MEMORANDUM OPINION AND ORDER

Roderick King, a federal prisoner, seeks to have his sentence vacated, set aside, or corrected pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 2255 in light of the Supreme Court’s decision in Johnson v. United States, 135 S. Ct. 2551 (2015). Doc. 1. For the reasons explained below, King’s petition is DENIED.

I. STANDARD OF REVIEW

Following conviction and sentencing, 28 U.S.C. § 2255 allows a federal prisoner to file a motion in the sentencing court “to vacate, set aside or correct the sentence” on the basis “that the sentence was imposed in violation of the Constitution or laws of the United States, or that the court was without jurisdiction to impose such a sentence, or that the sentence was in excess of the maximum authorized by law, or is otherwise subject to collateral attack[.]” 28 U.S.C. § 2255(a). To obtain relief under § 2255, a petitioner must: (1) file a non-successive petition or obtain an order from the Eleventh Circuit authorizing a district court to consider a successive § 2255 motion, 28 U.S.C. § 2255(h), § 2255 Rule 9; (2) file the motion in the court where the conviction or sentence was received, see Partee v. Attorney Gen. of Ga., 451 F. App'x 856 (11th Cir. 2012); (3) file the petition within the one-year statute of limitations, 28 U.S.C. § 2255(f); (4) be “in custody” at the time of filing the petition, Spencer v. Kemna, 523 U.S. 1, 7 (1998); (5) state a viable claim for relief under the heightened pleading standards of § 2255 Rule 2(b), see also McFarland v. Scott, 512 U.S. 849, 856 (1994); and (6) swear or verify the petition pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1746. Finally, “[i]n deciding whether to grant an evidentiary hearing, a federal court must consider whether such a hearing could enable an applicant to prove the petition’s factual allegations, which, if true, would entitle the applicant to federal habeas relief.” Schriro v. Landrigan, 550 U.S. 465, 474 (2007). However, “if the record refutes the applicant’s factual allegations or otherwise precludes habeas relief, a district court is not required to hold an evidentiary hearing.” Id.

II. PROCEDURAL HISTORY

After King pleaded guilty to being a felon in possession of a firearm in violation of 18 U.S.C. § 922(g)(1) (Count I), see doc. 24 in case no. 2:14-cr-00383-AKK-TMP, Judge Inge Johnson sentenced King to a term of imprisonment of thirty-seven months, see doc. 35 in case no. 2:14-cr-00383-AKK-TMP. King did not file a direct appeal. See doc. 1 at 1. As a result, his conviction became final on May 4, 2015.¹ King subsequently filed this § 2255 motion on June 25, 2016. Doc. 1 at 6.

III. ANALYSIS

King asks the court to vacate his conviction and sentence in light of Johnson v. United States, which declared void for vagueness the portion of the Armed Career Criminal Act (“ACCA”) that defined “violent felony” to include offenses that “involve[] conduct that presents a serious potential risk of physical injury to another” comparable to “burglary, arson, or extortion” or an offense that “involves the use of explosives.” See Johnson, 135 S. Ct. at 2557–60. As the basis for his motion, King states that his “sentence was increased by [i]ncreasing the base offense level in 2K2.1 because of a prior conviction that was violent. However, that “violent crime” was not violent in light of Johnson v. US, 135 S. Ct. 2551 (2015)” Doc. 1 at 4. Indeed, the Plea Agreement reflects that King had prior convictions for “Arson, Second Degree” and “Burglary, Third Degree.” See doc. 24 at 3 in case no. 2:14-cr-00383-AKK-TMP.

¹ When a defendant does not appeal the original judgment of conviction, the judgment becomes final when the time for filing a direct appeal expires. Mederos v. United States, 218 F.3d 1252, 1253 (11th Cir. 2000). The Federal Rules of Appellate Procedure provide that, in a criminal case, “a defendant’s notice of appeal must be filed in the district court within 14 days after the later of: (i) the entry of either the judgment or the order being appealed; or (ii) the filing of the government’s notice of appeal.” Fed. R. App. P. 4(b)(1)(A). In King’s case, the fourteenth day from April 20, 2015 was May 4, 2015.

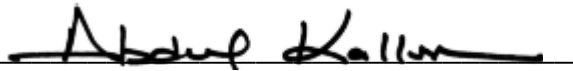

Sections 2K2.1(a)(4)(A) and 4B1.2(a) of the Sentencing Guidelines provide for sentencing enhancements if the defendant committed any part of the instant offense subsequent to sustaining one felony conviction of either a crime of violence or a controlled substance offense. Therefore, it appears that King is arguing for extension of Johnson to his sentence, because U.S.S.G. § 2K2.1(a) incorporates the Guidelines definition of “crime of violence” found in § 4B1.2(a) that mirrors the language of the invalidated ACCA residual clause. See doc. 2 at 2. Unfortunately for King, the Supreme Court has held that “[b]ecause the advisory Sentencing Guidelines are not subject to a due process vagueness challenge, § 4B1.2(a)’s residual clause is not void for vagueness.” See Beckles v. United States, 137 S. Ct. 886, 895 (2017). Moreover, King’s prior arson and burglary convictions both qualified as crimes of violence under the enumerated clause of the Sentencing Guidelines’ “crime of violence” definition rather than the residual clause. See United States v. Archer, 531 F.3d 1347, 1350 (11th Cir. 2008) (“burglary of a dwelling” is one of the crimes enumerated in the Sentencing Guidelines); United States v. Rainey, 362 F.3d 733, 735 (11th Cir. 2004) (“[A]rson is an enumerated offense in the definition of ‘crime of violence’ . . .”).

IV. CONCLUSION AND ORDER

Therefore, because King filed this motion after the one year period his conviction became final, see 28 U.S.C. § 2255(f)(1), and Johnson does not extend to enhancements under the Sentencing Guidelines, see Beckles, 137 S. Ct. at 895, King's motion is untimely, is procedurally barred, and fails to establish a sufficient basis to vacate his sentence under 28 U.S.C. § 2255. Accordingly, his § 2255 petition is DENIED. The motions to appoint counsel and to hold in abeyance, docs. 3 & 4, are MOOT. The clerk is DIRECTED to close this file.

DONE the 7th day of August, 2017.
