RECOMMENDATION OF THE MAGISTRATE JUDGE

This is a 42 U.S.C. § 1983 action in which Anthony Gray ["Gray"], a state inmate, challenges a disciplinary lodged against him at the Ventress Correctional Facility for indecent exposure/exhibitionism. In his complaint, Gray seeks issuance of a preliminary injunction requiring expungement of the disciplinary, installation of "a partition in the bathroom at the urinals ... so that the female officers cannot have a direct view of the male genitals ...," and the presentation of physical evidence to support charges of indecent exposure/exhibitionism. Plaintiff's Complaint at 11. The court therefore construes the complaint to contain a motion for preliminary injunction under Rule 65, Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

I. STANDARD OF REVIEW

The decision to grant or deny a preliminary injunction "is within the sound discretion of the district court . . ." Palmer v. Braun, 287 F.3d 1325, 1329 (11th Cir. 2002). The four prerequisites which Gray must demonstrate to warrant issuance of a preliminary injunction are: (1) a substantial likelihood of success on the merits; (2) a substantial threat of irreparable injury without the injunction; (3) that the harm to Gray outweighs the harm to the non-moving parties; and (4) that an injunction would be in the interest of the public. Palmer, 287 F.3d at 1329; Cate v. Oldham, 707 F.2d 1176 (11th Cir. 1983); Shatel Corp. v. Mao Ta Lumber and Yacht Corp., 697 F.2d 1352 (11th Cir. 1983). “[A] preliminary injunction is an extraordinary and drastic remedy not to be granted unless the movant clearly established the burden of persuasion” as to each of the four prerequisites. See McDonald's Corp. v. Robertson, 147 F.3d 1301, 1306 (11th Cir. 1998) (internal citations and quotations omitted); see also Texas v. Seatrain Int'l, S.A., 518 F.2d 175, 179 (5th Cir. 1975) (grant of preliminary injunction “is the exception rather than the rule,” and movant must clearly carry the burden of persuasion). The moving party’s failure to demonstrate a “substantial likelihood of success on the merits” may defeat the party’s claim, regardless of the party’s ability to establish any of the other elements. Church v. City of Huntsville, 30 F.3d 1332, 1342 (11th Cir. 1994); see also Siegel v. Lepore, 234 F.3d 1163, 1176 (11th Cir. 2000) (noting that “the absence of a substantial likelihood of irreparable injury would, standing alone, make preliminary injunctive relief improper”).

II. DISCUSSION

In his motion for preliminary injunction, Gray asserts that his actions did not constitute indecent exposure/exhibitionism and argues that the defendants denied him due process in the disciplinary proceedings related to this charge. He seeks issuance of a preliminary injunction expunging the disciplinary, requiring that female officers be prohibited from viewing male inmates in a state of undress at the urinals and mandating the presentation of physical evidence to support charges of indecent exposure/exhibitionism.

With regard to the first prerequisite for issuance of preliminary injunctive relief, the court considers whether Gray has proven a substantial likelihood of success on the merits. Having reviewed Gray's request for preliminary injunctive relief, the court concludes that he has failed to carry his burden. Other than his self-serving, conclusory allegations of constitutional violations, Gray presents no proof or objective evidence that the actions about which he complains violated his constitutional rights. Essentially, the court has nothing other than Gray's mere conclusions of law and unsupported factual allegations as to whether the actions of the defendants violate the Constitution.

Gray likewise fails to demonstrate that he will suffer the requisite irreparable injury absent issuance of a preliminary injunction. As noted, Gray provides no proof or objective evidence in support of his allegations concerning the actions about which he complains. With respect to the third factor, whether issuance of injunctive relief would cause substantial harm to others, the court is unable to evaluate the potential harm of any injunction at this stage of the proceedings based on the information supplied by the plaintiff. Finally, the pleadings before the court are devoid of any evidence which shows that issuance of an injunction would serve the public interest. Thus, Gray has failed to meet his burden of demonstrating the existence of each prerequisite necessary to warrant issuance of a preliminary injunction.

III. CONCLUSION

Accordingly, it is the RECOMMENDATION of the Magistrate Judge that:

1. The motion for preliminary injunction filed by the plaintiff be DENIED.
2. This case be referred back the undersigned for additional proceedings.

It is further

ORDERED that on or before February 7, 2007 the parties may file objections to the Recommendation. Any objection must specifically identify the findings in the Recommendation objected to. Frivolous, conclusive or general objections will not be considered by the District Court. The parties are advised that this Recommendation is not a final order of the court and, therefore, it is not appealable.

Failure to file written objections to the proposed findings in the Recommendation shall bar the party from a de novo determination by the District Court of issues covered in the report and shall bar the party from attacking on appeal factual findings in the report accepted or adopted by the District Court except upon grounds of plain error or manifest injustice. Nettles v. Wainwright, 677 F.2d 404 (5th Cir. 1982). See Stein v. Reynolds Securities, Inc., 667 F.2d 33 (11th Cir. 1982). See also Bonner v. City of Prichard, 661 F.2d 1206 (11th Cir. 1981, en banc), adopting as binding precedent all decisions of the former Fifth Circuit issued prior to September 30, 1981.

DONE, this 24th day of January, 2007.
