IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT FOR THE DISTRICT OF ARIZONA

Jesus Rivera-Alvarado,

Petitioner,

v.

USA,

Respondent.

No. CV-13-00509-PHX-GMS

ORDER

Pending before the Court are Petitioner Jesus Rivera-Alvarado's Amended Motion to Vacate Sentence (Docs. 3, 4, 6) and United States Magistrate Judge Michelle H. Burns's Report and Recommendation ("R&R"), which recommends that the Court deny the Motion. (Doc. 14.) Petitioner filed objections to the R&R on August 25, 2014. (Doc. 17.) Therefore, the Court will review the record on all relevant matters de novo. For the following reasons, the Court adopts the R&R and denies the Motion.

BACKGROUND

On June 30, 2010, Petitioner was convicted of three counts: (1) conspiracy to distribute and distribution and possession with the intent to distribute fifty grams or more of methamphetamine, in violation of 21 U.S.C. §§ 846, 841(a)(1), 841(b)(1)(A)(viii), (2) possession of a firearm in furtherance of a drug trafficking offense, in violation of 18 U.S.C. § 924(c)(1)(A)(I), and, (3) felon in possession of a firearm, in violation of 18 U.S.C. §§ 922(g)(1), 924(a)(2). Petitioner was tried along with his co-defendants, and the jury was instructed that it should consider evidence about other defendants' acts "only as

1 they relate[d] to each charge against each defendant.” The evidence presented by the 2 Government included testimony from federal agents who had observed Petitioner’s 3 interactions with his co-defendants in the hours leading up to their arrests, and who 4 explained that his actions were consistent with counter-surveillance tactics often used by 5 local drug traffickers to evade detection. The agents also testified that Petitioner was seen 6 driving one of the co-defendants to a parking lot. The co-defendant then exited the 7 vehicle with a plastic bag containing over 300 grams of methamphetamine. After 8 dropping off his co-defendant, witnesses indicated that Petitioner had parked nearby with 9 a direct line of sight to his associate. One witness testified to Petitioner’s proximity to his 10 co-defendants at the time of his arrest by referencing an aerial photograph of the parking
11 lot where the defendants were taken into custody. Petitioner was arrested in the driver’s 12 seat of the car, and officers discovered that he had a .357 caliber revolver in his 13 waistband.

14 At the close of the trial, Petitioner was sentenced to the mandatory minimum 15 sentence of twenty-five years. The trial Court’s sentence calculation reflected a sentence 16 enhancement based on Petitioner’s 2004 conviction for possession of cocaine and 17 possession of drug paraphernalia, both felonies, for which Petitioner was incarcerated for 18 less than one year. Over the Petitioner’s objection, the Court admitted a certified copy of 19 the judgment of conviction pursuant to Federal Rule of Evidence 404(b) to prove his 20 knowledge, intent, and/or absence of mistake during the trial as to the substantive 21 offenses charged. The conviction document listed the defendant’s name as “Jesse 22 Alvarado.” The Petitioner again contested the use of the conviction at the sentencing 23 phase, and filed a Notice of Denial of Prior Conviction. In response, the Government 24 submitted the conviction document used at trial and asked the Court to take judicial 25 notice of the fact that the jury had found Petitioner guilty of one count of “felon in 26 possession of a firearm” at trial. The Government also proffered testimony by the state 27 trooper who alleged he could identify Petitioner as the man he arrested for the drug-28 related charges in 2004. The Court refused to consider the hearsay testimony, but

1 concluded the other evidence established Petitioner’s criminal history beyond a 2 reasonable doubt to justify the sentence enhancement. Petitioner’s twenty-five year
3 sentence was affirmed on appeal to the Ninth Circuit.

4 STANDARD OF REVIEW

5 A federal prisoner may seek relief under 28 U.S.C. § 2255(a) if his sentence was 6 imposed in violation of the United States Constitution or the laws of the United States,
7 was in excess of the maximum authorized by law, or is otherwise subject to collateral 8 attack. When a prisoner petitions for post-conviction relief, this Court “may accept, 9 reject, or modify, in whole or in part, the findings or recommendations made by the 10 magistrate.” Id. § 636(b)(1). If a petitioner files timely objections to the magistrate’s 11 R&R, the district judge must make a de novo determination of those portions of the 12 report or specified proposed findings or recommendations to which objection is made.
13 Id.; United States v. Reyna-Tapia, 328 F.3d 1114, 1121 (9th Cir. 2003) (en banc); see 14 also Fed. R. Civ. P. 72(b).

15 DISCUSSION

16 I. Grounds 1–5, 7: Ineffective Assistance of Counsel

17 As grounds for relief, Petitioner asserts several claims of ineffective assistance of 18 counsel relating to his trial and appellate representation. For example, Petitioner contends 19 that his counsel spent insufficient time on his case, improperly objected to the 20 Government’s use of evidence against him, including the prior conviction, failed to raise 21 grounds for severing Petitioner’s trial from his co-defendants, and was an overall 22 ineffectual advocate. (See Doc. 14 at 9–14 (detailing Petitioners’ claims).) In his 23 Response to the R&R, Petitioner objects only that his counsel was ineffective for 24 mishandling witness identifications made over the course of the trial. (See Doc. 17 at 4– 25 7.)

26 Petitioner’s objection regarding his ineffective assistance claims as it involves 27 eyewitness identification, even when liberally construed in his favor, is not the kind of 28 specific challenge to the legal and factual findings made by the Magistrate Judge required

1 to trigger de novo review of the record under Rule 72(b). (See Doc. 17); Fed. R. Civ. P.
2 72(b)(3). First, Petitioner raises claims about misidentification for the first time in his 3 objections to the R&R. These claims are inappropriate for consideration by the Court at 4 this juncture. See Bousley v. United States, 523 U.S. 614, 621–22 (1998). Second, there is 5 nothing in the trial record that reasonably calls misidentification into question, since 6 Petitioner does not contest that he is the individual who was arrested in the parking lot
7 with his co-defendants on August 27, 2009. To the extent that Petitioner is challenging 8 the integrity of the Arkansas state trooper’s identification of him as “Jesse Alvarado,” the 9 man he arrested in 2004 on felony possession charges, this amounts to a substantive 10 attack on the trial court’s evidentiary ruling and not a claim of ineffective assistance of 11 counsel. Because Petitioner did not raise this issue on appeal, he has procedurally
12 defaulted the claim and the Court is barred from inquiring into the propriety of the trial
13 Court’s decision to admit the officer’s testimony now. Bousley, 523 U.S. at 621–22.

14 In any event, as the R&R indicates, the trial court properly considered the 15 admissibility of the 404(b) evidence and issued a limiting instruction to the jury. (See 16 Doc. 14 at 9–10.) To circumvent the procedural default doctrine, Petitioners’ allegations
17 are postured as claims of ineffective assistance of counsel. However, as the R&R
18 thoroughly explains, none of the actions allegedly taken (or not taken) by Petitioner’s 19 counsel fell below an objective standard of reasonableness, nor has Petitioner sufficiently 20 demonstrated how the outcome of his trial or sentencing would have been different had 21 counsel acted otherwise. (Doc. 14 at 9–14); See Strickland v. Washington, 466 U.S. 668, 22 687–88, 692 (1984) (holding that a convicted defendant must show (1) that counsel’s 23 representation fell below an objective standard of reasonableness, and (2) that there is a 24 reasonable probability that, but for counsel’s errors, the result of the proceeding would 25 have been different in order to prevail on an ineffective assistance claim). Under the 26 mandate of Strickland, Petitioner’s trial counsel is subject to a presumption of 27 competency. Strickland, 466 U.S. at 689. Petitioner’s conclusory allegations that the 28 prosecution relied on “perjured testimony,” “did not disclose exculpatory evidence,” and

1 that he was “framed”—without providing any factual support for his averments—is 2 insufficient to raise a reasonable question as to the adequacy of his trial counsel. (See 3 Doc. 4 at 3–4.) Thus, based on the record, the R&R correctly concludes that that 4 Petitioner’s claims of ineffective assistance of counsel should be denied on the merits. All 5 ancillary claims about the events of Petitioner’s trial, such as the admission of his prior 6 conviction pursuant to Federal Rule of Evidence 404(b), are procedurally defaulted.

7 II. Ground 6, 7: Insufficient Evidence

8 In addition to his claims of ineffective assistance of counsel, Petitioner claims that 9 the evidence presented by the Government at trial is insufficient to support a conviction 10 for conspiracy and possession of a firearm in furtherance of a drug trafficking offense.
11 (Doc. 4 at 20; Doc. 6 at 3.) Petitioner has filed only general objections to the Magistrate’s 12 findings and recommendations regarding these claims. (Doc. 17 at 17, 18.) Despite 13 Petitioner’s failure to file proper objections, the Court has reviewed the R&R de novo.

14 First, as noted above and in the R&R, if a § 2255 petitioner could have raised a 15 claim at trial or on direct appeal but did not, post-conviction relief on that claim is 16 generally deemed waived by the procedural default doctrine. Bousley, 523 U.S. 621–22.
17 A petitioner can avoid procedural default only if he can demonstrate (1) “cause” for the 18 failure to raise the claim at the proper time and “actual prejudice” or that he is “actually 19 innocent.” Id. at 622. Petitioner did not raise a claim of insufficiency of the evidence on 20 direct appeal, nor has he articulated an excuse for his failure to raise this claim at an 21 earlier stage in the litigation. Therefore, Petitioner’s claim of insufficient evidence is 22 procedurally defaulted.

23 Moreover, § 2255 does not allow for an attack on a Petitioner’s sentence based on 24 the sufficiency of the evidence. See § 2255 (outlining grounds for attacking a sentence); 25 United States v. Addonizio, 442 U.S. 178, 184–86 (1979) (explaining that an error of law 26 does not provide a basis for a petitioner to collaterally challenge his sentence unless the 27 claimed error constitutes “a fundamental defect which inherently results in a complete 28 miscarriage of justice”); Cauley v. United States, 294 F.2d 318, 320 (9th Cir. 1961) (“[A]

1 motion under section 2255 is not a proper way to review the weight of the evidence.”);
2 Hastings v. United States, 184 F.2d 939, 940 (9th Cir. 1950) (“Questions as to the 3 sufficiency of the evidence or involving errors either of law or of fact must be raised by 4 timely appeal from the sentence if the petitioner desires to raise them.”).

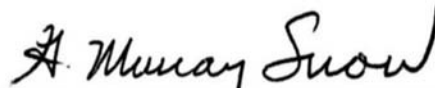

5 Finally, Petitioner’s claim of insufficient evidence fails on the merits. There was 6 ample evidence at trial to support a conviction on all counts.

7 CONCLUSION

8 IT IS ORDERED that Magistrate Judge Michelle R. Burns’s R&R (Doc. 14) is 9 ACCEPTED and Petitioner Jesus Rivera-Alvarado’s Motion to Vacate Sentence (Doc.
10 3) is DENIED with prejudice. The Clerk of Court is directed to terminate this action 11 and enter judgment accordingly.

12 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that a certificate of appealability be denied 13 because dismissal of the Petition is justified by procedural bar and because Petitioner has 14 not made a substantial showing of the denial of a constitutional right.

15 Dated this 21st day of October, 2014.
