of its nature; that is, that this
2 Court would decide as a matter of state law whether this 3 bankruptcy was properly authorized. It was just that the 4 forum was changing.

5 And I'd just like to make three points as to that 6 state law, three areas where I think this Court can look to 7 what it should do in deciding what I believe is that state
8 law issue; that is, the basic eligibility issue. If you look
9 at the equivalent of legislative history of Article IX,
10 Section 24 -- that is, the constitutional convention
11 record -- there is certainly references to the fact that has 12 been mentioned here today that it was meant in part to deal
13 with the fact that pensions had been considered not to be a
14 matter of contract, but the only specific reference that I
15 found in that record -- and no one has cited anything to the 16 contrary -- is the comment of Mr. Van Dusen, which I -- with 17 the Court's permission, I'll take the liberty to quote. It's 18 not long. "An employee who continues in the service of the 19 public employer in reliance upon the benefits which the plan
20 says he would receive would have the contractual right to 21 receive those benefits" -- he didn't stop there -- "and" -- 22 he didn't say "meaning" -- he said "and," in addition -- and 23 I think this goes to what Mr. Gordon was getting at, "and 24 would have the entire assets of the employer at his disposal
25 from which to realize those benefits." That was the

1 understanding of Mr. Van Dusen. There's no contrary
2 understanding on the record as to what the idea was on behalf
3 of the people who were writing Article IX, Section 24.
4 That's point number one, and I think if you look at what
5 Emergency Manager Orr did in his June 14th proposal, Mr. Van 6 Dusen, were he alive to take a look at it, would say, "That's 7 not what I meant," because on June 14th what Mr. Orr proposed
8 and he continues to propose is the retirees get treated like 9 any other creditor. He didn't say words to the effect of 10 "all the assets of the employer," so that's the first piece
11 of state law in the broad sense of the term that I think you 12 can look to.

13 The second piece is the Webster and the Flowers
14 cases and the retirement case. And I'm not repeating
15 Mr. Gordon's argument relative to collateral estoppel or the 16 res judicata argument. I'm simply pointing out that as -- 17 excuse me -- as Mr. Gordon indicated, that case was fully 18 briefed, and a state court judge looked at the exact issue --
19 well, maybe not exact but very close to the issue that is in 20 front of you, and that state court judge, after full 21 briefing, decided that in a manner consistent with our 22 position. And I would point out there is no contrary law
23 anywhere. I recognize this Court -- the cases that say you
24 look to the definitive ruling from the highest state court
25 and all that, but Judge Aquilina's decision -- decisions,

1 well-reasoned, are all that's out there. She's a state court
2 judge deciding this issue. That's the second piece of state
3 court law that, as far as I can tell, is out there.

4 There's one other, and that is we have the state
5 attorney general. This isn't law, but the state attorney
6 general enters an appearance a little late in the game. The 7 governor has already authorized the bankruptcy. However, the 8 state attorney general, as an officer of the state, as the 9 chief legal officer of the state, tells this Court that 10 Article IX, Section 24, binds the emergency manager in 11 bankruptcy. Now, we all know that that gets into the issue
12 of is it at the eligibility stage or the plan stage, and I --
13 that's been dealt with. My point is simply that a state
14 officer, the attorney general of the state, saying that the 15 emergency manager in bankruptcy is bound by Article IX,
16 Section 24, is consistent and supports our position that the 17 governor, when he goes to authorize that bankruptcy, is also 18 bound by Article IX, Section 24. And with all due respect to 19 the governor, we think it's up to this Court to hold the 20 governor to that.

21 THE COURT: All right. Thank you, sir.

22 MR. WERTHEIMER: Thank you.

23 MS. PATEK: Good afternoon, your Honor. Barbara
24 Patek on behalf of the Detroit Police Command Officers
25 Association, the Detroit Police Lieutenants & Sergeants

1 Association, the Detroit Police Officers Association, and the 2 Detroit Fire Fighters Association defined in this case as the 3 Detroit Public Safety Unions. As the Court is aware, these 4 are the men and women who provide the police and fire
5 protection that are essential to the survival of the city,
6 and these are exactly the essential services that Chapter 9
7 was designed to preserve and protect.

8 I want to use my time this afternoon to talk a 9 little bit about ripeness, talk very briefly about the 10 supremacy clause and the tension between the supremacy clause
11 and the Tenth Amendment, and then to try to answer some of 12 the questions that the Court has raised with some of the 13 other objectors today.

14 On the issue of ripeness and why this is a question
15 for eligibility, I think that goes to the very nature of 16 Chapter 9, which precisely because of the sovereign immunity
17 and the sovereignty of the State of Michigan, this Court, as 18 it's recognized in so many hearings, is limited in what it
19 can order the city to do. In that respect, this -- not that 20 every bankruptcy isn't a consensual process and not that 21 every bankruptcy doesn't involve a lot of negotiating.
22 Chapter 9 is unique because it incorporates -- it's a largely 23 consensual process at some level precisely because this Court
24 cannot trump the state's sovereignty in particular
25 situations. And in that regard, if one talks about imminent

1 harm, there is -- you know, it's in the record. Mr. Gordon
2 alluded to the fact that the stay authorized the city to come
3 in this court for a very public purpose, and that purpose was 4 to impair the accrued vested pension rights of its public
5 servants. That question, as the city points out in its 6 papers, no court has ever said they can't do it, and no court
7 has ever said they can. It's an unanswered question. We're 8 entitled to know what our rights are, and to suggest that by 9 knowing what our rights are in the door that is to knowing
10 what -- to know what the proper authority is here would 11 somehow skew the process or cause people to walk away from 12 the table I think is wrong. This is a hard question that the 13 Court has to answer, but the Court is here to follow the law.
14 I think this is -- there is imminent harm to these 15 individuals here, and there's a second piece of that by 16 virtue of the vacuum in which there's no legal precedent on 17 this issue, and that is -- I'm just going to throw out to the 18 Court the idea that this is one of those issues where it's 19 capable of repetition but evading review. If every time this 20 gets kicked down the road to confirmation, nobody is ever
21 going to know what their rights are when this issue comes up.
22 I submit that Michigan is a little bit unique, but I think 23 that there are plenty of reasons that this issue is ripe for 24 adjudication today.

25 I'd like to take a crack at some of the questions

1 that the Court raised. You raised the issue of what if the 2 state law requires a different scheme of priorities than is
3 authorized by the Bankruptcy Court. I think if you step out
4 of the weeds on that question and I think you look at what
5 the Code says here, the state has to give its consent to come
6 into Chapter 9. And in giving its consent, the state agrees
7 to certain provisions of Chapter 9. I think a state that 8 authorizes such a scheme simply can't give its consent to 9 come into Chapter 9. I think that's the simple answer to 10 that question.

11 THE COURT: So your answer then in that hypo would 12 be not eligible?

13 MS. PATEK: Correct. I also think -- the Court
14 asked the question and raised the 11th Amendment, and I'm 15 going to go out on a limb here on this and the question of 16 sovereign immunity because I think the answer to a lot of the 17 issues before the Court and whether or not, in fact, the city
18 can impair these rights or use the Court to impair those 19 rights is in some ways answered by the Code. Section 106 of 20 the Code addresses the sections of the Code under which the 21 state waives its sovereign immunity. 109 is not one of them,
22 and I think that makes the eligibility issue as it's framed
23 by 109 a question of state law. And the other place, if 24 we're going to jump ahead to where we'll be down the road,
25 where the state does not waive its sovereign immunity is

1 under Section 943. We know there are some places where to
2 consent to come into this Court and get relief the state has 3 to agree to conform to the rules. 365 is one of those that
4 you've got Bildisco. If you're going to come in and you look
5 at -- that's a place where the state has to agree, consent to 6 be governed by the federal rules. The other place is the 7 automatic stay. But when you get down the road to the plan
8 that only the city can propose, the state does not waive its 9 immunity, and that --

10 THE COURT: I think you might be overanalyzing my 11 question about sovereign immunity. I was only analogizing to 12 the 11th Amendment cases that hold that the issue of whether 13 sovereign immunity is waived is a federal issue, not a state
14 issue. I didn't mean to suggest, as you appear to understand
15 here, that there is -- that there are 11th Amendment issues
16 in this case.

17 MS. PATEK: I'm not suggesting that you are, your 18 Honor, but I'm suggesting that -- and this sort of brings us
19 back to where Ms. Levine started out this morning with this 20 concept of -- this very basic concept, and one of the things
21 that makes this case so hard and one of the things that all
22 the commentators agree makes Chapter 9 so hard is this 23 tension. We have a federalist system. There are rules of 24 the road that were set up by the founders. We have a limited
25 system of federal government. All the other powers are

1 reserved to the states and the individuals. And there's no
2 question that wasn't done so that we could have big and 3 powerful states. That was done by the founders so that the 4 individuals close to the ground would have their rights
5 preserved, and I think within the structure of Chapter 9 and 6 within the limits of the Tenth Amendment, that the state
7 simply cannot use Chapter 9 to impair an express
8 constitutional promise. And I want to talk about that issue
9 for just one moment. This pensions clause is in a very
10 unusual place. Okay. This is -- I think it's fair to say --
11 you talk about there is a contracts clause in the state
12 Constitution just like there's a free speech clause and there
13 are a lot of things that mirror the Bill of Rights, but, as 14 Ms. Levine told us this morning, if somebody is violating my 15 free speech rights, I'm not in state Circuit Court. I'm 16 looking to the federal courts and the federal government to 17 protect those rights. If you're talking about fiscal 18 management, then that's a state issue, and in this case this 19 state and the people of this state chose to enshrine that 20 right to vested accrued -- this isn't all pension benefits,
21 this isn't future benefits, just what people have already 22 earned -- in its state Constitution and say those cannot be 23 impaired.

24 The Court asked the question about what if there's 25 not enough money, which sort of brings me back to the first

1 issue I was talking about. This Court has to rule on the 2 legal issue that's before it, and if there's not enough money
3 just like if you're in a Chapter 11 that you don't want to 4 see liquidation, that's a hard question that the creditors,
5 including the pensioners, including my clients, have to 6 answer along with the city and try to solve this problem
7 within the limits of Chapter 9 because if we don't solve the 8 problem, the only remedy is a dismissal.

9 THE COURT: Well, I guess even that answer troubles
10 me because if the Court holds here that there is this pension
11 right that cannot be impaired and because the governor didn't 12 condition this filing on the city recognizing that right in 13 the bankruptcy, what would happen upon dismissal? There'd be 14 this court holding that there's this unconditional absolute
15 right not to have pensions impaired. On behalf of your 16 retirees, you couldn't negotiate that, could you? How could
17 you?

18 MS. PATEK: I can't negotiate that upon my retirees,
19 but I suggest to the Court there is a solution to this 20 problem, and the solution is for the city to come back again
21 and to authorize -- have the state authorize the filing
22 within the confines of the Constitution, and we move forward
23 on that basis. I don't -- I understand that this has -- you
24 know, we talk about the elephant in the room, but the larger 25 part, the healthcare benefits, are not protected, and the

1 city has already said effective yesterday -- and these aren't
2 my clients, but -- we're done providing that. It's a
3 significant claim. I don't want to minimize that, but I
4 think it is something, given our constitutional structure,
5 that has to be dealt with in the confines of these 6 proceedings, and there are negotiations. There's a huge 7 consensual component to this, and that doesn't stop if the 8 Court rules the way that we've asked to rule.

9 I see my time is up. I just want to wrap up very 10 quickly, and I guess I would say we came into court on the 11 first day, and we supported the city, and we've supported the 12 city in many respects throughout this. We agree that there 13 should be the stay. There has been the breathing space. But 14 I think this is a hard, difficult question. As Ms. Levine
15 said, democracy is hard. This restructuring plan has to be 16 devised in accordance with applicable law, and the city on 17 the front end has to agree that it's going to -- it's going
18 to do so, and in the absence of that, I think they're not 19 eligible. Thank you, your Honor.

20 THE COURT: All right. Thanks to each of you.
21 We'll take our afternoon break now and reconvene at 3:20, a
22 half an hour from now, for the city's arguments.

23 THE CLERK: All rise. Court is in recess.

24 (Recess at 2:50 p.m., until 3:20 p.m.)

25 THE CLERK: Court is in session. Please be seated.

1 Recalling Case Number 13-53846, City of Detroit, Michigan.

2 THE COURT: And it looks like everyone is here.

3 MR. BENNETT: Good afternoon, your Honor.

4 THE COURT: Mr. Bennett, you may proceed.

5 MR. BENNETT: Good afternoon, your Honor. Bruce
6 Bennett of Jones Day on behalf of the city.

7 THE COURT: The only thing I would ask of you, sir,
8 is to leave enough time before our closing time today for me
9 to ask some questions of Mr. Todd. Doesn't need to be now.
10 It can be whenever it's convenient for all of you.

11 MR. BENNETT: Okay.

12 MR. TROY: Mr. Troy, your Honor.

13 THE COURT: Mr. Troy. I'm so sorry, sir. And so I
14 want to do that today because I'm not sure what his travel
15 plans are.

16 MR. BENNETT: Okay. Your Honor should feel free to 17 interrupt me if you think I'm getting too close to the end.
18 And I actually have one procedural question that I'd like to 19 get settled, too, which really has to do with whether you're 20 expecting or would benefit from oral argument at the 21 beginning of the next -- opening argument at the beginning of 22 the next phase because that's -- so I don't know if --

23 THE COURT: You mean tomorrow?

24 MR. BENNETT: No. On the evidentiary phase
25 beginning next week.

1 THE COURT: Oh, well not so much oral arguments as 2 opening statements.

3 MR. BENNETT: Opening statements is what I mean.

4 THE COURT: Yes.

5 MR. BENNETT: Okay. Great.

6 THE COURT: Yes. I think opening statements are 7 very important.

8 MR. BENNETT: Okay. I want to start with some 9 general comments, some of which are designed to respond to 10 things that came up this morning and some of which I think
11 just help, I think, set the stage for what at least the city
12 believes is happening in this Chapter 9 case. And I want to 13 start by saying that the purpose of the Chapter 9 case is to 14 adjust the city's debts, and that means all of their debts,
15 obligations evidenced by bonds, obligations under other
16 contracts, obligations to provide healthcare, and pension
17 obligations. And so that there isn't any confusion, there's 18 been a lot of reference to statements that were made. I
19 think the statement most cited and the one that I think is -- 20 it's the same as all the other ones that have been made -- is 21 that there must be -- the statement was there must be 22 significant cuts in accrued vested benefits. It's been cited
23 often, and it's true.

24 I want to make a couple of clarifications. I don't 25 think anyone for the city ever said we were going to

1 eliminate pensions. This has been about the underfunding
2 amounts. It is the underfunding amounts that are problems.
3 I think your Honor understands that, but I think it's 4 important to remind everybody else that we've never said that 5 the objective is to eliminate pensions. The objective is to 6 address the underfunding situation.

7 Now, why did we make that statement? The 8 statement --

9 THE COURT: Well, let me just put it right to you.
10 Is it your intent to propose a plan to reduce pensioners'
11 monthly checks?

12 MR. BENNETT: To be very technical about it, what we 13 have -- what we have -- what we have noted is that it is 14 impossible for the city to fill the underfunding gap in the 15 existing pension trusts, and we have also said that likely 16 requires changing the amounts of pension benefits. Now --

17 THE COURT: By "changing," you mean reducing?

18 MR. BENNETT: Reducing. Now, I do want to -- I'm 19 going to skip a couple points and then come back.
20 Notwithstanding the fact that the Chapter 11 case has been 21 filed, it remains the city's hope that these adjustments will 22 be achieved on a consensual basis pursuant to agreements
23 reached with the holders of the obligations. That is still 24 the objective. And, of course, we are participating in 25 mediation that's intended to facilitate that goal, and,

1 frankly, we'll meet with anyone anyplace anytime to try to
2 achieve that goal. And we're going to discuss at certain
3 points certain statements that have been made by others in 4 this case about this problem which may suggest that those
5 discussions are going to be particularly difficult, but I
6 want there to be absolutely no confusion about where the 7 city -- where the city stands on this.

8 And by the way, the filing doesn't say how 9 ultimately this case is going to end, whether it's going 10 to -- whether we're going to have a consensual plan, whether 11 we're going to have a nonconsensual plan, whether it'll be 12 partly a consensual plan or partly a nonconsensual plan. And 13 although the city did make a proposal that certainly 14 contemplated cuts to the underfunding obligation and 15 ultimately to benefits that absolutely is a part of the June
16 14th proposal, it was a proposal in an out-of-court
17 negotiation, and I want to submit -- and we're going to come
18 back to this point later -- it can't possibly be 19 impermissible to ask to reduce benefits, particularly when 20 you can demonstrate a need to do so. And so far, frankly,
21 that's what the city did pre-petition, and so far that's what 22 the city has done post-petition. We haven't filed a plan
23 yet. It will come soon. And there has not been a request
24 for cramdown, so -- and I think as we get into other parts of 25 the argument -- the fact that we don't quite know what's

1 coming later may have some bearing on some of the legal 2 points that your Honor has talked about and that others have
3 talked about earlier today.

4 THE COURT: Is it the city's position that the State
5 of Michigan does not have the obligation under the Michigan
6 Constitution to guarantee the city's underfunding?

7 MR. BENNETT: I don't know if the city has a
8 position. I will tell you that I have read all of the 9 materials probably more than anyone else in the city's team,
10 and I don't think the state has an obligation to guarantee
11 the pension obligations of a municipality. I think actually 12 when you look at the --

13 THE COURT: Isn't it in the city's best interest to 14 say that -- or to assert that the state does have that 15 obligation?

16 MR. BENNETT: I don't know whether it is or is not 17 in the city's best interest to even take a position on that 18 point, and that's why I said I don't think the city has a
19 position on that point, but I have done a lot of the work,
20 and I think I've made up my own mind as to what I think is 21 there. I do think it's in the city's position that if we 22 could get money from the state, we would want it, and it
23 would be a great thing, and I'm reasonably certain that that 24 sentiment has been expressed on more than one occasion.

25 THE COURT: Well, is there any reasonable prospect

1 that the state will comply with that request in the absence
2 of a legal obligation -- a determined legal obligation?

3 MR. BENNETT: I don't know the answer to that 4 question. Thus far the state has been of the view that the 5 city has to reorganize based upon its own financial 6 resources.

7 Okay. The next point I wanted to touch on is the 8 fact that there are a large array of state and federal 9 statutes that say in all kinds of different ways that the 10 city is obligated to pay its debts. In fact, they say that 11 the city is obligated to pay its debts in all kinds of 12 different ways. And the city itself and the state has no --
13 and we'll get into this in much more detail -- no ability in 14 order to overcome those laws or very, very, very limited
15 ability to overcome those laws. One important point about 16 them that didn't --

17 THE COURT: You mean comply with those laws?

18 MR. BENNETT: No. To overcome them to get past them
19 if they can't pay all of their obligations. And, again, it's 20 a situation that the city is going to prove it's in, but 21 that's for another hearing. The point I wanted to make here
22 that I don't think was made earlier today was that a lot of 23 these priorities collide with each other in all kinds of 24 different ways. We heard, by the way, about the all assets
25 at their disposal comment that was, I guess, from the

1 constitutional convention. Assuming for a second that that
2 is what was intended, the problem is is that the legislature
3 has also passed a law that describes certain debts -- the 4 obligation to pay certain debts as a, quote, "first budget
5 item," close quote. I don't remember the rest of the 6 sentence, but those words are there. There's also other
7 state statutes that don't actually grant a lien but that say
8 proceeds of certain things must be used in certain orders to 9 pay. And when you sit down and try to figure out in any 10 environment where you don't have enough, how do you fit all 11 these different things together, you run into a problem very,
12 very, very quickly. And these are the provisions, by the 13 way, that are protected by the federal contracts clause and 14 also by the Michigan contracts clause because many of these 15 provisions are in ordinances or resolutions that form part of 16 bond contracts, and others are in ordinances and resolutions
17 that form part of employment contracts. So you wind up -- if 18 you look at the world before you even start talking about 19 bankruptcy, you don't just have coherent commands, this is 20 how you pay and this is how you go about doing it and 21 everything works, you have a whole bunch of priorities that 22 actually don't work, and this, frankly, is --

23 THE COURT: Well, but the objecting parties say all 24 of those contract obligations that have protection merely 25 under the contracts clause, federal or state, can be adjusted

1 consistent with state and federal law, but the pension
2 obligation under the state Constitution is inviolate.

3 MR. BENNETT: And we'll get to that if you'll give 4 me a chance. I will explain why --

5 THE COURT: Okay.

6 MR. BENNETT: -- they are, in fact, no different,
7 but I guess my point here is that outside of bankruptcy, you
8 have a -- you don't have coherence, and this is really to the 9 whole point of does it really make any sense to have a rule
10 that says if the state conditions its filing a proceeding
11 based upon complying with its priorities, what do you even 12 have. And in many circumstances, you have something that is 13 just not meaningful in the context of where there's not 14 enough to go around. I think that's the narrow point for the 15 time being. We will generalize when we get to the whole
16 issue of how the --

17 THE COURT: Okay.

18 MR. BENNETT: -- different clauses work. I also 19 want to say that contrary to the papers that were filed --
20 and I'm now referring to the UAW's papers -- the June 14th
21 proposal didn't take broad aim at the city's workers and 22 retirees. It was very, very carefully drafted to try to 23 treat as many classes of creditors the same as we possibly 24 could denying preferences to any except in cases where we 25 were legally compelled to provide them. We thought and the

1 emergency manager thought that that was the best way to go
2 about the problem that confronted us, and, of course, we're
3 not under any illusion that that's going to be the last word
4 on this question. There will be negotiations. There will be
5 a plan filed, which I'm certain will differ from the proposal
6 that was issued on June 14th in part to respond to creditor
7 input, and it will be subjected to enormous and exacting
8 procedures by this Court before it is ever confirmed.

9 I also want to spend just a second about the point
10 that was made using some of the letters, the letters that 11 were exchanged between the emergency manager and the 12 governor. If your Honor hasn't already, I commend you to 13 read all of them, not just the parts that were quoted. I
14 think it's -- I think to fairly summarize the points made in 15 both letters, the city has been -- the city services, city
16 residents, the ability of the City of Detroit to be a city
17 that provides adequate services to its residents has 18 gradually been lost as a result of the constant and 19 consistent diversion of current tax revenue paid by current 20 tax revenue to legacy liabilities, including but not limited
21 to pension claims. That is the problem. It is not as if 22 everything is fine, let's take some money from pensioners and 23 put it to the benefit of residents to make things better.
24 The diversion already occurred. State law has been followed.
25 Pensions have not been impaired or diminished. A consequence

1 has been that the resources available for services, that the 2 resources available for investment have, in fact, been 3 significantly impaired and significantly diminished to the 4 point that lots of the city's infrastructure is no longer
5 serviceable, thus the reference to need for investment. It's 6 not for the new and wonderful. It's to put back things that 7 really need to be updated and, in fact, replaced because 8 they're worn out, and it's to restore budgetary items,
9 budgets that have, in fact, been cut too great. And I think
10 that sense -- if you read the entire document, you will see
11 that that is the historical view of the current situation.
12 Again, it will be proved next week. And the solution is in 13 part a reinvestment program. Again, just to be technically 14 correct, it's 1.25 billion over ten years, not over five 15 years. Five years would be better. I don't think anyone
16 thinks we can afford it.

17 I think the next point and the last point I'm going 18 to make by way of introduction is really to address one of 19 your Honor's questions, which is what happens if the city
20 can't adjust its debts. I think we have to start with the 21 following. Most business owners and residents are smart
22 enough and sophisticated enough to figure out that it's a
23 problem to be the highest -- residents of the highest taxed
24 jurisdiction in the State of Michigan where somewhere between 25 42 and 65 cents of every dollar is spent on something other

1 than services to current residents. That is not a stable
2 situation. That is just not going to work out well. The 3 consequence will be continuing declines in revenue. It may 4 be that debts of all kinds would be paid for awhile, but 5 ultimately debts of all kinds will not be paid, and no
6 provision of any Constitution will change this. Thus, the 7 stakes are very high not just for the city but also for its 8 residents and its creditors, and I think that puts a very 9 sharp point on your Honor's question about what is a 10 constitutional provision worth when you're confronting an 11 economic crisis such as this.

12 Unless your Honor wants to hear much about it, I was 13 next going to talk about your jurisdiction to decide the 14 eligibility question, but no one else raised it on oral 15 argument, and since it wasn't raised on oral argument, I'll 16 leave it to the papers unless your Honor has any particular
17 questions with respect to that point.

18 THE COURT: No.

19 MR. BENNETT: And I'd like to take the same
20 prerogative that if I intentionally pass over a topic because 21 it wasn't covered today, if it's in our papers, we still care
22 about it.

23 THE COURT: Of course.

24 MR. BENNETT: I'm just going to try to use time
25 wisely. So the first place I'm going to spend some time is

1 on the constitutionality of Chapter 9, and I'm going to do it
2 a little bit differently because I think, frankly, if we do a
3 really careful look at Bekins -- and I'm going to call it
4 Bekins because it's a really big company in California that
5 has -- the name is spelled B-e-k-i-n-s, and everybody calls
6 it Bekins, but I don't know what the correct pronunciation in 7 this particular case is concerned. A very careful analysis
8 of Bekins -- and believe it or not, the Cardozo dissent in 9 Ashton is going to provide us with the guidepost to answer a
10 lot of the questions that may not be constitutional questions
11 but that ultimately are resolved by those cases. First, I
12 have to say because it's important that it isn't this Court's
13 place to overrule Bekins. Bekins has been the law for lots
14 of years. And as the U.S. Attorney pointed out, it's not 15 only that Bekins hasn't been overruled, it's actually never 16 been challenged or questioned or otherwise suggested to be 17 worthy of reconsideration by anything that the Supreme Court
18 has done. And, moreover, in all of the discussion that your 19 Honor heard about why Bekins should not be regarded as good
20 law anymore, no one actually said that the -- that Chapter 9
21 has been changed in any material way from the law that was 22 before the Court in Bekins, and that's because in all the 23 ways that mattered it really hasn't changed, not just -- not 24 by a little but really not at all. However, we don't want
25 the Court to write an opinion that says, well, you feel

1 constrained not to overrule Bekins. You think it should be
2 overruled. So I'm going to spend some time talking about why
3 Bekins is absolutely right and why Asbury Park and anything
4 else didn't change anything.

5 Let me start with just a quick word on Asbury Park.
6 Even to the Supreme Court, if you read their own words,
7 Asbury Park is kind of considered an outlier. It has -- the 8 Supreme Court has never since approved a municipality's 9 modification of its own contract on the basis of emergency or 10 anything else. Every time it's been asked to, it's basically 11 talked about Asbury as being, number one, confined to its 12 facts and extraordinary situation and not reflective of a
13 broad doctrine. This same argument was made to Judge Bennett
14 in the Jefferson County case, and he commented on it. I
15 think we've cited to that case in our papers. He does an 16 even better job than I just did of explaining why Asbury is 17 an outlier. It doesn't provide much comfort to any 18 municipality thinking it's going to modify its debts without 19 the help of the Bankruptcy Code and is no good reason to 20 reconsider Bekins.

21 Now, the next thing I want to talk about is what 22 Bekins really does, and the -- a reality that you can find in 23 Bekins if you're looking really hard, but unfortunately you
24 have to look really hard, is that there were two
25 constitutional provisions at stake when the Chapter 9's

1 predecessor was subject to Supreme Court review. One was the 2 Tenth Amendment, and some people have talked about that. And
3 the second part was the contracts clause. And when you read
4 Bekins, the Court kind of touches on all the different
5 features that matter but isn't particularly careful about 6 matching up which features were needed to overcome which 7 constitutional problem. And, frankly, in there we're going 8 to find the answers to a lot of the -- a lot of the other
9 questions that come up in this case.

10 So let's start with the Tenth Amendment. Of course,
11 the Tenth Amendment, if you quote the whole thing -- and when 12 your Honor confronted earlier, I'm not sure the first six or 13 so words were quoted, "powers not delegated to the United 14 States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the 15 states are reserved to the states respectively, or to the 16 people." For starting purposes, "powers not delegated to the 17 United States" are important words, and one of the things
18 Bekins very clearly says is uniform laws on the subject of 19 bankruptcies are delegated to the United States and that laws
20 on the subject of bankruptcies include municipal debt, and I
21 think they used "composition" as opposed to "adjustment," but 22 composition statutes. So it's actually not a close call that 23 the -- at least as far as the Supreme Court is concerned --
24 and I think that's all that matters for this purpose is that 25 we're going to have a municipal Bankruptcy Code that at least

1 covers subjects of bankruptcy and that those are clearly
2 federal functions. Where a Bankruptcy Code applicable to 3 municipalities --

4 THE COURT: Well, but we know from several Supreme
5 Court cases that the mere fact that Congress legislates
6 within its authority does not necessarily by itself mean that
7 it's consistent with the Tenth Amendment.

8 MR. BENNETT: Well, actually I think --

9 THE COURT: Right? You've got Printz --

10 MR. BENNETT: Well --

11 THE COURT: -- in New York at a minimum that hold
12 that.

13 MR. BENNETT: Well, that was the commandeering
14 point. We'll get to commandeering. There's no commandeering
15 in the Bankruptcy Code.

16 THE COURT: Well, I don't mean to suggest that there
17 is, but in the laws that Congress passed that the Supreme
18 Court held unconstitutional there, they were legislating
19 within their commerce clause or other enumerated power.

20 MR. BENNETT: Okay. In the radioactive waste case,
21 the New York case, it was because they used means that were 22 inappropriate that offended the solvency -- excuse me --
23 offended the sovereignty of the states. In the Bankruptcy
24 Code -- in the context of the Bekins case, I think when you
25 read the case, they were worried about something different.

1 They were worried about the -- in Ashton the majority was 2 clearly worried about the bankruptcy parts going too far and
3 intruding on insolvent -- on sovereignty issues that weren't
4 actually close enough to the core bankruptcy problem. That's 5 where we got the governmental and political powers type
6 exception that we have today, and so -- but I don't think
7 there is -- your Honor is correct. If the way that the --
8 that Congress chose to legislate on the subject of 9 bankruptcies affecting municipalities was to tell state
10 courts what state courts had to do, then you would 11 conceivably have a problem, but there's nothing about the 12 Bankruptcy Court that tells -- state any things what states
13 have to do. What the Bankruptcy Code tells courts, what it
14 tells federal courts what they should do when confronted with 15 a municipality that petitions for relief and petitions for 16 relief with proper authorization. And so I don't think that 17 is -- that doesn't implicate the second half of the Tenth
18 Amendment. It only implicates the first half of the Tenth
19 Amendment, and, quite frankly, it's protected by it.

20 And this is going to come up with something later.
21 When we think about the issue of priorities -- and that's a
22 word that encompasses lots of different things, and we can 23 break it down further if we need to -- priorities are at the 24 core of the subject of bankruptcy, absolutely solidly in the 25 core, so a point I want to make and we'll come back to is

1 that we're not really dealing with the part of the Bankruptcy
2 Code that gets closest to offending sovereignty. We are 3 really dealing with -- when we talk about where pension
4 claims stand in the world and where they can be impaired, we 5 are dealing something that is core to the subject of 6 bankruptcies. It's not at the edge of the things that made
7 the difference between the constitutionality and
8 nonconstitutionality of the Bankruptcy Code under the Tenth
9 Amendment.

10 THE COURT: Well, I think possibly your colleagues
11 on the other side might take issue with that because they 12 analogize the pension right to a property right, which is a
13 matter of state law, at least under our present Bankruptcy
14 Code. It probably doesn't need to be, as a matter of 15 constitutional law, but it is.

16 MR. BENNETT: We will come later, and believe it or 17 not, it's going to be implicated in other aspects of the 18 Chapter 9 case not having anything to do with pensions to 19 where the line is between a priority and a property right.
20 When we talk later -- I'll get to it later. I have a whole
21 section on why in this instance a pension is an unsecured
22 claim and not a property right.

23 THE COURT: Okay.

24 MR. BENNETT: If we -- just to take a short part
25 about it now, as I read the cases, there are some cases that

1 talk about an entitlement to money being a property right,
2 but in every single one of those cases the money was there,
3 so, for example, it was in a bank account and the balance was 4 there. In another circumstance, you were dealing with a --
5 an entity was reducing the amount of money that was supposed
6 to be paid to an employee, but there was a hundred cent
7 dollars there, and the three percent that was going to be
8 carved out was going someplace else. There is no
9 constitutional case that deals with a promise that there -- a
10 promise that might or might not be satisfied because there's 11 not enough money and say that kind of a promise is a property
12 right. So I think that if you -- if we apply carefully the 13 Supreme Court cases -- and when I get to them, I'll remember
14 the citations -- we are going to find that an unsecured
15 promise where the actual sum of money can't be pointed to 16 because it's not there yet, that's not a property right and 17 never has been, and so the Fifth Amendment is not implicated
18 here. This is absolutely a contracts clause case, and we'll 19 get to the contracts clause -- clauses in a second.

20 Okay. So I want to -- last point with respect to 21 the Tenth Amendment, of course, Bekins says it's 22 constitutional under the Tenth Amendment. The Bankruptcy
23 Code, in particular, its part relating to municipalities,
24 it's constitutional under the Tenth Amendment. It finds that 25 the combination -- that apart from the fact that it's subject

1 to bankruptcies, it finds that the fact that the Code, then
2 the Act, had carefully carved out governmental and political
3 powers, kind of the -- that is, the relationship between a
4 municipality and its subjects -- it's carved that out. It
5 says that is an appropriate safeguard to states retaining
6 sovereignty, and they say, "And, oh, by the way, there's a
7 consent requirement." So those two things, the consent
8 requirement, the -- what I'll call the 903-904 carveout, and 9 the fact that the uniform laws on the subject of bankruptcies
10 are fair game for the federal government, those three things
11 are the three points that the Bekins court says it's okay for 12 Tenth Amendment purposes.

13 Now, it's time to work about -- talk about the 14 contracts clause problem. Your Honor is clearly familiar
15 with what the contracts clause problem is. You have a
16 contracts clause -- and I have a cheat sheet for everyone.
17 I've provided my colleagues on my left with a copy during the 18 break. If your Honor --

19 THE COURT: Sure.

20 MR. BENNETT: -- will, I'd like to pass up --

21 THE COURT: If you'd like me to look at it, sure.

22 MR. BENNETT: -- copies. And here we have the three 23 clauses that we need to talk about, the federal contracts
24 clause, the state contracts clause, and the pensions clause.
25 As far as the Bekins court is concerned, it's talking only

1 about the federal contracts clause, and where I'm going is 2 it's not going to make any difference. And what the 3 Bekins -- the Bekins court doesn't think that consent of the 4 state has anything to do with getting beyond this clause
5 probably because it knows that there's no consent out to the 6 contracts clause. Instead, it finds that the reason why that 7 the municipal bankruptcy act is constitutional is because the 8 entity that is actually impairing or changing contracts is 9 not the state. It's not the municipality acting by the 10 state. It is the court itself. And the key quote is the 11 state invites the intervention of the federal, my word,
12 bankruptcy power to save its agency -- that's really a 13 synonym for municipality -- which the state itself is 14 powerless to rescue. And the reason the state is powerless
15 to rescue it is because of the contracts clause. Through its 16 cooperation with the national government, the needed relief
17 is given. So under -- so as far as Bekins is concerned,
18 under Chapter 9 the federal government, through its courts,
19 is the pertinent actor.

20 Now, you could write this more elegantly, and it
21 wasn't in our briefs because I actually didn't find it until 22 last night, and that is Ashton. You know, I have to 23 confess --

24 THE COURT: That is what, sir?

25 MR. BENNETT: Pardon?

1 THE COURT: What did you say it was?

2 MR. BENNETT: Ashton. Until yesterday I'd never
3 read Ashton. After all, everybody knew it had been overruled
4 by Bekins. But I read it last night, and I got to the end,
5 and I realized there was a dissent by Cardozo. And I read it
6 because it was by Cardozo because he writes really well. And 7 he took this particular issue head on, and so I'm going to 8 read a lot of sentences from it. It's on page 142. And 9 here's what he says. He, of course, is dissenting, so he's 10 finding the last version constitutional, and he gets to the 11 contract clause problem. And by the way, one of the things
12 about Cardozo's dissent is that he's also much better about 13 dividing the Tenth Amendment analysis from the contracts
14 clause analysis. He kind of does it explicitly separately.
15 And he says this. This is about the contracts clause. "The 16 act does not authorize the states to impair through their own
17 laws the obligation of existing contracts. Any interference
18 by the states is remote and indirect." I'm going to skip 19 some things, some citations and some things that aren't that 20 important, and get to something that's more important. "If 21 contracts are impaired, the tie is cut or loosened through 22 the action of the court of bankruptcy approving a plan of 23 composition under the authority of federal law. There, and 24 not beyond in an ascending train of antecedents" -- it's an 25 amazing sentence -- "is the cause of the impairment to which

1 the law will have regard," skipping some citations.
2 "Impairment by the central government through laws concerning
3 bankruptcies is not forbidden by the Constitution.
4 Impairment is not forbidden unless effected by the states
5 themselves. No change in obligation results from the filing
6 of a petition by one seeking a discharge, whether a public or 7 a private corporation invokes the jurisdiction." We're going 8 to use that sentence again when we talk about whether -- how 9 much we have to decide today. "The court, not the 10 petitioner, is the efficient cause of the release."

11 For some reason Cardozo didn't participate in 12 Bekins. The Bekins court, I think, said the same thing. I
13 just think they said it a lot less clearly and a lot less
14 elegantly.

15 So I think this is very informative about the right
16 way to think about who is doing what and will become 17 important when we get to the authorization problem, which 18 we're going to be at very soon, but I want to --

19 THE COURT: Where do you think in Bekins the 20 majority of the court or the court itself said the same
21 thing?

22 MR. BENNETT: The words I read at the -- I'm sorry.
23 I got to find the back pages. The words I started with,
24 the -- it's at page 54. The state invites the intervention
25 of the federal bankruptcy power to save its agency -- means

1 municipality -- which the state itself is powerless to
2 rescue -- that's the reference to the contracts clause.
3 Through its cooperation with the national government, the 4 needed relief is given. I think the -- I think they're doing
5 exactly the same thing and just managed to do it in a lot
6 fewer words but with -- losing a teeny bit of precision in 7 the process, but it is the same thing. They are basically
8 adopting the Cardozo view of why the bankruptcy law is 9 constitutional under the contracts clause, the federal 10 contracts clause.

11 And, you know, I quoted these words, but there are 12 words before it and words after it that basically zeroes in 13 on that they're dealing with this particular issue at this 14 particular point in time. This is just as much as they say.

15 The Bekins court, of course, there's no dissenting
16 opinions. There's two judges that say they dissent for the 17 reasons expressed by the majority in Ashton. That's all they 18 do. And so that may well be one of the reasons why the court
19 was a little bit less careful. Of course, what Cardozo said
20 isn't precedent. It's just very, very clear thinking,
21 elegantly written about exactly the problem we have in this 22 courtroom today, and I think it's awfully persuasive, and I
23 think it is reflective, although certainly done better, than 24 the work that was done by the Bekins court.

25 A couple of other constitutional issues before we

1 move on to the authority points and the different contracts
2 clauses. AFSCME does take the position in their papers that 3 the contracts clause continues to constrain all municipal 4 bankruptcies. Of course, the federal contracts clause we
5 know from the Supreme Court does not. We'll talk about 6 whether there's any difference in the state courts soon. But 7 why AFSCME takes that position is they know full well that if 8 the contracts clause is easily bypassed by a municipal 9 bankruptcy case -- and we think that it is for precisely the 10 reasoning of Judge -- Justice Cardozo -- then this is over 11 because the contracts clauses, as we're about to get to, are 12 very, very similar. They're almost identical to each other,
13 and they're identical in all the ways that matter. We will 14 go through it very carefully.

15 There was next the point that was made about 16 accountability. I don't think there's any confusion about 17 accountability. I think, again, I appeal to Cardozo's
18 language but also to Bekins on this point. If you don't like 19 the powers that a court has in Chapter 9, write your 20 Congressman. If you don't like the way Detroit was managed 21 so that it wound up in Chapter 9, don't let the people who
22 used to be in office be in office again in Detroit. If you
23 don't like the emergency manager and don't think he was 24 qualified and don't like what he was doing, write the 25 governor or your state legislator. There is no

1 accountability question if you break it down in the way that
2 Cardozo broke it down. And by the way, the other thing
3 Cardozo says and I think also Bekins says, there's nothing
4 wrong with asking. You have to ask if you're going to do
5 this consensually. The emergency manager on behalf of the 6 city had to ask the retirement funds directly, retirees more
7 indirectly, to reduce or change benefits in order to 8 accommodate the needs of current city residents and the 9 ability of the city to survive. They could also ask the 10 Court to exercise its authority to help, too. That doesn't 11 mean they are the one loosening the knot or cutting the knot.

12 We talked about Asbury Park. Anti-commandeering
13 cases. Again, I think -- well, the federal government's 14 brief does a much nicer job on this than I ever could in 15 pointing out that the essence of the commandeering cases are 16 the federal direction to state actors -- in this case, maybe 17 it would be state judges or the emergency manager or the 18 governor -- to do something in a particular way. And, in 19 fact, the -- that's not what happens. That is not the 20 structure of Chapter 9 at all. The structure of Chapter 9 is 21 that there is certain power that is vested in this Court, and 22 that power can be used in certain ways. Frankly, your Honor
23 can't tell the city what kind of plan to file, but your Honor
24 can say whether or not you will approve a plan that is filed,
25 so the request has to be made by the city, and the power has

1 to be exercised by your Honor. Again, the city itself is 2 powerless to escape the contracts clause, but it does not --
3 at no point does the federal government say I have a policy
4 that I am going to ask the states or demands that the states
5 implement for me. That doesn't happen anywhere in Chapter 9,
6 and, frankly --

7 THE COURT: Well, but Ms. Ceccotti doesn't agree
8 with that. What she says is Congress says if you want to 9 adjust your debts, we prescribe the priority scheme to the 10 exclusion of the state. The state can't come in with its own
11 notion of what the priorities should be so that the division
12 of sovereignty that results violates the Tenth Amendment.

13 MR. BENNETT: Well, first, there's a logical failure
14 there, and it has to do with Asbury Park. The UAW starts
15 with the proposition that there is some kind of viable state
16 restructuring process that can actually work and that the 17 federal government took it away from them and made the 18 bankruptcy -- the Chapter 9 exclusive. That isn't reality.
19 Asbury Park, as we've seen, first of all, is an unbelievably
20 exceptional case, which, by the way, the end holding is that 21 that restructuring was done for bonds and made bonds better.
22 That is the holding at the end of the day or the key facts at 23 the end of the day in Asbury Park. Asbury Park is not and 24 never has been construed to be -- and no one cited any case
25 to your Honor showing that in the period of time before

1 Congress claimed the field for itself that there was any
2 viable municipal debt adjustment opportunity created by what
3 we have to call the Asbury Park exception to the contracts
4 clause. And if you believe everything in the UAW's belief --
5 brief and believe their interpretation of the pensions
6 clause, it gets even worse, that even if there were -- was 7 Asbury Park wiggle room and then in the absence of the 8 Bankruptcy Code the pensions clause is absolute, you have 9 worse than nothing. You have worse than the almost 10 meaningless Asbury Park exception. So I don't think it's 11 coercion for the -- for Congress to say you can't do
12 something that you can't do. And I think the prohibition on 13 competing state municipal schemes is, frankly, recognition
14 that they're not possible or workable, and, again, no one has 15 been able to show you either before or after that provision
16 of the Bankruptcy Code what this wonderful municipal scheme
17 is out there that would have been a choice. Cardozo doesn't 18 think there's any choice. Bekins doesn't think there's any 19 choice. And that's the same court that decided Ashton, so 20 I -- about the same time actually or Blaisdell was about the 21 same time. Ashton may have been later. This is a -- I
22 think -- I don't think Congress coerced anybody. I don't 23 think that's possible on the facts.

24 Okay. So to summarize, we've shown that Chapter 9
25 is constitutional and that, in particular, it does not offend

1 the contracts clause in the United States Constitution. I
2 think along the way we've demonstrated that the state's 3 authorization of a municipality's resort to Chapter 9 for 4 relief from contracts generally does not constitute a state
5 impairment of contract because otherwise no -- not a single 6 Chapter 9 would work. We have also along the way noted that 7 the filing of a petition itself doesn't constitute impairment
8 of anything in any event and that if there is an impairment,
9 it's by the federal Bankruptcy Court, so now let's look at 10 our contracts clause cheat sheet and try to find out whether 11 there's any difference because of the fact that there's a
12 state contracts clause or because there's a pensions clause.

13 First, with respect to the state contracts clause, I
14 don't think anyone has suggested to the Court that this is 15 any different than the federal contracts clause, and, in 16 fact, there isn't. There's no difference, and no one
17 suggested it, so -- but, by the way, Justice Cardozo, again,
18 as -- more elegantly and more precisely but -- and the Bekins
19 court both would believe that the state contracts clause --
20 okay -- is also focused on the state. It doesn't bind the 21 federal government. And since the federal government is the 22 relevant actor, the state contracts clause does not impose
23 any obstacle at all to a municipality invoking Chapter 9
24 relief.

25 The only thing I want to pause to say is it couldn't

1 be otherwise because if it were otherwise -- I skipped a
2 step. Every state -- at least every state I looked at, so
3 there may be an exception, but every state has a state
4 contracts clause. It's not surprising. Copied it from the 5 federal Constitution. So if it were the case that the 6 state's contracts clause was different than the federal 7 contracts clause and that it was a barrier to invoking
8 Chapter 9 relief, then every single bondholder in every 9 single -- I should say every single lawyer for every single 10 bondholder in every prior Chapter 9 case has probably been 11 guilty of malpractice because they might have been able to 12 escape their prior Chapter 9 cases -- and there are now
13 hundreds on the books -- on this basis alone. But, again,
14 for the reasons expressed in Bekins and more elegantly by 15 Judge -- Justice Cardozo, they can't.

16 So now we finally get -- we reach the pensions
17 clause also quoted in front of you, and we say, okay, is this 18 pensions clause any different than --

19 THE COURT: But hang on. Isn't there a difference
20 between reconciling the bankruptcy clause with the federal 21 contracts clause on the one hand and trying to reconcile how 22 a state that prohibits itself from impairing contracts with 23 taking advantage of the bankruptcy power that the federal 24 court has enabled -- or that the federal Congress has enabled
25 because of the sovereignty of the state?

1 MR. BENNETT: No difference. Why? Let's remember.
2 The reason why I spent so much time talking about why was the 3 Debt Adjustment Act under the Bankruptcy Act constitutional
4 as far as the federal contracts clause was concerned -- it
5 wasn't about the language of the federal contracts clause.
6 It was because the state isn't an actor. The federal 7 contracts clause acts only on states. The relevant actor is 8 the federal government. It's the Bankruptcy Court. That was 9 the reason why there was no federal contracts clause problem
10 with the Bankruptcy Act in Bekins, and it was the only 11 reason -- the only part of the opinion that had to do with 12 the federal contracts clause part of the problem. The state
13 contracts clause acts again only on the state, not on the 14 federal government. Accordingly, if you believe -- and the 15 Supreme Court has held that the relevant actor for purposes
16 of untying or cutting the knot is the federal Bankruptcy
17 Court and not the state, then the state contracts clause
18 forms no additional barrier to the use of the Bankruptcy Code
19 than the federal contracts clause did. They are the same,
20 and they are both not relevant for the same reason.

21 THE COURT: And your position is that it's a matter
22 of federal law that the pertinent actor is the federal court,
23 not the state entity that's in bankruptcy?

24 MR. BENNETT: The Supreme Court told us along the 25 way to approving the Bankruptcy Act the first -- for

1 municipalities the first time that it's --

2 THE COURT: So even if the state law were to say
3 it's the city that's the pertinent actor, that's not relevant
4 because it's a federal law question.

5 MR. BENNETT: Correct. So for purposes of federal 6 law, the Supreme Court has told us it's the federal
7 Bankruptcy Court that is the relevant actor.

8 So now we get to the pensions clause, and we've got 9 to find that there's a difference. And I think I want to 10 start here. This is going to be somewhat repetitive of the 11 brief. There's nothing in the pensions clause that says
12 anything like, quote, "and the state shall not authorize any 13 municipality to commence a bankruptcy case that would allow a 14 federal court to impair or diminish pension claims." It just 15 doesn't say that. And, of course, it is words like that that 16 the objectors are saying have to be imported into the 17 pensions clause.

18 It's hard, I think, because at the end of the day,
19 apart from the fact that the pensions clause is, quote, "more 20 specific," and it's, of course, more specific because they 21 were looking at pensions because the law in Michigan at the 22 time they were looking at the pensions clause was that 23 pensions weren't a contract. That's the only reason it's 24 more specific. It wasn't because -- there's no other
25 evidence for why it was more specific. The only

1 difference -- the only words that are different are the
2 words, quote, "be diminished." Excuse me. Quote,
3 "diminished or." That's the only difference. "Impaired" is 4 used in all of them. "Prohibition of impairment" is used in 5 all of them. All of them are absolute about prohibitions of 6 impairment.

7 And I'm going to take this in two steps. First of 8 all, the objectors say --

9 THE COURT: Well, but hang on. There's the next 10 sentence, which you didn't include on here, the next sentence
11 of the pension clause.

12 MR. BENNETT: Okay. The funding sentence?

13 THE COURT: Yes.

14 MR. BENNETT: Okay. Well, frankly, that's not 15 focusing on today, and it sounds like it's a --

16 THE COURT: Well, but the objectors argue that this 17 additional consideration that the Michigan Constitution gave 18 to pensions which it didn't give to contracts elevates it,
19 makes it, if not absolute, more absolute than contracts.

20 MR. BENNETT: Well, let's talk about -- I
21 specifically wanted to talk about that because --

22 THE COURT: Okay.

23 MR. BENNETT: -- first of all, why is it -- we 24 should ask ourselves question number one. Why is it that the 25 federal contracts clause and the state contracts clause

1 became less than absolutely binding? It wasn't because of 2 the inadequacies of the language. It was -- in fact, what 3 the courts have done is they put the word "substantial" in 4 front of the word "contract," so an insubstantial impairment
5 doesn't count, and a substantial impairment has some extra
6 hurdles that you have to go over before you can make it. So,
7 frankly, if what they were trying to do was to tighten the 8 pensions clause and make it more distinctive -- and if they 9 went to the books because, of course, all of the cases, you
10 know, Worthen versus Thomas, Home Building & Loan Association
11 versus Blaisdell, these are like cases from the mid-'30s, so
12 they were all on the books in 1961 through 1963, so they knew 13 that, and they knew that the problem was the incorporation of 14 the substantialness concept. So if they were really after 15 solving that problem, why didn't they just put the words
16 right before "impairment" "substantial or insubstantial
17 impairment"? And they could have tightened it up in the way
18 that it had been loosened. They could have prohibited
19 substantial and insubstantial impairments. That would have 20 dealt with -- if they were trying to say we're opting the 21 pensions out of the judge-made doctrines and exceptions that 22 have burdened the federal contracts clause and the state
23 contracts clause, that's how they might do it.

24 Now, by the way, it would be irrelevant to this 25 argument because remember the pensions clause, just like the

1 state contracts clause, just like the federal contracts
2 clause, acts on states and municipalities. It doesn't act on 3 the Bankruptcy Court. It doesn't act on the federal 4 government. And once again, if the right actor -- if the 5 actor that unties the knot or cuts the knot is the federal
6 Bankruptcy Court and the federal government and not the state
7 and not the municipalities, as the Supreme Court says, then 8 the pensions clause, even with the words "substantial or 9 insubstantial" in front of it, doesn't get you all the way
10 home. What they next needed to do in the pensions clause is 11 to say by enacting the pensions clause and giving it -- and 12 making pensions special, we now want to do something else.
13 We really want to say -- objectors thinks the Constitution --
14 that the convention -- that the conventioners really wanted
15 to say, well, in a municipality that has material pension
16 claims, they can't resort to a federal court to seek relief.
17 That's what they really want us to find in the pensions
18 clause. But, frankly --

19 THE COURT: No, no. I don't hear that at all. What 20 I hear is you are welcome to come in that door so long as the 21 city's assets, according to Mr. Dusen, are first allocated to 22 pensions.

23 MR. BENNETT: Well, if there was a lawyer around
24 there at the constitutional convention who was doing
25 research -- and I suspect that there was -- they should be

1 charged with figuring out that the only way to stop the 2 federal courts -- if there is even a way, but the only way to
3 stop federal courts from having the power to impair contracts
4 that maybe a state can't impair is to cut off the -- is to 5 basically say the state cannot ever go to a federal court for 6 a federal -- then it was called composition, you know,
7 federal debt composition case.

8 And the other point that your Honor should note is 9 that -- and we say this in our papers -- during the entire 10 constitutional convention, for years before and almost 11 continuously thereafter, the State of Michigan had authorized
12 the municipalities to file Chapter 9 cases, so if they were 13 really elevating pensions in the way of taking them --
14 distancing themselves from the federal power to impair them
15 and they knew, open paren, one, that the federal debt
16 composition scheme had been determined to be constitutional
17 by the Supreme Court in part because the federal court was 18 doing the work of impairing contracts and they knew -- they 19 have to be presumed to know that Michigan had opted in and 20 had continuously all through the period -- in fact, I think 21 in our papers we say when they repealed it. I think they 22 repealed it around 1980 when general authorization was all 23 that was necessary, so they kind of covered the entire 24 period. No one ever said, gee, we better as hell change
25 this. And in all of the legislative history of the

1 constitutional convention, you don't have a word about
2 bankruptcy and pensions, and the words that you do have --
3 the words that were quoted to you in the papers just filed --
4 I have to find it. Okay. Here's AFSCME's best quote from 5 the official record of the constitutional convention, 2
6 Official Record, page 3402. This is a new section that
7 requires that accrued financial benefits of each pension plan
8 and retirement system of the state and its political 9 subdivisions be a contractual obligation which cannot be 10 diminished or impaired by the action of its officials or 11 governing body. It's in AFSCME's papers, paragraph -- the 12 new ones, the supplemental papers. Actually, those are 13 amended and restated, paragraph 19, page 11. Same brief,
14 paragraph 142, page 71. Pension benefits constitute, quote,
15 "deferred compensation for work performed which should not be 16 diminished by the employing unit after the service has been 17 performed," close quote. Those are the quotes that you were 18 offered by AFSCME about the seriousness and importance of the 19 work done in the constitutional convention from 1961 to 1963,
20 this against the background where it's been the law of the 21 land, at least as far as the Supreme Court is concerned,
22 since 1930 -- I can't remember exactly.

23 THE COURT: So is it your view that the only
24 effective way that the Michigan Constitution could have 25 provided the protection for pensions that the objectors seek

1 here is by the Constitution prohibiting a Chapter 9 filing?

2 MR. BENNETT: Prohibiting authorization of a Chapter
3 9 filing or -- yes, your Honor. That's exactly what they 4 would have had to do, and that's not the kind of thing that 5 they can do by implication.

6 I want to talk a little bit more because I think
7 there's a lot of stress that's put on the words "diminished
8 or," and there is the assertion that "diminished or" has to 9 be given some meaning, but, frankly, the only meaning it
10 could be given is to somehow expand "impaired." I don't 11 personally think it does expand "impaired," and there's -- I
12 want to point out before moving on with a whole bunch of 13 authority to that effect that it's really dangerous for a 14 court to decide that "diminished or" added anything to 15 "impaired" because if the Court decides that "diminished or"
16 filled some gap that's related to the word "diminished and 17 impaired," then in the next case someone is going to come to 18 your Honor and say, "You know that state contracts clause?
19 There's no 'diminished' there, and 'impaired' has to mean
20 less than 'diminished or impaired' in the pensions clause."
21 So it's actually a good thing that there's law out there on 22 this subject -- we had it in our brief -- that basically says
23 that if you run into one of these problems where you've got a
24 list and you want to say that they all have an independent
25 and separate meaning, you've got to propose an independent

1 and separate meaning for the terms on the list that actually
2 solve the problem. And in this case, trying to find an extra
3 meaning for "diminished or" -- again, it's consistent with 4 its place in the sentence -- does -- creates a mess in the 5 state contracts clause in Article I, Section 10.

6 Apart from that, it turns out that when you go look
7 at the books -- and this is not in our papers because this 8 was an issue raised in the responsive papers -- is that every 9 time we found the definition of "impair" in the cases or in 10 dictionaries, it includes diminishment, which should not be 11 terribly surprising. It's a very common sense answer. But 12 if you want a list -- and you might need them in connection
13 with putting together an opinion -- you could start with the 14 Bank of Minden case, which is a Supreme Court case, 256 U.S.
15 126 at 128. Then if you want to go to the Sixth Circuit,
16 Riverview Health Institute, 601 Fed. 3d 505. Black's Law
17 Dictionary, Webster's Third, and then there's a bunch of 18 state courses -- state cases from other states that all say
19 the same thing. I could read the quotes, but I'll save the 20 time because it really is kind of a commonsensical -- a
21 common -- it's common sense that "impaired" has to include
22 "diminished." "Impaired" is much broader than "diminished,"
23 and every so often this is either a -- there's a rhetorical
24 flourish that works its way in, and this may well be what 25 that is, and that's all it can be.

1 Okay. Moving on to the issue of whether or not the 2 authorization to file Chapter 9 is ineffective because the 3 emergency manager or the governor recognized that impairment
4 of pension benefits may be necessary. I don't want to add
5 additional arguments to the constitutional provisions.
6 That's not the purpose of this section. The purpose of this
7 section is to deal with the point made, I think, by only one
8 or two of the objectors that the -- that there's an 9 instruction to the emergency manager to comply with the 10 pension statute, and that should apply to the filing of a
11 Chapter 9 case as well. I'm sure your Honor has your own
12 copy of the Local Financial Stability and Choice Act, Act
13 436, and when you look at the -- most importantly, when you
14 look at the Chapter 9 authorization section, there is no
15 instruction that the emergency manager comply with the 16 protections affecting pensions. By the way, that may well
17 make sense. There are a whole bunch of other provisions that 18 talk about what the emergency manager is supposed to do out 19 of court, and not surprisingly it talks about him having to 20 comply with many laws and to pay many debts and to do many 21 things. He resorts to Chapter 9 when he can't accomplish
22 those things out of court. And if one thought that anything
23 about the emergency manager law meant to say that the 24 emergency manager had to in Chapter 9 continue to not impair
25 pensions, you would think it would belong in the section that

1 is applicable when the emergency manager files Chapter 9.

2 In addition, I think the part that was read to your
3 Honor earlier this morning has a lead-in clause that didn't
4 make it into the record. It reads, "If the emergency manager
5 serves as sole trustee of the local pension board, all of the 6 following should apply," and that's where the provision that 7 was located was read to you, so there is nothing in the 8 emergency manager law -- and, in fact, the structure of the 9 emergency manager law itself suggests that a lot of bets are 10 off in a Chapter 9 context that may not be -- including 11 things that the emergency manager is supposed to try to 12 accomplish if he's in an out-of-court world.

13 Next argument, failing to condition authorization on 14 nonimpairment of --

15 THE COURT: One second. Does that suggest that in 16 order to accomplish what Mr. Orr thinks is necessary to 17 accomplish with regard to pensions, he needs to be a trustee
18 of the plan?

19 MR. BENNETT: No. It's that -- no. He has the 20 right to remove trustees of the plan for other purposes, and 21 these are these extra requirements that are imposed upon him
22 just in those circumstances that it -- I think when your 23 Honor gets a chance to look at it -- what did I do with it?
24 I had it here a second ago, so I'll give you -- let me give 25 the exact section referenced so it's easy to find.

1 THE COURT: Okay.

2 MR. BENNETT: The part I read from is in Section
3 12(m), and it is confined to that relatively narrow
4 circumstance.

5 Okay. First of all, on the issue of whether or not
6 the governor's failure to put conditions on authorization
7 makes the authorization invalid, we indicate in our brief
8 that we don't think that conditions on authorization could be 9 valid, that -- and as I think -- I think I got ahead of 10 myself earlier, so I don't want to take too much time in 11 covering it again now, but we're talking here about one of 12 the core subjects of bankruptcy, which is priorities, who 13 gets paid when there's not enough to go around. If that's 14 not a core subject of bankruptcy -- not in the core versus 15 related, but if that's not the absolute center of the subject
16 of bankruptcies, I don't know what it is. And we've cited a 17 lot of law, and your Honor has pointed out there are many 18 cases, none decided the other way, that say particularly in 19 the context of things touching on priorities and who gets 20 paid first and who gets paid second, who doesn't get paid at 21 all, that the -- that you buy the Bankruptcy Code as a whole.
22 You buy the scheme as a whole. You don't buy parts of it.
23 And in this sense federal law is supreme because once there
24 is a proper bankruptcy case before the Court, it is the 25 federal priority scheme that applies. It is legitimate that

1 the federal priority scheme applies because it's legislation
2 on the subject of bankruptcies, and because it's legislation
3 on the subject of bankruptcies, it is absolutely supreme,
4 period, end of story.

5 So, as to your Honor's hypothetical, if anyone walks
6 into the federal court and says, "I want federal judicial
7 relief. I want to use that federal power to untie and cut
8 knots, but I want the ultimate distribution or really any 9 part of the distribution to be conducted in accordance with 10 my terms," whether they're found in a statute or in a state
11 Constitution, it doesn't matter. The federal law on this 12 issue is supreme, and it's supreme over Constitutions and 13 over statutes, period, end of story.

14 It seems kind of small when done with that to point
15 out that 436 permits but doesn't require conditioning. We 16 can imagine a whole bunch of conditions that might have been 17 very sensible and that might not offend federal jurisdiction
18 like it could have been -- there could have been suggestions
19 or requirements as to exactly how the emergency manager
20 should interact with other elected representatives or with 21 other people. Actually, the governor does have one -- it's 22 not quite a condition. It's a suggestion, but I think he'd 23 be offended if it wasn't followed, which is he wants Mr. Orr
24 to continue to communicate with the governor and the 25 treasurer relating to what he's doing. So I think we can

1 think of several things that could be -- that you could use
2 for the PA 436 conditioning power that would be perfectly
3 okay, but going in and saying, "Gee, as a matter of this 4 particular state law" -- and, by the way, it's -- the 5 governor would -- to do that, he's got to ignore the 6 conflicts that I discussed earlier between a law that says
7 thou shall not impair this one with another law that says
8 you're the first money out. It's mind-boggling what he'd 9 have to reconcile, but the instruction would be, yeah, this 10 one we really meant and the others we didn't really mean,
11 follow that one first. I think that that would be an invalid
12 authorization. I think the Court would have to say that 13 authorization isn't okay for federal court purposes. I think 14 as a prudential matter, the federal court should not get 15 involved in a case where the authorization is conditioned in 16 a way that would offend the federal scheme, but understanding
17 that there may be very extreme and difficult circumstances
18 involved, a creative federal court might want to give people
19 some time to kind of take a couple steps back and figure out
20 how to do it better.

21 THE COURT: Let me ask about Section 943.

22 MR. BENNETT: I need to get a case if you're going
23 to do that because I -- from the --

24 THE COURT: This is the Bankruptcy Code.

25 MR. BENNETT: Yeah.

1 THE COURT: 943(b)(4).

2 MR. BENNETT: Right. There's actually one case
3 that's dealt with that previously, and I think it's --

4 THE COURT: Let me just get my question out.

5 MR. BENNETT: Okay.

6 THE COURT: Thank you. So the question is what does
7 this section mean if it doesn't mean that the state can 8 dictate the priorities?

9 MR. BENNETT: Because it says "from taking any 10 action necessary to carry out the plan," and I --

11 THE COURT: What does that -- what does that 12 language mean? What meaning does it have? How does it come
13 into effect?

14 MR. BENNETT: Okay. I think the best way to work
15 through that is the Sanitary Improvement District Number 7
16 case, 98 B.R. 970, and this is a really fascinating case
17 because the facts gave you every conceivable issue under the 18 sun in terms of the interpretation of this section. What 19 happened in Sanitary Improvement District is that the debtor
20 had -- you know, had claims against it. Let's call them a 21 hundred. I'm using representative numbers, not the actual 22 numbers. As a result of the bankruptcy case, they issued 23 paper, and I think it was like 60. Okay. And the -- but the 24 paper that was 60 had in it a provision that said that if the 25 debtor paid it in full within a certain number -- within a

1 certain number of months -- I think it was 18 months -- after 2 the bankruptcy case is over, it only had to pay 95 cents on 3 the dollar or something like that, and so the creditors came
4 in, and they attacked the whole plan, pointed to a state law
5 that says thou shall pay your bonds. By the way, there are 6 laws like that in Michigan, too. And the court decides very 7 easily that the takedown from a hundred to 60, well, that's 8 supremacy clause bankruptcy. You can do that notwithstanding
9 state law. What you can't do, though, is because state law
10 says you have to pay bonds at a hundred percent of principal, 11 you can't have the five-percent discount feature because 12 that's -- after the bankruptcy, you issued this new bond, you
13 know, with 60 being the new hundred, but you've said that you
14 can still pay that off at a discount. That violates 15 943(b)(4). So what this case illustrates is that this looks 16 at the obligations after they've been restructured and says
17 that the Bankruptcy Court does the restructuring. By the 18 way, very consistent with the Cardozo and the Bekins view of 19 the world, you -- and you're finished. The bankruptcy --
20 there's a confirmation order. New instruments are issued.
21 Those instruments, the ones that you walk out of Bankruptcy
22 Court with, have to be instruments that you can perform in 23 accordance with state law.

24 THE COURT: So this provision, in your view, says
25 nothing about the requirement of the plan itself or the order

1 confirming plan to comply with state law.

2 MR. BENNETT: I don't know if there's any case that
3 says that. There may be. I think Sanitary and Improvement
4 District Number 7 has got it right, that it does not say
5 anything about the Bankruptcy Code restructuring process. It
6 only acts on the debt that is issued after the case is over.

7 I don't think I have to spend time on it, so I'm 8 going to skip over -- again, it's in our papers. There's an 9 assertion in the papers that the Tenth Amendment is not 10 reserved -- that the Tenth Amendment reserves every issue
11 relating to municipal pensions to the states. I think we've 12 dealt with that enough in the constitutional section, and I
13 don't have to deal with -- this really is the -- an argument
14 was built, constructed based upon the fact that in the case
15 of ERISA the federal government didn't make ERISA -- didn't 16 make states or municipalities applicable to ERISA, didn't 17 create the insurance program, PBGC, and the assertion is made 18 because the federal government chose not to go into those 19 areas, they must have done that because they were absolutely 20 precluded from doing so, ergo they are precluded from using 21 the bankruptcy power to modify pensions. I think that fails 22 logically in a lot of places, but most importantly maybe to 23 start with is that it's not clear that there is no possible
24 way for the federal government to apply the ERISA statute or 25 the PBG statute to state municipalities, maybe to states but

1 not to municipalities, and -- at all, by the way, and that
2 Congress didn't may have reflected political realities at the 3 time and not actual constitutional limitations, so I think
4 the starting point of that argument just fails, and I think
5 we've seen that federal -- that a federal bankruptcy power
6 can be applied by the federal court to obligations. Pensions
7 are clearly within the federal bankruptcy power, no dispute
8 in the private context. There's nothing different about 9 Chapter 9 context. And so there is no such part of the Tenth
10 Amendment that constrains this aspect of the subject of 11 bankruptcies.

12 The next point is a really important one, and I
13 could easily have started with it, and I know your Honor has 14 been concerned with it throughout, which is whether or not 15 your Honor really has to deal with the -- whether or not 16 pensions can be impaired in bankruptcy in the context of 17 authorization. I hope it's clear to your Honor that the city
18 is perfectly comfortable with you dealing with it now or 19 perfectly comfortable with dealing with it later. We don't 20 think that this is -- some of these things may be a little 21 bit conceptually difficult and complex, but the 22 constitutional law on the subject is really pretty clear, and 23 so we're prepared to have it decided. We think that there's 24 only one way to decide it. There is, though, a way for your 25 Honor to decide not to decide it, which is to find -- and the

1 next to the last sentence I read from Justice Cardozo in his
2 dissent where he says, "just the filing is not doing
3 anything," we say that, too. It is starting a bankruptcy
4 case. I have said at the beginning -- I mean it -- there is 5 nothing inevitable. A cramdown of revisions to pension
6 benefits, a cramdown of a particular treatment of the 7 underfunded portion of the pension obligation is not
8 necessarily the way this case is going to end, and it's not 9 necessarily the next step in this case. We just don't know.
10 The next -- obviously right now mediation is an important
11 milestone. The next important milestone is the plan, and 12 since your Honor has been around the Bankruptcy Courts for a 13 good long time, you know that the plan that we file before 14 the end of this year is not likely to be the plan that we 15 ultimately confirm. It would be actually a good exercise for 16 different people to figure which amended plan is going to be 17 the plan. The bottom line is nobody really knows. And so it
18 is possible to adopt Justice Cardozo's view that no change in 19 obligation results from the filing of a petition by one
20 seeking a discharge whether a public or private corporation
21 invokes the jurisdiction and basically say since nobody has 22 done anything yet, we're not going to decide anything more.
23 You could do that. I will say that the -- I think that the 24 assertion that there is an imminence that -- an imminence of 25 harm represented by the filing of the Chapter 9 case that

1 requires this Court to act is, frankly, not a fair statement
2 of the law. I think one of the more important cases is
3 Donohue. It's been cited by objectors. The most important
4 part -- Donohue is the Nassau County financial restructuring
5 case, and the most important part of Donohue that led the 6 Court to act I think is mentioned by the Court. It's kind of 7 near the end of the opinion. The Court says the law, the 8 ordinance that gave the county executive all the powers, 9 "provides expansive and seemingly limitless power to the 10 County Executive without any reasonable restraints other than 11 the procedural mechanism of an executive order." This case
12 would be a lot simpler if all Kevyn Orr had to do to 13 reorganize the debts of Detroit was to say how he wanted to 14 do it and sign it as an order. He doesn't think he has that 15 power. I don't think he has that power. No one in this room
16 thinks he has this power. We've talked about the fact that 17 to get to a debt adjustment plan that is nonconsensually
18 confirmed, it has to be filed. There has to be disclosure
19 statement approved. There has to be voting. There has to be 20 more discovery. There has to be a confirmation hearing, and 21 there has to be an order of this Court. That is a very 22 different procedure or array of protections than was 23 available in the Donohue case, which is, frankly, the closest
24 case to this one in terms of the kinds of things that we're 25 talking about here. If your Honor goes through the other

1 cases that have been cited for the proposition of imminent
2 harm, you will find that in all of them there was no judicial
3 step going to occur before the harm might be inflicted. In 4 all of --

5 THE COURT: Let me ask that question here. Can 6 you -- are you willing to identify here on the record or can 7 you identify here on the record any conceivable circumstance
8 in which retiree benefits, pensions won't be impaired by a 9 plan?

10 MR. BENNETT: You know, your Honor, at this point
11 there are a number of major things that I don't know, and I
12 will say I don't know that there won't be money from outside,
13 although I tend to doubt it. I don't know that. I do not 14 know whether there will be -- whether certain other assets
15 will, in fact, be available to the city to address its debts,
16 and I will point out in this regard that while the objectors
17 have cited over and over and over again a pleading filed by 18 the attorney general asserting the primacy of pension claims,
19 they've all managed to have forgotten a formal opinion he's 20 given concerning the accessibility of certain assets in this
21 bankruptcy case, particularly the art, and -- but I have no
22 idea, number one, what's going to happen with that, and I
23 have no idea what the -- whether or not there will, in fact,
24 be a transaction involving the departments of water and 25 sewerage and whether those transactions will deliver material

1 dollars. So while I'd be kidding myself and kidding the 2 Court and kidding everyone here if I said that I thought it
3 was anything but likely that there would be some impairment
4 of the underfunding claims in this case, it's not fair to ask
5 me and I don't think I could say that there's no scenario
6 where impairment will not be necessary. I just don't think I
7 can even say that today.

8 THE COURT: Okay. Even with that much of a 9 disclosure here, why isn't that enough to say there's an 10 impairment here?

11 MR. BENNETT: I'm sorry.

12 THE COURT: Why isn't that enough to say at this 13 point in time there's an impairment?

14 MR. BENNETT: Well --

15 THE COURT: There's a sufficient impairment to get 16 past ripeness anyway.

17 MR. BENNETT: You know, I don't think you can say
18 there's impairment because the Supreme Court has told us
19 there is not. There won't be impairment, your Honor, until 20 you say so. Is there a risk of impairment? There's a risk
21 of impairment. Is the risk of impairment enough to make this 22 ripe? And the answer is is that -- I think this is the 23 answer when -- I mean the Donohue case is a good example, but 24 I think it ripples through all the others, which is that if a 25 court is presented with a situation where there's a risk of

1 impairment and the impairment can occur before there's 2 another opportunity or requirement that people show up in 3 front of a judge, then they start thinking about whether 4 there's interim harm, but there's not a single case that has 5 been cited to you that says there is imminent harm in 6 circumstances where no one is going to suffer anything until 7 and unless a court enters an order after notice,
8 opportunities for discovery, opportunities for hearing, and 9 all the other protections that are available in connection
10 with a plan confirmation process in a Bankruptcy Court. It's 11 just totally different. The cases are dealing with a totally 12 different situation, particularly the Donohue case.

13 Do you have -- we're 20 minutes to.

14 THE COURT: Twenty till five.

15 MR. BENNETT: Do you want to save time for your 16 questions or --

17 THE COURT: If you want to stop now, and we'll pick 18 it up with the government's attorney, that's fine with me,
19 and then we'll pick up the balance of your argument tomorrow.
20 Is that what you're --

21 MR. BENNETT: I think it's a good break point.

22 THE COURT: Okay.

23 MR. BENNETT: I have very minor things left.

24 THE COURT: Good.

25 MR. TROY: Matthew Troy, your Honor, Department of

1 Justice, Civil Division, on behalf of the United States. If
2 it makes any difference to your Honor or the other parties, I
3 am here for tonight and can be available tomorrow as well.

4 THE COURT: I appreciate that, but since you're 5 here, let's have at it.

6 MR. TROY: Fair enough.

7 THE COURT: Well, my primary questions relate to how
8 you address the arguments here that the objecting parties
9 made in response to your brief regarding ripeness.

10 MR. TROY: To be honest with you, your Honor, I've 11 only reviewed those very quickly because I filed the brief on 12 Friday and then went back to furlough status. And on 13 Monday --

14 THE COURT: That.

15 MR. TROY: And on Monday --

16 THE COURT: Well, would it be your preference to 17 have overnight to think about how to respond to the 18 objectors' concerns regarding ripeness?

19 MR. TROY: Sure. I can do that.

20 THE COURT: Would that be your preference?

21 MR. TROY: That would be, yeah, a more fulsome
22 discussion, I think.

23 THE COURT: All right. Then you are excused, and I
24 will hear from you tomorrow regarding that. Do you want to 25 stop for the day now and pick it up tomorrow?

1 MR. BENNETT: Your pleasure, your Honor. I can keep
2 going, but I can also stop. I'm not going to -- I don't
3 have -- less than 30 minutes left, in fact, significantly
4 less than 30 minutes left.

5 THE COURT: Well, do you think you can finish in the 6 20 minutes that are left before five?

7 MR. BENNETT: I'll try.

8 THE COURT: All right. Then I would invite you to 9 try.

10 MR. BENNETT: Let me just get a little bit
11 reorganized. Okay. The next topic on my list is collateral
12 estoppel, and, your Honor, I think with respect to collateral
13 estoppel, a couple of points are worth focusing on. First of 14 all, our very, very first point on this -- and I think it's 15 dispositive -- is that when this case was filed, this Court
16 had the most exclusive jurisdiction it ever gets about 17 anything, absolutely exclusive interest -- exclusive
18 jurisdiction under 1334(a) to decide matters in the case, and 19 eligibility is a matter in the case. And the assertion by 20 the objectors is that the Webster court really didn't decide
21 eligibility. The Webster court was deciding some abstract
22 issues of state law. And, your Honor, two things. Number 23 one, the objectors can't even say that without mentioning the 24 eligibility determination, and here I'm looking at the 25 funds -- Mr. Gordon's brief at page 32. The Webster judgment

1 rules squarely on the constitutionality of PA 436 and the
2 governor's authorization of the emergency manager to proceed
3 under Chapter 9 in light of the pensions clause of the 4 Michigan Constitution. There was absolutely no confusion in 5 the judge's mind or anyone around that courtroom's mind that
6 what they were trying to do was to get an early determination
7 of eligibility. It might have succeeded, but this case was 8 actually filed first. And by the way, although the attorney 9 general will probably have more to say about this, there was 10 no adjournment sought for purposes of filing the Chapter 9
11 case, and the transcript shows no such thing. And they know
12 more about the circumstances than I do, and they can address
13 it tomorrow when it's their turn.

14 But there's an even more important point, which is 15 that the order that was entered by the judge purports to 16 enjoin the emergency manager directing him to have the case
17 dismissed and not file another one, so I just -- I can't 18 abide the assertion and the record does not support the 19 assertion that what happened in that court was not an effort
20 at an eligibility determination, so, number one, that was 21 within the exclusive jurisdiction of this Court. If it was 22 within the exclusive jurisdiction of this Court, it wasn't
23 within the jurisdiction of that Court to do anything about 24 it, and, therefore, any judgment that was entered after the 25 filing for that reason alone is void.

1 Now, second point we make is that the automatic stay
2 applied as well because the entire event, even though the 3 city was not a party, was an effort to gain control over the 4 city's assets and an effort to enhance collection of the 5 debt. Again, there can't be much dispute about that, open
6 paren, one, partly because of the way the whole proceeding
7 evolved and how everyone understood it, but more importantly,
8 here again we have the judge explicitly talking about the 9 Chapter 9 case and attempting to stop the Chapter 9 case
10 because of the perception that the Chapter 9 case might 11 impair pensions, and those kinds of acts are clearly within 12 the automatic stay. Again, I think that the --

13 THE COURT: Just to be clear, you're talking about 14 the automatic stay of Section 362 --

15 MR. BENNETT: Yes.

16 THE COURT: -- the Bankruptcy Code.

17 MR. BENNETT: Correct, the Bankruptcy Code's
18 automatic stay, or 942. The other half of it is in the -- is 19 in Chapter 9 as well.

20 Full and fair opportunity to litigate. Again, I
21 would ask the Court to look at the record in that case.
22 There had been -- it is certainly true that a whole bunch of 23 briefs that were filed -- I don't think the hearing where 24 this all occurred had previously been calendared and noticed
25 to anybody. The hearing was set on an emergency basis, and

1 someone got on the phone and called for the attorney
2 general's office because they thought it might be a good idea
3 to tell him about it about an hour before the hearing.
4 That's actually not the way things are fully and fairly
5 litigated in any courts I visit, and I don't think that when 6 your Honor ticks through the procedural elements of what
7 happened in that case in Lansing is going to be convinced
8 that there was a full and fair opportunity to litigate.

9 THE COURT: Let me ask you just a sort of 10 administrative question regarding this. Do we have in our 11 record here all of the pleadings and papers and dockets and 12 transcripts from that case?

13 MR. BENNETT: I don't know if they're there yet.

14 MS. NELSON: I believe I can answer that, your 15 Honor. Assistant Attorney General Margaret Nelson. It's my 16 understanding, no, those have not been submitted. I do have 17 all of the transcripts, which I was prepared to present to 18 the Court when I make my argument, which now appears to be 19 tomorrow. If the Court would like the submission of the 20 pleadings, we'll be happy to do that, although it's --

21 THE COURT: Well, my understanding is that some of 22 the pleadings have been attached to various briefs, but I'm 23 just not sure if it's everything.

24 MS. NELSON: There was only a -- there was --

25 THE COURT: Just to --

1 MR. BENNETT: We'll get it in.

2 THE COURT: Yeah, exactly. Just to be complete --

3 MS. NELSON: Yes.

4 THE COURT: -- let me make my request to you that 5 our record here include everything from that case, including 6 the docket.

7 MS. NELSON: There's three cases, your Honor.

8 THE COURT: Okay.

9 MS. NELSON: And so -- that were filed separately --

10 THE COURT: Well, but I think the --

11 MS. NELSON: -- so I will submit everything --

12 THE COURT: I think the one that's at issue here is 13 the one in which a judgment was entered.

14 MS. NELSON: Correct.

15 THE COURT: That's the one I need.

16 MS. NELSON: So you want everything in the case in 17 which the judgment was entered the next day, including the 18 docket entries.

19 THE COURT: Thank you.

20 MS. NELSON: Would you also like the Court of 21 Appeals materials --

22 THE COURT: Yes.

23 MS. NELSON: -- because the Court of Appeals
24 materials were --

25 THE COURT: Yes.

1 MS. NELSON: -- filed and a stay order entered
2 thereto?

3 THE COURT: Just for --

4 MS. NELSON: Webster?

5 THE COURT: For completeness, yeah. All right. I
6 have to -- I have to pause here. I've been advised that the 7 people in our overflow room couldn't hear this exchange, so I
8 will just restate it for the record. The attorney general's 9 representative has agreed to provide to the Court in this
10 case the complete record from the Webster litigation not only
11 at the trial court level but at the Court of Appeals level,
12 including all pleadings and papers, transcripts, and docket
13 entries, the docket itself. You may proceed, sir.

14 MR. BENNETT: Okay. Lastly, the last factor with 15 respect to collateral estoppel, your Honor, is the issue of 16 whether or not the judgment would be binding on the city in 17 any event. Of course, the city was not a party to those 18 proceedings. The assertion is made that the -- that there is 19 privity between the city and the state because they have a 20 common legal interest in some matters in connection with this 21 Chapter 9 case. Frankly, I don't think those are the same
22 standard, and I think we covered that in our papers, but I
23 will say one other thing is that to the extent that there --
24 that the plaintiffs in those cases believed that the city was 25 in privity with the state with respect to those cases is an

1 additional reason why the automatic stay applied from the
2 very beginning because if they thought that they were in a
3 case with the state really trying to bind the city, then it
4 is perfectly clear that they violated the automatic stay.

5 I don't think I have any other material topics that
6 I think we need to cover based upon the argument by others.
7 If I've missed something or if your Honor has any questions,
8 I'd be happy to take them. Otherwise I'll allow the attorney 9 general to take the floor tomorrow.

10 THE COURT: Um-hmm.

11 MR. BENNETT: We'll be done early.

12 THE COURT: Okay. Good. We'll be in recess now
13 until 10 a.m. tomorrow morning.

14 MS. NELSON: Your Honor, before you leave the bench,
15 may I just ask do you want those pleading -- do you want
16 everything submitted electronically?

17 THE COURT: Yes, yes, in the record of this case.
18 Thank you.

19 THE CLERK: All rise. Court is adjourned.

1 THE CLERK: All rise. Court is in session. Please
2 be seated. Case Number 13-53846, City of Detroit, Michigan.

3 THE COURT: Good morning, everybody.

4 ATTORNEYS: Good morning, your Honor.

5 THE COURT: Okay. Who's up?

6 MS. NELSON: Good morning, your Honor. Assistant
7 Attorney General Margaret Nelson on behalf of the State of 8 Michigan in response to the objections that are currently 9 pending legal issues before the Court. Before I begin, if I
10 may approach, I would like to present the Court with two 11 cases -- well, actually an order and a case decision that I
12 will be referring to later in my arguments --

13 THE COURT: Okay.

14 MS. NELSON: -- the state's rebuttal or response to 15 arguments that were raised yesterday. The state's focus with 16 respect to the legal objections raised to the City of 17 Detroit's eligibility focused principally on the 18 constitutionality of Public Act 436 and the lawfulness of the 19 governor's authorization thereunder to the city and the 20 emergency manager to proceed in bankruptcy under Chapter 9.
21 The objectors essentially identified four principal bases for 22 contending that Public Act 436 is unconstitutional. The 23 first is in the context of Section 18(1) when they allege 24 that it fails to protect public pensions from inclusion in 25 the bankruptcy proceedings initiated by the local government

1 as authorized by the state. Second, they allege that Public
2 Act 436 violates the home rule provisions of Michigan's
3 Constitution under Article VII. Third, they allege that 436
4 improperly delegates authority to the emergency manager and 5 thereby violates the separation of powers provisions within 6 Michigan's Constitution. And, fourth, they argue that Public
7 Act 436 lacks adequate standards to guide the emergency
8 manager's actions in bankruptcy, thereby creating, I'm 9 assuming, a due process violation, although they aren't 10 specifically clear with respect to that. Principally, the 11 arguments presented yesterday addressed Sections 18(1), and 12 that will essentially be the focus of my response this 13 morning, your Honor.

14 THE COURT: Excuse me for just one second. I meant
15 to say this at the beginning of our session here this 16 morning. Ms. Levine, due to time constraints, you did not 17 address your home rule argument yesterday. I hope you'll 18 give that a priority when you do get the microphone again.

19 MS. NELSON: Thank you, your Honor. In addressing 20 the constitutionality of this provision and, in fact, the 21 overall statute -- state statute itself, the Court must be 22 guided by specific principles of state law in addressing
23 constitutionality of statutes. First -- the first principle
24 that the Court must be guided by is that statutes are 25 presumed to be constitutional, and courts have a duty to

1 construe a statute as constitutional unless its 2 unconstitutionality is clearly apparent on its face, and for 3 that proposition, your Honor, I cite you to a case relied on 4 by principally all of the objectors, and it's also cited by 5 the City of Detroit, In re. Request for Advisory Opinion of 6 the Constitutionality of 2011 Public Act 238, and that's 7 found at 490 Mich. 295.

8 THE COURT: Of course, that's not exactly the 9 standard when the challenge is that the law was enacted in 10 some unconstitutional manner.

11 MS. NELSON: Correct, your Honor, and that's the 12 next principle.

13 THE COURT: Okay.

14 MS. NELSON: So when you're construing the statute
15 itself in a facial challenge to the statute which is 16 presented here initially, the unconstitutionality must first
17 be apparent on its face. And the reason the In re. Request 18 opinion is so significant is because it is a direct analysis
19 of the very constitutional provision that's at issue here,
20 and it directs the Court to the second principle of 21 construction that's applicable to this analysis, and that is 22 the principle of construction given to constitutional
23 provisions under Michigan law. The objective in reviewing a 24 constitutional provision is to effectuate the intent of the 25 ratifiers who adopted the constitution, not the drafters but

1 the ratifiers. And the lodestar principle, for purposes of 2 this review, is that of common understanding, so, in other
3 words, the Court must determine the common understanding of 4 the terms and give sense to the words used that would have 5 been most obvious to those who voted to adopt that particular
6 constitutional provision. That, again, is emphasized in the 7 In re. Advisory Opinion with respect to 2011 Public Act 38 at 8 page 308. And it's significant here, your Honor, for two 9 purposes, for the two reasons that are essential to the 10 analysis here. The Michigan Supreme Court has already done
11 this principle analysis in the context of Article IX, Section
12 24, with respect to the impairment of pensions and squarely
13 addresses the issue that the objectors have been arguing to 14 this Court is created or is significant here. In this 15 advisory opinion, the Michigan Supreme Court concluded that 16 Article IX, Section 24, does essentially four things. It was 17 the obvious intent of the provision to ensure public pensions
18 be treated as contractual obligations that once earned could 19 not be diminished. There's no question of that. Second, the 20 provision is designed to say that when an employee benefit
21 comes due, a pension -- when the employee's pension benefit
22 comes due, he or she has a contractual right to receive it.
23 Third, the accrued financial benefit of a pension is the 24 pension income itself, and, fourth, diminishing or impairing
25 the accrued financial benefit means the actual reduction of

1 pension income. In other words, the loss -- the actual loss
2 of pension income is the impairment. That's significant to 3 the issue raised by the objectors in the context of the 4 facial challenge to 436 and as this Court has addressed
5 questions on yesterday. Clearly 18(1) of 436 does not on its 6 face cause or commit an actual reduction of pension income,
7 and that is the definition, and that is the application of 8 impairment this Court must apply because that is the 9 determination of the Michigan Supreme Court's common 10 understanding of impairment or diminishment in the context of 11 Article IX, Section 24.

12 So what does that mean to this discussion? Going
13 back to the statutory interpretation principles, the Court
14 must look at the language of the statute and determine if 15 it's ambiguous or not, the clear meaning, and construe it in 16 a way that gives meaning to the legislature's intent. Here
17 the legislature clearly did not intend to impair public
18 pensions through the use of the bankruptcy process in terms
19 of its authorization. So 18(1), by authorizing the 20 bankruptcy filing or authorizing the government to -- or the 21 governor to authorize the bankruptcy filing and ultimately 22 making that filing does not commit an impairment because it
23 does not cause an actual diminishment in pension benefits as 24 defined by the Michigan Supreme Court. So on its face, 436
25 is constitutional and in accord with Article IX, Section 24.

1 Need there be any further discussion with respect to 2 that? Actually not. And there is additional case law, your 3 Honor, that's cited within that advisory opinion which
4 confirms that. The Court relies very heavily on the Studier
5 versus Michigan Public School Retirement Board case from a
6 few years prior to that, and I have the cite for the Court if 7 it cares for that because essentially the same analysis was 8 done in that case. Studier is found at 472 Mich. 642, and 9 the discussion of the interpretation of Article IX, Section
10 24, begins at page 6 -- let me make sure I have the right
11 page here -- 656, so it's consistent. And, in fact, that 12 court, the Studier court, criticizes Musselman and the 13 analysis made in the Musselman decisions as to what the 14 intent of the drafters and the ratifiers was in the context
15 of adopting Article IX, Section 24.

16 So with respect to that first issue on which the 17 constitutionality of 436 hinges in terms of the arguments
18 raised by the objector, the Michigan Supreme Court has 19 addressed that. This Court is obligated to apply the 20 definition of Article IX, Section 24, identified and applied
21 by the Michigan Supreme Court, and so in that context,
22 Section 18, Sub 1, does not impair -- actually impair and,
23 therefore, does not violate Article IX, Section 24, by 24 failing to carve out any protections for those pensions.

25 Similar analysis is required then of the

1 authorization provided by the governor. As we've argued, as 2 the Court has noted, essentially in the context of the 3 ripeness arguments that have been made and the questions that 4 it has been asked, the authorization clearly applying that
5 application made by the Michigan Supreme Court does not cause
6 an actual impairment of pension benefits. Doesn't matter
7 what the intent might be. Doesn't matter if the governor
8 chose not to impose contingencies. In order for the legal 9 process to operate in the context of the Bankruptcy Code, as 10 this Court noted, there is no actual impairment worked or 11 caused by the authorization; therefore, the authorization is 12 in total compliance with Article IX, Section 24, and allows 13 this matter to proceed through the appropriate legal 14 processes established under the Bankruptcy Code.

15 With respect to the home rules provisions analysis,
16 your Honor, Article VII, Section 22, of Michigan's 17 Constitution recognizes that there are obligations and 18 responsibilities imposed on local governments separate and 19 apart from the state; however, the constitutional provision
20 also recognizes that these duties, obligations,
21 responsibilities, and authorities of the local governments
22 are subject to the control and change by state law. Very 23 clearly, this constitutional limitation on the powers and 24 authorities of municipalities has been recognized in 25 legislation, specifically the Home Rule Act, which we cite in

1 our brief, at MCL 171.1 et seq. and particularly at Section
2 MCL 117.36, which is -- which essentially codifies the 3 limitations of Article VII, Section 22.

4 What the objectors' argument fails to recognize is,
5 first, local governments are not sovereign. Second, they are 6 creatures of the state. Third, the federal government and 7 the federal courts have long recognized those limitations on 8 local governments, and, fourth, they are subject to control
9 by the state legislature in that the state may change the 10 laws, authorities, powers of local governments at any given
11 time. And the federal courts have consistently recognized
12 that most recently in the Sailors decision that's cited in 13 our brief, which is exactly what has occurred here. Because 14 the local governments derive their power and authority from 15 the state and are, in fact, creatures of the state, the state
16 has the power to change that authority and to change the 17 course, the shape, and the force and authority of their 18 governments. This statute, Public Act 436, is just such a 19 law, and it has that purpose.

20 THE COURT: Well, but to what extent are the home
21 rule powers of a city derived from the Michigan Constitution
22 as opposed to statute?

23 MS. NELSON: The Michigan Constitution has limited
24 recognition of home rule authority, and in the language of 25 Article VII, Section 22, it recognizes that all resolutions

1 and ordinances of the local governments are subject to the 2 Constitution and laws of the state, so, in other words, case
3 law has recognized, as does the codification of these 4 limitations in the Constitution, that the legislature may 5 impact and affect any municipality's ordinances, any 6 municipality's laws, forms of government, funding, or any 7 other aspect of authority granted it directly from the state,
8 so to the extent that 436 has the purpose of addressing 9 emergency financial crises in local communities, that is 10 exactly the type and purpose of the law recognized under 11 Article VII, Section 22, an authority that is given to the 12 legislature over its local communities.

13 THE COURT: So is there any limitation in the 14 Michigan Constitution on the legislature's power and 15 authority to control the form of government for the City of 16 Detroit?

17 MS. NELSON: In the form of adopting their charter
18 provisions, yes. The city can in its charter, which is then 19 submitted to the voters for approval, identify its form of 20 government, how its officials will be elected, and allocate
21 the power and authority granted to those officials through 22 the Constitution and the laws of the State of Michigan, and 23 that's what has occurred. However, the legislature retains 24 authority through the Home Rule Act to even alter or amend 25 ordinances and charter provisions; in other words, the

1 legislature can pass a law that in its application and effect
2 would render a charter provision or a city ordinance
3 unconstitutional. For example, with respect to taxation, the 4 state can cap the amount of tax -- or the level of taxation
5 that a community might be able to impose, mills or things
6 like that. If a charter provision had been adopted that 7 established a higher level, it would be subordinate to the 8 state law, so in the same -- in that context, because the 9 legislature retains authority under Article II to promulgate
10 legislation and does not commit to any specific type or form
11 or purpose of legislation with respect to cities, that can 12 change. It recognizes the legislature's continuing authority
13 to change the law and the effect that those changes in law
14 will have on the operations of its local communities vis-a-
15 vis its ordinances and its charters. So the two, yes, work
16 in tandem. The communities do have the authority to identify 17 their forms of government, how their officials will be 18 elected, and how that will be implemented, but at the same
19 time, the legislature, for example, controls the election
20 laws, identifies how elections will be handled, taxation.

21 THE COURT: But the question the objection raises
22 here is doesn't the state's appointment and imposition of an 23 emergency manager on the City of Detroit change its form of 24 government by abrogating the powers of the City Council and 25 the mayor to the emergency manager?

1 MS. NELSON: Absolutely, it does, and the
2 legislature clearly, as we've identified in our brief, has
3 the authority to do that under both the Home Rule Cities Act
4 and under the various provisions of the Constitution that
5 control forms of government and the authority of the state
6 over its local communities. The local communities --

7 THE COURT: So is it too simplistic to say that the 8 city sets its own form of government through its charter
9 unless the state dictates otherwise through its legislation?

10 MS. NELSON: Absolutely, and that's the whole point
11 of the home rule --

12 THE COURT: It's not too simplistic --

13 MS. NELSON: It's not too simplistic.

14 THE COURT: -- to put it just that way.

15 MS. NELSON: It's just that way, and it's clear in 16 both the constitutional provision, and it's clear under the 17 Home Rules Cities Act, which implements those limitations
18 that are imposed on local governments vis-a-vis Article VII,
19 Section 22. The federal courts have recognized that as -- 20 and, again, I cite the Court to the Sailors decision from the 21 United States Supreme Court, which recognizes the overarching
22 authority of the state. Because local governments are 23 creatures of the state, the state can determine what it's -- 24 what authority it's going to give, what its local officials
25 will look like, what its forms of government will look like.

1 Second, I would also point out, your Honor, that 2 this is essentially a temporary situation, so this isn't the 3 state dictating that this is how the city is going to be 4 operating forever. There are limits on this, and there are 5 authorities in Public -- authority in Public Act 436 given to 6 the local officials to petition the state to remove the 7 emergency manager, so there is --

8 THE COURT: Right, but none of that is
9 constitutionally required. If I understand you correctly, 10 the legislation could say the governor picks the mayor of the 11 City of Detroit.

12 MS. NELSON: Well, potentially it could, yes, but it
13 doesn't. It doesn't have to. They chose not to.

14 THE COURT: So but bottom line, your position is 15 that in no sense is the city charter supreme or preemptive
16 over state legislation.

17 MS. NELSON: Absolutely not, or over the state's 18 Constitution. In fact, it's the reverse, and that's very 19 clearly the relationship established in Article VII, Section
20 22, and in the Home Rules Act statute itself that codifies
21 those provisions.

22 The next challenge -- and I might also point out, as 23 we did in our brief, your Honor, there is a parallel example
24 in the Home Rule Village Act itself which does essentially 25 the same thing, so we're not just talking about cities, but

1 we're talking about all local governments. The Home Rule
2 Cities Act, the Home Rule Village Act, all operate in the 3 same way. Now, the forms of government where there might be 4 some differences are principally townships and school
5 districts, although they, too, are creatures of the state.
6 While the Court -- or the -- I'm sorry -- while the 7 legislature gives them some different authorities, it still 8 gives them those authorities and those powers in the same way
9 that it does its cities and villages and other local forms of 10 government.

11 The objectors also challenge the constitutionality
12 of 436 with respect to Article VII, Section 21, and Section
13 34. Section 21 is a taxation essentially provision, and it
14 limits the authority of local governments to tax, borrow 15 money, and contract debts, so this is another example of the 16 authority that the state exercises over its local 17 communities. 436 recognizes and imposes these same
18 limitations on the emergency manager that the law imposes on 19 its public officials who are operating their local 20 governments, and it provides the state oversight and control
21 of these matters in the same way that it does its local 22 government officials, especially when they are under a
23 financial emergency. So, in effect, 436 treats the emergency 24 manager no differently than it does local officials in the 25 context of the local government's authority to tax, to borrow

1 money, or to contract debts, so there is no unconstitutional
2 actions at work here merely because the emergency manager is 3 now the one operating the city making those decisions as 4 opposed to the elected officials.

5 Similarly, Article VII, Section 34, merely
6 establishes the standard for interpreting the authority
7 granted by Constitution and state law, so, in other words, it
8 says the Michigan legislature retains authority to define and 9 modify the powers, duties, and obligations of its local 10 governments, which are derived from the state in the first 11 instance. It says that those powers given to the local 12 governments must be construed with deference to the local 13 government, but it still recognizes that those powers come 14 from the state, from the legislature, and can be changed in 15 any instance where the legislature believes that it's 16 appropriate to do so.

17 Finally, your Honor, as we've argued in our brief --
18 and there were no arguments presented to the Court
19 yesterday -- 436 is not an unconstitutional delegation of 20 authority under Article III, Section 2. It's not delegating
21 legislative power to the emergency manager. It allows the 22 emergency manager to simply execute the same executive powers
23 that the elected officials of the community would have within 24 the context of authority granted it under 436, principally in 25 Section 12(1), which identifies all of the various powers and

1 authorities. There are controls. There are restraints.
2 There are reviews required, approvals from the treasurer for 3 many of these at the state level or approval from the 4 governor for some of these actions that have to be done, and 5 there are also limitations on the emergency manager's 6 authority to make actions without the approval of the local
7 government, a significant difference between Public Act 4.
8 For example, with respect to the sale of assets or the 9 distribution of assets, the value of the assets will 10 determine the extent to which the local government must also 11 be involved in many of these decisions, so it is not -- and 12 to the extent that the objectors are arguing that there are 13 insufficient standards by which to guide the emergency
14 manager, I would submit the emergency manager is guided by 15 the same standards that would have applied to the local 16 officials when they were exercising that power, and there's 17 no argument from the objectors that those standards applied
18 to and by the local elected officials are inadequate for 19 their exercise of that authority, and those are the standards
20 that guide the emergency manager's actions as well. So not 21 only is this an appropriate delegation of authority by the 22 state under its constitutional and statutory authority and 23 its role in relation to its local governments, it is also 24 sufficient for purposes of guiding the emergency manager's 25 actions both as to -- under the law and in relation to the

1 oversight provided by the State of Michigan.

2 Yesterday, your Honor, there was an argument made by
3 Krystal Crittendon with respect to the Court's -- the 4 jurisdiction and the authority essentially of the emergency
5 manager to file this action. I have provided the Court a
6 copy of an order issued by the Michigan Court of Appeals on 7 November 16th, 2012 -- I brought a copy for Ms. Crittendon,
8 but she's not here today -- which squarely resolves that 9 issue. And if I'm understanding her -- following her
10 argument correctly, her argument is that because the 11 emergency manager was appointed under Public Act 72, that 12 that was an improper appointment because the repeal of Public
13 Act 4 did not revive Public Act 72 under the state's repealer
14 statute. That was --

15 THE COURT: That was part of her argument.

16 MS. NELSON: Right. That has been an issue, and 17 that's the part that I'm addressing with respect to this 18 order, your Honor. That particular issue has been raised in 19 at least four different cases challenging the appointment of 20 various emergency managers after the suspension of Public Act
21 4 under the referendum process and subsequently under its 22 rejection. And the order that I have provided to you is in 23 the case of Robert Davis versus Roy Roberts. It's Court of 24 Appeals Docket Number 313297, and it squarely rejects that 25 argument. Quite frankly, this was a quo warranto action, so

1 it directly attacked the authority of the emergency manager,
2 Roy Roberts, who is the emergency manager for the Detroit
3 Public School System, to hold that position because of his 4 appointment under Public Act 4 and then subsequently under 5 72. The Court of Appeals indicated the plain language of MCL
6 8.4, which is the repealer statute, includes no reference to 7 statutes that have been rejected by referendum. The 8 statutory language refers only to statutes subject to repeal,
9 and judicial construction is not permitted here because this 10 language is clearly unambiguous. Accordingly, under the 11 clear terms of the statute, MCL 8.4 does not apply to the 12 voters' rejection of referendum of Public Act 4. Even if the 13 rejection of Public Act 4 is deemed to operate as a repeal
14 subject to 8.4, the voters rejected Public Act 4 in its 15 entirety by way of the referendum, and this, in fact, revived
16 Public Act 72. So I think -- I believe that addresses Ms.
17 Crittendon's objection with respect to jurisdiction, and I
18 just wanted the Court to have that authority for when she 19 submits her supplemental brief.

20 Finally, your Honor, the other issue that I would 21 like to address relates to the Retired Detroit Police Member
22 Association's argument with respect to the referendum process
23 and the validity of 436 as a result of the referendum
24 process. I first take exception to the representation that 25 an appropriation of $5,780,000 total is an insubstantial or

1 insignificant appropriation with respect to the state, but I
2 would point out to the Court the argument fails for two 3 principal purposes or reasons. First, Public Act 436 is 4 significantly different than Public Act 4, so Ms. Brimer's
5 argument that it's identical fails on that ground alone, and 6 the very example that she provides in terms of the 7 appropriation is one of the major differences. Public Act
8 436 imposes the requirement on the State of Michigan to pay
9 the salaries of the emergency managers. Neither Public Act 4
10 nor Public Act 72 had that requirement. So it, in fact,
11 required an appropriation in order to have -- so that the 12 state agency -- in this case, Treasury -- that's 13 administering that aspect of the statute would be able to 14 make that expenditure. Under state law a state agency must 15 have an appropriation in order to be able to make an 16 expenditure, and that's exactly what happened in this
17 instance. In addition, the $5 million that was appropriated,
18 as was pointed out yesterday, is for the purpose of paying 19 for consultants, attorneys, and others that are going to be 20 assisting the local communities that are in a financial 21 emergency with their restructuring. That was not part of 22 Public Act 4 or Public Act 72 either, so on those two 23 grounds, that is a difference. There are many other
24 substantial and significant differences between these two 25 statutes, but even without any difference, your Honor, the

1 case that I have handed you, Reynolds versus the Bureau of 2 State Lottery, resolves this issue, and I would point the 3 Court to page 604 and 605 of that opinion. In this case --
4 although somewhat factually different, in this case a 1994
5 act that controlled fund-raising abilities of political 6 campaigns to use bingo and other types of gaming to raise
7 monies was being challenged by referendum. There was a
8 challenge to the signature process that went to the Court of 9 Appeals and then back down to the Board of Canvassers. The 10 Board of Canvassers split and didn't certify the statute, so
11 it went back up -- or the referendum -- excuse me -- back up
12 to the Court of Appeals. While that process was in play, the 13 legislature adopted a new act that was identical, word for 14 word identical to the challenged 1994 act, and the governor
15 signed it, and it went into effect. The 1994 act then was 16 ultimately certified on the ballot, went through the 17 referendum and was rejected by the voters. The parties that 18 had moved for that referendum then dismissed their appeal
19 case, applied for a bingo license to raise money, were 20 rejected under the new law, and then brought this challenge, 21 a declaratory challenge, arguing that the new statute was 22 invalid because it violated the referendum process. In 23 addressing that issue, the Court of Appeals analyzed and 24 interpreted the referendum provision, and that is the portion
25 of the opinion that I refer the Court to. It begins at page

1 604 and continues onto 605. And in there the Court very 2 clearly said the referendum provision and the purpose for the 3 referendum in terms of its definition and use of the term
4 "enacted law" means only the particular law supported by a
5 majority of legislators and signed by the governor and no
6 more. They went on to hold that when a law enacted by the 7 legislature is referred to the people, the reference to a
8 particular definite act and not by implication the general
9 principle or subject matter at issue. So, in other words, it
10 is the act itself, not the general purpose or the particular 11 purpose of the act, that is subject to the referendum. And 12 because it is the specific act that is the subject of the 13 referendum, the legislature is not precluded from 14 subsequently adopting a new law that is either identical to 15 or dealing with the same subject matter or purpose. The 16 Court continued, "nothing in the Michigan Constitution
17 suggests that the referendum had a broader effect than 18 nullification of the 1994 Public Act 118," the act at issue
19 in that case. We cannot read into our Constitution a general
20 preemption of the field that would prevent further
21 legislative action on the issues raised by the referendum.
22 The legislature remained in full possession of all its other
23 ordinary constitutional powers, including legislative power
24 over the subject matter addressed in 1994 Public Act 118.

25 THE COURT: Well, how do you or how does this case

1 deal with the argument that that kind of very strict
2 interpretation of the referendum power of the people makes a
3 mockery of it?

4 MS. NELSON: I disagree that it makes a mockery of 5 it, your Honor, because prior to this analysis, the Court of 6 Appeals went through the very same review and applied the 7 very same review standards in terms of the common
8 understanding of the provisions of the constitutional act or 9 provision that was in play as the Supreme Court did in the In 10 re. Advisory Opinion and in Studier and in all of those cases
11 dealing with the interpretation of the Constitution. And the 12 Court very clearly said that the common understanding of the 13 terms in that provision require this outcome, so any other 14 alternative would have been contrary to both the 15 constitutional standard of review that the Supreme Court
16 requires, and a different outcome would have been contrary to 17 the very meaning and common understanding of that provision,
18 so --

19 THE COURT: Well, but what --

20 MS. NELSON: I'm sorry. Go ahead.

21 THE COURT: What's the point of giving the people
22 the right of referendum to reject a statute if the same
23 Constitution is read to give the legislature the authority to 24 reenact word for word the same statute that the voters just 25 rejected? What's the point?

1 MS. NELSON: Well, the point is that that then
2 becomes a political issue in and of itself, and do the people
3 then want to continue to keep those legislators in office.
4 That makes it a different question than the referendum of the 5 actual law. That then makes it a political question and a
6 question of political will, which I think is a different
7 analysis than what is required here for purposes of our case.

8 THE COURT: Well, but why put the people to that?

9 MS. NELSON: Well --

10 THE COURT: The people spoke.

11 MS. NELSON: The people spoke in the context of 12 Public Act 4. I will agree, and --

13 THE COURT: Okay. But the position you're arguing 14 for is a much broader one, which is even if law number two is 15 word for word the same as law number one, law two prevails --

16 MS. NELSON: That's what the case --

17 THE COURT: -- or it remains in effect.

18 MS. NELSON: That's correct. That's what the case
19 law says, but I'm also pointing out that in this instance law
20 number two --

21 THE COURT: Doesn't the --

22 MS. NELSON: -- is not word for word the same --

23 THE COURT: Okay.

24 MS. NELSON: -- and addresses --

25 THE COURT: Hold that argument for just a moment

1 because --

2 MS. NELSON: Sure.

3 THE COURT: -- I am interested in that, but where is 4 the substance of the right of referendum that the 5 Constitution gives the people if the legislature has the 6 authority to thumb its nose at it like that?

7 MS. NELSON: Well, the right of referendum remains
8 because the people could initiate a referendum with respect
9 to the next bill. I know that's not --

10 THE COURT: To which the question remains why put 11 the people to that?

12 MS. NELSON: It certainly does beg the question,
13 your Honor, and that's why my response to you and the only
14 response I think that's applicable is that it becomes a 15 matter of political will, and there are other ways for the 16 people to address that issue, and that is elect --

17 THE COURT: Well, they've already expressed their 18 political will. Why do they have to do it twice, three 19 times, an infinite number of times?

20 MS. NELSON: Well, that's -- because that's how the 21 Court has interpreted that particular referendum.

22 THE COURT: This is the Court of Appeals, not the --

23 MS. NELSON: This is --

24 THE COURT: -- Michigan Supreme Court.

25 MS. NELSON: Yes, but leave to appeal was denied by

1 the Supreme Court. Now --

2 THE COURT: Means nothing.

3 MS. NELSON: It means nothing other than it wasn't 4 interested in taking this particular issue at that particular
5 time, so I'm referring the Court, yes, to a Court of Appeals
6 decision, which is the last court decision on this particular
7 issue. I'm not saying that I agree with that or that many --
8 that everybody agrees with it. I'm just simply saying that 9 is the law, the most current law applicable on this 10 particular issue. This is how the Court of Appeals has 11 interpreted, and the Supreme Court allowed that 12 interpretation to stand, and so this is the interpretation
13 that has to be applied in the context of the argument raised
14 by the Retired Detroit Police Members Association.

15 THE COURT: Am I bound by this decision?

16 MS. NELSON: I'm sorry. What?

17 THE COURT: Am I bound by this decision?

18 MS. NELSON: I believe that you are because it's the 19 last highest court decision on this particular issue, and 20 leave to appeal was denied by the Supreme Court.

21 THE COURT: What are the three or five most 22 significant differences then between PA 4 and PA 436?

23 MS. NELSON: The first one is one that we've already 24 discussed in terms of the transfer of authority to fund this 25 proposition. The second one is -- the second most critical

1 one is the options that are made available to the local
2 governments that didn't exist under 4 or 72. Public Act 436
3 creates four choices for the local governments once a
4 determination of a financial emergency has been identified.
5 They can choose either the appointment of an emergency
6 manager, the negotiation of a consent decree. They can 7 submit to neutral mediation, which, if unsuccessful, then
8 they must proceed in Chapter 9, or they can opt to go right
9 into Chapter 9, of course, with the approval of the governor.
10 There are several options -- or changes within the context of 11 the authority that's set out in Section 12(1) for the 12 emergency manager, particularly with respect to the assets of 13 the city and who has to be involved in the process in terms
14 of if there's going to be a lease or sale of assets of over a
15 certain value. I believe it's 50,000. The local officials
16 have to be involved in that process as well. A third
17 significant difference that didn't exist under either prior 18 laws is the ability of the local government to present
19 alternative plans, and an example is what's going on with 20 Belle Isle. Under 436 the local government can object to or 21 reject a proposal made by the emergency manager, and they 22 have the opportunity to present an alternative plan. I
23 believe it's to the emergency financial loan board. It's 24 either to the emergency manager financial loan board or the 25 treasurer -- an alternative proposal that could achieve the

1 same amount of savings, so they have the authority and the 2 ability to object and present their own proposal for 3 clarification.

4 Another significant change is the limitation on the 5 term of the emergency manager. Under Public Act 436, the 6 term is limited to 18 months. Additionally, another change
7 is the fact that the local government may petition for 8 removal of the emergency manager anytime before the 9 expiration of that 18 months. So those are some of the more
10 significant differences.

11 Another major -- excuse me. Another major
12 difference is the creation of the transition advisory board
13 that will participate with the local community or the local 14 government once the emergency manager is -- emergency is 15 deemed resolved and the emergency manager steps down, and 16 that, for example, is a process that's taking place in 17 Pontiac at the moment. The emergency manager there has 18 stepped down, and so there are certain relationships that 19 have been established to assist the local government with 20 transition back into control of its financial operations and 21 obligations. And one of the reasons for that was to address
22 the criticisms that the emergency managers have never proved
23 successful. Many of these communities, once the emergency
24 manager steps down, find themselves within a year or two 25 struggling again and back into the same circle, same process,

1 and so that's a very significant and substantial change as
2 well.

3 Those are the some of the major highlights. There
4 are a number of other ones in the process of how you initiate
5 the financial review, the factors that are to be considered
6 by the financial review team as they evaluate the cities.
7 There are also some differences in terms of the authority of 8 the emergency manager with respect to removing officials from 9 office or appointing officials to take their place. That's 10 been an issue in Detroit as well with respect to certain of 11 the city council members. So there are some major -- but 12 those are the major ones that come to my mind right off the 13 top of my head.

14 THE COURT: If the Court rejects your arguments and 15 holds that to the extent that PA 436 authorizes the 16 appointment of an emergency manager that is unconstitutional,
17 is there enough left of PA 436 for this bankruptcy to 18 continue or not?

19 MS. NELSON: At this point, I don't believe there
20 would be, your Honor, because the mechanisms or the way that 21 the statute is designed right now, the emergency manager is 22 acting on behalf of the city, and he is the one who made the 23 recommendation, and he is the one that's specifically been 24 approved. If you conclude --

25 THE COURT: Approved?

1 MS. NELSON: I'm sorry.

2 THE COURT: Approved for what?

3 MS. NELSON: Approved to file. The authorization
4 was given to him to file, and he was doing it in the place
5 and stead of the elected officials. So if the determination
6 is that 436 is unconstitutional and his appointment,
7 therefore, is void --

8 THE COURT: That was not exactly my hypo.

9 MS. NELSON: Okay.

10 THE COURT: My hypo was that holding that his 11 appointment was unconstitutional or that so much of PA 436
12 that allowed the governor to appoint him was 13 unconstitutional.

14 MS. NELSON: Well, first of all --

15 THE COURT: I mean I guess it's partially a
16 severability question.

17 MS. NELSON: That's correct. There's a severability
18 provision within 436 itself, and there's also a general
19 severability question. And the first issue or the first 20 question that would have to be decided is whatever you
21 conclude -- whatever provisions you conclude to be
22 unconstitutional, when they are severed, does that leave a
23 substantial or significant amount of the Act in place so that
24 it can be reasonably carried out. I would submit that if you
25 conclude the appointment of the emergency manager is

1 unconstitutional, that goes right to the heart of the 2 authority to proceed or the authorization to proceed in 3 bankruptcy because he was acting on behalf of the city. If 4 the appointment is deemed unconstitutional, then that would 5 restore the local elected officials, the mayor and the 6 council, as the representatives of the city, and they would 7 have to then take the action to continue this bankruptcy.

8 THE COURT: I think your colleague represented the 9 last time she was here in court -- and forgive me for not 10 remembering her name. Who was it?

11 MS. NELSON: In what context? Michelle Brya?

12 THE COURT: A couple weeks back.

13 MS. NELSON: Is that who you might be thinking of?

14 THE COURT: Anyway, she --

15 MS. NELSON: Nicole Grimm.

16 THE COURT: -- referred to the statute, and there's 17 a provision that authorizes the emergency manager to conduct
18 the case.

19 MS. NELSON: Correct. That's Subsection 2. That's 20 18 -- Section 18, Subsection 2, which specifically
21 authorizes -- once he receives the authorization from the 22 governor, it specifically authorizes the emergency -- we're
23 using "authorization" a lot or I am anyway --

24 THE COURT: Right.

25 MS. NELSON: -- but it specifically authorizes the

1 emergency manager to file the bankruptcy petition, so that's
2 Subsection 2, so -- Section 18, Sub 2.

3 THE COURT: But it wasn't just file. It was file
4 and conduct the case.

5 MS. NELSON: And conduct it. That's correct. And 6 so if, in fact, he is removed from office by virtue of a
7 ruling that his appointment was unconstitutional, that would
8 necessarily terminate the case because it would revert back
9 to the local officials, and they would then have to either
10 reinitiate the process or somehow decide to continue the case
11 without having -- if they could without reinitiating.

12 THE COURT: There's nothing else besides PA 436 that 13 provides the necessary basis for authorization or consent for 14 a municipality to be in bankruptcy?

15 MS. NELSON: Correct. Does the Court have any other
16 questions?

17 THE COURT: No.

18 MS. NELSON: Thank you.

19 THE COURT: Thank you. Who's up next?

20 MR. BENNETT: I think our side. We relinquish our 21 remaining time.

22 THE COURT: I did have a few questions for Mr. Troy.
23 Stand by one second.

24 MR. TROY: Good morning, your Honor. Matthew Troy,
25 Department of Justice, Civil Division, on behalf of the

1 United States. Your Honor, I want to clarify that we're on 2 the same page with respect to the question that you had
3 yesterday, which was, I think, how does the government
4 respond to the objectors' reply regarding the ripeness issue.
5 I went back last night and looked at what was filed on Friday
6 by the various objectors. I think I found it, but I want to 7 make sure we're talking about the same thing. I saw it in 8 AFSCME's amended objection filed Friday wherein they talk
9 about the harm that their members are suffering right now.

10 THE COURT: Right now, precisely.

11 MR. TROY: Okay. From the potential --

12 THE COURT: Ms. Ceccotti mentioned that in her
13 argument yesterday as well.

14 MR. TROY: Okay. And, in fact, I mean I guess if I
15 could read what I understood that Governor Snyder's
16 authorization has itself unconstitutionally caused an 17 immediate concrete injury to Council 25's members by creating 18 a contingent liability that their inviolable rights will be 19 disregarded causing them to reorder their financial affairs.
20 It's articulated in different ways elsewhere in the brief,
21 but I think that kind of encapsulates it.

22 THE COURT: Yes.

23 MR. TROY: I'll answer your Honor's question, but I
24 do want to clarify one point before doing so. That 25 contention, your Honor, is made in the context or in response

1 to the debtor's reply regarding the argument of whether or
2 not there was proper authorization under 109(c)(2). That's 3 not an argument made in the context of their constitutional
4 challenge to Chapter 9, but I can see where it also falls
5 over into that analysis.

6 THE COURT: Okay.

7 MR. TROY: But I want to make clear that on the 8 109(c)(2) issue the United States government is not taking a
9 position on that issue.

10 THE COURT: Right.

11 MR. TROY: Okay. And that's where that argument
12 arose, but I can see where your Honor thinks that has 13 applicability to the constitutional challenge as well, and 14 that's why I'll address that.

15 THE COURT: Well, I think we have to consider it and 16 deal with it.

17 MR. TROY: Right. Your Honor, that articulation or 18 that argument goes to whether or not they have standing. Is 19 there a concrete actual injury? And when I read that 20 description of the harm, the injury that they're suffering,
21 to me, as a bankruptcy lawyer, that strikes me as a dynamic
22 that occurs, frankly, every day in bankruptcy. A small 23 business owner is faced with a debtor who wishes to assume 24 and assign its lease or executory contract and says, "Consent
25 or I'll reject it," or a nondebtor party that is faced with

1 the threat of a turnover action by a debtor in possession or
2 trustee, and the nondebtor party says, "No, it's not property
3 of the estate. It's held in a validly state law created
4 trust or escrow account." Going back to my prior 5 hypothetical, I left out that point as well saying the 6 nondebtor party, small business owner, to the executory
7 contract or lease says, "Wait a minute. I've got state law
8 nonassignability rights. You can't do that." And the debtor
9 says, "Yes, I can. Bankruptcy Code says I can."
10 Preferential actions, your Honor, where seemingly innocent
11 defendants are faced with a trustee or debtor in possession
12 saying, "Pay or else I'm filing the action," particularly 13 perhaps pointing at our seemingly innocent investors in what 14 turns out to be a Ponzi scheme facing clawback suits. Some 15 are less sympathetic than others, but there are some that are 16 very sympathetic. They face the same dynamic that AFSCME
17 poses here, and, unfortunately, that's just a dynamic that 18 exists in bankruptcy.

19 THE COURT: Well, but to carry those hypos to the 20 next step that may make it analogous here, couldn't any of 21 those parties who you have identified file something in court
22 asking for a court ruling sustaining their position, whatever
23 it is, there was no preference, there was no fraudulent
24 transfer, whatever their position is on the executory
25 contract?

1 MR. TROY: That is true, your Honor, but that's
2 an -- that's either an affirmative defense or an argument
3 that the debtor or trustee has failed to satisfy one of the 4 elements of even bringing the claim. That's not what's being
5 posed here. What's being posed here is that the whole
6 statute is unconstitutional, and for a party to come in and 7 say that and to assert that, they have to meet a high hurdle,
8 and that hurdle is in part -- some of the hurdles they have 9 to meet -- and the two that are relevant here are standing
10 and ripeness. And that hurdle, I would submit, is not met 11 here with the argument that they have posed as being their 12 injury in fact. It's a commonplace dynamic in bankruptcy.
13 It's unfortunate -- and I'll take the objectors at their 14 word, and it might very well have tragic consequences, but 15 that's, unfortunately, what can happen in bankruptcy given
16 the powers afforded a debtor.

17 THE COURT: Well, but I can hear the response now.
18 The response is we retirees don't know what to do about our 19 financial futures because of the uncertainty that this 20 bankruptcy has created for us about the security of our 21 retirement pensions. That uncertainty will be resolved or 22 would be resolved if the Court were to take head on right now
23 in the eligibility context the issue of whether this 24 bankruptcy can impair pensions.

25 MR. TROY: And my response, your Honor, is that that

1 asserted injury in fact is not sufficient to vest them with 2 standing to ask you to make that reach at this stage of the 3 case.

4 THE COURT: Okay. So why not?

5 MR. TROY: Because it is -- what they're asking for 6 is a significant remedy, which is the invalidation of the 7 entire statute, at this stage of the case.

8 THE COURT: Right.

9 MR. TROY: To do that, they have to meet a much
10 higher standard for their injury in fact.

11 THE COURT: So what's the -- what's, in your view,
12 the most pertinent Supreme Court case that says that this 13 kind of contingent concern, just to put a legal label on it,
14 is insufficient?

15 MR. TROY: I don't have one to say that it is 16 insufficient. I can explain to you why I think the one that 17 they cite as evidencing it is inapplicable here.

18 THE COURT: Okay.

19 MR. TROY: I think they're principally relying on 20 Clinton v. United States to say that this contingent
21 liability is sufficient to constitute an injury in fact
22 imbuing them with standing. My response, your Honor, is that 23 that case is significantly different and distinguishable from 24 this. In that case, your Honor, HHS went to the State of New 25 York and its various municipalities, I guess, subsidiaries,

1 that administered Medicaid and said, "Look, you receive
2 federal subsidies from us. You have to pay some of those 3 back if you tax the healthcare providers providing those 4 healthcare services." And so HHS issued a notice and demand
5 to New York and said, "Pay. You've been imposing these taxes
6 in the past. Those have to be reimbursed to us as basically
7 a recoupment of the federal subsidies you've been receiving."
8 They issued a demand saying pay.

9 THE COURT: Um-hmm.

10 MR. TROY: Well, some members in Congress,
11 presumably from -- representing New York, said, "We don't 12 like that so much, so we're going to put a section in the 13 federal -- in the Balanced Budget Act of 1997 that says that 14 liability is zapped out of existence." So New York and 15 others then went and filed suit and said, "No, they can't do
16 that." Ultimately the Court said, "No, you don't have 17 standing. It hasn't happened yet." Then President Clinton 18 actually exercised his line item veto power and excised that 19 provision that said that liability is now zapped out of 20 existence. The only reason it was contingent is because 21 after the State of New York got the notice saying pay, they 22 exercised apparently a valid right to request HHS to waive
23 it, and HHS hadn't acted on it yet, but there was an explicit 24 demand to pay from the federal government to the State of New 25 York. It's not quite as contingent as what we're dealing

1 with here, your Honor, is my basic submission. There was an
2 explicit demand to pay, and the ripeness -- or the standing,
3 rather, was cured when President Clinton excised that 4 specific section that had eliminated the liability. The 5 liability rearose, and it was very real. The only thing that 6 the City of New York, I guess, as the appellee in that case,
7 had left was, well, we have a waiver request pending with HHS
8 that hasn't been acted on, but HHS had already made the clear
9 demand and said pay. That's why I think it's a different
10 case than this, your Honor.

11 THE COURT: All right. One final question for you,
12 and it goes to the issue of the constitutionality of Chapter
13 9, and it addresses some language in one of the commandeering
14 cases, the New York case. There's some broad language in 15 here that I think we have to deal with somehow, and so I'm 16 asking for your help in how you think it should be dealt 17 with. In that case, the Supreme Court said -- and I want to 18 quote it to you. It's at 182. "The constitutional authority
19 of Congress cannot be expanded by the 'consent' of the 20 governmental unit whose domain is thereby narrowed, whether 21 that unit is the Executive Branch or the States." How do we 22 reconcile that language with the constitutionality of Chapter
23 9?

24 MR. TROY: Because I don't -- I would submit that,
25 as set forth in our brief, I think, that Chapter 9 does not

1 so narrowly proscribe the powers of the state, if I am
2 recalling the quote correctly, your Honor. Chapter 9 --

3 THE COURT: Constitutional authority of Congress
4 cannot be expanded by the consent of the governmental unit
5 whose domain is thereby narrowed.

6 MR. TROY: I would submit, your Honor, that Chapter
7 9 does not -- it gives the states the consent to decide
8 whether or not its municipalities can file Chapter 9 and 9 under what terms and conditions, but I would submit also 10 that, having done so -- having given states that right to 11 consent, Chapter 9 does not then narrow impermissibly and 12 unconstitutionally the state's sovereign powers to control
13 and regulate its municipalities.

14 THE COURT: Well, but the objectors argue that it
15 does because it imposes federal priorities on creditors that 16 may be different from the priorities the state has.

17 MR. TROY: Right. And this all goes back, your
18 Honor --

19 THE COURT: So its sovereign powers says we want
20 priority scheme A, and, you know, the federal government has 21 got its priority scheme B, so by filing bankruptcy, there's 22 this narrowing of the state's sovereignty and this expansion
23 of the federal government's sovereignty.

24 MR. TROY: Right. And, your Honor, I think this all 25 goes back to the --

1 THE COURT: And New York says that can't be done by 2 consent.

3 MR. TROY: Right. And I think all that is hinged
4 upon and was subject to a lengthy colloquy between you and 5 Mr. Bennett about Bekins or Bekins, take your pick, and 6 Asbury Park. It's all -- that whole hypothetical that you're 7 posing, your Honor, is -- again, it's dependent upon what did
8 Asbury Park do and what did it imbue the states with.

9 THE COURT: Well, but what do I do with this 10 language?

11 MR. TROY: Well, again, your Honor, that language --
12 I think when you then take that language and say, "Well, what 13 about this hypothetical?" that hypothetical to me that you 14 just posed raises the issue of why can't states then just 15 impose their own municipal debt adjustment schemes because 16 Asbury Park says we can, and --

17 THE COURT: Is the answer nothing more than if the 18 state doesn't want to use the federal priority scheme, it
19 just doesn't authorize bankruptcies?

20 MR. TROY: I think that might be --

21 THE COURT: Is that the answer to this?

22 MR. TROY: I think that might be the answer, yes,
23 and that's the ultimate control that the state has. And that 24 goes back to the language that Mr. Bennett was quoting from,
25 I believe, Bekins and somewhat in a parallel sense in the

1 dissent from Ashton. It's the state's decision. It's the 2 state's control. And as your Honor has pointed out in
3 subsequent more recent cases involving Chapter 9, that's how 4 the courts have viewed the issue. Once in, you're in.

5 THE COURT: All right. Thank you, sir.

6 MR. TROY: If I may, your Honor, if I just address
7 one point --

8 THE COURT: Yes.

9 MR. TROY: There's standing, and there's ripeness.
10 They're distinct, and they're different. Admittedly, if you
11 look at the requirements for each, they arguably bleed into 12 one another, but there is an element of ripeness here, your 13 Honor, that I think is important for you to consider in 14 determining whether or not to take up the objectors on their 15 challenge to the constitutionality of Chapter 9, and it's 16 principally judicial discretion, your Honor. Do you really
17 have to do this now? Should you make this reach in declaring 18 the statute that effectively has been upheld for 75 years and 19 say it's unconstitutional right now at this stage of the 20 proceeding? As articulated in our brief, we don't think you 21 have to.

22 THE COURT: Well, since you raise standing, it was 23 pointed out by one of the attorneys that under the Bankruptcy
24 Code, creditors have standing to raise any issue that affects 25 them in the bankruptcy. Does that provision in the

1 Bankruptcy Code answer the standing question? If not, why
2 not?

3 MR. TROY: Because it's different than
4 constitutional standing, which is what we're talking about 5 here. We're talking about a constitutional standing to 6 invalidate an entire statute.

7 THE COURT: Are the considerations on constitutional
8 standing any different than the constitutional considerations
9 on ripeness in any substantial way or significant way? Can 10 you have one without the other?

11 MR. TROY: Can you have standing without --

12 THE COURT: Do they walk hand in hand down the same
13 path?

14 MR. TROY: I'm sorry, your Honor. Are you referring 15 to standing and ripeness?

16 THE COURT: That's what I meant, standing and 17 ripeness.

18 MR. TROY: As I understand the doctrines, your 19 Honor -- again, principally I'm a bankruptcy lawyer, not a
20 constitutional lawyer, but as I understand the doctrines,
21 your Honor, I would submit you could have one without the 22 other. They are -- while similar, they are distinct. You
23 could have standing but not have ripeness.

24 THE COURT: You argue neither here.

25 MR. TROY: Correct.

1 THE COURT: All right. I sense a certain eagerness
2 on Mr. Bennett's part, so let's yield the lectern to him.

3 MR. TROY: Thank you, your Honor.

4 MR. BENNETT: Your Honor, I want to return to your 5 question about whether or not the constitutional authority of 6 Congress is being expanded here at all. From the very, very 7 beginning of my argument we talked about why the Chapter 9 or 8 the Chapter 9 -- whoops -- or the Chapter 9 equivalent from 9 back in the '30s, what did not run afoul of the Tenth
10 Amendment. And remember there was -- the first part of it
11 was because there are -- uniform laws on the subject of 12 bankruptcies are the domain of Congress, and the Supreme 13 Court has told us that uniform laws on the subject of 14 bankruptcies, as they apply to -- does apply to municipal 15 credits.

16 THE COURT: Yeah. I get all that, and in the New 17 York case the Congress was legislating within its commerce
18 powers; right?

19 MR. BENNETT: But the problem with New York was it
20 chose means; i.e., the only part that it didn't like was 21 directing the states to buy or to take possession of nuclear 22 waste. That was it. It was that part. It was the state's 23 direction.

24 THE COURT: Well, okay. So do we read this language
25 simply to say that the state cannot consent to a

1 Congressional enactment that goes beyond its commerce powers?

2 MR. BENNETT: I think --

3 THE COURT: If that's what they mean, that's sort --

4 MR. BENNETT: I think that the --

5 THE COURT: -- of like, "Well, duh."

6 MR. BENNETT: Well, that they can't consent to 7 the -- also to the commandeering aspect of it. They can't 8 consent to the direction to the states to do something the 9 states can't be directed to do.

10 THE COURT: Okay. Pause there. If that 11 commandeering in the statute were directed to a private 12 party, would that have been within Congress' commerce power?

13 MR. BENNETT: It actually would have been because 14 they talk about --

15 THE COURT: Okay.

16 MR. BENNETT: -- nuclear waste. And I also want to 17 come back to the point, though, that --

18 THE COURT: But, okay, if that's true -- I have to 19 pin this down with you.

20 MR. BENNETT: That's okay.

21 THE COURT: If that's true, what is the Court
22 talking about in this language in New York when it says the 23 constitutional authority of Congress cannot be expanded?

24 MR. BENNETT: That New York, by having participated
25 in negotiations and been part of the group that pulled

1 together the statute at issue, can't have consented -- can't 2 consent to the part that requires the state to buy nuclear
3 waste, the part that was unconstitutional in the New York
4 case.

5 THE COURT: Okay. But what authority -- what 6 constitutional authority of Congress is being expanded by
7 that?

8 MR. BENNETT: The Congress doesn't have the 9 authority to direct the states to do things that it -- to buy
10 things. It doesn't have that authority. That's the part
11 that was the problem.

12 THE COURT: That's the Tenth Amendment --

13 MR. BENNETT: Correct.

14 THE COURT: -- limitation on the commerce power.

15 MR. BENNETT: Correct. But here I want to come back
16 and say in the bankruptcy realm, because the Congress has the 17 power to pass uniform laws on the subject of bankruptcies,
18 because the subject of bankruptcies include municipal debt
19 adjustment, of all the things that are clearly within 20 Congress' power and is not an expansion, it's priorities when 21 there's not enough to go around.

22 THE COURT: So your argument is that in order for 23 this comment by the Supreme Court in New York to impact this
24 case, the Court would have to find that the bankruptcy power
25 of Congress does not include the power to include municipal

1 bankruptcies?

2 MR. BENNETT: Yes, your Honor.

3 THE COURT: Okay.

4 MR. BENNETT: Or that the subject of municipal -- 5 the subject of bankruptcies does not include priorities.

6 THE COURT: Okay.

7 MR. BENNETT: And I would -- just to round out the 8 answer to the rest of the points, there was also a
9 recognition that Chapter 9 might creep up to the edges.
10 That's where we have the 903 and 904 focus on governmental 11 and political powers, and there there was a recognition that 12 consent might not be enough. That's why we have 903 and 904
13 that people aren't requiring consent to too much.

14 MS. NELSON: Your Honor, may I just quickly make a
15 brief statement to the Court?

16 THE COURT: Sure.

17 MS. NELSON: Margaret Nelson again on behalf of the 18 state. I just wanted to let the Court know you requested
19 yesterday that we file all of the Webster documents, and I
20 just wanted to let you know that that likely will happen this 21 afternoon or tomorrow morning --

22 THE COURT: Okay.

23 MS. NELSON: -- including all of the transcripts. I
24 know I didn't discuss it during my oral, and I just wanted to 25 ask the Court if it had any questions specific to the

1 collateral estoppel argument for the state.

2 THE COURT: No.

3 MS. NELSON: All right. Thank you.

4 THE COURT: All right. Mr. Gordon, may I have your 5 attention, please? I had promised you and your colleagues on 6 the objecting side here an opportunity before your rebuttal
7 to organize. Would you like that opportunity now, or are you
8 and your group prepared to proceed?

9 MR. GORDON: Your Honor, in that regard, a couple of 10 things. One, in discussing these matters last night with the 11 group on the objectors' side, it is the sort of universal
12 view that there were issues that were raised and arguments
13 that were made by Mr. Bennett yesterday that, frankly,
14 weren't in the city's papers prior to yesterday. And in 15 light of the importance of these issues, we would 16 respectfully ask that there be perhaps an adjournment of the 17 rebuttal argument and an opportunity to brief this with the 18 idea that we would strive to coordinate so as to minimize the 19 burden on the Court in terms of the amount of paper that gets 20 filed and so forth, but it is our request in the first 21 instance, your Honor, that there be essentially an 22 adjournment of the rebuttal.

23 Also, as you can imagine, just trying to coordinate 24 who would address what in rebuttal is something that was 25 difficult to do at the end of a very long day yesterday, and

1 so there are some logistical issues, but, again, from a
2 substantive standpoint, we were desirous of asking the Court
3 if we could have two weeks to submit briefs on these issues
4 and have rebuttal argument in the course of the --

5 THE COURT: Okay.

6 MR. GORDON: -- the Court's conducting of the 7 evidentiary hearing at some point.

8 THE COURT: I fully intended to offer you the 9 opportunity to file supplemental briefs, and that was just a
10 question of how much time you needed, so for me that's not an 11 issue. Much more problematic is the issue of adjourning the 12 rebuttal arguments. Mr. Bennett, do you have a position on 13 this?

14 MR. GORDON: And by the way, just for the record, I
15 did at least reach out to Mr. Bennett last --

16 THE COURT: Um-hmm. Okay.

17 MR. GORDON: -- night about this, and he has his 18 opinions, of course.

19 THE COURT: That was very civil and courteous of
20 you.

21 MR. GORDON: Thank you. I try.

22 THE COURT: Yes, you do.

23 MR. BENNETT: Yes. That's true. I did receive 24 this -- the notice of the possibility that this request would 25 be made. First of all, we did not cite any new cases. We

1 certainly read cases that they had cited perhaps more closely
2 than they did, and that was all within the fair game of the 3 party who speaks not having filed the last set of papers.
4 The last set of papers were, of course, filed by the 5 objectors, so there's been no impropriety, nothing unfair,
6 nothing unusual. And the fact that they had overnight to 7 prepare is a courtesy that, quite frankly, I don't always get 8 when I have to deal with an oral argument after full sets of 9 papers.

10 Adjourning the hearing will create another time
11 burden and expense. We're getting enough complaints in the 12 press about how much this case is costing. I'm prepared and 13 the city has invested in that preparation, and we're ready to 14 go. If we put this off, we're going to get to do that all
15 over again. The request for two weeks, quite frankly, may 16 well be okay depending upon the length of the trial, but we 17 would need an opportunity to respond, and that would push the 18 response beyond the trial. And we have business we need to 19 conduct. We have a DIP financing that we're going to need to 20 get approved, and that won't fund until there's a 21 determination on eligibility. So there's all kinds of 22 calendar difficulties if your Honor chooses to adjourn, and,
23 frankly, there's calendar difficulties if we have to do
24 another set of briefs. The ultimate objective is to give 25 your Honor the help you need to decide, and so with the

1 understanding that there will be incremental additional
2 expense if there's an adjournment -- and we're ready to go
3 today -- I believe there's nothing unfair about that -- it's 4 ultimately what works for you, and we'll accommodate whatever
5 your Honor decides. I have no problem with a short break if 6 people want to get organized. That's perfectly okay
7 obviously.

8 THE COURT: All right. Stand by one moment, please.
9 All right. Mr. Gordon, may I have your attention again,
10 please? In the circumstances, I can't justify putting off
11 rebuttal for any substantial period of time. I can offer you
12 the choice of proceeding after lunch at one o'clock today or 13 proceeding this Friday. We do have another motion hearing on 14 an unrelated matter at ten, and we could go in this matter at 15 11 on Friday.

16 MR. BENNETT: Your Honor, I'm not available. I'm 17 not available on Friday. It's mid-semester break for one of 18 my sons, and I'm planning to be away this weekend, including
19 Friday.

20 THE COURT: Well, hold on one more second.

21 MR. GORDON: Your Honor, I can perhaps short-circuit
22 the issue. I think, from what I'm hearing, we're comfortable
23 then under the circumstances with coming back at one o'clock
24 today and presenting our rebuttal.

25 THE COURT: Your other choice would be to do this on

1 Monday either before or after or as part of the pretrial
2 conference that's scheduled for that date. Do you have any 3 objection to that?

4 MR. BENNETT: I'll have to take a red-eye unless it
5 starts really late like at about -- I can make a 3:30, I
6 think.

7 THE COURT: I can't do that myself.

8 MR. BENNETT: Look, I'll take a red-eye.

9 THE COURT: I have to be done by three.

10 MR. BENNETT: I'll take a red-eye, and someone will 11 nudge me if I fall asleep. As long as it's in the afternoon,
12 it's okay.

13 THE COURT: Well, hopefully their arguments will not 14 have that impact on you.

15 MR. BENNETT: Okay. If it's in the afternoon, it'll
16 work. It'll be okay.

17 THE COURT: Okay. If I understand our time
18 constraints correctly, there's an hour on each side left,
19 right, for rebuttals? So if we start at one, then I can 20 leave by three, which is what I need to do. Does that help
21 you?

22 MR. BENNETT: I'll make it work.

23 THE COURT: So you were not going to be at the 24 pretrial conference at ten.

25 MR. BENNETT: That's correct.

1 THE COURT: Somebody else was covering that for you.
2 That's fine with me, one o'clock Monday for the rebuttal
3 arguments. Did you want to say something? Go ahead.

4 MS. CECCOTTI: Yes. One o'clock is fine actually.
5 That's helpful to me. I wonder, though, in terms of the 6 pretrial, I was actually going to ask as a housekeeping
7 matter, again, just due to flights and so forth, it may not
8 be one of my team, but if we had some -- a UAW designee,
9 would that be sufficient, a lawyer for our side here?
10 Otherwise --

11 THE COURT: That's up to you.

12 MS. CECCOTTI: Okay. You don't --

13 THE COURT: No.

14 MS. CECCOTTI: I just wondered if the Court had 15 any --

16 THE COURT: I mean generally speaking, we want at 17 the final pretrial conference whoever is going to conduct the 18 trial.

19 MS. CECCOTTI: Yeah.

20 THE COURT: Is that -- is there that disconnect for
21 you?

22 MS. CECCOTTI: There is. There are four lawyers on 23 my side and all handling different aspects --

24 THE COURT: Um-hmm.

25 MS. CECCOTTI: -- so -- and they're all busy.

1 THE COURT: Well, all right. So long as the person
2 is familiar enough, you know, to conduct the sort of 3 administrative stuff we do at a final pretrial conference,
4 including dealing with exhibits, that's fine.

5 MS. CECCOTTI: I see. Okay. All right. That's 6 helpful, your Honor. We'll be --

7 THE COURT: All right.

8 MS. CECCOTTI: -- guided accordingly.

9 THE COURT: All right. So -- all right. I guess
10 the point is we're adjourning for today to reconvene in this
11 matter at one o'clock on Monday for the final two hours.

12 MR. TROY: Apologies, your Honor. Matthew Troy
13 again. I'm not sure if my presence here was helpful or not,
14 but I will not be here on Monday --

15 THE COURT: That's fine.

16 MR. TROY: -- unless you request it or ask of it,
17 and then --

18 THE COURT: But please accept my assurance that your 19 appearance here today and your argument was helpful.

20 MR. TROY: Thank you, your Honor. If your Honor
21 wants me here for that hearing, I can start making inquiries.

22 THE COURT: You know, if that arises, we do have the 23 option of a telephonic appearance as well.

24 MR. TROY: Okay.

25 THE COURT: In fact, you have that option regardless

1 to listen in, so, you know, in terms of whether you, on
2 behalf of your client, feel the need to make any further oral
3 argument, I leave that to your discretion. And if you want
4 to, we'll do it by telephone.

5 MR. TROY: Thank you, your Honor.

6 THE COURT: Just let us know in advance.

7 MR. TROY: Yes, sir.

8 THE COURT: All right. Anything further for today,
9 anyone? No. All right. That's it then.

10 THE CLERK: All rise. Court is adjourned.

1 THE CLERK: All rise. Court is in session. Please
2 be seated. Recalling Case Number 13-53846, City of Detroit,
3 Michigan.

4 THE COURT: And you may proceed.

5 MR. GORDON: Thank you, your Honor. Good afternoon.
6 For the record, Robert Gordon of Clark Hill on behalf of the 7 Detroit Retirement Systems. Your Honor, we did not submit a
8 proposed line-up to the Court as we did for the October 15th
9 hearing; however, the objectors have all conferred with one
10 another over the weekend and have come up with an informal
11 line-up, if you will, and have discussed amongst themselves
12 sort of loosely how much time each party would need. And so
13 rather than inform the Court of the time slots, we'll just 14 sort of try to self-police ourselves and inform the Court if 15 that's okay.

16 THE COURT: Okay.

17 MR. GORDON: Again, as with the October 15th
18 hearing, each party will try its best to identify before it
19 starts its rebuttal argument -- apprise the Court of what 20 issues it plans to touch upon. Unlike the October 15th
21 hearing, of course, because time is short, various parties
22 will be trying to touch upon discrete issues and not overlap
23 with one another, so while each party may support the 24 arguments that are being made, for the record, I just need to 25 state that each party obviously reserves its right to make

1 similar arguments or diverge from those arguments in its
2 supplemental briefing. Thank you.

3 With that, your Honor, just so the Court has an 4 understanding of the order in which we are proposing the 5 objectors rise, first would be Ms. Levine on behalf of 6 AFSCME, then Ms. Brimer on behalf of the Retired Detroit
7 Police Members Association, then myself on behalf of the 8 Retirement Systems, then Mr. Morris on behalf of the Retiree
9 Associations, then Ms. Patek on behalf of the Public Safety
10 Unions, then Ms. Crittendon as an interested party, and then 11 Mr. Montgomery on behalf of the Retiree Committee.

12 THE COURT: All right.

13 MR. GORDON: Oh, my goodness. I'm sorry. After -- 14 I'm sorry. After Mr. Morris, Ms. Ceccotti would be next on 15 behalf of the UAW.

16 THE COURT: Thank you. It's fine with me not to 17 keep track of your time individually if that's your request,
18 but I do have to cut off all rebuttal argument in one hour.

19 MR. GORDON: Very well, your Honor. Thank you.

20 THE COURT: And one more thing. You will notice
21 that on your tables we now have three microphones instead of 22 one. I have been asked to advise you that this makes it much
23 more likely that our record will pick up your private 24 conversations, and you should be concerned about that because 25 we do post the audio unedited on our website every night.

1 And I should say if there is a private conversation that you
2 want to have at any point today or during the trial and 3 you're concerned about it getting on the microphone, just 4 request a brief pause from the recording. We'll turn the 5 recording off. You can have your conversation, and we'll 6 continue.

7 MS. LEVINE: Good afternoon, your Honor. Sharon
8 Levine, Lowenstein Sandler, for AFSCME. Your Honor, I've 9 been given ten or twelve minutes and will address, per the 10 Court's suggestion, home rule and then perhaps if there's 11 time a sentence on Chapter 9 again.

12 THE COURT: Okay.

13 MS. LEVINE: Thank you, your Honor. Your Honor, 14 similar to the arguments or the statements in the 15 conversation we had with the Court with regard to Chapter 9
16 and the interplay between the federal Constitution and the 17 state municipal governments under the Tenth Amendment, we 18 would respectfully submit that under the Cooley Doctrine and 19 the cases that have been decided here in Michigan that the 20 Michigan Constitution in Chapter 7 also reflects a very 21 strong view towards home rule, and what we mean by home rule,
22 your Honor, is that the local governments -- in this case,
23 Detroit -- are given a lot of respect by the state government
24 in order to manage and run their own local governments. And 25 we would respectfully submit that the way that either 439 is

1 written or as applied in this case, that the grant of power
2 given the emergency manager here in Detroit violates the
3 state Constitution.

4 So, first, your Honor, we would note that the 5 emergency manager has been appointed by the state. He was 6 not elected by the local electorate. He was not elected the 7 way, for example, the mayor and the City Council were 8 elected. He has supplanted them, and he was -- and he didn't 9 supplant them by a vote of the citizens, and he didn't even 10 supplant them with the consent of the locally elected 11 officials. So first point is that we believe that the 12 emergency manager and 436 is inappropriate here because he's 13 not an elected official.

14 Two, your Honor, we would note that the breadth of 15 the powers granted the emergency manager even if the 16 appointment of the emergency manager were appropriate is 17 inappropriate here both as a matter of constitutional law and 18 as applied in this particular case because the governor
19 failed to appoint the emergency manager with any appropriate
20 contingencies in the letter of appointment, and that's 21 because of the scope of the power that the emergency manager
22 wields is well in excess of that which the Constitution --
23 the Michigan Constitution would permit. So, for example,
24 even if the scope of the powers were not subject to -- sorry.
25 Let me say it differently. Even if the Michigan Constitution

1 does allow, for example, taxation or even debt adjustment, it
2 doesn't allow the wholesale taking over of the local
3 government by the emergency manager. So, for example, not
4 allowing there to be replacements to the City Council, day-
5 to-day negotiation of vendor contracts, labor contracts,
6 grievances, de minimis asset sales, these are the types of 7 things that are not necessarily --

8 THE COURT: Well, but let me ask you to -- let me
9 ask you to pause there with this question. Is the 10 constitution -- or would the constitutionality of PA 436, as 11 it pertains to those kinds of issues, be before this Court?
12 Are they necessary to decide in the context of eligibility?

13 MS. LEVINE: They are, your Honor, because the way
14 this appointment has taken place, all of those individual 15 acts that the emergency manager has been allowed to engage in 16 ahead of a plan of adjustment which might deal with just the 17 debt makes the very decision that the emergency manager made
18 with regard to filing the Chapter 9 petition itself
19 unconstitutional or unconstitutional as applied to the facts
20 of this case because there was no limitation on what the 21 scope of his authority was just dealing with that one issue.
22 And that scope -- the unfettered scope, your Honor, is not 23 just related to the day-to-day business operations, and we've 24 seen that play out in the deposition of Mayor Bing and in 25 others who talk about the fact that they're bottlenecked with

1 regard to decision-making and that ordinary types of 2 decision-making is now deferred to the emergency manager or 3 his counsel, but we've seen that, your Honor, in the 4 unfettered scope that provides for no judicial review of 5 those decisions as well. So, for example, if, in fact,
6 there's a dispute under a Chapter 11 or a Chapter 7 where you
7 have a debtor in possession or a trustee, a debtor in 8 possession, for example, a corporate debtor, has fiduciary
9 obligations under the direct language of the Bankruptcy Code
10 and has fiduciary obligations under state law. A Chapter 7
11 or a Chapter 11 trustee similarly has fiduciary obligations, 12 and they are not allowed to take actions either outside the 13 ordinary course of business or under the course of a Chapter
14 7 without coming to this Court for approval, sales,
15 settlements, ultimate plans of reorganization. Under Chapter
16 9, because we're dealing with the fact -- and we believe it's 17 the unconstitutional fact -- that there's a tension between 18 what the state can do and what the federal government can do,
19 we don't have that same access to judicial review, so under 20 904, 362, and even Stern's there are a lot of decisions that 21 get made on the day-to-day basis. And I'm not dealing with 22 the global jurisdictional issues, just the day-to-day basis
23 of tort claims, of contract disputes, of settlements with 24 individual creditors that don't ever see the light of day in 25 this court, and to the extent that there was a grievance or a

1 dispute about that under 362 in this Court's stay extension
2 orders, there's no other court where those disputes can be 3 taken.

4 So we have an unelected emergency manager who's in 5 place now because he's a contractor with the state
6 government, and we have unfettered rights where basically our 7 view is it's tantamount to all of the rights that were 8 granted to the city under Chapter -- under Article VII of the 9 Constitution are now within the power of the EM in this 10 particular case. And we'd respectfully submit that that is 11 just not what the Cooley Doctrine or the state Constitution
12 envisioned even if it did envision in appropriate
13 circumstances debt restructuring.

14 Nine minutes. With that, your Honor, I would just 15 close briefly on Chapter 9. We would respectfully submit 16 that similar -- well, I'll --

17 THE COURT: I'm not sure you've quite addressed the 18 central home rule question that at least I see. The city and 19 the state argue that to whatever extent home rule powers
20 apply to the City of Detroit under the Michigan statutes, 21 they are effectively modified by PA 436 and that that 22 modification is not inconsistent with whatever the Michigan
23 Constitution says about home rule. How do you deal with
24 that?

25 MS. LEVINE: Your Honor, we understand the statement

1 has been made along those lines. We don't see those
2 modifications in PA 436. In other words, either in the 3 statute itself or in the authorization as granted under the 4 statute here, there is no limitation that we can see, and, in 5 fact, we've seen the opposite through the emergency manager's
6 orders and the emergency manager's right to run unfettered
7 the City of Detroit. And in addition to that, one of the 8 issues that they talk about in terms of limiting his ability
9 is that his term is only 18 months, but that also is not 10 supported if you take a look at the statute and you take a 11 look at the statute in practice without any limitation in the 12 authorization because at the end of 18 months, the state has 13 the absolute right to continue the term. The City Council 14 can only stop that by a two-thirds vote, but since the EM has 15 effectively taken over the City Council, we don't even have 16 the checks and balances that appear facially on the statute,
17 so we're saying two things. We're saying they can say that 18 it's a limitation, but as far as we can tell, PA 436
19 virtually gives away to the emergency manager everything that 20 was referred to the states under Chapter 7 of the 21 Constitution, and not only that, there is no redress for 22 addressing violations of that unfettered right or stopping
23 the time line pursuant to which the EM can stay in office.
24 Thank you.

25 MS. BRIMER: Good afternoon, your Honor. Lynn M.

1 Brimer appearing on behalf of the Retired Detroit Police
2 Members Association. Your Honor, to begin with, I have 3 approximately ten to twelve minutes of the allotted time for 4 the objectors. I am going to discuss, your Honor, the narrow
5 issue of whether or not PA 436 is constitutional under the 6 referendum provision of the Michigan Constitution. As your 7 Honor will recall, Article II, Section 9, of the Michigan
8 Constitution specifically reserves to the people of Michigan
9 the right of referendum with respect to any law other than 10 those that contain a spending or appropriation provision.

11 When we were here on Tuesday, your Honor, last week,
12 I advised the Court that at that time the city and the state
13 neither had responded to the arguments that had been raised
14 by the RDPMA in its opening objection and, moreover, that at 15 that point in time we had not been able to find a case that 16 was factually similar to this case. Today, we do have the 17 oral arguments that were presented by Ms. Nelson in response
18 to this argument during the state's opening arguments. The 19 city has still not responded to this discussion, and we 20 still, your Honor, do not have a case that is even closely
21 factually similar to this case.

22 As the Court may recall, Ms. Nelson cited the case
23 of Reynolds v. Martin for the proposition that the governor
24 and the state legislature can completely disregard the will 25 of the people and thwart the people's constitutional right to

1 a referendum by placing an insignificant spending provision
2 at the tail end of an act that had previously been defeated
3 on referendum, pass such act during a lame duck session, and 4 consider it to be constitutional. Reynolds v. Martin is so
5 factually distinguishable, your Honor, as to be of little or 6 no actual application to this case, and ultimately we would 7 conclude that its holding, in fact, supports the argument of 8 the RDPMA. And I think it's very important to very briefly
9 discuss that case. In Reynolds in 1994 the legislature
10 passed an act amending the state's Bingo Act. That act was 11 referred for referendum. However, before it was placed on 12 the 1994 ballot, certain of its signatures were questioned.
13 Therefore, it did not make the 1994 ballot. The general
14 election was held in November of '94. A new legislation --
15 legislators were elected. They were seated in 1995. In 1995
16 with the new legislation in -- legislative body in place, a 17 new act was passed. Subsequently, in 1996 the 1994 act was 18 certified for the referendum, and it was, in fact, voted down
19 in the referendum.

20 A party challenged the denial of a license under the 21 1995 act on the grounds that it could not have been passed in 22 contravention of the referral of the 1994 act to the 23 referendum process under Article II, Section 9. However, 24 your Honor -- and ultimately the 1995 act was upheld as 25 constitutional.

1 The state would argue that that case is factually
2 applicable and the holding consistent with their position
3 that PA 436 is constitutional. However, there are two 4 significant distinctions between the holding and the facts in 5 Reynolds and the matter before this Court with respect to 6 436. One, there was a general election after the matter had 7 been referred to referendum. A new legislative body was in 8 place, and it was the new legislative body that had been, in 9 fact -- that passed the new act. But more significantly,
10 your Honor, the 1995 act did not contain a spending
11 provision, and it was not, therefore, removed from the 12 referendum provisions of the Michigan Constitution. In fact,
13 in Reynolds the appellate court relied on the Michigan
14 Supreme Court holding in Michigan Farm Bureau versus 15 Secretary of State at 379 Mich. 387, 1997, and noted that 16 should the legislators not be responsive to the will of the 17 people expressed at the referendum vote, the second
18 legislation itself is subject to the same right of referendum
19 as the original act. That is simply not what we have with 20 respect to 436.

21 The question, your Honor, is why wasn't 436 subject
22 to the referendum vote? It was not subject to the referendum
23 vote because the governor, the Michigan Department of 24 Treasury, and their consultants devised a scheme in the event
25 that PA 4 was defeated on referendum, that would remove a new

1 law from the referendum. And how do we know that there was a
2 scheme that was devised? We have communications that have
3 been produced during discovery that confirm that the spending
4 provisions in Section 34 and 35 were included in order to 5 avoid the referendum vote. For example, as early as March
6 2nd, 2012, in communications between Mr. Ellman at Jones Day
7 and Ms. Ball at Jones Day, Mr. Ellman was discussing the 8 possibility that PA 4 would be defeated on referendum and 9 what the options would be in the event it was rejected by the 10 people. He states in discussing the options, your Honor,
11 "The cleanest way to do all of this probably is new 12 legislation that establishes the board and its powers and" -- 13 with the "and" in capital letters, your Honor -- "includes an 14 appropriation for the state institution. If an appropriation 15 is attached to, parenthetical, included in the statute to 16 fund a state institution, parenthetical, which is broadly
17 defined, then the statute is not subject to repeal by the 18 referendum process."

19 In fact, Mr. Orr himself has acknowledged this 20 concern with respect to PA 436. On January 31st, 2013, he e-
21 mailed Ms. Ball stating the following: "Michigan's new EM
22 law is a clear end-around the prior initiative that was 23 rejected by the voters in November." He then discusses some 24 of the provisions of PA 436 and concludes with the following
25 statement: "So although the new law provides the thin veneer

1 of a revision, it is essentially a redo of the prior rejected
2 law." Your Honor --

3 THE COURT: What was the date of that?

4 MS. BRIMER: That, your Honor, was January 31st,
5 2013. So, your Honor, despite Ms. Nelson's contention that 6 the spending provisions were not added in an effort to avoid 7 the referendum vote, we would suggest that the evidence and 8 the discovery proves otherwise.

9 Ms. Nelson also argued that the $5,780,000 spending
10 provisions were meaning provisions not designed to avoid the 11 referendum. First, I would suggest quite to the contrary,
12 your Honor. A review of the state's financial statements for 13 the fiscal year ending 9-30, 2012, suggests that $5,780,000
14 represents approximately .011 percent of the state's 15 expenditures for the prior fiscal year. With respect to the 16 pensioners that are before this Court making an average of 17 $18,000 in their pension, that would represent $1.98. I
18 would suggest that's hardly a meaningful spending provision.

19 But second and more significant is that we have the 20 words of the debtor's attorney in the e-mails that I read to 21 you that the spending provisions were added with the intent
22 of avoiding the referendum. We also have testimony from the 23 state's 30(b)(6) witness, Howard Ryan, the legislative 24 liaison for the Department of Treasury during the period for 25 the drafting of 436, in which he testified in his deposition

1 on October 14th that the spending provisions were added to 2 avoid the referendum.

3 "Question: Based on your conversations with the 4 people at the time, was it your understanding that
5 one or more of the reasons to put the appropriation
6 language in there was to make sure it could not --
7 that the new act could not be defeated by 8 referendum?

9 Answer: Yes.

10 Question: Where did you get that knowledge
11 from?

12 Answer: Well, having watched the entire process
13 unfold over the past two years.

14 Question: The governor's office knew that that 15 was the point of it?

16 Answer: Yes."

17 Your Honor, we would suggest that those spending
18 provisions were, one, de minimis, and, two, added solely for 19 the purpose of removing this act from the constitutional
20 right of the people to a referendum vote.

21 I'm uncomfortable with the amount of time I have 22 left here, your Honor. Two more points. Ms. Nelson argued
23 that PA 436 has substantially changed PA 4. We prepared a
24 comparative analysis, your Honor, of the relevant provisions,
25 those with respect to the appointment of an emergency manager

1 and those with respect to the authorization for the filing of 2 a Chapter 9. Those provisions are virtually identical. Our 3 comparative analysis has been attached and submitted to the 4 Court as Exhibit B to our pretrial brief. Those provisions
5 were, in fact, your Honor, subject to the provision in the 6 Constitution which provides that no law as to which the power
7 of referendum properly has been invoked shall be effective
8 thereafter unless approved by a majority of the electors
9 voting thereon in the next general election.

10 Your Honor, the Michigan Supreme Court, which should 11 be our controlling court here, has, in fact, suggested that 12 the right of referendum is so important to this state and so
13 important to our constitutional rights that in Kuhn -- I'm 14 trying so hard to get through my time -- that in the matter
15 of Kuhn v. Department of Treasury the Court said that this is 16 a reserved right to the people which must be liberally
17 construed. This Court must liberally construe the right of 18 the people to the referendum, find that the Michigan Supreme 19 Court would, in fact, determine that PA 436 violates Article
20 II, Section 9, of the Michigan Constitution, and, therefore,
21 cannot have been a proper basis for authorization of the 22 filing of this Chapter 9 under Section 109(c) of the 23 Bankruptcy Code.

24 THE COURT: Thank you.

25 MR. GORDON: Again, for the record, Robert Gordon of

1 Clark Hill. Your Honor, I want to touch upon, if I may, an 2 issue that was raised on the 15th regarding who is
3 essentially the impairer of contracts in a Chapter 9 process
4 and then touch upon one other small matter that came up in 5 colloquy on that day.

6 Your Honor, during the oral argument, city's counsel
7 argued that in a Chapter 9 case, the law views the federal 8 government as the sole relevant actor impairing contracts of 9 the debtor municipality and that, therefore, the prohibition
10 in the pensions clause against the state and its subdivisions
11 impairing accrued pension benefits is of no moment in this 12 matter because it will be the federal government and not the 13 state or the city that is doing the impairing.

14 In making the argument, the city's counsel relies on 15 the language of a dissenting opinion of Justice Cardozo in 16 the Ashton case and then suggests that the viewpoint
17 expressed therein is adopted by the Bekins court, which 18 overruled Ashton. We submit that the analysis is incorrect.
19 First, it is not entirely clear that the expansive
20 interpretation of Justice Cardozo's opinion suggested by the 21 city comports with his intended meaning. However, even if 22 that interpretation is accurate, there is no indication that 23 his views were adopted in Bekins, a decision in which Justice
24 Cardozo did not even participate.

25 Contrary to the city's argument, as we've pointed

1 out in our papers, it is the municipality alone that can file
2 a plan and propose the impairment of claims, and it is the
3 municipality alone that can solicit votes and ask the Court
4 to approve such a plan. Indeed, your Honor, the reality of 5 the active role played by the debtor is reflected clearly in 6 Section 109 itself. 109(c)(5) provides, and I quote, "(a) An 7 entity may" -- excuse me. It provides under 109(c), I quote, 8 "An entity may be a debtor under Chapter 9 of this title if 9 and only if such entity," and then under (5)(A) it says, "has 10 obtained the agreement of creditors holding at least a 11 majority in amount of the claims of each class that such 12 entity intends to impair under a plan in a case under such 13 chapter," and there's similar language under 109(c)(5)(B).
14 Both of those provisions talk about the municipal debtor
15 being the one who intends to impair under the plan. It
16 doesn't say that the municipal entity intends to ask the 17 Court to impair. So 109(c)(5) reflects the reality that we 18 just discussed.

19 Moreover, contrary to the city's argument, your 20 Honor, Chapter 9 jurisdiction turns on the basic concept that 21 the state can consent to subjecting a political subdivision
22 to federal bankruptcy law. Having thus consented, federal 23 law will then apply, but it is still the state and its local 24 governmental unit that is actively availing itself of the 25 Bankruptcy Code in the Bankruptcy Court. The city has not

1 and we submit cannot cite to any case law that describes a
2 Chapter 9 debtor as standing mute and passive in the 3 Bankruptcy Court during the plan process and simply accepting
4 whatever impairment of contracts the Court may mete out.
5 It's an unsupportable and unsupported proposition, we submit.

6 Since the state and its political subdivision is 7 clearly the impairer of contracts in the Chapter 9, then
8 absent the relief that's been requested by the Retirement
9 Systems and other objectors, the state or the city in this 10 case would be directly breaching the pensions clause, which 11 it cannot do. To the extent it is asking the federal court
12 to assist, it cannot do so since the state government and its 13 subdivisions are bound by the pensions clause and cannot 14 delegate to another entity authority that they do not have to 15 abrogate Michigan's Constitution. And we've cited several 16 cases in our reply brief at page 15 for the axiom that the 17 state and its various branches cannot do indirectly what they 18 cannot do directly.

19 Since the state and the city cannot violate the 20 Michigan Constitution and specifically the pensions clause
21 outside of the Chapter 9 process, they can no more do so in 22 Chapter 9, and the requirement that the Retirement Systems
23 and other objectors have advocated for -- i.e., an explicit 24 conditioning of the bankruptcy upon the protection of the 25 pensions clause -- is absolutely proper and mandated by

1 Section 109(c)(2)'s respect for state law. Any other
2 conclusion we submit eviscerates 109(c)(2) and its
3 requirement to uphold the Tenth Amendment and the sovereignty
4 of state law. Moreover, your Honor, there was --

5 THE COURT: So is the end result of that argument
6 that no municipality in Michigan can file a Chapter 9?

7 MR. GORDON: The end result would be that they
8 cannot file a Chapter 9 without the explicit understanding 9 that they will not impair accrued pension benefits in 10 violation of the pension clause.

11 THE COURT: Well, but that violates the Bankruptcy
12 Code.

13 MR. GORDON: How so, your Honor?

14 THE COURT: Well, it gives a priority to one
15 unsecured creditor over all the others, or one group of 16 unsecured creditor over all the others.

17 MR. GORDON: We disagree, but the priority issue I'm 18 going to defer to Mr. Morris on. He was going to speak about 19 that issue, but we disagree that it can be characterized as a 20 priority issue, your Honor. I just don't want to steal his 21 portion.

22 THE COURT: Okay.

23 MR. GORDON: But it is not a priority --

24 THE COURT: No pressure, Mr. Morris.

25 MR. GORDON: It is not a priority issue, your Honor.

1 Moreover, your Honor, the city's counsel had suggested, I
2 believe, on October 15th that Section 943(b) may not contain
3 any bar to adjusting debts but only technical restrictions on 4 how debt adjustment may be implemented. If he is correct --
5 and we think not -- then all the more reason why the 6 protection of pension benefits under the pensions clause must 7 be addressed at the eligibility stage.

8 The only other thing, your Honor, I wanted to touch
9 upon was at, I think, page 103 of the written transcript of 10 the hearing on the 15th we had a discussion in which I
11 likened the accrued pension benefits to a nondischargeable
12 debt, and the Court questioned whether that concept was truly
13 applicable in a Chapter 9. I wish to simply note to the 14 Court that while Section 523 of the Bankruptcy Code was not 15 incorporated into Chapter 9, Section 944(c) provides that the 16 debtor is not discharged under Subsection (b) of this section
17 from any debt excepted from discharge by the plan or order
18 confirming the plan. So, indeed, concepts of 19 nondischargeable debt do exist under Chapter 9 of the 20 Bankruptcy Code, and because it is not governed by Section
21 523 of the Bankruptcy Code, it must be assumed -- because 22 there's no other basis identified in the Bankruptcy Code
23 itself, it must assumed that the bases for 24 nondischargeability would arise under state law such as the 25 absolute and impermeable protection of accrued pension

1 benefits under the state's Constitution.

2 THE COURT: Why isn't it safer to assume that that
3 provision is in there to facilitate parties' negotiations
4 regarding how to treat debts?

5 MR. GORDON: I don't know that it's mutually 6 exclusive. It could be nondischargeability. It could be as 7 a matter of law --

8 THE COURT: Okay.

9 MR. GORDON: -- or by negotiation, your Honor.

10 THE COURT: Okay.

11 MR. GORDON: We would simply submit that with 12 respect to a state constitutional protection, it can't be the 13 subject of negotiation. Thank you, your Honor.

14 THE COURT: Okay.

15 MR. MORRIS: Good afternoon, your Honor. Thomas
16 Morris on behalf of the Retiree Association parties. There
17 was discussion last week and, in fact, this morning, today,
18 this afternoon, regarding the manner in which the pensions
19 clause operates. Specifically, there were comments by Mr.
20 Bennett which characterize the pensions clause as 21 establishing a payment priority. Mr. Bennett would have the 22 Court view the pensions clause as the equivalent of a state
23 law which designates a public pension obligation as a
24 priority claim in bankruptcy. This is an incorrect
25 characterization of the pensions clause.

1 The pensions clause is a state law which controls
2 the city in the exercise of its political or governmental
3 power. The pensions clause establishes a constitutional and,
4 therefore, fundamental rule addressing the authority of a
5 municipality to reduce or impair its pension obligations. It
6 is an essential definition of the state -- of the duties of 7 the state and its subdivisions. The pensions clause simply 8 doesn't provide for a priority payment. The usual way for a
9 state to provide for a priority is to specify that the debt
10 is entitled to priority. An example is found in the Worker's
11 Compensation Disability Act, MCL 418.821, which provides that 12 liability of an employer for Worker's Compensation claims or 13 Worker's Compensation payments shall be paramount to other
14 claims except for wages and taxes. Another way to ensure a 15 priority is to provide for a statutory lien, so we've got 16 lien -- a lien under Section 211.40 of the Michigan Compiled
17 Laws for property taxes that are secured by a first lien,
18 prior, superior, and paramount. And MCL 324.3115 provides 19 that certain fines for environmental liabilities constitute a 20 lien on all property of any kind or nature owned by the 21 defendant. And a construction lien is entitled to priority
22 under state law.

23 In Orange County -- in the case if Orange County
24 found at 151 B.R., there's a quote on page 1017. In Orange
25 County there was a statute at issue, a California statute

1 that was found by the Orange County court to be preempted by
2 the Bankruptcy Code. Now, that statute provided that -- 3 provided for certain funds to be treated as trust funds, and 4 that statute, as interpreted by the Court, apparently or was 5 argued to provide for there to be no tracing requirement, so
6 the Court in that case found that statute to effectively
7 establish a priority in bankruptcy and found it to be
8 preempted. That case is distinguishable. The Michigan
9 pensions clause provides for no priority of payment. It
10 simply provides an ongoing indestructible duty of the 11 municipality or the state to not impair and not reduce 12 pensions.

13 Now, the priorities provided for in Section 507 are 14 applicable in Chapter 7 cases, for example, because Chapter 7
15 is a process of liquidation, liquidation of assets and the 16 distribution of those assets, so you need to determine who's 17 going to get the assets. Who gets paid first? That's the 18 priority. Those priorities are also applicable in Chapter 11
19 because in every Chapter 11 case, liquidation is an 20 alternative. Liquidation is the implied alternative, and 21 it's a standard by which a plan of reorganization in a
22 Chapter 11 case is measured. Liquidation is not provided for 23 in Chapter 9. Therefore, priorities are not provided for in 24 Chapter 9 with one exception. That one exception is 25 507(a)(2), which provides for administrative expense

1 priorities. That's a --

2 THE COURT: But doesn't the best interest test of 3 943(b)(7) implicate the priorities of the Bankruptcy Code?

4 MR. MORRIS: It doesn't. It doesn't implicate the 5 priorities of a liquidation as an alternative unlike in 6 Chapter 11. That's what's done -- in a Chapter 11 you look
7 at the unsecured creditors. What would they get in 8 liquidation?

9 THE COURT: Your position is that there's nothing in 10 a municipal bankruptcy case that would prohibit one group of 11 unsecured creditors from insisting on payment before or in 12 full while other unsecured creditors are paid later or not in 13 full.

14 MR. MORRIS: Well, in confirmation of a case where 15 the pensions are unimpaired, you have a possible
16 discrimination claim by other creditors. The bondholders
17 might claim that it's unfair discrimination, and I think the 18 response would be any bondholders who purchased their bonds
19 prior to 1963 when the Michigan Constitution was adopted, 20 you've got a different argument, but those bondholders who 21 purchased their bonds after 1963, which is all of them, don't 22 have an argument. They're aware of the political climate.
23 They're aware of the Constitution. They're aware that the 24 municipality cannot --

25 THE COURT: Right, but the city's response to that

1 is the people who lobbied for and got the pensions clause in
2 the Constitution were aware of the Chapter 9 possibility.
3 How do I deal with that, or how do you deal with that?

4 MR. MORRIS: Mr. Gordon dealt with that.

5 THE COURT: Okay. I will look at what he said.

6 MR. MORRIS: But I don't want to -- I don't want to 7 repeat it, but the city is not permitted to restrict or 8 impair the pensions. They are an inviolate obligation that 9 the city will live with even if it reorganizes under Chapter
10 9. That's just a fact. If the City of Detroit were to cease
11 to exist, if there were to be some horrendous natural 12 catastrophe that wiped the city off the state -- wiped the 13 city off the map, then we believe the city would still owe
14 that obligation, and it might cause a constitutional crisis.
15 Maybe the state would have to -- let's say the city remained
16 with only one resident, and that one resident couldn't 17 possibly pay the taxes to pay this. It would cause a
18 constitutional crisis. There'd have to be a resolution.
19 Maybe the state would step in. I don't know. That's beyond
20 conjecture.

21 THE COURT: The city says we're there now. I'm 22 sensing from Ms. Ceccotti having risen that your time may be 23 up.

24 MR. MORRIS: Yes, it is. Thank you.

25 MS. CECCOTTI: Your Honor, I actually rose because I

1 was planning to address the question that you just asked --

2 THE COURT: Okay.

3 MS. CECCOTTI: -- about -- and I was going to 4 actually spend less time on it, but I think I'll just 5 dispense with -- I was going to -- first of all, for the 6 record, Babette Ceccotti, Cohen, Weiss & Simon, LLP, for the 7 UAW, and good afternoon again.

8 I was going to spend some time on talking about the 9 pension clause, the language of the pension clause, and how 10 the courts in Michigan address constitutional provisions when 11 called upon to review them and the principles that they
12 apply, but I'm going to move actually right to your Honor's
13 question because I do think that a lot of -- some of the 14 questions that your Honor has asked, particularly this 15 afternoon, really do go to what I think is going to be the 16 crux of this.

17 First of all, on the city's point that the pension
18 clause doesn't seem to make any -- doesn't, in fact, make any 19 reference to the possibility of municipal bankruptcy, I think 20 we have to go and ask ourselves a couple of questions.
21 First, what did municipal bankruptcy mean at the time, and 22 what did pension rights mean at the time? And so we have to,
23 you know, sort of bring ourselves back in the legal regime --
24 in two legal regimes to 1963. First, the city's brief cites
25 to a law that was on the books in Michigan, PA 72, dating

1 from 1939, and the law refers to the 1898 Bankruptcy Act and
2 basically says that any taxing agency or instrumentality as 3 defined in the bankruptcy law may proceed to do something
4 called secure a composition of its debts, and the law then
5 goes on to describe rules about who can file the petition and 6 who can agree to the plan of composition and what kinds of 7 things can be in the plan of composition and also provides 8 that the composition is binding on the instrumentality.

9 In 1963 -- okay. So that's the law that's on the 10 books. In 1963 as well the municipal bankruptcy law that is 11 being referenced looks a lot more like the '37 law than it
12 does the law that we have today. On the sort of time line of 13 Chapter 9 changes starting with the law that was declared
14 constitutional by the Supreme Court in '37, while there are 15 some changes that take effect in 1946, you really don't get a
16 major overhaul until 1976 and the events surrounding the New 17 York City fiscal crisis, so from that point forward -- from 18 that amendment forward, Chapter 9 looks a lot closer to the 19 Chapter 9 that we're dealing with today, but in 1963 it
20 really didn't look like that. And, frankly, the notion
21 that -- and this is where we get to the pension regime part 22 of my answer. The notion that the pension clause coming in 23 as it did to take a situation where employees working for the 24 state had, in effect, no vested right to deferred
25 compensation they had earned with services that they provided

1 to the state, that was -- that's the gratuity and the gift --
2 that changes with the pension clause, which then provides the 3 protection for accrued financial benefits. This is a new
4 thing under the state Constitution. So it's not -- to me
5 it's not surprising at all that you wouldn't find a reference
6 to the plan of composition or municipal bankruptcy because we
7 have really these arcane terms that it is very unlikely
8 anyone would have applied to vested pension rights. It's not 9 until 11 years later that ERISA is enacted in the federal 10 regime. ERISA, of course, has language -- sets forth a 11 comprehensive scheme to protect pensions and uses words like 12 "nonforfeitable benefits" and "vested pensions" and "accrued
13 pensions" and the like. And as we talked about last week,
14 that regime includes the pension termination system, and you
15 get then developing in the private sector bankruptcy world,
16 the Chapter 11 world, the Chapter 7 world, where the 17 priorities do function, what is the status of a pension
18 contribution given the fact that it is based on services that 19 were rendered to the debtor pre-petition? All of that law
20 comes up after 1963. There just simply wouldn't be a way to 21 think about a pension benefit in the context of a debt
22 composition, or at least that is -- that seems very likely to 23 me because you just don't get this law -- all of this law
24 coming up until you get to ERISA and the concept of plan
25 termination and the priorities that apply in Chapter 11 and

1 Chapter 7 years and years later. And now, you know, to my
2 way of thinking about it, unfortunately, we have seen a lot
3 of pension terminations, and so there's a lot of law on that 4 subject now, but it didn't exist in 1963, and it couldn't
5 possibly have been fairly contemplated. So I think that 6 we're then left with a section, which is the pension clause,
7 Article -- of the pension clause of the Michigan Constitution
8 that is very much standing on its own without reference to 9 any exception, and we can see why, I think, no -- in 10 particular no reference to the concept of municipal 11 bankruptcy working very much, in effect, each word being 12 given effect by the courts of Michigan who have construed it
13 a number of times to protect accrued pensions. And it's 14 standing on its own effectively against impairment or 15 diminishment by, as we spoke about last week, the state, the 16 state officials, or governance -- government and political 17 subdivisions to which it applies, so I think the --

18 THE COURT: I have to interrupt you and ask this 19 question about bankruptcy. Is there anywhere else in the 20 Bankruptcy Code where a party's nonbankruptcy law right to 21 payment is given an absolute status in the bankruptcy?

22 MS. CECCOTTI: Well, your Honor, I think that there
23 are a number of places in the Bankruptcy Code where state law
24 is referenced, and we had a reference to the effect given to 25 certain types of liens, which are given effect, but I think

1 the --

2 THE COURT: Well, but even there there are many
3 circumstances in which security interests are not given
4 absolute effect in bankruptcy.

5 MS. CECCOTTI: Your Honor, here's --

6 THE COURT: Cramdown, of course, is a perfect
7 example of that.

8 MS. CECCOTTI: Here's where I think the crux of this 9 is. We have a regime in Chapter 9 that must operate by 10 maintaining the state's sovereign control over the political 11 and governmental affairs, including the expenditures
12 therewith under 903. Chapter 9 is not Chapter 11, and so,
13 therefore, the question to start with is what is the -- what 14 limited things can be done in Chapter 9, not necessarily 15 let's look at the whole of the Bankruptcy Code and try to 16 sort of plug in examples that are going to cross between a
17 Chapter 9 debtor and a Chapter 11 debtor.

18 THE COURT: I understand that argument, but isn't
19 the end result of that argument that a state like Michigan
20 that has this clause, if it is to be given absolute impact,
21 cannot authorize its municipalities to file bankruptcy?

22 MS. CECCOTTI: Cannot authorize its municipalities
23 to file for bankruptcy if a purpose is to diminish or impair
24 accrued pensions. That's correct, and that is --

25 THE COURT: But what you're not saying there is that

1 if there is the intent not to diminish pensions, they can
2 file municipal bankruptcy?

3 MS. CECCOTTI: In this case, your Honor, the intent
4 was made abundantly clear going in. If they had hidden the 5 intent, we might --

6 THE COURT: No. I understand that. I'm trying 7 to --

8 MS. CECCOTTI: -- we might not be standing here
9 today.

10 THE COURT: I'm trying to figure out where your 11 argument goes because there are two possible outcomes here.
12 One is when a municipality is subject to the state
13 constitutional provision, it can file bankruptcy and still 14 impair, or it can file bankruptcy without the intent to 15 impair, or I suppose there's a third alternative, which is 16 the one I'm asking about, which is they can't file bankruptcy
17 because bankruptcy doesn't permit that kind of 18 discrimination.

19 MS. CECCOTTI: I think -- your Honor, I think it's a 20 false choice, frankly. I really do. And we've seen some -- 21 we've seen enough instances, I guess, of the more modern use
22 of Chapter 9, particularly the cases out in California,
23 where -- and this is -- and CalPERS has been just on the 24 forefront of this, as I'm sure you know -- where they're not 25 touched. I just -- I don't see what is so accepted or that

1 it's a black and white choice between filing for bankruptcy
2 and not filing for bankruptcy simply based on the pension
3 question. I mean this is a -- this is a very -- this is a
4 large, large municipality to be seeking Chapter 9 relief.
5 There is a lot going on. This very much reminds me, Judge,
6 of going from the very small Chapter 11's at the beginning of 7 the '78 Code and then all of a sudden finding companies like
8 LTV Steel filing for bankruptcy and suddenly declaring that 9 retiree health was a general unsecured claim, someone no one
10 had thought of before. This very much feels to me like that 11 type of a moment where the size of this city and the 12 magnitude of what it's trying to accomplish simply cannot be 13 easily fit within the rules that might otherwise apply in a 14 smaller -- in a smaller context or with less going on or with 15 less money available for fewer options. It's very much a
16 moment, I think, where -- it's one of those moments that I
17 think we will look back on and say this is where Chapter 9
18 changed. And we are very much hoping it does not change in 19 the direction of violating what we believe are legitimate -- 20 a legitimate basis for a municipality to say, "I need to 21 adjust my debt, but I am going to adhere to a state law, a
22 state constitutional provision like the pension clause, and I
23 can accomplish both." I very much think that those things
24 are possible, and if we don't have a bankruptcy system that 25 allows for that duality -- the dual sovereignty to have play

1 like that, then we are simply wiping aside centuries of 2 constitutional law. And I'm really -- my colleagues are 3 going to be very upset with me.

4 THE COURT: Eleven minutes left.

5 MS. CECCOTTI: I'm sorry.

6 MS. PATEK: Your Honor, given the time
7 limitations -- again, Barbara Patek on behalf of the Detroit
8 Public Safety Unions -- I want to address for the moment the 9 Court's question about whether there's anywhere else in the 10 Code, and I don't -- I believe the answer to that question is 11 no, but I think also the Tenth Amendment answers that 12 question. And I think even if you assume for the sake of 13 argument that there are -- that what the -- what is being 14 said here, that this is just a priority issue, that this 15 constitutional promise that was made to these public servants
16 is to be treated like general unsecured debt as if it were 17 credit card debt, I think a careful look at the Code answers
18 that question to the contrary, and I think you can start with 19 the Orange County versus Merrill Lynch case, which talks 20 about 507 and the reason for the exclusion of (a)(1) and 21 (a)(3) through (9) from the Code. And in a footnote it talks
22 about what were then (a)(3) and (a)(4) being excluded because 23 they had to do with employment rights and collective 24 bargaining agreement rights potentially of employees which 25 could affect the ability of the municipality to continue its

1 operation. I suggest it's no accident that those two
2 sections were excluded. I suggest that it's no accident --
3 we heard a lot about electoral will or political will last
4 week -- that this provision is tucked away in the Michigan
5 Constitution so it's difficult to change. This is a promise
6 that's made to people as part of the sovereignty of the State
7 of Michigan to the people who are necessary in this case,
8 talking about my clients, the Public -- the members of the 9 Public Safety Unions, and I would suggest that it would be a
10 violation of the Tenth Amendment to read the Code otherwise.
11 Thank you, your Honor.

12 MR. MONTGOMERY: Your Honor, Claude Montgomery for 13 the Retiree Committee. I had four things that I was going to 14 try to address today in my seven minutes. One was ripeness.
15 One was whether or not there is an issue, despite the Cardozo
16 dissent, and, three, I'd like to answer the question of 17 whether or not intent matters for the governor and the 18 emergency manager, a question raised by the state, and,
19 finally, if I have any time left, that Studier does not 20 undercut Seitz v. Probate Judges System.

21 But I'd also like to take the opportunity to answer
22 the last question or at least offer a thought -- whether or 23 not it's considered useful or not, I will, of course, leave
24 to the Court -- and that Bekins itself tells us what the best
25 interest question was, and it wasn't relative treatment of

1 creditors. It was whether or not bondholders could get tax
2 people to actually levy on property that was either worthless
3 among the municipalities or couldn't be sold for the amount
4 or tax levy marshals and whatnot were running away from 5 creditors. So the best interest of creditors that Bekins saw 6 being made possible by the plan of adjustment was better than 7 zero, not a relative priority vis-a-vis other creditors but 8 an ability to get paid where the state was actively, through
9 its minor officials, resisting paying anything. And so I
10 think that is the best interest of creditors that 943(7) is 11 looking to, and I have further statutory construction for 12 that. At least I offer it. One is that neither 1129(a)(7)
13 nor 1129(a)(11) are actually adopted by Chapter 9, and so
14 the -- what is the best interest of creditors as in feasible
15 is not necessarily identical to those statutory -- those two 16 statutory provisions to which no reference is made.

17 So now I'd like, if you will, turn my attention to 18 the Cardozo dissent, which I must say I thought Mr. Bennett
19 made a very interesting offer to the Court as a foundation
20 for Bekins, but I would like to suggest and only suggest,
21 your Honor, that there is a key -- two key parts to the 22 Cardozo consent that the Court may wish to pay attention to.
23 One is that the Court action on which Mr. Bennett relies was 24 the discharge of the debt. It wasn't what happened inside
25 the plan process. It was the actual discharge, which

1 couldn't be accomplished without court intervention. The
2 second thing that was critical to Justice Cardozo's thinking
3 and, according to Mr. Bennett, ultimately adopted by the 4 Bekins court, which was this concept of consent. Well,
5 Justice Cardozo characterized it as a waiver of a privilege,
6 right, but here what controls how the state exercises the 7 waiver of the privilege? Well, obviously that has to be a
8 question of state law. It can't be transformed into a
9 question of federal law. And what is the state law that 10 controls the exercise of the waiver of the privilege? Well,
11 it's this Michigan state Constitution. So if the Michigan
12 state Constitution is the bedrock on which the waiver takes 13 place and the Michigan Constitution says, according to the 14 Seitz case and according to the Musselman case, no act can be 15 taken that results in a diminishment of pensions, not affects 16 the value of those pensions but actually diminishes the 17 amount of those pensions, then the state actors cannot do
18 anything in that regard. And I would further answer the 19 question your Honor asked earlier, was if the Michigan
20 Constitution is a proscription on the behavior designed to 21 undercut the Constitution, does that mean that no city can 22 file a Chapter 9? Well, obviously ones that don't have 23 pension issues don't even have to ask the question, so 436
24 and the Michigan Constitution are clearly not a bar where 25 there's no desire to impair pensions because they don't have

1 pensions, but if they do have pensions --

2 THE COURT: Well, I'm not sure that's so.

3 MR. MONTGOMERY: Well, as your Honor -- forgive me.

4 THE COURT: I mean my question would be in that 5 case -- I mean you can construct a hypothetical in which the 6 city proposes to impair bonds and the bondholders are saying,
7 "Wait a minute. There's this other asset over here, the 8 pension assets, you know. We have to impair everybody, not 9 just us."

10 MR. MONTGOMERY: I presume your Honor meant pension
11 obligations.

12 THE COURT: Pension, yeah. Thank you.

13 MR. MONTGOMERY: The one difference between the 14 state constitutional provision on impairment of contracts and 15 Article IX, Section 24, is that Article I, Section 8, of the 16 Michigan Constitution speaks of legislation whereas Article
17 IX, Section 24 --

18 THE COURT: And I don't mean to frame this in terms
19 of a constitutional protection for bonds because that's not 20 the point of it. The point of it is that the bondholders
21 could argue that under the Bankruptcy Code, pension holders
22 do have to be impaired, even if the municipality doesn't want
23 to, to achieve fairness in treatment.

24 MR. MONTGOMERY: Well, first, they would have to, of 25 course, start on a class basis because obviously --

1 THE COURT: Right.

2 MR. MONTGOMERY: -- the unfair discrimination starts
3 there, but, secondly, the key issue here for whether or not 4 there is an unfair discrimination is whether or not there are 5 differences in the protections afforded each claim. It is 6 well-established that you can make distinctions between 7 creditors based on the nature of the obligation and that you
8 can make differences in treatment based on the nature of the 9 obligation, so the only question is whether or not it's 10 unfair, and how could it be unfair to let the pension rights
11 of the City of Detroit retirees pass through a Chapter 9 case
12 if the Michigan Constitution says it's unconstitutional to 13 try to impair them?

14 THE COURT: The bondholders say protected by 15 Constitution or not, in bankruptcy they are unsecured claims.

16 MR. MONTGOMERY: Right. And so if, your Honor, the 17 only possibility of dealing with a pension obligation is that 18 it has to be done in a Chapter 9 and it is unconstitutional
19 for the actor, the state actors to ask for Chapter 9, I think 20 you're blocked. You can't ask for the Chapter 9 position.
21 And we find nothing inconsistent with that roadblock because 22 the people of Michigan retain the right and the ability to 23 change the law if they wish to give their municipalities
24 greater access to Chapter 9. If, in fact, Article IX,
25 Section 24, is a roadblock -- and we assert it is a

1 roadblock -- the people of Michigan, not the federal
2 government, but the people of Michigan retain the right to 3 make that change.

4 THE COURT: One more minute.

5 MR. MONTGOMERY: Yes, sir.

6 THE COURT: Ripeness. I would simply commend your 7 attention to U.S. Postal Service v. National Association of 8 Letter Carriers, which your Honor no doubt has read and which 9 ripeness focuses on the timing of the action rather than the 10 party that brings the action, and the key question there for 11 the Court was whether or not there was a reasonable threat of 12 liability if compliance with the arbitration order violated
13 the CSRA, which was the relevant statute, and we say the 14 analogy to that is whether or not there's a reasonable threat
15 of harm to the pensioners as a result of the city's action.

16 THE COURT: Um-hmm.

17 MR. MONTGOMERY: And I think that's -- at least we 18 would offer to your Court that is a difficult thing to 19 dispute. And I think that exhausts my ten minutes, your
20 Honor.

21 THE COURT: Thank you.

22 MR. SCHNEIDER: Your Honor, Matthew Schneider, chief
23 legal counsel, Michigan Department of Attorney General, on 24 behalf of the state. Your Honor, I'd only like to discuss 25 two topics here. One is home rule and then, secondly, the

1 referendum issues regarding PA 436.

2 So if we start with the home rule argument, if we
3 look at Article VII, Section 22, just setting aside the text,
4 we have to look at the text and ask what does this do. What
5 does this provision of the Constitution do? It gives local 6 citizens the power to adopt their own governing structure and 7 ordinances. And what it allows citizens to do is gives them
8 a City Council. The City Council can adopt ordinances and 9 resolutions. And the citizens have a right to that power.

10 In this case, what did the citizens do with that 11 power? Look at Detroit City Charter, Section 1-102. They 12 enacted as part of that charter a provision that reads,
13 quote, "The City has the comprehensive home rule power
14 conferred upon it by the Michigan Constitution, subject only 15 to the limitations on the exercise of that power contained in 16 the Constitution or this Charter or imposed by statute." So
17 the charter itself states that the home rule power is limited
18 to what is imposed by statute.

19 But even if it didn't say that, if the charter
20 didn't say that, we know that when the citizens of Detroit go
21 to the ballot box and they elect their City Council members,
22 those same members, those same citizens, have an opportunity
23 to vote for their state senator and their state
24 representative and their governor, and those representatives
25 in Lansing, who the city has an ability to vote for, pass

1 laws that govern those city residents as well. Those
2 representatives passed PA 436.

3 This cannot possibly violate the home rule concept.
4 Let's look at what those representatives did. They passed
5 the Home Rule City's Act, MCL 117.36. Quote, "No provision
6 of any city charter shall conflict with or contravene the 7 provisions of any general law of the state," unquote.

8 And we have to look at this through another third
9 and final prism. In 1963 the residents of this city had an 10 opportunity to vote another time, and they voted to ratify
11 the state Constitution. Article VII, Section 22, contains a
12 very important line that now binds those city residents. A 13 city, quote, "shall have the power to adopt resolutions and 14 ordinances related to its municipal concerns, property and 15 government, subject to the Constitution and law," unquote.
16 The law is passed by the legislature. In other words, you
17 can only pass local laws that are subject to the Constitution
18 and the laws passed by the legislature, and this is all about 19 representative government. This is how it works in our 20 constitutional republic. The city residents still govern
21 themselves. They voted for the people enacting the city
22 charter. The city residents voted for a legislature that 23 enacted PA 436, and the city residents had a hand in the 24 Michigan Constitution as well.

25 If you look at the legal priority here, we know, as

1 I've stated, that the acts of the legislature can take
2 priority over local acts. The Michigan Supreme Court in Mack
3 v. City of Detroit, 467 Mich. 186, a 2002 case, explained
4 this. There was a Detroit city charter provision that
5 created a private cause of action for discrimination. A city
6 police officer brought a discrimination suit under the 7 charter, but in this case the legislature had already passed
8 a governmental immunity statute that prevented these actions
9 against the city. And the Michigan Supreme Court held that 10 the charter provision conflicted with the law as passed by 11 the legislature, and so the legislation took priority over 12 the charter.

13 PA 436 is not a local act. It can be applied to any 14 other city, and we can see in the newspapers today about the 15 issue of PA 436 being raised in other cities or 16 municipalities. So there's a much larger point here, your 17 Honor. The objectors, I think, are incorrect in the overall
18 approach to the home rule argument. They're arguing that PA
19 436 trumps home rule and ignores the will of the voters and 20 that the legislature somehow just wanted to overrule the 21 citizens of Detroit, but we have to look at PA 436 and know
22 that there were incredibly compelling reasons for PA 436.
23 The point of that, as spelled out in the Act, was to help
24 distressed cities and school districts. The evidence showed 25 that this was a problem that was not going away. It was true

1 before PA 4, after PA 4, before PA 436, and after it. And 2 the language of PA 436 shows that the legislature wanted to
3 fix it, but it also responded to the voters' rejection of PA
4 436. If we look at the governor's testimony in his 5 deposition, he indicates as such.

6 THE COURT: Well, but the fact that there may have 7 been compelling reasons for 436 wouldn't justify it if it's 8 otherwise unconstitutional, would it?

9 MR. SCHNEIDER: No, but there's no -- it's not 10 unconstitutional. That's my point.

11 THE COURT: I'm just wondering why you're arguing
12 that it was compelling. What's the point?

13 MR. SCHNEIDER: It's a point because -- just to say,
14 your Honor, there's a much larger point here, and the point
15 is is this wasn't done arbitrarily. This was done for a very 16 specific purpose.

17 Secondly, your Honor, I want to respond to the issue
18 regarding the right to referendum. I believe Assistant
19 Attorney General Margaret Nelson explained this quite 20 adequately yesterday, but I do want to address the fact that,
21 you know, there's been argument raised here that there were 22 documents produced in discovery that lawyers at Jones Day
23 discussed how PA 436 would be, you know, going around the 24 referendum power. Well, neither of these people were members
25 of the legislature. If we look at the governor's position

1 itself, the state has produced discovery in this case
2 explaining the governor's position, and it was not to go
3 around the legislature. The governor had directed -- I
4 believe it was Dick Posthumus, the former lieutenant
5 governor, and his legislative director, how are we going to 6 craft -- how would PA 436 be crafted? It would be crafted
7 not to ignore the will of the voters. It would be crafted in 8 order to make sure that different changes were made to make 9 it better. And, you know, as to --

10 THE COURT: But how does anyone know whether the 11 changes that 436 incorporated over the rejected law, PA 4, 12 responded to the will of the voters or not? How does anyone 13 know that?

14 MR. SCHNEIDER: Well --

15 THE COURT: I mean all we know is PA 436 was 16 repeal -- PA 4 was repealed.

17 MR. SCHNEIDER: Folks aren't blind, I think, to the 18 media coverage as well. When an act is --

19 THE COURT: Rely on media coverage?

20 MR. SCHNEIDER: Well, they have constituents. Laws
21 are passed only through the regular process of legislators
22 responding to their constituents, and that is the will of the 23 voters. And when the governor wants a new structure, PA 436, 24 or the members of the legislature want that, their 25 constituents will go to the media as well or will speak

1 directly to them, so it was in direct response to fixing the 2 problems that the will of the voters pointed out.

3 If you have any other questions on these topics, I'd 4 be happy to answer them or I could defer to Mr. Bennett on 5 the other issues.

6 THE COURT: Thank you, sir.

7 MR. SCHNEIDER: Thank you.

8 MR. BENNETT: Good afternoon, your Honor. Bruce
9 Bennett of Jones Day on behalf of the city. I got a little 10 bit of an organizational challenge here. One comment with 11 respect to the last point concerning the right of referendum,
12 if the defect in 436 is that there was a right -- there
13 should have been a right to referendum anyway,
14 notwithstanding what the statute says, well, I suppose the 15 remedy is for someone to try to mount a referendum, not to 16 wait till you come to a Bankruptcy Court and ask the 17 Bankruptcy Court to decide there should have been a 18 referendum. If there had been a referendum, it would have 19 been rejected, and, therefore, we're going to hold it
20 unconstitutional. It seems that there's a whole -- there's a 21 few steps that are being skipped in the relief that's been 22 requested of you here.

23 There's a number of topics, and I can only refer to 24 the other Mr. Bennett to cover all the different questions,
25 so I'm going to try to organize it, but if it falls apart a

1 little bit, I apologize.

2 First, there was an appeal to the other California
3 cases, which has to refer to Vallejo, where, of course,
4 pension claims were not impaired, debt claims were impaired,
5 in what was a largely consensual plan. I think I said in 6 another appearance before this Court that today Vallejo may 7 well be in trouble again and perhaps because it did not get 8 enough relief from its debt generally, but that's not the 9 reason I refer to it this time because I think you can't 10 refer to Vallejo without referring to Central Falls in Rhode 11 Island. And in Central Falls in Rhode Island, what happened
12 was was that the pension claims, pension and benefit claims,
13 took haircuts and the debt did not, again, a consensual
14 outcome.

15 If the economics were a little different, perhaps we 16 could have a consensual outcome one way or another in 17 Detroit's case, but I'm pretty sure that the bondholders, who 18 I think are listening on the phone and not here today, would 19 say that they are not in a position and would not consent to 20 allowing pension claims in this case to be unimpaired, and 21 I've certainly heard the various representatives of those 22 holding pension and other retiree benefit claims here and 23 indicating that they're not in a position or willing to let 24 bondholders leave unimpaired. And it may well be that this 25 is the first case where irrespective of consent from one side

1 or another, we could not achieve that result, so I think
2 the -- that a consensual outcome could come out differently
3 and could come out with only part of a capital structure
4 being impaired unfortunately says nothing about the 5 controversy we have today.

6 The second point I want to cover is the point about 7 the discharge language in Bankruptcy Code Section 944. It's,
8 of course, important whenever reading a provision in a 9 statute to figure out where it is in the statute, and the 10 provision relating to discharge is in the effect of a
11 confirmation order. And the line is that the discharge
12 applies -- excuse me -- the debtor is not discharged --
13 there's a broader discharge provision that comes ahead --
14 from any debt exempted from discharge by the plan or order
15 confirming the plan. This is not a claim that has some 16 inherent nondischargeability. This is a reference to a plan
17 exempting from the provision before it, and I suppose that 18 what this is intended to do is to say that obligations as 19 modified will continue if the plan or the order confirming 20 the plan says so. Otherwise, if you go up and look at the 21 discharge, it covers all claims, period, and so I think this 22 is a provision that makes a plan that partially and does not 23 fully discharge claims work, and I think that's all it is.
24 It's not a recognition --

25 THE COURT: Well, but what Mr. Gordon argues, if I

1 understand it correctly, is that this provision of the Code
2 allows a municipal debtor to waive the discharge of the 3 claims of a class, and, therefore, this city can pursue a
4 Chapter 9 case that addresses all of the debt other than the 5 pension debt which can't be pursued or at least impaired
6 because of the Michigan Constitution.

7 MR. BENNETT: Well, once again, this provision is 8 one section in a Bankruptcy Code that contains lots of other 9 sections, and a couple of them were touched upon by your 10 Honor and other people addressing you just a few minutes ago.

11 First, there was a discussion about whether it
12 creates a priority or not. I don't think that's terribly
13 relevant. The issue that the Bankruptcy Code sets up is that 14 it has a distribution scheme imbedded in it. The 15 distribution scheme in some places is given effect through a 16 combination of a declaration that a particular claim has 17 priority and then a treatment requirement that you would find 18 in 1129. In others there's no explicit priority, but there's 19 a treatment -- there's a treatment requirement in 1129, and 20 that treatment requirement works two ways, and I think this 21 came out in the discussion. One, there's the ranking, which 22 is basically what 1129(b) does between secured claims,
23 unsecured claims, subordinated claims, and not in Chapter 9
24 equity. But it also has the nondiscrimination provisions,
25 and I actually think that counsel for the retiree committee

1 slightly misspoke when he said, well, nondiscrimination,
2 that's an issue between classes, and it is, but within
3 classes there's actually a stronger nondiscrimination
4 provision. The treatment within a class has to be the same.
5 Between classes the rule is unreasonable discrimination. And 6 so the discharge -- the provision in 944, the ability to have 7 an exception in the confirmation order from discharging all
8 claims that existed on the petition date and leaving some 9 around to some extent, I don't think is a license to confirm
10 a plan that doesn't meet with the requirements of 1129, both 11 the priority -- what I called priority, but the 12 distributional entitlement requirements and the creditor
13 justice requirements, whether they are unlawful
14 discrimination or same treatment within a class. And so you 15 get to the point where your Honor was, I think, which is that 16 these claims are --

17 THE COURT: Well, but Mr. Morris pointed out
18 astutely that Chapter 9 itself prohibits -- or I should say
19 requires that a plan be fair and equitable. Yes?

20 MR. BENNETT: It has a different meaning than the 21 provision in the Chapter 11 --

22 THE COURT: Right.

23 MR. BENNETT: -- for -- yes.

24 THE COURT: Right.

25 MR. BENNETT: But he referred to best interest, but,

1 yes, it has a fair and equitable provision.

2 THE COURT: So he argues how can a provision that 3 impairs pensions be fair and equitable in the face of the 4 constitutional protection of them?

5 MR. BENNETT: I think you go back to the -- again,
6 what came up when we were last here, which is that you can 7 say as a constitutional matter these cannot be impaired for 8 one -- by the municipality, but the reality is at the end of 9 the day there isn't enough money. And when the reality is 10 there isn't enough money to pay them, then if you went 11 through all and exhausted all of the nonbankruptcy procedures
12 for enforcing a debt, where would you be? That is the -- 13 that is essentially the best interest benchmark. And we've 14 got a lot of law on this. Bekins, which was referenced, is 15 one of them. The fact pattern that you see in cases
16 involving very distressed municipalities in the cases, which 17 a lot of them are from the depression era, of course, is 18 situations where the municipality, notwithstanding an 19 obligation to raise taxes, just can't collect any more money
20 no matter what it does. Sadly, that fact situation, albeit 21 with more modern features, presents itself in Detroit. And I
22 think it would be what the city will have to prove, open
23 paren, one, in the event it does not achieve a consensual
24 plan, which it still hopes to and that the -- that it is 25 object -- the plan is objected to by relevant constituents

1 representing retirees, the city will ultimately have to prove
2 that the distributions on account of underfunding claims
3 offered by the plan are better than the contributions that 4 could be achieved if there wasn't a Chapter 9 case and if the 5 creditors were free to pursue their remedies, all creditors
6 were free to pursue their remedies, and if the residents
7 reacted as we can predict residents would react because they 8 have been doing so for the past several decades. And if the 9 city -- if the retiree -- committees represented by the 10 retiree groups are able to prove that the environment for 11 them outside of Chapter 9 is better than the results we are 12 able to achieve in this Chapter 9 case, they may get a chance
13 to prove to themselves whether they were right or wrong
14 because that's where we'll be. We'll be in a dismissed case.
15 There will be lots of unsatisfied bond debt. There will be 16 lots of unsatisfied pension debt. There will be lots of 17 unsatisfied OPEB debt, and we'll see how it turns out. I
18 think that will not be a good outcome.

19 So this kind of brings me back to how the system
20 works, and I think, frankly, why don't I start with really
21 Justice Cardozo's reasoning? And first I wanted to spend a 22 minute to take away some of the mystery that seems to be 23 surrounding who was where in 1936 and 1938. It was mentioned 24 that Judge Cardozo for some reason didn't participate in the 25 decision in Bekins. Unfortunately, that's because Justice

1 Cardozo had a heart attack at the end of 1937, a stroke at 2 the beginning of 1938, and he died in early July 1938, about
3 ten weeks after the decision in Bekins. The reality was is 4 Justice Cardozo was too sick to participate. His opinion was 5 joined by, quote, the chief justice, Justices Brandeis and
6 Justice Stone -- excuse me -- Justices Brandeis and Stone. I
7 actually didn't know when we were here last for certain that 8 the chief justice at the time of the dissent was the same
9 Chief Justice Hughes who wrote the opinion in Bekins. It
10 turns out he was. I was able to verify that during the 11 break. And I think I offer what Justice Cardozo had to say
12 because its logic is irrefutable. By the way, its reasoning
13 wasn't assailed by any of the retiree representatives. It's 14 joined by a very distinguished group of justices, and all of 15 them except for Cardozo participated in the ultimate reversal
16 of Ashton in Bekins. The opinion, of course, was written by 17 Hughes, who joined the dissent, and I think, therefore, it's 18 an excellent aid to interpretation.

19 I admitted last time that Bekins is a little hard to 20 interpret because it's dealing actually with three specific 21 constitutional challenges. It spends most of its column
22 inches on the Article X problem. It spends exactly one
23 column inch on the Fifth Amendment problem and really only 24 talks about the commerce clause problem because the 25 legislative history that it quotes for the changes made

1 between Ashton and Bekins touches on the commerce clause
2 issue, and the Court basically is agreeing with the treatment
3 that accompanied it -- accompanied the statute in the 4 legislative history.

5 It turns out that Cardozo didn't write on a clean
6 slate. He cited a case, Imperial Irrigation District, 10
7 Fed. Supp. 832, which is probably where he borrowed the 8 concept, and I quote from that case, "The impairment of 9 contracts is brought about by the national law, and not by 10 the state measure, and local consent similar in effect to 11 that sanctioned by the California statute." The judge in 12 that case -- so it's obviously a district judge -- it's not 13 even an appellate judge -- is dealing with the same problem
14 that you would have if you tried to ground the 15 constitutionality of the Bankruptcy Court -- Bankruptcy Code
16 as against the contracts clause on anything other than the 17 reality that it is the federal power that is impairing
18 contracts. You wind up with a situation that you have 19 basically destroyed Chapter 9 and maybe parts of Chapter 11
20 as an avenue for impairing contracts in many circumstances,
21 not just pensions.

22 In short, you've proven too much. You've proven
23 that contracts clauses in every state -- and I said last time
24 I think there's a contracts clause in every state
25 Constitution, but I could be off by one or two -- that would

1 prevent the impairment of bonds. That would prevent the 2 impairment of trade claims. In fact, you would have
3 effectively preempted all impairments, and Chapter 9 would be
4 completely a dead letter. And so we have to look for other
5 interpretations or we should be looking very hard for other
6 interpretations, and we don't have to look very far. And as 7 I said before, I think while Bekins says -- crunches it into 8 a couple of sentences, Justice Cardozo's reasoning joined by 9 Hughes, Stone, and Brandeis explains to us why,
10 notwithstanding the federal contracts clause, notwithstanding
11 state contracts -- state Constitution contracts clauses, and 12 notwithstanding the pension clause, we still have an 13 effective bankruptcy power to implement debt restructurings
14 and debt impairments in cases where there are necessary --
15 where they are necessary. Nothing about eligibility is 16 dealing with the question that your Honor sensibly asked,
17 which is, "Don't you have to show that a plan is in the best
18 interest of creditors?" Clearly we do. Is there anybody
19 going to use Chapter 9 as a method for impairing contracts if 20 they're not in financial extremis? No, they should not, and,
21 no, they will not. It is in those circumstances where the 22 federal government comes to the aid of states and 23 municipalities that can't on their own restructure their 24 financial affairs.

25 And by the way, a nice corollary of looking at it

1 this way is that it dovetails precisely with one of your
2 Honor's observations, which is the last word -- I think it's
3 the last word of the relevant sentence of the pensions
4 clause, the words "thereby," which relate back to the state,
5 relate back to the municipality, but don't say that they
6 can't be impaired by anybody, just says the pension --
7 accrued pension benefits cannot be diminished or impaired
8 thereby, "thereby" being the state and the municipality. So
9 adopting the language and approach in the California case
10 just cited, in the Cardozo dissent joined by the other 11 justices, and in Bekins itself, albeit not quite as 12 precisely, you wind up with federal law that happens to fit
13 nicely with the actual language of the state law with a 14 bankruptcy system that does still work and has not been 15 crippled and made unable to deal with every financial --
16 every municipality in financial distress and a Bankruptcy
17 Code that is constitutional, as Bekins said it was.

18 I don't think I have many more points. First, I
19 wanted to make clear -- someone mentioned that the city had 20 not in oral argument taken positions on certain points
21 relating to PA 436. We've been relying and join in the 22 arguments of the attorney general. I think I dealt with 23 that. Oh, there was an assertion that the 1963 bankruptcy
24 law was somehow different than the fact that throughout --
25 beginning in the '30s but all the way through '61, '63, all

1 the way up until the Bankruptcy Code made specific
2 authorization unnecessary for awhile, Michigan authorized all
3 of its municipalities to resort to the composition law. This 4 1963 law still had impairment of contracts as one of its 5 central elements. In fact, if you look at Bekins, which 6 stands, of course, for many things, Bekins is a case where 7 it's a 60-percent -- it's a 60-cent distribution on account
8 of debt, and it was a mercifully simple case. There was one
9 class, so we didn't have to deal with discrimination and all
10 those other things. But Bekins is a debt impairment case.
11 It turned out to be that 86 percent of the creditors by 12 amount approved it, and it's the 14 percent who are 13 complaining. And so it really isn't fair to say that the 14 bankruptcy laws as they apply to municipalities were vastly 15 different than the laws that -- the laws that are here now.
16 They're probably a little bit more advanced in certain
17 respects, informed by the New York experience, but the idea
18 that contracts between a municipality or obligations of a
19 municipality because very often they're not just in the form
20 of contracts, they're in the form of ordinances, and its 21 creditors can be -- could be -- could have been in 1963 and 22 in 1961 impaired as a matter of federal bankruptcy law. It's 23 the absence of any mention at all of this issue or problem
24 anywhere in -- specifically in the pensions clause itself,
25 but also in the convention history leads to the conclusion

1 that people weren't thinking or it's hard to find any
2 evidence that anyone was thinking that anything that happened
3 in the structuring of the pensions clause was intended to 4 take Chapter 9 relief away from a municipality, period, in
5 any circumstances. And we think, again, that even if it did
6 or tried to -- and I think this is important -- even if it
7 did or tried to, the Justice Cardozo, Hughes, Stone, and 8 Brandeis reasoning would say it doesn't matter, that at the 9 end of the day, the -- unless there's an explicit direction
10 not to file Chapter 9, the state can only protect pension
11 claims so much. They can't protect them ultimately from 12 federal power.

13 I think those are all the points I need to cover.
14 If your Honor has any questions that I could answer --

15 THE COURT: No. Thank you.

16 MR. BENNETT: Thank you.

17 THE COURT: All right. Ladies and gentlemen, I
18 promised you one deliverable at the conclusion of these 19 arguments, which was a decision on whether or not there are 20 any genuine issues of material fact that should be addressed
21 at the upcoming trial relating to these issues which I had 22 preliminarily determined were strictly legal issues. I'm 23 going to take ten more minutes to just think about that. I
24 think there might actually be one. So we'll reconvene at 25 2:45. In the meantime, I want to remind you, please, that

1 when you are in the hallway, you must remain absolutely
2 silent, no talking in the halls. If you want to talk, you
3 can talk in here or down on the first floor.

4 One other housekeeping matter, which, again, I want
5 to bring up just in case I forget later. It was requested of 6 the Court permission to have in the courtroom a transcriber
7 to provide -- I guess it's called realtime transcripts, and 8 that's fine with the Court so long as we all understand that 9 that transcript is not the official transcript of the court
10 and may not be used in lieu of what would otherwise be 11 required to be used, the official transcript. So 2:45 we'll 12 reconvene.

13 THE CLERK: All rise. Court is in recess.

14 (Recess at 2:34 p.m., until 2:46 p.m.)

15 THE CLERK: Court is in session. Please be seated.
16 Recalling Case Number 13-53846, City of Detroit, Michigan.

17 THE COURT: Counsel are present. I want to 18 emphasize again what I think I stated the other day, that the 19 Court certainly will take into account in deciding these 20 issues which I have preliminarily determined are legal issues
21 any facts that come out in the trial that bear upon them.
22 Having said that, though, there is one issue of fact that 23 needs to be identified because the parties do disagree about 24 it, and it might have a bearing on one of these legal issues,
25 and that specific factual issue is what was the purpose of

1 adding the spending provision to PA 436.

2 Anything further for today? All right. We will
3 begin our trial at nine o'clock Wednesday morning in this
4 room. Oh, I urge you to get here early because the security
5 lines are longer at that hour in the morning than they are at 6 the times we've been starting.

7 THE CLERK: All rise. Court is adjourned.

1 THE CLERK: Court is in session. Please be seated.
2 Case Number 13-53846, City of Detroit, Michigan.

3 THE COURT: Good morning. Excuse me. We have an
4 attorney to admit to the Bar of the Court, Miguel Eaton.

5 MR. EATON: Good morning, your Honor.

6 THE COURT: Are you Mr. Eaton?

7 MR. EATON: Yes, sir.

8 THE COURT: Okay. Are you prepared to take the oath
9 of admission to the Bar of the Court?

10 MR. EATON: Yes, your Honor.

11 THE COURT: Please raise your right hand. Do you
12 affirm that you will conduct yourself as an attorney and 13 counselor of the Court with integrity and respect for the 14 law; that you have read and will abide by the civility
15 principles approved by the Court; and that you will support
16 and defend the Constitution and laws of the United States?

17 MR. EATON: I will.

18 THE COURT: Welcome, sir.

19 MR. EATON: Thank you, your Honor.

20 THE COURT: We will take care of your paperwork for 21 you. And we should go ahead and have appearances entered,
22 please.

23 MR. IRWIN: Good morning, your Honor. Geoff Irwin
24 from Jones Day on behalf of the city.

25 MR. STEWART: Geoffrey Stewart, Jones Day, also on

1 behalf of the city, your Honor.

2 MS. LEVINE: Good morning, your Honor. Sharon
3 Levine, and if I could introduce to the Court my partner,
4 Jack Sherwood, Lowenstein Sandler, for AFSCME. Thank you.

5 THE COURT: Welcome, sir.

6 MR. MONTGOMERY: Good morning, your Honor. Claude
7 Montgomery, Dentons US, for the retiree committee, and with 8 me in the courtroom today with possible speaking roles are 9 Anthony Ullman, partner in Dentons, and Arthur Ruegger back
10 there. Thank you, your Honor.

11 MR. SCHNEIDER: Good morning, your Honor. Matthew 12 Schneider, chief legal counsel, Michigan Department of 13 Attorney General, on behalf of the State of Michigan, and 14 with me is Steven Howell, special assistant attorney general.

15 MS. CECCOTTI: Good morning, your Honor. Babette
16 Ceccotti, Cohen, Weiss & Simon, LLP, for the UAW. I would 17 also like to introduce my partners, Tom Ciantra sitting here
18 at counsel table, Peter DeChiara over in the corner, both of 19 whom you will see predominantly at the trial.

20 THE COURT: Thank you.

21 MR. WERTHEIMER: William Wertheimer, your Honor, on 22 behalf of the Flowers plaintiffs.

23 MS. GREEN: Good morning. Jennifer Green on behalf
24 of the General and Police and Fire Retirement Systems, and I
25 have with me my colleagues Ron King and Bob Gordon.

1 THE COURT: I'm sorry.

2 MS. GREEN: Ronald King and Bob Gordon.

3 THE COURT: Mr. King. Okay.

4 MR. MORRIS: Good morning, your Honor. Thomas
5 Morris of Silverman & Morris on behalf of the Retiree
6 Association parties. Also here representing those parties is 7 Ryan Plecha of Lippitt O'Keefe.

8 MS. PATEK: Good morning, your Honor. Barbara Patek
9 of Erman, Teicher, Miller, Zucker & Friedman on behalf of the 10 Detroit Public Safety Unions, and with me this morning are 11 Julie Teicher and David Eisenberg.

12 MS. BRIMER: Good morning, your Honor. Lynn M.
13 Brimer appearing on behalf of the Retired Detroit Police
14 Officers Association. Also with me this morning as trial
15 counsel are Meredith Taunt and Mallory Field from the firm
16 Strobl & Sharp, PC.

17 THE COURT: Thank you.

18 MR. BENNETT: Bruce Bennett of Jones Day on behalf
19 of the city, your Honor.

20 THE COURT: Okay. Then in terms of our order of 21 proceeding this morning, I'd first like to deal with the 22 motion in limine and then the three remaining discovery
23 motions, then the joint final pretrial order, and then we'll 24 begin the trial. Is that order of proceeding okay with 25 everyone? Okay.

1 Actually, first, dealing with the motion in limine,
2 I'm going to waive further oral argument on that and rely on 3 your papers and conclude, as I suggested I might the other
4 day, the Court must conclude that it is challenging, if not
5 difficult, if not impossible, to resolve this motion before
6 trial and before Mr. Moore is actually testifying. Before
7 the Court can determine the admissibility of his proffered
8 testimony, the Court must have before it the questions that 9 the proponent of the witness asks of him, so in the 10 circumstances, I will deny the motion but without prejudice,
11 of course, to the right of any party to object to any of Mr.
12 Moore's testimony on any appropriate ground.

13 So let's turn our attention then to the three 14 discovery motions. Who will argue those?

15 MR. CIANTRA: I will start off, your Honor. Thomas
16 Ciantra, Cohen, Weiss & Simon, for the UAW.

17 THE COURT: Go ahead, sir.

18 MR. CIANTRA: Your Honor, first I want to thank the 19 Court for its indulgence. Obviously we have been under a lot
20 of strain and effort to complete discovery in this matter so 21 that the trial can take place on an expedited basis, and we 22 appreciate the Court's hearing these issues on an expedited
23 basis. I'm not going to go over the papers extensively. The 24 Court has seen the issues and I'm sure has read the papers,
25 but I will make a presentation, and it's going to be divided

1 basically chronologically.

2 The first part I want to discuss are the documents
3 and testimony concerning matters which antedate the retention
4 of Jones Day or the emergency manager's retention, and then
5 the second part of the argument deals with matters that come
6 after that point in time and that are really taken up with 7 our request that the Court revisit the issues that it ruled
8 upon back in September.

9 So let me begin then with the first part, the 10 matters that antedate Jones Day's retention, and the issue
11 has been crystallized by the position that counsel for the 12 city took in the October 15th e-mail that is attached as 13 Exhibit 6(d) to the UAW's motion papers with respect to the 14 city. And what it involves are a series of memoranda that 15 Jones Day prepared in 2012, approximately at least a year
16 before the firm was retained to represent the city in this 17 matter, and these e-mails -- these memoranda are referenced
18 in an e-mail that discusses a meeting between partner Jones
19 Day that had been scheduled with Governor Snyder for June
20 5th, I believe, of 2012, and they're very specific e-mails,
21 your Honor. They are identified there, and they go to 22 obviously issues that are at the heart of UAW and other 23 objectors' issues that they would raise here, the 24 constitutional protection of the retirees' pensions being the 25 most salient. And obviously we are seeking production of

1 those documents as well as anything else that may be being
2 withheld that antedates the retention of Jones Day.

3 Now, the city has sort of taken a selective approach
4 with respect to these types of materials. Obviously Jones
5 Day spent a lot of time and a lot of effort to get itself in 6 a position to impress the state and get hired to represent 7 the city in connection with this case. There's a very 8 detailed pitch book that we have marked as an exhibit that 9 will be discussed throughout this proceeding. They have 10 produced that. They have withheld these e-mails -- these 11 memoranda that are attached to the e-mail. And the principal 12 basis for that decision at this point is the work product
13 doctrine. They have withdrawn attorney-client privilege.
14 They weren't retained by the state at any point. And now
15 they are focusing on work product.

16 And, of course, going back to first principles, the 17 work product doctrine, as it developed, intended to preserve
18 a party's lawyer's work on developing the theories and facts
19 of a case. I mean this is Hickman v. Taylor, the classic 20 example of an attorney who was interviewing witnesses to an 21 accident to assist his client's defense of that case. That's 22 not what's involved here, of course. Jones Day wasn't 23 retained by the state at any point, and they weren't retained
24 by the city in 2012.

25 THE COURT: What do you contend was the relevance or

1 would be the relevance of these memoranda in this eligibility
2 trial?

3 MR. CIANTRA: I think, your Honor, it gets to the 4 central question of what were the motivations and intent of 5 the decision-makers here. We know from discovery -- and it's 6 going to be crystal clear -- that the governor and the state
7 were well-aware of the constitutional protections that apply
8 to retiree pensions. They knew that. They were well-aware
9 of what the position was with respect to the creditor
10 proposal that the emergency manager made in June. The filing
11 was authorized without any conditions. We all know that.
12 These memos we believe will get beyond that, get into the 13 question of the specifics of knowledge, the specifics of the 14 intent of the parties to do that, and that's why we're 15 looking to get them.

16 THE COURT: Okay. Doesn't that statement of 17 relevance prove more conclusively perhaps than the city could 18 even on its own that these memoranda are prepared in 19 anticipation of litigation?

20 MR. CIANTRA: They weren't, your Honor. They were 21 prepared more than a year in advance of any litigation and by 22 a firm that was not representing anyone. These were like the 23 pitch book. They were prepared to market, to develop
24 theories and to market services. All right. There's no case
25 law that they cite that would support the assertion of work

1 product privilege for documents that are prepared in this
2 context. They have selectively produced the pitch book.
3 It's the same type of material. So for them at this point to 4 demand work product protection with respect to this we think
5 is just baseless. I mean this is not a case where maybe a
6 memo is prepared, the client comes in to meet with the 7 attorney and reveals confidences, and those are protected.
8 We all know that. That's basic attorney-client privilege
9 law, but this is not that situation. This is their marketing
10 effort to the state to be retained, and we think it is not 11 entitled to --

12 THE COURT: To be retained for what?

13 MR. CIANTRA: To apparently be retained at some 14 point. Who knows? At that point there was no emergency
15 manager. There obviously was no Chapter 9 case. This is 16 devoid of a litigation context where you could claim work
17 product. They're not representing a party at this point.
18 They're pitching.

19 THE COURT: Well, I'm just struggling with what the 20 relevance of the fact that Jones Day was pitching the 21 governor a year before would be to this eligibility trial if 22 that's all you assert it was.

23 MR. CIANTRA: Well, we know that. We know that they 24 were pitching that. That's clear. They've admitted that.
25 What's relevant is --

1 THE COURT: My question is relevance.

2 MR. CIANTRA: Well, what's relevant is potentially
3 the content of the documents, which, of course, we haven't
4 seen. That we think --

5 THE COURT: To prove what, though?

6 MR. CIANTRA: To prove what these people knew and 7 what they were intending to do.

8 THE COURT: Regarding what, though?

9 MR. CIANTRA: We think it would be relevant to 10 assess the conduct that we know occurred in 2013.

11 THE COURT: Which was to file this Chapter 9 case?

12 MR. CIANTRA: Which was to authorize the filing in 13 the face of the constitutional protections for the pension
14 benefits.

15 THE COURT: Okay. But doesn't that establish that 16 these memoranda were in anticipation of litigation?

17 MR. CIANTRA: It can't, your Honor, because of the 18 simple distance in time. They have not provided any 19 indication that the memoranda were demanded by the state;
20 that there was any retention that existed at that point in 21 time. It's an effort like the pitch book, which is a very 22 detailed document, to get work. They spent a thousand hours
23 to get work. That's what law firms do, and that's what's 24 involved here.

25 Now, obviously we haven't been able -- we don't have

1 the memos. I have the titles of the memos that are revealed
2 in the e-mail. We don't have them. I can't argue the 3 specific relevance of the content. I would suggest at this
4 point --

5 THE COURT: Do you have any case law that 6 specifically says that pre-retention work by a lawyer cannot 7 be the subject of the work product privilege?

8 MR. CIANTRA: Well, your Honor, to be honest with 9 you, I have -- we have done the research. I haven't been 10 able to find a case that has recognized work product in this
11 instance. The text of the rule talks about --

12 THE COURT: But you haven't found any that 13 specifically denies it either, huh?

14 MR. CIANTRA: No, but the --

15 THE COURT: Okay.

16 MR. CIANTRA: But the purpose of work product and 17 the wording of Rule 26 contemplates a representation. It
18 contemplates that the lawyer is working for a client
19 developing facts, developing theories. It does not 20 contemplate a relationship between parties who never 21 consummated an attorney-client relationship. Remember, of 22 course, Jones Day is not working for the State of Michigan
23 here. That's who these discussions were with. It wasn't
24 with the City of Detroit. It was with the State of Michigan.
25 But as I said, your Honor, you know, we haven't had access to

1 the memos. I would suggest --

2 THE COURT: We know, don't we, that as a matter of 3 law the attorney-client privilege can extend to pre-retention
4 discussions; isn't that right?

5 MR. CIANTRA: Well, of course. It can extend if the 6 client -- if the prospective client reveals confidences, but 7 that's not what's involved here. They're not claiming to 8 shield the confidences of the State of Michigan.

9 THE COURT: No. My question went to the next
10 question. If the attorney-client privilege can extend pre-
11 retention, why not the work product doctrine, too, if it
12 would -- if it's otherwise in anticipation of litigation?

13 MR. CIANTRA: Well, I think if there were notes of a 14 meeting that took place where client confidences would be 15 revealed, that would be -- that would be privileged, but I
16 don't believe --

17 THE COURT: That's not what we're talking about.

18 MR. CIANTRA: That's not what we're talking about,
19 at least -- I mean I haven't seen the memos, so I --

20 THE COURT: Let's boil it down to a simple hypo.
21 Okay. Client calls up attorney and says, "I'm thinking of 22 retaining you to pursue this claim I have against a potential
23 defendant. When I interview you, I want to know what your 24 strategy will be." They have a further conversation about 25 the facts. The attorney prepares a memo. They have their

1 meeting. Client decides to retain that attorney.

2 MR. CIANTRA: Right.

3 THE COURT: Is that memo protected by work product
4 or not?

5 MR. CIANTRA: I don't believe it's protected by work
6 product. I believe parts of it would be protected by 7 attorney-client in terms of the --

8 THE COURT: Okay. But I'm talking about work
9 product. You're talking about work product here.

10 MR. CIANTRA: I am talking about work --

11 THE COURT: Not protected by work product. So the 12 defendant in that case could subpoena that memorandum from 13 that attorney?

14 MR. CIANTRA: Subject to the client confidences that 15 were revealed in it cannot be -- would be attorney-client.
16 We're not challenging --

17 THE COURT: Okay. But otherwise it's disclosable.

18 MR. CIANTRA: Otherwise I think it is.

19 THE COURT: Discoverable.

20 MR. CIANTRA: Yeah. Otherwise I think it is until 21 there's a retention, especially if there's never been a
22 retention, which is the case here. This is something that 23 happened a year before between parties that never had an 24 attorney-client relationship.

25 THE COURT: Um-hmm. Um-hmm.

1 MR. CIANTRA: As I said, your Honor, we haven't
2 looked at the memos. I don't know what's in them. I would
3 suggest and we would request that the Court consider in 4 camera review of the documents and then make a ruling.

5 THE COURT: Is it just these -- I think you said six
6 memoranda that are the subject of this dispute?

7 MR. CIANTRA: At this point, that's what it's boiled
8 down to, your Honor, but we feel that we're entitled to a
9 decision with respect to this that if there's anything else
10 out there that we're not aware of -- and, frankly, your 11 Honor, there's been a lot of documents that have been 12 produced in a very exigent period of time -- we would like 13 the city to produce those.

14 THE COURT: All right. Well, we'll inquire -- we'll 15 inquire about that.

16 MR. CIANTRA: Okay. Now, let me turn to the 17 second -- let me turn to the second point, and this concerns
18 the issue that was litigated back in September, September
19 19th, on the joint --

20 THE COURT: Well, on that one I need you to begin 21 with a response to the city's assertion that this motion is 22 late --

23 MR. CIANTRA: It is --

24 THE COURT: -- untimely.

25 MR. CIANTRA: It is late, your Honor. It is late.

1 THE COURT: So why should it be considered?

2 MR. CIANTRA: Well, I think it should be considered
3 because of the particular facts and circumstances that are 4 involved here. Back in September as this issue was framed
5 and as the Court ruled, it was rather narrowly focused with 6 respect to the question of authorization. That was the 7 hypothetical that the Court developed to support its 8 reasoning.

9 THE COURT: Right. I recall that.

10 MR. CIANTRA: And what has happened since then -- 11 and this, I think, is most clearly brought out in the 12 excerpts from Governor Snyder's deposition that are attached
13 to both of the motions that UAW filed -- is that that common 14 interest has moved and morphed well beyond the issue of 15 authorization that was presented in September to basically 16 every element of -- every material element with respect to 17 the case, the development of the creditors' proposal, the 18 discussion of Article IX, Section 24, and its protections
19 here, consideration to be provided to creditors under the 20 proposed plan, consideration to be provided to the pensioners
21 under the proposed plan. It has just morphed into 22 essentially a cloak with respect to -- and excuse me; it's 23 very dry -- with respect to all of the deliberations
24 involving the emergency manager and the state, and while, you
25 know, we concede the city is correct, there is an attorney-

1 client privilege that they have, the -- it should be
2 construed narrowly in light of the public interest that's 3 involved here. The emergency manager by law is the governing
4 body of the City of Detroit. He has executive and 5 legislative authority rolled into one. His actions obviously 6 affect the 700,000 residents of the city, and people have a
7 right, we submit, to know what his deliberations are, how 8 policy is being formulated, and it shouldn't be cloaked under 9 a very broad and we would submit legally unsupported
10 construction of the attorney-client privilege. Discovery has 11 been curtailed, and it has put us in a position where now we 12 are facing trial, and we have not been able to -- because of 13 the extensive theory of privilege that the state and the city 14 have adhered to, to develop facts fully in deposition and 15 otherwise.

16 We would submit that the assertion of the privilege
17 that the governor has made, as revealed in the deposition
18 transcripts that has been taken throughout the discovery, is 19 extensive beyond what was considered in the Court's September
20 19th ruling, and we would ask the Court to -- respectfully to 21 reconsider it because otherwise we have secrecy. We have 22 public actors here, your Honor. The public has to be able to 23 hold political representatives accountable for their actions.
24 They have to know what policy decisions are being made, and 25 right now this privilege ruling has cloaked that in secrecy.

1 I don't have anything else, your Honor, to state.

2 THE COURT: Thank you.

3 MR. CIANTRA: I don't know if Mr. Wertheimer, who 4 has joined the motions for the Flowers plaintiffs, has 5 anything he would like to add.

6 THE COURT: Okay.

7 MR. CIANTRA: Thank you for your consideration.

8 MR. WERTHEIMER: William Wertheimer, your Honor.
9 First, I would like to join in the UAW's motion vis-v-vis the 10 city. I did formally join on the papers the motion vis-a-vis
11 the state.

12 I just have two points in addition to what Mr.
13 Ciantra just argued. One relates to the Snyder deposition,
14 which I participated in, and kind of what it revealed about 15 the scope of the privilege arguments now being made and how 16 far we are from the day in court where you made it a point of 17 indicating to the state that transparency was necessary here.
18 At the governor's deposition essentially privilege was 19 invoked as to the entire content of weekly meetings that the 20 governor had with the emergency manager for months as to the 21 entire scope of those meetings making it virtually impossible
22 to examine the governor as to any of that. That's point
23 number one.

24 And just one other point, and that is that in the 25 normal case -- well, let me back up. Per the agreement the

1 parties made and given the position of the governor, we
2 agreed to limit our discovery deposition to three hours. In 3 the normal case where privileges are alleged on privilege
4 logs like what we have here, you have an opportunity to go
5 beyond the privilege log and the cursory explanation for why
6 the privilege is being invoked by at deposition asking
7 witnesses questions, detailed questions about the particular
8 meeting at which they're claiming a privilege, you know, what 9 the other subjects were, how long the meeting took, did the 10 lawyer do anything at the meeting, et cetera, as to key
11 documents. We have not had that opportunity here just given 12 the time, and I'm not -- no one is at fault for that. It's 13 going too fast. We had three hours with the governor. We 14 did appropriate examinations. But I think in this 15 circumstance that it would make sense for this Court to 16 examine certain of the documents in camera in order to assure 17 that the Court's desire and everybody's desire for 18 transparency is met. I think this is a special case. I
19 don't think --

20 THE COURT: Are you referring to documents other
21 than these six memoranda attached to the e-mail?

22 MR. WERTHEIMER: I am, your Honor. I'm referring 23 specifically to documents that are in dispute that are in the 24 state's possession.

25 THE COURT: Can you identify them any more

1 particularly for me or the record?

2 MR. WERTHEIMER: We've attempted to identify them to
3 the state by indicating in logs documents that covered a
4 particular -- what we believe to be a key time period was.
5 We've also attempted to limit the request in terms of those
6 in which Mr. Orr and Mr. Snyder were directly involved, but I
7 must admit to the Court it still involves, at least at this
8 point, in terms of our back and forth, a fairly large number
9 of documents that I would respectfully suggest that the best
10 way to proceed -- given the fact that the governor is going
11 to be testifying on Monday at trial, the best way to proceed
12 may be for the Court to get involved in terms of in camera
13 review.

14 THE COURT: And these are documents which you claim 15 were improperly withheld pursuant to the common interest
16 exception?

17 MR. WERTHEIMER: Not just common interest, your 18 Honor, also just documents where they claimed attorney-
19 client. And we're not claiming -- we don't know whether 20 they're improperly withheld I guess is what I'm trying to 21 say. We're claiming that they may be --

22 THE COURT: You're concerned. Okay.

23 MR. WERTHEIMER: -- and that we should not have to 24 rely upon the cursory description of counsel given --

25 THE COURT: Well, but in order for me to accede to

1 your request to look at documents, we have to have identified
2 what documents you want me to look at and what documents you
3 want the city or the governor or the state -- excuse me -- to 4 produce to me.

5 MR. WERTHEIMER: What I'm -- I agree, your Honor,
6 and what I'm suggesting is we did make such an effort on a
7 preliminary basis with the state in trying to resolve it, but
8 I'm acknowledging that that effort would still -- if we stop
9 there, would still leave your Honor with a large number of 10 documents. We could continue that effort. I agree that that 11 would be necessary, but I still think that it calls for in 12 camera review of relevant documents or potentially relevant
13 documents. And we're happy to work with the state to try and 14 limit what that -- what the documents would be.

15 THE COURT: Well, when are you going to do that 16 given that we're in trial all day today, tomorrow, and 17 Friday?

18 MR. WERTHEIMER: Well, if we can't, we can't, and 19 then I would suggest to the Court that the limitation which 20 we did communicate to the state should be the one the state
21 should use -- or that we should use. And as I recall, there
22 were at least two attempts to limit the documents. One
23 related to time; that is, we said we think that the judge
24 should be able to take an in camera look at documents between 25 key players from date A to date B, and I don't have in front

1 of me exactly what those dates were. And, second, we
2 indicated that the documents directly between the governor
3 and the emergency manager over a broader period of time
4 should be subject to in camera review. If there's no time to 5 do anything else, our position would be that the Court should 6 examine those documents in camera.

7 THE COURT: All right. Thank you, sir.

8 MR. WERTHEIMER: Yes, your Honor.

9 THE COURT: While you're sitting down, I would
10 suggest you try to figure out what those dates are. That 11 would be helpful.

12 MR. SCHNEIDER: Your Honor, Matthew Schneider on 13 behalf of the state. Mr. Wertheimer has raised some issues
14 that relate to this and also to the other motion, so in 15 expediency here I can kind of respond to both.

16 THE COURT: Please.

17 MR. SCHNEIDER: The first issue here that Mr.
18 Wertheimer's -- or the UAW and Flowers objectors raised
19 relates to a March 12 e-mail, and the objection was that it
20 should have been produced without redactions. Now, the state 21 disagrees, but we want to resolve this dispute, and we have 22 produced that anyway, so we're not waiving the attorney-
23 client privilege or altering the common interest agreement or 24 anything by doing that, but I wanted to let you know at least 25 one issue has been resolved. Secondly --

1 THE COURT: When you say "has been resolved," you
2 say you have or are willing to turn over the memos?

3 MR. SCHNEIDER: We have. This is related to the 4 March 12 e-mail.

5 THE COURT: March 12 --

6 MR. SCHNEIDER: It's an e-mail from Richard Baird to 7 Kevyn Orr, and this was at issue.

8 THE COURT: -- 2012?

9 MR. SCHNEIDER: 2013.

10 THE COURT: Okay.

11 MR. SCHNEIDER: Okay. Secondly, there's another
12 argument that the state hasn't been specific on its privilege
13 log, and I think that's why this is kind of bleeding
14 together. Again, the state disagrees. We think the logs are 15 sufficient, but we've revised these anyway, and we've -- you
16 know, we're giving them to Mr. Wertheimer. So, again, we're 17 not waiving anything, but we want to let the Court know that 18 we are working with them and are happy to do so. But,
19 finally, third --

20 THE COURT: It was a little frustrating that your 21 log didn't provide any identifying information regarding the 22 people involved other than their names.

23 MR. SCHNEIDER: Well, we've corrected that.

24 THE COURT: Where? How?

25 MR. SCHNEIDER: Well, Mr. Wertheimer asked for

1 additional information that's more specific on the privilege
2 log, and I believe we've done that, and --

3 THE COURT: In the log itself because we looked at 4 the revised log -- at least I did, and all I saw were names?
5 Now, it's possible that I missed a page where the names were 6 identified, whether they're attorneys or officers of the 7 state or associated with the emergency manager. I couldn't 8 tell who was who.

9 MR. SCHNEIDER: My understanding is there's more
10 description about what actually is in there, but I will --
11 you know, I will continue to work with Mr. Wertheimer on this 12 so as to not -- not to delay.

13 The third issue here is relating to the common
14 interest agreement, and I think that's where the Flowers and 15 the UAW objectors are really going here. The state's 16 position ultimately at the end of the day -- the state's 17 position is is that your order, your Honor, that you entered 18 on September 19 was correct, and we believe that it was 19 correct then and it's correct today. And the new position
20 that the objectors are raising is essentially that there's no
21 common interest privilege before the filing. This is -- as 22 the Court is aware, this has been brought to your attention
23 literally -- literally -- on the eve of trial. There was a
24 deposition in which the Court invited the parties to contact
25 the Court in case there were concerns. They never did that.

1 They never raised a written objection after the deposition.
2 It's beyond the 14-day rule, and there's no defect or no
3 error shown, so I think there's a waiver here, and,
4 therefore, it should be denied on that ground.

5 In addition, the common interest agreement here as 6 to the argument that the objectors are trying to find
7 information that antedate the appointment of the emergency
8 manager, if you look at the common interest agreement itself,
9 it states that this isn't just about the appointment of the 10 emergency manager. It states that the parties have a common 11 interest in relation to the city's financial emergency and 12 the bankruptcy case and the emergency manager, so this goes 13 to a lot more than just the Chapter 9 filing. It goes to the 14 financial emergency and things in connection with the policy
15 issues and the legal discussions related to that. Thank you.

16 THE COURT: Thank you.

17 MR. IRWIN: Thank you, your Honor. I will address
18 the motion to compel the Jones Day materials first and then 19 the motion for reconsideration. The request that has been 20 made as it relates to core Jones Day internal research
21 memoranda it seems to us is antithetical to the work product
22 privilege, and we think the Court's analogy is exactly right.
23 If a client prepares a legal -- if a lawyer prepares a legal 24 memoranda to assist him or her or a team of lawyers in order
25 to deliver legal advice to a potential client -- a client or

1 a potential client, even before there is an attorney-client
2 relationship, that is wholly protected by work product if it
3 reflects the attorney's mental impressions and it puts him or 4 her in a position where they can deliver appropriate legal
5 advice. And it shouldn't matter if that attorney-client
6 relationship is ultimately consummated or not. It is an 7 inviolable attorney work product that is -- belongs to the 8 lawyer who prepared it and puts them in a position where they 9 can effectually do their jobs and deliver legal advice.

10 Now, what happened in this particular situation,
11 just to put a finer point on it, is I think not the subject
12 of any real debate. Everyone knew that Detroit was in 13 trouble in late 2011 and that there were people working this 14 problem, and that included people from the state. It
15 included people from the city. It included numerous advisors
16 and consultants. It involved numerous law firms, and there
17 were lots of people who wanted to get involved. And Jones
18 Day had the opportunity to do just that, and we --

19 THE COURT: So why doesn't it matter that the work
20 product was for the state, for the governor or state 21 officials, and the ultimate client wound up being none of 22 those but the city?

23 MR. IRWIN: Well, I think it was all part of the 24 same problem. I think that the entity that had the problem
25 here was the city, and I think the law firms like Jones

1 Day -- and I think that the papers that we submit support
2 that -- were hoping and expecting to be retained and engaged
3 by the city. And it's not -- it shouldn't surprise anyone
4 that Jones Day would have been doing legal research in order
5 to put itself in a position to assist the city in that 6 regard, and so it really didn't matter which of the entities
7 was -- not engaging in the sense of an attorney-client
8 representation, but was discussing these matters with Jones
9 Day. Jones Day had to put itself in a position where it was 10 able to represent the city effectively, and in order to do
11 that, it had to investigate this entire situation. There was 12 a legal analysis that you would expect to have been done on a 13 number of levels, and we have, you know, memoranda that came 14 about as a result. And if the Court would be --

15 THE COURT: Well, okay, but what's the foundational
16 basis for the work product privilege that shields otherwise
17 relevant facts from discovery and suggests that that basis
18 should apply to memoranda such as you claim privilege for 19 here?

20 MR. IRWIN: Well, it's if they're prepared in 21 anticipation of litigation, and as we've indicated in the 22 papers, that's a broad standard. You don't have to 23 anticipate a specific piece of litigation. You can 24 anticipate litigation broadly. You can anticipate that this 25 is a city in financial crisis and that they are going to need

1 assistance moving forward. It might take the path of a
2 Chapter 9. It might not. It might take the form of numerous
3 private lawsuits against individual stakeholders in all of 4 this. And a law firm has to be able to explore those various 5 options to put itself in a position where it can ably
6 represent the ultimate client here, which turned out to be
7 the city.

8 We also -- your Honor, the -- we're having a hard 9 time understanding the relevance here of the memoranda as 10 well. We are happy to provide them to the Court in camera.
11 If the Court would like to see the memoranda, we have the 12 memoranda. We can easily provide them, and the Court could 13 determine for itself if, in fact, it finds these memoranda
14 either surprising or relevant in some way. And what we have 15 done here, your Honor, is we've proposed a structure or a
16 framework that I would submit is reasonably conservative
17 under the circumstances in terms of the number of privileges
18 and the nature of privileges that we could assert. What we 19 have done here is we have, in fact, already released the -- 20 many of the e-mails that reflect the conversations between 21 Jones Day lawyers and the folks in 2012 who were working on 22 this problem. This, again, is before there's any attorney-
23 client relationship with anyone. We've released those, and 24 we're not claiming those back. We are seeking an order from 25 the Court is to protect our wholly internal memoranda or

1 internal deliberations, which conversations are not --

2 THE COURT: Now, when you say "wholly internal" --

3 MR. IRWIN: Yes.

4 THE COURT: -- do you mean that these memoranda were 5 not shared even with the state officials?

6 MR. IRWIN: We will make that determination, but we 7 believe there are memoranda at issue here that were not 8 shared with anyone from the state, so our -- we are asking to 9 be able to withhold our internal research memoranda even 10 though work product would protect that. The work product,
11 because there's no waiver of work product, unlike attorney-
12 client, as long as you share it with someone who is in a 13 nonadversarial -- you share it in a nonadversarial way. It's 14 not like attorney work -- it's not like attorney-client in 15 that regard. We believe that we would still have work
16 product protection over those materials, and so we are asking
17 for the Jones Day research materials and the Jones Day
18 internal conversations about how to proceed here and how to 19 deliver advice should be protected.

20 Now, there comes a point in time later in 2012 when 21 a specific client opportunity presents itself in the form of 22 being hired by the city, in the form of this RFP process, and 23 the public document that is the pitch material that is in the 24 record already and that we not seeking to disclose, but 25 insofar as documents relating --

1 THE COURT: You mean not seeking not to disclose?

2 MR. IRWIN: I'm sorry, your Honor. Yes. It's in 3 the record right now. We are not seeking to clawback or 4 anything like that. That's not an issue here. But we are --
5 we do believe that -- as the Court referenced, because pre-
6 engagement conversations between a lawyer and a potential
7 client are still protected by the attorney-client privilege,
8 we are seeking -- we are seeking protection for those 9 communications, communications -- outbound communications
10 from Jones Day in the retention period where we are receiving 11 confidential information and acting upon it. We do think at 12 that period of time, attorney-client protection would attach 13 as well as attorney work product. But in the 2012 time
14 period, which is what the UAW's motion is directed towards,
15 we are simply asserting work product for the Jones Day legal 16 research that was conducted to put ourselves in a position to 17 ultimately be hired in to assist the city.

18 THE COURT: So are you telling the Court that you
19 don't have any objection to disclosing and don't claim work
20 product privilege as to any memoranda that was shared with 21 one or more state officials?

22 MR. IRWIN: That's right.

23 THE COURT: And have you already turned over all
24 such memoranda and communications that were given to state
25 officials?

1 MR. IRWIN: No. The answer is no, but we are
2 prepared to do that. We are not standing on that.

3 THE COURT: Okay. Thank you, sir.

4 MR. IRWIN: Yeah. Does the Court wish to hear on 5 the motion for reconsideration?

6 THE COURT: Yes. Yes, I do.

7 MR. IRWIN: Yes.

8 THE COURT: If you'd like to address that, I'd like
9 to hear from you, of course.

10 MR. IRWIN: I would, your Honor. As we indicated,
11 we think this is late. This is -- there is no -- there's 12 nothing in the papers that have been submitted that indicate
13 a good reason for reopening this. There is no palpable
14 defect in the ruling, and there is nothing new. There's no
15 new evidence. There's no -- despite the fact that they occur
16 in the same motion, there's no linking of these two issues,
17 and so there's, therefore, no good reason -- and I haven't 18 heard one offered -- as to why this matter should be 19 reopened. And the parties have, in fact, been relying on 20 this ruling in connection with all of the discovery
21 proceedings that have taken place since then. We think the 22 ruling was sound. The objectors have not indicated why there
23 is any reason to disturb the Court's analogy of a board of 24 directors and corporation counsel and the fact that they 25 should be permitted and need to talk to each other in order

1 to reach a sound conclusion as to whether to do something
2 like file for bankruptcy. We think that's analogous here.
3 The governor and his legal team and the emergency manager and 4 his legal team need to be able to talk. They need to be able 5 to talk in confidence with regard to the common interest,
6 which, again, this is counsel to what -- contrary to what we
7 heard, broader than simply a Chapter 9 filing. The common
8 interest related to the city's financial -- the city's 9 financial crisis more broadly and the right legal path
10 forward. And insofar as the communications related to a 11 legal path forward, that privilege was properly invoked. And 12 I do recall that the Court -- I read -- I was not here, but I
13 understand that the Court made itself available to the 14 parties if, in fact, there were specific questions because 15 it's very difficult to know exactly what form these questions
16 will take in making a ruling, and I believe the Court offered
17 its services to the parties if, in fact, there was any 18 impasse at the depositions, and I don't believe any objectors
19 took advantage of that, and so we believe that under the 20 circumstances, given that the ruling was fundamentally 21 correct, that there was no attempt at the time to seek 22 further court intervention and that we've been relying on 23 these rulings going forward, that there is no reason to 24 overturn them at this time.

25 THE COURT: Thank you, sir.

1 MR. IRWIN: Yeah.

2 THE COURT: Brief rebuttal.

3 MR. CIANTRA: Just very briefly, your Honor. I just 4 want to draw the Court's attention to a couple of matters.
5 First, with respect to the Jones Day memos, to the extent the 6 Court determines to review the memoranda in camera, we'd
7 request that the Court also review the cover e-mail that 8 enclosed the memoranda. And I'm not --

9 THE COURT: This was an e-mail from who to whom?

10 MR. CIANTRA: This was an e-mail from Heather Lennox
11 of Jones Day to certain of her partners at Jones Day that 12 references the meeting with the governor, and I'm not going
13 to read the e-mail because they've claimed in the October
14 15th correspondence to myself that it's privileged, but it
15 goes to the -- I think goes to the issue that the Court was 16 addressing with respect to --

17 THE COURT: So these memoranda are internal in the 18 sense that they were not shared with any officials of the 19 state or the city?

20 MR. CIANTRA: It is unclear to me that that can be 21 said with any degree of assurance, and it seems entirely --

22 THE COURT: Well, but Mr. Irwin states it here on 23 the record. Do we doubt it?

24 MR. CIANTRA: I did not hear that. I did not hear
25 him say definitively that those memos were not shared with

1 anyone at the state, and from the --

2 THE COURT: Well, let's just ask to be sure. Mr.
3 Irwin.

4 MR. IRWIN: We will -- I will absolutely
5 investigate. That's part of what we're saying. We will 6 investigate that, and we'll have a clear answer.

7 THE COURT: Oh, all right.

8 MR. CIANTRA: So we don't have --

9 THE COURT: So there you go.

10 MR. CIANTRA: So we don't have a clear answer, but I
11 would suggest that if you -- if the Court reviews the e-mail
12 that they are claiming privilege with respect to, the 13 conclusion can be drawn that the substance of those memos was 14 surely shared in that meeting, and it would seem, at a 15 minimum, that would arguably constitute a waiver along with 16 the production of the pitch materials, which go into 17 considerable detail with respect to the legal theories that 18 were involved here.

19 THE COURT: All right.

20 MR. CIANTRA: The second issue I just wanted to just 21 very -- just brief clarification with respect to the 22 privilege logs. We filed -- we requested that the state
23 supplement the privilege logs, and that is in the 24 correspondence that is attached to the motion that we filed
25 with respect to the state because there was no specification

1 in certain cases of who was involved in the communications,
2 who authored them, who received them, or the subject matter
3 of many of the -- of all of the communications, so we had no
4 way to assess the assertion of privilege based on the logs.
5 In response to that correspondence, they revised the logs, so
6 this is what the Court referred to, but we only received
7 those within the past day or two --

8 THE COURT: Right. I know.

9 MR. CIANTRA: -- so we haven't had the opportunity
10 to, you know, line that --

11 THE COURT: Right.

12 MR. CIANTRA: -- up, but I just wanted the record to 13 be clear with respect to that.

14 THE COURT: No. I appreciate that very much.

15 MR. CIANTRA: Yeah, yeah. Obviously with respect to 16 the -- having not filed this within 14 days, your Honor, 17 obviously the discovery here was unfolding well past the 18 deadline for the production, and we have not -- we've done
19 the best we could. This was not an intentional delay on our 20 part. As these issues developed, it became clear to us that 21 the scope of what was being withheld we felt was inconsistent
22 with what the Court had permitted.

23 THE COURT: All right. I'm going to take this under 24 advisement until ten o'clock, and I'll give you a decision
25 then.

1 THE CLERK: All rise. Court is in recess.

2 (Recess at 9:49 a.m., until 10:00 a.m.)

3 THE CLERK: All rise. Court is in session. Please
4 be seated. Recalling Case Number 13-53846, City of Detroit,
5 Michigan.

6 THE COURT: All counsel are present. Ma'am.

7 MS. GREEN: Good morning, your Honor. I apologize.
8 I think our motion got lost in the shuffle. The Retirement
9 Systems filed a similar motion to the UAW's. I just have a 10 few --

11 THE COURT: I was actually going to hear it after,
12 but if you'd like to be heard now, that's fine.

13 MR. GREEN: Oh, you know, I just -- it dovetailed
14 with what they were arguing, so I just had a few points --

15 THE COURT: Okay. Go ahead.

16 MS. GREEN: -- to raise. The first thing I wanted
17 to add is that at the time we drafted our motion, we thought
18 that the June 5th, 2012, e-mail was being reasserted as 19 privileged. Mr. Irwin in his argument this morning has said
20 that they are not waiving privilege -- or they are now
21 waiving privilege to that. It is back in the record. So to 22 clarify, the e-mail does say that the memos were shared with 23 the treasurer. It says they were memos that we did for Andy.
24 I presume that means they were shared with him. I don't know
25 if that's actually true or not, but the memo does seem to

1 indicate that they were shared with a third party.

2 As far as the work product analysis, in our brief we
3 went through the relevant standard in the Sixth Circuit, your
4 Honor, and I don't believe that we talked about that yet
5 today. There's a two-part test. The first part of that test
6 is whether the document was prepared, quote, "because of the 7 party's subjective anticipation of litigation, as contrasted
8 with ordinary business purpose, and (2) whether that 9 subjective anticipation was objectively reasonable." And,
10 furthermore, the driving force behind the preparation of the 11 document is what is key, and we assert that the "because of"
12 part fails. They did it because of the fact that they were 13 trying to prepare themselves for the prospect of being hired,
14 not because of the fact that there was actually anticipated
15 litigation. And, moreover, it's very attenuated that in 2011
16 they had some kind of crystal ball that they knew two years
17 from now they were going to be in this courtroom arguing
18 about eligibility under Chapter 9. And we did cite case law
19 in our brief. You had asked counsel this morning if there 20 was any case law regarding some kind of temporal factor, and 21 we cited two cases. One states, "the mere fact that 22 litigation does eventually ensue does not, by itself, cloak 23 materials with work product immunity," so between that and 24 the next case that we cited, "The abstract possibility that 25 an event might be the subject of future litigation will not

1 support the claim of privilege," I think those are 2 dispositive. This was two years before any of this even 3 arose.

4 Furthermore, I think that goes to whether or not the 5 anticipation of litigation could be objectively reasonable.
6 I don't know how two years prior to the litigation it could 7 be objectively reasonable that, number one, PA 4 still had to 8 get past the referendum. Number two, it was ten months
9 before the EM was hired even if you assume that these were 10 prepared in June of 2012 when the memo -- memos were shared 11 with the governor or with Andy Dillon. They may have been 12 prepared prior to that. We don't know. Moreover, the EM had 13 to be appointed. PA 436 had to become effective. All of 14 these things had to happen before we could be here today, and 15 Jones Day had to be retained. So there are like at least 16 five or six major contingencies that had to occur before the 17 actual litigation would ensue.

18 Furthermore, even if they can establish the work
19 product, which we don't think they can, they still have to 20 overcome the waiver issue, and I don't -- I think that today
21 is a further example that they have selectively waived. They 22 waived the memo itself but not the attachments. Today the 23 state stood up and said, you know, "We have an e-mail from 24 March 3rd, 2013, between Kevyn Orr. There are two attorneys
25 on it from the State of Michigan. But to be cooperative, we

1 will give you that e-mail." Well, if they're saying it's 2 privileged but they're giving it to us, to me, again, that's 3 a selective waiver. They just give us what they want when
4 they want it, but they keep what they want as well, and I
5 don't see how they get past that.

6 In addition, my last point would be it's still not 7 clear who the client is that Jones Day is claiming they've
8 been representing. No city official, to my knowledge,
9 through any of my review of these documents or the e-mails --
10 there is not a single city official that is ever cc'd, bcc'd,
11 you know, sent the memos. It's purely between Jones Day
12 attorneys, Miller Buckfire, Huron Consulting, all of these 13 advisors that, again, when I think it comes to waiver,
14 clearly these are third parties and not the potential client.

15 The last point I will make because I want to be 16 brief -- I know you are ready to rule, I think -- is that I
17 think the wrong standard was stated earlier by the city. He 18 said that there's a different standard for waiver of the 19 attorney-client privilege versus work product, and that is 20 not true in the Sixth Circuit. We cited two cases in our 21 brief. The first one is New Phoenix Sunrise, and it says,
22 "Both the attorney-client privilege and work product
23 protection are waived by voluntary disclosure of private 24 communications to third parties." We also cited the In re.
25 Columbia case also --

1 THE COURT: I'm sorry. Are waived by what? I just 2 didn't hear what you said.

3 MS. GREEN: Disclosure of private communications to 4 third parties. And he had said that some sort of different
5 standard applied when it was work product versus attorney-
6 client, and we also cited the In re. Columbia case that said
7 the same thing. There's no compelling reason for 8 differentiating waiver of work product from waiver of the 9 attorney-client privilege, so to me it's a distinction
10 without a difference to say, "Well, we gave it to," and I
11 think the quote he said a minute ago was, "numerous 12 consultants and advisors as well as the state." And to me
13 that is disclosing it to third parties; therefore, it was 14 waived when it was created a year or two ago, not to mention
15 the fact that as part of this litigation, they have 16 selectively waived certain e-mails that somewhat have to do
17 with this subject matter in that they relate to, for 18 instance, reviewing the consent agreement or reviewing and 19 commenting on PA 4 and the analysis related to PA 4. And we 20 cited case law in our brief stating that if you waive the 21 privilege on selected pieces, you, therefore, waive it as to 22 the entire subject matter, and, therefore, you can't 23 selectively say, "Well, you can have the e-mail, but you
24 can't have the attachments," or, "You can have this e-mail, 25 but you can't have this e-mail." So we would say that the

1 entire privilege has been waived by selectively waiving it as
2 to a few e-mails here and there. Those are my comments.

3 THE COURT: Thank you.

4 MS. GREEN: Thank you.

5 MR. IRWIN: I'll simply respond to those few points
6 that counsel made. The first, in connection with whether the 7 timing of all of this should make a difference, I would
8 submit that that is arbitrary. There are lots of things that 9 could have happened in the middle of 2012 that would have 10 been litigation events. Maybe they didn't, but that doesn't 11 mean that at the time that all of this was being considered,
12 when legal advice -- or when Jones Day was considering some 13 of these issues, they weren't anticipating litigation. It is 14 fortuitous that this happened two years later, actually, a
15 year and a half later or one year later, but that doesn't 16 mean that either potential clients or Jones Day were not 17 working in anticipation of litigation, which, as we indicated
18 in our brief, does not need to be a specific litigation
19 event. You can anticipate litigation broadly. You never 20 know what form it will take. You know there are going to be 21 fights. You know there will be disputes. You don't know if 22 it'll be a private -- private lawsuits. You don't know if 23 it'll be a Chapter 9 filing, but you can anticipate the need
24 for legal advice in an adversarial proceeding in some form
25 and meet the standard.

1 In terms of select -- whether there's been selective
2 waiver or subject matter waiver, as counsel suggests, this is
3 I think fundamentally incorrect. The standard for subject
4 matter waiver is whether documents have been disclosed. It's 5 the shield and sword problem. It's if documents have been 6 disclosed and counsel intends to rely on them affirmatively
7 and yet withholds the balance of the documents that, in 8 fairness, should be considered, and I think this is codified
9 pretty clearly in the advisory committee notes to Federal 10 Rule 502 where they say, "Thus, subject matter waiver is 11 limited to situations in which a party intentionally puts 12 protected information into the litigation in a selective,
13 misleading and unfair manner. Under both Rules, a party that 14 makes a selective, misleading presentation that is unfair to 15 the adversary opens itself to a more complete and accurate
16 presentation." We are not -- we, the city, are not using any 17 of these materials affirmatively. They are not on our 18 exhibit lists. We are not introducing them through 19 witnesses. We are not using them to our advantage that 20 should open us to some sort of claim of subject matter waiver
21 or selective disclosure under the rules.

22 And then lastly, I think fundamentally there is --
23 and I believe this is black letter law -- there are different
24 standards for whether there is waiver by disclosure under 25 attorney work product as opposed to attorney client. If you

1 disclose attorney-client communications to a third party, you
2 are much more likely to be deemed to have waived that 3 privilege, but with attorney work product, you can make
4 disclosures. And as long as they are disclosures to parties
5 who are nonadversarial, then you can still enjoy that 6 protection. And that is a fundamental difference between the 7 two privileges. It is not something where they are -- where 8 disclosures to folks who are within the potential group of 9 clients or advisors who are working these problems operates
10 to waive the privilege. And I think we've demonstrated that,
11 your Honor.

12 THE COURT: I want to -- I want to be sure the 13 record accurately reflects your position regarding what's to 14 be disclosed and what isn't. Is it correct that to the 15 extent any of these memoranda that were attached to this June
16 2012 e-mail from Ms. Lennox were disclosed to state
17 officials, you are willing to make them available to counsel
18 here?

19 MR. IRWIN: Yes, your Honor, but the e-mail itself
20 suggests -- if memoranda was prepared to prepare a Jones Day
21 lawyer for a meeting with counsel, that would not be. It's 22 not my understanding of what we're talking about.

23 THE COURT: Okay. But you don't know which of the 24 several memoranda were shared and which weren't?

25 MR. IRWIN: We'll do that.

1 THE COURT: How will you determine that or --

2 MR. IRWIN: Because we have the -- the Jones Day
3 lawyers are accessible, and we can figure that out.

4 THE COURT: All right. Thank you.

5 MS. GREEN: I have a brief rebuttal.

6 THE COURT: Yes, of course.

7 MS. GREEN: I think the hypo that you stated earlier
8 compared to what he just said -- you know, these were memos
9 preparing a Jones Day lawyer to go seek work -- is different
10 than the hypo that you stated earlier, which was you meet 11 with a client who wants to meet with you for the purpose of 12 retaining you, and you may make notes. That's different to 13 me than, "I did memos to prepare myself to go pitch a 14 client." To me those are two different scenarios, and 15 there's a distinction, I think, between did the state ask for 16 this work, or was Jones Day just doing it internally, again,
17 to prepare. I think those are two distinct scenarios.

18 One other thing that occurred yesterday, you made a
19 note on the record about PA 4 and that perhaps the intent
20 behind the appropriation -- the inclusion of the 21 appropriation was a factual issue for this trial, and I think
22 that some of the e-mail correspondence may go to that issue,
23 quite frankly, because the PA 4 appropriation was extensively
24 discussed in all these e-mails, and for that reason I think
25 there is a possibility that it would become relevant to a

1 separate issue than what Mr. Ciantra stated this morning,
2 which was the good faith and the bad faith issues and things
3 like that.

4 The last thing I would offer is our Exhibits 31
5 through 65 have a lot of the e-mail correspondence that has 6 been produced by the city, and there is a lot of, I guess,
7 internal -- what they would consider their internal work
8 product in those e-mails. I don't concede it's work product, 9 but according to what they are defining as work product, it's 10 in those e-mails, and it's already been produced, and it's 11 been waived. So if you'd like to look at those e-mails to 12 sort of familiarize yourself with what we're talking about,
13 I've produced a copy of our binder for your clerk this 14 morning if you'd like to look at those. Thank you, your
15 Honor.

16 THE COURT: All right.

17 MS. BRIMER: Your Honor, I'll be very brief.

18 THE COURT: Why should I hear you? You're not a 19 party to these motions.

20 MS. BRIMER: I understand that, your Honor. I want
21 to clarify one matter on the record that Ms. Green made,
22 and --

23 THE COURT: I will let you clarify a statement on 24 the record, but I can't let you argue on one side or the 25 other of these motions.

1 MS. BRIMER: That's fine, your Honor. And Ms. Green
2 raised the issue of your ruling on Monday with respect to the 3 intent of the appropriation in PA 4, and I want to be sure
4 the record is very clear that it's the appropriation in PA
5 436 that your Honor ruled may be a factual issue that prior 6 to that was not considered a factual issue. I want to be 7 sure the record is very clear on that, which law we are 8 addressing, your Honor. It may have an impact on the memos.
9 Thank you.

10 THE COURT: Thank you, I guess. All right. On the 11 issue -- on the first issue, which is the motion for 12 reconsideration of the Court's previous ruling on the common
13 interest doctrine, the Court concludes that the record does 14 not establish cause to consider that motion out of time, and,
15 accordingly, for that reason alone, the motion is denied.

16 But having said that, I want the record to be clear
17 and the parties to understand that to the extent a question
18 is asked of a witness and either a witness or counsel on the 19 witness' behalf claims attorney-client privilege and asserts
20 the common interest doctrine or any other privilege, for that 21 matter, the Court will take a fresh look at that and consider 22 counsel's arguments relating to that.

23 On the motions to compel, the Court appreciates the 24 city's willingness to disclose to counsel for the objecting
25 parties whatever memoranda it shared -- the city's counsel,

1 Jones Day, shared with state officials and would request that
2 that disclosure be accomplished as promptly as possible.

3 To the extent, however, that the moving parties seek 4 a ruling from the Court that the mere fact that memoranda or 5 other documents that would otherwise be protected by the work
6 product doctrine were prepared pre-retention means that they 7 are not protected by that doctrine, the Court must reject and 8 overrule that position.

9 Accordingly, to the extent that the city is 10 maintaining this privilege as to any of these memoranda that 11 were attached to Ms. Lennox's e-mail or any other memoranda,
12 for that matter, the Court will look at them in camera and 13 ask the city to produce them for that purpose, again, as 14 promptly as possible.

15 As to the documents that Mr. Wertheimer suggests
16 were improperly withheld in discovery, this presents a more
17 challenging request if only because the documents that are 18 the subject of Mr. Wertheimer's request are not identified,
19 and so, Mr. Wertheimer, all I can do in that regard is ask 20 you to identify, again, as promptly as possible, what 21 documents or range of documents you seek the city to be 22 compelled to disclose, review that with the city, and to the 23 extent you can't work it out, we will take a break from our 24 trial whenever you are ready and work our way through it.

25 MR. WERTHEIMER: Yes, your Honor. I believe you

1 meant the state.

2 THE COURT: The state. I did.

3 MR. WERTHEIMER: Yes.

4 THE COURT: Thank you.

5 MR. WERTHEIMER: Thank you, your Honor.

6 THE COURT: All right. So are there any other
7 issues still open before we begin our opening statements?

8 MR. SCHNEIDER: Your Honor, there is one, and that 9 is because there has been discussion about the trial
10 subpoenas that were issued to the governor, the treasurer,
11 Mr. Baird, and Mr. Ryan. The last time I appeared before
12 you, I argued -- I opposed that. I want the Court to know I
13 am not going to file a motion to quash. The governor, in the 14 spirit of cooperation and because he wants to move this 15 proceeding along, is willing to testify, and we have made -- 16 we will make all of those state witnesses available. And we 17 believe that Monday between 1 p.m. and 3 p.m. the governor
18 would be available, and we think the other witnesses -- well,
19 the other witnesses will be available on Monday or Tuesday.

20 THE COURT: Thank you.

21 MR. DECHIARA: Good morning, your Honor. Peter 22 DeChiara from the law firm of Cohen, Weiss & Simon for the 23 UAW. The UAW and the Flowers plaintiffs appreciate the 24 state's decision to change its position and to produce the 25 state witnesses. We just want to be careful to note for the

1 record that there's been no agreement that there should be
2 any set time for the testimony of the state witnesses,
3 including the governor. While we realize the governor has a
4 busy schedule, it is also our view that the governor, perhaps
5 with the exception of Mr. Orr, is maybe the most important
6 witness in this case, and given the significance of his 7 testimony and given the significance of the fact that there
8 may be documents we may have to examine him on which we have 9 not yet seen, we would just want to note for the record that 10 there's been no agreement that his testimony would be limited
11 to two hours. Thank you.

12 THE COURT: Thank you. Mr. Schneider.

13 MR. SCHNEIDER: As of this point, your Honor, I fail
14 to see the reason for the objector's argument that the 15 governor would require to testify for a lengthy period of 16 time. This Court is well aware of the governor's situation
17 and who he is in the state. He is willing to do this, but I
18 think we will have to work with the objectors as to timing.

19 THE COURT: Well, I would certainly encourage that,
20 but it's not for a witness who appears in any court to 21 condition his appearance on a specific time limit.

22 MR. SCHNEIDER: He's certainly not doing that.
23 That's certainly not the case.

24 THE COURT: The UAW certainly interpreted it that 25 way, and, frankly, I did, too.

1 MR. SCHNEIDER: Well, I'm sorry about that, your
2 Honor, but I can tell you, as I indicated before, the 3 governor wants to be cooperative --

4 THE COURT: All right.

5 MR. SCHNEIDER: -- as possible.

6 THE COURT: Good. Thank you. All right. We do
7 have to get to the issue of the amended joint final pretrial
8 order. If I read it correctly, one or more of the objecting
9 parties decided after our final pretrial conference to object
10 to a certain small number of exhibits, and the state was -- 11 or excuse me -- the city was not willing to allow for a 12 statement of such a late asserted objection. Is that what 13 this is about?

14 MR. ULLMAN: Not really, your Honor.

15 THE COURT: Not really?

16 MR. ULLMAN: Not really, not in our view.

17 THE COURT: Oh, so you're withdrawing your
18 objections?

19 MR. ULLMAN: No. Should I -- may I speak?

20 THE COURT: Please.

21 MR. ULLMAN: No. The issue is not that we're trying 22 to add new objections. This whole --

23 THE COURT: So you're not trying to add new 24 objections --

25 MR. ULLMAN: We are maintaining the same --

1 THE COURT: -- so to the extent there are new
2 objections, we can strike them.

3 MR. ULLMAN: No, your Honor. Let me try to explain.
4 We had always told the state -- the city that for this subset
5 of documents -- I believe there are six of them -- that we 6 were not opposing admissibility in general, but we believe
7 that they were admissible for limited purposes only to show
8 that these documents were said, that they were, you know,
9 created, that they were given to people. We weren't 10 contesting that they're authentic documents, but we spoke 11 with Mr. Irwin and told him but at the same time -- that's 12 why we're not contesting admissibility in general -- we do
13 not agree that they're admissible for the truth of what they 14 say. Some of these documents have forward-looking 15 projections that we don't think there's been an adequate
16 foundation for, and in our discussions with Mr. Irwin, he 17 said, "Yeah, we understand that. We're not asking you to 18 concede to the truth of what's in there." And we said,
19 "Fine. On that basis" --

20 THE COURT: Well, but hang on. The admission of a
21 document into evidence or the agreement of the admission of a 22 document into evidence is not a stipulation to the truth or 23 credibility of the document. It just means that it meets the 24 criteria for admissibility under the rules.

25 MR. ULLMAN: And that may be all that's going on

1 here. The reason this came up is because I had heard -- I
2 was not here at the legal argument yesterday, but I had been
3 told that your Honor had indicated that if a document did not
4 have a note on it saying there was some sort of objection, it
5 would be admitted for any and all purposes, at which point I
6 said to Mr. Irwin, "Wait a minute. There's a couple of 7 documents here that we know from our discussions" -- you
8 know, they're limited for -- we agree they're admissible for 9 limited purposes only, and we have the right --

10 THE COURT: Well, but what -- for what purpose do
11 you assert these six documents are not admissible for?

12 MR. ULLMAN: Just for the truth of what's in them,
13 the hearsay, expert opinion, and then lack of foundation.
14 Some of these have forward-looking numbers or values in them
15 as to the amount of the unfunded pension liability, and for 16 those we're saying we don't disagree that you gave these 17 documents out, but we're not agreeing that the numbers that 18 are in there are necessarily true numbers. That's all we're 19 saying. That was understood from day one with discussions
20 with Mr. Irwin, and we just wanted to make sure that your 21 Honor -- that if the document came in, that your Honor would 22 not assume that everything that was in it on these -- on 23 these six documents was true. That's all that we cared 24 about. We don't deny that they were either created, that 25 they were given to people, and for that purpose we have no

1 problem with admission. And it may have been that we
2 misinterpreted what your Honor said.

3 THE COURT: I'm having a hard time comprehending
4 what you're saying, frankly. If a piece of evidence has 5 hearsay within hearsay --

6 MR. ULLMAN: Um-hmm.

7 THE COURT: -- which I think is what you're talking
8 about here; right? The document itself is hearsay.

9 MR. ULLMAN: Okay.

10 THE COURT: And it contains hearsay statements.

11 MR. ULLMAN: Yes.

12 THE COURT: Okay. If the document is admitted,
13 opposing parties waive -- if they agree to the admission,
14 they waive both hearsay objections. That does not mean that 15 that party is stipulating to the truth of any of that 16 hearsay. It just doesn't mean that. All it means is it's 17 evidence.

18 MR. ULLMAN: Okay. And if, you know, I had been 19 given a misinterpretation or a misapplication of what your 20 Honor indicated the other day, then you're right. This is a
21 moot issue, and there is no problem based on what your Honor
22 said. I think that's true.

23 THE COURT: Okay. All right. Then in that event,
24 the Court will enter the amended final pretrial order, and 25 based on the list of documents that are shown as having no

1 objections, the Court will prepare an order admitting all of 2 those documents into evidence. Okay. Opening statements.

3 MR. BENNETT: One second, your Honor. Good morning,
4 your Honor. I'm assuming that you want to hear from us
5 first, notwithstanding that the order was different in the 6 other -- in the legal issues proceedings, but, in any 7 event --

8 THE COURT: Well, you have the burden of proof;
9 right?

10 MR. BENNETT: Correct.

11 OPENING STATEMENT

12 MR. BENNETT: First of all, I want to make crystal
13 clear -- many people have in different environments -- that 14 I'm not going to speak about any arguments that came up in 15 the context of the legal argument part of the proceedings.

16 THE COURT: Thank you.

17 MR. BENNETT: I appreciate that part, too. And I'm 18 going to confine myself to the issues -- or the parts of the 19 eligibility standard and the part of 521(c) that have some 20 factual disputes that have been identified in connection with 21 them. And toward the end I do want to spend a minute on the 22 materiality of facts relating to legislators' or governors'
23 intent relating to statutes because I think it was not 24 something that we did cover when we were here before.

25 So, first of all, I'm going to start with the issue

1 of insolvency, and what I'm going to say about that because I
2 could stand here for hours describing the evidence that is
3 going to come in on that subject, but I'm not going to do
4 that -- I'm going to say simply that the witnesses that we
5 will present on the subject are going to present a mountain
6 of evidence showing insolvency of the city. Sadly, that 7 evidence will show that the city is insolvent on every 8 relevant standard. And, your Honor, there's been at least 9 intimated in a lot of the papers about the significance that 10 no expert report has been submitted. Quite frankly, that is 11 because no expert report is required. This is one of those 12 cases where the data speaks very clearly and persuasively on 13 its own -- it needs no gloss -- and that only AFSCME is 14 objecting on the insolvency point, at least as I read the 15 papers, itself speaks volumes.

16 I want to say that from the near term perspective,
17 the city did not run out of cash because -- only because 18 actions were taken to prevent that from happening. The 19 evidence will show that if the city just kept on paying debts
20 as and when they were becoming due, cash would have run out.
21 The fact that the city stopped doing that is the only reason
22 why there are positive cash balances. As I said before,
23 there's no question that if the actions were not taken, cash
24 would have run out.

25 I will also say that the steps that the city took

1 during past years to pay many of its debts as they become due
2 didn't turn out particularly well. One of the consequences
3 you'll see in the evidence and, in fact, a good document to 4 keep around at all times is the proposal for creditors dated
5 June 14th. There's a section there that deals with this. It
6 shows that there were numerous secured borrowings made to 7 create liquidity in the city in past years when there were 8 similar cash flow problems. Each and every one of those 9 borrowings were done on a secured basis, and so the 10 consequence that we face today is that those borrowings
11 consume a very significant amount of cash otherwise available
12 for creditors generally, so that was -- so avoiding a
13 liquidity problem in the prior periods didn't exactly work
14 out well from the perspective of many other creditors.

15 Also, as will come into evidence, pension
16 contributions were deferred during at least the past two 17 fiscal years with the effect that the underfunding under 18 anyone's measure -- we don't have to worry about the fight
19 between the different measures of pension underfunding. It's 20 greater than it might otherwise have been.

21 Finally, on the insolvency point, you are going to 22 hear from several witnesses, but most importantly perhaps 23 Chief Craig, about the fact that the city is failing to 24 provide basic services to its residents. We don't think 25 about that as another one of the creditor claims or

1 obligations, but the reality is it's as important as anything
2 else. As we've indicated before and as the witnesses will
3 indicate, without solving that problem, there may not be a
4 city to reorganize.

5 Now, AFSCME makes a few points that are worth
6 discussing how the evidence will deal with them. First, much
7 is made over the dispute about the underfunding amount, and 8 it is asserted that because there's a dispute of the 9 underfunding amount, the city can't demonstrate it's 10 insolvent. Well, as your Honor knows, the insolvency test
11 focuses on cash flow. It focuses on near term and longer
12 term cash flow type measures, and in that connection, there
13 are cash flows that will be put into evidence. There's also 14 a convenient place to find them in the proposal for 15 creditors. There's different versions with different levels
16 of updates and different assumptions that are baked into 17 them, but the line items that talk about pension
18 contributions your Honor is going to learn don't change very 19 much whether you use the city's assumptions as to 20 underfunding amount or the city's calculation of underfunding
21 amount or the Gabriel, Roeder calculation of underfunding
22 amount, Gabriel, Roeder, of course, being the actuaries
23 retained by the pension funds, the pension fund management
24 themselves, to give them advice. And so your Honor will be 25 taken through the numbers, and you will find that the

1 contribution amounts, which are the relevant numbers in the 2 insolvency calculation, don't move around very much
3 notwithstanding the very different calculations of 4 underfunding amounts, and the reason for that will be
5 explained. Mr. Moore of Conway MacKenzie will be the witness
6 that will cover that area.

7 There's also a little bit of numerical confusion
8 concerning the percentage of the city's contribution to the 9 GRS Pension Fund that is attributable to DWSD employees. You
10 will see in the papers a number bandied around, 62 percent.
11 Well, actually, the number is the reverse of that. It's 38
12 to 39 percent. Mr. Orr got that wrong in his deposition. He 13 corrected it at the end, but, of course, the correction
14 wasn't cited in the papers. There will be evidence on the 15 point so there won't be confusion on the point as we go
16 forward with the numbers.

17 Then AFSCME says that the city deferred sales of 18 assets, and they talk about two examples. We will 19 demonstrate, of course, that that is not true. First of all,
20 the Belle Isle deal, Belle Isle leased to the state in 21 exchange for the state taking over the maintenance and CAPX
22 requirements with respect to Belle Isle, never involved the 23 generation of incremental spendable cash. It did and always 24 has involved a reduction of the cost on the city to maintain 25 Belle Isle. And what the evidence will show is that those

1 anticipated savings were included in the projections that 2 were the basis for insolvency calculations, and they are in 3 the projections. They're the basis for the proposal for 4 creditors or at least the lead-up to the proposal for 5 creditors in the June 14th presentation.

6 It's also very hard for us to understand how anyone
7 can say that art sales were deferred. It is common
8 knowledge -- and I suspect we'll figure out a way to get this 9 into evidence as well -- that there's an attorney general
10 opinion out there that basically says that the art can't be 11 sold for creditors. We, unfortunately -- in the absence of 12 some form of an agreement, there are no sales possible
13 without a significant change in current management of the 14 museum or litigation and -- maybe and/or litigation relating 15 to some of the points made in the attorney general's opinion.
16 There were no pre-filing opportunities to liquidate art.

17 Next, AFSCME talks about the swap deal, which, of 18 course, your Honor is familiar with because it's before you
19 in still another adversary setting in this case. The swap
20 deal itself, you will hear, does not provide adequate cash
21 relief, but the transaction hasn't been approved yet. And 22 there is, unfortunately, no assurance as we stand here today
23 and certainly as we stood here several months ago, that it
24 will be done. It turns out that some of the objectors in 25 this proceeding are also objectors in that one, and so I'm

1 not sure how we're supposed to even count the anticipated
2 cash flow relief attributable to the swap transaction as 3 something that could have even affected the city's insolvency
4 calculations.

5 And lastly, there is the assertion -- and I'm 6 anxious to hear what the evidence will be to support this
7 one -- that the appointment of the emergency manager
8 prevented the city from taking actions designed to raise
9 revenue and avoid insolvency. Of course, in the briefs that 10 have been filed, there is no suggestion about exactly what 11 steps those are that the City Council or the mayor or whoever 12 else has been displaced in the view of AFSCME have been 13 planning and anxious to implement that would solve the city's 14 financial problem. No such actions have ever been specified.
15 We have no idea where that evidence is coming from. It will 16 be quite a surprise if there is any.

17 It was for these reasons, the insolvency and the 18 fact that there really weren't anything left, that the city
19 or the state could think of to do to address the problems
20 that the June 14th presentation was put together, and it
21 proposes a plan that includes significant reductions in the 22 city's obligations, including bonds, including other post-
23 employment benefits, including other unsecured claims, and 24 including pension underfunding claims. Whatever the law
25 turns out to be concerning protections to be afforded to

1 various claims, there is no law prohibiting the city from 2 trying to commence negotiations to resolve its financial
3 problems, and that's what we were trying to do.

4 Now, while we're near this subject, there is an
5 issue that ripples through actually several of the standards,
6 which is whether or not the proposal that's included in the 7 proposal to creditors -- and I'm referring to the materials
8 that are, I think, between pages 101 and 109 or thereabouts
9 of that document -- whether that proposal was a -- was close
10 enough to a confirmable plan of adjustment to qualify for the 11 purposes of, open paren, one, demonstrating that the city
12 desires to implement a plan; open paren, two, that the city
13 was in good faith as part of the good faith negotiations
14 because they had to be talking about a certain kind of plan
15 that is asserted; and, three, whether the city was acting in 16 good faith generally. And I think the proposal for 17 creditors, that June 14th document, has been admitted into 18 evidence, again, for all purposes, but very clearly for the 19 purpose of showing this is what the proposal was that the 20 city presented as its initial presentation to creditors, and 21 so it speaks for itself. We can look at it. We don't need
22 testimony. It's reasonably detailed. In fact, I would 23 argue your Honor sees disclosure statements, summaries of 24 plans all the time, and you will see this measures up quite 25 nicely to the standard that's applicable even in disclosure

1 statements to what a plan should look like. It is -- it has
2 a classification scheme. It defines treatment for all
3 classes. It includes a very extensive term sheet for notes
4 that are proposed to be distributed to creditors, and it is a
5 plan, your Honor, that for that reason is a plan that could 6 be confirmable.

7 Now, there is clearly disputes over what law should
8 be applied by this Court in determining whether or not it
9 would confirm that plan if it was fleshed out, put into plan
10 form, and presented to your Honor. I told your Honor in 11 prior hearings that I doubt that's the way this case is going
12 to come out, but that's the relevant standard for today.

13 And the reality is is that on the city's very 14 reasonable view of the law, there is no question that it
15 could be confirmed. I understand that with respect to the 16 retiree constituents' views of the law, they say it can't be,
17 but that doesn't render the proposal inappropriate for 18 purposes of a Chapter 9 case. We are dealing with issues
19 that your Honor has heard argument about, is going to 20 ultimately decide, but the plan hangs together as an 21 appropriate expression of the kind of debt relief the city 22 should be able to get based upon one very reasonable view of 23 the law. We think it's absolutely the right view.

24 The other assertion as to why the plan isn't an 25 appropriate plan is that it doesn't adequately liquidate

1 claims, and here again they're talking about the pension
2 underfunding amount. But I think we know both from the 3 structure of the Bankruptcy Code itself and from many, many,
4 many other cases that the liquidation of claims is not a
5 prerequisite to confirmation of a plan. Plans are confirmed
6 all the time with the treatment specified as the treatment is 7 specified in the plan in the proposal for creditors that is 8 not claim size dependent. It's by plan. It makes 9 distributions based upon pro rata interests in the overall
10 claims pool. It was designed that way because there is, in 11 fact, uncertainty concerning the aggregate amount of certain
12 claims. Frankly, the city believes there's more questions
13 relating to the size of the OPEB, or other post-employment
14 benefit, claim pool than there is with respect to the pension
15 claim pool, but there's uncertainty on these issues. It is 16 acknowledged there is uncertainty of issues. Those are not 17 confirmation problems. At least they're not confirmation
18 problems with some plan structures, and they're certainly not 19 confirmation problems with the plan structure that was 20 offered by the city.

21 So for these reasons, that is a plan that is 22 sufficiently detailed, more detailed than it has been in many 23 other of the other reported Chapter 9 cases, and it is 24 appropriate for all purposes as a starting point for good 25 faith negotiations, demonstration of the city's intent to

1 implement a plan in Chapter 9, and demonstration of the 2 city's overall good faith in commencing its Chapter 9 case.
3 And so I think we've dispensed of that component of the 4 different standards.

5 We now turn to impracticability. Can I have a
6 second for a glass of water? Thank you, your Honor. Moving 7 to impracticability, the record shows in numerous places that 8 the city has many, many issues of bonds outstanding, and 9 another reason to keep the proposal for creditors nearby is 10 that toward the back of it -- and I think it's between pages
11 like 115 and 130, thereabouts -- there is an extensive list
12 in a type size not so good for people who wear bifocals. I
13 think you will hear in the evidence, if it's not already 14 clear from the record, that most of the individual bond
15 issues do not have indenture trustees as we think of them in 16 the commercial context or any other equivalent holder
17 representative. In fact, holders reserve more rights in most 18 muni structures or assign them to their insurers, to bond
19 insurers if insurers are involved. And so what you have here
20 is that in order to compromise principal or interest as well
21 as many other terms of debt that have to be addressed in 22 connection with resolving the city's financial problems
23 either under the proposed plan that was in the proposal for 24 creditors or in any other plan, there is going to have to be 25 extensive solicitation, efforts to find relevant bondholders

1 to get the right consents. The bankruptcy process is going
2 to make it a little bit easier because, of course, it will be
3 majorities of those who vote, and the solicitation rules are 4 clearer. Outside of a proceeding you might have to get
5 everybody in order to implement changes. In fact, you do
6 have to get everybody with respect to most of the issues.
7 There are a couple where there might be an exception if the 8 insurer exercises certain extensive levels of control. The 9 bottom line is it is an awful mess. There is many, many,
10 many, many issues, many, many, many holders, and this, of 11 course, is the definition of impracticability in a lot of 12 ways in the Bankruptcy Code because the whole reason we have 13 impracticability was because of New York's case back in the 14 '70s. New York back then -- the numbers were different;
15 times have changed -- didn't have materially more and may 16 have had less bond issues and bondholders than Detroit has 17 today. And the purpose of the impracticability standard was 18 to recognize the fact that with that kind of a debt
19 structure, having good faith negotiations with creditors in 20 advance of a proceeding in an effort to have an out-of-court
21 workout were, frankly, pointless or would have been 22 pointless.

23 And, frankly, for the most part, the objectors don't 24 disagree with anything I've just said. It's hard to. What 25 they say instead is that whether -- however negotiations

1 might have been practicable with bondholders, negotiations
2 were practicable with them, with the -- in some senses, self-
3 appointed or appointed representatives of particular labor
4 groups or retirees, and we're going to talk about that in 5 detail in a second, but we have a point first, which is if 6 you have a situation where it's admitted or almost 7 admitted -- and the Court may have to decide -- that 8 negotiations are impracticable with a huge universe of 9 creditors but they might be practicable with respect to 10 another universe of creditors, what do you do? And the 11 Retiree Committee actually is good about admitting there's 12 law on this in one of their footnotes, and the law is that if 13 you've got an impracticability problem, you have an 14 impracticability problem; that negotiating with the groups
15 you can groups with are kind of pointless. I think that if 16 we think about it a little bit, that has to be right because,
17 of course, if -- let's take a hypothetical that you've got,
18 you know, a group over here not organized, and then you've 19 got one bank debt piece, which is clearly organized and you
20 can clearly negotiate it. Well, you try to do everything you
21 can with the bank, but at some point the bank is going to say
22 what's going to happen with them, all those people that you
23 can negotiate with, because no one ever makes a deal in a
24 vacuum. And even if you could get all the way to conclusion
25 with a bank and you still have to file a Chapter 9 case,

1 doesn't that make you start -- effectively start all over
2 again with the one that was easy to negotiate with? And even 3 if it doesn't, even if it's possible to negotiate a deal with 4 both the bank and the city decides this is it, we're going to 5 make this deal no matter what happens in the Chapter 9 case
6 that you need for everybody else, you still have to go
7 through the Chapter 9 case. And waiting to file a Chapter 9
8 case while you work with the bank and finally reach the deal
9 that you're going to have with the bank that's going to be 10 permanent, you've wasted a lot of time because you have to 11 start a Chapter 11 case and go through that process anyway.
12 So I submit that the couple of cases that have focused on 13 this that we cite in our papers and that the Retiree
14 Committee cites in a footnote have got it exactly right. If 15 you have an impracticability with respect to a material part
16 of your capital structure, you have an impracticability
17 problem, period, so I think by looking at this -- and by the 18 way, before we go off, I want to say there's one paragraph of 19 the AFSCME brief that I think is just terribly important on 20 this. They argue this point a lot, but then they have 21 paragraph 102 at page 46, and it's only two sentences, so I'm 22 going to -- three sentences, so I'm going to read the whole
23 thing. "AFSCME is not suggesting that pre-petition 24 negotiations could have bound everyone" -- hold that 25 thought -- "or must have involved all of the city's thousands

1 of creditors." I don't under -- I think that sentence means
2 we're done because if the pre-petition negotiations couldn't
3 have bound everyone, how would you get a plan done? And if 4 it didn't involve all the city's thousands of creditors, how 5 would you get a plan done? So I think they're conceding that 6 our situation has to be regarded as impracticable, but they
7 go on. They say, "Some level of negotiation with principal 8 creditors could have led the city to a nonbankruptcy
9 solution." I think that's a non sequitur. If you're not 10 talking to everyone, you can't possibly have a solution. But 11 then they go on further, "By way of analogy, Section
12 109(c)(5)(B) of the Bankruptcy Code contemplates pre-13 bankruptcy negotiations with creditors that the 14 municipality" -- there's a "the" missing -- "intends to 15 impair, not all creditors." Well, one of the complaints of 16 AFSCME is that the city intends to impair substantially all
17 of its material creditors. It has no other choice. So I
18 suppose there's a circumstance if the city was arguing that 19 we have a huge group of creditors as to which negotiations
20 are impracticable, but we're not going to impair them, and we 21 have another group of creditors that we really can talk to,
22 and we're going to impair them, if the city said no
23 discussions, that would be a rather extreme and silly
24 position. It's just not our case. We need impairment pretty
25 much across the board. We have proposed impairment pretty

1 much across the board. And in that circumstance, the fact
2 that huge chunks of the relevant constituencies are not
3 organized, can't be organized, can't be found, that is to me
4 the end of the impracticability discussion.

5 But maybe we should go on. Maybe we should try to 6 figure out whether it was really impracticable to negotiate
7 with the unions themselves. And, your Honor, I think the 8 answer to whether or not it was impracticable to negotiate
9 with the unions themselves -- and I include here the unions
10 and the other retiree groups -- is, frankly, what happened
11 when we asked the unions whether or not they could represent 12 retirees and the other groups or they could represent 13 retirees, and we have a demonstrative that we'll come back to 14 and put into evidence later on, but I think it's useful to 15 pause on, and I think it can go up on -- oh, you have a --
16 oh, okay. Okay. We have a big one there, and I have a few
17 that I can hand out to people, so with the Court's 18 permission --

19 THE COURT: Yes, sir.

20 MR. BENNETT: I think it's also in the -- I think
21 it's also in the binders. Now, there's a lot of information
22 on this chart, and I'm not going to try to take us all the 23 way through it, but I want to zero in on the fourth line of 24 data, which is the -- which is -- well, first of all, the 25 third line of data, which says, "Was a letter sent to a

1 creditor?" What that is is a letter that basically asked,
2 "Are you in a position to represent retirees and which ones?"
3 You'll see it. It'll be in evidence. And then the next line
4 is, "Respondent is able to represent retirees," and I'll give
5 you the key. "X" means they said no, the green check means
6 they said yes, and the question mark is there was no response
7 or it's not clear, and your Honor is going to hear some 8 evidence on that. And so look across the line. I have a 9 number of your most vigorous objectors who said, "No, we 10 can't represent retirees," so I'm going to come back to this
11 in the context of good faith, but let's -- we can start
12 thinking about it now. What is -- what do you expect of the 13 city having made a proposal heavily supported, certainly,
14 again, as standards go in this -- in similar circumstances,
15 had lots of meetings to explain, answered every question,
16 every question that was asked at the meetings -- there will 17 be evidence on that, too -- and your negotiating partner says
18 to you, in many instances in writing, "We actually can't 19 represent the people who are impaired by your proposal"? To 20 say that anything that happened afterwards is not in good
21 faith, you've got to have a good answer as to what do you do.
22 What's the next sentence in the dialogue? You're getting 23 feedback from someone who doesn't have authority to give 24 feedback if they give you any feedback. By the way, the 25 bottom line is feedback. "X" means no. There's no other

1 term we need to define. If they say -- if they said --
2 responded otherwise constructively, which was either "No, but
3 I might do this," or "Yes, if you make the following
4 changes," that's okay, but that just came from somebody who 5 said they don't represent the person who's going to be 6 affected. What is the next step in a negotiation where the 7 person who said they're here to negotiate says to you, "We 8 really don't represent the person who's affected by the plan
9 we're discussing"? None of the objectors say how that 10 question is supposed to be answered.

11 The reality is is the city said, "Tell us your 12 suggestions anyway." And if we got suggestions, feedback, we 13 would have had to then figure out what to do with it in that 14 very unusual circumstance that I, frankly, haven't confronted
15 very often in my career, but we weren't even put to that hard
16 question because what the other part says is is that -- and 17 this is more toward the good faith negotiation part than this 18 one, but as long as I've got the chart up, as the bottom line
19 indicates, the evidence will show that from this creditor
20 constituency, not from others -- I'll get to that in a 21 second -- we received no concrete proposal or comprehensive 22 feedback. We got a lot of "no," but I'll come to that later.

23 With respect to this part, again, impracticability,
24 AFSCME cites results of past collective bargaining as an 25 example of negotiations with unions that have succeeded.

1 That doesn't surprise me in the slightest, but there's also
2 no evidence and I don't think there will be any that those 3 past discussions began with unions disclaiming power to 4 bargain on behalf of the relevant constituency. As the 5 evidence will demonstrate, that's how these discussions did.

6 So the bottom line, again, with respect to this 7 part, is even if -- and it's not -- the standard for 8 impracticability of negotiations is impracticability with 9 every major constituency, I think the fourth line of this 10 chart demonstrates that negotiations were impracticable with 11 the retiree side, and they were impracticable with the 12 bondholder side.

13 Good faith negotiations. Again, this is a question
14 I don't think we have to reach because I think we've 15 demonstrated that those kinds of negotiations were 16 impracticable, but we tried really hard anyway. The evidence
17 will show that we presented the June 14th plan. Mr. Buckfire
18 of Miller Buckfire, who was integral to all the negotiations,
19 but others, Mr. Moore, Mr. Malhotra, people

20 you will hear from, they also extensively participated
21 and will testify about what happened in the rooms. The city
22 told the creditors essentially the following. The city would 23 have discussions with all parties willing to speak for the 24 city for about a month after the June 14th presentation so
25 that the city could listen to people and figure out if there

1 was an out-of-court solution possible for this enormously
2 complex and dire circumstance. The city representatives
3 asked for feedback, including proposals that the creditors
4 would accept if they weren't going to accept the city's 5 proposal. And the city said in writing and separate -- and 6 verbally that it would evaluate what it heard during the 7 following month, during the week beginning July 15th, 2013,
8 and decide what came next. It's conceivable -- I think 9 people would say they doubted it would happen -- that one of 10 the things that would have come next were consensual
11 negotiations on the effort to build some kind of plan. That 12 could have commenced.

13 THE COURT: You said July. Did you mean June?

14 MR. BENNETT: No. July 15th was the evaluation
15 week.

16 THE COURT: Oh, okay.

17 MR. BENNETT: The June 14th proposal and July 15th
18 evaluation week, meetings in the middle. I'll have a 19 timeline at some point, and you'll see how this fits
20 together.

21 THE COURT: Okay.

22 MR. BENNETT: So one of the things that might have 23 happened next would have been negotiations on a consensual
24 plan, but if the -- after the month of discussions and after 25 the evaluation week the city could not see a path to an out-

1 of-court restructuring that could be implemented outside of 2 court, a Chapter 9 case was absolutely a possibility. No one
3 was shy about that. And, frankly, it should not be 4 surprising to anyone that the evidence shows that work on 5 both contingencies was proceeding throughout this entire
6 period. Much is made of the fact that there's contingency
7 planning going on for a Chapter 9 case. Absolutely there
8 was. It would have been irresponsible not to. By the way,
9 nothing in the Jones Day pitch is inconsistent with this way
10 of organizing a case. And there's a lot of complaints about,
11 well, people thought they had to keep a record, make a
12 record. Absolutely they have to keep a record and make a
13 record. Making a record of out-of-court steps taken in a
14 Chapter 9 negotiating process is just sensible when everybody
15 knows, based upon the play book executed in the last six or 16 seven major cases have involved vigorous objections to 17 eligibility by bondholders and labor unions, depending upon 18 the case which, sometimes both, and in every single one of 19 those cases, the judge has to go through pages and pages and 20 pages about what happened during the out-of-court phase to 21 determine whether people were in good faith. So courts
22 through their opinions have sent a message to people who are 23 serious about Chapter 9 restructurings. Keep records, and we 24 did.

25 There is a lot of criticism in the papers that there

1 were instances where the city said these are not negotiations
2 or particular meetings were not negotiations. I confess that
3 this implicates an area of law that I'm not tremendously
4 familiar with. It has to do with collective bargaining. As 5 the evidence will show, the collective bargaining was 6 suspended as a result of a statute passed, and there was a
7 clear concern by the city that they were not going to waive
8 the -- or reverse the suspension of collective bargaining and 9 all of the baggage that came with that. However, we don't 10 really have to deter ourselves much over that incident
11 because it's admitted by the objectors that the city sought
12 feedback. The evidence will show that. It's admitted that 13 there were, quote, discussions, close quote, and by the way,
14 the leading case that people cite as the -- I think it's 15 Endicott Schools case that is cited for the proposition of,
16 you know, what is a nonnegotiated process or absence of 17 negotiations. That case talks about absence of discussions.
18 That's the actual quote if you go back to the case itself.

19 So, in any event, there is no dispute that dialogue
20 was something that was encouraged and not discouraged.
21 Nobody said we don't care what you think. Never happens;
22 evidence will show never happens.

23 Now, again, assuming for a second that what the city
24 did in the negotiations has any relevance at all given the 25 clear impracticability in this case, what is required of the

1 city in good faith negotiations -- and I intimated that when
2 we started talking about the chart -- is informed what
3 creditors -- by what creditors said and did. Okay. Mr.
4 Buckfire will testify about some of that being especially
5 careful not to talk about proposals that other people made
6 because they were made with an intent that they be kept
7 confidential, but we got permission at least in one instance
8 to talk about the fact that a proposal was made. And what 9 Mr. Buckfire is going to tell the Court is that the proposals
10 that the city got back were proposals that basically said,
11 "Our position is better than everybody else. We should do 12 better than everybody else," and they were, frankly,
13 completely insensitive to the overall problems that the city
14 faced. Again, the fact that we did get proposals from people
15 other than the labor negotiators is going to be -- 16 Mr. Buckfire will testify to it, but there's a letter in 17 evidence, and I don't have the number. I forgot to put it on 18 this morning. There's a letter in evidence -- a cover letter
19 to a proposal that came from three major insurers in the pre-
20 filing period. And, your Honor, that demonstrates that a
21 party that's represented by qualified professionals, as a
22 number of the labor/retiree constituents were, knew exactly
23 what you're supposed to do when you receive a proposal and 24 you don't like it. The way you -- the way you respond to a
25 proposal and you don't like it is you send back something

1 that you do like, and that's how a negotiation gets started.
2 Whether it would have worked or not is a different question.
3 The point is is that it wasn't a mystery to anybody how to 4 start a negotiation if someone really wanted to start one.

5 What did labor do besides respond maybe we're not 6 the right person to talk to, which is a problem in and of 7 itself? Well, here the UAW's papers are particularly 8 instructive, and in many places in their papers, particularly 9 their supplemental objection -- I think it's also in the 10 pretrial brief; I'm just not remembering that as clearly 11 today -- the UAW says, "Well, of course we weren't going to 12 say yes to any modifications of retiree benefits or pension
13 benefits in the pre-filing scenario because we had a
14 constitutional guarantee. Any proposal that doesn't pay
15 these in full and does not impair retiree benefits is a
16 proposal we cannot accept," or, "we will not accept." I
17 think it says both those things in different places.

18 So, again, I think we have to ask the most crucial
19 question in evaluating the city's good faith. When you get 20 back a response that says, "We're never going to agree to 21 anything but nonimpairment," what exactly is the city
22 supposed to do next? What's the next step in that 23 negotiations? "Gee, we were just kidding. We found the 24 money in a mattress. We'll do that"? I don't think that's 25 the right response. I don't think there is a right response.

1 I think at that point you can determine that negotiations
2 have failed and they're not going to succeed.

3 The Retiree Committee goes even further in their
4 papers, their pretrial brief. They say that negotiations
5 were not in good faith because they included an impairment,
6 meaning the city wasn't in good faith because we didn't agree
7 with them from day one. Okay. Again, I ask the question,
8 what exactly -- if anyone is going to contend that the city
9 was in bad faith negotiations and got that response, what
10 exactly were they supposed to do next in the negotiations
11 that would have helped matters?

12 And as I said before, many retiree groups said,
13 "We'd love to talk to you, but we don't represent the 14 relevant people."

15 Clearly, your Honor, we received many requests for 16 additional information. You will see some interesting charts
17 that show what was in the data room, at least in terms of 18 volumes, how the data room is populated. The evidence will 19 show that the city did its best to comply with information
20 requests. I'm absolutely certain that no one was completely
21 satisfied with what the city gave them. In some instances,
22 that's because the city doesn't always have everything that 23 people want. In some instances, I suspect it's -- we will 24 find that -- to the end of this case we will not find -- we 25 will find certain people who will never agree that they've

1 gotten everything that they want or they're satisfied with 2 the information they received. It's a hard problem, but the 3 evidence will show that the city created a database, worked
4 really hard to populate it, populated it with enormous
5 amounts of information, and did not withhold information as a
6 basis to obtain a negotiating advantage.

7 Final point with respect to this section. In almost
8 all the papers -- and I want to -- it could be all -- there
9 is a statement quoted by Kevyn Orr concerning the financial 10 and operating plan at a meeting to discuss the financial and 11 operating plan, which is not the proposal for creditors. The 12 financial and operating plan is a document required by 13 statute to be filed 40 days -- 45 days after his appointment.
14 It's about facts, and he's reporting facts. And someone
15 asked him about negotiating the financial and operating plan,
16 and he said, "This is not something to negotiate. This isn't 17 a plebiscite. This is a report. I'm supposed to file it."
18 So that quote, which I think the objectors would have you
19 think applied to the restructuring plan, and it does not, did
20 not, and it applies to something completely different, and I
21 think the evidence will show that.

22 For the foregoing reasons, I think the city did act
23 in good faith in all of the negotiations that it conducted.
24 Those negotiations were unsuccessful and, thus, that 25 prerequisite for filing a Chapter 9 case and being eligible

1 for relief has been met.

2 I'm now going to turn to good faith generally, spend
3 a little time on it, 921(c). Here again, I want to borrow
4 AFSCME's papers because they're just very instructive and 5 really help us with this. Paragraph 109 on page 48, "The 6 relevant considerations regarding good faith under Chapter 9
7 include," and they point to five points out of the Stockton
8 case. I'll accept them. Number one, whether the city's 9 financial problems are of a nature contemplated by Chapter 9.
10 The evidence will show that if Detroit's financial problems
11 are not the financial problems of the nature contemplated by 12 Chapter 9, I don't know what city's is, so we think we will 13 satisfy that one very easily. Number two, whether the 14 reasons for filing are consistent with Chapter 9. I think 15 the form and substance of the plan that was proposed and,
16 frankly, everything that the city has been saying about it
17 are indicative that the city is trying very hard to use the 18 powers subject to the limitations included in Chapter 9 to 19 effectuate a financial restructuring for the city. I don't 20 think we'll have any difficulty demonstrating that with the 21 evidence. Number three, the extent of the city's pre-
22 petition efforts to address the issues. Here I want to pause
23 and put on a timeline, and there's -- it's really long, so
24 there's two pieces, but for this purpose it's the first piece
25 that's the most relevant.

1 THE COURT: Let me ask you to pause for just a
2 second. We should have the record reflect what exhibit
3 number that chart is.

4 UNIDENTIFIED SPEAKER: It's Exhibit Number 36.

5 MR. BENNETT: I have better. They'll try and put it
6 up, but I also have some copies of it. Here's what I'm going 7 to do. I'm going to distribute the first piece now, with the 8 Court's permission, and the second piece in a minute, so --
9 after I get through this, so here's the first piece. Again,
10 I think everyone has seen this already. If you don't have 11 it, it's okay. Everyone else is going to have it in a
12 second. Obviously in a bunch of ways this chart summarizes 13 lots and lots of evidence that is going to go into the 14 record, but what is going to be seen in the record was that 15 it wasn't a bunch of people up at night on June 13th working 16 on a presentation of a plan for June 14th. The efforts to 17 address the -- the pre-petition efforts to address the issues
18 stretch probably before December 21, '11, but I think at 19 least, as I understand the history and as the evidence will 20 certainly show, no later -- excuse me -- no later than 21 December 21, 2011, December 2011, a number of people within 22 state government and city government started focusing on the 23 fact that the Detroit financial situation was very serious
24 and had to be addressed. And there were a number of efforts
25 that were attempted all through 2012 to try to grapple this

1 problem -- with this problem short of requiring concessions
2 from creditors, short of Chapter 9. Kind of everything else
3 you might think of doing was done by a large number of really
4 devoted and qualified people. Regrettably, it all failed,
5 and -- but the part about -- you know, this first chart,
6 which covers almost a year and a half on one page -- it was a
7 lot of time and a lot of effort in a search for alternative
8 solutions. So forgetting the near-in -- what happened in the 9 June and July time frame, which we'll get to in a second,
10 the -- it is clear that there was a tremendous amount of time
11 and effort considering the issues.

12 Next is the fourth item in the AFSCME list, the 13 Stockton list, the extent that alternatives to Chapter 9 were 14 considered. I think alternatives broadly construed include
15 all of this, but then we'll turn to the time frame -- and all 16 of a sudden -- we just got this one up -- the time frame of 17 June and July, which we've blown up because so much happened,
18 onto its own separate chart, so let me pass this one out.

19 THE COURT: So, ma'am, what's the number of that one
20 that you're just now taking down?

21 UNIDENTIFIED SPEAKER: They're both Exhibit 104.

22 THE COURT: Oh, both 104. Okay.

23 MR. BENNETT: And because so much more happened, at 24 least in terms of dates and places, in the June and July time
25 frame, we've blown that one up so that the last two months

1 are their separate page. And June was devoted to heavily
2 trying to figure out whether the last round of possible
3 alternatives, any conceivable kinds of out-of-court
4 restructuring, could work, and what the evidence will show is 5 that on this page, which shows all kinds of meetings and all
6 kinds of different interactions with creditors, a concerted
7 decision was made to exclude meetings with individual
8 creditors or individual creditor representatives because it
9 wouldn't be readable anymore, so this is just organized
10 meetings with different groups for different specific 11 purposes. The other key to interpretation is when it says
12 "nonunion," it means the bonds, so the union -- for 13 purposes --

14 THE COURT: Means what, sir? Pardon? It means
15 what?

16 MR. BENNETT: The bonds. "Nonunion" means --

17 THE COURT: Bonds.

18 MR. BENNETT: -- the bonds and other borrowed money
19 because there is a collection of notes involved in that side
20 of the case as well. Where it says "union," it's really the 21 retiree representatives, which at the time were predominantly 22 union. And so what this demonstrates -- again, it may be 23 part of the good faith piece, too, but for purposes of the 24 fourth prong of the Stockton test, I would say both of these 25 are relevant, both the long-term assessment of alternatives

1 that were short of debt restructuring, then the close-in 2 effort to figure out whether there was any conceivable way to
3 get something accomplished out of court. It is perfectly
4 clear that there was an extensive effort to evaluate every 5 conceivable alternative that anyone could think of.

6 And then the last factor, factor five, whether the 7 city residents would be prejudiced by Chapter 9 relief. As 8 we said in argument last week -- and the Court will hear
9 through extensive evidence -- and it's a really important
10 part of the case both for purposes of eligibility and for 11 everything that will follow -- the residents are dramatically
12 prejudiced by denying Chapter 9 relief. Many of the problems
13 the city confronts in providing services to its residents is 14 because so many of its tax dollars are devoted to dealing 15 with bonds and other legacy liabilities. That's the problem.
16 The taxpayer in Detroit puts up a dollar and gets back -- 17 right now the number is something -- right now the number is 18 something like 58 cents, and the projections show it could be 19 some day 35 cents. That's an unstable situation. It's not 20 working now, it's not going to work in the future, and it has 21 to be changed.

22 The other side of the coin. Very often the first
23 reaction in cases like this is raise taxes. The evidence
24 will show -- it's summarized, by the way, in the June 14th
25 proposal -- that the taxes in Detroit are already the highest

1 in any municipality in Michigan; that we're already having
2 enforcement problems. The city is already having enforcement
3 problems with respect to property taxes; that the property
4 tax assessments may be too high, not too low, indicating that
5 that revenue source is stressed as well. There's nothing
6 left to do here. There is no revenue solution. So we have 7 come to a case, which is not necessarily like other Chapter 9
8 cases, where we have a very finite revenue pool, and it just 9 isn't enough to provide services and to pay debt, and, thus,
10 Chapter 9 is more needed here than in any other scenario you
11 can possibly think of. The evidence will show that.

12 Last topic, and this gets a lot more technical, but 13 this is responsive to your Honor's suggestion that we had to 14 deal with a disputed issue of fact, and that was the 15 motivation for the inclusion of appropriations provisions in 16 PA 436. Your Honor, I think the following is intended to 17 really indicate that that question isn't material, but I
18 think it's also -- when we did the research, we found that 19 it's also not a legitimate question for judicial review, so
20 I'm going to give you some citations, and I'm going to read a
21 very few quotes, and your Honor is clearly going to find more
22 when you look at this question.

23 In the State of Michigan, frankly, I think in other
24 places, et al. -- other places as well, the judiciary is not 25 supposed to engage in guessing about the legislature's

1 intent. The leading case about this turns out to be a
2 referendum case in Michigan. It's called Michigan United 3 Conservation Clubs versus Secretary of State. It's found at 4 630 N.W. 2d 297. Michigan United involved a review of a
5 Court of Appeals decision -- I think it's called the Court of 6 Appeals here -- a Court of Appeals decision that held, in 7 fact, that the -- that an appropriations provision in gun
8 control legislation was not going to prevent that legislation
9 from being subject to a referendum, and the Supreme Court
10 reverses and says that that -- that the inclusion of that 11 provision is going to insulate that statute from the 12 referendum process. And along the way, the Court was not 13 fractured in result but was fractured a little bit in 14 reasoning. There's a collection of -- I think it's three 15 concurring opinions. There's one judge who writes a
16 dissenting opinion. I think it's just one, but I'm not a 17 hundred percent positive about that. And so the lead -- the 18 first concurring opinion has this to say. "This court has 19 repeatedly held that courts must not be concerned with the 20 alleged motives of a legislative body in enacting a law, but 21 only with the end result - the actual language of the 22 legislation." And then there's a whole series of cases that 23 are cited to support that proposition that I won't read the 24 citations in the record unless your Honor wants them.

25 The next concurring opinion, Judge Corrigan's,

1 quotes from Justice Cooley's constitutional law thesis or 2 textbook. It looks like it may be a textbook. And the 3 quote, I think, is also instructive. It's a little bit
4 longer. It says the following: "to make legislation depend
5 upon motives would render all statute law uncertain, and the 6 rule which should allow it could not logically stop short of 7 permitting a similar inquiry into the motives of those who
8 passed judgment. Therefore, the courts do not permit a 9 question of improper legislative motives to be raised, but 10 they will in every instance assume that the motives were 11 public and benefitting (sic) the station. They will also 12 assume that the legislature had before it any evidence
13 necessary to enable it to take the action it did take."

14 Then, your Honor, the next case you would find if 15 you looked at this is Houston versus Governor, which is a
16 2012 case. There's a longer -- 491 Michigan 876, 810 N.W. 2d
17 255. And right near the front of the opinion there's a
18 paragraph. I'm only going to read two parts of the paragraph 19 to save time. "There is nothing that is relevant in this 20 regard" -- that's in terms of interpreting a statute -- "that 21 can be drawn from the political or partisan motivations of 22 the parties." I'm going to skip a sentence. "Moreover, this 23 court possesses no special capacity and there are no legal 24 standards by which to assess the political propriety of 25 actions undertaken by the legislative branch."

1 Now, of course, much of this makes sense because one
2 of the problems we scratched our heads about when we got back
3 to think about how we would address your Honor's question is 4 there are a whole bunch of legislators in two Houses that 5 conceivably had all kinds of different reasons for supporting 6 the appropriations. It could well be that most of them put 7 the appropriations there because they really thought they 8 needed the money even if some thought they were putting it
9 there because it was a problem relating to the referendum
10 process. I will tell you a very, very persuasive example of 11 the hazards of trying to figure out the intent of statutes
12 was impressed upon me by a law school, an example I learned
13 in law school, which was about the age 55 -- or the 55-mile-
14 per-hour speed limit, and it -- research turns out to show
15 that the purpose of that speed limit was to save fuel, and 16 the reason that it wasn't increased for a long time is 17 because it saved lives. And so also the purpose of 18 legislation actually can change over time or the reason why
19 it stays there, so I think it's a hazardous inquiry. I don't 20 think we know where to start. I don't think we can drag all 21 the legislators in here and ask them all, and I think the 22 only other evidence you're going to see about this is,
23 frankly, inadmissible hearsay.

24 Maybe more importantly than this, I think I
25 indicated to your Honor in argument last week that I didn't

1 think there was any consequence to a determination by this
2 Court that the appropriation provisions might prevent a
3 referendum. I said that the statute wouldn't be
4 unconstitutional. It just would be subject to referendum.
5 Well, it turns out in the Michigan United case, one of the 6 concurrences goes back and gives everybody the history of 7 what happened in that case, and so how did that case wind up
8 in court to begin with? And it wound up in court because the 9 persons, the group that wanted to have a referendum went out
10 and got the required number of signatures, went to the 11 appropriate office where the election is going to be held,
12 and the first response was no referendum because of the 13 provisions, and then they went to court to test it. So I
14 think we're in a situation where, frankly, the only 15 circumstance where this issue of whether or not the 16 appropriate -- whether or not the appropriation provisions
17 are in there for an appropriate purpose would conceivably
18 come up is when a person or organization desiring a
19 referendum within the time specified by the statute -- and it
20 could conceivably have run; I couldn't figure that out -- 21 actually collects the signatures, goes down to the 22 appropriate place and tries. That never happened.

23 It also appears that even if a group or person
24 doesn't do that, there is an initiative process, which is 25 different from a referendum process, which they could have

1 triggered, and that process is not dependent in any way on 2 whether or not there's an appropriation provision in the 3 relevant statute.

4 And, finally, I think it was pointed out when we
5 were together last that the PA 436 contains a severability
6 clause, so what's left to have happen at this point is if 7 that provision is somehow inappropriate and has to be 8 stricken for some legally cognizable reason, the rest of the 9 statute is still there. So I would say, again, summarizing
10 from where I started, there's two points here. One is is 11 that I think your Honor has asked for an inquiry that is not 12 only impractical, it's not one for courts, but, in any event,
13 it's not material to anything because it doesn't lead us
14 anywhere that would change the result that we have PA 436 or 15 at least every single one of its provisions with or without 16 the appropriation provision to apply, and it's not upset by 17 reason of the possibility that a referendum could have been 18 attempted in some circumstances where one never apparently 19 has been attempted.

20 With that, if you have no more questions, I think 21 I'm done.

22 THE COURT: Thank you.

23 MR. BENNETT: Thank you. I've been asked to offer
24 104 for demonstrable purposes only because it would not be on 25 the relevant lists.

1 THE COURT: Is there any objection to 104 for
2 demonstrative purposes only? All right. The Court will 3 admit it for that purpose.

4 (Debtor's Exhibit 104 received at 11:25 a.m.)

5 MS. LEVINE: Good morning, your Honor. Sharon
6 Levine, Lowenstein Sandler.

7 THE COURT: Let's just have the record clearly state
8 this. Does the State of Michigan wish to make an opening
9 statement on the issue of the city's eligibility?

10 MR. SCHNEIDER: No, your Honor. However, we may 11 wish to make a closing statement.

12 THE COURT: Thank you. You may proceed.

13 MS. LEVINE: Thank you, your Honor. Sharon Levine,
14 Lowenstein Sandler, for AFSCME. I'm actually here in the 15 role of emcee. As with the oral arguments, we have agreed to 16 work together to try and not duplicate efforts and to make a
17 cohesive presentation, so just to give your Honor a little 18 bit of an understanding, the Retirement System is going to,
19 in essence, go first, spend about 20 minutes going through 20 the timeline as we see it. Following that, the Retired
21 Detroit Police Members Association will react to the city's 22 final portion of their statement and also to their particular 23 issues as reflected in the timeline and apply it to the 24 facts. The UAW, the Public Safety Unions, the Retired
25 Association Parties, and AFSCME will each spend just a few

1 minutes indicating how we see any additional facts or how the 2 facts apply to our particular situations, and then the 3 Retiree Committee probably for 20 or 30 minutes will give a
4 global overview of applying the facts that came out in the 5 timeline to the law. Thank you.

6 THE COURT: Okay. Well, do you think it's okay with 7 your group if at a convenient break around noon we take our 8 lunch break?

9 MS. LEVINE: That would be great.

10 THE COURT: Okay.

11 MS. GREEN: Your Honor, can I move the -- oh, I'm 12 sorry.

13 THE COURT: Yes. Can we arrange to move that easel,
14 please? You can try.

15 MS. GREEN: Your Honor, Jennifer Green on behalf of 16 the Retirement Systems.

17 THE COURT: Be sure you speak right into the 18 microphone even though you've angled the lectern there.

19 OPENING STATEMENT

20 MS. GREEN: As Sharon mentioned, we have put 21 together a slideshow presentation of the timeline. We 22 believe that these facts will later be used to support
23 certain legal arguments that we will be raising throughout
24 trial regarding the fact that Chapter 9 was a foregone
25 conclusion well before any creditor negotiations occurred;

1 that Chapter 9 was filed in bad faith to circumvent the 2 pension clause, and we submit, respectfully, we disagree with 3 the city's assertion a moment ago that Chapter 9 was a mere
4 contingency, and our assertion is that it really was a
5 foregone conclusion before any of the creditor negotiations
6 ever occurred, and with that I will begin.

7 You may ask why we're going back this far to 2011,
8 but at his deposition, your Honor, Governor Snyder testified
9 that this has been a highly structured process for close to 10 three years, so we begin in January 2011 when Richard Snyder
11 takes office as the governor of the State of Michigan.

12 Shortly thereafter, just three months later, the 13 governor signs into law what we now refer to as PA 4. The 14 legislation makes its way through both Houses within just 34
15 days. February 2012, Stand Up for Democracy files with the 16 Secretary of State a petition to invoke a referendum on PA 4.
17 Just days later, within -- actually, within three days of 18 Stand Up for Democracy's petition, discussions begin
19 regarding ways to insulate PA 436 -- or what will become PA
20 436 eventually from referendum. There are notations that 21 discussions were had with Andy Dillon, the treasurer of the 22 State of Michigan's office, and there are notes about Miller
23 Buckfire are going to follow up with Andy directly about the 24 process for getting this to the governor and a notation that 25 the cleanest way to do all of this is new legislation that

1 establishes a board and includes an appropriation for a state
2 institution. If an appropriation is attached, it concludes,
3 then the statute is not subject to repeal by the referendum
4 process.

5 In April of 2012, the city enters into the consent
6 agreement with the State of Michigan. Shortly thereafter,
7 Heather Lennox of Jones Day and Ken Buckfire of Miller
8 Buckfire purportedly meet with Governor Snyder on June 6th,
9 2012, to discuss the Detroit -- the City of Detroit's
10 financial crisis and issues related to potential 9 Chapter --
11 or Chapter 9 bankruptcy.

12 Prior to the meeting, in the e-mail that we 13 discussed earlier and that I quoted for you earlier during 14 oral arguments, there is a notation that Mr. Buckfire
15 suggested that all the memos be put together, the ones that 16 were done for Andy. A list of those memos were compiled, and 17 three of those we think are pertinent to some of the issues
18 at trial in this case. One of the memos was regarding a
19 summary and comparison of PA 4 and Chapter 9. One was a
20 memoranda on constitutional protections for pension and OPEB
21 liabilities, and a third memo was analysis of filing
22 requirements of Section 109(c)(5) of the Bankruptcy Code, in 23 particular, negotiation being impracticable and negotiating
24 in good faith.

25 Two weeks after the meeting with Governor Snyder,

1 Miller Buckfire is engaged by the State of Michigan to 2 perform an analysis and review of the city's financial
3 condition. Shortly thereafter, Ken Buckfire testified that 4 after he got this engagement, he started receiving phone 5 calls from law firms seeing if he would be interested in 6 helping them get inserted in --

7 THE COURT: I need to interrupt you for a second.

8 MS. GREEN: Am I going too fast?

9 THE COURT: Yes.

10 MS. GREEN: I was trying to get done by noon. I was 11 trying to get done by noon because you said you wanted to 12 break at noon.

13 THE COURT: I really want to follow what you say,
14 so --

15 MS. GREEN: I will slow down.

16 THE COURT: -- I need you to slow down.

17 MS. GREEN: I knew I only had 30 minutes, so I was 18 trying hard.

19 THE COURT: Well, we don't have to stop right at 20 noon.

21 MS. GREEN: Okay. I will slow down.

22 THE COURT: But slow down for me by about 50
23 percent.

24 MS. GREEN: Wonderful. I get this a lot, so I know
25 I'm a fast talker. The discussion continues. Mr. Buckfire

1 testified that Corrine Ball had wanted him to meet one of her
2 partners, who was successful in a Chapter 9 case. This is in 3 2012. In October of 2012, PA -- before PA 4 is even rejected
4 by the voters, the Treasury Department and the Governor's
5 Office begin discussing creation of a new emergency manager
6 statute just in case the referendum is passed. Howard Ryan,
7 who is the 30(b)(6) witness for the State of Michigan, will
8 testify to that. Shortly thereafter, November 6th of 2012,
9 the Michigan electorate rejected PA 4.

10 In December Senate Bill 865, which would eventually 11 become PA 436, was introduced in the Michigan legislature.
12 The final version is adopted by both Houses just 14 days
13 later on December 15th, and around that same time the 14 treasurer commences a preliminary review of the city's 15 finances under PA 72 and determines that a serious financial 16 problem exists in the City of Detroit.

17 At the end of December, the governor of Michigan
18 signs PA 436 into law, submits it to the Secretary of State.
19 The entire process for PA 436 took only 26 days, and it is 20 insulated from public referendum because it contains what the 21 objecting parties submit is a minor appropriation of $5.8
22 million, which is less than .009 of the state budget, and 23 below we have the citation from the exhibit that sets forth
24 the amount of the state budget.

25 In connection with the PA 436 appropriation, the

1 state 30(b)(6) witness testified at his deposition that he
2 was aware that the appropriation was included for the purpose
3 of insulating it from referendum. He was asked the question,

4 "Do you recall when that provision of the 5 legislation was added to the draft bill?"

6 Pretty early on, I believe. It was quite early,
7 maybe from the inception."

8 He was then asked, "Based on your conversations
9 with the people at the time, was it your understanding that 10 one or more of the reasons to put the appropriation language
11 in there was to make sure it could not -- the new act could 12 not be defended by a referendum?" He answered, "Yes."

13 "Where did you get that knowledge from?"

14 Well, having watched the entire process unfold
15 over the two -- past two years.

16 The governor's office knew that was the point of 17 it?

18 Yes.

19 That your department" -- his is the treasury --
20 "knew that was the point of it?"

21 Yes."

22 In January of 2013, Miller Buckfire was reengaged,
23 this time by the City of Detroit, to continue its evaluation
24 of the city's financial condition. Mr. Buckfire was then 25 asked by Treasurer Dillon to make arrangements for the city

1 and state officials to meet and interview Jones Day and seven
2 other law firms that were interested in serving as 3 restructuring counsel.

4 The day before the pitch presentation with the City
5 of Detroit, Kevyn Orr, who attends the pitch, receives an e-
6 mail recounting conversations with Mr. Buckfire -- Mr.
7 Buckfire will be testifying live during this trial -- and 8 listed are the questions that will be asked the following day
9 at the pitch. They all relate to Chapter 9. "Given the 10 issues that Detroit faces, how can they address them outside
11 of Chapter 9?" is the first, but all the rest are, "Under 12 what circumstances should Chapter 9 be used?" "How would one
13 execute a low-cost fast Chapter 9?" "Given Chapter 9
14 experience, what went wrong with JeffCo and Orange County?"
15 And at the bottom, "If Miller Buckfire finds a way to 16 monetize assets and create liquidity, how would that impact
17 eligibility?"

18 The next day on January 29th, Jones Day presents its 19 restructuring strategy to the city and state officials, and 20 it explains that while out-of-court solutions are preferred,
21 they conclude they are extremely difficult to achieve in 22 practice. They note that Chapter 9 can create negotiating 23 leverage negotiating with the backdrop of bankruptcy, which 24 we submit is not good faith.

25 They further conclude in their strategy that an out-

1 of-court plan should contemplate the possibility of Chapter 9
2 because it creates leverage, you can negotiate in the shadow
3 of Chapter 9, and it helps bolster your eligibility and your
4 success in a Chapter 9 by establishing a record of seeking 5 creditor consensus.

6 There are notes on the slide that state, "A good
7 faith effort to pursue an out-of-court restructuring plan
8 will establish that clear record and will deflect any 9 eligibility complaints based on alleged failure to negotiate
10 or bad faith. If needed, though, Chapter 9 could be used as 11 a means to further cut back or compromise, quote, 'accrued
12 financial benefits otherwise protected under the Michigan
13 Constitution.'"

14 The next day Richard Baird, who's Governor Snyder's
15 consultant, reaches out to Jones Day to inquire about hiring
16 Kevyn Orr as the emergency manager. The following day,
17 Mr. Orr calls PA 436 a clear end-run around the prior 18 initiative that was rejected by the voters in November and 19 also comments, "So although the new law, PA 436, provides the 20 thin veneer of a revision, it is essentially a redo of the 21 prior rejected law and appears to merely adopt the conditions
22 necessary for a Chapter 9 filing."

23 THE COURT: What do those statements appear in?

24 MS. GREEN: It's Orr Exhibit 4, JDRD0000295. It's 25 an e-mail.

1 THE COURT: Right, but what is that?

2 MS. GREEN: An exhibit. It's an e-mail.

3 THE COURT: An e-mail. Thank you.

4 MS. GREEN: E-mail. I'm sorry. In February of 5 2013, Mayor Bing was approached by Mr. Baird regarding Kevyn
6 Orr as the candidate for the emergency manager position, and 7 Mayor Bing recalls that the only salient qualifications he 8 was offered about Mr. Orr was his bankruptcy experience. Mr.
9 Baird told him about Kevyn Orr's experience in part of the 10 Chrysler bankruptcy team, and Mr. Orr -- Mayor Bing was 11 asked, "Did you ask Mr. Baird anything else about Mr. Orr's 12 qualifications to serve as emergency financial manager?" And 13 then he answers, "He -- yes, I did, and he felt that not only 14 was he a lawyer that dealt with bankruptcy for over 30 years,
15 but he also had some qualification as it related to 16 restructuring." "And did Mr. Baird indicate that Orr had 17 qualifications concerning restructuring outside the context
18 of bankruptcy?" "That would be no" was his response.

19 In March the governor declared that a local 20 government financial emergency existed in the City of 21 Detroit. At the end of March, Kevyn Orr was appointed
22 emergency manager of the City of Detroit. On March 28th PA
23 436 becomes effective, and in April of 2013 Jones Day is 24 engaged as legal counsel for the City of Detroit.

25 After being appointed emergency manager, Kevyn Orr

1 is quoted on May 12th, 2013 -- we've all heard this quote,
2 but I'll say it again -- that the public can comment on the 3 city's financial and operating plan, but we are not, like,
4 negotiating the terms of the plan.

5 The day before presenting its proposal to the 6 creditors, Mr. Orr gives an interview with the Detroit Free
7 Press and expresses his intent to evade the pensions clause
8 through a federal Chapter 9 bankruptcy proceeding, and we 9 have quoted for you the portion of that interview and 10 highlighted it in yellow. He states, "If you think your 11 state-vested pension rights, either as an employee or 12 retiree -- that's not going to protect you. If we don't 13 reach an agreement one way or the other, we feel fairly
14 confident that the state federal law, federalism, will trump
15 state law."

16 On June 14th, the emergency manager held a meeting
17 at the Detroit Metropolitan Airport and presented the city's 18 proposal for the creditors. The evidence will show that the 19 city proposed to fully -- fully intended to impair or 20 diminish accrued financial benefits. This is an excerpt from 21 the proposal for creditors, and it clearly states that with 22 respect to unfunded pension liabilities, quote, "such 23 contributions will not be made under the plan." And it 24 further states there must be, quote, "significant cuts in 25 accrued vested pension amounts for both active and currently

1 retired persons."

2 On June 20th, the emergency manager undertook a
3 presentation regarding the city's finances and plan
4 restructuring to both uniform and nonuniformed retirees.
5 Numerous witnesses who attended this meeting, several of 6 which will be testifying at trial, will testify that they did
7 not observe or participate in any negotiations regarding the 8 city's financials and that these meetings were purely 9 informational.

10 On June 27th following this presentation that I just 11 spoke of, the city sends a letter to the UAW thanking them
12 for their time in participating in the meeting, and in that 13 letter even the city acknowledged that the unions would need
14 more information moving forward. The letter here is quoted, 15 "The city recognizes that representatives of active and 16 retired employees will need access to additional information
17 to analyze the restructuring proposals outlined in the June 18 20 meetings. Information relevant to these proposals will be 19 made available in the on line data room," but at this time on 20 June 27th, that information, as they were saying, was not yet
21 available.

22 Five days later on July 23rd Gracie Webster and 23 Veronica Thomas commenced lawsuits against the State of 24 Michigan, the governor, and the treasurer seeking a
25 declaratory judgment that PA 436 violated the pensions

1 clause, and they also sought an injunction.

2 In July when several of the creditor meetings took
3 place, the evidence will show that the city had no intention
4 of actually negotiating with its creditors. By July 8th you
5 will see an e-mail with an attachment of a timeline and a
6 communications roll-out demonstrating that the city had 7 already determined that its Chapter 9 petition was going to 8 be filed on July 19th. There's a timeline crafted by the 9 State of Michigan that identifies July 19th as a filing date
10 despite the fact that the creditor meetings had not yet
11 occurred. Therefore, the objecting parties submit that 12 Chapter 9 was already a foregone conclusion before the city
13 met with its creditors on July 10th and 11th. In fact, here
14 is a copy of that Chapter 9 roll-out, communications roll-out
15 that I spoke of. In an e-mail from Kevyn Orr's press
16 secretary, Bill Nowling, to certain state officials, he lays 17 out the communications plan. And if you go down to the 18 yellow portion, it starts with, "We negotiated in good faith 19 with all of Detroit's creditors." Mind you, several of the 20 meetings had not yet even occurred. "We presented a 21 comprehensive restructuring plan to creditors in June. At 22 this point, it would be impractical to continue discussions
23 out of court because it is clear that we will be able to 24 reach agreement with some creditors only through a court-
25 supervised process, and the State of Michigan has authorized

1 the emergency manager to take this step." This is on July
2 8th.

3 The timeline attached to that communications roll-
4 out on Thursday, July 18th, states that, "Last minute
5 revisions will be made to all the key documents," and on 6 Friday, July 19th, which is in bold and capital letters
7 called "The Filing Day," at nine o'clock the Governor's 8 Office is supposed to transmit the authorization letter to 9 the emergency manager, and at ten o'clock on the 19th the 10 necessary paperwork is supposed to be filed with the court
11 system, and then a series of press conferences are to be 12 held.

13 The following day, on July 9th, an e-mail from 14 Treasurer Dillon to the governor of the State of Michigan
15 states that, "We are still in the informational mode." This 16 e-mail is interesting for several reasons. First, it states
17 that Kevyn will meet the Detroit pensions the following day,
18 on July 10th. It says there will be no exchange of documents
19 and that he will not translate that -- the information that 20 he gives into an impact on retiree or employees' vested
21 rights. Treasurer Dillon continues and says that there are a 22 lot of creative options that we can explore to address how 23 they will be treated in restructuring with respect to the 24 pensions, but at his deposition when he was -- when he was 25 asked whether these creative options were ever explored

1 directly with the Retirement Systems, Dillon said no. And 2 it's not up there, but he also was asked if they were ever --
3 these creative options were put into written reports or 4 formal proposals, and he also said, no, they were not.

5 Further in the e-mail he says to the governor,
6 "Tomorrow's meeting could lead to questions directed to you
7 about your view on this topic. In my view, it's too early in 8 the process to respond to hypothetical questions. We remain
9 in many ways in the -- at the informational stage." This was 10 just one week before the filing. And Mr. Dillon admitted at 11 his deposition that nothing changed between July 9th and the 12 filing date of July 18th that would take them out of this 13 informational stage, as he called it.

14 On July 10th and 11th, there were a series of 15 creditor negotiations -- alleged creditor negotiations that 16 took place. The emergency manager himself did not even 17 attend, but witnesses who did attend the meeting will testify
18 that they did not observe or participate in any negotiations
19 regarding the city's finances and that, again, these meetings
20 were purely informational. And this is consistent with the 21 state treasurer's report to the governor that as of July 8th,
22 we are still in the informational mode. It's also consistent
23 with Mr. Orr's admission at his deposition when he was 24 questioned, "There were no actual negotiations at the June 25 14th meeting, were they?" And he answers, "No, not as it's

1 generally understood."

2 Lastly, the fact that there were no negotiations on 3 July 10th and 11th is consistent with the city's and the 4 state's communications roll-out, which already adopted the 5 excuse that negotiations were going to be impractical.

6 On July 12th, following those meetings, the Detroit
7 Fire Fighters Association sends a letter to the emergency
8 manager asking for more information and stating, "It would be 9 productive if the city could provide us with its specific 10 proposals on pension benefit restructuring as soon as 11 possible. We have two meetings with the city where pension
12 benefits were addressed and still have only the city's 13 general observation that pension benefits must be reduced."
14 At trial Mark Diaz, the president of the Detroit Police
15 Officers Association, and Dan McNamara, president of the 16 Detroit Fire Fighters Association, will testify that no
17 specific proposals were ever given by the city after this 18 letter, and instead the city filed bankruptcy just six days
19 later.

20 On July 15th the Webster defendants filed a response
21 brief and a motion for summary disposition. In that court
22 paper, the state asserted that a bankruptcy filing by the 23 City of Detroit is, quote, "only a possibility that 24 plaintiff's claims were, quote, 'unripe, premature, and based 25 on a speculative threat of future injury.'" And mind you,

1 this position is taken in open court, which conflicts with 2 the timeline that had already been circulated within the 3 Governor's Office that slated the filing date as just four 4 days later.

5 On July 16th Mr. Orr submitted the bankruptcy
6 recommendation letter to Governor Snyder and Treasurer
7 Dillon. In that letter he stated that dramatic but necessary
8 benefit modifications must be made. The governor
9 acknowledged that he read that letter before authorizing the 10 filing and that he knew that the city's request for 11 authorization that dramatic cuts be given would be part of 12 any Chapter 9 process. He also testified that he knew,
13 quote, "based on the facts going into it, there was a 14 likelihood accrued pension benefits would be reduced in the 15 Chapter 9 case."

16 The next day, the Detroit Public Safety Unions
17 received correspondence from the city thanking them on behalf
18 of the emergency manager for their, quote, "strong
19 cooperation regarding the City of Detroit pension
20 restructuring." Later that same day, the Retirement Systems
21 filed their lawsuit against the governor and the emergency
22 manager in Ingham County Circuit Court seeking declaratory
23 relief. That same night at 6:23 p.m. the governor's press
24 secretary, Sara Wurfel, circulates an updated timeline that 25 still shows the bankruptcy filing date of Friday, July 19th.

1 This is July 17th at 6:23 p.m. The following day, the 2 Retirement Systems filed a motion for a TRO seeking an
3 injunction. At 3:05 p.m. that afternoon, Margaret Nelson of 4 the Attorney General's Office received a telephone call
5 informing her that Retirement Systems were in court seeking a
6 TRO. At 3:47 the governor e-mailed his authorization letter
7 to Orr and to Treasurer Dillon, and at 4:06 Orr changes the 8 date on the filing papers from July 18th, crosses out the 19
9 because it was supposed to be filed the 19th, handwrites in 10 an 18 and files the petition one hour and one minute after 11 finding out that the Retirement Systems were in court seeking
12 a TRO, which is inconsistent with the timeline sent at 6:30
13 the night before saying it was going to be on Friday.

14 And at 4:10 p.m. the attorney general appears for 15 the TRO hearing in Ingham County. This is reflected in the 16 papers filed by the state, the docket history and the hearing
17 transcripts. Orr later admitted that he was being counseled
18 that it would be, quote, irresponsible not to file the 19 petition sooner rather than later given all the lawsuits that 20 were popping up.

21 On July 19th, the following day, the declaratory
22 judgment was entered against the governor, the treasurer, and 23 the State of Michigan and that declaratory judgment states PA
24 436 is unconstitutional and in violation of Article IX,
25 Section 24, of the Michigan Constitution, and it further

1 states the governor is prohibited from authorizing an
2 emergency manager to proceed under Chapter 9, yet the city
3 filed its Chapter 9 petition despite the fact that each of 4 its advisors uniformly testified at their depositions that 5 the city's financial information was still incomplete as of 6 the filing, and, in fact, today it is still incomplete.

7 Charles Moore, senior managing director at Conway
8 MacKenzie, testified that quote, when he was asked, "Has 9 there been a specification of those level of cuts that the 10 city contends must occur?" He says, "I mean have you put a
11 dollar amount on it?" He answers, "No. Our analysis of this 12 continues. Right now we still don't know what assets could 13 be available to put toward the pensions. We still have not 14 had the type of dialogue that we would like to have related 15 to the calculation of the unfunded amount, so because of 16 those two uncertainties, among others, we don't know what 17 cuts, if any, there may need to be."

18 The state treasurer also agreed that as of July 8th,
19 just a week before the filing, "I thought that the situation
20 was not understood enough for the governor to go on record
21 yet because I couldn't even tell him with any degree of 22 confidence what level of funding the pension funds had, so
23 why should he get in the middle of a debate about this?"

24 In addition, as of the petition date -- and I
25 believe the city's witnesses will testify consistent with

1 their depositions -- that to date the city still -- the city
2 still does not know the value of two of its primary assets,
3 including the Water and Sewage Department and the city-owned
4 artwork at the Detroit Institute of Arts. Because the city
5 still does not know what assets are available to satisfy
6 liabilities, does not know the scope of the liabilities, it
7 is the objecting parties' position that the Chapter 9 filing
8 was premature and not made in good faith. Thank you. I
9 believe Mr. Ullman may be following me.

10 THE COURT: Okay.

11 MS. GREEN: I apologize. It's Lynn Brimer.

12 THE COURT: Okay. Perhaps we should move that 13 lectern back to center, huh?

14 MS. BRIMER: I can do that.

15 THE COURT: Okay. Thank you.

16 MS. BRIMER: Is this good, your Honor?

17 THE COURT: That's great. Let me just ask will 18 there be other uses of the projector during openings?

19 ATTORNEY: Yes, your Honor.

20 THE COURT: Okay.

21 OPENING STATEMENT

22 MS. BRIMER: Good morning, your Honor. And, your 23 Honor, I thank Mr. Bennett for raising the legal issues with 24 respect to the spending provision because it at least makes 25 me more comfortable as to why I thought it's so important we

1 clarify the record on the discovery matters with respect to
2 which law had a spending provision added onto it.

3 THE COURT: Okay.

4 MS. BRIMER: So rather than address my opening issue
5 to begin with, would the Court like me to address the legal 6 issues raised by Mr. Bennett, or would you like the legal 7 issue -- I am prepared to briefly discuss those. I don't 8 have a written preparation, but I do think it's important for 9 the Court to understand I did look at the case that 10 Mr. Bennett cited. I didn't disregard any case law when 11 coming to this Court and believing that there was a factual
12 issue.

13 With respect to the Michigan United case, I think
14 it's factually distinguishable again. That case did not 15 involve an original law that did not have a spending
16 provision that was overturned on referendum and then a new 17 law presented. In that case, your Honor, the issue was 18 whether or not the spending provision itself added in the 19 original law such that it was not subject to referendum was,
20 in fact, an appropriate provision taking it out of the 21 referendum provision. You know, under -- your Honor, that is 22 not the facts that we have before us today.

23 In addition, your Honor, I have reviewed Justice
24 Corrigan's opinion, which, by the way, was a concurring
25 opinion, not the Court's majority opinion, but she addressed

1 the issue of intent and that, generally speaking, we do not
2 look to the motive or intent of the legislature --
3 legislative body when passing a law, but she said this is 4 because -- and she notes this in a footnote -- this is 5 because, generally speaking, we do not have any testimonial
6 record regarding motive or intent. That would be, your
7 Honor, in her concurring opinion. There is no testimonial
8 record in the -- in this original action regarding the motive
9 or intent. Well, your Honor, that is simply not the case in 10 this matter. As Ms. Green read to you and as I quoted from 11 the state's own 30(b)(6) witness, we have evidence regarding 12 the motive of the inclusion of the spending provisions on an 13 act that had previously been rejected on referendum. We 14 believe that factual issue is important to this Court in 15 determining that whether or not some or all of PA 436 should 16 have been subject to the second provision that everyone seems 17 to gloss over in Article II, Section 9, of the Constitution, 18 which states specifically that no law that has properly been 19 submitted to referendum can then -- and rejected can then be 20 passed without a referral back to the general electorate.

21 Your Honor, the cases cited by the state, Ms.
22 Nelson, of Reynolds v. Martin and the case cited this morning
23 just simply are not factually similar enough to PA 436 to be 24 controlling, and we do -- and, you know, my closing -- my 25 opening can be as simple as, your Honor, the evidence will

1 show that the motive of including the spending provisions was
2 to, in fact, take an act that had previously been overturned
3 on referendum and disregard the will of the people, and it's 4 very clear. The state's attorney argued yesterday that we
5 knew what the people's will was because we have the media.
6 Well, we know what the people's will was. The people's will 7 was that we not have an emergency manager who would supplant
8 the democratically elected officials in the City of Detroit,
9 and that was very clear, and yet we now have PA 436, which 10 disregarded that, which added a spending provision to it, and 11 the facts will demonstrate that we can establish what the 12 motive was in adding those spending provisions. And,
13 moreover, we can establish that the emergency manager,
14 Mr. Orr, was fully aware of that at the time he accepted his 15 appointment as the emergency manager. I'll conclude --

16 THE COURT: Well, how do you -- how do you deal with 17 Mr. Bennett's argument that if the issue is ever appropriate
18 for court review, it is not appropriate until petition
19 signatures are collected on the bill that has the spending
20 provision in it and the petitions are rejected because it's 21 not the kind of a law that can be subject to a referendum?

22 MS. BRIMER: Well, certainly I don't think there's 23 any case law that would suggest that the people be required
24 to take an act which on its face would be rejected. I'm not 25 sure I'm aware of any case law that would suggest that the

1 people had to refer that case -- the law to a referendum and 2 have it denied because of the failure -- or the inclusion of 3 the spending provision. At issue here, your Honor, is 4 whether or not the act is sufficiently similar enough, not 5 that it had to go back to referendum, but whether it's 6 sufficiently similar enough that the second provision would 7 require that it be deemed to be unconstitutional because it
8 was not presented to the people again.

9 THE COURT: Okay. All right. Let's take our lunch
10 break now. Before we do, I want to remind everyone that we 11 are guests here in this building, and we need to maintain
12 decorum and silence while we are in the hallways. Please
13 don't linger in the halls. You can have your conversations
14 here in the courtroom over lunch if you'd like to do that, or 15 in the elevator or on the 1st floor, but please maintain
16 silence in the hall. Let's see. It's noon. We'll reconvene
17 at 1:30, please, and that's it.

18 THE CLERK: All rise. Court is in recess.

19 (Recess at 11:59 a.m., until 1:30 p.m.)

20 THE CLERK: Court is in session. Please be seated.

21 THE COURT: Counsel are present. We have a couple 22 of housekeeping matters that we need to address before we 23 continue with our opening statements, please. The first is 24 that in the amended final pretrial order that was submitted
25 through our order processing program, on Attachment G, which

1 is the attachment from the Retirement Systems, the exhibit
2 numbers were omitted. I'm sure that was inadvertent, so
3 please fix that and resubmit it as soon as possible so that
4 we can get it entered. Okay?

5 ATTORNEY: Of course, your Honor.

6 THE COURT: And then a second brief housekeeping
7 matter is -- is Ms. Green still here?

8 ATTORNEY: She's not here yet, your Honor.

9 THE COURT: Okay. Mr. Gordon, just to keep the 10 record a hundred percent clean, we need to put an exhibit
11 number on a paper version of the slide presentation so that 12 for the record that is identified, whatever exhibit number
13 you want to put on it.

14 MR. GORDON: All right. Very well, your Honor.

15 THE COURT: Okay.

16 MR. IRWIN: Your Honor, will counsel be provided a
17 copy of that when it's done in that way?

18 THE COURT: Can you do that?

19 MR. GORDON: Yes, absolutely.

20 THE COURT: Okay. All right. We are ready to 21 proceed.

22 OPENING STATEMENT

23 MR. WERTHEIMER: William Wertheimer, your Honor, on
24 behalf of the Flowers plaintiffs. I'll be very brief, and I
25 just want to add a couple of points relevant to the timeline

1 that Ms. Green was showing you. I do not have a clicker, but
2 I'll just state them.

3 THE COURT: Okay.

4 MR. WERTHEIMER: That is, first, on July 3rd the 5 Flowers lawsuit was actually filed before the Webster
6 lawsuit. They were both filed on July 3rd, so they were both 7 filed that day. Second, on the same day, both Flowers and 8 Webster cases, Judge Aquilina signed orders to show cause
9 setting a hearing for the preliminary injunction that we were 10 seeking for July 22nd so that -- and those were served on the 11 governor and the treasurer on July 3rd so that at the point
12 in time on the timeline a few days later when they're setting
13 the putative bankruptcy for July 19th, Friday, they know that 14 the state court preliminary injunction hearing is being 15 scheduled for July 22nd, the following Monday. That's it.
16 Thank you.

17 THE COURT: Okay.

18 OPENING STATEMENT

19 MS. CECCOTTI: Good afternoon, your Honor. Babette
20 Ceccotti, Cohen, Weiss & Simon, LLP, for the UAW. Ms.
21 Green's timeline was very complete and detailed. I do want
22 to just -- because I don't think this particular slide was up
23 there, so I would like to mention the pitch book again. Ms.
24 Green had a slide from the Jones Day pitch book from January
25 20, 2013, and one thing that -- when your Honor goes through

1 the pitch book you'll notice that there are, you know, a
2 few -- quite a few, I would say, or certainly more than one
3 or two references to the use of Chapter 9 either itself or 4 the shadow of Chapter 9 as leverage vis-a-vis creditors, vis-
5 a-vis specific proposals and claims related to labor costs,
6 and I think Ms. Green showed the slide with the quote on 7 there about using Chapter 9 to reduce accrued financial 8 benefits.

9 The other thing that I'd like to mention about the 10 pitch book, which really does become something of a
11 blueprint, I think, for what follows, is at page 57 there's a 12 slide that reads, "Any Chapter 9 process should be 13 comprehensive," and it starts with the bullet, "plans of 14 adjustment address narrow range of economic compromises."
15 And then it talks -- and then there are other bullets that 16 follow, "other fundamental changes must occur outside the 17 plan context," "any Chapter 9 process should pursue as many 18 revitalization initiatives as possible," "negotiating in 19 Chapter 9 or its shadow is a powerful tool for 20 revitalization," and, finally, "the city should take 21 advantage of its opportunity for long-term comprehensive 22 solutions."

23 So that's actually a good segue to June 14th
24 proposal because, as we've talked about before in the other 25 arguments that we've had, this is really a massive

1 comprehensive revitalization proposal that really has
2 elements of more or less what that slide that I just read you
3 is talking about. It's got -- the plans include a $1.25
4 billion spending program going out over ten years. There are 5 many detailed wide-ranging initiatives that have to do with 6 improvement of services, upgrades, reinvestment, and the 7 like, and there is also a restructuring proposal. There's a
8 section called "restructuring proposal." I don't have to 9 take you through that because we've been through it a number
10 of times. You know what the pension proposal -- what the 11 pension proposal is, but the point being that the -- just the 12 four corners of the proposal itself, what that reflects in 13 terms of what it is that the city is trying to pursue through
14 Chapter 9.

15 In terms of the events following the launch of that 16 proposal on June 14th, I think that we see a number of 17 things, and the evidence will show this. As we saw actually 18 from Mr. Bennett's slide, the number of meetings that 19 actually occur on this proposal -- regarding this proposal
20 are relatively few. It's a limited number of sessions.
21 Regardless of how we're characterizing them, there's at least 22 one document that refers to one of the meetings as 23 informational, in fact.

24 We have the data room issue. Ms. Green read the 25 letter or showed the letter to the UAW regarding the fact

1 that the data room wasn't quite up and running yet, but what
2 is also true about the data room, as your Honor knows from 3 the early days of this case, is that in order to access the 4 data room, one had to sign a confidentiality agreement and an
5 additional release to get the Milliman pension materials, and 6 my client, at least, took issue with that prior to the 7 bankruptcy, and others may -- other groups may have as well,
8 so you had this quite massive proposal, a series of really a
9 handful of meetings being held with the data that the city
10 was loading into the data room about the proposal not readily
11 available.

12 In addition, as I mentioned, these were not -- there
13 were just a few of these meetings, and I think the evidence
14 will show that they wouldn't really constitute labor
15 negotiations. The unions, you know, have various ways that 16 they talk about that in the evidence. They are fairly 17 well -- I guess I'll just use the word "highly organized" or 18 the phrase "high organized" by the city, including one
19 meeting where -- at least one meeting where if there were 20 questions about the proposal, those in attendance were 21 required to submit them on cards, and the cards would be read
22 as opposed to any sort of free flowing give and take that one
23 might associate with a meeting with stakeholders that we 24 might think about in terms of going over a restructuring
25 proposal or even a labor proposal.

1 So now I'd like to get to Mr. Bennett's comments
2 about the UAW because I think this really does -- that this
3 is really a very important point. Yes, it is true that, as 4 we know, the proposal included the cessation of funding to 5 the Retirement System and the statement about -- the 6 statement that significant cuts to accrued vested pension
7 benefits would be necessary, so, yes, on its -- the UAW's
8 position is, yes, on its face, looking at that on page 109,
9 if that's the right page, that is a proposal that violates
10 the Michigan state Constitution, and the immediate questions
11 that arises on its face just looking at it like that is how 12 could it be accepted. How could it be accepted by a labor
13 union? How could it be accepted by anyone purporting to 14 speak for or represent actives or retirees? So, yes, on its 15 face the proposal was not acceptable, and we believe that 16 that has legal consequences as distinct from fact
17 consequences, so I do want to make that point about the -- 18 about our objection -- our amended objection in that regard.
19 We very much believe that that has legal consequences.

20 As a factual matter, however, and notwithstanding
21 the fact that the proposal on its face could not be accepted,
22 you couldn't simply hand it to the union with a signature
23 line and say, "Here, sign," the UAW, through its general
24 counsel, contacted Jones Day on July 9th, and we'll have a
25 witness to this effect, and we have an exhibit on it as well,

1 to raise a couple of points, one regarding the data room and
2 the confidentiality issue that I mentioned already. Then in
3 response to the letter that Mr. Bennett's chart showed trying 4 to ask the labor organizations and the retiree groups if they
5 would be representing their retirees, the e-mail to Jones Day
6 reads as follows: "Further to its reservation of rights, the 7 UAW continues to seek an answer from Mr. Orr and your firm as 8 to the following: Please cite the basis for any claim that 9 the UAW has the authority to compromise the vested benefits
10 of active and/or retired UAW or former UAW members employed
11 or formerly employed by the City of Detroit and its 12 affiliates. As I presume you know, Article IX, Section 24,
13 of the Michigan Constitution provides in pertinent part that,
14 quote, 'the accrued financial benefits of each pension plan
15 and Retirement System of the state and its political 16 subdivisions shall be a contractual obligation thereof which 17 shall not be diminished or impaired thereby,' unquote.
18 Please tell me what authority your firm and/or Mr. Orr
19 believe gives the UAW the right to compromise vested pension
20 benefits despite the contrary provisions of Article IX,
21 Section 24. Please tell us -- please also tell us whether 22 Mr. Orr and/or your firm take the position that Article IX,
23 Section 24, of the Michigan Constitution is not or may not be 24 binding on the City of Detroit, the State of Michigan,
25 Governor Snyder, Mr. Orr, or the UAW and state, if that is

1 the case, under what circumstances you believe that Article
2 IX, Section 24, would not bind some or all of these persons
3 or entities. We also seek the answer to the same question
4 with regard to vested post-retirement insurance benefits,"
5 and then there's a reference to the Supreme Court's decision
6 in the Pittsburgh Plate Glass case. And the letter makes it
7 clear that, again, from the UAW's perspective, "We do not
8 understand the July 10 and 11 multiple stakeholder meetings
9 to which we have been invited to be a forum for negotiations
10 of your proposed pension and retiree healthcare changes but 11 are willing to attend and obtain for our union whatever
12 information may be provided at those meetings," and then -- 13 and, finally, "Your full answers to the questions posed in 14 the foregoing paragraphs of this message will help the UAW
15 determine the scope of any such negotiations and the UAW's
16 decisions regarding its representative capacity in them about 17 which your firm has inquired." So we very much have a 18 factual case as well as a legal case regarding the 19 implications of the proposal, and I did want to make that 20 clear for the record, the point being that what is in this e-
21 mail represents some fairly fundamental questions about the 22 ground rules upon which discussions or negotiations with the 23 city regarding its proposal can proceed.

24 I should note that -- and we'll have testimony to 25 this effect -- that no answer was forthcoming from the city

1 and, as far as I know, has not been forthcoming regarding the 2 questions posed other than obviously when we got into
3 bankruptcy, your Honor solved the problem of the data room.

4 Time frame. Putting aside the lawsuits and all of 5 the activity surrounding all of that, it does appear that the 6 city set out a timeline for itself that only had about a 30-
7 day period for this launch notwithstanding everything that's 8 in that proposal and everything that was expected apparently 9 to be accomplished by it. I think I heard Mr. Bennett refer 10 to something like evaluation week, which was supposed to 11 occur on or which probably did occur -- I gather it did occur
12 on July 15th. That's really a month later. So one -- now,
13 Mr. Bennett's timeline, of course, goes way back -- I think 14 it was to 2011 and the various initiatives to deal with 15 Detroit's problems, and we are certainly not denying any of 16 those or -- and I'm sure everyone is fully cognizant of -- 17 particularly those who live here are fully cognizant of all 18 of those efforts, but we think, as a legal matter, that those 19 efforts really don't legally count. They obviously count to 20 the citizens of Detroit, but for purposes of eligibility, the 21 relevant time frame, from our perspective, is the proposal is 22 launched on June 14th and then apparently evaluated -- the 23 response or reaction apparently evaluated merely -- a mere 24 four weeks later.

25 So during this time, again, the evidence, we

1 believe, will show that during the same sort of compressed
2 time period, we know that the governor and the emergency
3 manager are meeting on a fairly regular basis. We know that
4 the governor had seen the June 14th proposal. He had a draft
5 of it before it was launched. He knew about the pension
6 proposal. He knew that there was an issue -- a legal issue
7 with respect to Article IX, Section 24, of the Michigan
8 Constitution and the effect, if any, of the Bankruptcy Code
9 and federal law on the continued enforcement of that section.
10 He knew it was a serious issue.

11 We know, again, since we've discussed it most 12 recently last week at the argument that we then march through 13 the timeline to get to Mr. Orr's July 16th request and the 14 governor's July 18th response. We know that the governor
15 obviously from the dates signed it only two days later
16 apparently with a review of all of the material that was 17 contained in Mr. Orr's letter, I think could probably best be 18 characterized as limited. It does not appear that there was 19 an independent evaluation that the governor conducted
20 regarding many of the sort of predicate items that Mr. Orr
21 laid out in his letter. The governor was also aware, as we 22 know from the slides that Ms. Green showed, that the pension
23 numbers were very much still up in the air and in question.
24 Nevertheless, both the July 16th and the July 8th -- the July
25 16th letter from Mr. Orr and the July 18th approval letter

1 from the governor lay out the -- what I will characterize as 2 the shift in spending priorities. This is the part of the 3 proposal that relates to revitalization, and we know that the 4 governor in his letter approves of the manner in which 5 Mr. Orr has proposed to proceed in that regard, and so he 6 signs the letter, and, of course, the bankruptcy petition is 7 filed on the 18th.

8 So what all of this adds up to we think at the end
9 of the day in terms of the legal cases -- in terms of our
10 legal objections is a fairly deliberate plan to use Chapter
11 9. We think that really knitting -- connecting all of the 12 dots here, that the plan was to use Chapter 9. We've saved
13 for another day all of the legal issues associated with that,
14 the state's authorization. There's really -- well, we won't 15 get into those because we'll have closing, and we've had -- 16 and we'll have other briefs on all of that, but the sort of 17 deliberate plan, which starts whenever you'd like to start it
18 on the timeline but certainly from the governor's appointment
19 of Mr. Orr leaving his -- leaving the Jones Day firm, the 20 Jones Day retention by the city, this really several month
21 timeline leading from the end of March to the middle of July,
22 we believe the evidence establishes this as a deliberate plan
23 to use Chapter 9 to, in effect, find a way to undermine the 24 Michigan state Constitution through the use of bankruptcy.
25 We believe that that is evidence of a lack of bad faith under

1 921(c), a lack of bad faith in connection with --

2 THE COURT: You mean a lack of good faith?

3 MS. CECCOTTI: I'm sorry. A lack of -- yes.

4 Apologies, your Honor. Not enough sleep, once again, I'm 5 afraid.

6 THE COURT: Okay.

7 MS. CECCOTTI: Now I'm afraid to open my mouth. No
8 good faith --

9 THE COURT: I'll help you.

10 MS. CECCOTTI: Yes. All right.

11 THE COURT: I'll help you.

12 MS. CECCOTTI: No good faith, a lack of good faith
13 negotiations under 109(c)(5), and not a valid plan of 14 adjustment for Chapter 9 purposes. Thank you.

15 OPENING STATEMENT

16 MS. PATEK: Good afternoon, your Honor. Barbara
17 Patek again on behalf of the Detroit Fire Fighters
18 Association, the Detroit Police Officers Association, the 19 Detroit Police Lieutenants & Sergeants Association, and the 20 Detroit Police Command Officers Association, who have been
21 collectively referred to in these proceedings as the Detroit
22 Public Safety Unions or the Public Safety Unions.

23 As the evidence in this case will show, the public
24 safety unions are the recognized collective bargaining
25 representatives of the nearly 3,200 men and women employed by

1 the Detroit Fire Department and the Detroit Police
2 Department. I'm sure we'll hear from Chief Craig either
3 today, tomorrow, or sometime this week about the very 4 daunting and difficult conditions in which they work to 5 provide -- excuse me -- police and fire services to -- that
6 are so essential to the survival and the revival of the City
7 of Detroit.

8 The public safety unions piece of this in terms of 9 the evidence is a small but important part of the timeline
10 that was gone over this morning by Ms. Green and also by 11 Mr. Bennett. First, I think I want to say at the outset that 12 the public safety unions have never in these proceedings
13 disputed that the city was in severe financial distress
14 beginning in the time period where I believe both Mr. Bennett
15 and Ms. Green's timelines began. The public safety unions do 16 not, however, believe that the city can meet its burden of 17 showing that it is eligible for these Chapter 9 proceedings
18 because of the issue of the good faith negotiations, what we 19 believe was a -- as Ms. Ceccotti referred to, a deliberate
20 effort to sort of create a record of impracticality where 21 they set themselves up for failure, and we also believe that 22 the evidence will show, based upon the same set of facts,
23 that the petition was not filed in good faith as required by 24 Section 921(c).

25 While we acknowledge the legal nature of the

1 constitutional questions that this Court must wrestle with,
2 we also believe that the evidence that this Court will hear
3 in this eligibility trial may help inform those decisions by 4 providing the Court with a practical and very real platform
5 in which those questions can be applied.

6 Because the public safety unions will rely on and 7 adopt certain proofs submitted by the other objectors, I'm 8 going to try to avoid repeating what was said this morning,
9 but I do want to briefly address where our proofs will fit in 10 the chronology the Retirement Systems put up this morning.
11 And for ease of the Court's reference -- and I apologize in 12 advance. This will also have to be marked, and we'll get a 13 paper copy, and I believe --

14 THE COURT: Okay.

15 MS. PATEK: -- it'll be Exhibit 720. Our facts --

16 THE COURT: And I'll have to ask you to understand
17 that I'm going to be looking at what's there on this little 18 screen here just because it's easier for me. It's not that 19 I'm not paying attention to you. I'm looking at it here.

20 MS. PATEK: That's okay. That's okay. The public
21 safety unions' piece of it are in red, and the portions in 22 black are portions from Ms. Green's timeline, and we did that 23 so the Court could see where they fit in. And we start in 24 December of 2011 and January of 2012, but before we start
25 talking about that time period, I do want to take a moment

1 because I think it's important to this negotiations issue,
2 and I think it's also important to some of the state labor
3 law issues that inform how we ended up in Chapter 9 to take
4 the Court back about 44 years ago. In the fall of 1969,
5 again, not long after the city had been through some very,
6 very trying times, then Governor Milliken, a Republican
7 governor, signed into law an act found beginning at MCL
8 423.231 that has become -- come to be known as Act 312. Act
9 312 is, as the Court may be aware, the platform on which 10 public safety unions negotiate their labor agreements under 11 the auspices of the Michigan Employment Relations Commission.
12 Before the emergency manager, terms and conditions of 13 employment were negotiated pursuant to this process. That 14 process, which will be described by one of our witnesses, the 15 Detroit Police Command Officers' labor attorney, Mary Ellen 16 Gurewitz, is designed to provide for a period of mediation
17 followed by, if the mediation fails, compulsory arbitration,
18 including the opportunity to send the parties back to 19 mediation, and it's designed to be expeditious and to keep 20 labor peace and, if might say, might be a tool that if it
21 could be applied to everybody in this proceedings, some of 22 the mediators working so hard to try to resolve our 23 differences might find useful. Ms. Gurewitz will explain
24 much better than I can the mechanics of the Act 312 process
25 and also her experience in negotiating with the city and the

1 DPCOA in the relevant time period.

2 We start with 2011 and two thousand -- December 2011
3 and January of 2012, and I believe that was also on 4 Mr. Bennett's initial timeline. Interestingly, at that time,
5 there were negotiations between the city, recognizing the 6 financial difficulties that were present, and each of the 7 Detroit public safety unions of concessionary agreements or 8 tentative agreements. These agreements were never adopted,
9 but our purpose in offering them is to show that where 10 there's a will, it could be done. Our intention is not to 11 suggest in this setting that such negotiations would be easy,
12 and that's precisely taking up on Ms. Ceccotti's point why 13 that 30-day period that the city gave itself was doomed to 14 fail.

15 During the same time period as the various acts were 16 being repealed and reenacted and shortly after the governor
17 signed PA 436 into effect, Mark Diaz, the president of the 18 Detroit Police Officers Association, will tell the Court that 19 pursuant to Act 312 proceeding, there was an award that 20 became the contract for the Police Officers Association
21 through June of 2014. This is important because, as I'm 22 going to talk about continuing along this timeline to the 23 period after the appointment of the emergency manager, which 24 takes us to our second slide, there were acts that the city
25 took to specifically remove this tool from the tool kit of

1 the city and its labor unions, and I'm not suggesting that
2 that removal was not perhaps authorized, although the unions
3 dispute that as a matter of labor law under Public Act 436,
4 but I think that it's important to suggest that in light of 5 the concept that there was a plan and design going back a
6 long way, it was no accident that, you know, the city filed
7 an emergency motion on April 18th of 2013, and on June 14th,
8 2013, the very same day it rolled out its proposal, it
9 obtained an opinion from MERC blocking the Police Lieutenants
10 & Sergeants Association, the Police Command Officers
11 Association, and the fire fighters from resorting to Act 312
12 arbitration finding that Public Act 436 had divested MERC of 13 jurisdiction to address those disputes. And that becomes 14 important because if you consider that there's a plan on June 15 30th, 2013, the collective bargaining agreements between the 16 city, the DFFA, and the DPLSA all expired just two and a half
17 weeks before the Chapter 9 petition was filed.

18 The president of the Fire Fighters Association, Dan
19 McNamara, the president of the Lieutenants & Sergeants, Mark
20 Young, and the president of the DPOA, Mr. Diaz, as previously
21 referred to, will each tell the Court that very quickly after 22 the emergency manager's appointment on March 28th, they were 23 each informed by the city that it was exercising its right
24 under Public Act 436 not to bargain. I know we've heard
25 through some of the testimony that that was done to somehow

1 not waive their rights not to bargain, but the Court will
2 have to consider whether it accepts that as a credible
3 explanation for what happened next.

4 Following the June 14th presentation, again, as 5 Ms. Ceccotti referred to, things moved very quickly. There
6 was a presentation by the city the week of July 10th, and on 7 July 12th -- and it was up on the screen earlier today in Ms.
8 Green's presentation, and I believe it is in the record as 9 Exhibit -- give you the right number here -- I'm not seeing 10 it, but it's a letter from each of the presidents of each of 11 the Detroit public safety unions addressed to Jones Day
12 indicating in response that they were, in fact, interested in 13 making a counter-proposal. They were seeking more
14 information and a concrete proposal from the city in that 15 regard. Four days later, on June -- or July 16th, the 16 governor -- or I'm sorry -- Mr. Orr sent his letter to the 17 governor seeking authorization. The following day Jones Day
18 sent correspondence back to the four public safety unions
19 thanking them on behalf of the emergency manager for their 20 strong cooperation in the City of Detroit's pension
21 restructuring efforts. The next day the petition was filed.

22 Your Honor, we believe that when the Court has heard
23 all the evidence, that it will be difficult for the Court not 24 to conclude that in this case that there was, in fact, a
25 calculated effort by the city going back over an extended

1 period of time to use Chapter 9 to both, in Mr. Orr's words,
2 trump that constitutional provision but also, as suggested in 3 some of the arguments last week, to obtain the political 4 cover that would be provided by this Court to do so. That's 5 all I have to say.

6 THE COURT: Thank you.

7 MS. PATEK: Thank you very much.

8 OPENING STATEMENT

9 MR. MORRIS: Good afternoon, your Honor. Thomas
10 Morris of Silverman & Morris on behalf of the Retiree
11 Association parties. Your Honor, the Court heard a
12 comprehensive opening statement from the Retirement Systems
13 and opening statements from other opponents of the city's 14 eligibility. Those statements chronicle the voluminous
15 evidence weighing against eligibility. In our pretrial
16 brief, we focused on the evidence which we will offer through 17 Shirley Lightsey, president of the DRCEA -- that's the 18 Detroit Retired City Employees Association -- and Donald
19 Taylor, the president of the RDPFFA. That's the Retired
20 Detroit Police & Fire Fighters Association. My opening
21 statement will, likewise, address that evidence.

22 Mr. Taylor and Ms. Lightsey will testify that their 23 associations have a long and active history. They're not 24 organizations which came into being just to respond to the 25 present situation, but they are and were prepared to deal

1 with it. The police and fire fighters have had a retiree
2 association since 1946. The DRCEA was formed in 1960. The 3 elected leadership of these associations includes persons
4 who, had they been working for the city, would be the ones
5 responsible for helping resolve the city's problems. Members
6 and management of the associations include a past chief of 7 police, a deputy chief, city budget director, personnel
8 managers, a Retirement Systems trustee, and city financial 9 and legal staff. These are people who were leaders during 10 their active service for the city, and they continue to be 11 leaders for the retirees.

12 More than 12,000 retired nonuniform city employees
13 are members of the DRCEA, and more than 8,000 retired Detroit
14 police officers and fire fighters are members of their 15 organization. Both of these organizations serve city
16 retirees in a number of ways, but they have particular 17 expertise in the pension and benefits areas. Although the 18 associations do not have the power of a governmental body to 19 enter into agreements that bind their members, the elected
20 leadership is responsible to the membership and responsive to 21 the membership. They communicate with the retirees. The 22 associations go beyond service to their members. Together
23 they represent the class of retired Detroit employees, all 24 Detroit retirees, not just the members who send in their 25 dues. The associations have appeared before City Council.

1 They have lobbied the state legislature. They have been
2 party to the lawsuits involving pension and benefit issues.
3 The evidence will show that the associations are the natural
4 representatives of the retirees capable of negotiating on 5 their behalf.

6 Upon the emergency manager's appointment, each of 7 the associations contacted the emergency manager in writing,
8 sent him a letter. Mr. Orr did not respond to the letters,
9 but he did invite the association -- associations to 10 informational sessions which they conducted, the city
11 conducted, in April, June, and July. Both Ms. Lightsey and 12 Mr. Taylor attended those meetings.

13 The evidence will show that the city in its meetings
14 never got beyond the first step of presenting information.
15 The city never offered to meet with the retirees to discuss
16 the city's proposal or to negotiate. The retiree
17 representatives were relegated to being members of the large 18 audience. The associations had their attorney contact the 19 city's attorneys, Jones Day, to request the opportunity to 20 specifically address retiree issues, but nothing came of 21 that. Instead, on July 18, in a tactical rush, the city
22 filed its petition.

23 The evidence will show that negotiations with the 24 retirees was possible. The membership of the associations is 25 more than a majority of the retirees. Overall it's

1 considerably more than two-thirds. By working with the 2 membership, the city had the opportunity to make an agreement
3 with a majority of the retirees and thereby satisfy Section
4 109(c) (5) (A) either by not impairing the class or by reaching 5 an agreement.

6 The evidence will show that negotiation was not 7 impracticable, certainly not with the retirees who, prior to 8 the appointment of the emergency manager, had already elected
9 their leaders. The retirees had built and maintained through 10 the work of generations of dedicated volunteers organizations
11 which were prepared to work on behalf of the retirees for the 12 best outcome of Detroit -- for Detroit. The evidence will 13 show that the emergency manager and his advisors rejected the 14 opportunity to attempt to resolve matters as to the retirees.
15 The city, therefore, does not satisfy the eligibility
16 requirements of Section 109(c) (5). Thank you.

17 THE COURT: Thank you.

18 OPENING STATEMENT

19 MS. LEVINE: Good afternoon, your Honor. Sharon
20 Levine, Lowenstein Sandler, for AFSCME. Very briefly and not 21 to be repetitive, with regard to solvency, the city addressed
22 AFSCME's brief with regard to our request that there should 23 actually be expert testimony in order to meet the burden of 24 proof with regard to this issue, and the city's response is 25 basically what we've seen in some smaller debtor cases, which

1 is the debtor can testify to its own numbers. And we're not
2 necessarily disputing that line of cases. What we're saying
3 here, Judge, is that this is not the debtor that's testifying
4 to its own numbers. We don't have anybody from the budget
5 department. We don't have any of the elected officials.
6 What we have are hired experts who are being offered as fact
7 witnesses, so we're bringing in experts like Ernst & Young,
8 Conway MacKenzie, Miller Buckfire, being paid millions of 9 dollars, who routinely appear as expert witnesses and, for 10 reasons that we submit are not appropriate here, are just 11 simply being offered without having to give their expert
12 testimony with regard to solvency.

13 With regard to impracticality and the issue of good
14 faith, we would respectfully submit that the argument that 15 there are simply too many classes of bondholders doesn't make 16 a lot of sense. The June 14 date that the proposal was 17 presented and the filing date of July 18th was only one month
18 and three days. Even if we went by the city's own originally 19 projected timeline, the filing date was projected to be July
20 19th. That's only one month and four days. It takes more
21 months than that to negotiate out-of-court workouts in simple
22 small single level of debt Chapter 11 cases. We respectfully
23 submit that the timeline that the city set for itself was a
24 timeline that was designed not to allow an out-of-court
25 negotiation to fully take place.

1 The city also looks to the fact that there are too
2 many bondholders and, therefore, it was impractical to
3 negotiate with bondholders, and they cited to a New York
4 case. The only New York case we were able to find that 5 addressed the issue was the Off-Track Betting case, which 6 dealt with a six-month period before that case, which wasn't
7 even an entire city, said that there wasn't enough -- there
8 wasn't an ability to get it done out of court, and they had 9 run out of time.

10 The other issue there is too many bondholders means
11 that you've met the impracticality standard means that what 12 you're doing is you're writing the need to respond to labor
13 out of the Code. If you have too many bondholders, it's 14 impractical, and, therefore, you don't even have to go
15 further. We would respectfully submit that that would be a 16 sad day for Detroit if we're actually writing the need to 17 negotiate with labor out of the Code.

18 The June 14 meeting is the meeting where the 19 proposal was presented. We've heard the city say that at 20 that meeting, they invited questions. Okay. So we have a
21 meeting that lasts a couple of hours. We have a proposal
22 that's in excess of 110 pages. The amount of time it takes 23 to even read the slides takes up the lion's share of that 24 meeting, and in addition to that, the questions which were 25 permitted were in a very controlled environment and under the

1 guise that the city was, quote, unquote, begging for
2 feedback. All right. The city announced at that meeting
3 that these are not negotiations. Now, whether that 4 announcement was made to preserve a technical reservation of 5 rights under PA 436, they invited a room full of labor
6 negotiators, and they held a meeting that was basically a
7 classroom type instruction meeting, and then they announced
8 after a brief Q&A period these are not negotiations. And 9 somehow or other this room full of labor negotiators was 10 supposed to understand that, well, while they're not 11 technically legally negotiations per PA 436, we really are 12 asking for negotiations to meet the good faith requirement
13 under the Bankruptcy Code. That's not a -- that's not a 14 realistic or fair interpretation of the facts here coupled 15 with the fact that we have sophisticated bankruptcy counsel
16 and all of these sophisticated outside consultants who 17 apparently, when receiving a letter from these same labor
18 negotiators that assert in response to the June 14 proposal,
19 well, we have factual and legal reasons why we think we can't 20 negotiate with you, that causes them to immediately think
21 negotiations are impossible. That's not an -- that's not a
22 fair reaction either. I've never walked into a labor
23 negotiation where the company said to the union, "Here's your 24 1113 proposal. What do you think?" and the union has said, 25 "Oh, good idea." It takes a little bit more than that, your

1 Honor. In addition to that --

2 THE COURT: Well, you raise an interesting point
3 here that has been on my mind, and that is the extent to 4 which the standard of good faith negotiation in 1113 is 5 related to or overlaps with the standard of good faith
6 negotiation in Section 109 or even, for that matter, the 7 extent to which it overlaps with whatever the law of good
8 faith negotiation is in labor law outside of bankruptcy. I
9 think it would help me if anyone would be interested in 10 briefing that subject. I'm not surprised. And there are 11 really two distinct questions there. The one is is there
12 this overlap, should there be this overlap, and, second, how 13 might the law in those other circumstances, 1113 and labor
14 law more generally, help to resolve the issue here of whether 15 there was good faith negotiation.

16 MS. CECCOTTI: Your Honor, may we join with that 17 effort as well?

18 THE COURT: Yes. The invitation is an open
19 invitation.

20 MS. LEVINE: Thank you, your Honor. We accept the 21 invitation, and if your Honor sets a deadline by which you'd 22 like that brief, we will --

23 THE COURT: Oh, a deadline. I don't know. What's 24 convenient for you all?

25 MS. CECCOTTI: After the 30th.

1 MS. LEVINE: Busy this week.

2 THE COURT: Got that.

3 MS. LEVINE: Two weeks? Is that sufficient, or is 4 that too long?

5 THE COURT: Two weeks is fine with me.

6 MS. LEVINE: Thank you, your Honor.

7 THE COURT: All right. Two weeks from today then.
8 I'll enter an order just so the record has it there.

9 MS. LEVINE: Your Honor, but moving past that, okay,
10 so we have the -- we have the city saying that these are not 11 negotiations and labor negotiators are supposed to glean that 12 they are negotiations, and then we have labor negotiators
13 taking a hard line at the initial proposal and the city
14 accepting that then there can't be any negotiation and 15 somehow or other this proves that the city acted in good
16 faith or that the negotiations were impractical. We 17 respectfully submit that's false. And not only is it false,
18 but for the reasons that you've heard from some of the other 19 folks already, we, too, sent requests to the city for 20 additional information to understand what the ask was, what 21 the savings -- what the proposed savings were, and for better
22 information to understand, while it was a long slideshow, a 23 little bit more about what the assumptions behind the 24 proposal or the alleged proposal were so that we could, in 25 fact, like in an 1113 context, truly engage in a meaningful

1 negotiation. And AFSCME itself, your Honor, just a mere 18
2 months prior to the bankruptcy filing, on behalf of itself
3 and with a coalition of 30 unions, did agree to a tentative
4 agreement which resulted in substantial savings for active
5 and retirees' benefits, and those were ratified by all of 6 those respective unions but not implemented by the city. So
7 I'd respectfully submit that not only was there an ability to 8 negotiate in good faith over a period of just a couple of 9 months, but there's a proven track record that on this side 10 of the table, we have been able to actually do those 11 negotiations and accomplish results, so if --

12 THE COURT: Why not implemented?

13 MS. LEVINE: You'd have to ask the city and the 14 state, your Honor.

15 THE COURT: Okay.

16 MS. LEVINE: It does remain a mystery to us because 17 it also included, for example, changes to the pension
18 benefits on a go-forward basis, and to the extent that there
19 are other or different issues that they needed to address
20 now, those, too, should have been addressed through 21 negotiations. What we seem to be hearing and what is also a
22 very important point for the City of Detroit and for Chapter
23 9 on a go-forward basis is that if you have legacy
24 liabilities and you have to deal with retiree benefits, then 25 you automatically get to say it's impractical, and I don't

1 have to show good faith at all. And we would respectfully
2 submit that that would be a very sad place for the City of 3 Detroit to take Chapter 9 and all cases on a go-forward
4 basis.

5 We respectfully submit, your Honor, that the city
6 can't meet its burden of proof and that it's not eligible in 7 this case at this time to be a Chapter 9 debtor. Thank you.

8 THE COURT: Thank you.

9 OPENING STATEMENT

10 MR. ULLMAN: Good afternoon, your Honor. Anthony
11 Ullman from Dentons. I'll be speaking for the Retiree
12 Committee. But first Ms. Patek asked me to tell you that 13 Exhibit 704 was the number of the joint public union --
14 safety union's letter that she couldn't find previously --

15 THE COURT: Okay.

16 MR. ULLMAN: -- so I've done that. Your Honor, of 17 course, we're here today on what the Court has identified as 18 factual issues which arise in the context of eligibility,
19 which the city has the burden of proof on. And you've heard
20 an overview of a lot of the evidence that the objectors
21 expect to bring to the hearing, much of it in chronological
22 order. And what I'm going to try to do is put that in the 23 framework of the legal issues that relate to eligibility and 24 try to explain how the evidence that we expect to come out at 25 the hearing fits in with those legal issues. I'm going to be

1 focusing, of course, on the issues that the Retiree Committee
2 is advancing, which I think are common to most, if not all,
3 of the objectors.

4 Now, it's the committee -- it's the committee's
5 contention and the contention of the objectors in general
6 that the city has failed to meet its burden of proof on a 7 number of specific elements that it has to meet to be
8 eligible for Chapter 9 and that it also has failed to meet
9 its burden of showing that its filing has been made in good
10 faith, and so what I'd like to do is kind of go through those 11 elements serially and put into context our view of how the 12 evidence falls into that and how the evidence should shape
13 your view of the law and application of the law, and 14 basically our points are as follows.

15 The committee itself, of course, doesn't contest
16 that Detroit is a municipality, and the committee is not 17 contesting insolvency, although AFSCME, of course, is, but we 18 do contest that other necessary elements have been met. I
19 mean specifically it's our contention that the city can't 20 show that the emergency manager, first of all, was 21 specifically authorized to make this Chapter 9 filing. We 22 also contend that the city has failed to meet the eligibility
23 criteria that are set out in 109(c)(5), and there are, of 24 course, two prongs of that. We say the city has not shown
25 that it negotiated in good faith, which was required under

1 Subprong (c) (5) (B). And we say the city can't show that the 2 good faith negotiations were impracticable, which is a prong
3 under Sub (c) (5) (C), and, finally, the committee says that
4 the city cannot show that it filed its petition in good
5 faith, which is required under 921(c).

6 So taking that from the top, this is, first of all,
7 what Section 109(c) (2) requires, and it requires specifically
8 that the city be specifically authorized or the person acting 9 for the city be specifically authorized to be a debtor under 10 state law, and we don't think the city can show this as a 11 factual matter because in filing the Chapter 9 petition, the 12 emergency manager did so with the specific intent of taking 13 actions and achieving results that are prohibited by the 14 Michigan state Constitution, namely the pension clause,
15 Article IX, Section 24. And we believe that that renders the 16 filing ultra vires, ineffective, and void, and this point
17 also obviously ties in with the view that in filing the 18 Chapter 9 petition, the emergency manager didn't act in good
19 faith under Section 921(c), so what I'm going to do is review
20 the evidence on the intent in filing, particularly relative
21 to the pension clause, for both purposes of the specific 22 authorization and good faith under 921(c) together.

23 Now, as the Court may recall, there's also another
24 aspect that we've raised with respect to Section 921(c) and 25 good faith, and that is what we contend are the misleading

1 statements and omissions that were made in connection with
2 the Chapter 9 filing, and I'll deal with those later in the 3 presentation.

4 So turning now to the emergency manager's intentions
5 as regards the pension clause, we think that the evidence is 6 very clear, and I'll summarize some of the key points. First
7 of all, we know that Mr. Orr was made the emergency manager
8 under PA 436, and that, of course, as you've heard, was the 9 replacement law for PA 4, the prior emergency manager law
10 which had given the emergency manager very broad powers and 11 then was repealed by voter referendum, and PA 436 was passed
12 in its place. And as we know, it was passed with a minor
13 appropriation provision, and we believe that the evidence 14 will show that that was intended to immunize the law from 15 Michigan voter review and, in fact, was a strategy that had 16 been devised and suggested by the Jones Day law firm itself.

17 Now, PA 436 was enacted in November 2002 with an 18 effective date of March 2013, and it was against this
19 background that the emergency manager, Mr. Orr, was selected
20 for his post. Now, Kevyn Orr we know is a bankruptcy lawyer
21 by trade. That, of course, in and of itself, doesn't prove 22 anything, but the evidence will show that before becoming the 23 emergency manager, he was a bankruptcy lawyer at Jones Day,
24 and, as I believe the Court has heard, he participated in the 25 pitch that Jones Day made to the city and to the state to get

1 its current assignment as restructuring counsel.

2 Now, we've already seen from Ms. Green's
3 presentation that prior to the pitch that Jones Day made,
4 which was in late January 2013, Mr. Orr was specifically
5 asked about the availability and use of Chapter 9
6 specifically relative to the City of Detroit, and the 7 evidence will show that in connection with that pitch, the 8 Jones Day team was not only focused on Chapter 9 but was also 9 specifically aware of the Michigan state pension clause and 10 had already thought of using Chapter 9 as a means to try to 11 get around it.

12 Now, this is the cover of the Jones Day pitch book, 13 and here's a slide from it which we're blowing up, and what 14 it says specifically is that if needed, Chapter 9 could be 15 used as a means to further cut back or compromise, quote,
16 "accrued financial benefits," close quote, otherwise
17 protected under the Michigan Constitution. And that 18 quotation, "accrued financial benefits," I believe, are words
19 that are lifted right out of the pension clause itself. So
20 this is from the pitch book that Jones Day prepared, and, as 21 we've said, Mr. Orr himself was a major player and part of 22 the pitch book -- the Jones Day pitch team.

23 And the evidence further is that from his own review
24 of the circumstances of PA 436 and PA 4, Mr. Orr concluded
25 that the new law, PA 436, in reality, was nothing more than a

1 thin veneer -- those are Mr. Orr's words -- a thin veneer of 2 a revision that's essentially a redo of the prior PA 4 that
3 the voters had rejected and an end-run around the voter
4 rejection. This is from an e-mail that Mr. Orr wrote, and I
5 believe -- it's a little hard to read because we didn't blow
6 that top part up, but I believe it's January 31 of 2013. And 7 this is from one of the exhibits that was gone over with 8 Mr. Orr in his deposition.

9 Now, central to the issue of bad faith and
10 authorization is the Michigan Constitution's pension clause.
11 I'll just put a copy of that up on the screen. And as we 12 see, the same word, the financial -- accrued financial 13 benefits, the same words that appeared in the Jones Day pitch
14 book, are right there in the Constitution.

15 Now, the evidence will show that Mr. Orr was 16 personally aware of the pension clause, and the evidence will 17 also show that when he became the emergency manager, Mr. Orr
18 took an oath requiring him to uphold the pension clause --
19 the state Constitution, of which the pension clause is part.
20 And this is from Mr. Orr's testimony where he acknowledged
21 that, yes, he took the oath of office, and he solemnly swore 22 to support the Constitution of the United States and the 23 Constitution of this state; that is, of the State of 24 Michigan. But the evidence will show that instead of 25 adhering to the strictures of the pension clause, Mr. Orr

1 decided, contrary to his sworn oath, to engage in a course of 2 action that was deliberately designed to thwart it through
3 the vehicle of a Chapter 9 filing, and what I'm going to go
4 through now are some highlights of what I think the evidence
5 will show, some of which you've seen before, some of which 6 you may not have.

7 Now, the evidence will show that as early as May 8 2013, which was less than two months after he became the 9 emergency manager, Mr. Orr made the decision to cut pension
10 benefits that were owed to -- excuse me -- to retirees, and 11 it will show that he understood that he was unable to 12 identify any viable way to achieve that end just under state
13 law. And the evidence will show that the emergency manager, 14 therefore, decided to try to accomplish that end through the 15 means of a Chapter 9 filing. And even more specifically, the 16 evidence will show that the emergency manager decided to try
17 to use Chapter 9, the Chapter 9 filing, as a vehicle
18 specifically to, quote, "trump" the pension clause of the 19 Michigan Constitution.

20 Now, this all came together in the proposal to 21 creditors that the emergency manager made on June 14th of 22 2013, and in his proposal the emergency manager made no
23 pretense that he was intending to protect accrued financial 24 benefits as is required and provided for in the Michigan
25 Constitution. For example, here's an excerpt from page 109

1 where he specifically says that under this proposal, there
2 must be significant cuts in accrued vested pension amounts
3 for both active and currently retired persons.

4 And under this June 14th proposal, the emergency
5 manager, in fact, said that the city would not make any 6 further pension contributions on account of retirees. For 7 retirees the defined pension benefits were to be cut entirely
8 from the forecast of the city's expenses going forward as 9 were the retiree healthcare benefits. And for active
10 employees, they were being shown as switched from a defined 11 benefit plan to a defined contribution plan with the level of 12 the city's funding of the contributions slashed dramatically
13 from the present levels. Now, for the actives, this is a new 14 plan, and the contributions are being made only on a going-
15 forward basis, so for the active employees' vested pensions
16 under this proposal, no further contributions would be made
17 for those either.

18 Now, the June 14 proposal, although it was very 19 lengthy, well over a hundred pages, didn't mention anywhere
20 in it the prospect or even the potentiality of a Chapter 9
21 filing, but the evidence will show very clearly that the 22 emergency manager understood that his proposal could not be
23 implemented outside of the context of Chapter 9 specifically
24 because of the pension clause and that he, therefore,
25 intended to use Chapter 9 as a vehicle to, again, in his

1 words, trump that very clause, the Constitution's pension
2 clause. And he's freely admitted that it's the state
3 Constitution -- the pension clause and no other provision of 4 the Michigan Constitution that the emergency manager was
5 trying to trump. This is an excerpt from his deposition. I
6 think you may have seen parts of this before, but he says --
7 he goes on to say that -- he answers, "We don't believe
8 there's an obligation under the state Constitution to pay
9 pensions." He says, "Yes, that's right." He says, "No.
10 I've made that statement many times." And then we go on to 11 ask him, "And the state law that you were referring to as 12 being trumped was Article IX, Section 24; isn't that right?"
13 He says, "Yes. That's right." We asked, "Is there any other 14 state law that you viewed as relevant to the pension -- to 15 the pension issue that you were trying to trump?" He says,
16 "No," there's no other state law that he's trying to trump.
17 It's specific, the pension clause. This Chapter 9 filing was 18 done specifically to try to get around the pension clause of 19 the Constitution, and there's no other way to read the 20 evidence on that. And these admissions also confirm the 21 city's recognition that the pension clause, in fact, applies
22 directly to what the city is trying to do through this 23 Chapter 9 proceeding and that the pension clause is in direct
24 conflict with what the emergency manager is trying to do here
25 as regards pensions. There's no question about it. They are

1 trying to do something that they acknowledge is in conflict
2 with the pension clause. If that weren't the case, there'd
3 be no context in which the federal law could trump anything.
4 There would be nothing to trump. There's a direct --

5 THE COURT: I don't mean to cut you off, but haven't 6 we been through this?

7 MR. ULLMAN: To some extent, your Honor, and I'm 8 trying not to repeat exactly --

9 THE COURT: Any extent to which we haven't?

10 MR. ULLMAN: Yes, I believe there is, your Honor.
11 I'm trying to -- I'm trying to bring additional evidence to 12 make the -- largely the same points but in a more summary
13 fashion and then move on to the eligibility issues.

14 Now, the emergency manager did all this in 15 circumstances where he himself has admitted that he was not 16 aware of any court decision that allowed the use of a federal 17 bankruptcy proceeding to trump a provision of the state law
18 Constitution. And the emergency manager did this in 19 circumstances where the Jones Day law firm itself had 20 previously advised that the emergency manager's ability to 21 cut pensions through Chapter 9 was, at best, uncertain. That 22 comes from the Jones Day pitch book itself. They said it was 23 uncertain. And he did this in circumstances where the 24 emergency manager had been advised by the state attorney
25 general that the pensions were protected under Michigan state

1 law and that what the emergency manager was doing in terms of 2 trying to cut them was contrary to the Michigan Constitution.

3 And, finally, on this point, we think that the 4 timing of the filing itself is very significant. You've seen
5 already that there were -- there was state court litigation
6 that was pending, and you've heard that there was a TRO
7 hearing that was scheduled and that the hearing on the TRO
8 was scheduled to take place on the 18th. And what the 9 evidence shows -- I'm sorry. Yeah. It was on the 18th, and 10 the evidence shows, as you've seen already, that the 11 bankruptcy filing had been originally scheduled for the 19th
12 and then had been moved up to go -- to coincide on the 18th
13 immediately prior to when the TRO hearing was supposed to 14 take place, and the evidence on that is as follows, and I'll 15 just skip to this particular slide.

16 Mr. Orr was asked specifically about the timing of 17 the filing of the bankruptcy petition and, in particular,
18 about the timing relative to the TRO proceeding, he was 19 asked, "Is there a particular reason why the filing was made
20 when it was, at the time it was, other than to try to get a
21 jump on the state court decision?" And the emergency manager
22 answered that, to the best of his knowledge, there was no
23 such reason.

24 So to sum up on all this, we think that it boils
25 down to the simple proposition that a state actor who takes

1 actions that are intentionally designed to achieve results
2 that are in plain violation and in direct odds with the state
3 Constitution is not acting within the scope of his authority
4 and is not acting in good faith, and we believe the evidence
5 will show that that's the situation here.

6 I'm going to turn now to the issues of eligibility,
7 and there are -- as we've said, there are two prongs here.
8 The city can prove by -- the good faith negotiation or the 9 impracticability issue either by showing that it engaged in 10 good faith negotiations or by showing that those were 11 impracticable.

12 Now, on the good faith negotiation prong, we believe 13 the evidence is going to show two things. First of all, the 14 emergency manager has argued that the presentations and 15 discussions that followed his June 14th proposal to creditors
16 constituted attempts at good faith negotiations. However,
17 the evidence will show that at the time of the presentations
18 and meetings, the emergency manager did not have what he 19 believed was a plan of adjustment and specifically that the 20 emergency manager himself viewed the June 14th proposal only 21 as a proposal and not as a plan of adjustment. Now, we've 22 heard this morning from Mr. Bennett that the city is 23 apparently trying to backtrack on this now, but when Mr. Orr
24 was questioned at his deposition, he not only acknowledged
25 but was adamant that what he presented on June 14th, which

1 was the subject of the following discussions and meetings,
2 was not a plan but merely a proposal that he had put out to
3 seek the general creditor feedback. He said this very 4 specifically. "We never called this a plan. We never called 5 it a deal. We always called it a proposal." So it was never 6 considered -- whatever the city is saying now, at the time
7 that the proposal was made, which, of course, was well before
8 we filed our pretrial brief, which is at the same period when 9 Mr. Orr testified prior to the filing of our pre-trial brief,
10 Mr. Orr was quite clear that what they put on the table on 11 June 14th was not a plan of adjustment, was not intended as a
12 plan of adjustment. It was just intended as a proposal,
13 something to be discussed. And we believe this is important
14 because under the clear -- what we believe is the clear
15 weight of the law, in order for the negotiations that are 16 referred to in Subpart (c) (5) (B) --

17 THE COURT: One second. I have been asked to ask
18 you to move back from the mike just a bit.

19 MR. ULLMAN: Okay. Is that better?

20 THE COURT: Maybe a little bit more.

21 MR. ULLMAN: Little bit more?

22 THE COURT: There you go.

23 MR. ULLMAN: Okay. The reason this is important is 24 because under Subpart 109(c) (5) (B), the negotiations that are 25 referred to in that subpart have to be negotiations over what

1 is a plan of adjustment as that term is used in the 2 Bankruptcy Code. The legal analysis on that, the authorities
3 we cite are all in our brief, and I'm not going to repeat
4 that here, but the point is that for the good faith
5 negotiation prong to be met, the negotiations that have to 6 be -- at issue have to take place over a plan of adjustment,
7 and the evidence shows that per the emergency manager's own
8 testimony in this case, no plan of adjustment was ever
9 presented to the creditors, and so a fortiori the 10 negotiations required under Subprong (c) (5) (B) never took 11 place.

12 And so there's no confusion on this, I want to be 13 clear that the question of whether the city presented the 14 creditors with a plan of adjustment is a very different
15 question from whether the city intended to impair or diminish
16 protected pension payments. On the one hand, as I've gone
17 through, the evidence will show that the city never presented 18 creditors with anything that they considered a plan of 19 adjustment, and on the other hand, as I've gone through and 20 Ms. Green has summarized, the evidence will show that the 21 emergency manager did intend to impair the protected pension
22 benefits. In fact, this latter point is not even subject to 23 question. The city has actually admitted in an RFA in this 24 proceeding that's binding on it that it, in fact, intends to 25 impair the pension rights as part of this proceeding, and

1 that's from the city's answer to the RFA that was served on 2 it, Number 12, where they admit that the city intends to seek
3 to diminish or impair accrued financial benefits. That,
4 again, is the term that's used in the pension clause of the 5 Constitution. So that's what the evidence will show on the 6 existence of a plan of adjustment.

7 Now, we also believe and you've heard before that 8 even if there were a plan of adjustment, even if there had 9 been one presented, there were no good faith negotiations.
10 For example, there was no way to know from the evidence -- 11 or, rather, from the information that was provided at the 12 June 14 meeting how in actual monetary terms the individuals
13 that the city sought to affect under the June 14 proposal
14 would be impacted, and specifically in terms of both the 15 proposed pension cuts and the OPEB where the city was saying
16 that the retirees would instead get some share of notes,
17 there was no way for the retirees to know what the cash value
18 was of what the city was proposing. And, in fact, the 19 evidence will show that for -- at least for retirees at the 20 time of the discussions over the June 14 proposal, the time
21 those discussions were proceeding, the city itself did not
22 even know what the real size of the unfunded pension
23 liability was. In other words, there was no way to know what 24 the parties were even negotiating over. And here's some of 25 the evidence quickly on the negotiations. First of all, the

1 emergency manager has admitted -- this is a question asked as
2 regards to the June 14 meeting. We asked him, "Were there
3 negotiations there?" His answer, "No. There were not
4 negotiations. I'm going to be careful how I use the word,
5 but no. As we generally use the word, there were none."

6 There were other meetings that then took place. The 7 next meeting, as I recall, took place on June 20, and this is 8 from a letter that Jones Day wrote, and it called them
9 informational meetings and acknowledged that actives and
10 retired employees will need access to additional information
11 to analyze the proposals that are being -- that are proposed 12 in the June 14th document. And here's another letter from 13 Jones Day. This is dated, I believe, July 17th, and what it
14 says is, "We think it first makes sense to try to reach
15 common ground with the unions and associations on actuarial
16 assumptions and methods and the amount of the underfunding."
17 First we got to figure out what the amount of the 18 underfunding is and then tackle the contributions and 19 attendant benefit changes. You have to know what the size of 20 the underfunding is before discussions can even take place,
21 so, again, there wasn't even anything concrete to negotiate
22 over.

23 And, finally, on this point, we believe the evidence
24 will show the city never really intended to engage in good
25 faith negotiations. I'm going to put this document up

1 briefly. I think we've gone through this before. This is a
2 document from Bill Nowling of the emergency manager's office,
3 and what he's basically saying -- this is as of July 8th --
4 that they've already concluded what their key filing messages
5 would be. July 8th they're saying it's impracticable. This 6 is before the meetings that took -- that were scheduled for 7 July 10th and 11 even took place. So what we can see is that 8 even as the city was telling the world that it wanted to have 9 more meetings, it had already internally and secretly decided 10 that it would claim impracticability. So the meetings that 11 were followed were really nothing more than an effort to 12 create a record that would allow the city to claim good faith
13 negotiations when, in truth, there were no real negotiations
14 and the city wasn't negotiating, we believe, in good faith.

15 With respect to the impracticability prong, we 16 believe the situation is similar. At the outset, as we've 17 explained in our pretrial brief, the committee believes that 18 the requirement that there be a plan of adjustment applies
19 equally to the impracticability test, and this only makes 20 sense because without an actual plan identifying who the city
21 intends to impair and how, there's no way to assess whether 22 negotiations would be practicable. And specifically, as 23 we've said, the only document that was on the table was the 24 June 14 proposal, and that was a proposal, not a plan.

25 And further, as we've set out, we believe and the

1 law is that to show impracticability, the city has to show
2 impracticability with respect to each class of creditors. It
3 has to try to negotiate with those with whom negotiations are 4 possible, and, as you've heard, the evidence will show that 5 we believe there were certainly a number of classes of 6 creditors with whom that was possible. And as we saw from 7 the last slide, the evidence indicates that the city really 8 never intended to try to negotiate but really just tried to 9 use impracticability as a tool to get out of it. So from a 10 factual viewpoint, we believe the impracticability prong will 11 not be met either.

12 Now, finally, I want to talk briefly about Section
13 921(c), which is the good faith requirement. I've already 14 addressed one aspect of the good faith, the emergency
15 manager's pursuit of a course of action that's contrary to 16 the pension clause of the Constitution, but there's also 17 another aspect to it, and that is this, that we believe that 18 in connection with his filing of the petition, the emergency 19 manager made a number of misrepresentation -- or of 20 representations that we believe the evidence will show were 21 at minimum misleading and incomplete, and I'll give you some 22 examples.

23 First of all, in his declaration -- this is the 24 declaration that the emergency manager filed with the 25 petition -- he stated that the city has over 18 billion in

1 accrued liabilities and including specifically over 6.4
2 billion in bonds that are backed by enterprise revenues or 3 otherwise secured. Now, that, of course, sounds like a huge
4 liability for the struggling City of Detroit to bear, but the 5 evidence will show that what's not stated in this is that the 6 vast majority of these bonds that we see referred to here,
7 the 6.4 billion, are bonds that are issued by the Detroit
8 Water and Sewerage Department, which is operated as a
9 separate authority and is fully responsible for the payment
10 of those bonds. And the evidence will show that the 11 Department of Water and Sewers itself has the financial 12 wherewithal to make those payments. We put this question to 13 the emergency manager in his deposition. He said, yes, the 14 Department of Water and Sewers, it generates its own
15 revenues, and it pays its debts as they come due. So right
16 off the bat, the total liabilities that, according to the 17 emergency manager, he has to struggle to meet are effectively
18 reduced by at least a third.

19 Now, also in his declaration the emergency manager
20 stated that in terms of the unfunded pension liability, that 21 the unfunded pension liability is $3.5 billion, and this is 22 stated here as a fact, not subject to qualification, and as 23 we all know, the unfunded pension liability -- how big it is 24 and what, if anything, will be done about it, those are 25 central issues that will have to be addressed if this action

1 proceeds, but for present purposes, the evidence will show
2 that this $3.5 billion number that Mr. Orr stated in his
3 declaration is not a fact. We think the evidence will show
4 that the fact is that at the time the petition was filed, the 5 city did not know the actual size of the unfunded pension
6 liability as its analysis on that was ongoing and hadn't been 7 completed and, indeed, still hasn't been completed today.
8 And this, for example, is from the deposition testimony of 9 Charles Moore, who is the city's -- from Conway MacKenzie,
10 which is the city's operational restructuring advisor. Mr.
11 Moore also put in a declaration addressing unfunded pension
12 liabilities, and at his deposition Mr. Moore candidly
13 admitted that, in fact, the city didn't know what the actual 14 amount of the unfunded liability was and that work was going
15 on to try to make that determination. He says specifically, 16 most importantly, the city's actuary has not completed its 17 analysis on the unfunded position, and until that work is 18 done, no one really knows what the unfunded liability is.
19 And, indeed, we believe the evidence will show that the last 20 full actuarial evaluation of the unfunded liability was done
21 around June of 2011, and the unfunded amount that was shown 22 in that evaluation was about 643, 644 million. And the 23 evidence is also going to show that of that total amount, the 24 644 or so, only about 250 million is allocable to the general
25 fund, which is the fund that the city is most concerned

1 about, which it pays most of its bills. That is not a charge
2 on the general fund. The evidence will show that a very
3 large chunk of that is, in fact, allocable to other
4 departments such as the Department of Water and Sewerage,
5 which, again, is responsible for that and pays its own bills.

6 Now, during the -- Mr. Bennett's arguments, he 7 suggested that we had somehow misstated what Mr. Orr said at 8 his deposition, failed to cite all the appropriate parts.
9 That's not accurate. At his deposition Mr. Orr was put 10 through the numbers, and there was an initial error. He then 11 corrected that arithmetic error. At the end of the 12 deposition, Mr. Orr said that it appeared to his knowledge at 13 that time the portion of the unfunded pension liability that 14 was allocable to the Department of Water and Sewerage was 15 about 68 percent. Mr. Bennett is suggesting that maybe 68
16 percent isn't the right number, and the right number should 17 be 38 percent. Be that as it may, 38 percent is still in 18 this context a huge chunk of the unfunded pension liability,
19 which is something that's borne by Department of Water and 20 Sewerage and payable from those funds without any strain on 21 the general fund. And the evidence will show that the 22 emergency manager has acknowledged that even if the unfunded
23 pension liability were ultimately found to be greater than 24 the $644 million number, even if it were found to be -- 25 excuse me -- as high as the $3.5 billion number that you've

1 heard, that same principle would hold true, that there's a
2 significant portion of it that is not allocable to the 3 general fund but is borne entirely and payable by and fully 4 funded by the Department of Water and Sewers. And as I said,
5 the evidence will show that that department is solvent and 6 capable of meeting its obligations, and, indeed, the Water
7 and Sewerage pension payments even have priority over secured
8 claims in that they're included in net operating expenses.

9 So we believe the evidence will show that the amount
10 of the underfunding on the pension liability is not nearly as 11 severe as -- still substantial -- we're not denying that, but 12 not nearly as severe as was portrayed in the emergency
13 manager's declaration.

14 And finally, related to all this, the evidence will 15 show that the city does, we believe, have substantial assets
16 that can be monetized. Chiefly but not alone among them is 17 the art that's owned by the city that's maintained at the 18 Detroit Institute of Arts, and we're talking about art that's 19 owned outright by the city, not art that's subject to any 20 charitable trust. And the evidence will show that there's 21 that asset, and also the Department of Waters and Sewers is a
22 valuable asset that could be monetized. The city may well be 23 in a position to obtain substantial cash inflows from these 24 assets and we understand is actively pursuing these 25 opportunities. Those assets, those cash flows could

1 obviously be used to fund other obligations as well, yet none
2 of that was factored in any way into the Orr declaration even
3 though that could dramatically change the mix of what happens
4 in terms of paying not only pension obligations but other
5 obligations as well.

6 So that, your Honor, is what we believe the evidence
7 will show. Based on that, we believe the city cannot meet
8 its burdens of proving eligibility or good faith, and we look
9 forward to proceeding. Thank you, your Honor.

10 THE COURT: Thank you.

11 MR. ULLMAN: Oh, and I do -- we will have a bound
12 copy of the slides that I used for you marked. Thank you.

13 THE COURT: All right. Thank you.

14 MS. LEVINE: Your Honor, I apologize, but I got a
15 flurry of e-mails after I stepped away from the podium saying
16 two weeks, what are you, crazy?

17 THE COURT: What was your answer to that question?

18 MS. LEVINE: I have to ask the judge if I'm crazy or 19 not. I guess --

20 THE COURT: I take it you're asking for more time.

21 MS. LEVINE: If we could have another week, your 22 Honor, that would be --

23 THE COURT: Sure. Three weeks. Absolutely. Okay.
24 So does that conclude your opening statements? All right.
25 We'll take a recess now until ten after three, and we'll

1 begin with the evidence at that time.

2 THE CLERK: All rise. Court is in recess.

3 (Recess at 2:51 p.m. until 3:10 p.m.)

4 THE CLERK: Court is in session. Please be seated.

5 THE COURT: Okay. It appears everyone is here. You
6 may proceed.

7 MR. STEWART: Thank you, your Honor. Geoffrey
8 Stewart, Jones Day, for the city. Our first witness will be 9 Gaurav Malhotra, but before we call him, I wanted to put on 10 the record a stipulation that the parties have reached with 11 regard to the sequestration of witnesses. We've agreed that 12 witnesses should be sequestered with the exception of those 13 who, by definition, are representatives of a party.

14 THE COURT: That's fine. I ask counsel, please, to 15 supervise this sequestration because you know who your 16 witnesses are.

17 ATTORNEY: Thank you, your Honor. We will.

18 THE COURT: Okay.

19 MR. STEWART: May we call Mr. Malhotra to the stand?

20 THE COURT: Yes, yes, of course. Step forward,
21 please, sir. Before you sit down, please raise your right
22 hand.

23 GAURAV MALHOTRA, DEBTOR'S WITNESS, SWORN

24 THE COURT: Please sit down. You may proceed, sir.

25 DIRECT EXAMINATION

1 BY MR. STEWART:

2 Q Good afternoon. Mr. Malhotra, could you please, for the 3 record, give us your full name and your home address?

4 A Gaurav Malhotra, and I live in Chicago, Illinois.

5 Q And are you presently employed?

6 A Yes.

7 Q Who are you employed by?

8 A Ernst & Young.

9 Q And what is Ernst & Young?

10 A Ernst & Young is a Big Four accounting firm.

11 Q And how long have you worked for Ernst & Young?

12 A For close to four years since I recently joined.

13 Q In what part of Ernst & Young's practice do you work?

14 A Restructuring specifically.

15 Q And just for the record, tell us what that means when you
16 say "restructuring"?

17 A Our practice predominantly represents corporations and 18 public sector clients in order to assist with business plan
19 assessments, liquidity analyses, as well as developing 20 restructuring proposals.

21 Q Tell us, if you could, about your college education and 22 any post-graduate education that you had.

23 A I went to college in New Delhi, India, and I did my MBA
24 in Finance and Business Policy from Case Western, and I'm 25 also a CFA.

1 Q Certified financial analyst?

2 A That is correct.

3 Q After you left Case Western, what was the first job that 4 you had?

5 A I joined Ernst & Young.

6 Q And how long were you at EY at that point?

7 A At EY, I joined in May of 2000, and EY's restructuring
8 practice was, I believe, in 2004, sold to Giuliani Capital
9 Advisors. I transitioned with that team. That team was 10 subsequently sold to Macquarie, an Australian investment
11 bank, and I transitioned with that team and came full circle
12 back to EY about four years ago.

13 Q And what is your title at EY now?

14 A I'm a principal.

15 Q And what does that mean?

16 A It's a non-CPA partner of the firm.

17 Q So you're an equity partner of EY?

18 A I am an equity partner of EY.

19 Q Could you tell us some of the clients you have worked for 20 as part of your work in restructuring?

21 A I worked for Delta Airlines. I did work for Detroit
22 Public Schools, doing work for Liberty Medical right now,
23 worked at Collins & Aikman, and those are some of the clients
24 that I've worked with in addition to others.

25 Q Did there come a time when EY was retained by the City of

1 Detroit to perform work for the city?

2 A Yes. We started our work in about the May, June of 2011
3 time frame.

4 Q So over two years ago?

5 A That's right.

6 Q At the time the city approached you or at any time since,
7 was EI -- EY -- sorry -- retained to serve as an expert for 8 the city in any litigation, including Chapter 9 litigation?

9 A No. In fact, it's very clear in our letter that we will 10 not serve as an expert.

11 Q What were you hired to do in May of 2011?

12 A Generally, it was to get a handle on the city's liquidity 13 position and try and get our arms around in terms of the 14 city's short-term liquidity forecast over the next 12 months
15 or so.

16 Q And this was back in 2011. That was what you were asked
17 to do?

18 A That is correct.

19 Q Did there come a time earlier this year when the scope of 20 work the city asked of EY was expanded?

21 A Yes. In the front end of this calendar year, our role
22 was expanded to look at a ten-year forecast for the city,
23 predominantly on the general fund, and to ascertain what the 24 deficit as well as cash projections would be over a longer
25 time frame versus a shorter time frame.

1 Q Now, you just used the term "general fund."

2 A Yes.

3 Q What is the general fund?

4 A The general fund is basically where the day-to-day
5 activities for a municipality are recorded. i.e., collection
6 of taxes, payment of operating expenses and administrative 7 expenses as well as debt service that is not related to an 8 enterprise fund.

9 Q Why is the general fund a logical place to look when 10 you're analyzing the city's financial position?

11 A Because that's where the tax revenues or the fees are 12 recorded, so the enterprise funds specifically charge their 13 own fees for that specific service, but the general fund is 14 where the core operating deficit of a city is recorded in 15 municipal accounting across the country.

16 Q Now, you've used the term a couple of times "enterprise
17 funds." For the record, what are the enterprise funds? What 18 are examples of the enterprise funds?

19 A Enterprise funds generally are -- have a specific fees
20 that is charged for the services that are provided by that 21 fund. It's generally break-even. For example, the Water and 22 Sewer department is an enterprise fund of the city. The 23 Detroit Department of Transportation is an enterprise fund of 24 the city, although the Department of Transportation requires
25 a subsidy from general fund, so it's not break-even.

1 Q Now, in your analysis of the city's financial position
2 and of the general fund, did you take into account the 3 enterprise funds?

4 A We looked at some of the cash activity of the enterprise
5 funds back in 2011 but focused majority of our efforts on the 6 general fund and those enterprise funds that require a
7 subsidy from the general fund like DDOT, which is the 8 Department of Transportation.

9 Q Now, in the course of your work, what materials or 10 information from the city did you rely upon?

11 A We looked at a CAFR.

12 Q I'm going to stop you right there.

13 MR. STEWART: Can we put up Exhibit 6? And I
14 believe, your Honor, the CAFR, which is Exhibit 6, has been 15 stipulated into evidence.

16 BY MR. STEWART:

17 Q Is this the CAFR?

18 A Yes. That's the CAFR for 2012. It's the Comprehensive 19 Annual Financial Report, which is the city's audited
20 financial statements.

21 Q Those were audited?

22 A Yes.

23 Q By Ernst & Young?

24 A No.

25 Q And what does the CAFR tell you?

1 A It gives you a detailed snapshot of revenues and expenses
2 as well as the deficit position of the general fund as well
3 as some activity of the enterprise funds.

4 Q Is this a public document?

5 A Yes, it is.

6 Q What else did you look at in the course of your work to 7 learn about the details of the finances of the city?

8 A We looked at the city's budgets. We looked at internal 9 financial reports that we had access to from the city.

10 Q What kind of financial reports?

11 A They were generally department-specific revenues and 12 expenses as we had available. We also looked at receipts and 13 disbursements activity for different bank accounts to try and 14 get our arms around the financial position of the city.

15 Q Now, were these materials you looked at records -- the 16 financial records that the city had kept in the ordinary 17 course of its business?

18 A Yes.

19 Q And in your experience, is it in the ordinary course of 20 an enterprise or city's business to keep records such as the 21 ones you were looking at?

22 A Yes.

23 Q And did the records appear to you to be accurate?

24 A Generally, yes. I mean there were always questions about 25 assumptions like specifically on budgets, but we did not find

1 any material discrepancies at least in the information that 2 we were trying to get our arms around specifically like the 3 CAFR.

4 Q Well, what did you do to check the reliability of the 5 information the city gave you?

6 A What we did is we looked at the information that was made
7 available. We spoke to various members of the city's 8 management team, the finance department at the city, various 9 department heads. We looked at the receipts and 10 disbursements activity as generally cash was a telling 11 barometer in terms of the quality of information we were 12 receiving, so we went through and tried to scrub the data to 13 the best of our ability.

14 Q You just used the term "we." I should have asked you
15 earlier how many people from EY worked with you on this 16 project?

17 A On the front end of this engagement, we had a team of 18 about four or five, and that team is larger now.

19 Q What deliverables were expected of E&Y as a result of its 20 work?

21 A It was generally cash flow updates, whether they be short
22 term or medium term, generally going out on a monthly basis,
23 variance reports in terms of how the city was performing in 24 context of those cash flows. As time progressed, our work
25 expanded to helping develop the long-term projections in

1 conjunction with other members of the city, so we also helped
2 in terms of updating the financial advisory board on a
3 monthly basis in terms of where some of the cash position of 4 the city was.

5 Q And in terms of organizing and presenting your data, what 6 methods did you use?

7 A It was generally Excel spreadsheets or PowerPoint
8 presentations.

9 Q Okay. And an Excel spreadsheet is what?

10 A It's a software that allows you to compile, organize, or 11 make calculations in terms of the data that we have 12 available.

13 Q And the calculations are arithmetical calculations?

14 A Yes.

15 Q Now, let me ask you this. Did there come a time when you 16 learned that an emergency manager had been appointed for the 17 City of Detroit?

18 A Yes.

19 Q And do you remember when you learned of it?

20 A Right around March.

21 Q And when did you meet Kevyn Orr for the first time?

22 A The first time I met Kevyn Orr was during the interview
23 process of various law firms where Jones Day was one of the 24 firms that was presenting its credentials to represent the 25 city.

1 Q And after Mr. Orr was appointed as emergency manager, how 2 often did you meet with him?

3 A Generally weekly.

4 Q And has that continued to this day?

5 A Yes, either meetings or phone conversations.

6 Q Okay. Are you aware of something called a 45-day report?

7 A Yes.

8 Q What is a 45-day report?

9 A It's a report that an emergency manager has to present 45
10 days after his or her appointment to provide a snapshot of 11 the financial and operating condition of the city.

12 Q Now, we put up on the monitor before you Exhibit -- I
13 think it's 75 for identification. Is that the 45-day report?

14 A Yes, it is.

15 Q And you've seen this before?

16 A I have.

17 Q And do you understand why it was Mr. Orr was required to 18 submit a 45-day report?

19 A I believe it's per statute under PA 436.

20 Q Did you yourself contribute any part of the content of 21 the 45-day report?

22 A We did. We helped work on the financial section of the 23 document as well as some short-term liquidity projections
24 that were available as of that point in time.

25 Q Let me ask if we could go to page 40 of the --

1 MR. STEWART: And if we blow it up for the monitor,
2 please, Lauren, so we can see it better --

3 BY MR. STEWART:

4 Q Mr. Malhotra, do you have that before you, page 40 of the 5 report?

6 A Yes, I do.

7 Q And what is that?

8 A That is a snapshot of the monthly receipts and 9 disbursements activity of the general fund and the cash 10 balance available for the general fund along with any 11 deferrals that we were able to identify as of that --

12 Q And is this a spreadsheet that you or someone at E&Y
13 working at your direction prepared?

14 A Yes.

15 Q Without going --

16 MR. SHERWOOD: Your Honor, I'd just like to 17 interpose an objection at this time.

18 THE COURT: Would you identify yourself, sir?

19 MR. SHERWOOD: I'm sorry, your Honor. I was 20 introduced this morning. I'm Jack Sherwood from Lowenstein,
21 counsel for AFSCME. I'm Ms. Levine's partner.

22 THE COURT: Okay. Go ahead, sir.

23 MR. SHERWOOD: I believe that this testimony in 24 terms of forecasts of future performance by the city is 25 improper lay opinion testimony and should be disallowed. We

1 submit that this testimony is in the nature of financial
2 projections, requires special expertise, training, and so
3 forth and under Federal Rule of Evidence 701(c) should be 4 excluded. Thank you.

5 MR. STEWART: Well, your Honor, two responses.

6 THE COURT: Excuse me one second.

7 MR. STEWART: Yes. I'm sorry.

8 THE COURT: Is it the exhibit you object to or the 9 testimony about it?

10 MR. SHERWOOD: Both, your Honor.

11 THE COURT: The exhibit is already in evidence;
12 right?

13 MR. SHERWOOD: Well, then the testimony about it. I
14 think it has been stipulated into evidence. I think this 15 document is in evidence, but I do believe that any testimony
16 about these projections is expert testimony and should be 17 disregarded.

18 THE COURT: Sir.

19 MR. STEWART: Well, first of all, I don't believe 20 the witness is going to be asked any opinion about this, and 21 he has testified earlier he has not been hired as an expert.
22 More fundamentally, I think the rule is clear that to the 23 extent a witness, even one who has expertise, is simply 24 performing arithmetic or similar calculations on voluminous
25 data, it is not expert testimony, and I think the leading

1 Sixth Circuit case on that, your Honor, is -- I think it's
2 the Madison case, 226 Federal Appendix 535, which is a 2007
3 case, and it cites at length an Eleventh Circuit case that 4 says that in greater detail and on the different facts, and
5 so that is why I asked the questions I asked a few minutes
6 ago about the source of the data, were they business records,
7 what did he do with them. They went into a spreadsheet.
8 What does a spreadsheet do? And at this stage I'm still 9 trying to explain how he went about compiling his 10 spreadsheets, but counsel is correct. I'm going to ask him
11 at some point what were the results or the calculations. I'm 12 not going to ask him his opinion on what anything ought to 13 be. It is simply going to be, "After you compiled the 14 information, as you testified, what did the number turn out
15 to be?"

16 MR. SHERWOOD: Just briefly, your Honor. Anything
17 that projects future revenues or forecasts is opinion. It's 18 not fact. It's not adding numbers that exist. I understand 19 that a fact witness can testify what our expenses and 20 payments were on a given month or even that are due this 21 month, but this is forecasting into the future in terms of 22 not only expenses but also receipts, things like property
23 taxes, utility taxes, various types of revenues going out
24 through the end of this year, and I think that by definition
25 that requires some type of expertise, specialized training,

1 certainly not something that anyone can do, is properly the 2 subject of expert testimony and shouldn't be allowed.

3 MR. STEWART: And I think what the Sixth Circuit
4 wrote, your Honor, was that there are many things that 5 require expertise. For example, it requires expertise to 6 read the records and know what part of the city's records are 7 important. But where the calculations themselves do not
8 require expertise beyond simple mathematics, it's not expert
9 testimony. They distinguish being an expert and expert
10 testimony.

11 THE COURT: What was the specific last question that 12 you asked?

13 MR. STEWART: I believe it was how he went about 14 preparing -- or his staff went about preparing the 15 spreadsheet we see before us on the screen.

16 THE COURT: I'll permit that question.

17 BY MR. STEWART:

18 Q You may answer.

19 A The way we helped pull this spreadsheet together or any 20 of the spreadsheets on the cash flows were we looked at the 21 information that was available in the different budgets. We 22 were able to look at the different receipts and disbursements
23 on an actual basis in terms of what was actually coming into 24 the city and break that down into the different categories
25 and then, based on the assumptions that we had collectively

1 in conjunction with the city, forecast what the monthly
2 receipts and disbursements could be over this forecast
3 period.

4 Q And you populated the spreadsheet with those numbers?

5 A That is correct.

6 Q And you performed addition and subtraction on them to 7 reach the conclusions that are shown here; is that correct?

8 A Yes.

9 Q And now may I ask you just as to this, what did you
10 conclude the short-term cash flow forecast would yield to in 11 terms of the city's available cash as of the end of calendar
12 year 2013?

13 MR. SHERWOOD: I'd renew the same objection, your
14 Honor.

15 THE COURT: That objection is sustained.

16 MR. STEWART: Okay.

17 BY MR. STEWART:

18 Q Mr. Malhotra, let me also ask you to look at -- actually,
19 I'll come back to that in just one minute. Okay. Did there 20 come a time, Mr. Malhotra, that you learned that the 21 emergency manager had scheduled a meeting with creditors of 22 the city for June 14 of this year?

23 A Yes.

24 Q And when did you learn of the meeting?

25 A It was right around, I think, in that June time frame.

1 Q And did you attend the meeting?

2 A I did.

3 Q Where was it held?

4 A At the Westin at the airport.

5 Q And how many people attended?

6 A I would say about a couple of hundred.

7 Q How long did it last?

8 A Four, five hours.

9 Q Did you speak or present anything at the meeting?

10 A I did.

11 Q Let me -- and were materials passed out at the June 14
12 meeting?

13 A Yes.

14 Q Let me first put up on the screen Exhibit 43. You see
15 Exhibit 43?

16 A I do.

17 Q Is that a document entitled "Proposal for Creditors" that 18 was distributed on June 14?

19 A It was.

20 Q And let's put up Exhibit 44. Is that an executive 21 summary of the proposal that was also distributed that day?

22 A That is correct.

23 Q Now, at that meeting -- this is entitled "Proposal for 24 Creditors."

25 A Yes.

1 Q That's the title of it. What's being proposed?

2 A What the city was proposing was a framework for 3 restructuring of its long-term liabilities showing that the 4 city was going to be unable to meet its obligations as they 5 came due.

6 Q Now, I think you testified that you prepared certain
7 parts of this document?

8 A That is correct.

9 Q Okay. And let me direct your attention, if I could, to 10 page 8 of the document.

11 MR. STEWART: Can that be blown up, Lauren?

12 BY MR. STEWART:

13 Q Is this a spreadsheet that you or others at E&Y prepared?

14 A Yes, it was.

15 Q And what does it purport to show?

16 A The first column on that spreadsheet --

17 Q Well, first of all, what's the title of the spreadsheet?

18 A It says "Fiscal Year 2013 Forecasted Cash Flow to Year-
19 End."

20 Q Now, it uses the term "fiscal year '13." What is the 21 fiscal year of the City of Detroit?

22 A July 1 to June 30th.

23 Q So at the time of this meeting, the fiscal year '13 had 24 about 16 days to go?

25 A Yes. June -- the month of June 2013 was still a

1 forecast.

2 Q So let's -- before we go further, let's look at our
3 spreadsheet here. How many months of this spreadsheet are 4 actual numbers?

5 A The first column has 12 months of fiscal year 2012, and 6 subsequent to that 11 of the 12 months are actuals, and 7 there's a month of forecast.

8 Q And that information you obtained from where?

9 A It was compiled from the information that was given to us
10 by the city.

11 Q Okay. And what I'd like to do because we're going to be 12 dealing with some of these issues later is to go over some of 13 the elements of operating receipts and operating 14 disbursements that we see here on the spreadsheet.

15 MR. STEWART: And I don't know if that can be blown
16 up to be even larger or not, Lauren. I don't know if 17 everyone can see them. Let's just blow up operating receipts
18 if we could. There.

19 BY MR. STEWART:

20 Q I've asked the technical assistant here to blow these up
21 so we can all see them better, and let me ask you about some 22 of the operating receipts. Property taxes and income and 23 utility taxes are just what they say they are?

24 A That's right. That's what they contain.

25 Q And gaming taxes, what are gaming taxes?

1 A Those are the taxes the city receives from the three
2 casinos.

3 Q Next is municipal service fee to casinos.

4 A Those are generally additional fees that the city
5 collects from the casinos for additional services that are 6 provided.

7 Q And then our next line is state revenue sharing?

8 A That's state aid that the city receives every other
9 month.

10 Q And below that we have other receipts. Could you tell us
11 what the other receipts are?

12 A Sure. Those are a combination of fees from the different
13 departments. It has grant revenue in there as well as any 14 other one-time items that are also captured in there.

15 Q And the final item is called refinancing proceeds?

16 A Yes. Those generally reflect the monies that the city
17 was borrowing from the escrow account that was set up with 18 the state, so it was essentially additional debt borrowings.

19 Q Okay.

20 MR. STEWART: Let's go back if we could, Lauren, to 21 the -- if you could just then expand for us the part of our 22 chart that says "Operating Receipts." "Operating Receipts."
23 That would still be the top part, I think. Now, "Operating 24 Receipts," that would be the rows there entitled "Operating 25 Receipts." Okay?

1 BY MR. STEWART:

2 Q Now, your spreadsheet purported to tabulate what the 3 operating receipts were. I think the first column is actual 4 for fiscal year '12. What did you determine the city's 5 operating receipts had been for that fiscal year?

6 A For the general fund predominantly the operating -- total
7 operating receipts were 1.765 billion of which 50 million was 8 related to so-called proceeds from debt issuance or 9 borrowings from the escrow fund.

10 Q And then for fiscal year 2013, you had 11 months actual 11 and 1 month forecast; is that right?

12 A That is correct.

13 Q Okay. And can you tell me what your forecast was with 14 those 11 actual and 1 forecasted month for --

15 MR. SHERWOOD: Object. I'm sorry.

16 BY MR. STEWART:

17 Q -- the operating receipts for fiscal year '13?

18 MR. SHERWOOD: Your Honor, I object to testimony
19 based on forecasts.

20 MR. STEWART: Your Honor, what we have -- he spoke 21 not only about the actual -- the city's actual receipts. He 22 also spoke about the city's budgets not as a forecast he made
23 but as a budget the city had, which was itself a factual
24 document. To the extent he's talking about what the city has 25 budgeted, especially when he tests it against actual

1 experience for reliability, I believe he can talk about what
2 the forecast result is to look like. I would add that this 3 is one where 11/12ths of the data is actuals that had, in 4 fact, already come to pass.

5 THE COURT: Sir, is the number for the column
6 forecast June 13 of 125 your number or the city's number?

7 THE WITNESS: It was generally a collaborative
8 effort in which we used the numbers that were, your Honor,
9 developed by the city originally. We scrubbed them along
10 with the city.

11 THE COURT: What does "scrub" mean?

12 THE WITNESS: So we looked at, your Honor, the 13 historical actuals in terms of how the amount of collections
14 that were received in that particular month in conjunction 15 and comparison with the overall tax row, so it was -- you
16 know, actually, you are looking through the historical 17 information that we had available as well as the best 18 forecast information we had available to demonstrate what the 19 one month of forecast would have looked like.

20 THE COURT: Well, all right. I'll permit the 21 testimony as to the full year for actual and forecast but 22 subject to credible admissible evidence regarding June '13.

23 MR. STEWART: Your Honor, we will provide that.

24 BY MR. STEWART:

25 Q And then, Mr. Malhotra, as to the full year operating

1 receipts for 2012, what did you calculate?

2 A For the full year of fiscal year 2013, the total
3 operating receipts were -- with 11 months of actual and 1
4 month of forecast were 1.582 billion, which included roughly 5 $30 million of borrowings from the escrow account as shown in 6 the line item up above.

7 Q Okay. And so the line you're referring to is the line
8 that says "refinancing proceeds"?

9 A That is correct.

10 Q And you better tell us what the escrow account is.

11 A It's an account -- escrow account that's set up that's 12 subject to an escrow agreement between the city and the state
13 where there are roughly about $70 million of cash that is 14 sitting in that escrow account today. It was projected that 15 $20 million of that 70 would have been collected, your Honor,
16 in June of 2013, but that has not happened. We are 17 anticipating to collect that $20 million from the escrow
18 account in the subsequent months going forward, but it is 19 subject to -- the amount in there is subject to an escrow
20 agreement between the city and the state.

21 Q Okay. Thank you. Lets, if we could, now --

22 THE COURT: Excuse me one second. So the 20 billion
23 you're talking about is the 20 that's shown in forecast June 24 '13?

25 THE WITNESS: Yes, your Honor. That's the 20

1 million.

2 THE COURT: That didn't happen.

3 THE WITNESS: That did not happen. That is correct,
4 your Honor.

5 BY MR. STEWART:

6 Q At the time you wrote it, you expected that it would 7 happen?

8 A That is correct.

9 MR. STEWART: Could we now expand the segment of the 10 chart that talks about operating disbursements, just the 11 title so we can see them all? No. That's fine.

12 BY MR. STEWART:

13 Q Now, we've now expanded on the screen, Mr. Malhotra, the 14 segment of the spreadsheet that speaks of operating 15 disbursements. Let me ask you if we could go through this.
16 The first line is payroll taxes and deductions, and I assume 17 that's self-explanatory. That's what it says.

18 A Yes.

19 Q Next is benefits. What are benefits?

20 A Those are generally health benefits.

21 Q Okay. Below that is something called pension
22 contributions?

23 A That is correct.

24 Q And those are pension contributions to who?

25 A To either the police Retirement System or the General

1 Retirement System.

2 Q And those are both defined benefit plans?

3 A Those are defined benefit plans, yes.

4 Q Now, I understand that some portion of the benefits from 5 the General Retirement System goes to city employees who work
6 for the Department of Water and Sewer?

7 A That is correct.

8 Q And how do you account for that in this spreadsheet?

9 A Those are not accounted for here because this shows the 10 activity predominantly of the general fund. The 11 contributions that the Water and Sewer Department makes for 12 pension go directly to the Retirement System and --

13 THE COURT: Excuse me, sir. You need to lean back
14 away from the microphone a little bit because when you get 15 too close, it cuts out.

16 THE WITNESS: All right.

17 THE COURT: And while we have a break here, I think
18 your tech person needs to redo that chart because her effort
19 to line up the headings isn't working very well separately.

20 MR. STEWART: Okay. Thank you.

21 THE COURT: That's better.

22 MR. STEWART: That's better. A little to the left,
23 yes.

24 THE COURT: Thank you.

25 BY MR. STEWART:

1 Q We were talking, I guess, about pension contributions.
2 Next we have -- and for actual year 2012, those had amounted
3 to how much?

4 A For actual fiscal year '12, there were pension
5 contributions of 103.9 million made by the general fund.

6 Q And for fiscal year 2013, what is the number?

7 A That reflects 11 months of actuals and 1 month of 8 forecast, but about $30.8 million of pension contributions
9 that were made.

10 Q Why is that so much lower than the pension contributions
11 that had been made in 2012?

12 A Because the city was trying its best to preserve
13 liquidity during this time frame where liquidity was 14 extremely tight and was deferring pension contributions.

15 Q Now, let's -- let me ask you about this. When you say
16 "deferring pension contributions," what do you mean?

17 A It's essentially not making the scheduled payments as 18 they came due and as were laid out by the city's other
19 systems actuaries, so I would say it was more or less
20 borrowing money from the pension system to fund ongoing
21 operations.

22 Q So just to be clear, the money was owed to the pension
23 systems; correct?

24 A That is correct.

25 Q But the city did not pay the pension systems the money it

1 owed them?

2 A That is correct.

3 Q And that is called deferral?

4 A Yes. That's what we are calling deferral.

5 Q And do you know looking at this what the amount of 6 deferrals were for fiscal year 2013?

7 A For fiscal year 2013, I would say compared to the 8 beginning of fiscal year 2012 there was probably another 70-9 odd million dollars that was deferred compared to the 10 beginning of fiscal year 2012, an additional 70 million.

11 Q Okay.

12 THE COURT: And may I interrupt for one moment?
13 Just so the record is clear and everyone understands, would 14 you describe in more plain English what you mean by the 15 concept of "liquidity was tight"?

16 THE WITNESS: Sure, your Honor. The city was during 17 this time frame paying very close attention to its cash
18 position, and in order to ensure that the city did not have a
19 payless payday or run out of complete cash in its bank
20 account, the amount of cash available for the city's general
21 fund to continue to operate was dwindling. And in order to 22 make sure that the cash position did not get to an
23 unsustainable level where the core operations of the city
24 were put at peril, that's what, your Honor, I meant by 25 liquidity being extremely tight. It's the cash that was

1 available to run the operations of the general fund.

2 MR. STEWART: If we can go back to the full chart
3 for just a minute, please.

4 BY MR. STEWART:

5 Q And before we go further, just on this same point, this
6 chart is a projection of cash flow for the city for the past
7 year and for fiscal year 2013; correct?

8 A It's actuals for --

9 Q Actuals and then -- okay. Now, you just talked about 10 deferrals as something the city did to preserve cash. Is 11 there something called pooled funds?

12 THE COURT: I'm sorry. Something called what?

13 MR. STEWART: Pooled funds. And I'm going to ask 14 him what they are.

15 BY MR. STEWART:

16 Q Can you tell us what pooled funds are?

17 A The pooled funds are cash that has been available in 18 other accounts for specific purposes such as the solid waste
19 fund or the street fund or the risk management fund that has 20 been pooled with the general fund cash so that the general
21 fund cash is higher because of the result of the pooling of 22 cash from these other accounts.

23 Q Now, these other accounts are not -- well, first of all,
24 you better tell us what these other accounts are.

25 A As highlighted in the city's CAFR, the city had roughly

1 $92 million of pooled cash from the solid waste fund, the 2 street fund, and the risk management fund, cash that was 3 combined with the general fund, that is currently reflected 4 in the cash balances reported for the general fund.

5 Q And so that I understand, so because of the liquidity
6 problems the city faced, it took the $90 million out of the 7 street fund, the solid waste fund, and the public safety or 8 emergency fund and commingled it with money in the general
9 fund?

10 A I don't know when it was done, but that would generally
11 be yes. The commingling has probably happened some time ago,
12 but the answer would be yes. It would be to further
13 supplement the cash available for the general fund.

14 Q And if the city had not done that, what would have been 15 the effect on its liquidity position?

16 A Well, at the end of fiscal year '12 where the cash net of 17 distributions was shown as 1.9 million, if the city had to go
18 ahead and segregate or unpool almost $92 million, that cash
19 net of distributions or cash available to the general fund
20 would have been significantly lower dollar for dollar.

21 Q It would have been $92 million lower?

22 A Yes. That is my understanding.

23 Q Let's go back now to our operating disbursements that we 24 were talking about. All right. The next item there is 25 something called subsidy payments. What are subsidy

1 payments?

2 A Subsidy payments are the cash payments that the general
3 fund fund makes to DDOT, which is the Department of 4 Transportation, because the Department of Transportation
5 requires an annual subsidy every year from the general fund.

6 Q And below that we have distributions, and there are three
7 different lines. There's distributions, tax authorities,
8 then distributions, UTGO, and then distributions, DDA.
9 Please tell us what those items are.

10 A Those are distributions to other taxing authorities. In 11 the first line when we saw property tax collections, the city
12 collects property taxes not only for itself but also on 13 behalf of other taxing authorities like Detroit Public
14 Schools, Wayne County, and what the city does then is once
15 the gross property taxes are collected, it distributes to 16 these other entities on behalf of whom the cash has come in.

17 Q So, in other words, it's cash the city has but that it
18 has to turn over to someone else?

19 A Yes. That is correct.

20 Q And below that we have income tax refunds, account
21 payables, and other disbursements and professional fees.

22 MR. STEWART: Now let's go back to the full chart if 23 we could, and for purposes of simplicity, why don't we simply 24 expand actual fiscal year '12 along with the descriptions of 25 items that would help us walk through them? All the way to

1 the bottom. Thank you. Okay.

2 BY MR. STEWART:

3 Q Now, our next line has total disbursements. Do you see
4 that?

5 A Yes.

6 Q And that's just the sum of all the operating
7 disbursements?

8 A That is correct.

9 Q And below that there's something called net cash flow.
10 What is net cash flow?

11 A That's the total operating receipts less the total
12 disbursements.

13 Q And what was it for fiscal year 2012?

14 A It was negative $65.5 million after including $50 of 15 proceeds from the escrow fund.

16 Q And why were those excluded?

17 A Those were already a part of the negative 65.5. Had they 18 been excluded, the net cash flow would have been negative
19 115.5.

20 Q I see. And then the next line is beginning cash balance, 21 and what is that?

22 A That would be reflective of the cash balance the city's 23 general fund had in its account including the pooled cash.

24 Q And you subtract from that the net cash flow that we just 25 talked about; correct?

1 A Yes.

2 Q And we end up with cash before required distributions of
3 $29.8 million?

4 A That is correct.

5 Q And then there's something subtracted from that, and what
6 is subtracted?

7 A Those are the accumulated property tax distributions, so
8 when the city collects its property taxes, makes the 9 distributions to the different taxing authorities -- excuse
10 me -- there still is a holdback in terms of amounts that are 11 being reconciled where the city and the different taxing 12 authorities are going back and forth in terms of what the 13 final amount is that is due to those authorities. That is 14 the estimate that the city has available at that point of 15 time in terms of additional monies that were due to these 16 other taxing authorities but had not been paid yet, so we 17 reserved for that cash that it will eventually be paid out.

18 Q Okay. What's an example of one of these other
19 authorities that is owed to which the money has to be paid
20 out by the city?

21 A It would include the Detroit Public Schools. It would 22 include Wayne County. It would include the library. Those 23 would be some of those examples.

24 Q And so our last line here says cash net of distributions,
25 and that's $1.9 million?

1 A That is correct.

2 Q And what does that represent?

3 A That would be the net cash available for the general
4 fund, including pooled cash, that was available for the 5 general fund's operations at that point of time.

6 Q At the end of --

7 A Fiscal year 2012.

8 Q -- 2012, which would be June 30th, 2012; correct?

9 A Yes.

10 Q And below you have something that says "memo," and the 11 first line is accumulated deferrals?

12 A Yes.

13 Q Is that what you told us about earlier which were pension
14 contributions the city owed but had not paid?

15 A That is correct, about 64.4 million.

16 Q And below that refunding bond proceeds in escrow, what 17 are those?

18 A Those are the escrow account's amounts that were still in 19 escrow and had not been drawn upon that were still subject to 20 this escrow agreement with the state.

21 Q From the refunding financing that you told us about
22 earlier?

23 A Yes.

24 Q And finally reimbursements owed to other funds, what is
25 that?

1 A That is where we've highlighted the amounts -- or we
2 haven't put an amount in off the funds that would subject --
3 be subject to the unpooling of the cash that is shown in the 4 general fund, but the city did not have a specific view in 5 terms of when and how the unpooling of some of that cash
6 would take place.

7 MR. STEWART: Now, if we could now highlight the far
8 right column, which is the fiscal year 2013, it says 11(a)
9 plus 1(f), and let's look at that. And then, Lauren, if you
10 could put the categories next to it so he could --

11 BY MR. STEWART:

12 Q I'm going to ask you the same questions, but I'm going to 13 be quicker when it comes to the fiscal year 2013. You
14 already told us, I think, that the operating receipts were 15 thought to be 1.52 -- 582.2 billion. What were the total 16 disbursements expected to be?

17 A 1.5 --

18 MR. SHERWOOD: Objection.

19 MR. STEWART: This is the same point I think we 20 argued earlier.

21 THE COURT: What is the objection, please?

22 MR. SHERWOOD: The objection --

23 THE COURT: Excuse me one second. And I've been 24 asked to ask you to pull that microphone closer to you when 25 you speak. Closer, closer, closer.

1 MR. SHERWOOD: I object --

2 THE COURT: Closer yet, please, sir. There you go.

3 MR. SHERWOOD: Okay. I object based on the fact
4 that the disbursements include projections for June of 2013,
5 and that requires expert testimony. That's improper lay
6 opinion testimony.

7 THE COURT: All right. Subject to the same
8 condition I indicated earlier, the Court will permit this.
9 Go ahead.

10 BY MR. STEWART:

11 Q And to repeat the question then, the total disbursements
12 for fiscal year 2013 are shown to be what here?

13 A 1.578.2 billion.

14 Q And so the net cash flow for the city in fiscal 2013 was 15 how much?

16 A $4 million positive.

17 Q And then we had cash before required distributions of how 18 much?

19 A Before required distributions, $33.8 million.

20 Q And then cash net of those distributions for fiscal year
21 2013 came to what?

22 A $14.1 million.

23 Q And by then, what was the accumulated -- was the amount
24 of accumulated deferrals, and what was owed to the pension
25 funds?

1 A By then the amount of accumulated deferrals predominantly
2 due to the pension funds had increased from roughly $65
3 million at the end of fiscal year 2012 all the way to $118.7
4 million at the end of fiscal year 2013.

5 Q And where did the number come from in terms of what was 6 owed to the pension funds?

7 A The amount of funding that would have been scheduled for 8 the General Retirement System and the Police and Fire
9 Retirement System would have come from the payments that the 10 actuaries of the systems had suggested to be made but had not 11 been made over the course of this time frame. That was 12 predominantly what -- where those numbers came from.

13 Q So the numbers came from the pension plans themselves or 14 their actuaries.

15 A The schedule came --

16 MR. SHERWOOD: Objection. Hearsay. Move to strike.

17 MR. STEWART: He can know this.

18 THE COURT: The objection is overruled. It was,
19 however, a leading question.

20 MR. STEWART: It was, your Honor. I was trying to 21 clarify, but let me ask it again.

22 BY MR. STEWART:

23 Q Where, if anywhere, did these numbers come from?

24 A The accumulated deferral number, which predominantly is 25 made up of the pension deferrals, would have been a sum of

1 the pension payments that were not made during the course of 2 fiscal year 2013 and it would have been in the amount of the 3 scheduled payments the systems actuaries had suggested that 4 should have been made on a monthly basis but were not.

5 Q So who is it who tells the city how much the pension
6 payments ought to be?

7 A It's the system's actuaries.

8 Q The system being the General Retirement System and the 9 Police and Fire Retirement System; correct?

10 A That is correct.

11 Q Did there come a time when you spoke with Mr. Orr about 12 what you had found in the course of this analysis?

13 A We showed Kevyn Orr in terms of what the actual activity
14 was and the magnitude of the deferrals that were taking place
15 to sustain the city's cash position on a monthly basis.

16 Q Do you remember what you said to him and what he said to
17 you?

18 A Not specifically, but it was generally showing as to what 19 the magnitude of the -- what the magnitude of the dire
20 liquidity position of the city.

21 THE COURT: I'm sorry. What? The magnitude what?

22 THE WITNESS: How dire the --

23 THE COURT: I didn't hear what you said. What did
24 you say?

25 THE WITNESS: Your Honor, I said the dire liquidity

1 situation of the city.

2 BY MR. STEWART:

3 Q Let me -- let's now go to page 9 of this same exhibit,
4 and the control number on this, if that makes it easier, ends
5 with 7289. And could you just tell us what this is?

6 A This is the fiscal year 2014 forecasted cash flow to 7 year-end on a monthly basis.

8 Q And is this a document you or others at Ernst & Young
9 prepared?

10 A Yes, it is.

11 Q Did you show it to Mr. Orr?

12 A Yes, we did.

13 Q Did you discuss it with Mr. Orr?

14 A Yes. We discussed the receipts and disbursements
15 activity, yes.

16 Q As shown in this document?

17 A That is correct.

18 Q And do you remember what you said to him and he said to
19 you?

20 MR. SHERWOOD: Your Honor, object to the extent that 21 the question calls for testimony about these forecasts. This 22 document -- this particular page relates to 2014, which is 23 all projections.

24 MR. STEWART: And that's why I'm asking the 25 questions I'm asking, only was this shown to Mr. Orr and did

1 he discuss it with him, and I won't go any deeper into it
2 right now.

3 MR. SHERWOOD: I didn't object to those questions.

4 THE COURT: No. I believe the witness can testify
5 as to what he said to Mr. Orr about these documents. It goes
6 to what Mr. Orr knew or at least what he was advised of at 7 the time, so just tell us what you said to him about these 8 documents or this document.

9 THE WITNESS: Your Honor, my recollection what I
10 would have said on this particular document would have been 11 that the fiscal year two thousand --

12 THE COURT: Well, hold on. Are you reconstructing
13 what you would have said, or are you remembering what you did
14 say?

15 THE WITNESS: Your Honor, I am trying to recall what 16 I would have said. I do not remember specifically what I
17 would have said.

18 THE COURT: All right. If you don't know the answer
19 to a question, just say that. Don't guess or try to 20 reconstruct.

21 THE WITNESS: Yes, your Honor.

22 THE COURT: Okay.

23 BY MR. STEWART:

24 Q Did you provide this document to Mr. Orr?

25 A I did.

1 Q Did there come a time that he raised it with you?

2 THE COURT: I'm sorry. Was there what?

3 BY MR. STEWART:

4 Q Did there come a time when Mr. Orr raised this document
5 with you? Did he call you up or ask to have a conversation
6 with you about it that you can remember?

7 A We had several discussions about this particular document
8 and the overall contents of the numbers, yes.

9 Q And my only question to you is going to be, if you
10 remember, what did you say to him, and what did he say to 11 you, just that?

12 A What I would have said on this particular document --

13 Q Not would have said, what you did say if you remember,
14 and if you don't remember, just tell me you don't remember.

15 THE COURT: If you don't remember, just say that.

16 THE WITNESS: I don't remember specifically what I
17 would have said to Mr. Orr on this particular page in a 18 specific conversation around that, but --

19 BY MR. STEWART:

20 Q Then let me ask the question a different way. In the 21 time frame around June 14, did you have discussions with 22 Kevyn Orr about the liquidity situation of the city?

23 A I did.

24 Q And do you remember what you said to him about the 25 liquidity situation of the city?

1 A I do.

2 Q And will you tell us what you told him?

3 A The point -- what I said is that the fiscal year '14 cash
4 receipts could fall short of cash disbursements to the tune
5 of $185 million.

6 Q What did he say to you?

7 A I do not remember specifically about what he said to me
8 directly.

9 Q Let's go, if we could, now to another page of this, page
10 47, which has control number 227327. Could you just tell us
11 the -- what this document is? What's the title of this 12 document?

13 A "Ten Year Projections for the General Fund Only on the 14 Steady State."

15 Q And what is a steady state?

16 A The steady state would have reflected no restructuring of 17 the city's long-term obligations or legacy liabilities.

18 Q I'm not going to ask you about the content of this, but 19 I'm going to ask you to tell us how you prepared it.

20 A The way we prepared this is through different line items
21 in terms of the revenue assumptions. We looked into 22 specifically the overall State of Michigan forecast. We 23 looked at the historical information with respect to the City
24 of Detroit. We also went ahead and looked at analyses in 25 terms of what the property taxes recently were for the city

1 and what the -- where the City of Detroit was faring in
2 conjunction with the State of Michigan to come up with a
3 forecast in terms of what the assumptions were for the 4 revenue and property tax and income tax assumptions over the 5 next ten years. We did it in conjunction with the management
6 team of the city. We went through income taxes in a great
7 level of detail between residents and nonresidents,
8 corporations, to build up assumptions from the standpoint of 9 what the revenues would look like over the next ten years.
10 We looked at the casino taxes with respect to all three 11 casinos, what their growth had been historically, where they 12 were projected to be in the future, state aid. We got those 13 numbers directly from the budget department of the State of 14 Michigan in terms of where they saw the overall sales taxes
15 that were due to the city were projected to be over the next
16 ten years. That's generally how we came up with the revenue
17 forecast, and I can highlight how we went through the 18 expenses as well.

19 Q Well, yes, if you could, the expense and, finally, the 20 legacy cost without getting into what the numbers actually 21 are, just what your methodology was.

22 A With respect to the salaries, wages, and overtime, we 23 started with what the current wage levels and the headcount
24 was. It was built up by department to try and ascertain what 25 the exact headcount was by department. From there on we had

1 fairly simplistic assumptions with respect to wage level
2 increases of two percent on a year-over-year basis over the 3 forecast period. For the health benefits for the active
4 employees, we used assumptions that the city's health
5 actuaries have developed on a per head basis, which is what
6 we used based on a per headcount basis to extrapolate over
7 the next ten years. On the other operating expenses, it was 8 developed by individual department to look at every single 9 department, their budgets, to help ascertain what were the 10 ongoing operating expenses of each one of those departments
11 on a ongoing basis.

12 MR. DECHIARA: Objection, your Honor. Peter 13 DeChiara of Cohen, Weiss & Simon for the UAW. We object to 14 this.

15 THE COURT: Are you pulling your microphone nice and 16 close for me, please?

17 MR. DECHIARA: Objection based on relevance. The 18 only relevance it would have to how this witness performed
19 these numbers would be if the numbers were coming in for the 20 truth of the matter. Otherwise it has no relevance.

21 THE COURT: I'm concerned about that, Mr. Stewart.
22 First of all, just so the record is clear, what exhibit
23 number is this page 47 of?

24 MR. STEWART: It is Exhibit 44.

25 THE COURT: All right. So the --

1 MR. STEWART: 44 is in evidence.

2 THE COURT: Right. So the question is what weight
3 is page 47 of this exhibit entitled to --

4 MR. STEWART: Correct. It goes to weight.

5 THE COURT: -- if the witness has not been qualified
6 as an expert?

7 MR. STEWART: Well, Judge, what I was going to do
8 was lay a greater foundation for how it was put together, and 9 then I was going to simply ask the witness this question,
10 which I will ask him now.

11 BY MR. STEWART:

12 Q Where in here, Mr. Malhotra, did you insert your own
13 personal assumptions?

14 A All of the assumptions were done in collaboration with 15 the city.

16 Q Well, where did the numbers come from?

17 A The numbers came from either the actuaries that we were 18 working with with the city or the city's debt documents with 19 respect to the long-term liabilities of the city or, in terms
20 of the revenues, it was assumptions that we worked on in 21 conjunction with the city.

22 MR. DECHIARA: Your Honor --

23 MR. STEWART: And so, your Honor, my point on this
24 is the following. The fact something is a future projection
25 does not make it an opinion in the sense of being an expert

1 opinion. If one is relying on numbers from another source --
2 in this case, all the sources Mr. Malhotra told us about --
3 it is their numbers, not his numbers but their numbers, and 4 what he is doing is tabulating them and calculating them.

5 THE COURT: I heard him say that at least some 6 portion of this, which he didn't specify, was done in 7 collaboration.

8 MR. STEWART: Well, let me -- but that's why I asked
9 him this other question about which of these --
10 collaboration, and I will ask him this --

11 MR. DECHIARA: Your Honor, may I be heard?

12 THE COURT: One second.

13 MR. STEWART: It sounded from his testimony he met
14 with him and worked with him to learn the numbers. When I
15 asked him which assumptions were his assumptions, not the 16 assumptions of the people who gave him the numbers, the 17 answer were they're not his assumptions.

18 THE COURT: His answer was, "We collaborated."

19 MR. STEWART: Well, I thought -- maybe I heard
20 him -- I must have heard him differently than your Honor
21 heard him. I thought the answer -- well, should we ask him
22 again?

23 BY MR. STEWART:

24 Q Mr. Malhotra, of these numbers, which ones are your 25 assumptions?

1 A EY has made no assumptions that these are EY's numbers.
2 I want to make that -- that's what I'm making clear.

3 Q So these numbers came to you from who?

4 A The numbers with respect to -- there are a lot of numbers
5 on this page. The numbers with respect to all of the debt
6 service would have been picked up from the city's CAFR. The 7 numbers on the health benefits or pension retiree
8 contributions would have come from the city's actuaries. The 9 numbers for the actual headcount for all of the departments
10 and the associated costs would have come from the city and 11 its departments. The numbers with respect to the health
12 costs for the active employees on a per head basis would have 13 come from the city's actuaries. The numbers with respect to 14 state revenue sharing would have come from the state
15 directly. The numbers for property taxes, income taxes, and 16 wagering taxes, those numbers, in terms of the assumptions,
17 were validated, collaborated, between our team and the city
18 in terms of the assumptions behind the revenue assumptions.

19 Q When you say "assumptions," you mean --

20 THE COURT: One second.

21 BY MR. STEWART:

22 Q -- the number that's there?

23 THE COURT: I need to hear from counsel at this
24 point.

25 MR. STEWART: Okay. Go ahead.

1 MR. DECHIARA: Your Honor, to the extent the 2 information in this exhibit comes from actuaries who are not
3 on the witness stand, those numbers are hearsay and should 4 not come in.

5 THE COURT: Well, but the document is already in
6 evidence.

7 MR. DECHIARA: Your Honor, and also I would say,
8 too, the witness is testifying about a process that took a 9 high degree of expertise. I don't think I or most of the 10 people in this room, let alone the man on the street, would 11 be able to take these raw data and convert them into ten-year
12 projections. It took the sophisticated work of an Ernst &
13 Young team to put it together. This is in the nature -- this 14 is the very essence of expert testimony.

15 THE COURT: I agree. I do.

16 MR. STEWART: All right. Your Honor, what we may 17 ask leave to do is to submit perhaps a memoranda raising this 18 with your Honor later on so we can move on now.

19 THE COURT: You may, of course.

20 MR. STEWART: Yeah. Okay. Your Honor, since --

21 UNIDENTIFIED SPEAKER: May I ask you --

22 MR. STEWART: Yes. Your Honor, one other thing.
23 Since it's in evidence, I assume I am allowed to at least ask
24 the witness what it says, and objections go to weight.

25 THE COURT: Well, it's duplicative to do that, but I

1 suppose to make a point you could ask briefly for the witness
2 to review what it says.

3 MR. STEWART: Well, I'm going to just ask him to 4 look at the far right column, and then I'm going to -- pardon
5 me, your Honor. I'll move on to my next question.

6 MR. RUEGGER: Excuse me. Objection. Arthur Ruegger
7 from Dentons on behalf --

8 THE COURT: I need you to move that microphone
9 closer, sir.

10 MR. RUEGGER: I'll try, Judge. Is this better?

11 THE COURT: Hold the base closer.

12 MR. RUEGGER: Don't spill the water.

13 THE COURT: There you go. Much better. Much
14 better. Thank you.

15 MR. RUEGGER: Your Honor, we submit the document
16 speaks for itself. Any further narrative from this witness 17 is in the nature of asking for his expertise on that.

18 THE COURT: Well, it doesn't take an expert to read
19 it, so I'll permit it.

20 MR. RUEGGER: Very well, your Honor.

21 MR. STEWART: Could we simply blow up the far right
22 column?

23 BY MR. STEWART:

24 Q As a result of your calculations, Mr. Malhotra, what did
25 your spreadsheet conclude was the ten-year adjusted deficit

1 the city was facing?

2 A The spreadsheet would have said that revenues would be
3 10.4 billion, operating expenditures would be 7.4 billion,
4 and legacy expenditures would be 7 billion over this ten-year
5 time frame for a surplus/deficit of almost $4 billion, a
6 negative $3.93 billion.

7 Q All right. So did there come a time when you sat down
8 with the emergency manager to talk about these projections?

9 A Yes.

10 Q Now, in preparing the projections, what did you do to 11 make them as accurate as you knew how to make them accurate?

12 MR. SHERWOOD: Objection. Calls for analysis of 13 projections that have been --

14 THE COURT: I'm sorry, sir. I can't hear you.

15 MR. SHERWOOD: Objection. Calls for improper
16 opinion testimony. These are -- he's being asked to testify
17 about projections that are properly the subject of expert
18 testimony.

19 MR. STEWART: I think I asked him what he did to try
20 to be accurate.

21 THE COURT: No. The objection is sustained.

22 MR. STEWART: Okay.

23 BY MR. STEWART:

24 Q In your conversations with Mr. Orr, what did you say to 25 him about your ten-year projections?

1 MR. SHERWOOD: Same objection.

2 THE COURT: That objection is overruled. Please
3 answer.

4 THE WITNESS: What we said is that if you look at 5 simply the operating --

6 THE COURT: You said --

7 THE WITNESS: I said.

8 THE COURT: You said, "we said."

9 THE WITNESS: What I said is if you look at the 10 total operating revenues and the total operating
11 expenditures, the city still has a surplus of roughly $3
12 billion. However, when you layer in the legacy costs of 13 roughly $7 billion over the next ten years, the city has a 14 deficit of almost $4 billion over that ten-year time frame.

15 BY MR. STEWART:

16 Q And what did he say to you?

17 A I don't remember specifically about what he said back to 18 me.

19 Q Now, June 14 was the date of a meeting we've been -- I've 20 been asking you about, I believe. This document was a 21 document passed out that day; correct?

22 A Yes.

23 Q Before moving on from the meeting, let me ask you this.
24 Were questions asked by anyone at that meeting on June 14?

25 A Yes. There were questions asked.

1 Q Do you remember any of the questions that were asked or 2 who asked them?

3 A I don't know who asked them, but there were questions
4 about the assumptions and the liquidity position of the city.

5 Q And am I correct in understanding that when you addressed
6 the people attending that meeting that day, you were speaking
7 about the spreadsheets I've asked you about this afternoon?

8 A That is correct.

9 Q And were questions asked of you then about those 10 spreadsheets?

11 A There were -- yes, there were questions about it.

12 Q Okay. Let me move to another subject. You're aware of a 13 security called the certificates of participation --

14 A Yes.

15 Q -- or sometimes called pension obligation certificates?

16 A Yes, I am aware.

17 Q For the record, can you tell us what those are?

18 A Those are -- certificates of pension are the funds that 19 the city borrowed back in about 2005 to help fund the 20 underfunding on the two pension systems.

21 Q And did the city have obligations to service the interest
22 or principal of those securities?

23 A Yes.

24 Q And do you know what the city's obligation was?

25 A As of June of 2013, the city had a $40 million payment

1 that was due to those -- on behalf of those POC's.

2 Q And what did the city do with respect to that payment?

3 A The city did not make that payment.

4 Q The city defaulted on it?

5 A Yes. That is correct.

6 Q What effect did that default have upon the city's cash
7 position?

8 A It improved the cash position by $40 million at the end
9 of -- June 30, 2012.

10 Q What conversations, if any, did you have with the 11 emergency manager or his advisors on the subject of the 12 decision to default on the COPs?

13 A I do not recall of a specific discussion with Kevyn Orr
14 on defaulting on the swaps.

15 Q Let's move on to another set of meetings. Did you attend 16 meetings held on June 20th, 2013, with representatives of the 17 pension plans?

18 A I do.

19 Q And am I correct in remembering there were two meetings
20 that day?

21 A That is correct.

22 Q The morning meeting was with the nonuniformed pension
23 plan, the GRS?

24 A Yes.

25 Q And the afternoon meeting was with who?

1 A With police and fire.

2 Q Okay. And we have put up the first exhibit -- I believe
3 this is in evidence -- Exhibit 48. Can you tell me what 4 Exhibit 48 is?

5 A It's the presentation that was used for the meeting with 6 the nonuniform retirees on June 20th.

7 Q And let's go back. Just ask you a question. Towards the 8 back of this, are there projections that were included in 9 here that you or Ernst & Young had prepared? Let's look at 10 page 4 and page 5. Are these projections you prepared?

11 A Page 4 was a summary of the legacy expenditures,
12 historical, actual, and forecast. That would have been 13 information on the pension and health benefits we received
14 from the city's actuaries.

15 Q Okay. And the next page?

16 A Page 5 was the ten-year projections for the general fund
17 only under a restructuring scenario that highlighted claims
18 or amounts that were available to service unsecured claims.

19 Q Now let's go back to the meeting itself. How long did
20 the morning meeting last?

21 A Probably about three hours.

22 Q And who was there?

23 A It was the city's advisors along with the members from 24 the -- some retirees and some of the members from the 25 Retirement System.

1 Q Were questions asked?

2 A There were some questions asked.

3 Q Do you remember the questions?

4 A They were questions about the cash position of the city.
5 They were questions about the city's ability to make any 6 changes to specific legacy liabilities.

7 Q Do you remember any questions being directed to you?

8 A They were -- yes. I remember questions that came up with 9 respect to the cash flows of the city.

10 Q And do you recall who in particular asked you those 11 questions --

12 A No, I don't.

13 Q -- or what you said in response to them?

14 A No, I don't.

15 Q Was Mr. Orr there that day?

16 A He was not.

17 Q Let's go to the next exhibit, if we could, which is 18 Exhibit 49. Is this the handout that was given in the 19 afternoon meeting?

20 A Yes, it was.

21 Q And tell me about the afternoon meeting. First of all, I
22 should have asked where these meetings were held.

23 A These meetings were held at City Hall.

24 Q And how long did the afternoon meeting last?

25 A About two or three hours.

1 Q Who attended?

2 A It was the city's advisors along with some
3 representatives from the Retirement Systems as well as I
4 thought some active employees.

5 Q And, once again, if you look towards the back, are there
6 portions of this document that was prepared by you or someone
7 else at E&Y?

8 A Yes. We helped pull together pages 4 and 5 for this 9 particular presentation.

10 Q Okay. Now, page 4, which we have, has legacy
11 liabilities, some for fiscal years that have already ended --

12 A That is correct.

13 Q -- and others that are projected?

14 A Yes.

15 Q And where did your numbers come from for these?

16 A The debt service numbers, the scheduled debt service, as 17 the amortization tables exist today, the POC principal and 18 interest payments were, again, based on the current 19 amortization schedules. The POC swaps payments were based on 20 the existing swap schedule. The pension contributions and 21 the health benefits for retirees would have come based on the 22 assumptions that were provided to us by the city's actuaries.

23 Q Now, let me ask you about the substance of the meeting.
24 Did you make any part of the presentation that afternoon?

25 A I did.

1 Q What parts of the presentation did you make?

2 A I would have focused on pages 4 and 5 in terms of laying
3 out what the financial position of the city was.

4 Q Were questions asked of you that day, that afternoon?

5 A I don't remember specific questions that afternoon.

6 Q Where were matters left at the end of the morning
7 meeting?

8 A They were generally left to have an open dialogue and 9 communication flow between the city's advisors and the 10 participants in the meeting.

11 Q And at the end of the afternoon meeting?

12 A It was the same.

13 Q Let's look at the next exhibit, Exhibit 51. Can you tell
14 us what Exhibit 51 is?

15 A Exhibit 51 is the ten-year plan in terms of the forecast
16 that was available at that point of time as of June 21st.

17 Q Did you attend a meeting on June 25th with 18 representatives of the bondholders?

19 A I did.

20 Q And where was that meeting held?

21 A That meeting was held in New York.

22 Q Who attended?

23 A It was bondholders and bond insurers and their financial 24 advisors.

25 Q Was Exhibit 51 a document given to them that day?

1 A Yes. That was the document that we went through on that
2 particular day.

3 Q Do you remember which bond insurers you met with or 4 bondholders you met with on the 25th?

5 A Yes. Ambac was there. I think Assured was there.
6 National, advisors from FGIC, advisors from Syncora. Those 7 are actually some of the ones that I remember specifically.
8 It was a pretty big meeting.

9 Q And I apologize if I asked you this. How long did you
10 meet with them?

11 A We met with them for at least four to five hours.

12 Q What was the purpose of that meeting?

13 A The purpose of the meeting was to have a subsequent 14 discussion and Q&A on the assumptions behind the information
15 that was shared as of June 20th.

16 Q Do you remember any questions you were asked?

17 A There were a lot of questions with respect to the 18 assumptions underlying the ten-year projections and the 19 details in terms of how those numbers were built up.

20 Q And once again, where were matters left at the end of the 21 June 25th meeting?

22 A They were left to have follow-up meetings on an 23 individual basis with certain bondholders or the insurers to 24 have more specific discussions around the business plan.

25 Q Let me direct your attention to July 9. Were there

1 meetings that day with bondholders or insurers for 2 bondholders?

3 A Yes.

4 Q And where were those meetings?

5 A Those meetings were held in Detroit.

6 Q And did you attend them?

7 A Yes.

8 Q How long did they last?

9 A The morning meeting lasted about four or five hours.

10 Q And then I assume there was an afternoon meeting as well?

11 A Yeah. There was an afternoon meeting. My recollection
12 is with the pension systems, I believe. There were a lot of 13 meetings during this time frame.

14 Q How long was your meeting with the pension systems?

15 A I think we had a meeting for about two or three hours.

16 Q What was the purpose of the morning meeting?

17 A The morning meeting was generally to have additional 18 dialogue and discussions around the assumptions of the 19 business plan.

20 Q Do you remember who you met with in particular that 21 morning?

22 A I remember it was the financial advisors for National.
23 It was the financial advisors for FGIC, Assured were the some 24 of the names that at least come to mind.

25 Q In this period, did the city, to your knowledge, make any

1 proposals to the bondholders to resolve their claims?

2 A The city made a proposal or a framework for a proposal in
3 its June 14th presentation.

4 Q Did the bondholders at any point or any subgroup of 5 bondholders make a proposal to the city at some point?

6 A My understanding is yes. I have not reviewed a proposal
7 from the bondholders in detail.

8 Q Do you remember when that proposal was made?

9 A My recollection is it was prior to the city filing.

10 Q Okay. Now, in the afternoon meeting, what was the reason
11 for meeting with the two pensions on the afternoon of July 9?

12 A It was to have additional discussions around the 13 assumptions that the city's actuaries were using with respect
14 to not only the size of the claim but also to ascertain the 15 contribution levels required over the next ten years for the 16 pension systems.

17 Q And I apologize if I've asked you this before. At the 18 end of that afternoon meeting with the pensions, what was 19 supposed to happen next, if anything?

20 A There was supposed to be a process to try and understand
21 the assumptions, the actuarial assumptions, and thereby
22 derive -- have an understanding of the amount of the claim
23 and then have subsequent discussions around the amount of 24 funding that the city may or may not be able to afford over the 25 long term.

1 Q Okay. Now, let's now go to July 18.

2 THE COURT: Excuse me, Mr. Stewart.

3 MR. STEWART: Yes.

4 THE COURT: I'm sorry to be such a nuisance about 5 this, but please try not to wander so far from the 6 microphone.

7 MR. STEWART: Oh, sorry, Judge.

8 THE COURT: Part of our issue here is that we have 9 overflow courtrooms where people are trying to hear what we 10 say, so it's not just a question of the recording, which is 11 important, but other people are listening in as well.

12 MR. STEWART: I'll do better, your Honor. Sorry.

13 BY MR. STEWART:

14 Q Let me direct your attention, if I could, now to July 18.
15 Were you asked on or about July 18 to execute a declaration
16 in connection with Detroit's bankruptcy filing?

17 A Yes, I was.

18 Q How many days before July 18 did you start working on 19 your declaration?

20 A I don't recall the specific number of days. It was 21 sometime in June. Late June is I think where we started it.

22 Q And do you -- how much of your declaration did you write,
23 and how much of it was written by others for you?

24 A A majority of it -- of the declaration was written by me
25 in conjunction with counsel.

1 Q Now, your declaration has a number of attachments to it,
2 and I'm going to put them up before I question you about
3 them. And let's start with Exhibit -- Attachment A, which is 4 Exhibit 9. And is that one of the exhibits to your 5 declaration?

6 A It is.

7 Q And is this a document you or someone else at E&Y
8 prepared?

9 A Yes.

10 Q And what is it?

11 MR. RUEGGER: Your Honor, objection. We objected to 12 this document. It is forecasts, which we think would require
13 expert testimony. We believe any testimony related to it
14 should be excluded on that grounds.

15 THE COURT: The document is in evidence?

16 MR. RUEGGER: No, your Honor.

17 THE COURT: It's not?

18 MR. STEWART: It's not, Judge. I'm going to ask him
19 now about his dealings with Mr. Orr on the document; however,
20 we also designated this document and the next two as 21 summaries under Federal Rule of Evidence 1006 since they 22 accumulate voluminous evidence which we made available to the 23 objectors.

24 THE COURT: What does this document purport to do or 25 to be without telling me what its contents are?

1 THE WITNESS: It was meant to be to show the two
2 years of actual cash activity for the general fund and what
3 the city's cash position was at the end of fiscal year 2013
4 and fiscal year 2012, the magnitude of the deferrals over
5 that time frame, your Honor, and then the two-year forecast
6 beyond that time frame.

7 THE COURT: And so how was the document compiled?

8 THE WITNESS: Your Honor, the actuals for the first 9 two years were compiled based on the receipts and 10 disbursements activity that we were able to ascertain for the 11 bank accounts. Your Honor, for the next two years, with 12 respect to the different line items, I can walk through the 13 assumptions, but --

14 THE COURT: By "the next two years," you mean fiscal 15 year '14 and '15?

16 THE WITNESS: That is right, your Honor.

17 THE COURT: No need. I'll admit the document as to 18 actual and preliminary for 2012 and 2013, but the objection
19 is sustained as to the forecasts.

20 MR. STEWART: Thank you, your Honor.

21 (Debtor's Exhibit 9 received at 4:33 p.m.)

22 BY MR. STEWART:

23 Q Is this a document you discussed with the emergency
24 manager or his advisors, Mr. Malhotra, on or before the date
25 you executed your declaration?

1 A Yes.

2 Q And why did you discuss it with them?

3 A Because it showed the status of the city's liquidity
4 position right around that time frame and in the subsequent 5 few months.

6 Q And what did you say to the emergency manager or his 7 advisors about the city's liquidity position at that time or 8 in the coming periods?

9 A What I said is that the city's liquidity position at the 10 end of fiscal year 2013 had improved by roughly $40 million
11 because the city did not make the POC payment that was due in 12 June -- on June 15, 2013. And what I said is that over the 13 next two years the city was going to have a significant cash
14 burn for each particular year based on the disbursements
15 significantly exceeding receipts.

16 Q What did you tell Mr. Orr --

17 THE COURT: Excuse me one second. Again, we have to 18 clarify your language. You used the phrase P-O-C. What does 19 that mean?

20 THE WITNESS: Your Honor, I was referring to the 21 pension obligation certificate --

22 THE COURT: Okay.

23 THE WITNESS: -- and the payment that was due on 24 June 15th.

25 THE COURT: And then you used the phrase "cash

1 burn." What does that refer to?

2 THE WITNESS: Your Honor, that refers to the city's 3 operating disbursements exceeding its receipts or its --
4 city's total disbursements exceeding its receipts thereby
5 reducing the cash over a specified time frame.

6 BY MR. STEWART:

7 Q And so you've told us what you said to Mr. Orr. Did you
8 tell him what the cash position was going to be at this rate
9 in the coming years?

10 A Yes, I did.

11 Q And what did you tell him?

12 A I would have -- what I said is that the city's cash
13 position net of deferrals could be approximately $143 million
14 negative at the end of fiscal year 2014 not making -- while 15 not repaying any of the deferrals that had already been made
16 as of that point of time or without unpooling any of the cash
17 that the city had -- has currently pooled.

18 Q And if the city had unpooled the cash or paid up the 19 deferrals, what did you tell him the cash position was going 20 to be?

21 A What I said is that the city's cash position for -- would 22 have been almost $150 million worse off if the pension
23 contributions that had been deferred till that time frame
24 were made as well as if the deferred POC payment had been 25 made. If the pooled cash had to be unpooled, that amount

1 would be roughly an additional $90 million based on what was
2 in the CAFR.

3 Q For a total cash shortfall of how much?

4 A Before the --

5 MR. DECHIARA: Objection.

6 THE WITNESS: -- unpooling of cash, it would --

7 MR. DECHIARA: Objection. Your Honor, I just am
8 objecting to the extent that this -- what the witness is 9 recounting he's saying to Mr. Orr, I just want to make clear
10 that that's not coming into the record as the truth of the 11 matter -- of the statements he's making to Mr. Orr. If 12 that's clear, I have no objection, but the line is getting 13 pretty blurred, and I think it's getting pretty close to the 14 line.

15 THE COURT: I'm concerned about that. I share your 16 concern. You used a phrase again that needs clarification, 17 "unpool."

18 MR. STEWART: We were talking about the pooled
19 funds, your Honor. Those were the --

20 THE COURT: I'm asking the witness.

21 MR. STEWART: Thanks.

22 THE COURT: What does "unpool the cash" mean?

23 THE WITNESS: Your Honor, what I was -- what I meant
24 to say is if the pooled cash had to be restricted or 25 segregated out of the general fund, that's what I was

1 referring to the unpooling of cash.

2 THE COURT: Okay.

3 BY MR. STEWART:

4 Q What did Mr. Orr say to you?

5 A On this particular document, the discussions with Mr. Orr
6 or specifically also the other advisors was the magnitude --

7 MR. RUEGGER: Your Honor, I'm sorry to interrupt the 8 witness, but I thought the question was what did Mr. -- what 9 was the conversation with Mr. Orr.

10 MR. STEWART: Or his advisors.

11 MR. RUEGGER: And I thought the witness was just 12 describing a conversation that might not have been with 13 Mr. Orr but might have been with the advisors. If I
14 misheard, then I apologize.

15 MR. STEWART: I thought I said Mr. Orr or his 16 advisors, but if not I'll reask the question.

17 MR. RUEGGER: Thank you.

18 THE COURT: Okay.

19 BY MR. STEWART:

20 Q What did Mr. Orr or his advisors say to you?

21 A The specific discussions on this particular page were 22 around the magnitude of the city's cash disbursements
23 exceeding its cash receipts in terms of how dire the 24 situation was with respect to the general fund's cash
25 position.

1 Q Page 2 of our exhibit is -- let's put it up there, and
2 let me ask you just what this is.

3 MR. RUEGGER: Your Honor, objection. It's a
4 forecast. I'd rather not have any testimony on this.

5 THE COURT: I'm sorry. Did you say you'd rather not
6 have any testimony about it?

7 MR. RUEGGER: And I'll rephrase my objection with 8 all due respect, your Honor. Objection. It's a forecast,
9 your Honor.

10 MR. STEWART: My question is what is this document?

11 THE COURT: Yeah. I think we can get at least that 12 much in.

13 MR. STEWART: Yeah.

14 BY MR. STEWART:

15 Q What is this document?

16 A It's the monthly cash flow forecast for fiscal year 2014
17 under base case.

18 THE COURT: I'm sorry. Under what?

19 THE WITNESS: Under base case.

20 THE COURT: Base case, which means --

21 THE WITNESS: So, your Honor, on this it means the 22 city continuing to make its payments for both all unsecured
23 claims per schedule and no restructuring initiatives such as 24 any benefits from the bankruptcy protection may avail. It
25 was the city paying its payments as they came due based on

1 the information that we had, including information from the
2 actuaries.

3 THE COURT: Like steady state before?

4 THE WITNESS: That is correct, your Honor.

5 BY MR. STEWART:

6 Q And did you discuss your conclusions with Mr. Orr or his 7 advisors?

8 A Yes.

9 Q Let's put up the next exhibit, 10, for identification.
10 Mr. Malhotra, I think we have Exhibit 10 for identification,
11 which is Exhibit B to your declaration. Is this a ten-year
12 financial projection?

13 A Yes, it is.

14 Q Did you discuss this with Mr. Orr or his advisors?

15 A Yes, I did.

16 Q And what did you say to him, and what did he say to you
17 or his advisors say to you about the ten-year projections?

18 A What the --

19 MR. RUEGGER: Objection. Your Honor, this is the 20 same issue that Mr. DeChiara raised. A discussion of 21 forecasts is essentially I think a back door around your 22 ruling, so we'd object to the question and the answer.

23 THE COURT: Well, I'll permit the witness to answer
24 this question with the understanding that the document is not 25 in evidence and the witness' testimony about what the

1 document says is only for the purpose of the truth of what he
2 told Mr. Orr, not for the truth of the statements themselves.

3 MR. RUEGGER: Thank you, your Honor.

4 BY MR. STEWART:

5 Q And what did you say to Mr. Orr about the conclusions you
6 had reached in the document?

7 A What I said is that the city's revenues over the ten
8 years, approximately $10-1/2 billion, and the city's 9 operating expenditures over these next ten years,
10 approximately $7-1/2 billion, for roughly a $3 billion
11 operating surplus. What I said specifically around the 12 legacy liabilities was based on the current amortization
13 schedule and the information that we have received from the 14 actuaries, the legacy costs could be in excess $7 billion
15 over the ten years, which would result in a potential
16 operating -- a potential deficit to the tune of $4 billion
17 over the next ten years.

18 MR. STEWART: Let's put up Exhibit 11 if we could.

19 BY MR. STEWART:

20 Q Can you tell us what Exhibit 11 is?

21 A Exhibit 11 is the five years of actual legacy
22 expenditures and five years of a forecast on the scheduled
23 debt service as it exists today or the pension and health -- 24 retiree healthcare information we received from the 25 actuaries.

1 MR. STEWART: Let's blow up, if we could, the part
2 that deals with the fiscal years ended between 2008 and 2012.

3 BY MR. STEWART:

4 Q Are those numbers numbers relating to years that had 5 already -- where the books had already been closed?

6 A That is correct.

7 Q Where did your numbers come from?

8 A The numbers would have come from -- for the debt service,
9 the POC's, would have come from the city. The pension
10 contributions and the health benefits, the retirees -- for 11 the retirees would have also come from the city in 12 conjunction with the city's actuaries on the allocation of 13 what was for public safety versus nonpublic safety or DDOT.

14 MR. STEWART: Your Honor, I would move this portion 15 of the document into evidence since it reflects only 16 historical data.

17 THE COURT: Any objections? All right. The Court
18 will admit this document. What was the exhibit number again
19 just so we're clear?

20 MR. STEWART: 11, I believe, Judge.

21 THE COURT: All right. Admitted Exhibit 11, 2008
22 through '12 only.

23 (Debtor's Exhibit 11 received at 4:45 p.m.)

24 BY MR. STEWART:

25 Q And then go back to the full document if you could, and

1 as to the overall document, Mr. Malhotra, did you have 2 discussions with the emergency manager or his advisors about
3 it?

4 A Yes, I did.

5 Q And why did you discuss it with them?

6 A We discussed it in the context of the legacy expenditures
7 continuing to have an increasing percentage of the overall
8 general fund revenues compared to where the city was five
9 years ago, compared to where the city was headed by 2017,
10 that the weight of the legacy expenditures was almost going 11 to close to double based on the projections that we had been 12 given.

13 Q And what did the -- Mr. Orr or his advisors say to you in 14 response to the points that you made?

15 A Specifically, they were surprised in terms of the 16 magnitude of the increase in pension and retiree healthcare
17 costs over the next five years.

18 MR. DECHIARA: Objection. Lack of foundation.
19 Testifying to the state of mind of the --

20 THE COURT: It actually wasn't the question. The 21 question was what did they say.

22 THE WITNESS: They basically said that the costs
23 going up from where they were five years ago to where they 24 were ten years ago -- I specifically remember that it was 25 almost going to double -- was the response that I got back on

1 this particular page.

2 THE COURT: Okay. Can you try to specify for us
3 when these conversations were that Mr. Stewart has been 4 asking you about?

5 THE WITNESS: Sure. On this particular document we
6 would have had -- which was also as a part of the June 14th
7 proposal, your Honor, so we would have had meetings with 8 Mr. Orr and the other advisors all through the June time
9 frame and even in some of the May time frame, so there were a 10 series of meetings that we had.

11 THE COURT: At which these documents were discussed?

12 THE WITNESS: Yes. The June 14th proposal, your 13 Honor, was pulled together over a period of time, so there 14 were specific documents that were discussed in those 15 meetings.

16 MR. STEWART: Your Honor, I have a demonstrative
17 exhibit I would like to use, but before putting it up on the 18 screen, since there have been objections, it's Exhibit 38.
19 Why don't we put it up on the screen? Judge, this is a 20 graphic representation of what the witness already has 21 testified to that he told Mr. Orr was the city's cash 22 position as the witness had seen it, and what I would like to 23 ask the witness is does this represent what you told Mr. Orr
24 or his advisors about what you believe the city's cash
25 position was going to look like in the coming year?

1 MR. RUEGGER: Objection. Leading, and it's also a
2 forecast.

3 MR. STEWART: I can ask it in a nonleading way,
4 Judge, but --

5 MR. RUEGGER: Then just forecast.

6 THE COURT: Yeah. You can fix the question. No.
7 The objection is sustained.

8 MR. STEWART: Okay. Now, your Honor, as to these 9 last three exhibits and actually also this chart, I'd like to 10 move them into evidence on another ground. And as I
11 mentioned, we identified these to the objectors as documents
12 that qualified as summaries over Federal -- under Federal 13 Rule of Evidence 1006. In other words, they compiled and 14 pulled together voluminous records that could not 15 conveniently or easily otherwise be made into proofs. That 16 was done with proper notice. As the rule requires, we 17 notified the objectors of this. We told them we have the 18 underlying records available for your examination. If you
19 wish to see them, please come and do so. One person did call
20 to say they'd like to see them but never, in fact, came. I
21 would submit that we have actually satisfied the requirements
22 of Rule 1006 by doing this and that as simple summaries of 23 voluminous information they qualify for admission.

24 MR. RUEGGER: Your Honor, I think Mr. Stewart
25 misunderstands our objection. It's not that there's a lot of

1 data underlying any of these documents. That might very well
2 be, but they are forecasts, which require, in our view,
3 expert testimony, which is not in the courtroom, so we're not
4 objecting due to the volume of the underlying data. It's 5 because they are forecasts.

6 THE COURT: I do agree with that. The motion is 7 denied.

8 MR. STEWART: Well, your Honor, could I be heard
9 just one more --

10 THE COURT: All right.

11 MR. STEWART: -- one more moment on this? The fact
12 they are forecasts doesn't, per se, change anything. They 13 would have to be opinions before they're excludable. It's 14 been testified he --

15 THE COURT: But why isn't the forecast an opinion
16 about what's being forecast?

17 MR. STEWART: Well, it's possible to have forecasts
18 that are factual, that are extrapolations, that are not
19 really opinions, and there are forecasts rendered many times
20 that don't involve experts. In fact, the two decisions I
21 cited earlier involved financial analysts much like
22 Mr. Malhotra who pulled together documents from which then 23 conclusions could be reached about the probability of 24 something happening or not happening. The fact --

25 THE COURT: They involve forecasts?

1 MR. STEWART: These did not.

2 THE COURT: Financial forecasts?

3 MR. STEWART: These involved complicated personal
4 financial records, but they did involve an ultimate issue
5 such as could this person have possibly afforded this item
6 based on his or her income or --

7 THE COURT: In the past.

8 MR. STEWART: Well, it's past, but if a forecast is 9 based on information that is either historical or is made
10 available as information about a forecast --

11 THE COURT: I have to say I'm not persuaded, but if 12 you can find me a case which says that a forecast does not 13 involve expertise, I'll certainly consider it.

14 MR. STEWART: Okay, your Honor. We will do that.

15 THE COURT: We'll leave it open to that extent.

16 MR. STEWART: Thank you. That's all I have of this
17 witness, your Honor.

18 THE COURT: All right. Well, we won't press on with 19 cross-examination now. We will break for the day and 20 reconvene at nine o'clock tomorrow morning. Before we go --
21 ah, Ms. Patek has something, and then I have something.

22 MS. PATEK: Your Honor, this is just a brief
23 housekeeping matter about a matter of a summary exhibit that 24 came in at the beginning of the day, and this was something
25 Mr. Irwin and I had talked about, and there was an error on

1 it. It was to be corrected, and it didn't get corrected, but 2 it's going to be corrected on the --

3 THE COURT: All right. Let me ask the two of you to 4 consult about that and get back to me first thing in the 5 morning. I have been asked to remind you that although this 6 courtroom will be locked overnight, there may and probably
7 will be people in here doing what they regularly do, the IT
8 staff, court staff, cleaning staff, so you are free to leave
9 your equipment and property here with that understanding or,
10 of course, you can take it with you. And I remind you once
11 again please be quiet, perfectly quiet in the hallways. And 12 we'll reconvene at nine o'clock tomorrow morning.

13 THE CLERK: All rise. Court is adjourned.

1 (Court in Session)

2 THE CLERK: All rise. Court is in session. Please
3 be seated. Case number 13-53846, City of Detroit, Michigan.

4 THE COURT: Is anybody not here? All right. Well,
5 then let's assume everyone's here and we don't have to repeat
6 appearances.

7 A couple of housekeeping matters. Mr. Stewart, I
8 received and actually read the memorandum that was filed a few
9 minutes ago on this issue of allowing the witness to testify
10 about projections. Thank you to whoever on your staff stayed 11 up all night doing that.

12 MR. STEWART: Unfortunately Mr. DiPompeo did, Your
13 Honor.

14 THE COURT: Well, thanks to him. As a matter of 15 process, however, before we have any further argument on it,
16 it is appropriate to -- to take some time not only for us, but 17 for the objecting parties to study it and look at the cases
18 that have been cited and prepare.

19 So I think we'll proceed with his cross examination. And 20 perhaps reconsider the issue after lunch.

21 The second housekeeping item is in regard to the 22 Governor's testimony. Is Mr. Schneider here? Mr. Howell is 23 here. Is it -- is it --

24 MR. HOWELL: Dickinson, Wright. Special Assistant

1 THE COURT: Thank you, sir. Is it the parties'
2 agreement and the Governor's intention to appear at 1:00 on 3 Monday?

4 MR. HOWELL: I don't know if that -- I believe
5 that's the plan without the limitations suggested.

6 THE COURT: Okay. I --

7 MR. DECHIARA: I'm sorry, Your Honor, I was 8 distracted for a moment.

9 MR. HOWELL: If I may, Your Honor, I -- I believe
10 the -- there is ongoing discussions between Matthew. He's 11 meeting today with the Governor to work those details out.
12 But I thought the offer was 1:00 on Monday.

13 MR. DECHIARA: Yes. The state offered to produce
14 the Governor at 1:00 on Monday and there's no agreement as to 15 any limitation on the time of his testimony.

16 MR. HOWELL: Okay. That is correct, Your Honor.

17 THE COURT: Okay. Then in -- in that circumstance,
18 the Court will change its plans and we will run Court until 19 5:00 instead of our previously scheduled time of 3:00 because 20 I don't want to have to require the Governor to come back a
21 second day on account of my schedule. So we'll plan on going 22 until at least 5:00 on Monday to try to get all of his 23 testimony in in one -- one day.

24 MR. DECHIARA: Thank you, Your Honor. We appreciate
25 it.

1 MR. HOWELL: Thank you, Your Honor. We appreciate
2 the accommodation.

3 THE COURT: Okay.

4 MR. HOWELL: Thank you very much.

5 THE COURT: All right. Let's proceed with the 6 testimony then.

7 MR. RUEGGER: Your Honor, excuse me. Art Ruegger
8 for Dentons on behalf of the Retiree Committee.

9 We respectfully request a little more time to read the 10 memo from Jones, Day and -- and respond.

11 THE COURT: Do what you can over lunch and then
12 we'll see if we need any more time.

13 MR. RUEGGER: Very well, Your Honor.

14 THE COURT: Sir, would you resume the witness stand?
15 And you're still under oath so you may just have a seat and 16 we'll continue with the examination.

17 (WITNESS GAURAV MALHOTRA WAS PREVIOUSLY SWORN)

18 MR. SHERWOOD: Good morning, Your Honor. Jack
19 Sherwood, Lowenstein, Sandler for the record for AFSCME.

20 CROSS EXAMINATION

21 BY MR. SHERWOOD:

22 Q Mr. Malhotra, good morning.

23 A Good morning.

24 Q You were engaged by the City of Detroit in May of 2011,
25 isn't that right?

1 A That's correct.

2 Q So as of now you've been on the job for the city for over
3 two years, is that fair to say?

4 A That is correct.

5 Q And when you were initially engaged in May of 2011
6 through the appointment of Mr. Orr as the emergency manager,
7 you reported to officials, city officials, is that right?

8 A That is correct.

9 Q And some of those city officials include Kirk Lewis,
10 correct?

11 A Yes.

12 Q And who is Kirk Lewis?

13 A Kirk Lewis was the former Chief of Staff for Mayor Bing.

14 Q And Chris Brown, do you know that name?

15 A I do.

16 Q And who was Chris Brown?

17 A He was the former Chief Operating Officer for the city.

18 Q And when you say -- when you say former or -- or Mr.
19 Lewis and/or Mr. Brown, are they still employed by the City of 20 Detroit?

21 A No, they are not.

22 Q And -- and when were they -- when were they terminated by 23 the city?

24 A I don't know if they were terminated and I don't know the 25 exact date they left.

1 Q Okay. But you know that as of now they're -- they're not
2 -- they're not working for the city, correct?

3 A That's what I said earlier, yes.

4 Q And -- and -- and you're not -- you're not reporting to 5 them any -- you're not reporting to any city officials at this 6 point in time, is that fair to say?

7 A We report to Kevyn Orr. We have been reporting to Gary
8 Brown. We have been reporting to Jim Bonsall, was a former 9 Chief Financial Officer. And those were the folks we were at 10 least reporting our day to day activities on.

11 Q I just want to get this straight in terms of time, okay?
12 The -- I'm talking about since March of this year, are you
13 reporting to the Mayor or the Mayor's office since March of 14 this year when Mr. Orr was appointed?

15 A No. Our general updates are with Mr. Orr.

16 Q And since March of this year, you're not reporting to the 17 city council of the City of Detroit, isn't that right, since
18 March of this year when Mr. Orr was appointed?

19 A Not -- not specifically, no.

20 Q Now Mr. Orr was -- was appointed in -- in March of this 21 year so at the time of his appointment you have been on the 22 job with Ernst and Young for about a year and ten months,
23 correct?

24 A Sounds about right.

25 Q And in -- in -- yesterday you testified on direct about
13-53846-swr Doc 2243-15 Filed 12/19/13 Entered 12/19/13 13:44:15 Page 593 of 2386

1 various conversations, things that you told Mr. Orr and the
2 other professionals for the city, correct? Do you remember
3 that testimony from yesterday?

4 A Yes.

5 Q So I assume that when you were updating Mr. Orr and the 6 rest of the city's professionals, you drew on your year and 7 ten months worth of experience that you had working for the 8 city up to that point?

9 A For certain aspects of those updates, yes.

10 Q Do you recall in the course of your services for the 11 city, before the appointment of the emergency manager in March 12 2013, providing services in connection with the response of 13 the city to the report of the financial review team?

14 A You -- can you shorten the question so -- and which 15 financial relating --

16 Q Do -- do you recall in -- in late 2012, early 2013,
17 working with people from the city concerning the financial 18 review team's report?

19 A We were working during that time frame on the specific 20 improving -- mechanisms for improving the cash flows of the 21 city, yes.

22 Q Okay. And -- and as you just testified one of the -- one
23 of the topics that you were working on during that period was 24 improving cash flows, correct?

25 A That's right. We were looking at different alternatives
13-53846-swr Doc 2243-15 Filed 12/19/13 Entered 12/19/13 13:44:15 Page 594 of 2386

1 how the city could improve its cash flow position.

2 Q And -- and you were doing that work for the city and its
3 officials, correct? Before Mr. Orr got involved.

4 A That is correct.

5 Q Did you attend meetings in December of 2012 where the 6 issue of the city's cash flows was discussed?

7 A Meetings with who?

8 Q Members of the city's -- members of the city council,
9 members of the Mayor's staff?

10 A Yes.

11 Q All right. I'd like to refer you to a document it's 12 AFSCME 551, document 551.

13 MR. SHERWOOD: And, Your Honor, I believe there 14 are --

15 Q Are you okay with the -- with the screen or -- because I
16 think there might be some hard copies there too.

17 A I'm okay.

18 Q Okay.

19 A Thank you.

20 Q Now this letter is -- is dated February 22nd, 2013,
21 correct?

22 A That is correct.

23 Q And I'd like you to scroll down to the bottom of the 24 letter, the -- the paragraph marked cash crisis. Do you see
25 that?

1 A Yes.

2 Q And there is a reference to Ernst and Young in that
3 paragraph. And the administration, council President Pugh,
4 council President Brown, council member Cockrel, fiscal staff,
5 Ernst and Young consultant, along with Miller, Canfield met
6 over the December holiday break to come up with a cash plan
7 with counter measures to get the city through June 30th, 2013.
8 Do you recall participating in those meetings?

9 A Yes, I do.

10 Q And you see that in this letter the -- the authors
11 conclude on the first sentence that a satisfactory plan exists
12 to resolve the city's cash crisis. Do you see that?

13 A I see it. I didn't write this, but I see it.

14 Q You do see it? And but that -- this was written after 15 your -- your lengthy meetings over the holiday break, correct?

16 A I -- this was written on February 22nd. We met during the 17 December time frame to come up with different ideas how the 18 city could preserve cash which included a significant amount
19 of deferrals, yes.

20 Q Okay. But -- and as -- as a result of those meetings --

21 THE COURT: One second, counsel. Have you seen this 22 letter before?

23 A Your Honor, this letter was handed to me --

24 THE COURT: That would be a yes or a no.

25 A No.

1 THE COURT: You've never seen this letter before?

2 A It -- I have seen it, I have not read it is my answer. I
3 was given it during my deposition.

4 THE COURT: Is this letter in evidence?

5 MR. SHERWOOD: I believe it is not, Your Honor. I
6 was just asking him -- using it to refresh his recollection in 7 terms of things that happened.

8 THE COURT: Well, it's proper to refresh a witness'
9 recollection when he says he doesn't have a recollection. I
10 haven't heard that yet.

11 MR. SHERWOOD: Okay.

12 Q Did you believe in February of -- February 22nd, 2013,
13 that a satisfactory plan existed to address the city's cash
14 crisis?

15 A What a satisfactory plan means is -- is subjective. What 16 I can say is, during the December time frame we had a lot of 17 meetings with the city officials to see how the city could 18 preserve cash to -- to increase the cash position over the 19 next few months.

20 And that predominantly resulted in the city coming up
21 with a plan that said most of these would have to come through 22 deferrals because what the city could actually impact in terms
23 of permanent cost reductions, those options were very limited.
24 So the -- the majority of any savings that would come or any 25 cash increase would come, would come through the deferral of 13-53846-sw Doc 2243-15 Filed 12/19/13 Entered 12/19/13 13:44:15 Page 597 of 2386

1 either pension related costs or additional health care related
2 costs. That -- that's at least the -- what -- what I view as 3 what the plan was at that point in time.

4 Q Did you ever criticize the city or the council with 5 respect to their plans to address cash flow issues during the 6 February 2013 time period?

7 A Criticize -- indirectly criticize in terms of what the 8 satisfactory plan was?

9 Q Did you ever go to the city council or -- or the city
10 professionals and say, I disagree with your cash management,
11 cash flow plan, do something else?

12 A During this time frame I made very clear that the --
13 based on the experience that I had over the past 18 months
14 working with the city, that the options that the city was 15 undertaking to preserve cash were predominantly based on 16 deferrals and not actual structural cost savings. That's what 17 I -- I clearly highlighted.

18 Q Let me ask you about additional revenue collection during 19 the period of early 2013. Do you recall whether the city was 20 concerned about revenue collection from the 36th District Court 21 citations which the city -- where the city's share would be 22 $199,000,000?

23 A No, I do not.

24 Q You don't recall -- do you recall that that was an issue?

25 A No, I do not.

1 Q Do you recall being asked to look into the level of
2 collections from the 36th District Court in the amount of 3 $199,000,000?

4 A No, I do not.

5 Q Do you know what -- do you know whether the 36th District
6 Court is a source of revenue for the City of Detroit?

7 A I think there are some collections, yes, that come
8 through the 36th District Court. I am not exactly sure of the 9 amount off the 36th District Court collections.

10 Q You don't -- you can't even estimate what the amount of 11 the collections are from the 36th District Court for 2013?

12 A No, I cannot off the top of my head.

13 Q So Ernst and Young didn't look into those collections or 14 whether they were slower than they should be, is that fair to 15 say?

16 A That is fair. Ernst and Young did not go into any 17 specific analysis on 36th District Court on their collections.

18 Q Now you discussed a little bit yesterday about the -- the 19 general fund and the -- is all of the city's debt attributable
20 to the general fund?

21 A No.

22 Q Is -- does -- does the -- the total amount of debt that 23 the city has, does the number 14.9 billion, does that sound in 24 -- in the ballpark?

25 A The amount of debt of 14,000,000,000 sounds a little high
13-53846-swr Doc 2243-15 Filed 12/19/13 Entered 12/19/13 13:44:15 Page 599 of 2386

1 because in my mind I remember the $18,000,000,000 of long term
2 liabilities as a total number of which. And so that sounds a
3 little high to me. If you could break it down for me, it will 4 -- it will refresh my recollection.

5 Q Let me -- let me -- can we put the letter up again and 6 turn to Page 3? Under long term liabilities there --

7 MR. STEWART: Your Honor, I object. We've been over
8 this. He's not testifying to a lack of recollection. He 9 hasn't seen the letter. Unless there's a better --

10 THE COURT: Well, no. The -- the witness did
11 indicate some uncertainty about this question, so if this 12 refreshes his recollection, I'll permit it. Does this refresh
13 your recollection about the debt of the city?

14 A Yes, Your Honor, it's the long term liabilities of the 15 city which as noted here it's 14.9 billion dollars. So, yes.

16 THE COURT: Well, but the question for you is not 17 what this letter says because the letter is not in evidence.
18 The question is what do you remember after having seen this
19 letter?

20 A Your Honor, I can at least frame up what was being asked
21 of me in terms of the total indebtedness. Because when I look
22 at debt I consider this pure debt versus other long term
23 liabilities. Yes, it does at least give me a frame of 24 reference to what the question was.

1 Q And does this document -- do you agree with the statement
2 in this document that only 15% or 7.36 billion is attributable
3 to the general fund? Does that -- does that sound right to
4 you?

5 A That -- that could be an approximation based on the 6 existing assumptions with respect to unfunded liabilities from 7 a pension and -- and OPEB standpoint.

8 Q And -- and the -- the city has other business type
9 activity funds, Department of Water and Sewage, Department of 10 Transportation and Municipal Parking. And those funds are -- 11 are not part of the general fund, correct?

12 A That is correct. They're -- they're enterprise funds.

13 Q And do you know whether -- whether the -- the total
14 pension -- pension obligation of the city, is that all 15 attributable to the general fund, or is some of that 16 attributable to the enterprise funds?

17 A The -- the pension liability is due to the two systems,
18 the general retirement system and the police and fire system.
19 The general retirement system is comprised of the general fund
20 employees, as well as water and sewer employees, as well as 21 Department of Transportation employees.

22 Q So is it fair to say that some of the pension obligation
23 is -- is the responsibility of -- of water and sewer?

24 A The -- yes, that would be -- that would be -- that would 25 be a fair assumption in terms of what they have been doing.

1 Q Now in -- in again early 2013, are you aware that the
2 City of Detroit was in the process and had been in the process
3 of trying to achieve certain cost saving initiatives?

4 A I don't recall of specific initiatives in of early 2013.
5 But the city has been in a constant effort to reduce costs and 6 looking for cost savings initiatives.

7 Q And would you agree that by March of 2013, $150,000,000
8 of cost saving initiatives have been achieved by the City of 9 Detroit?

10 A Compared to what time frame?

11 Q Simply do you agree that $150,000,000 of cost savings
12 have been achieved prior to March 2013?

13 A It's -- it's difficult for me to answer a question on 14 cost savings achieved by a particular date unless you can 15 frame for me over what course of time your question is related 16 to.

17 MR. SHERWOOD: Can you -- can you put up Exhibit
18 419, please? Your Honor, I think this is in evidence.

19 THE COURT: Thank you.

20 MR. STEWART: It is.

21 Q Have you seen this report dated March of 2013, Mr.
22 Malhotra?

23 A I -- I think so. I -- I would have to see the contents,
24 Your Honor, to make sure that I understand what's in the 25 report or what the contents were.

1 THE COURT: Is it on the table over there? Is it on 2 the table over there?

3 MR. SHERWOOD: Yes, it's 419. May I approach and 4 help him, or -- or --

5 THE COURT: He can do it.

6 MR. SHERWOOD: Okay.

7 THE COURT: And while he's doing that, Mr. Stewart,
8 I have to ask you as I did the objecting attorneys yesterday,
9 to pull the microphone closer to you so that when you do speak
10 or object, the -- the microphone will pick it up.

11 MR. STEWART: Thank you, Your Honor. Will do.

12 A I'm sorry, did you say 419?

13 MR. SHERWOOD: 419, yeah.

14 A I don't see a 419.

15 THE COURT: Which binder is that in? Are they 16 labeled?

17 MR. SHERWOOD: I -- I think that would be in the 18 Retiree Committee's binder.

19 THE COURT: So you couldn't find it, sir?

20 A Your Honor, I could not see it in this particular binder
21 or these three binders. There is no number 419.

22 THE COURT: Okay. Can someone produce a copy for 23 the witness, please?

24 MR. SHERWOOD: Your Honor, I'm sure we have it in

1 number.

2 THE COURT: Okay. All right.

3 Q Can you try 522, Mr. Malhotra? It's in the -- I think
4 it's one of the black ones, probably to your right there.

5 THE COURT: It's not there -- not there either?

6 A No.

7 MR. SHERWOOD: Can I hand the witness a copy, Your
8 Honor?

9 THE COURT: Yes, please.

10 MR. SHERWOOD: May I approach?

11 THE COURT: Yes.

12 Q Have you -- you don't have to read the whole thing, but 13 are you generally familiar with -- with this document?

14 A Very briefly. I don't think we had any major part of 15 putting this document together.

16 Q And this is called the -- the City of Detroit
17 restructuring plan. It's -- it's dated March of 2013. And by 18 this time Ernst and Young had, you know, been on the job for a 19 year and ten months. Are you saying you had no input into the 20 Mayor's restructuring plan?

21 A We had a lot of things put into the Mayor's restructuring
22 plan. What you're referring to is this particular report on 23 March 2013. And what I'm saying is we did not have a 24 significant amount of input that was put into this particular
25 report.

1 Q Okay. Can you turn to Page 5 of the report? Getting
2 back to the cost saving initiatives. And if you look at the 3 -- the title of that page and -- and the first part there, it
4 says many revenue and cost saving initiatives have been 5 implemented and others have been identified to address the 6 $150,000,000 annual structural deficit.

7 And then if you look at sub paragraph (b) below that, it
8 says achieved cost saving initiatives approximately 9 $150,000,000. Do you see that?

10 A That's what's written on this page, yes.

11 Q Okay. And do you have any reason to -- to agree with -- 12 with that conclusion -- or disagree with -- with that 13 conclusion in this document?

14 A Your Honor, it's tough for me to make a -- I -- I cannot 15 make an agreement or disagreement until I understand the 16 context of the time frame where a statement is being referred 17 to. Achieve cost savings of 150,000,000, but it's over three 18 years, two years, one year, it's -- it's -- I can't put any 19 sort of reference to it.

20 Q Okay. Let me try it this way. You started in May 2011,
21 right?

22 A That is correct.

23 Q And this document was done around March of 2013. During 24 that period, did you see achieved cost savings of 25 $150,000,000?

1 A We -- we saw a lot of cost savings. I do not know if 2 they aggregated to 150,000,000 or not. I -- I would have to 3 go back and check.

4 Q Okay. Now what about -- what about reduction in debt
5 obligations of the general fund? Would you agree that the 6 debt obligations of the general fund in March of 2013 were 7 $400,000,000 lower than five years prior to that?

8 A You're referring to the outstanding debt obligations, I
9 assume. I do not know what the outstanding debt balance was 10 five years ago to be able to draw inference to a five -- or a
11 $400,000,000 number.

12 Q And I think we've -- we've covered this already. But --
13 but if you look at -- would you agree that as of -- of March 14 2013, approximately $6,000,000,000 of city debt was owed by 15 the Water and Sewer Department and does not have an impact on 16 the general fund?

17 A I -- I agree with the first part of that statement that 18 there's roughly about $6,000,000,000 of revenue bonds
19 outstanding for the Water and Sewer Department, yes.

20 Q Now, again in March 2013, you had no idea that the 21 emergency manager was -- was going to be appointed, isn't that
22 right?

23 A That is correct.

24 Q Okay. And certainly in March 2013, the -- the recovery
25 plan for the City of Detroit was not finished, correct?

1 A Sorry, what recovery plan are you referring to?

2 Q Well, were there other -- were there other cost saving
3 initiatives that the city and its advisors including yourself,
4 had planned?

5 A Going back to December of 2012.

6 Q Not --

7 A I'll just finish the answer.

8 Q Go ahead, I'm sorry, I'm sorry.

9 A And I'll answer your question. As I testified earlier,
10 in December of 2012, the city with -- along with us and some 11 of the other advisors, went through a detailed process to 12 figure out how to improve the city's cash position as I
13 testified earlier. Majority of those were related to 14 predominantly deferrals off bills that the city had due, not 15 paying them on time.

16 MR. SHERWOOD: Your Honor, I'm sorry to interrupt.
17 I -- I asked a specific question. The specific question was,
18 in March of 2013, were there future initiatives that the city
19 had planned.

20 I -- and with -- with due respect, I -- I thought the 21 answer was non-responsive. I think he was going back to 2012.
22 So I -- I'd you just to answer that question.

23 A I do not recall of specific initiatives. As of March 24 2013 from a cost savings standpoint, that were either not in 25 progress, or had not been achieved that were of significance

1 -- that were of significance in my mind that stand out, that
2 were of significance as of March of 2013.

3 Q Okay. Thank you. As of March 2013, and again this is 4 before the appointment of Mr. Orr, the city had not only
5 retained you, but it also had retained the Miller, Buckfire
6 firm and it had retained Conway, MacKenzie, isn't that right?

7 A Yes, that's correct.

8 Q So they were on the scene in March 2013 before the 9 emergency manager was appointed, correct?

10 A Yes.

11 Q And it was -- it was yourself and Mr. Moore and Mr.
12 Buckfire, it's basically the same team of professionals were 13 advising the city in their restructuring effort before Mr. Orr
14 was appointed, and those same restructuring advisors are 15 advising Mr. Orr now, true?

16 A We were all collectively advising the city from a
17 restructuring standpoint, yes.

18 Q Okay. So those advisors and yourself had been retained.
19 And if you look at -- at the document, Page 5 again going down
20 to Paragraph C.

21 Again we talked about future cost saving initiatives.

22 You said you didn't recall anything specific, but scrolling
23 through those items in C, would you agree that those had been 24 identified by the city and its professionals as potential

25 future cost saving initiatives that were in process?

1 A Yes.

2 Q Now the last one there is asset monetization strategies.

3 Do you see that?

4 A I do.

5 Q Who was the person that was involved from the 6 professional side in the asset monetization strategy?

7 A It would have been Miller, Buckfire.

8 Q And what is your -- asset monetization strategies, that 9 means taking city's assets and either financing them, or 10 selling them to raise cash to pay liabilities. Would you --
11 can we agree with that? Agree on that?

12 A Or any other -- I would say any other monetization
13 strategy to create cash for the city. That's the way I would 14 frame it.

15 Q And to the extent that assets were monetized in -- in 16 2013, those -- those monetized assets would -- would enhance 17 the cash profile, the actual cash collections during that 18 period for the general fund, let me just add that.

19 A If you sell something you would intuitively have more
20 cash. However, to answer the second part of your question,
21 which is to improve the cash profile, my personal experience
22 is, selling assets to improve cash versus -- and not 23 addressing the operational structural imbalance that exists.
24 I don't know if that improves -- improves the cash profile as 25 you put it, but if you sell assets that -- that generate cash,

1 you will have more cash, yes.

2 Q And you can use that cash to satisfy your liabilities,
3 correct?

4 A Cash is cash. So if you have more cash, you have more
5 cash.

6 Q Now, let's stay in the period of time before the 7 appointment of Mr. Orr. Were there discussions among the 8 professionals and the -- the city concerning asset
9 monetization strategies?

10 A Not that I was specifically a part of, so I do not know.

11 Q And do you recall any conversations with Miller, Buckfire
12 concerning asset monetization strategies?

13 A Yes.

14 Q Was Miller, Buckfire concerned that asset monetization in 15 March 2013 or thereabouts, would have a negative impact on the 16 City of Detroit's ability to prove that it was eligible for 17 Chapter 9 bankruptcy?

18 A That's a long question. It's -- and you asked if Miller,
19 Buckfire was concerned?

20 Q Right.

21 A I can't answer the question if Miller, Buckfire was 22 concerned or not. You would have to ask Miller, Buckfire.

23 Q Did Miller, Buckfire say anything to you? And I'm -- you
24 know, Mr. Buckfire or any of his colleagues, did he say

25 anything to you or in your presence where he or they suggested
13-53846-swr Doc 2243-15 Filed 12/19/13 Entered 12/19/13 13:44:15 Page 610 of 2386

1 that they were concerned that if the City of Detroit monetized
2 assets in 2013, early 2013, March, February, January, that
3 that would have a negative impact on the City of Detroit's
4 ability to prove that it was eligible for Chapter 9
5 bankruptcy?

6 A I do not recall of a conversation like that.

7 Q Did Miller, Buckfire express any opposition in your
8 presence to strategies that would call for short term
9 monetization of assets in early 2013?

10 A I do not recall.

11 Q You were at the Jones, Day meeting at the airport on 12 January 29th -- I'm sorry, not the Jones, Day meeting, that's 13 not fair.

14 The -- the council interview meeting on January 29th, 2013
15 at the airport, yes?

16 A Yes. I was at that meeting.

17 Q And -- and were you there when Jones, Day gave the 18 presentation?

19 A I was.

20 Q And is it safe to assume that when Jones, Day or any 21 other attorneys that were giving their presentation, were 22 presenting, you were particularly interested in statements
23 that they had to make about liquidity, and cash flow, and 24 such, yes?

25 A Yes, absolutely.

1 Q Can -- can you put up 418, please? This is a pretty
2 lengthy document.

3 If -- if you need a hard copy we can get it for you, but
4 let's -- let's try it without because the -- the statements
5 are -- I'm not going to go through the whole thing.

6 MR. SHERWOOD: Is that okay, Your Honor? It is in 7 evidence.

8 THE COURT: Sure, try it.

9 Q Was -- was this presentation handed out during the -- the 10 meeting at the airport?

11 A Yes.

12 Q And just to be clear, this presentation was given not 13 only by Jones, Day, but Mr. Orr was also giving this 14 presentation to the group?

15 A He was part of the team that presented, yes.

16 Q Can we turn to -- let's start with Page 30 of the 17 presentation.

18 THE COURT: Excuse me, sir. Has the Court been 19 given copies of these exhibits?

20 MR. SHERWOOD: Yes, Your Honor. I -- I think we 21 gave two to the law clerks and --

22 THE COURT: Are there up here somewhere?

23 MR. SHERWOOD: I believe so. This is marked in the 24 -- in the -- the Retiree Committee's exhibits as Exhibit 418.

25 It might also be an AFSCME exhibit. I think everybody offered
13-53846-swr Doc 2243-15 Filed 12/19/13 Entered 12/19/13 13:44:15 Page 612 of 2386

1 this one.

2 THE COURT: Okay. So the tabs in the binder don't
3 correspond to the numbers of the exhibits.

4 MR. SHERWOOD: I think, Your Honor, that's because
5 we didn't decide on the prefix. I think --

6 THE COURT: Okay. And we're -- and we're looking at 7 what exhibit number now?

8 MR. SHERWOOD: It's 418, Your Honor.

9 THE COURT: I have it. We're all set. Thank you.

10 MR. SHERWOOD: You're welcome. A lot of documents.

11 Q Turning to Page 30, Mr. Malhotra, and if you look at the 12 third line down it says asset sales pose challenges to 13 generating substantial revenue. Do you see that?

14 A I see that line, yes.

15 Q And do you recall whether this slide was presented at the 16 meeting?

17 A I don't recall.

18 Q You don't recall?

19 A No, I do not.

20 Q Do you recall any discussion about the next line, sale of 21 assets to pay creditors may not promote revitalization. Do
22 you recall that being presented by Mr. Orr or anyone else at 23 Jones, Day?

24 A Not specifically.

25 Q Okay. Now if you turn to the next page, Page 31. And 13-53846-swr Doc 2243-15 Filed 12/19/13 Entered 12/19/13 13:44:15 Page 613 of 2386

1 these are -- these are the speaker notes for the slide. And 2 if you go right to the middle, there's a thing called --
3 there's a line called note. And it says asset monetization
4 outside of bankruptcy may implicate eligibility requirement
5 that the city be insolvent, e.g. measured by short term cash.

6 During the presentation, did anyone from Jones, Day
7 suggest to the group that it was not a good idea to engage in 8 asset monetization outside of bankruptcy because it could hurt
9 the city's case on insolvency?

10 A I do not recall that. We had five presentations as for 11 every presenting group.

12 Q Let's look at Page 62 and 63 of this presentation. I
13 know it's a long presentation, but Mr. Malhotra, did you 14 recall any discussion by Mr. Orr or the rest of the team at 15 Jones, Day about evaluating the impact of any asset sale on 16 Chapter 9 eligibility? Do you recall -- recall anything about 17 that -- that day? Does this -- this slide refresh your 18 recollection at all?

19 A It does not. No, I do not recall.

20 Q And let me -- let me just -- let me just ask one more
21 question about -- on this topic. If you turn to the next
22 page. Maybe this will help you.

23 If you look at the speaker notes at the top under asset
24 sales, again we talk -- it says concerns regarding eligibility
25 for Chapter 9 may be implicated. Any transactions should be

1 reviewed and restructured to address any eligibility issues,
2 e.g. earmarking of funds.

3 Do you recall any discussions by Jones, Day during this 4 presentation where they suggested that funds that come from 5 asset monetization be earmarked so that they don't end up in 6 the general fund and thereby jeopardize the Chapter 9
7 eligibility?

8 A No. I do not recall.

9 Q Do you recall any discussions during that or with -- with 10 Mr. Buckfire where the idea was to the extent that we monetize
11 any assets, let's make sure they don't -- that the proceeds
12 don't end up in the general fund. Anything like that?

13 A I do not remember of any specific conversation of 14 earmarking or -- or highlighting assets like this. I mean 15 during our general discussions were always -- asset sales were 16 one time sources and -- but we needed to continue to work to 17 fix the ongoing operating deficit debt and the cash deficit
18 that's been existing at the city for a long time.

19 Q Let me ask you one more question about that meeting. And 20 do you recall any suggestions by Mr. Orr or Jones, Day during 21 that presentation that the city's policy should be to defend 22 against approaches that focus on monetization of assets to pay
23 creditors?

24 A No.

1 recollection? Fourth bullet point down, defend against calls
2 for expenses and monetizing assets to pay creditors?

3 A No, I do not recall of a specific conversation like that.

4 Q Now just -- just to -- just so I understand your 5 testimony from yesterday when you talked about the revenues
6 that you knew about through May of 2013. To the extent that
7 there was any type of asset monetization before May of 2013,
8 the proceeds of asset monetization would -- could have 9 enhanced the general fund, is that fair to say?

10 A Yes. If you sell assets that generate cash you have --
11 you get more cash.

12 Q All right. I'd like -- let me switch topics real quick.
13 And can we -- 408.

14 MR. SHERWOOD: Your Honor, 408 and Mr. Malhotra, is 15 the proposal for creditors.

16 Q I think you talked about this yesterday on direct and 17 again we'll give you a copy if you need it, but we'll try to 18 make do with -- with the screen.

19 A Okay.

20 Q Okay. If you look at Pages 54 and 55 of 408. I'm 21 looking for 54 and -- well, hold on. Let's try 83 and 84.

22 MR. SHERWOOD: I'm -- I'm sorry, Your Honor.
23 There's kind of two sets of numbers on this one. Let's do 83
24 and 84. There we go. That's 83. Eighty-three or 135
25 depending on which number you're looking at, or 134.

1 Q You testified that -- that we talked about realization
2 value of asset -- assets and I'm not going to spend a lot of 3 time on this, but -- but some of the -- there's a reference to 4 the Detroit Water and Sewer Department. And if you scroll
5 down a few -- in the following pages, there's a Coleman Young
6 Airport, Detroit Windsor Tunnel, Belle Isle Park, Detroit
7 Institute of Arts, city owned land, parking operations, Joe
8 Louis Arena.

9 And I guess the question is, were -- when -- at this 10 presentation, were these assets that are described on these 11 pages, assets that -- that could be monetized in order to help
12 the city's cash flow situation?

13 A I think these were generally all the assets that were 14 listed. This is -- Miller, Buckfire is the investment bank
15 for the city in connection with asset monetization. And so I
16 can't answer questions specifically on asset monetizations
17 because it includes eight or ten different assets, all of 18 which may have different reactions to each one.

19 Q Let's talk -- let's talk about taxes for a minute. And 20 -- and if we could stay with the same exhibit, I think there
21 is a discussion about taxes.

22 Do you know what the outstanding tax obligations of the 23 City of Detroit were in in or about say June of this year?

24 A I do not recall, no.

1 87. Let me make sure I'm using the right numbers here.

2 That's not 87. Page -- Page 79, please. Actually Page 80,
3 I'm sorry.

4 Do you recognize this page of the presentation? It talks
5 about taxes.

6 A It does talk about taxes.

7 Q And if you look at about the fourth bullet point down, it
8 says Compuware has identified historical non-filers with 9 outstanding tax obligations totaling approximately
10 $250,000,000, correct?

11 A That's what the sentence says.

12 Q And have you -- have you heard numbers substantially in 13 excess of 250,000,000 in terms of the outstanding obligations
14 of taxpayers to the City of Detroit?

15 A I have heard numbers like this and I've been hearing
16 numbers like this for the last two years despite which the 17 city's property taxes and income taxes keep going down every 18 year.

19 Q But there are a lot of outstanding taxes and they're in 20 the hundreds of millions of dollars, fair?

21 A I cannot -- I cannot say that.

22 Q Okay. And you can't say that because you didn't look 23 into the issue of -- of outstanding taxes in -- in your two 24 years plus, is that --

25 A That is correct. We were not going out looking for 13-53846-swr Doc 2243-15 Filed 12/19/13 Entered 12/19/13 13:44:15 Page 618 of 2386

1 delinquent taxes especially of numbers that were highlighted
2 of this magnitude, that's correct.

3 Q Do you know who from the city or on behalf of -- well,
4 let's start with the city. Who from the city was in charge of 5 improving tax collection efforts?

6 A Yeah. It was Cheryl Johnson who is the city's Treasurer
7 was working, I believe, with Compuware to try and get their 8 arms around what taxes were outstanding. I believe that 9 project has been going on for a long time. That's -- that's 10 what I know about it.

11 Q And you'd agree that if -- if the -- the tax collection
12 efforts of the city in late -- in fiscal year 2013 which ends
13 June of 2013, correct? If -- if those tax collection efforts 14 were better, that would have enhanced the general fund, is 15 that fair to say?

16 A And the city has already implemented if -- if not two, at 17 least one amnesty program for sure. And I think that yielded
18 probably single digit millions of dollars in the 3,000,000,
19 $5,000,000 range in terms of its amnesty program.

20 So the city has repeatedly done a efforts in order to 21 maximize the collections on taxes that they could at least
22 identified from their records.

23 Q And who -- who from the city is involved in that -- in 24 that effort?

25 A Specifically on the amnesty it was, I'm sure the -- the 13-53846-swr Doc 2243-15 Filed 12/19/13 Entered 12/19/13 13:44:15 Page 619 of 2386

1 tax department that has been involved, I think with respect to
2 any past due of these outstanding obligations. I would say
3 that you would have to talk to Cheryl Johnson who is the 4 Treasurer in the context of this Compuware discussion.

5 Q But -- but you -- you were not charged at Ernst and Young
6 in doing an analysis of the effectiveness of the city's 7 efforts prior to May, June of 2013 to collect taxes from 8 taxpayers, is that fair to say?

9 A Yes, that is.

10 Q What about abatements? Do you know anything about 11 abatements?

12 A No, I do not.

13 Q Do you know that the city has a program for industrial 14 tax abatements?

15 A I do not.

16 Q Do you know anything about renaissance zone abatements
17 here in the city in terms of property taxes?

18 A Not specifically. I know it is a component of the 19 property tax for tax build up, but not specifically on 20 renaissance zone and the abatements.

21 Q Do you know if -- if the city has taken any effort to 22 review the existing tax abatements that are enjoyed by certain 23 of the property owners here in the City of Detroit to make 24 sure that they are fair and up to speed and -- and current?

25 A I do not know of a specific effort on reviewing the 13-53846-swr Doc 2243-15 Filed 12/19/13 Entered 12/19/13 13:44:15 Page 620 of 2386

1 abatements.

2 Q Do you know -- do you know who the -- who -- who the tax
3 assessor is for the City of Detroit?

4 A It used to be Linda Bade. She has recently retired. I'm 5 blacking out on the name of the new assessor. I think it's 6 Alvin.

7 Q I'm sorry. Do you know has -- has Ernst and Young been 8 charged with trying to figure out how the assessment, the tax
9 assessment process works here in the -- in the City of 10 Detroit?

11 A No, Ernst and Young has not been. But what I do know is 12 that there are several reviews that are happening to assess --
13 ascertain better the assessed values are too high. Currently 14 a lot in terms of the city's property taxes.

15 Q What about too low?

16 A From what I understand the general view is that the 17 assessments are too high.

18 Q But are there -- so there's not a single property in the 19 City of Detroit that where -- where the assessment is -- is 20 too low?

21 A I cannot answer that question. I do not know.

22 Q And you haven't been asked to audit that or anything like
23 that?

24 A That is correct.

25 Q Let me turn -- I just have one or two more topics. But
13-53846-swr Doc 2243-15 Filed 12/19/13 Entered 12/19/13 13:44:15 Page 621 of 2386

1 let me turn to negotiations before the filing. I think you
2 said yesterday that you were at the -- the meeting -- I'm
3 sorry, was it June 13th? I'm trying to remember off the top --

4 A June 14th.

5 Q June 14th, thank you. You were at that meeting?

6 A Yes, I was.

7 Q That June -- June 14th meeting. And I think you said you
8 were at meetings between June 14th and July 11th as well,
9 correct?

10 A That is correct.

11 Q And how many -- there was a June 14th meeting, a June 20th
12 meeting, July 10th, July 11th. Have I got them all?

13 A I don't know. There were -- there were several meetings
14 we had during those weeks and those are the ones I can 15 remember. So there were several meetings that we had during 16 that time frame with -- with all of the creditors in some 17 fashion or the other.

18 Q But June 14th was the first. And -- and during that June 19 14th meeting, this -- the proposal was handed out and 20 presented, right?

21 A That is correct.

22 Q During all the meetings from June 14th to July 11th,
23 whatever. After all of those meetings, are you aware of a
24 single change to the June 14th proposal by the city?

25 A Not specific -- not specifically that I recall whether we 13-53846-swr Doc 2243-15 Filed 12/19/13 Entered 12/19/13 13:44:15 Page 622 of 2386

1 were making changes or not to the June 14th proposal.

2 Q You can't cite to a single specific change to the 3 proposal that was made on -- on June 14th, correct?

4 A Not that I can recall off the top of my head, yes.

5 Q Now, were any of those meetings with union
6 representatives or retiree representatives?

7 A I think both were present on June 14th.

8 Q And you were at that meeting?

9 A I was.

10 Q And let me ask you this. In terms of dealing with the 11 employee issues, when Mr. Orr was appointed, did you tell him 12 about your personal experience with dealing with the city's 13 unions?

14 A Yes.

15 Q And you -- and you had been involved on behalf of the 16 city before the arrival of Mr. Orr in some pretty substantial
17 negotiations between the city and many many of its unions,
18 true?

19 A I -- I was -- but I was involved in those meetings from 20 the standpoint of helping ascertain the financial 21 implications, yes.

22 Q Okay. And in February of 2012, and I know this -- we're 23 going -- we're going way back now. So if you started May -- 24 May 2011, you're only on the job about seven months at this

1 of unions. And those negotiations were successful, correct?

2 A I don't understand the meaning of successful or not.

3 There were negotiations that -- that were held.

4 Q And they -- but they led to an agreement between the city
5 and the unions, correct?

6 A They led to tentative agreements.

7 Q Okay. Let's -- let's look at Exhibit 505, please, 505.

8 Actually before I ask any questions about this. You said they 9 led -- well, let me ask you about 505. Is this a copy of the 10 -- the tentative agreement between the city and the coalition
11 of unions of the City of Detroit?

12 A Yes.

13 Q And if you -- if we turn to the --

14 MR. STEWART: Well, Your Honor, may I interpose a
15 foundation objection. This has been objected to. If counsel
16 is laying a foundation for admissibility, I have no objection
17 if that's all you're doing. But if he's going to question the 18 witness about it, I would have an objection.

19 MR. SHERWOOD: I'm going to try to lay a foundation,
20 Your Honor, with this and maybe other witnesses.

21 THE COURT: Okay. Go ahead.

22 MR. SHERWOOD: But I'd like to get his understanding
23 of this document, and some testimony -- what he knows about 24 this document on the record so that when we move it into 25 evidence later, you have the benefit of that.

1 THE COURT: I'll permit that subject to its ultimate
2 admission.

3 Q Page 17, please of -- of the agreement. City of Detroit,
4 do you recognize that as Chris Brown's signature by any 5 chance?

6 A I do think that is Chris Brown's signature.

7 Q And that's dated February 1st, 2012. CO -- and he was the 8 chief -- Chief Operating Officer for the City of Detroit,
9 correct?

10 A That is correct.

11 Q And just if you can take -- take that down. Let's look
12 at the signatures on the right. Now I don't -- I don't -- I'm 13 not going to ask you identify those signatures.

14 But the -- the parties to the right, you know, you see 15 IOU, SAA, are -- are these -- do you understand this to be 16 like various union representatives that signed on to this 17 agreement?

18 A Yes.

19 Q And it was the union coalition, right?

20 A That is correct.

21 Q Now did you -- did you participate with any of the 22 members of the union during the negotiation of this tentative
23 agreement?

24 A I was present in those negotiations from -- to ascertain
25 the financial impact as I said earlier.

1 Q And -- and you were working for the city at that point,
2 correct?

3 A That is correct.

4 Q And -- and Chris Brown from the city signed this
5 agreement and agreed to it, correct?

6 A Yes.

7 Q During those negotiations, did you -- did you talk about
8 any wage concessions by the employees of the city?

9 A I think there were discussions around wage concessions,
10 yes.

11 Q And in fact there were wage concessions. Do you recall
12 that?

13 A Are you referring specifically to this tentative 14 agreement, or are you referring to --

15 Q Yes.

16 A -- broadly?

17 Q This tentative agreement in February of 2012.

18 A I would have to go back and look because whether it was 19 new wage concessions or it was a continuance of the wage
20 concessions that had already been provided in the past.

21 Q Was -- was there a discussion about giving back some of 22 the wage concessions to the extent that the -- there was --
23 there was net surplus for 2012, 2013, and 2014?

24 A Yes, there were discussions around how to give back wage
25 concessions that the active employees were giving. If the --

1 the city can get back on its footing from a financial 2 standpoint, yes.

3 Q And in -- in the -- and you were involved in that part of 4 the discussion, correct?

5 A I was involved in at least trying to ascertain how to 6 insure either asset sales or refinancings were not considered
7 as an operational fix. So not one time --

8 Q Well, I just asked -- I just asked if you were involved
9 in that part of the discussions.

10 A And I was giving you a context of how I was involved,
11 yes.

12 Q And -- and -- but during those -- during those 13 discussions, weren't you saying to the union members that 14 based on the work of you and other people in the city that the 15 city was going to get back into the black in -- in 2013 and 16 2014? Was that -- was that part of your pitch with respect to 17 this?

18 A The -- the discussions that the city was having with its 19 unions was to try and come up with cash to try and deal with 20 the cash shortfall issues that were forthcoming, especially 21 after fiscal year '12 where the city continued to borrow and 22 defer.

23 And the city was -- and after discussions with its active 24 employees, how to try and address some of the oncoming fiscal 25 year '13 cash issues, yes.

1 Q No, the -- the question was obviously you've got labor
2 representatives sitting on the other side of the table. And 3 one of -- one of the terms was these -- these give backs,
4 right? Give backs of -- of wage concessions, right?

5 Certainly the -- the labor people that were talking to 6 you wanted to know what's the likelihood of my people getting 7 these give backs, right?

8 MR. STEWART: Objection.

9 Q Did that happen?

10 MR. STEWART: Sorry, I object. He's asking for 11 speculation unless the last part of his sentence was asking
12 what they said to him. I think his question --

13 THE COURT: I agree, rephrase the question, please.

14 Q During those -- the negotiations, was it your perception
15 based on things said to you by the labor representatives that 16 they were -- they were concerned about -- or they wanted to 17 know what the likelihood was that they would get their give 18 backs in terms of salary -- wage concessions.

19 A Sorry, can you rephrase that question? It's too long a
20 question.

21 Q During the negotiations concerning the tentative
22 agreement, did anyone on the labor side ask you to tell them
23 if the wage concessions would happen? Or -- or the give backs
24 on the wage concessions would happen, yes or no?

25 A I don't recall specifically.

1 Q Let me ask you this about those discussions. There were 2 -- there were negotiations that surrounded health care,
3 correct?

4 A Yes.

5 Q And one of the objectives in the health care part of the 6 negotiation was to attain $60,000,000 in health care savings,
7 is that right?

8 A That sounds right.

9 Q Okay. And those health care savings were going to come
10 from not only the existing employees of the City of Detroit,
11 but also the retired employees, isn't that right?

12 A I'm not sure about that. I think the majority of those 13 savings were coming from the active employees. I don't recall
14 of a specific amount from the retirees.

15 Q Well, you said the majority. So some of the savings were 16 coming from the retired employees, isn't that right?

17 A I do not recall that.

18 MR. SHERWOOD: Your Honor, I'd like to mark a -- a 19 document that has not been marked before to try to refresh the 20 witness' recollection.

21 MR. STEWART: Your Honor, in view of the fact this 22 wasn't identified to us, wasn't subject to the objection
23 process, before he uses it, I'd like to frame very carefully
24 exactly what the failure of recollection this is intended to 25 address.

1 MR. SHERWOOD: Yes. This is a document that talks
2 about cost savings in fiscal year 2012. And there is a line
3 that talks about --

4 THE COURT: Well, let's not say what the document
5 says because it's not in evidence. But the document can be 6 used to refresh the witness' recollection if it -- if it has 7 that effect.

8 MR. STEWART: May I also ask the parties where it
9 comes from. Because I mean I understand it for pure purpose
10 of refreshing recollection, Your Honor, what -- what is 11 allowed. On the other hand is this part of a larger document.
12 What is this?

13 MR. SHERWOOD: I believe it was part of a 14 presentation that was made during the course of the 15 negotiations in 2012 with respect to the tentative agreement.

16 MR. STEWART: Okay. We have an objection to its use
17 generally, but --

18 THE COURT: All right. To the extent there's an 19 objection to the use of the document to refresh the witness'
20 recollection, it is overruled. You may present it to the 21 witness.

22 MR. STEWART: Once again could we -- what frame
23 exactly which failure of recollection this is intended --

24 THE COURT: I think the record is clear enough on 25 that point. Let's proceed.

1 MR. SHERWOOD: May I approach the witness and hand
2 him the document, Your Honor?

3 THE COURT: Please.

4 MR. SHERWOOD: And for the record can I -- can we
5 mark this as 505A?

6 THE COURT: Sure. Whatever is convenient for you is 7 fine.

8 MR. SHERWOOD: Your Honor, may I hand a copy to the 9 Court?

10 THE COURT: Not if it's use is for refreshing
11 recollection.

12 MR. SHERWOOD: Fair -- okay.

13 Q So Mr. Malhotra, I've showed you what I will mark as 14 505A. And -- and if you would look at the box to the left
15 relating -- that's -- that's called retirees. And then the 16 data to the right of that. Does that reflect your -- you
17 testified that the majority of the savings related to current 18 employees and you didn't know about whether -- whether any of 19 these savings also impacted retirees. Do you remember that 20 testimony?

21 A I testified that the tentative agreements as reached, if 22 they had any impact on retiree medical or not. That's what I
23 testified to, yes.

24 Q Okay. And having reviewed this document, does this

25 refresh your recollection that in fact there were certain 13-53846-sw Doc 2243-15 Filed 12/19/13 Entered 12/19/13 13:44:15 Page 631 of 2386

1 savings projected to be achieved from retirees for fiscal year
2 2012 and 2013?

3 THE COURT: All right. Now here I want to caution
4 you, this does not ask you what that document says. In fact
5 turn it over. Do you have a recollection now having reviewed 6 that document of what the answer to counsel's question is?

7 A Okay. Your Honor, my answer is the same as it was 8 earlier.

9 Q Do you recognize 505A? Have you ever seen it before?

10 MR. SHERWOOD: Can he look at it for that purpose?

11 THE COURT: Yes, yes.

12 A Yes, I recall seeing this in that 2012 time frame, yes.

13 Q And can you describe what it is?

14 A It is trying to describe the projected or ask of the -- 15 the targeted savings the city was looking to get for fiscal 16 year '13.

17 Q So this was prepared by the city and -- and these were 18 part of the requests by the city to the labor representatives
19 in -- in 2012, correct?

20 A This could have framed some of those discussions, yes.

21 Q And were you present when this document was discussed
22 with representatives of the unions in -- in 2012?

23 A I do not recall the specific meeting, but I would have 24 generally been having some of the discussions in terms of the 25 qualification of some of these numbers.

1 Q Let's go back to 505. Now this agreement, this tentative
2 agreement, although it was -- was executed by the city and --
3 and various union representatives, was it implemented for the 4 City of Detroit?

5 A I do not think this exact tentative agreement was
6 implemented.

7 Q Do you know why this tentative agreement was not
8 implemented for the City of Detroit?

9 A I think the city employment terms were implemented
10 instead.

11 Q Isn't it true that the state refused to authorize the 12 city to implement this agreement?

13 A I was not a part of those discussions with the state.

14 Q And this agreement -- well, scratch that. Let me just 15 ask a few more -- more random questions and then I'll be done.

16 This is the first Chapter 9 bankruptcy case that you've 17 ever worked on, correct?

18 A That is correct.

19 Q And neither you nor Ernst and Young have ever prepared a 20 balance sheet for the City of Detroit, correct?

21 A That is correct.

22 Q You began to prepare the schedules for the filing of this
23 bankruptcy case in May of 2013, isn't that right?

24 A It was May, June time frame. I do not remember the 25 specific date.

1 Q But it could have been May -- May 2013? May, June time
2 frame?

3 A Like I said, May, June time frame, yes, that is right.

4 Q Okay. Now, in early July, your opinion was not solicited
5 by anyone before the bankruptcy filing about the decision to 6 file bankruptcy, isn't that right?

7 A That is correct.

8 Q So you and Ernst and Young, you didn't have any input
9 whatsoever on whether or not Chapter 9 was the only
10 alternative for the City of Detroit, isn't that right?

11 A That is correct.

12 MR. SHERWOOD: Your Honor, can I have a two minute
13 -- a 30 second break just to consult with a colleague a
14 minute?

15 THE COURT: Yes. We'll sit here while you do that.

16 MR. SHERWOOD: Your Honor, I'd like to mark another
17 document to -- which addresses the issue of impact on retiree
18 benefits. And just see if the witness recognizes -- not to 19 refresh recollection, just to see if he recognize it and can 20 authenticate it.

21 MR. STEWART: This is a new exhibit?

22 MR. SHERWOOD: I believe it is.

23 MR. STEWART: We would object to it, Your Honor, for 24 any use other than refreshing recollection. It was not 25 identified.

1 THE COURT: Well, let's -- let's get it marked and
2 when it's offered into evidence I'll hear your objection.
3 What number would you propose?

4 MR. SHERWOOD: 505B.

5 THE COURT: Are we out of numbers?

6 MR. SHERWOOD: I just think we're in the five's and 7 I don't know what we're up to.

8 THE COURT: Okay. Well, let me see if I can help
9 you.

10 MR. SHERWOOD: 505B, I think.

11 THE COURT: Hold -- hold on one second. Ah, we have 12 used every number from 500 to 599. All right, fine, 505B it 13 is.

14 MR. SHERWOOD: May I approach, Your Honor?

15 THE COURT: Yes. Are you asking the witness if he 16 recognizes this?

17 MR. SHERWOOD: Yes.

18 THE COURT: Do you recognize that document, sir?

19 A Yes, Your Honor, I do.

20 Q And can you describe it for us?

21 A It's a discussion document dated July 16th, 2012.

22 Q And did you -- were you involved in the preparation of 23 this document?

24 A Yes, we were.

25 Q And was this document presented to -- who was this

1 document presented to?

2 A I don't recall.

3 Q For what purpose was this document prepared?

4 A It would have been to -- for -- trying to ascertain the 5 tentative agreements and the savings that would have come from 6 some of the tentative agreements.

7 Q And does this document refresh your recollection as to 8 the savings that could be achieved from retiree health care?

9 A I would have to go to that specific section.

10 Q Yes, please do.

11 THE COURT: Well, hold on. It's not proper to ask
12 the witness a question about the contents of the document
13 until it's admitted into evidence.

14 MR. SHERWOOD: Well, I move it into evidence, Your
15 Honor.

16 MR. STEWART: We object, Your Honor. For the -- 17 well, first of all, I'm not sure what its relevance is, but 18 more to the point it wasn't identified as part of the 19 pre-trial process we engaged in to identify, have timely
20 objections, and have an opportunity to review documents.

21 MR. SHERWOOD: I -- I agree that it wasn't 22 identified pre-trial, Your Honor. We did identify the -- the 23 tentative agreement, however. We have maintained in this case
24 that on the impracticability issue, that indeed it was and is

1 city and to negotiate with respect to the rights of retirees
2 in the context of those negotiations.

3 Our -- I was at the deposition of -- of one of our 4 clients in Washington where this issue was raised and -- and 5 probed. We were -- we believed that this witness having been 6 involved in those negotiations would testify that indeed some 7 of the give backs in this tentative agreement impacted
8 retirees.

9 And he hasn't clearly done that. So I'm using this to 10 refresh recollection. Your Honor, there are a lot of 11 documents in this case. This is a fast track case with a lot 12 of document review and production that has been done. This is 13 a City of Detroit document that certainly this witness, and I
14 assume the other professionals, are -- are intimately familiar 15 with.

16 And I do not think that the failure to put it on our 17 exhibit list in this case and on this track should prevent the 18 admission into evidence. It's otherwise relevant for the 19 reasons that I've set forth. And I don't see any prejudice
20 whatsoever to the city.

21 MR. STEWART: Your Honor, I think it is prejudicial.
22 We see this for the first time while the witness is on the 23 stand. In fact so fresh is it we don't even know how to 24 number it as an exhibit.

1 witness he wanted. If he fails in trying to refresh
2 recollection, the answer is for him to call his own witness,
3 not to bring in documents outside of the normal structure that 4 we had all agreed upon.

5 THE COURT: I agree that this record does not
6 establish cause to add an exhibit to the established witness
7 list. Accordingly, the objection is sustained. The document
8 may be used to refresh recollection.

9 MR. SHERWOOD: Excuse me one second, Your Honor.

10 Q I'm going to try to use this to refresh your 11 recollection. Can you turn to Page 7, please? Now again
12 we're on the topic of whether this negotiation involved
13 savings on benefits that impacted retirees. If you look at 14 the -- the second block down on the left, have you read that 15 block?

16 A Yes.

17 Q And have you -- and does that block and the -- the 18 numbers to the right of it, refresh your recollection as to 19 whether or not in the context of these negotiations, the city
20 was -- or -- or the union reps were negotiating with respect
21 to rights of retirees?

22 A No. In fact on my --

23 THE COURT: The only question is, does that document
24 refresh your recollection on that question.

25 A Sorry, Your Honor. No.

1 Q And it -- and just -- just to be clear on this point,
2 it's your -- you don't recall during these negotiations
3 whether the city and the representatives of the union
4 negotiated and reached an agreement that impacted the rights
5 of the city's retirees, is that your testimony?

6 A That is my testimony, yes.

7 Q But you don't recall?

8 A That's what I just said.

9 MR. SHERWOOD: Okay. Thank you, Your Honor. Thank 10 you, Mr. Malhotra. I have nothing further.

11 THE COURT: All right. At this time we'll take our 12 morning 15 minute recess.

13 (WITNESS GAURAV MALHOTRA WAS TEMPORARILY EXCUSED AT 10:37
14 A.M.)

15 THE CLERK: All rise. Court is in recess.

16 (Court in Recess at 10:37 a.m.; Resume at 10:59 a.m.)

17 THE CLERK: Court is in session. Please be seated.

18 MR. DECHIARA: Good morning, Your Honor. Peter
19 Dechiara from the law firm of Cohen, Weiss, and Simon, LLP for 20 the UAW International Union.

21 (WITNESS GAURAV MALHOTRA RESUMED THE STAND AT 10:59 A.M.)

22 CROSS EXAMINATION

23 BY MR. DECHIARA:

24 Q Good morning, Mr. Malhotra.

25 A Good morning.

1 Q One preliminary question, Mr. Malhotra. Between the time
2 that you completed your direct testimony at the end of the day
3 yesterday and when you began your cross examination today, did
4 you consult with counsel about the subject of your testimony?

5 A No, I did not.

6 Q You're not and never have been an officer of the City of 7 Detroit, correct?

8 A That is correct.

9 Q Okay. And you've never -- and you don't currently and 10 you never have held any elected or appointed position with the 11 city, correct?

12 A That is right.

13 Q And you don't -- you're not involved in the direct
14 running of the city, the direct operation of the city,
15 correct?

16 A Yes.

17 Q Yes, I'm correct?

18 A Yes, you're correct.

19 Q Let me ask you about the June 14th, 2013 meeting at which 20 the emergency manager made his presentation of the creditor
21 proposal. Do you remember your testimony about that meeting
22 yesterday?

23 A Yes.

24 Q And I believe you testified on direct that there were

1 at that meeting, correct?

2 A Yes.

3 Q Okay. Am I correct that the procedure at that meeting
4 was that if an attendee wanted to ask a question or make a
5 comment, they had to write it down on a card which would then
6 be passed up to the front and then it would be read out by 7 someone in the front of the room? Wasn't that the procedure?

8 A As I recall I think, yes.

9 Q And let me now draw your attention to the June 20th
10 meeting. Do you recall your testimony about the June 20th
11 meeting?

12 A Yes.

13 Q And the emergency manager was not present, correct?

14 A That is correct.

15 Q And the people who were presenting at the meeting were 16 city advisors, including yourself, correct?

17 A Yes.

18 Q Did anyone from the city tell you that you had authority
19 to negotiate for the city at that meeting?

20 A I was presenting at that meeting.

21 Q Is the answer to my question no?

22 A That is correct.

23 Q Okay. And it was not your understanding, was it, that 24 you had authority to negotiate on -- for the city at that 25 meeting, am I correct?

1 A I was not negotiating for the city at that meeting, that
2 is correct.

3 Q Okay. And is it -- do you have any knowledge that any of 4 the other advisors who were attending that meeting on behalf
5 of the city had authority to negotiate for the city?

6 A I can't say what the authority was of the other advisors,
7 you would have to ask them.

8 Q So you have no knowledge -- you have no affirmative
9 knowledge that the -- any of the other advisors were 10 authorized to negotiate on behalf of the city, is that
11 correct?

12 A I have no knowledge one way or the other, that is
13 correct.

14 Q Okay. Were there any other meetings besides the June 14th
15 and June 20th meeting that you -- that you attended where there
16 were presentations made to labor or retiree groups?

17 A I don't recall specifically.

18 Q As you sit here today you don't recall any others?

19 A I do not recall any others, no.

20 Q Okay. You testified I believe on direct about a July 9th
21 meeting. Do you recall that testimony?

22 A Yes.

23 Q And who -- who were the -- what category of attendees
24 attended the July 9th meeting?

25 A My recollection is that it was the city's advisors and
13-53846-swr Doc 2243-15 Filed 12/19/13 Entered 12/19/13 13:44:15 Page 642 of 2386

1 members of the retirement systems or advisors for the 2 retirement systems and other retirees.

3 Q So the -- the -- so I'm going to distinguish between the 4 presenters and the attendees. The attendees were advisors to 5 the retirees and the retirees?

6 A That's my recollection, yes.

7 Q Okay. And were there -- were there negotiations -- did
8 you engage in negotiations on behalf of the city at that
9 meeting?

10 A We had discussions about the city's financial profile as 11 well as discussions around pensions as I recall.

12 Q And I believe your direct testimony was that the purpose
13 of that meeting was to discuss actuarial assumptions, is that
14 correct?

15 A No. What I said on my testimony is that at the end of 16 the meeting there was a discussion or dialogue about trying to 17 get the retirement system and the city's advisors on the same
18 page with respect to the actuarial assumptions.

19 Q And -- and the reason -- and you were involved in that 20 effort, is that correct?

21 A Not really. I -- I was not directly involved with the 22 actuarial assumptions at all.

23 Q Okay. Did you have an understanding about what -- did -- 24 did the city advisors want to achieve an understanding with 25 the retiree system advisors as to actuarial assumptions?

1 A Yes.

2 Q And did -- did you have an understanding about why the 3 city advisors wanted to obtain that understanding?

4 A I do. It was generally to try and ascertain the amount
5 of the under funding in the -- in the two pension systems,
6 yes.

7 Q Okay. Would it be fair to say that as a predicate for 8 meaningful negotiations, it's often helpful to have shared
9 assumptions between the -- the parties?

10 A Yes.

11 Q Did anyone tell you that -- from the city -- did -- did
12 anyone from the city tell you that you were -- you were 13 authorized at the July 19th -- I'm sorry, the July 9th meeting
14 to negotiate on behalf of the city?

15 A No.

16 Q You testified about certain meetings you had with the 17 emergency manager Mr. Orr at which you orally presented to him
18 certain findings or analysis that you had prepared. Do you
19 recall that testimony on direct?

20 A Yes.

21 Q Okay. And how many of those meetings were there?

22 A I cannot count the number of meetings or conference calls
23 that we had, there were numerous.

24 Q Okay. So there were numerous face to face meetings and 25 also numerous conference calls?

1 A Can you clarify what time frame is your question related
2 to?

3 Q Well, you tell me. I'm just asking about the -- the 4 meetings that you had -- well, okay. I -- I can do this.
5 From the time the emergency manager became the emergency
6 manager until the bankruptcy filing, let's say that's the time
7 frame. How many face to face meetings did you have with the 8 emergency manager at which you presented conclusions, or 9 findings, or analysis?

10 A I can't recall the specific number, but there were 11 several.

12 Q Okay. And were these one on one meetings that you had 13 with the emergency manager?

14 A We may have had -- yes, there were a couple of one on one
15 meetings I thought and as I recall and there were meetings
16 with -- in a broader group setting with the city's other
17 advisors.

18 Q Okay. And the ones that took place in a broader group 19 setting with the city's other advisors, those were 20 pre-scheduled meetings?

21 A Generally yes.

22 Q Okay. And who -- who were the other city advisors who 23 attended those meetings?

24 A It would have been representatives from Jones, Day, from 25 Miller, Buckfire, Conway, MacKenzie, our team. But there were

1 several meetings and there wasn't a set schedule that
2 everybody was at a particular meeting.

3 Q Okay. But --

4 A Is my recollection.

5 Q Okay. But some of the meetings where there were other
6 advisors were present, were you presented conclusions, or 7 findings, or analysis to the emergency manager were meetings
8 where Jones, Day attorneys were present, correct?

9 A Yes.

10 MR. DECHIARA: Okay. Your Honor, I -- I don't have 11 anything further on that line of questioning. I would note
12 for the record that the city has on the direct of Mr.
13 Malhotra, had Mr. Malhotra testified on direct about meetings
14 he had with Mr. Orr in the presence of counsel.

15 Q You -- you testified about a meeting that you attended in 16 New York, I believe with the bond holders and the insurers of 17 the bond holders, is that correct?

18 A Yes.

19 Q Okay. And when was that meeting?

20 A I think it was June 25th maybe is my recollection.

21 Q I'd like now to direct your attention to the proposal to 22 creditors which is Exhibit 43. Do you have the exhibit book
23 or could somebody call up Exhibit 43, please?

24 A I'm happy to get it if you just tell me what folder it is 25 though.

1 Q Okay. Yeah, you can get it. Excuse me?

2 A What folder, 43?

3 Q I don't know what folder it is, but it's -- oh, I'm
4 sorry. I -- no -- no, I'm correct. It's -- it's City Exhibit
5 43.

6 THE COURT: Can you help the witness find it,
7 please?

8 MR. DECHIARA: Absolutely.

9 Q Do you have it?

10 A I got it. Thank you.

11 Q Okay. Mr. Malhotra, if I could ask you to turn to Page 12 114 of Exhibit 43. Are you on Page 114?

13 A Yes.

14 Q Okay. Let me direct your attention to the last column on 15 the right. It says insurer. Do you see that?

16 A I do.

17 Q And do you see there's a list of insurers there?

18 A Yes.

19 Q And those are the insurers for the bond holders?

20 A Yes.

21 Q And were representatives of those insurers present at the 22 June 25th meeting?

23 A I can't recall if all of them were there, but there were 24 representatives from the bond insurers at that meeting, yes.

25 Q Okay. Do you remember specifically which ones were there
13-53846-swr Doc 2243-15 Filed 12/19/13 Entered 12/19/13 13:44:15 Page 647 of 2386

1 and which ones were not?

2 A No, I do not.

3 Q Can you testify whether they were all there, or they were 4 not all there?

5 A No, I cannot.

6 Q Okay. So they -- they may all have been there, is that
7 correct?

8 A It could be, yes.

9 Q Okay. Let me turn your attention to Page 120. It's 10 Appendix E. There's a similar column, the right column it
11 says insurers and let me ask -- just ask you the same
12 question.

13 Were representatives from those insurers at that -- at 14 the June 25th meeting?

15 A I cannot recall specifically if all of them were there.
16 On my -- I think most of them were there, or their advisors.
17 But I do not recall specifically if each and every one of 18 these were there or not.

19 Q Okay. Do you have a understanding of what percentage of 20 the bond holders of the city -- of the unsecured bond holders
21 of the City of Detroit are -- were insured by the -- by the 22 insurers that were listed in Appendix A through E of Exhibit
23 43?

24 A No, I do not.

25 Q It's the majority, isn't it?

1 A I would assume, but I'm not sure. I haven't done the 2 percentage of all of the unsecured notes what percentage are 3 insured versus not. I haven't done that calculation.

4 Q Okay. Am I correct if -- if we wanted to, or someone
5 wanted to determine that, one could add up the -- the numbers
6 on the appendices under the balance column and -- and 7 determine the percentage that are insured?

8 A Presumably if the -- if they're still in short at that 9 particular time frame or not. Presumably yes.

10 Q Okay. Thank you. And just so I understand correctly, 11 when a bond holder is insured that means that if -- if the 12 municipality defaults on the bond, the bond holder has 13 recourse against the insurer?

14 A That is my understanding, yes.

15 MR. DECHIARA: No further questions.

16 THE COURT: Anyone else have any cross examination
17 questions for the witness?

18 MR. RUEGGER: Yes, Your Honor.

19 MR. DECHIARA: Your Honor, I would just ask to 20 reserve the right to -- to ask additional cross examination
21 question if the Court decides to reverse its prior ruling.

22 THE COURT: Yes, yes. That -- that right is 23 reserved for everyone.

24 On that point, and just so I don't forget later, I have 25 reconsidered my suggestion that we revisit this after lunch

1 and to give both you all and us time to review the memorandum
2 and the issue, we'll take it up again tomorrow morning.

3 MR. RUEGGER: Thank you, Your Honor.

4 THE COURT: You're welcome.

5 MR. RUEGGER: May I -- may I proceed?

6 THE COURT: Yes.

7 MR. RUEGGER: Thank you.

8 CROSS EXAMINATION

9 BY MR. RUEGGER:

10 Q Good morning, Mr. Malhotra. My name is Arthur Ruegger
11 from the Dentons firm. We haven't met before. I represent 12 the retirees committee here.

13 And I don't have a lot to ask you. But I -- I do want to 14 talk to you a little bit about a document that Mr. Stewart
15 raised yesterday. It was City Exhibit 44. It's -- it's, I 16 believe, the executive version of the June 14th proposal. Is 17 it on your screen?

18 A It is, yes.

19 Q Okay. And specifically if we could look at Page 8. And 20 I'm going to ask you some questions about the fiscal year 2012
21 figures that are on that page. So if Kathy, you could expand
22 that, it would probably make it easier for us to see. Great.

23 First, Mr. Malhotra, when were the -- these figures, and 24 specifically the fiscal year 2012 figure, when were they 25 finalized?

1 A This is cash activity so it's -- it would have been right
2 around the end of fiscal year 2012. So July 2012. This is 3 cash activity.

4 Q And how large was the E & Y team at that time?

5 A At what time?

6 Q When these figures were finalized.

7 A Probably four or five.

8 Q And did they have specialized roles?

9 A Yes. Our team was -- was focused, very focused on 10 looking at all of the cash activity, yes.

11 Q Okay. So can you tell us what the individuals roles were 12 on your team?

13 A They were to ascertain what receipts were timing versus 14 permanent, any variances. Looking at all of the property
15 taxes, looking at the income taxes.

16 The city generally receives a lot of its collections in 17 certain lock boxes. We had to try and ascertain what part of 18 those collections were related to property taxes versus not.
19 It was to track the monthly gaming taxes. It was to look at 20 the activity and the other receipts. It was to highlight any 21 sort of one time bond related or escrow related proceeds that 22 were coming in that were further augmenting the general fund's
23 cash.

24 Q And did you assign any of your team members any of those 25 particular matters to be their responsibility?

1 A No, they were generally a team effort.

2 Q Can you tell us beyond what you've just answered, in 3 general what was the process of compiling those figures?

4 A Our team tracks the pretty much daily cash activity of 5 the city to ascertain what receipts are coming in, what 6 disbursements are going out to at least help be able to 7 quantify where that activity is going on a day in day out
8 basis. And because we had wanted to try our best to insure 9 that the city did not run out of cash.

10 And that's the reason we had our team working 11 specifically on the receipts and disbursements activity,
12 looking at the bank accounts, looking at bank statements to 13 insure that we -- we could forecast where the movement was so 14 that the city would not run out of cash as it had to rely on 15 refinancing proceeds to keep going.

16 Q Did you do any of that tracking personally, or was that 17 your team's responsibility?

18 A It was a combination. I was intimately involved.

19 Q Okay. Tell me what part you were intimately involved and 20 what part your team did.

21 A I don't think there's -- there's a specific delineation
22 of what part I did versus what my team did. It was a team
23 effort and I was intimately involved with the team.

24 Q All right. If you could look at that part of Exhibit 44.

25 I think you testified yesterday that your team, or someone
13-53846-swr Doc 2243-15 Filed 12/19/13 Entered 12/19/13 13:44:15 Page 652 of 2386

1 from your team, contacted the city individual responsible for
2 the property taxes is that -- is that correct?

3 A I don't recall that specific part of my testimony.

4 Q Okay. All right. Forgive me. I don't mean to misstate
5 your testimony.

6 How -- did your team attempt to verify for example the 7 property tax figure that's on -- on that document for fiscal
8 year 2012?

9 A This would have represented to verify, I don't know if 10 you mean audits. I just want to make sure --

11 Q Don't mean audit.

12 A We, in terms of all the cash that comes in, in gross tax
13 collections, our team is to try our best ability to segregate
14 what collections were for property taxes, and what taxes were 15 due to the city, and versus what property taxes were related 16 to distributions that the city had to make to other taxing 17 authorities.

18 Q All right. With all respect, sir, I'm not sure that was 19 responsive. I'm trying to determine to what extent anyone on 20 your team verified the figures and specifically the property
21 tax figure there.

22 A This would have been the number that we had for the -- to
23 the best of our ability.

24 Q And you had it from what source, sir?

25 A It would have been from a -- for fiscal year 2012 from a
13-53846-swr Doc 2243-15 Filed 12/19/13 Entered 12/19/13 13:44:15 Page 653 of 2386

1 combination of the bank accounts, or the city's internal
2 reports.

3 Q The -- I'm sorry, I didn't hear you. The city's what
4 reports?

5 A Internal reports.

6 Q Internal reports.

7 A Yes.

8 Q Did you consider the -- the CAFR for this analysis at 9 all?

10 A This is fiscal year 2012 cash activity. The CAFR, the 11 CAFR doesn't come out for months after that.

12 Q I thought yesterday you testified, and correct me if I'm 13 wrong, that someone from your team contacted the city to -- to 14 check the property tax figures, is that not correct?

15 A You can go back to my testimony. I don't remember that 16 specific piece. We looked at the cash activity of city in -- 17 in a considerable amount of detail.

18 Q Dropping down to the next item, income -- income and 19 utility taxes. How were -- how was that figure derived?

20 A That figure was derived from the information we had from 21 the bank accounts as well as the city's internal reports.

22 Q And when you say city's internal reports, what kind of 23 reports were those?

24 A They are various internal reports that the city tries its 25 best ability to track this cash activity.

1 Q Did -- did anyone on your team ever try to get behind any
2 of those figures?

3 A In order to --

4 Q To check their accuracy.

5 A Cash is generally cash. If you are trying to ask the 6 classification of those receipts, there is -- there is always
7 classification issues, but cash is generally cash. I don't
8 know what verification you do of cash. This is not audited
9 statements.

10 Q Your team didn't have the cash, right?

11 A We tracked cash.

12 Q Your team was not counting the cash? It was looking at 13 reports from the city, correct?

14 A That is accurate. We were not counting dollar bills if 15 that is your question.

16 Q No, that was true for both the bank reports and the 17 internal city reports?

18 A We were tracking cash to the best of our ability.

19 Q Based on the city's reports?

20 A Based on our review of the city's reports and our review
21 of the bank statements.

22 Q Sure. And I don't mean to belabor the issue, but you
23 didn't check the city's reports, did you? You reviewed them
24 and accepted them.

25 A We subtract cash compared to the bank activity. So we 13-53846-swr Doc 2243-15 Filed 12/19/13 Entered 12/19/13 13:44:15 Page 655 of 2386

1 used to check them. We used to review them. We used to ask
2 questions. But generally tracking cash was not going to 3 approves or anything that. It was -- it was tracking cash.

4 Q All right. So back to my question about the income and 5 utility taxes. How did you derive that figure?

6 A This will be a combination as I already testified based 7 on the city's internal reports and their bank accounts. And 8 even out of discussions we may have had with the city
9 personnel.

10 Q Did you have any personal conversations with city
11 personnel related to that item?

12 A I may have, I don't recall specifically. This is going
13 back to fiscal year 2012.

14 Q Do you recall having any personal conversations with 15 anyone at the city related to the property tax item?

16 A I don't remember a specific conversation. We used to 17 track these daily, or actually on the fiscal year 2012 at 18 least weekly to -- to get our arms around the cash activity.

19 Q You and your team?

20 A That is correct.

21 Q What about the gaming taxes? Do you recall where that 22 figure came from?

23 A I think it comes from the city's bank activity.

24 Q The city's bank activity?

25 A Its bank statements.

1 Q Bank statements. And how often did you receive the 2 city's bank statements?

3 A It has varied from time to time, but we are receiving
4 statements right now on a weekly basis if not on a daily
5 basis --

6 Q And in back --

7 A That's --

8 Q I'm sorry. I didn't mean to speak over you. And back in 9 2012, do you recall how often you were receiving those 10 statements?

11 A I do not recall, but we -- we started getting the bank
12 statements on a regular basis as soon as we -- we got engaged
13 because that was the best proxy to track cash.

14 Q And that would have been 2011, correct?

15 A Calendar year 2011, that's right.

16 Q Okay. But I'm asking now about 2012. Do you recall how 17 often you got statements related to gaming taxes?

18 A Talking about fiscal year 2012. I just want to make 19 clear that includes a part of 2011. We would have received
20 activity on a regular basis that's what I would say.

21 Q And you can't recall now whether that was weekly, or 22 twice a month, or monthly?

23 A That is correct, I can't recall.

24 Q How about the municipal service fee to casinos?

25 A Consistent with how we received the gaming taxes

1 information.

2 Q Reports from the city?

3 A Reports, bank activity, discussions with -- with -- with 4 -- from the city's management team.

5 Q I'm sorry? Reports -- discussions with who at the city?

6 A The city's management team.

7 Q Okay. Do you recall having any personal conversations
8 with the city's management team related to that line item?

9 A No, I do not.

10 Q So any -- any conversations would have been between your 11 team and -- and the people at the city?

12 A No, that's not right.

13 Q Okay. What would -- who would be -- who was part of 14 those conversations to your knowledge?

15 A Like I said earlier, I was intimately involved with the 16 tracking of cash activity of the city given how precarious the 17 cash position was. I had several discussions with members of 18 the city's management team with respect to cash.

19 Your question was if I had a specific conversation on 20 this particular line item, I do not recall. I had specific 21 conversations on the cash activity with various members of the 22 city's management team.

23 Q Over what period of time?

24 A Since the time we got engaged.

25 Q And how frequently?

1 A I cannot recall, it was very frequent.

2 Q Just so we're clear, you don't recall having any
3 conversations specifically related to the municipal service
4 fee to casinos, is that correct?

5 A I do not recall of a specific conversation, you're
6 correct.

7 Q How about the state revenue sharing? I think you talked
8 about that yesterday. Did you have any personal involvement
9 in any conversations with the state relating to the revenue
10 sharing figure that's reflected in this exhibit?

11 A It's -- no, it's -- the cash that's received every second 12 month pretty regular.

13 Q I thought you testified yesterday, and I don't want to 14 put words in your mouth, that -- that there was a conversation
15 with the state related to what -- the revenues that came from 16 the state to the city. Is that wrong?

17 A No, you're correct. But my testimony was related to the 18 forecast specifically and I'm happy to talk about it, and also 19 the ten year forecast in terms of the assumptions behind it.

20 Q I understand you might be happy about that. But let's
21 talk -- let's talk to these figures now.

22 A I was just clarifying your -- your question and my 23 testimony. This is for fiscal year 2012.

24 Q Correct.

25 A I did not have specific discussions with the state. We 13-53846-swr Doc 2243-15 Filed 12/19/13 Entered 12/19/13 13:44:15 Page 659 of 2386

1 subtract this cash activity through a combination of the 2 city's reports, the bank activity, and discussions with the 3 management team on a regular basis.

4 Q How about the last item there? It's a fairly large one,
5 other receipts. What -- what goes into that?

6 A That includes grant receipts, it includes any sort of 7 fines that are collected, it includes any sort of fees that 8 are charged by the different departments. It also includes 9 some of the utility charges that come through. So it's -- 10 it's a variety of items that makes up that line item.

11 Q And did your team -- what was the source for your team's 12 collection of that data?

13 A It was the same as I highlighted before.

14 Q Reports from the city?

15 A Bank statements, reports from the city, and discussions
16 with the management team.

17 Q Do the bank statements that come in, do they break out
18 these line items as set forth in Exhibit 44 on this page?

19 A Some of those items are -- are broken out, I believe.
20 But that -- that was part of the process in which we used to 21 look at that activity and try and ascertain where those 22 dollars belong so that we could be updating our forecast based 23 on the run rates more accurately based on the information we 24 received.

25 Q For 2012, the figure on the -- on this exhibit is -- is 13-53846-swr Doc 2243-15 Filed 12/19/13 Entered 12/19/13 13:44:15 Page 660 of 2386

1 that $1,765,000,000, is that correct?

2 A That is correct, including 50,000,000 of refinancing.

3 Q Any -- and is it correct that that's simply cash, that's 4 not something that -- that it could be the subject of -- of 5 discussion or adjustment?

6 A That's correct, it's -- it's cash.

7 Q Did you have any conversations or did your team to your
8 knowledge have any conversations with anybody from Conway,
9 MacKenzie relating to the fiscal year 2012 figures?

10 A We had discussions around the fiscal year 2012 figures
11 with all of the advisors in terms of what the cash activity
12 for fiscal year 2012 was.

13 Q So in essence your team or you just relayed to Conway,
14 MacKenzie what the cash figures were?

15 A We related to the cash activity of fiscal year 2012 as 16 shown on this page was discussed with Conway, MacKenzie and 17 all of the other advisors.

18 Q Now these -- this is the general fund figure, is that
19 correct?

20 A Predominantly, yes. It does not include the activity for 21 Water and Sewer Department, all the receipts for DDOT.

22 Q Or receipts for --

23 A I'm sorry. The Department of Transportation.

24 Q It -- it -- it does not, or it does include Department of 25 Transportation?

1 A It does not include the receipts of the Department of 2 Transportation. The subsidy that's given to the Department of 3 Transportation from the general fund is shown on other
4 disbursement section.

5 Q And -- and tell -- tell us why those enterprise funds
6 receipts are not included in -- in these figures.

7 A The -- the Department of Transportation receipts are not
8 included because it's the net subsidy that the general fund
9 sends to the Department of Transportation after they go
10 through their own receipts and disbursements activity. The 11 net subsidy that the general fund sends to the Department of 12 Transportation are included here. With respect to the Water
13 and Sewer Department, they are receipts saying disbursements
14 activity are not included in here.

15 Q And you said, I think earlier, that the department of -- 16 Departments of Water and Sewer are self sustaining or break
17 even, correct?

18 A That's generally correct.

19 Q So that they can generally handle their own debts and 20 take care of their own business?

21 A Yes.

22 Q I would like to ask the help to put up Exhibit 6 which is 23 also in evidence. And on this instance I believe it's the 24 CAFR for 2012.

1 If you could highlight, please, just the 2012 total receipts.
2 And -- and compare it with, if you could, Exhibit 44 which we
3 were just looking at.

4 Okay. I believe on the top we have an -- an excerpt from 5 Exhibit 6 which is the 2012 CAFR. You're familiar with that 6 document, Mr. Malhotra?

7 A Yes, I am.

8 Q And at the bottom is the year -- well, we were actually 9 looking on the left hand column, but that's the figure from 10 Exhibit 44, am I correct?

11 A That is correct.

12 Q You will note there is a discrepancy between the -- the 13 total operating receipts figure which we were talking about in 14 the bottom and total revenues figure that's recorded in the 15 top. Can you explain for us, please, what the differences are 16 between those two figures?

17 A Sure. I'll focus on your top table which is for 18 governmental activities of total revenues of 1,537,000,000
19 compared to the total operating receipts of 1,765,000,000.

20 Q Right.

21 A The 1,765,000,000 includes cash receipts that the city
22 collects in its property taxes line for distribution to other 23 taxing authorities. If you go back to the cash flows you will 24 see there's a DDOT off a significant amount of disbursements

1 come.

2 So again, I just want to clarify, you're tracking cash.
3 The city receives the gross tax collections then distributes
4 the taxes it has collected on behalf of other entities for a
5 net tax number. Generally that net tax number is what's 6 reported in the coffer as property tax revenue.

7 Q So the one five figure reflects a net figure for the 8 taxes that you just described, is that correct?

9 A That is correct.

10 Q Okay. And -- and that's reflected below the revenue
11 line, or it should be above -- oh, forgive me. It's -- it's 12 reflected in the tax figure itself.

13 A You are correct.

14 Q And if you could drop the Exhibit 44 and just stay with 15 -- yes, that page. Just so I'm sure I understand it. The -- 16 the figures on the top, again this is from CAFR not your 17 document, show that the -- the governmental activities column,
18 the 1.5 is really just a -- it's far short of the -- no, you
19 don't need to do that. The total operational receipts for the 20 City of Detroit, correct?

21 A For the reasons that I described, yes.

22 Q That's the business type activities, those are -- that's 23 water, sewer, transportation?

24 A I believe so. I -- I have not focused on the business
25 type activity, I believe so. I'm not sure.

1 Q Isn't it true that when you -- your engagement began in 2 2011, the business type activities were part of the financial
3 review that your team undertook, correct?

4 A We were looking at the -- the receipts and disbursements
5 activity of some of the enterprise funds, that is correct.

6 MR. RUEGGER: No further questions, Your Honor.

7 THE COURT: Thank you, sir.

8 MR. RUEGGER: Thank you, Mr. Malhotra.

9 THE COURT: Any other questions for the witness?

10 CROSS EXAMINATION

11 BY MS. PATEK:

12 Q Good morning, Mr. Malhotra, Barbara Patek. I represent
13 the Detroit Fire Fighters, the Detroit Police Officers
14 Association, and the Detroit Police Command Officers
15 Association, and the Detroit Police Lieutenant and Sergeants
16 Association. I have just a few questions for you this 17 morning.

18 Mr. Stewart asked you some questions about negotiations
19 with various city unions in late 2011 and 2012. Were you
20 involved in similar negotiations with the Detroit Fire
21 Fighters Association during that same time period?

22 A Yes. Me or my team members were involved, yes.

23 Q Okay. And was Chris Brown a member of that team?

24 A Chris Brown was representing the city.

25 Q And do you recall whether or not, let's start with the 13-53846-swr Doc 2243-15 Filed 12/19/13 Entered 12/19/13 13:44:15 Page 665 of 2386

1 Detroit Fire Fighters. Whether or not you were able to --
2 your team negotiate an agreement with the fire fighters that
3 resulted in some cost savings?

4 A Yes. We did not negotiate it. We helped ascertain the 5 financial impact, but I believe there was a tentative
6 agreement that was reached with Detroit Fire Fighters
7 Association and the city.

8 Q Can I have 714, please? Mr. Malhotra, can -- do you
9 recognize Exhibit 714?

10 A It's the tentative agreement to --

11 Q And -- and can you tell the Court going down to the first 12 -- the first full paragraph in the -- the agreement with whom 13 that appears to be?

14 MR. STEWART: Your Honor, we've objected to this.
15 It is not in evidence. If she's laying a foundation, no
16 objection. But if she's going to question the witness about 17 the substance, we do object.

18 MS. PATEK: I am just laying a foundation, Your
19 Honor.

20 THE COURT: Well, the question you asked was not 21 exactly a question to establish foundation.

22 MS. PATEK: Let me --

23 Q Can you tell us what Exhibit 714 is?

24 A It's the tentative -- tentative agreement entered the 23rd
25 of March between the City of Detroit and the Detroit Fire

1 Fighters Association.

2 Q And can we flip to Page 6 of that agreement, please? Oh,
3 I'm sorry, 7. Do you recognize in the upper left hand corner
4 of that the -- the signature that appears?

5 A I think that is the signature of Chris Brown.

6 Q And Chris Brown was at that time the Chief Operating 7 Officer of the City of Detroit?

8 A That is correct.

9 Q Can we bring up 717? Did you have similar discussions
10 with the Detroit Police Command Officers Association during 11 the same time period, 2011 and 2012?

12 A We have ascertained some of the financial impact of those 13 discussions.

14 Q And you participated and were there in those 15 negotiations?

16 A I was participating from a financial standpoint, yes.

17 Q Do you recall whether or not the agreement negotiated
18 with the Detroit Police Command -- well, strike that. If we 19 can jump ahead to the signature page which I believe on this 20 one is Page 5.

21 And same question here. If you look on the left hand
22 side of the page about a little better than halfway down on 23 Exhibit 717. Do you recognize that signature?

24 A I think that is the signature of Chris Brown.

25 Q And again he was the Chief Operating Officer of the City
13-53846-swr Doc 2243-15 Filed 12/19/13 Entered 12/19/13 13:44:15 Page 667 of 2386

1 of Detroit at that time?

2 A Yes.

3 Q Do you recall whether or not as a result of the 4 negotiation of the tentative agreement, the agreement that 5 resulted provided for some cost savings to the City of 6 Detroit?

7 A It was a combination of cost savings and deferrals, yes.

8 MS. PATEK: I have nothing further at this time.

9 THE COURT: Any other questions for the witness?

10 Any redirect?

11 MR. STEWART: Not very much, Your Honor.

12 REDIRECT EXAMINATION

13 BY MR. STEWART:

14 Q Mr. Malhotra, and when you were questioned you mentioned
15 something called structural cash flow problems?

16 A Yes.

17 Q What are structural cash flow problems?

18 A As shown on the city's cash flow activity for fiscal year
19 '12 and 2013, the disbursements continue to exceed receipts
20 for both of those years which in my mind are structural cash
21 flow issues especially given the fact that the city had 22 already made -- or had gotten a lot of concessions from some 23 of the active employees that -- but yet other than borrowing
24 new cash, or pooling new -- pooling accounts, or deferrals,
25 the core structural problems were -- or cash flow problems

1 where that the disbursements continued to exceed the receipts.

2 Q Now when you used that term, it was in connection with
3 the questions you were asked about the monetization of city
4 assets. What effect if any would the monetization of city
5 assets have upon the city's structural cash flow problems?

6 A None.

7 Q Why not?

8 A Because in -- in my view those are one time proceeds from 9 asset sales that do not address the issues with respect to the 10 ongoing operating disbursements and the legacy cost
11 disbursements, the combination of which continue to exceed the 12 receipts that the city generates from its operations.

13 Q Now you also were asked at various times about cost
14 savings that had been negotiated or realized or what have you 15 in previous years. To the extent cost savings had been 16 achieved by the city, what if anything did you do in your 17 financial analyses with respect to those savings?

18 A Those savings were clearly reflected in the cash activity
19 on a monthly basis all through fiscal year 2013. So the 20 fiscal year 2013 would already reflect those cash savings that 21 had occurred during that time frame.

22 We also adjusted for additional cost savings from a
23 forecast basis over the forecast time frame which were already 24 incorporated in the cash flow assumptions.

1 questions.

2 THE COURT: All right. Sir, you may step down.
3 Thank you very much. I will ask you to be here again tomorrow
4 morning in case we have more questions for you.

5 A Yes, Your Honor.

6 (WITNESS GAURAV MALHOTRA WAS EXCUSED AT 11:43 A.M.)

7 THE COURT: All right. Your next witness, sir.

8 MR. STEWART: Charles Moore. Your Honor, before Mr.
9 Moore comes into the courtroom, as a foreseeable evidentiary
10 point, I think it might be best just to raise outside of the 11 presence of the witness.

12 THE COURT: Okay.

13 MR. STEWART: And here is what it is. Yesterday in 14 the opening, I believe it was Mr. Oldman and if I'm wrong, I
15 apologize to Mr. Oldman who in the course of his opening about 16 the alleged bad faith of the emergency manager said, and we 17 have the imperfect transcript here with us, that Mr. Orr did 18 not have a factual basis to state in his declaration that the 19 pension claims were about 3.5 million dollars.

20 Because he opened on it, that is squarely now an issue in 21 our case. And I intend to ask Mr. Moore about that. And in 22 particular where that number came from. I'm going to ask him
23 did he give that number to Mr. -- Mr. Orr and where did he get 24 it from and what made him believe that was a reliable number.

1 given to him by the pension plans actuaries. And he has those
2 reports with him. There have been -- they're exhibits here in 3 our case. So I intend to ask him about that.

4 I'm not certain there will be an objection to it, but if
5 there is, I thought it would be more orderly to deal with it
6 now instead of while he was testifying.

7 THE COURT: Any objections?

8 MR. RUEGGER: On behalf of the committee yes, Your 9 Honor. I believe that that's just an effort to introduce 10 opinion testimony, expert testimony through a witness who is 11 supposed to be a lay witness. And I don't believe Mr.
12 Oldman's opening relating to that figure opened any doors to 13 allow that kind of expert testimony. I would take it on a
14 question by -- I'm sorry, Your Honor.

15 MR. MONTGOMERY: I didn't mean to interrupt you.

16 THE COURT: I actually meant for him to remain quiet
17 so you could finish. All right.

18 MR. RUEGGER: I'm sorry, Your Honor. I wasn't sure 19 who was where.

20 MR. MONTGOMERY: We would simply object, Your Honor, 21 for the -- for the reasons that I think we've -- we've raised
22 with you in the past.

23 THE COURT: Okay. And please recall to speak right
24 into the microphone. Any other objections before I get back

25 to Mr. Stewart? Sir?

1 MR. SHERWOOD: Yeah, on behalf of AFSCME, Jack
2 Sherwood. We would join in the objection. We would submit
3 that any testimony by Mr. Moore about pension under funding is 4 clearly, I don't think there's any dispute that that type of 5 testimony involves extremely specialized knowledge, training,
6 and is way beyond the understanding of the average person.

7 It is without a doubt the subject of what should be 8 expert testimony. And for the city to try to use that 9 testimony in this proceeding by a witness who has not been 10 qualified as an expert, who has not rendered an expert report,
11 is improper.

12 And only experts can rely on -- on hearsay. And that is 13 what this witness would be doing. So on behalf of AFSCME, we 14 would also oppose any testimony by ths witness concerning the 15 -- the value of the -- the pension under funding. Thank you,
16 Your Honor.

17 MR. CIANTRA: Thomas Ciantra for the UAW, Your 18 Honor. We would join in those objections and note that Mr.
19 Moore is not an actuary and has not been proffered, we 20 understand, as a -- as an expert qualified to provide 21 actuarial testimony.

22 THE COURT: All right. Thank you. The -- go ahead,
23 I didn't mean to cut you off.

24 MR. STEWART: I think there may be some confusion.

1 good faith basis of Mr. Orr who has been accused of bad faith.
2 So that -- that is the nature of the proffer and there is a
3 hearsay exception for that.

4 THE COURT: Yes. The Court will admit the evidence
5 but for the limited purpose of addressing the challenge to Mr.
6 Orr's credibility and good faith.

7 MR. STEWART: Mr. Moore is being brought to the 8 courtroom from the hall because of the sequestration --

9 THE COURT: Yes.

10 MR. STEWART: -- agreement, Your Honor.

11 THE COURT: Step forward please, sir. And before
12 you sit down, please raise your right hand.

13 (WITNESS CHARLES MOORE WAS SWORN)

14 THE COURT: All right. Please sit down.

15 DIRECT EXAMINATION

16 BY MR. STEWART:

17 Q Good morning, Mr. Moore.

18 A Good morning.

19 Q Could you please give the Court your full name and your 20 home address?

21 A Charles Moore, M-o-o-r-e. And I am out of Birmingham,
22 Michigan.

23 Q And are you employed, Mr. Moore?

24 A Yes, sir.

25 Q And where do you work?

1 A Conway, MacKenzie, Inc.

2 Q And tell us if you could what Conway, MacKenzie, Inc. is.

3 A We are primarily a turnaround and restructuring firm.

4 Q How long have you worked for Conway, MacKenzie?

5 A For approximately 12 years.

6 Q Tell us if you could about your education, college and 7 after college if you have post graduate work.

8 A I have a Bachelor's Degree in Accounting from Michigan
9 State University. I have a Master's of Business
10 Administration from Michigan State University in Professional
11 Accounting. And I have various certifications as well.

12 Q Well, first of all, if you could give me the dates of 13 your degrees from Michigan State.

14 A Sure. I completed both degrees in 1994. It was a 15 combined degree program and both degrees are granted at the 16 same time.

17 Q And then you mentioned your professional certifications.
18 Could you tell us what those are?

19 A Yes, sir. I am a Certified Public Accountant, a 20 Certified Turnaround Professional, and I'm certified in 21 Financial Forensics.

22 Q And who does the certifications for those qualifications?

23 A The American Institute of Certified Public Accountants is 24 the CPA body. The Turnaround Management Association is the 25 body for the Certified Turnaround Professional designation.

1 And then the AICPA, the American Institute of Certified Public
2 Accountants, also does the financial forensics certification.

3 Q Tell us if you could about your employment since your
4 graduation from Michigan State.

5 A My first job was with Deloitte and Touche. I was 6 employed there for approximately five and a half years. After 7 that I was at a company by the name of Horizon Technology
8 where I was Chief Financial Officer and then I joined Conway, 9 MacKenzie.

10 Q And you told us you've been there 12 years.

11 A Yes, sir.

12 Q Where is Conway, MacKenzie headquartered?

13 A We are headquartered in Birmingham, Michigan.

14 Q And what Conway, MacKenzie office do you work out of?

15 A I work out of the Birmingham, Michigan office.

16 Q What title do you hold at Conway, MacKenzie?

17 A I'm Senior Managing Director and shareholder.

18 Q Okay. And tell us if you could what kind of practice you
19 have at the firm.

20 A My work primarily involves turnaround and restructuring
21 services. I also perform services in other areas of our firm
22 such as investment banking and litigation support.

23 Q Could you -- to the extent they're probably discloseable, 24 could you tell us some of the clients you have worked for 25 while at Conway, MacKenzie?

1 A Certainly. As you mentioned, there are client
2 confidentiality restrictions, but publicly known clients
3 recently would include the City of Detroit, Detroit Public
4 Schools, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, Jefferson County,
5 Alabama, Greektown Casino and Hotel.

6 Q Have your clients included unions?

7 A Yes, sir.

8 Q Which unions?

9 A I have done work on behalf of AFSCME and UAW.

10 Q And what project was that on if you can tell us?

11 A Yes. I was engaged jointly by AFSCME and the UAW related
12 to the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico.

13 Q Now in 2007, did you sit on a commission appointed by the 14 Michigan government?

15 A Yes, sir.

16 Q Please tell us what that work involved.

17 A The commission was the legislative commission on 18 government efficiency. It was a nine person panel appointed
19 by legislators from the State of Michigan.

20 Q And how long did you work with that commission?

21 A It was approximately a two year assignment.

22 Q And what did you do in those two years?

23 A The primary objective of the commission was to find
24 operational efficiencies for the state government.

25 Q Did there come a time in 2012 you began working for the 13-53846-swr Doc 2243-15 Filed 12/19/13 Entered 12/19/13 13:44:15 Page 676 of 2386

1 City of Detroit?

2 A Yes.

3 Q And tell us about that work.

4 A In late 2012, Conway, MacKenzie did some pro bono work
5 for the City of Detroit.

6 Q And what was -- what work -- what work -- sorry, what 7 work did you do?

8 A Conway, MacKenzie was asked to perform analysis on 9 certain areas related to cashiering operations for the city.

10 Q And you'd better tell us what a cashiering operation is.

11 A Cashiering generally means areas where cash is coming
12 into the city.

13 Q Okay. And then what areas did you look into?

14 A There were, as I mentioned, about five areas. Some were 15 more of a focus than others. Municipal parking was a primary
16 area of focus. We also looked at fire operations including 17 the fire marshal where fees are generated. We also looked at 18 aspects of building safety and engineering.

19 Q Did there come a time earlier this year when Conway,
20 MacKenzie was hired by the City of Detroit to -- on a non-pro
21 bono basis to do work for the city?

22 A Yes, sir.

23 Q And how did that come about?

24 A The City of Detroit issued an RFP, a request for proposal
25 in November of 2012 for restructuring services. Conway,

1 MacKenzie was one of the firms that responded to that RFP and
2 was eventually engaged in January of 2013.

3 Q And by restructuring services, what are you referring to?

4 A Restructuring services is not really a defined term, but 5 because of the financial distress that the city was 6 experiencing, there was a desire to bring in outside expertise
7 to help the city deal with that financial distress.

8 Q And so Conway, MacKenzie became a operational
9 restructuring advisor to the city?

10 A Yes, sir.

11 Q What areas did you look at?

12 A We've looked at pretty much every area of the city's 13 operations.

14 Q Okay. Let me ask about some in particular. What if 15 anything were you asked to do in terms of looking at the 16 city's operations in the area of public safety?

17 A Public safety involves multiple areas. It includes 18 police, fire, EMS, and Department of Homeland Security. We 19 spent quite a bit of time understanding how those departments
20 function currently, what are the major impediments to 21 improving their performance, and working with individuals in 22 those departments to develop a plan for improving performance.

23 Q Tell me if you could how did you go about doing this
24 work?

25 A The city has had multiple consultants performing work
13-53846-swr Doc 2243-15 Filed 12/19/13 Entered 12/19/13 13:44:15 Page 678 of 2386

1 over the last several years. And so one of the items that
2 Conway, MacKenzie did was to first understand work that has 3 been done in the past by outsider organizations so that we 4 could leverage that work.

5 In addition to that we worked very closely with the 6 people within the departments as well as outside organizations
7 to not only gather facts in terms of how the department is 8 performing currently, but also to benchmark as to how the 9 department stacks up compared to other areas that would be 10 relevant.

11 Q Did there come a time when you made recommendations to 12 the city relating to public safety?

13 A Yes, sir.

14 Q And what did you recommend?

15 A In the June time period of this year there was a document
16 that was put together. A creditor proposal which incorporated
17 our work and specifically had initiatives related to public
18 safety in both restructuring expenses as well as capital
19 expenditures.

20 Q And if we could, let's put up exhibit -- if we could,
21 let's put up Exhibit 43. Mr. Moore, is this the creditor
22 proposal that you -- you referred to a few minutes ago?

23 A This appears to be the title so, yes.

24 Q And could you direct us to the portion of this that

1 just a few minutes ago?

2 A If I recall correctly, this document is about 130 pages.
3 There are multiple areas where recommendations related to 4 public safety would exist. If -- if we're able to scroll
5 through it, I could get you those pages.

6 I can tell you at the very end of the document that has a
7 summary listing of capital expenditures which you would be 8 able to look at from the standpoint of public safety.

9 Q We will -- and we will do that once we've covered all
10 these areas. And then what did you do if anything with regard
11 to the Water and Sewer Department?

12 A Conway, MacKenzie was asked to prepare a long term, long 13 term being defined as ten year business plan for both the 14 water and sewer funds.

15 Q And what do you mean when you say business plan?

16 A A business plan essentially involves how the department
17 will operate over a period of time. Anticipated revenues,
18 expenses, as well as other cash needs such as capital
19 improvements.

20 Q And did there come a time when you made a recommendation
21 to the city or to the emergency manager based on the work that 22 you had done?

23 A Yes.

24 Q And when did you make that recommendation?

25 A At the end of September of 2013 we delivered that ten
13-53846-swr Doc 2243-15 Filed 12/19/13 Entered 12/19/13 13:44:15 Page 680 of 2386

1 year business plan for the water and sewer funds.

2 Q Now have you also been asked to look into the 3 monetization of the Water and Sewer Department?

4 A Yes, sir.

5 Q When did you begin your work looking into the 6 monetization of that department?

7 A The business plan which our work began in July of 2013,
8 the development of the business plan for the water and sewer 9 funds was to be used as a basis for evaluating strategic 10 alternatives for the water and sewer funds. And among those 11 strategic alternatives was the potential creation of a
12 regional water authority. And that was one area that this 13 business plan is currently being used.

14 Q And how, if you can disclose to us, how would the 15 creation of a regional water and sewer authority lead to its 16 monetization?

17 A What is currently being discussed, and -- and this is a
18 publicly available aspect. And I -- and I have to be careful 19 because the negotiations are ongoing and they are 20 confidential.

21 But what has been publicly discussed is the formation of 22 a regional authority would potentially involve the City of 23 Detroit leasing the water and sewer assets to a regional 24 authority and then receiving a payment in return.

25 Q So the monetization would take the form of lease
13-53846-swr Doc 2243-15 Filed 12/19/13 Entered 12/19/13 13:44:15 Page 681 of 2386

1 payments?

2 A Yes, sir.

3 Q And did I hear you correctly this is under discussion as 4 we speak?

5 A Yes, sir.

6 Q Let me direct your attention to the Detroit -- Detroit
7 Department of Transportation. What if anything was Conway,
8 MacKenzie asked to do with regard to DDOT?

9 A DDOT as you mentioned, the Department of Transportation
10 is another department that we looked at and there are both 11 short term as well as longer term items that we evaluated
12 there.

13 In the short term, we looked at ways of potentially 14 improving the operation perhaps through as an example fare
15 increases to try to get more revenue into the department.
16 Identify ways that the -- that the department could operate
17 more efficiently.

18 As an example getting more buses on the road, maintenance
19 tends to be an issue in that department. And also the 20 management of the department. The longer term is still a
21 question and that could involve eventually merging into more a
22 regional transportation authority.

23 Q And that merger would be done for what reason?

24 A If the authority, if a regional authority could provide 25 better service to residents and it could also save the city

1 money, then that certainly is something that we would look at.

2 Q Were you also asked to look at the Detroit Lighting
3 Authority?

4 A Yes.

5 Q What if anything did you do with regard to the Detroit
6 Lighting Authority?

7 A Mr. Stewart, I'll just clarify. You're referring to the 8 Public Lighting Authority.

9 Q Public Lighting.

10 A Yes.

11 Q I'm sorry. Thank you.

12 A The -- the Public Lighting Authority was an authority
13 established within the past year and the primary purpose of 14 that lighting authority is to improve the lighting within the 15 city. That needs to be funded. And then the efforts to 16 replace lights will occur.

17 And so we worked with the city and the state as it
18 relates to the initial financing for the Public Lighting
19 Authority which is ongoing right now. As well as we were 20 involved with a request for proposal related to the management
21 of the Public Lighting Department.

22 Q What were you asked to do if anything with regard to tax
23 and revenue collection operations for the city?

24 A The city takes in a variety of taxes. The primary items
25 for taxes are property taxes, income taxes, and utility taxes

1 among others.

2 And we looked at those operations as to how they could be
3 made more efficient as well as potentially increase the amount
4 of revenue that was coming in.

5 Q What did you find in the course of your investigation
6 into the operations of the city's tax and revenue functions?

7 A As it relates to property taxes, there have been efforts
8 that were underway for the last few years where the city had 9 been using some outside assistance to try to improve that 10 area.

11 The city, its ability to operate in the property tax
12 area, was very broken. Simple things such as getting bills
13 out on time and to the right addresses, as well as having the 14 right number of resources available to accept payment were 15 both significant deficiencies.

16 Q Were -- were measures implemented to correct those 17 deficiencies?

18 A Yes, sir.

19 Q Tell us if you could what those measures were or are?

20 A There are a number of things as it relates to property
21 tax collections that are underway. First of all, the property
22 tax billing process has been improved significantly and so the 23 bills have gone out on time.

24 In addition to that, a number of additional resources

25 were brought in in July and August of this year in order to be 13-53846-swr Doc 2243-15 Filed 12/19/13 Entered 12/19/13 13:44:15 Page 684 of 2386

1 able to process the receipts, the -- the payments that
2 residents and others would make.

3 We also changed some of the bank information so that
4 payments would be received quicker as well as larger amounts
5 for property tax payments could actually be received.

6 Q And do I understand correctly you're continuing to work
7 in the area?

8 A Yes, sir.

9 Q What did you do with regard to investigating the problem
10 of housing blight here in the City of Detroit?

11 A Blight which is the term that most people use for 12 structures as well as non-structural areas that are -- could 13 be abandoned, burned out buildings, overgrowth of brush,
14 certainly was an area that we kept running into in a number of 15 the departments that would drive department activity.

16 As an example within the fire department, approximately 17 60% of the fire department's runs relate to abandoned
18 buildings. We also noticed on the property tax side that 19 areas where there was significant amounts of blight, both 20 structural and non-structural, that property taxes -- or 21 property tax values would deteriorate very quickly.

22 And so there was an initiative identified as part of the 23 plan that was put together to eliminate the residential blight
24 within the City of Detroit.

1 non-structural blight?

2 A Yes, Your Honor.

3 THE COURT: What is that?

4 A If you think of a lot, a residential lot, some of these 5 lots don't have a structure on them anymore, however, there is 6 tremendous overgrowth. And so it hides what activity may be 7 going on in that lot. And that also can be a -- an area that 8 breeds crime.

9 Q Now, have you heard the terms restructuring and 10 reinvestment as used with respect to the work of the emergency
11 manager?

12 A Yes, sir.

13 Q In fact was that not something also discussed in the June
14 14 presentation?

15 A Yes, sir.

16 Q Could you tell us please, what is meant by those terms?
17 And let's start with restructuring.

18 A Restructuring refers to how the departments operate. And 19 when Conway, MacKenzie first began its efforts with the 20 departments, very often we find that there are areas where 21 costs can be reduced and so that is a big focus in the 22 turnaround industry in general is reducing expenses.

23 What we found within the departments is that a number of 24 the -- the departments were severely broken. The -- as a

25 result of a number of cost cuts that have happened over the 13-53846-sw Doc 2243-15 Filed 12/19/13 Entered 12/19/13 13:44:15 Page 686 of 2386

1 years, many departments couldn't perform the most basic
2 functions I referred to earlier, just the inability to get
3 property tax bills out.

4 And so when we use the word restructuring we're talking
5 about changing how the department operates. And in many 6 instances what that actually revolved around was adding 7 expenses so that departments could function and services could 8 be performed.

9 Q Were you able to determine whether the benefit from 10 adding these employees would outweigh the expense of hiring
11 them?

12 A In addition to the expenses that we identified, we also 13 identified a number of revenue initiatives as well.

14 Q If you could, just explain to us what the revenue
15 initiatives were? Actually I should first ask what were the 16 amount of the expenses?

17 A The amount of expenses, added expenses over the ten year
18 period which is the period that we developed for the 19 restructuring and reinvestment plan, was approximately 20 $250,000,000.

21 Q And what did you calculate the benefits would be 22 financially from the restructuring?

23 A We had other revenue initiatives where revenue
24 initiatives would revolve around areas where the city could 25 receive additional cash in flows revenue of approximately

1 $280,000,000. There were some offsets to that as well as we
2 looked at changing some departments it would result in some
3 lower revenue as well. And so as a result there was net
4 revenue improvements of about $250,000,000 as well.

5 Q Now then the term was used reinvestment.

6 A Yes, sir.

7 Q Tell me -- or tell the Court what you mean -- or meant
8 when you used the term reinvestment.

9 A Reinvestment is referred to as the category of planned 10 expenditures that would relate to the infrastructure of the 11 city. As an example whether that is facility improvements, 12 vehicle fleet, information technology, or even in the case of 13 blight, spending on blight elimination.

14 Q And why is reinvestment -- this was something you
15 recommended?

16 A Yes, sir.

17 Q Why did you recommend it?

18 A What became very clear is that over the years as the 19 city's finances suffered and deteriorated that there was not 20 the necessary reinvestment made in the structural assets. As 21 an example, there are parking garages where large portions of 22 the parking garages are actually blocked off because the 23 structures themselves are in disrepair. And that's a source
24 of revenue for the city.

1 continued issues with just performing functions. And so what
2 became very clear to Conway, MacKenzie and formed the basis of 3 our recommendations, is that without spending money on the 4 infrastructure, the ability to perform services and actually
5 have hard assets where those services are performed, would 6 continue to be challenged.

7 Q Now is the removal of blighted structures part of 8 reinvestment?

9 A Yes, sir.

10 Q Okay. And why as a matter of economics, is removal of 11 blighted properties -- well, you did recommend removal of 12 blighted properties, correct?

13 A Blighted residential properties, yes.

14 Q Why is that economically sensible to do?

15 A As I mentioned before, blight seems to touch on a number
16 of the areas that we've looked at whether it is public safety,
17 property taxes, or even appearance. And so by spending money
18 on eliminating that, you change the dynamics of where people's 19 time gets spent as well as the basis for how the city receives
20 revenue.

21 Q Did you have an estimate of what it would cost to remove 22 the blighted residential properties?

23 A Yes, sir.

24 Q And what was your estimate?

25 A Five hundred million dollars during this time period.

1 Q And the time period for removal was how many years?

2 A We forecasted $500,000,000 over six years.

3 Q And where did the number 500,000,000 come from?

4 A This was an estimate based on discussions with people
5 that have been involved with blight removal in the past within 6 the city. The city has been undertaking blight removal
7 efforts for some time as well as outside parties that have 8 been involved with blight removal as well.

9 Q Now --

10 MR. RUEGGER: I'm sorry, Mr. Stewart.

11 MR. STEWART: Sure.

12 MR. RUEGGER: I would object to the last testimony
13 as -- as hearsay, Your Honor.

14 THE COURT: Would you speak into the microphone,
15 please?

16 MR. RUEGGER: Objection to the last question and 17 answer as it called for hearsay and his answer was hearsay. I
18 also want to object. I believe this is bordering into expert
19 testimony and the witness is supposed to be a lay witness.

20 MR. STEWART: Your Honor, he made recommendations
21 that resulted in a number for restructuring the reinvestment
22 during the openings yesterday. That number too is challenged.
23 In particular I remember one of the openings saying how could 24 the city in good faith budget for this when it is not going to 25 be able to pay others.

1 So as a matter of dealing with the good faith issue and
2 the reliability of the data, I wanted to adduce testimony of 3 where these numbers came from.

4 THE COURT: Is that the sole purpose that you're 5 offering this for?

6 MR. STEWART: At this point, yes.

7 THE COURT: All right. With that limited purpose,
8 the Court will overrule the objection.

9 Q I have one further question in this area which is 10 including the $500,000,000 for blight removal, what was the 11 total number you developed for reinvestment and restructuring
12 for the city?

13 A It was approximately $1,000,000,000.

14 Q Over ten years?

15 A Over ten years, yes. Excuse me, Mr. Stewart. In your 16 question, did you ask restructuring and reinvestment?

17 Q I did.

18 A Okay. The total with both of those would be 19 approximately 1.25 billion dollars. A billion on the 20 reinvestment.

21 Q Let me move to another area. As part of your work for 22 the city or the emergency manager, were you asked to do
23 something called tax benchmarking?

24 A Yes, sir.

25 Q Could you tell us what tax benchmarking is?

1 A As part of the -- our initial efforts when we were
2 looking at potential sources of cash, we looked at the current
3 level of taxation for residents and businesses within the City
4 of Detroit to understand whether that -- whether those could 5 be increased as a potential source of cash. And so we looked 6 at the City of Detroit's taxation and we compared that to a
7 few of the surrounding communities.

8 Q And what did you conclude?

9 A That the City of Detroit residents were taxed far more
10 than surrounding communities. And in fact had the highest 11 taxation within the State of Michigan.

12 MR. STEWART: Your Honor, this is a good breaking
13 point for me, but I'm prepared to continue if the Court --

14 THE COURT: No. No, let's -- let's stop now for 15 lunch and reconvene at 1:45, please.

16 (WITNESS CHARLES MOORE WAS TEMPORARILY EXCUSED AT 12:15
17 P.M.)

18 THE CLERK: All rise. Court is in recess.

19 (Court in Recess at 12:15 p.m.; Resume at 1:45 p.m.)

20 THE CLERK: Court is in session. Please be seated.
21 Recalling case number 13-53846, City of Detroit, Michigan.

22 MR. IRWIN: Good afternoon, Your Honor. Geoff Irwin
23 from Jones, Day. Might we return to a brief housekeeping
24 matter from yesterday morning just to update the Court?

25 THE COURT: Sure, go ahead.

1 MR. IRWIN: In regard to the -- the UAW motion to 2 compel, and I've -- I've conferred with Mr. Ciantra on this.
3 That you may recall that there were some Jones, Day research
4 memoranda that were the subject of the motion to compel.

5 And I indicated that we would do our very best to 6 investigate whether these memoranda were in fact shared with 7 the state. And that if they were we would in fact disclose
8 them to -- to objectors here.

9 We have done our very best and it is proving too
10 difficult to know. People just don't recall as they look at 11 individual memoranda whether they did or didn't.

12 So I -- I have conferred with Mr. Ciantra. I am
13 perfectly prepared to share them with the Court. I think the 14 Court invited for us to submit them in camera for the Court to 15 consider before deciding what -- what to do and I'm prepared 16 to do that.

17 THE COURT: Okay. I will accept that and give you a
18 decision tomorrow morning.

19 MR. CIANTRA: Thank you, Your Honor. In -- in 20 connection with that, I would just ask that the Court focus
21 with respect to the cover email that was -- that described --

22 THE COURT: Is that there too, or is that in 23 evidence?

24 MR. CIANTRA: I believe -- I believe it is -- is it
25 there?

1 MR. IRWIN: It's not in -- it's not in here.

2 MR. CIANTRA: But it was -- it was read into the 3 record yesterday by Ms. Green.

4 THE COURT: Okay. So I think I have -- so it's in 5 here? Objecting parties opening statement, RSC867?

6 MR. CIANTRA: I don't -- Your Honor, I don't believe
7 -- I don't believe it is in there. I believe Ms. Green read
8 -- read it into the record in connection with her argument on 9 -- on the retirement systems motion.

10 THE COURT: Oh, oh, okay, all right. So we'll have 11 to get it from -- from the transcript.

12 MR. CIANTRA: If -- I don't have it right --

13 THE COURT: Ms. Green, can you help us?

14 MS. GREEN: The date of the email is listed in the 15 PowerPoint presentation. And it's June 5th, 2012. The whole 16 email I don't believe is in it. I think it's maybe a piece of 17 it perhaps, but --

18 THE COURT: Well, let me just ask. Does anyone have 19 the email?

20 MS. GREEN: I do. It is in our exhibit binders that 21 we gave to the Court.

22 THE COURT: Can you -- can you give me a number?

23 MS. GREEN: I will give you the number in one
24 second. I will look it up. I have my binder back here.

25 MR. CIANTRA: Thank you for the Court's patience
13-53846-swr Doc 2243-15 Filed 12/19/13 Entered 12/19/13 13:44:15 Page 694 of

1 with this, Your Honor.

2 THE COURT: Well, Ms. Green, why don't you take your 3 time and look for that, or do you have it right at hand there?

4 MS. GREEN: I have it, yeah.

5 THE COURT: Oh, all right.

6 MS. GREEN: I believe it is 844 -- it's 844 in the 7 retirement systems binder.

8 THE COURT: Okay. We are all set. Thank you. And 9 we got the envelope so we're all set. May we proceed? You
10 may proceed, sir.

11 MR. STEWART: Thank you, Your Honor.

12 (WITNESS CHARLES MOORE RESUMED THE STAND AT 1:49 P.M.)

13 BY MR. STEWART:

14 Q Mr. Moore, let me direct your attention to June 14, 2013.
15 Did -- did you have occasion that day to attend a meeting
16 given by the emergency manager?

17 A Yes, sir.

18 Q What was the purpose of that meeting?

19 A The purpose of that meeting was to present what is 20 referred to as the proposal to creditors, to various creditors
21 of the City of Detroit.

22 Q Can we put up Exhibit 43, please? And do you see on the 23 monitor in front of you, Mr. Moore, a document Exhibit 43?

24 A Yes.

25 Q What is that?

1 A This appears to be the title of that presentation.

2 Q And that was a presentation made that day?

3 A Yes, sir.

4 Q What role if any did you have in making the presentation?

5 A I spoke to a couple of parts in that presentation.

6 Q How long was your part of the meeting?

7 A I would estimate about 15 minutes or so.

8 Q And what was the general reason for the meeting if you
9 know?

10 A The general reason for the meeting as I indicated was to 11 present the current situation that the city found itself in.
12 And the plan that the city wanted to pursue regarding 13 restructuring and reinvestment. As well as to lay out a 14 proposal as to how various classes of creditors would be 15 treated.

16 Q Were particular questions asked of you that day?

17 A Not that I recall.

18 Q Let me ask you if you could, to go to -- and let's also 19 ask the -- Ms. Lori, to go to Page 98 of the document which 20 you can see on your monitor. And is this -- actually let's go
21 one page earlier, just so the witness has his attention
22 focused on it.

23 Just one -- one -- one page before. Do you see the page
24 that's before you?

25 A Yes.

1 Q Then go -- then go back to the page we just had. And 2 this page as well?

3 A Yes.

4 Q Do you understand what these pages depict?

5 A Yes.

6 Q And what do they depict?

7 A This is a ten year financial forecast indicating the 8 approximate amount of cash that was anticipated to be 9 available for unsecured claims.

10 Q And that was --

11 MR. SHERWOOD: Your Honor, I -- I object to this 12 testimony.

13 THE COURT: All right. First of all, pull the mike
14 closer. Second of all, please talk louder.

15 MR. SHERWOOD: I object on the grounds that this is 16 improper opinion testimony from a non-expert.

17 THE COURT: Well, the last question certainly didn't 18 ask him an opinion, so to that extent it's overruled. When 19 you think there is an opinion being given I invite your 20 objection at that time.

21 MR. SHERWOOD: Thank you, Your Honor.

22 Q And now, Lori, could be blow up the box? There. Do you
23 see the part of that page which has now been expanded to fill
24 the monitor screen?

25 A Yes.

1 Q What -- what is this?

2 A This is a listing of the estimated unsecured claims as of
3 June 14th, 2013.

4 Q And when you use the phrase unsecured claims, what are 5 you referring to?

6 A This is based on claims for which there did not appear to 7 be a specific security interest.

8 Q Claims by who?

9 A Creditors of the City of Detroit.

10 Q And claims against who?

11 A Against the City of Detroit.

12 Q Let me ask you to direct your attention to the line that 13 says unsecured pension and OPOB. Do you see that?

14 A Yes.

15 Q And then do you see the area that has now just been 16 highlighted for you?

17 A Yes.

18 Q And what is that?

19 A These are the estimated unfunded amounts related to the 20 two pension systems of the City of Detroit.

21 Q Unfunded in what sense?

22 A The liability for the pension system in excess of the 23 plan assets of the pension system.

24 Q And those two numbers add up to about 3.474 billion
25 dollars?

1 A Yes, sir.

2 Q Do you know where that number came from?

3 A Yes.

4 Q Where did it come from?

5 A From me.

6 Q And why did -- who did you give it to?

7 A I gave it to Mr. Malhotra.

8 Q And anyone else?

9 A I gave it to the other restructuring advisors that would 10 have put it into the document.

11 Q And did you also share it with Mr. Orr?

12 A Yes, sir.

13 Q And where did you get it from?

14 A I got it from Milliman.

15 Q And for the record who is Milliman?

16 A Milliman is the actuary engaged by the City of Detroit.

17 Q Do you know how Milliman derived those numbers?

18 A Yes.

19 Q And could you tell us briefly how they did it and then
20 I'm going to show you some -- some exhibits.

21 MR. RUEGGER: With respect, Mr. Stewart, objection.

22 I believe --

23 THE COURT: And into the microphone, please.

24 MR. RUEGGER: This is getting into expert opinion

25 testimony, Your Honor.

1 THE COURT: The objection is overruled.

2 A Would you please restate the question?

3 Q Could you tell us how you -- how Milliman to your
4 knowledge came up with these numbers?

5 A Yes. The restructuring team has a task force
6 specifically --

7 THE COURT: Excuse me one second. How do you know
8 how Milliman came up with these numbers?

9 A Your Honor, I lead a task force for the City of Detroit
10 on pensions and I specifically received this information from 11 Milliman.

12 THE COURT: Okay. You may answer the question.

13 A The task force that I indicated that is specifically 14 focused on pensions asked Milliman to run a variety of 15 scenarios.

16 Q Now let me -- and do you understand how Milliman in these 17 scenarios came up with its numbers?

18 A Yes, sir.

19 Q And how did they come up with their numbers?

20 A Milliman used the Gabrielle Roeder actuarial evaluation.

21 Q Stop you there. Who is Gabrielle Roeder?

22 A Gabrielle Roeder is the actuary that is used by each
23 pension system.

24 Q Okay. Sorry to have interrupted your answer.

1 hearsay objection to this. I think this is just -- he is
2 testifying to out of Court statements by -- presumably by 3 actuaries at Milliman as to how they derived numbers. It's --
4 it's rank hearsay.

5 THE COURT: And who was Milliman retained by?

6 MR. SHERWOOD: Milliman was retained by the City of
7 Detroit.

8 MR. STEWART: No, I think it was retained by the 9 pension --

10 THE COURT: Who was Milliman retained by?

11 A The City of Detroit.

12 MR. STEWART: And, Your Honor --

13 THE COURT: And you --

14 MR. STEWART: Yes. It's being offered for state of 15 mind. As we -- as I -- before he took the stand I raised this 16 saying, we're not offering these for the truth, we're offering 17 these numbers to rebut the argument that has been made that 18 Mr. Orr did not have a good faith basis in this document and 19 other documents for representing that the pension claims would 20 be 3.5 million dollars.

21 THE COURT: Did you tell Milliman -- I'm sorry, did
22 you tell Mr. Orr how Milliman came up with these numbers?

23 A Yes, sir.

24 THE COURT: All right. Tell us what you told Mr.

25 Orr.

1 A I told Mr. Orr that Milliman had taken the Gabrielle
2 Roeder actuarial evaluation and modified a couple of 3 assumptions based on that actuarial valuation.

4 THE COURT: All right. The Court will receive that 5 testimony again only for purposes of -- of demonstrating what
6 Mr. Orr was told, not for the truth of it.

7 Q And did you have reason to believe that Milliman's
8 conclusions were reliable?

9 MR. CIANTRA: I would object. I'm going to again
10 object to this. He's not an actuary. He's not being 11 proffered for actuarial expertise. I don't know what the 12 basis of him offering that opinion would be.

13 MR. STEWART: Foundational question, Your Honor, but 14 also once again, since what we're talking about is good faith
15 reliance an element of reliance is reliance --

16 THE COURT: All right. Well, here's a better
17 question. Did you express to Mr. Orr any doubt about the 18 reliability of the information that you had given him?

19 A No, Your Honor.

20 Q Let me put up, let's put up Page 1 of Exhibit 69, please.
21 Can you tell me what Exhibit 69 is?

22 A This is the draft actuarial evaluation report from 23 Gabrielle Roeder for the general retirement system of the City
24 of Detroit as of June 30th, 2012.

1 Q And the general retirement system is the system
2 representing non-uniformed employees of the City of Detroit?

3 A Yes, sir.

4 Q Do you know what percentage of those non-uniformed
5 employees work for the Department of Water and Sewer?

6 A Approximately 40% of the contributions that typically are 7 made relate to water and sewer employees.

8 Q Now let me ask if we could please put up Page 3 of this
9 document.

10 THE COURT: Is this in evidence?

11 MR. STEWART: It is in evidence. Yes, Your Honor.
12 It has not been objected to.

13 Q And in particular could I ask the Court technician to 14 expand the box at the bottom? First of all, have you seen
15 this document before, Mr. Moore?

16 A Yes.

17 Q And tell us what it is.

18 A This is the actuarial evaluation as of June 30th of 2012
19 in draft. And this indicates what the estimated unfunded
20 actuarial accrued liability is as of that date and the 21 previous year.

22 Q And how does one get from the information you see here
23 for the -- for the GRS, in other words the general retirement
24 system, to the amount of the unsecured claim the GRS would 25 have?

1 A Focusing on the column on the left which is as of June
2 30th of 2012, the eight hundred, approximately $830,000,000 --
3 Q Go back, the same box we need to keep that up. There we 4 go.

5 THE COURT: Okay.

6 A The approximately $830,000,000 in the column on the left
7 is the UAAL, unfunded actuarial accrued liabilities.

8 Q And may I stop you there and ask you to explain to us
9 what a UAAL is?

10 A A UAAL is based on an actuarial calculation for 11 liabilities and assets. So the first item in terms of the 12 unsecured claim amount was to look at the market value of the 13 assets rather than the actuarial value of the assets.

14 The actuarial value of the assets at that date was 15 approximately 2.8 million dollars. The actual market value so 16 the -- the value of the assets at that point in time was 17 actually approximately $650,000,000 lower than what was showed 18 for actuarial purposes.

19 In addition to that, the top line, the actuarial accrued
20 liabilities is based on a discount rate and the discount rate
21 that is used here is 7.9% and in the claim, unsecured claim
22 calculation, a discount rate of 7% was used.

23 Q And so how using those numbers do you come up with the 24 amount of the claim, the unsecured claim of this pension plan
25 against the city?

1 A Yes, sir.

2 Q So tell me how you then take those numbers and turn it
3 into a figure.

4 A The accrued asset number, 2.8 million.

5 MR. RUEGGER: Your Honor, I apologize for the 6 tardiness on this, but I believe Mr. Stewart was misinformed.
7 Sixty-nine was objected to on hearsay and expert opinion and 8 foundation grounds.

9 MR. STEWART: I stand corrected. I had been told it
10 had not been objected to.

11 MR. RUEGGER: We would press those objections, Your
12 Honor.

13 MR. STEWART: That's confirmed, it was indeed
14 objected to. Your Honor, I believe the witness has laid a 15 foundation for it as a document he has seen, has worked with.
16 Let me ask two more questions, then I'm going to move it into 17 evidence so then it can be --

18 MR. RUEGGER: Well, I object to the testimony. Is 19 it foundation testimony?

20 THE COURT: I'll let the witness testify or be asked 21 about foundational questions to see if it's admissible and 22 then we'll move on from there.

23 Q So let's put up the cover page of the document again.
24 This is a document you've seen before, Mr. Moore?

25 A Yes, sir.

1 Q How did it come to you?

2 A I received this as part of my role on the pension task
3 force.

4 Q And you received it from who?

5 A We received these -- this report from the retirement
6 system itself.

7 Q And Gabrielle Roeder is employed by the retirement
8 system?

9 A Yes, sir.

10 Q And what use did you make of the document?

11 A I reviewed this document for actuarial information
12 related to the general retirement system.

13 MR. STEWART: I'd move it into evidence, Your Honor,
14 on the grounds it is, if nothing else, an admission of a party
15 opponent since the GRS is an objector here and this is an 16 agent of an objector.

17 MR. RUEGGER: It's hearsay and it's expert opinion
18 and it's coming in through a lay witness, Your Honor. We 19 press the objection.

20 THE COURT: The objection is overruled. The 21 document 69 is admitted in evidence.

22 (City's Exhibit 69 was admitted)

23 Q Now let's please go back to Page 3. So Mr. Moore, let's
24 go back to our calculation. We have at the bottom unfunded

25 actuarial accrued liabilities and then two numbers above it.

1 From the numbers you have described -- described to us --

2 THE COURT: I want to be -- I want to be sure what
3 we're doing here again.

4 MR. STEWART: Yes.

5 THE COURT: This evidence is solely in relation to 6 the representation that Mr. Orr made to the Court regarding 7 the unfunded pension liability.

8 MR. STEWART: Yes.

9 THE COURT: Well, in that regard again, I'm much
10 more interested in what the witness told Mr. Orr than how he 11 did his calculations or really anything else. Because 12 otherwise it sounds too much like him testifying as an expert.

13 MR. STEWART: Let's take the document down. I think
14 Your Honor already asked that question of the witness, but --

15 THE COURT: Well, let's just be sure.

16 MR. STEWART: Yes.

17 THE COURT: Did you tell Mr. Orr anything about how 18 you made the adjustments that you made?

19 A Yes, sir.

20 THE COURT: What did you tell him?

21 A I told Mr. Orr that two variables were adjusted based on 22 the Gabrielle Roeder actuarial evaluation. And that included
23 the -- using the market value of the assets as well as using a
24 different discount rate.

1 more specific about those two adjustments than just that much?

2 A No, sir.

3 THE COURT: All right. That's it.

4 MR. STEWART: Let me then wrap up very quickly with 5 this witness, Your Honor.

6 Q Did you attend other meetings with -- held on behalf of 7 the emergency manager with creditors of the city?

8 A During what time period?

9 Q After June 14th?

10 A Yes, sir.

11 Q Okay. And let me direct your attention in particular to 12 a meeting held on June 20th. Do you remember two meetings held
13 that day?

14 A Yes, sir.

15 Q One in the morning and one in the afternoon?

16 A Yes.

17 Q Let me ask you about the afternoon meeting. Was that a 18 meeting with representatives of the non-uniformed employees of 19 the city?

20 A I can't recall. I -- I think that the non-uniform was 21 the first meeting and then uniform was the second meeting.

22 Q And what was the purpose of those meetings?

23 A The purpose of those meetings was to lay out information
24 more information from the June 14th presentation regarding the 25 financial situation that the city was in. And then specific

1 information related to health care and pension obligations.

2 Q Do you remember any questions being asked at either of 3 those two meetings?

4 A Yes.

5 Q And what do you remember?

6 A I recall one question from an attorney representing the 7 UAW questioning how we -- we being the City of Detroit would 8 be able to accomplish some of what was in the proposal outside
9 of bankruptcy.

10 Q And do you remember what answer was given to that person?

11 A I believe that the answer that was given by counsel to 12 the city was we want to move forward with these discussions
13 and determine whether or not something could actually occur
14 with all the parties outside of Court.

15 Q Thank you. Could we put Exhibit 70 on the screen,
16 please? Mr. Moore, Exhibit 70 has been -- for identification
17 has been placed on the screen before you. Have you seen this 18 document before?

19 A Yes, sir.

20 Q What is it?

21 A This is the actuarial evaluation report as of June 30th of 22 2012 for the police and fire retirement system.

23 (City's Exhibit 70 was identified)

24 Q And who was it prepared by?

25 A By Gabrielle Roeder.

1 Q How did it come to you?

2 A Through my role on the task force, pension task force.

3 Q And what use did you make of the document?

4 A I used this document to obtain actuarial and other
5 information on the pension system.

6 MR. STEWART: Your Honor, I would move Exhibit 70
7 into evidence on the same grounds as recited in moving Exhibit
8 69 into evidence.

9 MR. RUEGGER: Your Honor, I object based on the 10 statements Your Honor just explained on the limited use of 11 this -- these documents and this testimony. I don't see how 12 this document moves it along.

13 It's -- it's hearsay and expert opinion just as 69 is.
14 But as Your Honor said, if -- if the issue is really what Mr.
15 Moore said to Mr. Orr, I'm not sure how this document adds to 16 the -- the evidence. So we object on that ground.

17 THE COURT: All right. The objection is overruled.
18 Exhibit 70 is admitted into evidence for all purposes.

19 (City's Exhibit 70 was admitted)

20 MR. STEWART: Thank you. No further questions, Your
21 Honor.

22 MR. CIANTRA: The first thing I want to do is make 23 sure that this microphone is positioned correctly.

24 THE COURT: It sounds good, yes.

25 MR. CIANTRA: Before I even say my name for the
13-53846-swr Doc 2243-15 Filed 12/19/13 Entered 12/19/13 13:44:15 Page 710 of

1 record, I want to make sure.

2 THE COURT: I appreciate that very much, sir.

3 CROSS EXAMINATION

4 BY MR. CIANTRA:

5 Q Good afternoon, Mr. Moore. I'm Thomas Ciantra as you
6 know. I'm the lawyer for the UAW.

7 A Yes, sir.

8 Q Now you had mentioned in your direct examination that you
9 formed part of a pension task force, is that correct?

10 A Yes, sir.

11 Q And that task force was created when?

12 A In February or March of this year.

13 Q So around the time the emergency manager was -- was 14 appointed, would that be correct?

15 A Prior to the emergency manager being appointed.

16 Q All right. Let's focus on from the time the emergency
17 manager was appointed. You remained on the task force
18 obviously?

19 A Yes, sir.

20 Q There were also individuals from the Milliman actuarial
21 consulting firm who were on the task force?

22 A Yes, sir.

23 Q And there were lawyers from the Jones, Day law firm that 24 were on the task force?

25 A Yes.

1 Q All right. And that task force met on a regular basis?

2 A Met or had calls, yes.

3 Q Okay. And on -- on some of those occasions was Mr. Orr
4 included in -- in those task force meetings?

5 A Not that I recall.

6 Q Now you testified that there was a meeting with Mr. Orr
7 where you reviewed with him the approximately 3 -- 3.5 billion
8 dollar number with respect to the pension plan under funding,
9 is that correct?

10 A Yes, sir.

11 Q There was -- there was one meeting, or was that multiple
12 meetings?

13 A There were multiple meetings where we discussed this 14 number in combination with other numbers.

15 Q Okay. And at the meeting where you discussed how the -- 16 how the number -- how the known -- let me step back. The 17 number was actually -- you didn't actually do those 18 calculations, the Milliman Actuarial Firm did those 19 calculations, correct?

20 A Correct.

21 Q So you were relaying to Mr. Orr what the results of the 22 work of the Milliman firm had been?

23 A Yes.

24 Q And you did that at a -- an in person meeting?

25 A There were both in person meetings and calls with Mr.

1 Orr.

2 Q Okay. Let's focus on the in person meetings. Were the 3 other members of the task force present at that in person
4 meeting?

5 A Well, there were multiple in person meetings. I can't 6 recall if anyone else from the task force was in the in person
7 meetings or not.

8 Q Okay. Were -- were lawyers from Jones, Day in those 9 meetings with Mr. Orr?

10 A Yes.

11 MR. CIANTRA: I'm going to move, Your Honor, that -- 12 that his testimony with respect to those meetings be struck 13 because it -- it is in effect a selective waiver of 14 attorney/client privilege that they are engaging in here. We 15 have had multiple deposition questions cut off on the grounds
16 of attorney/client privilege with respect to the workings of 17 this task force in other areas and they are obviously now
18 making selective use of this to get in those figures.

19 He has just testified that counsel for Jones, Day was 20 present in the meeting. He testified about it in direct. We 21 would request that it be struck.

22 THE COURT: Can you give me an example of such an 23 assertion?

24 MR. CIANTRA: From prior testimony?

1 had been asserted in relation to that meeting. I'm asking you
2 for an example.

3 MR. CIANTRA: Well, in relation to the workings of 4 the pension task force, that had --

5 THE COURT: That's circled.

6 MR. CIANTRA: I -- I questioned Mr. Moore in his 7 deposition with respect to deliberations of that pension task
8 force concerning the provisions of the Michigan Constitution
9 that protect pension obligations and the inquiry was stopped
10 on the grounds of attorney/client privilege.

11 THE COURT: Have you got it? Can you show me?

12 MR. CIANTRA: If this had an index it would be 13 easier. If you could give me a moment, Your Honor.

14 THE COURT: Sure. Well, let me ask you to pause
15 from that and ask you a slightly different question, or a very 16 question, sir.

17 Why wouldn't the remedy here be based on the testimony
18 that was given that privilege is waived as of now? And that 19 -- and that -- and that therefore you can ask any questions
20 without fear of privilege being asserted, or at least a
21 privilege claim sustained.

22 MR. CIANTRA: Well, Your Honor, the -- the problem
23 with that is that there's been weeks of discovery and 24 deposition testimony that's been taken where we have had

1 I can't do a redo of that at this point.

2 THE COURT: He's right here. Redo all you like.

3 MR. CIANTRA: Well, though not -- with respect to 4 this question I can, but not with respect to questions or 5 documents that weren't produced during the course of this 6 litigation, I can't.

7 THE COURT: Can you identify a document that wasn't
8 produced that related to this pension task force?

9 MR. CIANTRA: There are multiple documents that --

10 THE COURT: Can you identify one?

11 MR. CIANTRA: Well, I can find the -- the log of 12 their production. There are multiple documents that were 13 withheld. I don't have it right with me.

14 THE COURT: It doesn't sound to me like you're quite 15 ready to deal with the questions relating to your request
16 here, so let's move on and I will consider your request to 17 strike the testimony when you are ready to argue it.

18 MR. CIANTRA: Thank you, Your Honor.

19 Q I want to ask you some questions, Mr. Moore, with respect
20 to the city proposal for its creditors, the June 14th proposal.
21 Now with -- with respect to that proposal, I understand an 22 important component of it is reinvestment in the 23 infrastructure and operations of the City of Detroit.

24 A Yes, sir.

25 Q And we're projecting approximately a $1,000,000,000 price
13-53846-swr Doc 2243-15 Filed 12/19/13 Entered 12/19/13 13:44:15 Page 715 of 2386

1 tag for that -- for that program over the next ten years?

2 A One billion on the reinvestment, if you will, the capital
3 expenditures, yes.

4 Q And then there's an additional quarter of a billion
5 dollars with respect to other restructuring initiatives?

6 A There are -- there is -- yes, that's correct, about a
7 quarter of a billion dollars for expenses. There are also 8 about a quarter of a billion in revenue initiatives.

9 Q Okay. And you also indicated that the emergency manager
10 is of the view that there is no possibility for material
11 increases in the -- the tax revenues that are coming into the 12 city, is that correct?

13 A I testified that we looked into that and that was our 14 conclusion, yes.

15 Q You -- you can't raise taxes to -- to pay for that?

16 A Yes.

17 Q And it's also correct, isn't it, that -- well, over the 18 past ten years there's been a substantial reduction in the 19 amount of revenue sharing that's come to the City of Detroit
20 from the State of Michigan?

21 A That's correct. The revenue sharing has decreased, yes.

22 Q And that is discussed in the proposal for creditors,
23 correct?

24 A Yes.

25 Q And let's just for the record do you have it? It's 13-53846-swr Doc 2243-15 Filed 12/19/13 Entered 12/19/13 13:44:15 Page 716 of 2386

1 Exhibit 43, City Exhibit 43. Do you have it there?

2 A Nothing is up yet.

3 THE COURT: Is it on the table there?

4 A Yes, sir, I have it.

5 Q If we turn to Page 4 of the document, the bullet point at 6 the top of that page is state revenue sharing. Do you see
7 that?

8 A Yes.

9 Q And so that quantifies that you've seen approximately a
10 48% reduction in -- the city has seen approximately 48%
11 reduction in the amount of revenue sharing it's received from 12 the State of Michigan since fiscal year 2002?

13 A Yes.

14 Q And you're off -- they're approximately 30.6% since 2008?

15 A There's been a reduction of 30.6% since 2008, yes, that's
16 correct.

17 Q And would you agree those amounts are material?

18 A They certainly have been -- had a significant impact on 19 the city's revenue, yes.

20 Q And part of the projection that is included in the 21 proposal for creditors to the exhibit, Exhibit 43, are 22 projections with respect to the amount of the revenue sharing
23 going forward, is that -- is that correct?

24 A Yes.

25 Q And that is -- if you would turn to Page 90 of that 13-53846-swr Doc 2243-15 Filed 12/19/13 Entered 12/19/13 13:44:15 Page 717 of 2386

1 document.

2 A Yes, sir.

3 Q Towards the top of the page you list the preliminary
4 forecast revenues. And the revenue sharing is the -- I guess
5 the second item there, correct?

6 A Yes.

7 Q So would I be correct that -- that year over year you're 8 projecting an increase in that of it looks like a little over 9 1%?

10 A That's about right, yes.

11 Q Is that a number that you calculated as a part of your 12 contribution to this report?

13 A No, sir, I did not calculate that.

14 Q But that's -- that was the assumption that the -- the 15 increase in the revenue sharing would be approximately 1% year
16 over year?

17 A I can't speak to the assumption, but the number looks
18 like about 1% per year.

19 Q Yeah, it's the arithmetic.

20 A Yes.

21 Q And the revenues of the city are -- other revenues of the 22 city are also projected there, correct?

23 A Yes, sir.

24 Q And you have there on the first line the municipal income
25 tax?

1 A Yes.

2 Q Right. And the income tax in the City of Detroit now is
3 the highest in the State of Michigan?

4 A Yes, for individuals the income tax rate for residents is
5 the highest in the State of Michigan.

6 Q Okay. So you're seeing -- I'm looking there at increases
7 in the order of a couple of percent per year?

8 A Yes, sir.

9 Q So that's -- those two items are staying -- well, one
10 would agree that probably not exceeding the rate of inflation,
11 correct?

12 A I'm not sure because I did not put together an assumption
13 regarding inflation.

14 Q Okay. But 1 or 2% increases year over year?

15 A That's what appears to be the math, yes.

16 Q So sort of putting it together, it would be correct,
17 isn't it, that the -- the source of the funding for the -- the 18 reinvestment and restructuring that the city would like to 19 undertake here, is -- is basically going to come from a 20 reduction in the legacy costs, the bond debt and the -- the 21 accrued pension and other post retirement benefits?

22 A I don't think that's the case.

23 Q Where is the money coming from if the revenues are 24 staying the same and you're coming up with an extra billion

25 dollars, where is the revenue -- where is the money coming
13-53846-swr Doc 2243-15 Filed 12/19/13 Entered 12/19/13 13:44:15 Page 719 of 2386

1 from other than from cutting in those areas?

2 A The -- the projections show approximately $250,000,000 in 3 additional revenue that I indicated as well as $350,000,000 in 4 also other categories of additional revenue which total about
5 $600,000,000 in new revenue during this ten year period.

6 Q Okay. So you got 600,000,000 new, and you've got the 7 rest of that 1.25. And that's coming from reductions in the 8 legacy costs?

9 A Could you define legacy costs?

10 Q Sure. The -- the -- the pensions that are owed to the 11 people I represent, their post retirement benefits, and the 12 bond holders, the debt on the existing bonds.

13 A Yes. Those three categories that is what the proposal
14 indicates is an adjustment to those categories.

15 Q Now let me go back to Exhibit 43 just for a moment and 16 ask you to turn to Page 109 of that document. And there's a
17 bullet point on that page, a little more than halfway down
18 claims for unfunded pension liabilities.

19 A Yes, sir.

20 Q And in the first bullet point it indicates that because 21 of the preliminary analysis with respect to the under funding, 22 that the city will not be making future contributions to the 23 retirement plans for its employees, is that correct?

24 A Yes, sir.

25 Q And that on account of that, in the third bullet point it
13-53846-swr Doc 2243-15 Filed 12/19/13 Entered 12/19/13 13:44:15 Page 720 of 2386

1 says there must be significant cuts in accrued vested pension
2 amounts for both active and currently retired persons. Do you
3 see that?

4 A Yes.

5 Q And you were at the -- the June 14th meeting where this 6 was presented to -- well, among others, labor unions and other
7 organizations representing retirees, correct?

8 A Yes.

9 Q And I am correct that there was no number that was put on 10 the level of cuts that were -- that the -- the city believed 11 were necessary under this plan, correct?

12 A Correct.

13 Q And in fact as you sit here today, there has been no
14 number that has been put on that, correct?

15 A Correct.

16 MR. CIANTRA: I have no further questions. Thank
17 you.

18 THE COURT: Thank you, sir.

19 MR. CIANTRA: Your Honor, if I could just address
20 that privilege issue. And this is at Mr. Moore's deposition
21 that was taken on the 18th of September. And I can read from 22 the transcript if Your Honor would --

23 THE COURT: Go ahead.

24 MR. STEWART: What page, please?

25 MR. CIANTRA: Oh, certainly. This begins -- I'm
13-53846-swr Doc 2243-15 Filed 12/19/13 Entered 12/19/13 13:44:15 Page 721 of

1 looking at the manuscript of the transcript, Page 154,
2 beginning the bottom of -- of the page.

3 THE COURT: Is there a line number?

4 MR. CIANTRA: Yeah, I'm looking just let me see
5 where to start here.

6 THE COURT: Ah, here we have it on the screen.

7 MR. CIANTRA: We're beginning on Page 153. We'll
8 see at page -- Line 14. Actually I'm asking the questions.

9 You indicated earlier that you were part of a pension
10 task force that has been considering pension issues since I
11 guess the spring of this year. My question is, during those 12 -- during the discussion, the meetings of that task force have 13 you -- has that provision of the Michigan State Constitution,
14 and that obviously is Article 9, Section 24, been a subject of 15 discussion? The witness answers, yes.

16 And he goes on and then continuing on to Page 155 at the 17 top, Line 1. And was there more than one such discussion or 18 did that come up on just one occasion? It probably came up
19 more than -- I seem to recall more than one occasion where a 20 discussion about whether the city would have to file for 21 Chapter 9 took place and the pension element was discussed.

22 And what was the -- was the consensus that was developed
23 with respect to that issue? And Mr. Miller, counsel for the 24 city responds. I'm going to object and ask the witness before

1 discussion that might have led to a consensus, that discussion
2 included lawyers and counsel.

3 Mr. Ciantra, I'm not asking him -- and counsel that was 4 provided by those lawyers. I'm not asking about discussion
5 with counsel, I'm asking whether this task force that was 6 looking at the pension issues reached a consensus. And it
7 continues.

8 But the task force included counsel, he's testified to 9 that. And then he goes -- then I interject, I'm interested in 10 whether there was a discussion not necessarily what your 11 counsel might have advised. But to the extent that the 12 consensus was reached and that consensus was based on legal 13 advice, that consensus would be in my judgment privileged.

14 So that's why I asked him. And he goes on and then at 15 the end, and so I would instruct you, Mr. Moore, not to 16 expound.

17 So our inquiry with respect to the consensus that was 18 developed by this pension task force was cut off by 19 attorney/client privilege assertions. If the witness has 20 testified with respect to conversations in the -- in the 21 presence of lawyers for the city with respect to where these 22 -- these actuarial numbers came from, it -- it seems to be 23 just a -- a selective use of the privilege, depending on 24 circumstance, and it's put -- it's put us in a difficult

1 I can't turn back the time -- the hands of time and, you know,
2 re-take Mr. Moore's deposition. Go back and look at the, you
3 know, re -- review the tens of thousands of documents that 4 have been produced to deal with it.

5 THE COURT: All right. Thank you.

6 MR. CIANTRA: It just seems unfair.

7 THE COURT: Mr. Stewart.

8 MR. STEWART: Perhaps, Your Honor, I'm -- I'm just 9 confused. But -- and let's put that transcript back up on the 10 screen.

11 Mr. Ciantra paraphrased parts of it, but the fact of the 12 matter is, there was no instruction and his question got 13 answered. And if we could blow up the bottom quadrant of our 14 document there.

15 And there's this colloquy between Mr. Miller and Mr.
16 Ciantra. And Mr. Miller makes an objection. Are you asking
17 -- and Mr. Ciantra, I am not asking him that. And if so, I
18 would ask you not to expound.

19 So let me ask the question again. Let's make the record
20 straight. Question, did the task force you were a part of 21 reach a consensus on the question of what effect the provision
22 of the Michigan State Constitution that protects accrued
23 pension benefits would have on a Chapter 9 filing? He 24 answered it, no.

1 And if we went to the following page with a follow up
2 question, there is none of those instructions either.

3 THE COURT: Let's do that. Can we go to the next
4 page, please?

5 MR. STEWART: And you'll have to blow those up so we 6 can all see them, please.

7 THE COURT: Yeah.

8 MR. STEWART: So are we on the same page?

9 THE COURT: Is this -- is this the next page that we 10 have now?

11 MR. STEWART: Okay. So I can keep reading, Judge, 12 but as I go down this, I don't see an instruction not to 13 answer the question. I don't see what was withheld.

14 And then I could go further. I have other reasons too, 15 but this to me seems to be the most important one. And 16 perhaps I just misunderstood it, and we're on the wrong page.
17 And why don't I sit down and Mr. Ciantra can -- can stand up
18 and guide us to where maybe I should have looked.

19 THE COURT: Mr. Ciantra, this is -- this is an 20 important motion that you have made to strike.

21 MR. CIANTRA: Yes.

22 THE COURT: So I don't want to press you for a
23 response to my question. So let's take our time and -- and 24 you can research this properly and -- and -- and present your

1 of situations in which you assert that the privilege claim was
2 selectively advanced. So there's no need to rush through 3 this.

4 MR. CIANTRA: Thank you, Your Honor. I appreciate
5 it.

6 THE COURT: All right.

7 MR. CIANTRA: I will -- I will review the transcript
8 and I will respond.

9 THE COURT: Okay. All right. Does anyone else have 10 any questions for Mr. Moore? Yes, sir.

11 MR. SHERWOOD: Your Honor, just -- on the last 12 point. Before -- before I -- this privilege was also asserted
13 at the deposition of Mr. Bowen from Milliman.

14 THE COURT: Okay. Well, let's -- let's add that one
15 to the -- the group that you'll put together together and 16 we'll -- we'll deal with it in -- in due course.

17 CROSS EXAMINATION

18 BY MR. SHERWOOD:

19 Q Good afternoon, Mr. Moore. Jack Sherwood on behalf of 20 AFSCME.

21 A Good afternoon, Mr. Sherwood.

22 Q Let me ask you about some of your conversations with Mr.
23 Orr about the under funding of the position of -- of the 24 pensions. Do you recall that testimony?

25 A Yes, sir.

1 Q Okay. And during those conversations between you and Mr.
2 Orr, did you advise him that the analysis of the unfunded
3 position had not yet been completed?

4 A Could you be more clear on which conversations?

5 Q In any of -- any conversations that you had with Mr. Orr
6 before the bankruptcy was filed, did you advise him that the 7 city's analysis with respect to the unfunded position on the 8 pension had not been completed?

9 A I spoke with Mr. Orr regularly as to the status of all
10 analyses and what the sources of where numbers were coming
11 from.

12 Q Okay. But I'm just asking specifically if you remember
13 telling Mr. Orr that the city's analysis of -- and its 14 actuaries' analysis of the unfunded position had not been 15 completed. Do you recall that?

16 A I recall specifically telling him the source that we were 17 using for numbers as well as additional activities that the 18 pension task force would undertake or other analyses.

19 Q So that means that additional analysis was in process, is 20 that fair to say?

21 A Yes. And to this day additional analysis is in process.

22 Q Do you recall telling Mr. Orr that the city was trying to 23 undertake a process to develop a more concrete valuation model
24 to analyze the amount of the unfunded position?

25 A I did tell Mr. Orr that the analyses that we were giving
13-53846-swr Doc 2243-15 Filed 12/19/13 Entered 12/19/13 13:44:15 Page 727 of 2386

1 him were based on Gabrielle Roeder's valuation and that
2 Milliman would be developing its own valuation model as well.

3 Q And did you also tell Mr. Orr that -- that because the 4 analysis of the unfunded position was still in process, that 5 it was hard to negotiate with respect to that number because 6 there wasn't a common assumption with respect to what the 7 number should be?

8 A No, I never told Mr. Orr that it was hard to negotiate.

9 Q Did you tell him that it was difficult to negotiate with 10 respect to a pension under funding amount when that amount was 11 still in process of being developed?

12 A No, I never told him that.

13 Q Was that your belief in September of this year?

14 A My belief in September of this year certainly was not 15 that it was difficult to have a discussion or a negotiation
16 over these numbers.

17 Q Did you say it was premature -- would you say it was 18 premature to negotiate over the pension under funding if the 19 -- if the number was not known?

20 A No.

21 Q So it's your view that you -- you can negotiate --
22 negotiate with respect to a pension under funding amount even 23 though you don't know exactly what that amount is?

24 A Any pension under funding amount is an estimate. And we 25 have an estimate. There are other estimates out there and

1 certainly you can engage in discussions around those 2 estimates.

3 Q You testified earlier that the City of Detroit's
4 individual taxes are -- are the highest in Michigan, right?

5 A Yes, sir.

6 Q What about taxes on -- on people or entities other than 7 individuals?

8 A There is a corporate tax rate as well, corporate income
9 tax rate.

10 Q Are they the highest in the -- in the State of Michigan?

11 A I believe that's the case, yes.

12 Q Have -- have you investigated the operations of the tax
13 people in Michigan -- or the tax department?

14 A Could you define tax people?

15 Q The tax department.

16 A The tax department of the State of Michigan?

17 Q No, of the City of Detroit.

18 A Which tax are you referring to?

19 Q Any.

20 A Yes, sir.

21 Q And have you analyzed -- have you -- have you looked into 22 rebates, tax rebates for corporations in the State of 23 Michigan? I'm sorry, in the City of Detroit?

24 A Corporate taxes are only approximately $6,000,000 per

25 year, so we have not spent a whole lot of time on corporate
13-53846-swr Doc 2243-15 Filed 12/19/13 Entered 12/19/13 13:44:15 Page 729 of 2386

1 income taxes.

2 Q And what about tax rebates? Have you spent a lot of time
3 on that?

4 A No, sir.

5 Q At the -- at the meeting on June 14th, you were present,
6 correct?

7 A Yes, sir.

8 Q And then you testified about a meeting on June 20th also,
9 correct?

10 A Yes.

11 Q Were you present at -- were you present at that meeting?

12 A There were two meetings on the 20th and yes, I was present
13 for both.

14 Q Was Mr. Orr at either of those meetings?

15 A No.

16 Q And at either of those meetings did you have authority to 17 negotiate with the parties at that meeting -- at those 18 meetings? Did you have authority to negotiate with the 19 parties at those meetings on behalf of the city?

20 A Could you define what you mean by authority?

21 Q Just the general understanding of authority that you --
22 you would have. You don't understand what authority means?

23 A Mr. Sherwood, I certainly was authorized to go to those 24 meetings, to present information, and to receive information

25 back. So yes, I was authorized.

1 Q You were authorized to go to the meeting, to present
2 information, and to receive information back, correct?

3 A Yes, sir.

4 Q And -- and is it your testimony that that constitutes
5 grounds to negotiate?

6 A If you're talking --

7 Q A party to negotiate, I'm sorry.

8 A Yes, sir. My understanding not in the context of the 9 collective bargaining agreements, but in the context of 10 negotiations where there's give and take, yes.

11 Q Were you consulted by Mr. Orr in connection with the 12 decision of the city to file Chapter 9?

13 A No, I was not.

14 MR. SHERWOOD: I have nothing further. Thank you.

15 THE COURT: Any other questions? Sir.

16 MR. KING: Good afternoon, Your Honor. Ron King
17 with Clark, Hill. I'm a colleague of Ms. Green and Mr.
18 Gordon's. Pleasure to be in front of you today.

19 CROSS EXAMINATION

20 BY MR. KING:

21 Q Mr. Moore, I just have a handful of questions and I'll 22 try -- I'm going to jump around a little bit just because I
23 don't want to be cumulative.

24 A Okay, Mr. King.

25 Q As we sit here today, is it true that the city and its 13-53846-swr Doc 2243-15 Filed 12/19/13 Entered 12/19/13 13:44:15 Page 731 of 2386

1 actuaries have not completed their analysis on the unfunded
2 pension liabilities?

3 A The city has completed its analysis from the standpoint
4 of coming up with the 3.5 billion. The city desires to 5 undertake additional analysis.

6 Q So it's not completed the -- the analysis yet?

7 A The city would like to continue to refine that avenue.

8 Q So there's additional work that needs to be done before
9 they'll complete their analysis?

10 A Not that needs to be done, but that we would like to do.

11 Q And so I understand your earlier testimony, to date the 12 city hasn't proposed any specific restructuring of the pension
13 plans or a cut in pension benefits to any retiree, is that
14 correct?

15 A The city has proposed a process, a couple of times with 16 which to undertake, but there have not been specifics as to 17 any cuts if you will in a pension.

18 Q Now let me refer you back to Exhibit 43 if we could have 19 that put back on the screen, please. And specifically Page
20 101, please. And this is -- yeah, can we go -- next page, 21 please. Now I'm -- I'm looking for the page relating to the 22 pension plan. 109, I'm sorry. Thank you.

23 And referring you to a provision that you testified on 24 previously related to the claims for the unfunded pension
25 liabilities. Do you see that section?

1 A Yes, sir.

2 Q Outside of this presentation, have there been any other
3 presentations or proposals presented to any of the objectors
4 with respect to the treatment of the unfunded pension
5 liabilities?

6 A Yes, sir.

7 Q And which ones are those?

8 A The two meetings on June 20th. There were documents that 9 were handed out that had specifics as it relates to pension in 10 those documents.

11 Q What specifically?

12 A There were some specific thoughts as to ideas for 13 modifying benefits of the pensions.

14 Q But again no specific numbers in terms of no specific 15 numbers that reflect a cut to a pension benefit?

16 A There were a lot of numbers in the June 20th document
17 regarding the pensions, yes.

18 Q But my question is pretty simple. There wasn't any 19 specific proposal that would say that the pension benefit of a
20 particular retiree is going to be cut by X percent?

21 A Correct.

22 Q And was there ever an effort undertaken by you or the 23 city to develop a plan or a proposal that didn't contemplate
24 an impairment or of accrued pension benefits?

25 A Yes.

1 Q And was that plan presented to any of the objectors?

2 A Similar to what I indicated before. I don't believe that 3 there is anything specifically that has been presented in 4 terms of pension benefits.

5 Q So you're saying -- and I should be clear. Pre-petition,
6 so prior to July 18th, was there ever a plan presented to any 7 of the objectors that contemplated not impairing or 8 diminishing pension benefits?

9 A Yes, sir. The June 14th presentation, the financial 10 projections, the base line show what we anticipate the 11 contributions would be without any cuts to pension plans.

12 Q But that same June 14 proposal specifically states that 13 there will be significant cuts in accrued vested pension
14 amounts, correct?

15 A It indicates that, yes.

16 MR. KING: I don't have any further questions.

17 THE COURT: Thank you, sir. Other questions for the 18 witness?

19 MR. RUEGGER: I do, Your Honor.

20 CROSS EXAMINATION

21 BY MR. RUEGGER:

22 Q Good afternoon, Mr. Moore.

23 A Good afternoon.

24 Q We met -- we met a month ago.

25 A Yes, sir.

1 Q I just have a couple of questions. The first relates to 2 the June 20 meeting. You testified about that on direct, do
3 you remember?

4 A Yes, sir.

5 Q At that meeting did you have authority to accept any 6 counter proposals from any of the participants?

7 A Except from the standpoint I'd receive and then bring it
8 back to city officials? Yes.

9 Q Okay. So you could have -- you could have informed Mr.
10 Orr and the other city officials, but you couldn't have agreed
11 to anything at that meeting that had been countered, is that
12 correct?

13 A I think it would be highly unlikely that anything like
14 that would happen at that meeting.

15 Q Okay. Just answer my question though. You couldn't have 16 agreed to anything that might have been proposed by any of the 17 participants, correct?

18 A No, sir.

19 Q Only a couple of questions. Switching subjects. On your 20 conversations with Mr. Orr relating to the alleged under 21 funding figure, did any of those occur prior to the June 14th
22 proposal that was just mentioned?

23 A Yes, sir.

24 Q Approximately how many?

25 A This is a guess, but perhaps five to seven meetings or 13-53846-swr Doc 2243-15 Filed 12/19/13 Entered 12/19/13 13:44:15 Page 735 of 2386

1 conversations.

2 Q On that -- on that issue before that meeting?

3 A Yes, sir.

4 Q Okay. And approximately how many conversations with Mr.
5 Orr on that figure occurred between the June 14th proposal and 6 the July 18th petition filing?

7 A I would guess maybe two.

8 Q Did your information relating to that figure change at 9 all between the June 14th proposal and the July 18th filing?

10 A No, sir.

11 MR. RUEGGER: Thank you. No further questions.
12 Thank you, Your Honor.

13 THE COURT: Thank you. Any redirect?

14 MR. STEWART: No, Your Honor.

15 THE COURT: You may step down. Thank you very much
16 for coming today.

17 A Thank you, Your Honor.

18 THE COURT: I will have to really maintain your 19 status as a witness here until we resolve the earlier issue
20 that was raised about the privilege. So your sequestration
21 still applies. Okay, sir?

22 A Understood. Thank you, Your Honor.

23 THE COURT: All right.

24 (WITNESS CHARLES MOORE WAS EXCUSED AT 2:48 P.M.)

1 Thomas Cullen of Jones, Day and I'm going to be presenting the 2 next witness, Ken Buckfire.

3 THE COURT: All right. What is your last name, sir?

4 MR. CULLEN: Cullen, C-u-l-l-e-n. We're going into 5 the hall to get him. Sorry, Your Honor. He's in the men's 6 room.

7 THE COURT: While we're waiting, Ms. Patek, may I
8 have your attention, please? Do you have one or two extra 9 copies of your exhibits or your exhibit book that we can have 10 for my law clerk or law clerks.

11 We'll start with your offer of one. If we can have yet
12 one more at a -- at a later time, that would be great. Okay?
13 Can you get through there? Thank you so much.

14 Raise your right hand, please.

15 (WITNESS KENNETH BUCKFIRE WAS SWORN)

16 THE COURT: Please sit down.

17 DIRECT EXAMINATION

18 BY MR. CULLEN:

19 Q Good afternoon, Mr. Buckfire. Could you state your full 20 name and address for the record, please?

21 A Kenneth Buckfire. I reside at 1175 Park Avenue, New 22 York, New York.

23 Q And where are you from originally?

24 A Detroit, Michigan.

25 Q Born and raised?

1 A Born and raised in Detroit and its suburbs. Then went to 2 the University of Michigan where I graduated in 1980. And 3 then I went to New York.

4 Q Can you tell me something -- you're employed now?

5 A I am.

6 Q And where are you employed?

7 A I am the co-founder and co-President of Miller, Buckfire
8 and Company. An investment banking firm based in New York
9 City.

10 Q And prior to that, what was your employment experience?

11 A Prior to that I began my career as a restructuring banker
12 in 1987 with Dillon, Reed and Company. After several years
13 with that firm, I joined Lehman Brothers where I was a senior 14 restructuring banker. In 1996, I joined Wasserstein, Perella
15 to help them found their financial restructuring practice
16 which my partner Henry Miller and I then bought in 2002 to 17 form Miller, Buckfire.

18 Q And what does it mean -- what -- explain exactly what 19 Miller, Buckfire does.

20 A Miller, Buckfire is an investment bank specializing in 21 restructuring advisory services to governments and companies.
22 Our mission is to work with those entities when they have 23 financial difficulties either paying their debts when due, or 24 need specific skills in negotiating with their creditors and 25 other stakeholders.

1 Q Unpack that for me a little bit if you would, Mr.
2 Buckfire. Restructuring advisory services. What does -- what
3 does that mean?

4 A Our typical engagement is with a company or government
5 which is experiencing financial difficulty and does not quite 6 know what to do about it. So our first mission would be to 7 help them with a diagnosis, to identify the causes of their 8 financial pressures, to identify what can be done about those 9 in terms of the diagnostic, and then to make recommendations
10 on how to solve the problem which normally means for a company
11 making sure they have adequate liquidity to operate in the 12 ordinary course and maximize the value for their stakeholders.

13 In the case of the government, making sure they have 14 adequate access to capital markets and the ability to provide 15 an adequate level of public services.

16 Q And in these engagements, what is your personal role?

17 A My personal role is to manage our team of bankers in 18 working with our clients to do our diagnosis. And then once
19 instructed by the client as to what they wish us to do, help
20 them formulate strategy and the next -- whatever transactions
21 are required, to implement that strategy. My job is general
22 financial strategy and oversight.

23 Q And could you give the Court some idea of specific 24 engagements you've worked on which are public?

25 A Well, over the years we've worked on many well known and
13-53846-swr Doc 2243-15 Filed 12/19/13 Entered 12/19/13 13:44:15 Page 739 of 2386

1 complex restructurings. Some of the more notable ones would
2 include Niagara Mohawk Power Company, Calpine Corporation,
3 General Growth Properties, K-Mart Corporation, Lehr, Dana.

4 We've also been involved in several well known municipal 5 restructurings including Stockton, California. And we are 6 currently advising a -- a large sovereign country with its 7 financial issues.

8 Q How did you first become familiar with Detroit's
9 financial and operational issues?

10 A Well, being from here, I have always paid close attention
11 to what's been going on in Detroit. Certainly in 2009 in 12 financial crisis when it became well known that Detroit had 13 lost access to the capital markets due to its downgrade, I
14 started paying more attention to the problems here trying to 15 figure out if there's some way that my firm could be helpful.
16 And obviously given my personal connection to the area, it was 17 of personal interest to me to try to find a way to contribute
18 to the revitalization of the city.

19 Q And so what did you do?

20 A We paid close attention to it. We tried to figure out
21 where there was a way to form some relationships locally that 22 might eventually introduce us to Mayor Bing and to other
23 people in the administration who might find our particular 24 expertise of help. And that just began a general program of 25 building those relationships.

1 Q How did you first become engaged by the city?

2 A We had done a very brief financial review of the city on
3 behalf of the state in March or April of 2012. It was a 60
4 day process of just looking at the public information and 5 trying to identify what the financial --

6 Q If you could just slow down and speak up, just a little.

7 A All right. We first were engaged by the state in March
8 or April of 2012 for a 60 day review.

9 They wanted us to review the public information of the 10 city to try to ascertain what their financial challenges were 11 and to put that in a format that could be useful for decision
12 makers to understand the situation more accurately.

13 That put us in contact with members of the Mayor's
14 administration, Jack Martin and Chris Andrews in particular.
15 So I began a relationship with them.

16 Q Did there come a time in the fall of 2012 when the city
17 issued a request for proposal for certain financial services?

18 A Yes.

19 Q Could you describe that for me, please?

20 A Well, the city had entered into a consent decree with the 21 state in March of 2012 pursuant to which the state promised to 22 provide financing to the city and support their restructuring
23 efforts as long as the city was meeting certain milestones
24 that were incorporated in that agreement.

1 then in the fall Jack Martin called me and said, you know,
2 we're probably going to have to put out a request for a
3 financial advisor because we're about to enter into a new 4 agreement with the state and they're going to require us to 5 hire advisors to help implement the restructuring program that 6 we first had described in the March 2012 consent agreement.
7 So we were invited to submit our qualifications to the city at 8 that time.

9 Q Now, did you become familiar in the course of your work
10 with the consent agreement?

11 A Yes, I did.

12 Q And does the term milestone agreement mean anything to 13 you?

14 A Yes.

15 Q Let me show you Exhibit 23. In the book beside you,
16 there's a book Exhibit 6 through 50. And we'll throw it up on 17 the screen as well. And it will be on the screen in front of 18 you. Do you see it, sir?

19 A I do.

20 Q Is that the consent agreement to which you referred?

21 A Yes.

22 Q What understanding did you derive of the concept and 23 purpose of this consent agreement?

24 A Well, the consent agreement as I reviewed it, describes a 25 transaction really between the state and the city in which the
13-53846-swr Doc 2243-15 Filed 12/19/13 Entered 12/19/13 13:44:15 Page 742 of

1 state agreed to help the city raise funding to support its 2 liquidity while it began a reform program which was very
3 clearly delineated in -- in Section 2.4 and more fully
4 described in Annex B of this agreement.

5 Q Could I direct your attention to I believe it's section
6 -- well, let's look at 2.4 and 2.5. Do you see that, sir?

7 A I do.

8 Q Is that the reform program and the quid pro quo if you
9 will for the -- by the treasury?

10 A Yes.

11 Q And why did the state want the reform agreement in your 12 understanding?

13 A Well, the city as I understood it had asked for financial 14 assistance from the state. The city was under liquidity
15 stress. They didn't have sufficient cash. They needed to 16 find cash somewhere and the state agreed to facilitate the 17 city's sale of -- of bonds, a portion of which would be given 18 to the city and any consideration for that assistance, my 19 understanding is, the city agreed to implement the reform
20 program.

21 THE COURT: Excuse me one second. It turns out you
22 are now too close to the microphone and as a result our 23 overflow rooms are getting static. So move it just a bit
24 further away.

1 THE COURT: Yes.

2 MR. CULLEN: Okay. Thank you. You should have a
3 training program, Your Honor.

4 THE COURT: No.

5 MR. CULLEN: Or -- or a ruler, either way.

6 THE COURT: Yeah. Or a better audio system.

7 Q In terms of the division of responsibility between the 8 state and the city reflected in this agreement, did you have 9 an understanding of that?

10 A I did.

11 Q Could you tell me what that understanding was?

12 A Well, my understanding was that the responsibility for 13 designing and the implementing the reform program was really
14 entirely the city's. The state agreed to provide the funding
15 the city required to sustain its operations while doing the 16 formulation of the plan and executing it. And that the state
17 also asked for a reasonable amount of oversight to make sure
18 the city in fact did what they said they were going to do.

19 Q Was the state -- would it be fair to say therefore that 20 the state aid was conditional on progress on that reform
21 program?

22 A Yes.

23 Q If I could direct your attention to Exhibit B of Exhibit
24 23 -- Annex B, I'm sorry. What's this, sir?

25 A Well, this was the reform program goals and subjects that

1 had been agreed to by the city with the state.

2 Q Just looking up at the top there, first is something
3 prioritization and timing to be mutually agreed upon by Mayor
4 and council and approved by financial advisory board as 5 provided in the agreement. What was your understanding of 6 what the financial advisory board was and what its role was?

7 A Well, the financial advisory board my understanding was 8 created to make sure that the city had appropriate level of 9 oversight in terms of developing accurate financial 10 information, reporting it to the stakeholders, and then making 11 sure that the -- once the operation of the program had been 12 designed, that it would be approved by the financial advisory 13 board as consistent with the goals of the agreement.

14 Q Did this strike you as a fairly comprehensive set of 15 reform initiatives?

16 A Yes.

17 Q If I could direct your attention to Exhibit 7. Is this 18 the agreement we've referred to as the milestone agreement?

19 A Yes.

20 Q What was your understanding of the concept and purpose of 21 this agreement?

22 A Well, my understanding was that by November of last year,
23 the city had not been able to achieve many -- many of the 24 milestones or requirements of the original consent agreement.

25 And this was entered into between the state and city as a

1 condition of further disbursements of funds from the escrow
2 account that had been established by the state on behalf of 3 the city in March of 2012.

4 Q And if you look at the bottom of the first page, and
5 going on to the top of the next. Where it says joint 6 restructuring expenses and restructuring assistance. And 7 because I'm closer, I'll read it.

8 The city will as expeditiously as possible, select and 9 retain a restructuring firm or teams to advise the city's 10 program management office upon and implement the city's reform
11 program, including but not limited to -- the next page as 12 well. Could you blow that up, the top of that?

13 And was -- was it your under -- let me ask it in an open
14 ended way. What impact did this milestone agreement have on 15 your hiring?

16 A Well, this is what led to our retention. We had stayed
17 in touch with Chris Andrews who was the corporate managing 18 director and Jack Martin, the CFO all during this period even 19 though we had no role. And they had called me in November
20 after this was signed and said, we decided we really need
21 expert outside help to implement our reform program and look
22 forward to getting an RFP.

23 Q Now, was there any borrowing in connection with the 24 milestone agreement?

25 A Well, the original consent agreement had contemplated a

1 financing, I believe it was $130,000,000 of which I believe it
2 was 50,000,000 or 60,000,000 was released to the city upon
3 that funding and the rest was retained in an escrow account
4 which was still in effect as of the date of this agreement.

5 Q And so was there some relation between progress on the 6 agreement and draws from the escrow account?

7 A Yes. The state was requiring the city to execute its 8 milestones in order for further cash to be released to it
9 pursuant to this agreement.

10 Q At -- at what point were you actually hired by the city
11 in '12?

12 A Well, as I recall, we submitted to the RFP process in -- 13 it might have been late November. We were told we had won in 14 December and we signed our agreement with the city, I believe,
15 on January the 5th of 2013.

16 Q When you first came into your responsibilities as the 17 restructuring firm for the city, did you undertake an 18 assessment of the city's finances and operations?

19 A Yes, we did. And we already were familiar with that 20 because of the review we had done seven months before for the 21 state.

22 Q Now in terms of the -- this consent agreement and the 23 milestone agreement, did you come to an understanding of the 24 degree to which those agreements had been a success in

1 reforms?

2 A Yes.

3 Q What was that view?

4 A That it had been a very mixed outcome. The city had been
5 successful in delivering really for the first time good
6 financial information on a monthly basis to the FAB which had 7 been a responsibility required of it as part of the original
8 consent agreement.

9 But they had had very limited success in implementing any 10 other objectives of that March agreement. And that's why this 11 milestone agreement goes into such specificity about what is 12 now required of the city to do in order for the state to 13 continue to release money from the escrow account.

14 Q But -- but let's -- let me be clear. Or let me allow you
15 to be clear. Did the division of responsibility or authority
16 for these reforms remain the same under the milestone
17 agreement, or was it changed?

18 A No, it was still with the city.

19 Q And ultimately as of the date that the emergency
20 financial manager was named, had the city made substantial
21 progress on this reform program?

22 A No.

23 Q And why do you say that?

24 A Because they hadn't. I mean they -- they simply had

1 March of 2012, in particular on blight removal, restoration of
2 public safety. There had been no initiatives made, no money
3 spent. Simply nothing had happened.

4 Q Let me direct your attention to Exhibit 7 at II VIII C.
5 It says, any future draws to be negotiated between the 6 administration of the estate are contingent on the following
7 provided that the escrow account will maintain a minimum
8 balance of $50,000,000 at all times. First, what was the 9 escrow account?

10 A Well, the escrow account had been created with some of 11 the proceeds from the $130,000,000 bond offering that had been 12 done in the late -- early spring of 2012.

13 Q Speak up again, please.

14 A I'm sorry. Of the $130,000,000 bond offering that had 15 been done a year prior, that was the money that had been put 16 into escrow by the state on behalf of the city.

17 Q And what was the significance -- did you attain an 18 understanding of the significance of the minimum balance of 19 $50,000,000 and its importance?

20 A Well, the city has in aggregate $1,000,000,000 plus
21 budget. It has nearly 10,000 employees and $50,000,000
22 represents approximately three weeks of expenditure on the 23 part of the city.

24 And that's relevant because the city's revenues come in 25 in a fairly lumpy way from a variety of different sources.
