IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT FOR THE DISTRICT OF ARIZONA

Prison Legal News,

Plaintiff,

v.

Charles L Ryan, et al.,

Defendants.

No. CV-15-02245-PHX-ROS

ORDER

Pending before the Court is Plaintiff’s Motion for Attorneys’ Fees and Expenses (Doc. 365, “Mot.”) seeking over $2,500,000 in fees and expenses spanning the more than eight-year life of this case pursuant 42 U.S.C. § 1988. The Court will grant in part and deny in part Plaintiff’s motion and award $2,370,881.67 in attorneys’ fees and expenses and $8,426.25 in costs.

BACKGROUND

Plaintiff Prison Legal News filed this suit challenging Arizona Department of Corrections Order 914, under which the Defendants could prohibit inmates receiving mail containing “sexually explicit material.” (Doc. 1). The Court granted partial summary judgment for Plaintiff, (Doc. 260), and entered a permanent injunction requiring Defendants to amend their order and permit distribution of the censored issues, (Doc. 305). The Ninth Circuit concluded certain language in Defendants’ policy was unconstitutional and affirmed Plaintiff’s victory on one as-applied challenge and remanded another of Plaintiff’s as-applied challenges but otherwise reversed in part and remanded for further

1 proceedings. (Doc. 341-1). Defendants then revised Order 914 and distributed two 2 editions of Plaintiff's publication, (Doc. 343), and the Court entered judgment in favor of 3 Defendants after the Court concluded there was nothing left to adjudicate, (Docs. 362 and 4 363). But the Court noted entering judgment in favor of Defendants "should not be 5 construed as any ruling regarding Plaintiff's success for purposes of an application for 6 attorneys' fees." (Doc. 362).

7 Plaintiff then filed a Motion for Attorneys' Fees and Expenses (Doc. 365) requesting 8 $2,255,497.65 in fees for merits work and $250,037.55 for work on the fees petition itself.
9 Defendants argue this amount is excessive and requests the Court reduce the award by 70% 10 to account for Plaintiff's "limited success obtained" and further reduce the award by 11 $657,423.00 for specific challenged billing entries. (Doc. 376, "Resp." at 30).

12 FEES MOTION AND LODESTAR CALCULATION

13 Courts "employ the 'lodestar' method to determine a reasonable attorney's fees 14 award." Kelly v. Wengler, 822 F.3d 1085, 1099 (9th Cir. 2016) (citing Fischer v. SJB-P.D.
15 Inc., 214 F.3d 1115, 1119 (9th Cir. 2000)). Courts calculate "the lodestar figure by 16 multiplying the number of hours reasonably expended on a case by a reasonable hourly 17 rate." Id. The Court has "considerable discretion" in determining the reasonableness of 18 attorney's fees. Webb v. Ada County Idaho, 195 F.3d 524, 527 (9th Cir. 1999). After 19 calculating the lodestar amount, a Court may reduce or multiply the award based on a 20 variety of factors. Those factors include: (1) the time and labor required, (2) the novelty 21 and difficulty of the legal questions involved, (3) the skill required to perform the legal 22 service properly, (4) other employment precluded due to acceptance of the case, (5) the 23 customary fee, (6) whether the fee is fixed or contingent, (7) time limitations imposed by 24 the client or the circumstances, (8) the amount involved and the results obtained, (9) the 25 experience, reputation, and ability of the attorneys, (10) the 'undesirability' of the case, 26 (11) the nature and length of the professional relationship with the client, and (12) awards 27 in similar cases. Kerr v. Screen Extras Guild, Inc., 526 F.2d 67, 70 (9th Cir. 1975) ("Kerr 28

1 factors”).¹ Some of these factors are normally subsumed in the lodestar calculation such 2 that they need not be considered again after the lodestar is determined. See Gonzalez v.
3 City of Maywood, 729 F.3d 1196, 1209 (9th Cir. 2013) (identifying factors often considered 4 when calculating lodestar).

5 A. Hourly Rates

6 The first question is whether Plaintiff’s asserted rate is reasonable. “A reasonable 7 hourly rate is ordinarily the prevailing market rate in the relevant community.” Sw. Fair 8 Hous. Council v. WG Scottsdale LLC, No. 19-00180, 2022 WL 16715613 at *3 (D. Ariz.
9 Nov. 4, 2022) (citing Kelly, 822 F.3d at 1099). And “the burden is on the fee applicant to 10 produce satisfactory evidence—in addition to the attorney’s own affidavits—that the 11 requested rates are in line with those prevailing in the community for similar services by 12 lawyers of reasonably comparable skill, experience, and reputation.” Blum v. Stenson, 465 13 U.S. 886, 895 n.11 (1984).

14 Plaintiff correctly asserts courts may apply current market rates in calculating the 15 lodestar to account for the delay in payment over the eight-year lifespan of this case. Mot.
16 at 8; see also Missouri v. Jenkins, 491 U.S. 274, 284 (1989) (“[A]n appropriate adjustment 17 for delay in payment—whether by the application of current rather than historic hourly 18 rates or otherwise—is within the contemplation of the statute.”). Defendants argue 19 Plaintiff cannot claim its historical rates would be unreasonable because they “far exceed[] 20 Phoenix market rates.” Resp. at 22. But whether Plaintiff’s claimed rates exceed Phoenix 21 market rates is inapplicable to determining an adjustment to historical rates to account for 22 delay. The Court finds an adjustment to 2023 market rates appropriate.

23 Plaintiff also asserts San Francisco rates should apply instead of Arizona rates 24 because Plaintiff “was unable to secure a law firm in Arizona willing or able to take on the 25 lead counsel role for this case,” as the Ninth Circuit Commissioner found for Plaintiff’s 26 appellate fee award. Mot. at 8–9 (citing Case. No. 19-17449, Doc. 78 at 3–4). Plaintiff

27 _____
28 ¹ Local Rule 54.2 also lists factors the Court must address when determining the reasonableness of the requested award. These factors are largely duplicative of the Kerr factors.

1 argues the Ninth Circuit’s finding constitutes the “law of the case” and is binding on this 2 Court in this subsequent proceeding. Id. at 8. Defendants argue Ballard Spahr and Perkins
3 Coie are “well equipped to litigate high-stakes civil rights cases.” Resp. at 22. And though 4 Defendants acknowledge those firms could not “sign on as lead counsel for this particular 5 case,” they argue “this does not warrant the State and its taxpayers being required to pay”
6 San Francisco rates. Id. Defendants further argue the Ninth Circuit’s findings in its fee 7 award are limited to the appellate context and do not apply here. Id. at 21–22. While the 8 Ninth’s Circuit’s finding San Francisco rates apply might not be the “law of the case” as 9 Plaintiff suggests, it is certainly persuasive where Plaintiff asserts and Defendants do not 10 meaningfully challenge that no Arizona firms were able to serve as lead counsel in this 11 case. The Court finds San Francisco rates are appropriate in calculating the lodestar.

12 In further support of its argument its claimed fees are reasonable, Plaintiff states the 13 lawyers at Rosen Bien Galvan & Grunfeld LLP (“RBGG”) have a longstanding 14 relationship with Plaintiff and have “unquestionable expertise in prison and First 15 Amendment law and cases, including cases specifically addressing First Amendment 16 access to prisons.” Defendants do not respond specifically to these assertions.

17 The Court finds that RBGG’s 2023 San Francisco rates apply, and the experience, 18 reputation, and ability of Plaintiff’s counsel generally support the hourly fees requested in 19 this case. Accordingly, the Court finds Plaintiff’s rate schedule above is reasonable.

20 B. Hours Expended

21 Under the lodestar method, the prevailing party may recover fees for “every item of 22 service which, at the time rendered, would have been undertaken by a reasonable and 23 prudent lawyer to advance or protect his client’s interest.” Gary v. Carbon Cycle Ariz.
24 LLC, 398 F. Supp. 3d 468, 486 (D. Ariz. 2019) (quoting Twin City Sportservice v. Charles 25 O. Finley & Co., 676 F.2d 1291, 1313 (9th Cir. 1982)). Courts may “exclude from this 26 initial fee calculation hours that were not reasonably expended.” Hensley v. Eckerhart, 27 461 U.S. 424, 433-34 (1983) (internal quotations removed); see also McKown v. City of 28 Fontana, 565 F.3d 1097, 1102 (9th Cir. 2009) (“In determining the appropriate number of

1 hours to be included in a lodestar calculation, the district court should exclude hours that 2 are excessive, redundant, or otherwise unnecessary.”).

3 i. Limited Success

4 Defendants argue Plaintiff should not recover its requested fees because it achieved 5 only limited success. Resp. at 9–12. The “extent of a plaintiff’s success is a crucial factor 6 in determining the proper amount of an award of attorney’s fees.” Hensley v. Eckerhart, 7 461 U.S. 424, 440 (1983). Where a plaintiff achieves only limited success, courts should 8 award only fees reasonably related to the results achieved. See id. at 435 (“The 9 congressional intent to limit awards to prevailing parties requires that these unrelated 10 claims be treated as if they had been raised in separate lawsuits, and therefore no fee may 11 be awarded for services on the unsuccessful claim.”). In some cases, distinguishing 12 between work expended on different claims is relatively straightforward. This is not one 13 of those cases. This case involves “a common core of facts” and it is “difficult to divide 14 the hours expended on a claim-by-claim basis.” Id. In such cases, “the district court should 15 focus on the significance of the overall relief obtained by the plaintiff in relation to the 16 hours reasonably expended on the litigation.” Id.

17 Defendants argue Plaintiff’s limited success in this case justifies a 70% across-the-18 board reduction to Plaintiff’s requested fees. Resp. at 12. Defendants’ Response asserts 19 “Plaintiff ultimately lost the main impetus behind the lawsuit: its claim that Defendants’ 20 publication policy was unconstitutional on its face and must be revamped.” Id. But this 21 ignores that Plaintiff achieved many of its litigation goals by prevailing on one of its two 22 facial First Amendment challenges and two of its four as-applied challenges, that 23 Defendants permanently revised its policy, that Defendants uncensored five issues of its 24 magazine, and paid Plaintiff $10,000 in damages. (See Doc. 377, “Reply” at 4–5).

25 Plaintiff applied a 10% across-the-board reduction to its requested fees to account 26 for any limitations on its success on top of significant discrete reductions to “remove time 27 clearly identifiable as devoted to issues on which it did not prevail.” Reply at 5; see also 28 Mot. at 2, 12. The Court finds these reductions, taken together, adequately account for 1 Plaintiff's limited—but still substantial—success in this matter.

2 ii. Vague and Ambiguous Billing Entries

3 Defendants ask the Court to reduce Plaintiff's fee request by at least $54,399.00 to 4 account for vague and ambiguous billing entries. Resp. at 13. A party requesting fees must 5 “maintain billing time records in a manner that will enable a reviewing court to identify 6 distinct claims.” Hensley, 461 U.S. at 437. Local Rule 54(e)(2) permits the Court to reduce 7 fee awards where time entries “fail to adequately describe the service rendered.” The Local 8 Rules require parties seeking fees to “adequately describe the service rendered” by, for 9 example, identifying participants and the reason for telephone conferences, identify 10 specific legal issues and (if applicable) the relevant pleading or document for legal 11 research, and identifying the activities associated with preparation of pleading and other 12 papers. Id.

13 Defendants argue a sampling of Plaintiff's billing entries “lack sufficient specificity 14 to determine what the attorney was actually working on,” and are “untethered to any 15 described factual issues or even the First or Fourteenth Amendment claims alleged in the 16 case.” Resp. at 13. Plaintiff's Reply asserts its billing records “are not vague, especially 17 when viewed in context with surrounding entries, and include the level of detail that 18 [Plaintiff's] attorneys provide to clients when engaging in fee for services work.” Reply 19 at 9.

20 The Court has reviewed the billing entries Defendants identified as vague, see Resp.
21 Ex. 6, and Plaintiff's annotated version of Defendants' table, see Reply Ex. C. These 22 billing entries provide the necessary information to determine the time worked is 23 reasonable and appropriate. While many of these entries include general statements about 24 the content of the work, the context of the entries provides sufficient detail. These are far 25 from the bare entries the Local Rules contemplate as insufficient. Entries related to 26 correspondence identify all participants and the subject matter of the correspondence and 27 entries related to legal research identify the specific legal issues researched. See generally
28 Resp. Ex. 6, Reply Ex. C. The Court finds reducing the fees award due to the billing

1 entries' purported vagueness or ambiguity is not appropriate.

2 iii. Block Billing

3 Defendants assert they identified $167,090.00 in billing entries constituting 4 inappropriate block billing and ask the Court to reduce this amount by at least 50% to 70%.
5 Resp. at 14–15. Courts reducing a fees award based on improper block billing may not 6 apply an across-the-board reduction to the total fee request but may apply a percentage 7 reduction to block-billed hours. See Welch v. Metro. Life Ins. Co., 480 F.3d 942, 948 (9th 8 Cir. 2007).

9 Plaintiff argues block billing “refers to a single time entry for an entire days’ tasks.”
10 Reply at 8. While this is the definition the Ninth Circuit put forth in Welch, see 480 F.3d 11 at 945 n.2, this is a particularly narrow view of block billing. Courts within the Ninth 12 Circuit have applied a broader definition of block billing encompassing entries that contain 13 multiple discrete and unrelated tasks preventing courts from distinguishing between the 14 time claimed for the various tasks. See, e.g., Moshir v. Automobili Lamborghini Am. LLC, 15 927 F. Supp. 2d 789, 799 (D. Ariz. 2013); Deocampo v. Potts, 2014 WL 788429, at *5 16 (E.D. Cal. Feb. 25, 2014).

17 The Court has reviewed the table of purported block-billed entries Defendants 18 compiled and Plaintiff’s annotated version of this table providing context for the 19 challenged entries. See Resp. Ex. 4, Reply Ex. B. Many of the challenged entries involve 20 entries of less than one hour and in some cases as low as 0.3 hours. See id. Others involve 21 plainly related tasks with reasonable time spent—e.g. “Revise & file stipulated EOT and 22 PO; email opposing regarding same” for 1.1 hours; “Emails with AS re prep for call with 23 HRDC re various strategy issues, conduct call, and follow up conf with AS re next steps” 24 for 1.0 hour. Reply Ex. B at 6. While they include discrete tasks, these entries are not the 25 sort of block billing courts are concerned about.

26 But there are some entries in the sampling Defendants compiled that constitute 27 improper block billing. For example, one entry for 6.0 hours includes “[d]oc review, and 28 M&C, emails with Gottfried and LAE.” Reply Ex. B at 5. While, as Plaintiff’s suggest,

1 these tasks may well have been related to the same topic, they are sufficiently distinct that 2 the Court cannot properly assess the reasonableness of the time spent on each task, 3 particularly when the total time spent comprises six hours. If, say, this attorney spent five 4 hours of this billing entry on emails, while spending only one hour between document 5 review and a meet and confer, the time spent on emails would be unreasonable. But the 6 combined nature of this billing entry does not allow the Court to make such a 7 determination. Such entries are not common in Defendants' compilation, but they are 8 present and constitute improper block billing.

9 Defendants ask the Court to apply a reduction of at least 50% and up to 70% to 10 Plaintiff's block-billed time entries. Resp. at 15. The Court is unsure how Defendants 11 arrived at these figures. Defendants fail to cite any cases involving such a staggering 12 reduction figure, nor do the facts support it. Instead, the cases they cite involved reductions 13 of no more than 30% to block-billed hours. See Lahiri v. Universal Music & Video 14 Distribution Corp., 606 F.3d 1216, 1222–23 (9th Cir. 2010) (upholding 30% reduction); 15 Deocampo v. Potts, 2014 WL 788429 at *5 (applying 20% reduction).

16 Because most of the entries in Defendants' compilation of purported block billing 17 are permissible, the Court will apply a 10% reduction to the $167,090.00 of billing entries 18 Defendants challenge to account for impermissible block billing, yielding a reduction of 19 $16,709.00.

20 iv. Excessive or Duplicative Billing

21 Defendants assert Plaintiff's fee requests for preparing the complaint, responding to 22 Defendants' motion for summary judgment, and preparing the reply for Plaintiff's motion 23 for summary judgment are excessive and the Court should deny them. District courts may 24 reduce requested hours that are excessive or duplicative. See Vargas v. Howell, 949 F.3d 25 1188, 1199 (9th Cir. 2020).

26 Defendants claim Plaintiff's billing entries of $28,322.50 for preparing the 27 complaint and $115,630.00 to draft Plaintiff's motion for summary judgment are excessive.
28 Resp. at 16. Defendants also assert RBGG's billing $95,975.00 to respond to Defendants'

1 motion for summary judgment and $42,410.00 for Plaintiff’s reply regarding its own 2 motion for summary judgment should preclude an award for “fees billed by HRDC and 3 Ballard Spahr for arguable duplicative work.” Id.

4 Plaintiff argues the “complaint was carefully tailored to the facts” and involved 5 consultations with an expert on correctional mail policies and practices, and that the 6 summary judgment motion “involved complicated issues of law and fact, extensive 7 oversize briefs, a record spanning thousands of pages, and later, multiple related motions 8 to strike and evidentiary objections.” Reply at 8. Plaintiff also notes Defendants did not 9 propose a reduction amount. Id. While this is true, it does not preclude the Court from 10 reducing these fees based on independent evaluation.

11 The Court finds Plaintiff’s billing related to preparing the complaint and Plaintiff’s 12 motion for summary judgment to be excessive. While the Court acknowledges that 13 drafting these documents likely involved significant factual and legal work, this work 14 builds on itself. Taken together, $143,952.50 for preparing these filings is too high. The 15 Court will apply a 20% reduction to these entries, yielding a reduction of $28,790.50.

16 While the Court may have found that billing entries by HRDC and Ballard Spahr 17 related to the response and reply to the cross-motions for summary judgment would be 18 excessive and duplicative given the fees RBGG billed for this work, Defendants do not 19 identify the amount of those fees charged by the other firms nor argue that RBGG’s billing 20 was excessive in itself. Thus, the Court will not reduce the fees requested for this work.

21 v. Clerical Tasks

22 Defendants assert they have identified $29,776.00 in billing entries for clerical 23 tasks. Resp. at 17–21. In assessing a fees motion, courts may reduce the award for time 24 spent performing clerical work. See, e.g., Missouri v. Jenkins, 491 U.S. 274, 288 n.10 25 (1989); Nadarajah v. Holder, 569 F.3d 906, 921 (9th Cir. 2009); Davis v. City & Cnty. of 26 San Francisco, 976 F.2d 1536, 1543 (9th Cir. 1992), vacated in part on other grounds on 27 denial of reh’g, 984 F.2d 345 (9th Cir. 1993).

28 Plaintiff’s Reply argues many of the challenge time entries “describe substantive

1 legal work done by attorneys, including finalizing pleadings and other litigation
2 documents,” substantive conferences and emails, and legal research. Reply at 6.

3 The Court has reviewed Defendants’ table of time entries comprising purportedly
4 clerical work. See Resp. Ex. 2. Most of these entries reflect purely clerical tasks, e.g. 1.5 5 hours for “[e]lectronically filing documents” and 0.3 hours to “[c]alendar deadline per 6 court order.” Id. at 6, 12. But, as Plaintiff suggests, some of these entries involve 7 substantive legal work, e.g. 1.6 hours to “[r]eview, finalize, and file joint motion for 8 extension of case management deadline and associated proposed orders.” Id. at 5.

9 While Defendants request the Court to eliminate entries for clerical work—a 10 position which has some support in the caselaw, see Topness v. Cascadia Behav.
11 Healthcare, No. 16-CV-2026, 2017 WL 8895626, at *6 (D. Or. Oct. 17, 2017)—this work 12 is not necessarily unrecoverable but may not be recoverable at the high billing rate of an 13 attorney or even a paralegal, see Missouri v. Jenkins, 491 U.S. at 288 n.10 (“Of course, 14 purely clerical or secretarial tasks should not be billed at a paralegal rate Such non-15 legal work may command a lesser rate. Its dollar value is not enhanced just because a 16 lawyer does it.”) (internal quotations omitted).

17 To properly account for clerical work, but acknowledging some of the identified 18 entries include substantive legal work or clerical work recoverable at a lower rate, the Court 19 will reduce the purportedly clerical hours identified by Defendants by 70%, yielding a 20 reduction of $20,843.20.

21 vi. Work Unrelated to the Merits

22 Defendants assert they have identified $74,052.00 in billing entries reflecting work 23 appearing unrelated to this litigation and $49,760.50 in entries reflecting internal 24 communications that “cannot be connected to any claims for which Plaintiff ultimately 25 received relief and furthermore constitute unreasonably duplicative interoffice 26 communication.” Resp. at 20–21. A party seeking fees must make “a good faith effort to 27 exclude from a fee request hours that are excessive, redundant or otherwise unnecessary.” 28 Hensley, 461 U.S. at 434.

1 Defendants take issue with $74,052.00 in billing entries including (i) “unspecified 2 communications with the press or about communicating with the press;” (ii) research on 3 “potential copyright claims and conferencing with the ACLU regarding PLN materials;” 4 (iii) internal communications about “unspecified inmate communications or inmate 5 subscriber communications;” (iv) communications about “related cases,” including 6 Parsons v. Ryan, Amtel, and Romero; and (v) “activities related to building a database of 7 inmate subscribers to assess subscriber numbers,” providing “litigation updates” to 8 inmates, sending out “unspecified mass mailing to inmate subscribers,” apparently 9 recruiting “inmate subscribership,” and performing “inmate custody checks.” Resp. at 20 10 (internal quotations omitted).

11 Defendants also challenge regular billing “for what appear to be internal emails or 12 conferences regarding local counsel, or unspecified strategy, or next steps, status, logistics, 13 case management, upcoming projects, staffing, or division of labor,” identifying entries 14 totaling $49,760.50. Resp at 20–21 (internal quotations omitted).

15 Plaintiff correctly asserts the purportedly “unrelated cases” are seminal related 16 cases, including one later cited in the Ninth Circuit’s decision in this matter. Reply at 7.
17 Plaintiff then argues time spent communicating with incarcerated subscribers about 18 censorship was related to the merits—HRDC relied on these communications to learn if 19 Defendants were delivering publications and ultimately amended its complaint to add new 20 claims based on information obtained through this outreach. Id. Seemingly responding to 21 Defendants’ claims regarding entries related to a potential copyright claim, Plaintiff argues 22 Defendants acknowledge “development of theories of the case and drafting initial 23 pleadings is generally compensable.” Finally, Plaintiff argues press coverage can be 24 integral to identify witnesses and evidence and to advance investigations. Id. (citing Davis, 25 976 F.2d at 1545 (“Where the giving of press conferences and performance of other 26 lobbying and public relations work is directly and intimately related to the successful 27 representation of a client, private attorneys do such work and bill their clients. Prevailing 28 civil rights plaintiffs may do the same.”)).

1 While the Court agrees that much of the research on related cases is sufficiently 2 related to the merits of the case, Defendants otherwise present valid arguments for 3 reductions to the fees request. While communications with inmates may have implications 4 for the merits of the case, the legal relevance would be with the database or information 5 gathered from the communications—not the time spent on the communications 6 themselves. And while Plaintiff is correct that development of case theories is 7 compensable, development of a copyright theory that Plaintiff did not bring, let alone
8 successfully pursue, is not compensable. Further, Plaintiff has not articulated how press 9 and media relations are so “directly and intimately related to the successful representation” 10 in this case to justify recovering fees for such time. Finally, most of the $49,760.50 in 11 billing entries for internal communications that Defendants challenge largely appear not 12 sufficiently related to the merits and instead reflect time spent on administrative tasks.

13 Thus, the Court will apply a 70% reduction to both the entries totaling $74,052.00 14 and the entries totaling $49,760.50 to account for work not reasonably connected to the 15 merits of a claim for which Plaintiff ultimately received relief, yielding a reduction of 16 $86,668.75.

17 vii. Fees Application

18 Finally, Defendants further argue Plaintiff’s requested $301,017.15 in fees for 19 preparing the present fees application are unreasonable and excessive. Resp. at 28–30.
20 Defendants ask the Court to reduce these fees by 70%. Id. at 29–30. It is “well established 21 that time spent in preparing fee applications under 42 U.S.C. § 1988 is compensable.” 22 Gonzalez v. City of Maywood, 729 F.3d 1196, 1210 (9th Cir. 2013) (quoting Anderson v.
23 Director, OWCP, 91 F.3d 1322, 1325 (9th Cir.1996)).

24 Defendants’ argument focuses on comparing Plaintiff’s request to the fees Plaintiff 25 sought for the entirety of the appellate process. Resp. at 29. Plaintiff sought $278,487.50
26 for its appellate work (including merits and fee application work) and the Ninth Circuit 27 ultimately awarded $208,865.62. Id. But this comparison is inapposite. As Plaintiff points 28 out, the appellate process spanned two years and involved only one substantive brief.

1 Reply at 10–11. The present fees application encompasses work spanning more than eight 2 years of extensive litigation and includes the work of three law firms. Id.

3 Defendants’ remaining argument for reducing the fees award for time spent 4 preparing the fees application is an undeveloped and unsupported assertion that “Plaintiff’s 5 billing for preparation of the fees application suffers from the same fatal flaws as does the 6 request for fees for merits work”—the entries are “similarly vague and ambiguous, 7 excessive, duplicative, and contain billing for clerical work,” and “should be reduced in 8 proportion to the limited success achieved in this case.” Resp. at 29–30. Plaintiff responds 9 detailing the work that went into preparing the fees application and the $38,501.05 in 10 discrete reductions, HRDC and Ballard Spahr not claiming fees for work after May 26, 11 2023, a 10% across-the-board reduction of fees work time, a 20% reduction of fees from 12 June 24 to August 29, 2023, and a waiver of fees related to work to complete and file the 13 Reply estimated to be at least $20,000. Reply at 11.

14 The Court finds these reductions sufficient. As Defendants will know from 15 reviewing the fees application and its supporting documents, preparing these papers 16 required painstaking review of nearly a decade of billing entries across multiple firms. The 17 Court will not reduce the requested fees award for preparing the fees application.

18 viii. Expenses and Costs

19 Defendants take issue with Plaintiff’s requested reimbursement for $18,378.80 in 20 costs. Resp. at 24. Defendants argue (i) the Court should deny these costs because they 21 do not comply with Local Rule 54.2(e)(3); (ii) costs of three deposition transcripts are 22 duplicative; (iii) costs for legal research are not recoverable or were not reasonably 23 incurred; and (iv) costs for postage, long-distance telephone calls, courier fees, 24 photocopying, and travel were not established as reasonably incurred. Id. at 24–28.

25 Local Rule 54.2(e)(3) provides a party seeking costs must “identify each related 26 non-taxable expense with particularity,” attaching “copies of applicable invoices, receipts 27 and/or disbursement instruments.” Defendants argue Plaintiff failed to comply with this 28 rule by not identifying each non-taxable cost with particularity and did not “itemize or 1 parse any of these costs into categories and identify the total cost incurred per category.” 2 Resp. at 24. Plaintiff responds stating their “expense records are organized and provide 3 the necessary detail” in that they “submitted an itemized statement of all expenses and 4 attached supporting documentation (i.e., receipts) based on the expense category. Reply at 5 10. The Court agrees. Plaintiff attached an itemized statement of all expenses and included 6 applicable supporting documentation. See Mot. Ex. F at 247–266. Plaintiff’s expense 7 request complies with Local Rule 54.2(e)(3), and it is unclear what more Defendants could 8 ask Plaintiff to provide to document these expenses.

9 Defendants claim Plaintiff includes the costs for three deposition transcripts in both 10 its bill of costs (Doc. 366) and its expense request here and are thus duplicative. Resp. at 11 25. Plaintiff explains its itemized expense report specifically omits court reporter charges 12 claimed on the bill of costs. Reply at 10 (citing Doc. 365-1 at 265). Plaintiff is correct.
13 The Court will not reduce Plaintiff’s requested expenses because Plaintiff’s request does 14 not seek duplicative recovery of these expenses.

15 Defendants argue legal research expenses are not recoverable, and even if the Court 16 decides they are recoverable, the Court should deny them because Plaintiff’s invoices are 17 insufficient to establish the expenses were reasonable and connected to this litigation.
18 Resp. at 25–26. Defendants cite to decisions from the Seventh Circuit and district courts 19 in California and Oregon to assert legal research expenses are not recoverable. Id. But 20 this ignores cases from the District of Arizona holding legal research expenses are 21 recoverable costs. See, e.g., Agster v. Maricopa Cnty., 486 F. Supp. 2d 1005, 1018 (D.
22 Ariz. 2007) (awarding Plaintiff electronic legal research expenses under § 1988). The 23 Court finds legal research expenses are recoverable. Further, Plaintiff has complied with 24 Local Rule 54.2(e)(3) in presenting adequately detailed accounts of its legal research 25 expenses. Legal research expense reports need not identify the legal issues researched.
26 Agster, 486 F. Supp. 2d at 1018. The Court will not reduce or deny Plaintiff’s legal 27 research expense request.

28 Finally, Defendants argue the Court should deny costs for postage, long-distance

1 telephone calls, courier fees, photocopying, and travel because Plaintiff’s submitted 2 invoices do not establish the costs were reasonable. Resp. at 26–28. Plaintiff asserts its 3 itemized statement of expenses and attached supporting documentation satisfy its burden
4 on this issue. See Reply at 10. As the Court found above with respect to Plaintiff’s fee 5 request generally, its requests for these expenses are sufficient under Local Rule 54(e)(3).
6 There is one slight exception—Defendants identify an entry for $20.88 for the postage 7 costs of sending “[d]iabetes books” to prisoners. Resp. at 27, (Doc. 365-4 at 187). It is 8 unclear how this charge relates to this litigation and the Court will deny it, yielding a total 9 reduction of Plaintiff’s non-taxable expenses of $20.88.

10 ix. Lodestar Calculation

11 Accordingly, the Court will reduce the lodestar amount by $153,032.33 to account 12 for improper block billing, excessive hours, clerical tasks, work not reasonably connected 13 to the merits of a claim for which Plaintiff received relief, and unrecoverable expenses as 14 outlined above. The Court calculates the lodestar amount to be $2,370,881.67.

15 C. Lodestar Adjustment

16 Despite a “strong assumption that the ‘lodestar’ method represents a reasonable 17 fee,” Corrales-Gonzalez v. Speed Auto Wholesalers LLC, 2023 WL 3981139, at *7 (D.
18 Ariz. June 13, 2023), the Court “has discretion to adjust the lodestar upward or downward” 19 based on the Kerr factors not subsumed in the lodestar calculation, Stetson v. Grissom, 821
20 F.3d 1157, 1166-67 (9th Cir. 2016). Courts must assess these factors and must articulate 21 “with sufficient clarity the manner in which it makes its determination.” Carter v. Caleb
22 Brett LLC, 757 F.3d 866, 869 (9th Cir. 2014). The above lodestar analysis subsumes 23 several of these factors, including the time and labor required by counsel, skill required to 24 perform the legal service properly, customary fees in similar matters, and the experience 25 and reputation of counsel. Defendants do not challenge any of these lodestar factors aside 26 from their general arguments against the fee award detailed above. The Court considers 27 the remaining factors here and finds none justify adjusting the lodestar figure.

28

1 i. Time Limitations

2 Given the time required to litigate this matter, Plaintiff asserts that on occasion, its 3 lawyers needed to delay other matters. Mot. at 15. This factor weighs in favor of awarding 4 the full lodestar amount.

5 ii. Results Obtained

6 The Supreme Court has instructed the “most critical factor in determining the 7 reasonableness of a fee award ‘is the degree of success obtained.’” Farrar v. Hobby, 506
8 U.S. 103, 114 (1992) (quoting Hensley, 461 U.S. at 436). See also Rudebusch v. Arizona, 9 No. 95-CV-1313, 2007 WL 2774482, at *5 (D. Ariz. Sept. 21, 2007) (quoting Hensley, 461 10 U.S. at 436). If a “plaintiff has achieved only partial or limited success, the product of 11 hours reasonably expended on the litigation as a whole times a reasonable hourly rate may 12 be an excessive amount.” Farrar, 506 U.S. at 114 (quoting Hensley, 461 U.S. at 436).

13 The Court analyzed the results obtained in addressing Defendants’ assertion that the 14 Court should reduce Plaintiff’s requested fees to account for Plaintiff’s limited success.
15 Having found the fees request appropriately accounted for Plaintiff’s limited success, the 16 Court weighs this factor in favor of awarding the full amount of the lodestar as calculated.

17 iii. Novelty and Difficulty of the Issues

18 Plaintiff asserts the “legal and factual issues in this case were complex.” Mot. at 14.
19 The Court agrees and finds this factor weighs in favor of awarding the full lodestar amount.

20 iv. Undesirability of the Case

21 Plaintiff argues litigation on behalf of non-profit publishers focused on the rights of 22 incarcerated people is “often unattractive to the bar,” and that it is unlikely another firm 23 could have served as lead counsel in this case. Mot. at 16. Further, Plaintiff argues the 24 contingent fee arrangement involved a considerable assumption of financial burden on the 25 firms’ behalf, making it even more undesirable. The Court finds this factor weighs in favor 26 of awarding the full lodestar amount.

27 v. Nature and Length of Client Relationship

28 Plaintiff asserts RBGG and its lawyers have extensive experience representing

1 Plaintiff since 2005. Mot. at 16. The Court finds this factor weighs in favor of awarding 2 the full lodestar amount.

3 vi. Awards in Similar Cases

4 Plaintiff asserts its requested fees award is “consistent with other fee awards in 5 similar litigation,” including other cases where courts outside San Francisco and the 6 Northern District of California awarded RBGG its San Francisco rates. Mot. at 16–17.
7 The Court finds this factor weighs in favor of awarding the full lodestar amount.

8 vii. Lodestar Reduction

9 Having considered all the Kerr factors, the Court determines no reduction to the 10 lodestar amount is appropriate in this case.

11 D. Conclusion

12 Plaintiff requested $2,523,914.00 in fees and expenses. The Court reduced this 13 amount by $153,032.33 to account for improper block billing, excessive hours, clerical 14 tasks, work not reasonably connected to the merits of a claim for which Plaintiff received 15 relief, and unrecoverable expenses. The Court then determined the Kerr factors do not 16 justify a reduction of this amount. Thus, the Court will award Plaintiff $2,370,881.67 in 17 fees and expenses.

18 BILL OF COSTS

19 Plaintiff’s bill of costs (Doc. 366) claims $8,426.25 in taxable costs. Defendants 20 filed a response (Doc. 372) arguing the Court should reduce Plaintiff’s taxable costs by 21 50% to 70% to account for Plaintiff’s limited success in litigating the case. As explained 22 in detail above, the Court finds Plaintiff’s requested fees and costs adequately account for 23 its limited but substantial success in this matter. The Court finds no reduction to the bill 24 of costs is appropriate.

25 Accordingly,

26 IT IS ORDERED Plaintiff’s Motion for an Award of Attorneys’ Fees is 27 GRANTED IN PART and DENIED IN PART. Defendants shall pay Plaintiff 28 $2,370,881.67 in attorneys’ fees and expenses.
