

1 WO
2
3
4
5

6 IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
7 FOR THE DISTRICT OF ARIZONA
8

9 Jamonz Majerrious Ross,
10 Petitioner,
11 v.
12 Arizona, State of, et al.,
13 Respondents.
14

No. CV-13-01845-PHX-JAT

ORDER

15
16
17 Pending before the Court is the magistrate judge's Report and Recommendation 18 ("R&R") (Doc. 46), recommending that Petitioner's First Amended Petition for Writ of 19 Habeas Corpus (Doc. 15) be denied.

20 I. Background

21 The Court adopts the magistrate judge's characterization of the facts, but 22 summarizes the relevant facts. The Arizona Court of Appeals found the following facts 23 regarding the crimes for which Petitioner was convicted at the state court:

24 [Petitioner] was pulled over for a traffic violation on December 23, 25 2009. The officer noticed a pill bottle sticking out of [Petitioner's] pocket, 26 and noticed that the name "Ross" was not on the bottle. The officer 27 suspected the pills were Alprazolam, a controlled substance, but did not 28 charge [Petitioner] until the substance contained in the pills could be

1 verified by the lab. The officer impounded the pills and sent them to a 2 crime lab. A forensic scientist testified that in fact, the pills were 3 Alprazolam.

4

5 On September 25, 2010, a police officer was notified by a detective 6 that [Petitioner] might be in the area and that there was a warrant for his 7 arrest [for the crimes charged in CR 2010–007952]. After [Petitioner] was 8 arrested and transported to county jail, “several items of drugs” consisting 9 of pills, methamphetamine and marijuana were found on his person. He 10 was booked under the original warrant because the drugs [seized on 11 September 25, 2010,] had not yet been officially tested and identified, so he 12 was released. However, a forensic scientist for the Phoenix Police 13 Department testified [at Petitioner’s trial] that her analysis of items 14 submitted for testing were the controlled substances alleged in the 15 indictment.

16 On October 30, 2010, [Petitioner] was arrested based on the 17 September 25, 2010 charges. When he was searched, another two baggies 18 of methamphetamine and marijuana were found.

19 (Doc. 41, Exh. CC at 3–4).

20 Petitioner was arraigned for his two charges on November 18, 2010 and December 21 9, 2010. (Doc. 41, Exhs. C, E). The minute entries indicate that Petitioner was 22 represented by counsel at the arraignments. (Id.). Petitioner makes several other factual 23 assertions regarding the arraignments which, for the purposes of adjudicating this 24 petition, the Court accepts as true. First, Petitioner asserts that he participated in the 25 arraignments via closed-circuit television. Next, Petitioner asserts that the commissioner 26 who conducted the arraignments entered a not guilty plea “for him” without holding a 27 “discussion” as to the charges. Finally, Petitioner asserts that he has been denied access to 28 the transcripts or recordings of his arraignments, which he claims would prove the 1 inadequacy of his arraignments.

2 At both trials, Petitioner represented himself. Mid-trial, Petitioner filed a special 3 action in the Arizona Court of Appeals, arguing, inter alia, that his arraignments were 4 constitutionally defective. The Arizona Court of Appeals summarily dismissed the 5 petition. The Arizona Supreme Court denied review.

6 Petitioner was ultimately convicted in both cases and took a timely appeal of his 7 convictions and sentences, consolidating his two trials for purposes of the appeal. On 8 appeal, Petitioner again argued that his arraignments were improper. After the Arizona 9 Court of Appeals rejected his argument, Petitioner moved for reconsideration, requested 10 an evidentiary hearing, and moved to supplement the record with the arraignment 11 transcripts. The motion for reconsideration was denied, and Petitioner sought review by 12 the Arizona Supreme Court, which was also denied.

13 Petitioner also sought a writ of habeas corpus from the Arizona Supreme Court 14 while his direct appeal was pending. There, Petitioner repeated his arguments regarding 15 the sufficiency of his arraignments, which the Arizona Supreme Court rejected. Petitioner 16 moved for reconsideration, arguing that the minute entries, upon which the Court of 17 Appeals had relied to conclude that Petitioner's arraignments were constitutionally 18 sound, were "lying" and that the recordings of the proceedings would prove his claims.
19 Petitioner also asked for an evidentiary hearing. The Arizona Supreme Court denied the 20 motion for reconsideration and the request for an evidentiary hearing.

21 Petitioner then submitted his petition to this Court for a federal writ of habeas 22 corpus under 28 U.S.C. § 2254. The case was assigned to a magistrate judge, who 23 recommended that the Court deny the petition. For the reasons stated below, the Court 24 accepts the magistrate judge's recommendation.

25 II. Standard of Review

26 This Court "may accept, reject, or modify, in whole or in part, the findings or 27 recommendations made by the magistrate judge." 28 U.S.C. § 636(b)(1). It is "clear that 28 the district judge must review the magistrate judge's findings and recommendations de

1 novo if objection is made, but not otherwise.” United States v. Reyna-Tapia, 328 F.3d
2 1114, 1121 (9th Cir. 2003) (en banc) (emphasis in original); Schmidt v. Johnstone, 263
3 F. Supp. 2d 1219, 1226 (D. Ariz. 2003) (“Following Reyna-Tapia, this Court concludes 4 that de novo review of factual and legal issues is required if objections are made, ‘but not 5 otherwise.’”); Klamath Siskiyou Wildlands Ctr. v. U.S. Bureau of Land Mgmt., 589 F.3d 6 1027, 1032 (9th Cir. 2009) (the district court “must review de novo the portions of the 7 [magistrate judge’s] recommendations to which the parties object.”). District courts are 8 not required to conduct “any review at all . . . of any issue that is not the subject of an 9 objection.” Thomas v. Arn, 474 U.S. 140, 149 (1985) (emphasis added); see also 28 10 U.S.C. § 636(b)(1) (“A judge of the court shall make a de novo determination of those 11 portions of the [report and recommendation] to which objection is made.”).

12 The Petition in this case was filed under 28 U.S.C. § 2254 because Petitioner is 13 incarcerated based on a state conviction. With respect to the claims Petitioner exhausted 14 before the state courts, under 28 U.S.C. §§ 2254(d)(1) and (2) this Court must deny the 15 Petition on those claims unless “a state court decision is contrary to, or involved an 16 unreasonable application of, clearly established Federal law”¹ or was based on an 17 unreasonable determination of the facts. See Lockyer v. Andrade, 538 U.S. 63, 71 (2003).
18 Further, this Court must presume the correctness of the state court’s factual findings 19 regarding a petitioner’s claims. 28 U.S.C. § 2254(e)(1); Ortiz v. Stewart, 149 F.3d 923, 20 936 (9th Cir. 1998).

21 “When applying these standards, the federal court should review the ‘last reasoned 22

23 ¹ Further, in applying “Federal law” the state courts only need to act in accordance 24 with Supreme Court case law. See Clark v. Murphy, 331 F.3d 1062, 1069 (9th Cir.
25 2003)(“In attempting to answer [whether the state court applied Federal law in an 26 objectively reasonable manner], the only definitive source of clearly established federal 27 law under AEDPA is the holdings (as opposed to the dicta) of the Supreme Court as of 28 the time of the state court decision. Williams [v. Taylor], 529 U.S. [362], 412 [(2000)].
While circuit law may be “persuasive authority” for purposes of determining whether a state court decision is an unreasonable application of Supreme Court law, Duhaime v.
Ducharme, 200 F.3d 597, 600-01 (9th Cir.1999), only the Supreme Court’s holdings are binding on the state courts and only those holdings need be reasonably applied. See Williams, 529 U.S. at 412 (“The ... statutory language makes clear ... that § 2254(d)(1) restricts the source of clearly established law to this Court’s jurisprudence.”).

1 decision' by a state court" Robinson v. Ignacio, 360 F.3d 1044, 1055 (9th Cir. 2004).

2 III. Discussion

3 Petitioner organized his objection to the R&R into five points, some of which 4 overlap. After reviewing the objections, the Court concludes that Petitioner objects to two 5 of the magistrate judge's conclusions. First, regarding Ground 1 of the petition, Petitioner 6 objects to the magistrate judge's conclusion that the arraignments were constitutionally 7 sufficient. (Doc. 48 at 4–5). Second, regarding Ground 5 of the petition, Petitioner objects 8 to the magistrate judge's conclusion that Petitioner's rights were not violated when the 9 state court failed to obtain a copy of the arraignment transcripts. (Doc. 48 at 2–4, 6–7).
10 Thus, the Court addresses only Grounds 1 and 5 in the petition and accepts the magistrate 11 judge's recommendations regarding the other grounds. Thomas, 474 U.S. at 149.

12 A. Exhaustion of State Court Remedies

13 Before this Court may consider the merits of an application for habeas relief, a 14 state prisoner must "exhaust" in state court the claims raised in the petition. See Coleman 15 v. Thompson, 501 U.S. 722, 729–30, 735 n.1 (1991); Castille v. Peoples, 489 U.S. 346, 16 349–50 (1989). To properly exhaust his claims in the state courts, the petitioner must 17 afford the state the opportunity to rule upon the merits of each federal constitutional 18 claim by "fairly presenting" the claim to the state's highest court in a procedurally correct 19 manner. Castille, 489 U.S. at 351. Respondents do not dispute that Petitioner exhausted 20 Grounds 1 and 5 of his petition, which are the claims he argues in his objections to the 21 R&R. The Court therefore finds that those two claims, the merits of which are discussed 22 below, were properly exhausted in state court.

23 B. Ground 1: Sufficiency of the Arraignments

24 Petitioner claims that he was not properly arraigned. Petitioner's objection to the 25 arraignment hearings appears to be premised on three complaints: first, that he was 26 "brought before a T.V." to participate in the hearing; second, that the commissioner who 27 conducted the hearing entered a not guilty plea for Petitioner without asking Petitioner 28 how he wanted to plea or holding a "discussion about [P]etitioner's charges"; and finally,

1 that Petitioner was not represented by counsel at the hearing.

2 “Arraignment is not a procedure required by the due process clause of the fifth 3 amendment.” Valenzuela-Gonzalez v. U.S. Dist. Court for Dist. of Arizona, 915 F.2d 4 1276, 1280 (9th Cir. 1990) (citing Garland v. Washington, 232 U.S. 642, 645 (1914); 5 United States v. Coffman, 567 F.2d 960 (10th Cir. 1977)). Indeed, due process “does not 6 require the state to adopt any particular form of procedure, so long as it appears that the 7 accused has had sufficient notice of the accusation and an adequate opportunity to defend 8 himself in the prosecution.” Garland v. State of Washington, 232 U.S. 642, 645 (1914).

9 Whether a criminal defendant’s presence via closed-circuit television at an 10 arraignment violates due process is a question neither the Ninth Circuit nor the Supreme 11 Court has answered. See Valenzuela-Gonzalez v. U.S. Dist. Court for Dist. of Arizona, 12 915 F.2d 1276, 1280–81 (9th Cir. 1990). Courts that have ruled on the issue have held 13 that an arraignment via closed-circuit television does not violate the Due Process Clause, 14 so long as the system provides the functional equivalent of in-person proceedings. Com.
15 v. Ingram, 46 S.W.3d 569, 571 (Ky. 2001); State v. Phillips, 656 N.E. 2d 643, 665 (Ohio 16 1995); People v. Lindsey, 772 N.E. 2d 1268, 1281 (Ill. 2002); Com. v. Terebieniec, 408 17 A.2d 1120, 1124 (Pa. 1979); In re Rule 3.160(a), Florida Rules of Criminal Procedure, 18 528 So. 2d 1179, 1179 (Fla. 1988). Thus, it cannot be said that Petitioner’s presence at 19 the arraignment hearings via television violated clearly established law.

20 Petitioner’s claim that his due process rights were violated because the 21 commissioner did not “discuss” the charges with him and entered a not guilty plea “for 22 him” is not supported by any case law the Court could locate. Indeed, as noted above, due 23 process does not even require states to conduct arraignments in general, let alone to 24 conduct a “discussion” of the charges. Valenzuela-Gonzalez v. U.S. Dist. Court for Dist.
25 of Arizona, 915 F.2d 1276, 1280 (9th Cir. 1990) (citing Garland v. Washington, 232 U.S.
26 642, 645 (1914); United States v. Coffman, 567 F.2d 960 (10th Cir. 1977)). That the 27 arraignments were brief and one-sided does not mean that Petitioner was not given 28 “sufficient notice of the accusation and an adequate opportunity to defend himself in the 1 prosecution.” Garland, 232 U.S. at 645. Moreover, the not guilty pleas that were 2 allegedly entered “for him” not only complied with the Arizona Rules of Criminal 3 Procedure, Ariz. R. Crim. P. 12.10, but they also resulted in no prejudice to Petitioner; 4 there is no evidence that Petitioner was not free to plead guilty at any time throughout the 5 proceedings. As such, the state court did not violate clearly established law by failing to 6 hold a “discussion” with Petitioner about his charges or by entering a plea of not guilty 7 for him.

8 Petitioner’s claim that he was not represented by counsel is belied by the record.
9 The minute entries clearly state, as the state court found, that Petitioner’s attorney was 10 present at the hearing. Thus, Petitioner’s factual assertions in this regard are “without 11 credibility” and warrant no evidentiary hearing. United States v. Navarro–Garcia, 926 12 F.2d 818, 822 (9th Cir.1991); West v. Ryan, 608 F.3d 477, 485 (9th Cir. 2010) (“[I]f the 13 record refutes the applicant’s factual allegations or otherwise precludes habeas relief, a 14 district court is not required to hold an evidentiary hearing.”). The Court therefore finds 15 that Petitioner did have counsel present at the arraignments.²

16 In sum, the state court did not violate clearly established law by conducting the 17 arraignments via closed-circuit television, not conducting a discussion with Petitioner 18 about the charges, and entering a plea of not guilty for Petitioner. Petitioner’s assertion 19 that he was not represented by counsel at the arraignments conflicts with the 20 unambiguous public record. Therefore, the arraignment proceedings did not violate 21 clearly established law.

22
23 ² To the extent that Petitioner claims his rights were violated because he was in a 24 cell communicating through television while his attorney was live in the courtroom, the 25 Court notes that such a circumstance does not violate clearly established law. The 26 Supreme Court has not ruled on that issue, and at least one court to consider it has held 27 that it does not violate due process. People v. Lindsey, 772 N.E.2d 1268, 1277-78 (Ill.
28 2002); see also Wilkins v. Shirleson, No. CIV 10-00443 PHX JWS, 2011 WL 4530113, at *15 (D. Ariz. Sept. 7, 2011) report and recommendation adopted, No. 2:10-CV-00443 JWS, 2011 WL 4566438 (D. Ariz. Sept. 30, 2011) (“Petitioner cites to no published opinion of the United States Supreme Court which holds that [representation by counsel in the courtroom while the accused attends the hearing via closed-circuit television] violated Petitioner’s federal constitutional right to the effective assistance of counsel in all critical stages of the proceedings, and the Magistrate Judge can find no such opinion.”).

1 C. Ground 5: Arraignment Transcripts

2 Petitioner also argues that the state court’s failure to obtain and consider the 3 transcript to the arraignments violated his constitutional rights. In particular, Petitioner 4 argues that the state court violated his due process rights because it “looked no further 5 than the minute entries” in determining that he was properly arraigned. (Doc. 48 at 6). In 6 his view, “once the minute entries were challenged, as they many, many, many times 7 were, [the] state court should have engaged in a process, taken additional steps” by 8 obtaining a copy of the arraignment transcripts or recordings. (Id.).

9 On the outset, the Court agrees with the magistrate judge that Petitioner’s 10 argument here is “a claim that the state’s fact-finding process resulted in error prejudicial 11 to Petitioner.” (Doc. 46 at 32). Petitioner does not appear to object to this construction of 12 his argument. (See Doc. 48 at 6 (“[The] state court’s determination of the facts was 13 unreasonable because their fact finding process was fundamentally flawed.”)).
14 Petitioner’s argument that his arraignments were improper is addressed above, but this 15 portion will address solely whether the state court based its conclusion on an 16 “unreasonable determination of the facts” under 28 U.S.C.A. § 2254(d)(2).

17 “[A] state-court’s factual determination is not unreasonable merely because the 18 federal habeas court would have reached a different conclusion in the first instance.” 19 Clark v. Arnold, 769 F.3d 711, 724–25 (9th Cir. 2014) (quoting Burt v. Titlow, 134 S.Ct.
20 10, 15 (2013)). Rather, “[a] state court’s fact-finding process is unreasonable under 21 § 2254(d)(2) only when we are ‘satisfied that any appellate court to whom the defect is 22 pointed out would be unreasonable in holding that the state court’s factfinding process 23 was adequate.’” Woods v. Sinclair, 764 F.3d 1109, 1128 (9th Cir. 2014) (quoting Taylor 24 v. Maddox, 366 F.3d 992, 1000 (9th Cir. 2004)).

25 The Court concludes that the state court’s decision was not based on an 26 unreasonable determination of facts. The state court considered the evidence available at 27 the time, the minute entries, which stated that Petitioner entered a not guilty plea in the 28 presence of his attorney. The mere fact that Petitioner claimed that the minute entries

1 were inaccurate does not trigger a right to obtain the transcripts or recordings, nor does it 2 somehow diminish the weight the state court could reasonably assign to the minute 3 entries. Therefore, it cannot be said that “any appellate court to whom the defect is 4 pointed out would be unreasonable in holding that the state court’s factfinding process 5 was adequate.” Woods, 764 F.3d at 1128.

6 IV. Conclusion

7 Accordingly,

8 IT IS ORDERED that the Report and Recommendation (Doc. 46) is 9 ACCEPTED AND ADOPTED; the objections (Doc. 48) are overruled; the First 10 Amended Petition for Writ of Habeas Corpus (Doc. 15) is DENIED and the Clerk of the 11 Court shall enter judgment of dismissal, with prejudice.

12 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that pursuant to Rule 11 of the Rules Governing 13 Section 2254 Cases, in the event Petitioner files an appeal, the Court denies issuance of a 14 certificate of appealability because Petitioner has not made a substantial showing of the 15 denial of a constitutional right. See 28 U.S.C. § 2253(c)(2).

16 Dated this 7th day of April, 2015.

17
18 19 20 21 _____
22 James A. Teilborg
23 Senior United States District Judge
24
25
26
27
28