Pending before this Court is Plaintiff Robert Maysey’s Notice Of Motion To Remand

19

And Request For Attorneys’ Fees. For the reasons stated below, the Court grants Plaintiff’s

20

Motion To Remand and awards attorneys’ fees to Plaintiff.

21

BACKGROUND

22

On April 14 , 2009, Plaintiff Robert Maysey (“Maysey” or “Plaintiff”), filed a civil 23 action in the Maricopa County Superior Court (“Maricopa County Superior Court”) against 24

Defendants CraveOnline Media, LLC and Joe Hall (“CraveOnline” and “Hall” individually, “Defendants” collectively). On April 28, 2009, the complaint was served on CraveOnline, and on May 19, 2009 was served on Hall. Defendants then filed a Notice Of Removal Of 27

25

26

Action Pursuant To 28 U.S.C. § 1441(b) on June 5, 2009 in the United States District Court for the Central District of California (“California District Court”), seeking to remove the 1 case to federal court. Attorneys for Maysey informed Defendants’ attorneys that removal to 2 the California District Court was improper on June 19, 2009 and encouraged the attorneys 3 for Defendants to withdraw their Notice of Removal. (Pl.’s Reply In Supp. Of Pl.’s Mot. To 4 Remand, Doc. # 1, Ex. A. at 1.) Subsequently, attorneys for Defendants responded, 5 admitting the United States District Court for the District of Arizona (“Arizona District 6 Court”) was the appropriate venue for removal, and requesting stipulation to an order to 7 transfer the case to the Arizona District Court. Maysey refused to agree to this stipulation.

28

8 Subsequently, Defendants filed an Ex Parte Application To Transfer in the California 9 District Court, and, on June 25, 2009, the California District Court, granted Defendants’ Ex 10 Parte Application and ordered the case be transferred to the Arizona District Court.

11 After considering the issues involved, the Court concludes that the case must be 12 remanded to the Maricopa County Superior Court and thus grants Plaintiff’s Motion To 13 Remand and Plaintiff’s attorneys’ fees.

14 ANALYSIS

15 A. Remand

16 The removal statute, 28 U.S.C. § 1441, provides, in pertinent part, “any civil action 17 brought in a State court of which the district courts of the United States have original 18 jurisdiction, may be removed by the defendant . . . to the district court of the United States 19 for the district and division embracing the place where such action is pending.” 28 U.S.C.
20 § 1441(a) (emphasis added); see Caterpillar, Inc. v. Williams, 482 U.S. 386, 392 (1987) 21 (“Only . . . actions that originally could have been filed in federal court may be removed to 22 federal court by the defendant.”).

23 Courts strictly construe the removal statute against removal jurisdiction. See 24 Shamrock Oil & Gas Corp. v. Sheets, 313 U.S. 100, 108–09 (1941); Gaus v. Miles, Inc., 980 25 F.2d 564, 566 (9th Cir. 1992). There is a “strong presumption” against removal, and 26 “[f]ederal jurisdiction must be rejected if there is any doubt as to the right of removal in the 27 first instance.” Gaus, 980 F.2d at 566 (citing Libhart v. Santa Monica Dairy Co., 592 F.2d 28

1 1062, 1064 (9th Cir. 1979); see Duncan v. Stuetzle, 76 F.3d 1480, 1485 (9th Cir. 1996) 2 (quoting Gaus). “The ‘strong presumption’ against removal jurisdiction means that the 3 defendant always has the burden of establishing that removal is proper.” Gaus, 980 F.2d 4 at 566; see Prize Frize, Inc. v. Matrix (U.S.) Inc., 167 F.3d 1261, 1265 (9th Cir. 1999) (“The 5 burden of establishing federal jurisdiction is on the party seeking removal, and the removal 6 statute is strictly construed against removal jurisdiction.”) (citing Emerich v. Touche 7 Ross & Co., 846 F.2d 1190, 1195 (9th Cir. 1988)).

8 When a party removes a case to the improper federal court district, that district court’s 9 appropriate response should be to remand the case back to state court and not to transfer it 10 under 28 U.S.C. 1406(a), to the proper district. Addison v. North Carolina Dept. of Crime
11 and Public Safety, 851 F.Supp. 214, 216 (M.D.N.C. 1994) (holding that removal of action 12 from state court to federal district court was improvident, where federal district did not 13 include place where state action was pending, and action would be remanded to state court); 14 Willingham v. Creswell-Keith, Inc., 160 F.Supp. 741, 743 (W.D.Ark.1958) (holding that 15 removal to incorrect court mandated remand and not transfer, noting “the removal statute 16 specifically provides that cases may be removed ‘to the district court of the United States for 17 the district and division embracing the place where such action is pending.’”).¹ The transfer

19 ¹*See Klein & Vibber, P.C. v. Collard & Roe P.C.*, 3 F.Supp.2d 167, 171 (E.D.N.Y.
20 1998) (describing defendant's removal of the action to the wrong district, the District of 21 Connecticut, followed by an untimely removal to the Eastern District, which remanded 22 the action); Tanzman v. Midwest Exp. Airlines, Inc., 916 F.Supp. 1013, 1017 (S.D. Cal.
23 1996) (dicta indicating that where a case was removed to the wrong district, the federal court 24 can dismiss rather than transfer); Sbarro, Inc. v. Karykous, 2005 WL 1541048, at *2 25 (E.D.N.Y. 2005) (remanding for untimely filing of notice of removal where defendants first 26 removal to district of New Jersey was remanded to state court, and subsequent removal to 27 correct district was untimely, and rejecting defendant's argument that removal to improper 28 district tolled the 30 day notice of removal deadline). See also, 28 U.S.C. § 1447(c) (“If at any time before final judgment it appears that the district court lacks subject matter jurisdiction, the case shall be remanded.”); Dahl v. Rosenfeld, 316 F.3d 1074, 1076 (9th Cir.
2003) (“Upon removal, the district court must determine whether it has subject matter jurisdiction and, if not, it must remand.”) (citing Lyons v. Alaska Teamsters Employer Serv.

1 statute, 28 U.S.C. § 1406, is a general venue statute and provides no authority to transfer the 2 venue of removed actions, because 28 U.S.C. § 1441(a) governs venue in removed actions.
3 See Polizzi v. Cowles Magazines, Inc., 345 U.S. 663, 665–66, 73 S.Ct. 900, 902 (1953)
4 (holding that general venue statutes under 28 U.S.C. § 1391– and thus 28 U.S.C. § 1406– had 5 “no application to this case because it [was] a removed action[] [and] [t]he venue of removed 6 actions is governed by [28 U.S.C. 1441(a)]”).

7 Here, Defendants’ removal was to the improper federal district, and not merely to the 8 improper division within the proper district. Assuming that Defendants’ underlying action 11 Corp., 188 F.3d 1170, 1171 (9th Cir.1999)); Hoover v. Gershman Inv. Corp., 774 F.Supp.

12 60, (D. Mass.1991) (holding that a defendant could not remove a state court action to a 13 federal court sitting in a district and division other than where the state court action was 14 pending and that a defendant is simply without authority to remove a case to any district 15 court other than that specified in 28 U.S.C. § 1441(a)). But see Kreimerman v. Casa 16 Veerkamp, S.A. de C.V., 22 F.3d 634, 645 (5th Cir. 1994) (holding that removal of action to 17 wrong division of right district created procedural, rather than jurisdictional defect, and could 18 be remedied by transferring case to correct division); Mortensen v. Wheel Horse Products, 19 Inc., 772 F.Supp. 85, 89 (N.D. N.Y. 1991) (“The district court of the district in which is filed 20 a case laying venue in the wrong division or district shall dismiss, or if it be in the interest 21 of justice, transfer such case to any district or division in which it could have been 22 brought.”); Cook v. Shell Chemical Co., 730 F.Supp. 1381, 1382 (M.D. La.1990) (same); 23 Heniford v. American Motors Sales Corp., 471 F.Supp. 328, 337 (D. S.C.1979), dismissed 24 without opposition, 622 F.2d 584 (4th Cir.1980) (holding that case removed to incorrect 25 division of federal district should not be remanded when it was filed there based upon 26 incorrect advice from court deputy clerk); Ullah v. F.D.I.C., 852 F.Supp. 218, 221 (S.D.
27 N.Y.1994) (where case removed to the wrong district, federal court can transfer venue rather 28 than remand); Harrah v. Trustmark Ins. Co., 227 F.Supp.2d 600, 602 (S.D. W.Va. 2002) (holding that remand was not warranted in action removed from state court by corporation, even though removal notice was filed in wrong division; because the court clerk discovered the error and corporation provided correct designation, and local rules provided that notice could be filed in any division when timeliness concerns arose, and office for correct division was more than one hour away and notice had to be filed by next day); Corporate Visions, Inc.
v. Sterling Promotional Corp., 2000 WL 33217350, at *1 (E.D. N.Y. 2000) (holding that when action was removed to incorrect district, a court “is not compelled to remand the action, but may transfer it. . .”).

1 was one over which the district courts would have had original jurisdiction,² Defendants 2 should have removed the case to a federal court embracing Maricopa County, Arizona. The 3 California District Court is not a court embracing Maricopa County, Arizona.

4 Defendants' Ex Parte Application for Transfer to the District of Arizona does not 5 remedy the defective removal. Because the removal was defective, the appropriate action for 6 the California District Court, upon finding that it was not the appropriate court for removal 7 of the case, was to remand the case to the Maricopa County Superior Court. Nevertheless, 8 Defendants, ex parte, requested the California District Court to transfer the case pursuant to 9 28 U.S.C. §1406. (Order Granting Defendants' Ex Parte Application 2.) The California 10 District Court granted Defendants' request, and Defendants' ex parte actions deprived 11 Plaintiff of the opportunity to contest the transfer. Based upon Plaintiff's refusal to stipulate 12 to a transfer when Defendants' attorneys requested, it is reasonable to assume that Plaintiff 13 would have contested the transfer. These circumstances combined with the fact that courts 14 strictly construe the removal statute against removal jurisdiction justify remand.

15 Alternatively, even if the California District Court's transfer of the case were 16 effective, the Notice of Removal—under the “First-served Rule”—was untimely, thus leaving 17 the Court only with the option of remanding the case to the Maricopa County Superior Court.
18 In cases with only one defendant, in order to timely remove a state court case to federal court, 19 a defendant generally must file a notice of removal within thirty days from the date of service 20 of the complaint. 28 U.S.C. § 1446(b). “In cases with multiple defendants, there is a split in 21 authority—unresolved in [the Ninth] Circuit—on whether the thirty-day period to file, or join 22 in, a notice of removal begins to run on the day of service on the first-served or last-served 23

24 ²Defendants asserted that the California District Court had original jurisdiction 25 because complete diversity exists between the parties and the amount in controversy exceeds 26 the jurisdictional minimum of $75,000.00. (Def.'s Notice of Removal ¶ 5.) Because this 27 issue was not contested, and because the Court remands the case, the Court assumes, for 28 purposes of this Order, that the parties are diverse and the amount in controversy exceeds $75,000.00.

1 defendant.” United Steel v. Shell Oil Co., 549 F.3d 1204, 1208 (9th Cir. 2008) (citing United 2 Computer Systems, Inc. v. AT & T Corp., 298 F.3d 756, 763 n. 4 (9th Cir.2002)).

3 A majority of the district courts in the Ninth Circuit apply the “First-served Rule,” 4 holding that a notice of removal is timely only if filed within thirty days after service of the 5 complaint on the first defendant. See, e.g., Transport Indem. Co. V. Financial Trust Co., 339
6 F. Supp. 405, 407 (C.D. Cal 1972); McAnally Enterprises, Inc. v. McAnally, 107 F.Supp. 2d 7 1223, 1228 (C.D. Cal. 2000); Teitelbaum v. Soloski, 843 F.Supp. 614, 616 (C.D. Cal. 1994).
8 Underlying this decision is the rationale that all defendants in a case must consent to 9 removal. See Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway Co., 178 U.S., 245, 248 (1900); 10 Cantrell v. Great Republic Ins. Co., 873 F.2d 1249, 1254 (9th Cir.1989). An individual 11 defendant cannot consent to removal after expiration of the 30 day removal period.
12 McAnally, 107 F.Supp. 2d at n. 7. Therefore, a defendant cannot consent to a later-served 13 defendant’s removal subsequent to the expiration of the 30 day removal period.
14 Additionally, courts have noted that there is a “necessity that the forum selection should be 15 settled as early as possible.” McAnally, 107 F.Supp. 2d at 1228; Teitelbaum, 843 F.Supp. at 16 616 (noting that under 28 U.S.C. § 1446, “all defendants must join in the notice of removal.
17 Because all defendants must join, the 30-day period for removal commences to run from the 18 date the first defendant receives a copy of the complaint.”). Finally, applying the “First-19 served Rule” comports with the general principle that courts construe removal statutes 20 strictly. McAnally, 107 F.Supp. 2d at 1228 (citing Brown v. Demco, Inc., 792 F.2d 478 (5th 21 Cir.1986)); see Shamrock Oil & Gas Corp. v. Sheets, 313 U.S. 100, 108–09 (1941).

22 A minority of courts have adopted the “Second-served Rule,” holding that a notice 23 of removal is timely if filed within thirty days after service of the complaint on the last 24 defendant. Emerson v. Maricopa County, 2007 WL 2288148, at * 3 (D. Ariz). Courts 25 adhering to the “Second-served Rule” generally do so to avoid inequitable results. Emerson 26 v. Maricopa County, 2007 WL 2288148, at * 3 (D. Ariz.) (adopting “Second-served Rule” 27 to avoid “gamesmanship” by a plaintiff “who deliberately delay[ed] service in an attempt to 28

1 run the removal clock before serving those defendants most likely to remove”). There, the 2 plaintiff served numerous corporate defendants on March 5, 2007. Id. at * 1. However, the 3 plaintiff did not serve defendants related to Maricopa County until April 24, 2007, a delay
4 of more than a month and a half. Id. The Emerson Court applied the “Second-served Rule” 5 and cited cases permitting its application in “extreme circumstances,” like a “plaintiff’s ‘bad 6 faith effort to prevent removal.’” Id. at *2 (citing Brown v. Demco, Inc., 792 F.2d 478, 482 7 (5th Cir. 1986).

8 Although Defendants vigorously urged the Court to adopt the “Second-served Rule,” 9 the case at hand is distinguishable from Emerson. Here, Defendants CraveOnline and Hall 10 were served within a few weeks of each other. Here, Defendant Hall, who was served on the 11 later date, is not the party more likely to remove, as the Maricopa County defendants were 12 in Emerson. There is no indication of “gamesmanship” here or of Plaintiff’s “bad faith effort 13 to prevent removal.”

14 Without deciding the issue for all cases in this District, the Court believes the 15 California District Court would have applied the “First-served Rule” in this case. Applying 16 the “First-served Rule,” and dating Defendants’ Notice of Removal on the date of filing with 17 the California District Court Defendants’ removal–June 5, 2009–was more than thirty days 18 after Defendant CraveOnline was served on April 14, 2009. Therefore, Defendants’ Notice 19 of Removal was untimely.³

20 Therefore, the Court grants Plaintiff’s Motion To Remand.

23 ³Even if the Court applied the “Second-served Rule,” the Court would still have to 24 determine whether Defendants’ Notice of Removal dated from the date of filing in the 25 California District Court or from the date of the California District Court’s Order transferring 26 the case to the Court. In that case, the Court would deem the California District Court’s 27 Order Granting Defendants’ Ex Parte Application as the date of filing of Defendants’ Notice 28 of Removal, which would be untimely under either the “First-served” or “Second-served” rules. The Court does not think Defendants should have the possible benefit of applying this District’s rule after filing in the wrong district.

1 B. Attorneys' Fees

2 “An order remanding the case [back to state court] may require payment of just costs 3 and any actual expenses, including attorney fees, incurred as a result of the removal.” 28 4 U.S.C. § 1447(c). “Absent unusual circumstances, courts may award attorney's fees under 5 § 1447(c) only where the removing party lacked an objectively reasonable basis for seeking 6 removal. Conversely, when an objectively reasonable basis exists, fees should be denied.”
7 Martin v. Franklin Capital Corp., 546 U.S. 132, 141 (2005). There is no bias either in favor 8 of or against awarding fees and costs. Id. at 138–39 (noting that there is no “heavy 9 congressional thumb on either side of the scale”).⁴

10 A district court may depart from the rule that district courts may only award fees 11 where the removing party lacked an objectively reasonable basis for seeking removal, when 12 unusual circumstances exist. Id. at 141. “In applying this rule, district courts retain 13 discretion to consider whether unusual circumstances warrant a departure from the rule in 14 a given case. . . . When a court exercises its discretion in this manner, however, its reasons 15 for departing from the general rule should be ‘faithful to the purposes’ of awarding fees 16 under § 1447(c).” Id. at 141. “The appropriate test for awarding fees under § 1447(c) should 17 recognize the desire to deter removals sought for the purpose of prolonging litigation and 18 imposing costs on the opposing party, while not undermining Congress' basic decision to 19

20 ⁴While a district court’s determination of a motion to remand is not reviewable, a 21 district court’s award of fees is reviewable. See Things Remembered Inc. v. Petrarca, 516 22 U.S. 124, 127–28 (1995) (“As long as a district court's remand is based on a timely raised 23 defect in removal procedure or on lack of subject-matter jurisdiction – the grounds for 24 remand recognized by § 1447(c) – a court of appeals lacks jurisdiction to entertain an appeal 25 of the remand order under § 1447(d).”); Dahl v. Rosenfeld, 316 F.3d 1074, 1077 (9th Cir.
26 2003) (“We review an award of attorneys' fees for an abuse of discretion and will overturn 27 the district court's decision only if it is based on clearly erroneous findings of fact or 28 erroneous determinations of law.”); Patel v. Del Taco, Inc., 446 F.3d 996, 999 (9th Cir. 2006) (affirming award of attorneys’ fees when state court petition contained no claims over which the district court would have had original jurisdiction); Balcorta v. Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corp., 208 F.3d 1102, 1105–06 (9th Cir. 2000).

1 afford defendants a right to remove as a general matter, when the statutory criteria are 2 satisfied.” Id. at 140.

3 The Court does not need to worry about departing from the usual rule here because 4 Defendants lacked an objectively reasonable basis for removing the case to the California 5 District Court. The statutory wording is clear that a case may be removed only “to the 6 district court of the United States for the district and division embracing the place where 7 such action is pending.” 28 U.S.C. § 1441(a) (emphasis added). Defendants specifically 8 referenced 28 U.S.C. § 1441(a) in their Notice of Removal, (Defs.’ Notice of Removal 1), 9 so it is reasonable to assume that Defendants’ attorneys were aware of the venue requirement.
10 Further, Defendants erroneously stated that venue was correct in the California District Court 11 under 28 U.S.C. § 1391, without reference to 28 U.S.C. § 1441(a). (Defs.’ Notice of 12 Removal ¶ 10.) Although Defendants contended that the fact that diversity jurisdiction is 13 present⁵ provides the objectively reasonable basis necessary here, they neglect the fact that 14 the misinterpretation of the plain meaning of the removal statute – clearly evident on its face 15 – is not objectively reasonable. Therefore, even though diversity apparently exists between 16 the parties, Defendants lacked an objectively reasonable basis for removing to the California 17 District Court.

18 Even if Defendants had an objectively reasonable basis for removing to the California 19 District Court, the unusual circumstances of this case would justify a departure from the 20 general rule. This departure from the general rule would deter “removals sought for the 21 purpose of prolonging litigation and imposing costs on the opposing party.” If defendants 22 generally were permitted to remove a state court case to a court not permitted by statute and 23 then were permitted to transfer the case to the correct court subsequent to the removal 24 deadline, what would prevent defendants from making this practice customary in order to 25 gain time, delay proceedings, and increase costs to plaintiffs generally?

26
27 ⁵The Court assumes that diversity jurisdiction exists for purposes of this Order.
28
