6 IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
7 FOR THE DISTRICT OF ARIZONA

9 Navajo Nation,

10 Plaintiff,

11 v.

12 United States Department of the Interior; et 13 al.,

14 Defendants.

No. CV-03-00507-PCT-GMS

ORDER

15 Pending before the Court are multiple related motions. They include: (1) 16 Defendants United States Department of the Interior (the “Department”), Secretary of the 17 Interior Sally Jewell, Bureau of Reclamation, and Bureau of Indian Affairs’ (the “Federal 18 Defendants”) Motion to Dismiss (Doc. 240), (2) Defendant-Intervenor State of Arizona’s 19 Motion to Dismiss (Doc. 242), (3) Defendant-Intervenors Metropolitan Water District of 20 Southern California and Coachella Valley Water District’s (the “Metropolitan 21 Defendants”) Motion to Dismiss (Doc. 243), (4) Defendant-Intervenors Salt River Project
22 Agricultural Improvement and Power District and the Salt River Water Users’
23 Association’s (the “SRP Defendants”) Motion to Dismiss and to Join Required Parties
24 (Doc. 249), (5) Defendant-Intervenor Central Arizona Water Conservation District’s
25 Motion to Dismiss (Doc. 250), (6) Defendant-Intervenor Imperial Irrigation District’s
26 Motion to Dismiss (Doc. 251), (7) the Hopi Tribe’s Motion to Intervene (Doc. 252), (8)
27 the Hopi Tribe’s Motion to Dismiss (Doc. 253), and (9) Defendant-Intervenors Colorado
28 River Commission of Nevada, State of Nevada, and Southern Nevada Water Authority’s

1 (the “Nevada Defendants”) Motion to Dismiss (Doc. 254).

2 For the following reasons, the Federal Defendants’ Motion to Dismiss is granted
3 and the remaining Motions are denied as moot.

4 BACKGROUND

5 I. The Navajo Nation

6 Plaintiff Navajo Nation (the “Nation”) is a federally recognized Indian Tribe.
7 (Doc. 281, “Second Amended Complaint” (“SAC”) ¶ 10.) The Navajo Nation’s 8 Reservation (the “Reservation”) is the largest Indian reservation in the United States, 9 with land spanning over 13 million acres located in Arizona, New Mexico, and Utah. (Id.
10 ¶ 11.) The Reservation was originally established by the Treaty of June 1, 1868, 15 Stat.
11 667, and was expanded by a number of Executive Orders and Acts of Congress between 12 1868 and 1964. (Id. ¶ 12.) The Reservation is adjacent to the Colorado River and is 13 located in both the Upper and Lower Basins of the Colorado River Basin. (Id.) This case 14 concerns only the lands located in the Lower Basin in Arizona (the “Lower Basin”). (Id. ¶ 15 5.)

16 The SAC alleges that by establishing the Reservation, “the United States impliedly 17 reserved for the benefit of the Navajo Nation a sufficient amount of water to carry out the 18 purposes for which the Reservation was created, specifically to make the Reservation a 19 livable homeland for the Nation’s present and future generations.” (Id. ¶ 14.) It further 20 alleges that an effect of establishing the Reservation “was to create a trust relationship 21 between the Navajo Nation and the United States,” (Id. ¶ 15), that “requires [the United 22 States] to protect the Navajo Nation’s land and the water necessary to make those lands 23 livable as a permanent homeland for the Navajo Nation” (Id. ¶ 16).

24 The Nation alleges that the United States has failed in its trust obligation to assert 25 and protect the Nation’s water rights by “expressly” leaving “open the question of the 26 Navajo Nation’s beneficial rights to the waters of the Colorado River.” (Id. ¶¶ 17–18, 20– 27 22.) The Nation claims that it has asked the Department to address the extent of the 28 Nation’s rights to use, and its interest in, water from the Lower Basin, but that the 1 Department has not done so. (Id. ¶ 25.) Further, the Federal Defendants “have never 2 sought, through judicial or administrative means, to quantify or estimate the Navajo

3 Nation’s rights to water from the mainstream of the Colorado River in the Lower Basin.”
4 (Id. ¶ 26.)

5 II. Winters and Reservation Water Rights

6 The Nation asserts that it has water rights in the Lower Basin of the Colorado 7 River pursuant to Winters v. United States, 207 U.S. 564 (1908), and its progeny.
8 Beginning with its decision in Winters, the Supreme Court “has long held that when the 9 Federal Government withdraws its land from the public domain and reserves it for a 10 federal purpose, the Government, by implication, reserves appurtenant water then 11 unappropriated to the extent needed to accomplish the purpose of the reservation.” 12 Cappaert v. United States, 426 U.S. 128, 138 (1976). “In so doing the United States 13 acquires a reserved right in unappropriated water which vests on the date of the 14 reservation and is superior to the rights of future appropriators.” Cappaert, 426 U.S. at 15 138. Further, this right “is not dependent on beneficial use” and “retains priority despite 16 non-use.” In re Gen. Adjudication of All Rights to Use Water in Gila River Sys. & Source, 17 201 Ariz. 307, 310–11, 35 P.3d 68, 71–72 (2001). This doctrine applies to Indian 18 reservations. Cappaert, 426 U.S. at 138; Colo. River Water Cons. Dist. v. United States, 19 424 U.S. 800, 805 (1976); United States v. Dist. Court for Eagle Cnty., 401 U.S. 520, 20 522–23 (1971); Arizona v. California, 373 U.S. 546, 601 (1963) [Arizona I]; FPC v.
21 Oregon, 349 U.S. 435 (1955); United States v. Powers, 305 U.S. 527 (1939); Winters 207
22 U.S. 564.

23 In 1952, the State of Arizona brought suit against the State of California and seven 24 of its public agencies, alleging that it was entitled to a certain quantity of water from the 25 lower Colorado River under the Colorado River Compact of 1922 and the Boulder 26 Canyon Project Act. (Doc. 240-1 at 9.) Arizona sought a decree confirming its title to that 27 quantity of water. (Id.) The United States sought and was granted leave to intervene in 28 that action. Arizona v. California, 347 U.S. 985 (1954). In the action, in its role as trustee,

1 the United States claimed federally reserved Winters water rights in the Lower Colorado
2 River on behalf of a number of entities, including the Nation. (Doc. 240-1 at 9.)
3 However, the United States filed its Winters rights claim on behalf of the Nation only 4 with respect to water from the Little Colorado River, a tributary of the Colorado. (Id.)
5 The Supreme Court referred all of the matters in the Arizona v. California litigation to a 6 Special Master for evidentiary proceedings. (Id.) The Special Master recommended that 7 conflicting claims to the Little Colorado River not be adjudicated in Arizona v.
8 California, and the Supreme Court, in its 1963 Opinion, affirmed that recommendation.
9 373 U.S. 546, 595 (1963) (the “1963 Opinion”). Thus, while the United States did file 10 and present a claim for rights to the Little Colorado River on behalf of the Nation, that 11 claim was not ultimately adjudicated in that action. (Doc. 240-1 at 10.) Therefore no 12 determination was made as to whether the Nation was entitled to any particular quantity 13 of water coming from the Little Colorado River.

14 III. The Challenged Administrative Actions

15 Following this 1963 Opinion, the Court issued the 1964 Decree. 376 U.S. 340
16 (1964). Under Article II of the 1964 Decree and the Boulder Canyon Project Act, 43 17 U.S.C. §§ 617–617u, the Secretary is responsible for the allocation of the waters of the 18 mainstream of the Colorado River among California, Arizona, and Nevada (the “Lower 19 Basin States”), and for deciding which users in those Lower Basin States will be 20 delivered water under the Act. (SAC ¶ 33.) The Secretary has undertaken various actions 21 to do so which the Nation now challenges. These include:

- 22 • Record of Decision, Colorado Interim Surplus Criteria; Final Environmental 23 Impact Statement, reprinted at 66 Fed. Reg. 7772, 7773–82 (Jan 25, 2001)
24 (“Surplus Guidelines ROD”) for the Colorado River Interim Surplus Criteria
25 Final Environmental Impact Statement (Dec. 2000) (“Surplus Guidelines FEIS”), 26 pursuant to Article III(3)(b) of the Criteria for Coordinated Long-Range
27 Operation of the Colorado River Reservoirs Pursuant to the Colorado River Basin
28 Project Area Act of September 30, 1968 (P.L. 90-537) (June 8, 1970) (“LROC”).

1 The Surplus Guidelines ROD adopted guidelines for the Secretary to determine 2 when there is a surplus of water from the Colorado River for use within the Lower 3 Basin States. The LROC requires the Secretary to determine the extent to which 4 the requirements of mainstream water uses in those states can be met in any year.
5 The Surplus Guidelines FEIS considered five alternatives for interim surplus 6 guidelines. (SAC ¶¶ 36–40.)

- 7 • Record of Decision, Colorado River Interim Guidelines for Lower Basin
8 Shortages and Coordinated Operations for Lake Powell and Lake Mead, reprinted
9 at 73 Fed. Reg. 19,873 (Apr. 11, 2008) (“Shortage Guidelines ROD”) for the Final 10 Environmental Impact Statement, Colorado River Interim Guidelines for Lower 11 Basin Shortages and Coordinated Operations for Lake Powell and Lake Mead
12 (Oct. 2007) (“Shortage Guidelines FEIS”). The Shortage Guidelines ROD adopted 13 guidelines for the Secretary to use to manage Lake Powell and Lake Mead under 14 low reservoir and drought conditions. The Shortage Guidelines FEIS analyzed five 15 alternatives for those interim shortage guidelines. (SAC ¶¶ 41–45.)
- 16 • Final Environmental Impact Statement, Implementation Agreement, Inadvertent
17 Overrun and Payback Policy, and Related Federal Actions (Oct. 2002)
18 (“Implementation Agreement FEIS”). The Secretary, through the Bureau of 19 Reclamation, developed the Implementation Agreement FEIS to analyze a 20 procedure requiring the Secretary to deliver California’s share of Colorado River 21 water in accordance with a certain agreement and to require payback of water used 22 in excess of the amounts set forth in contracts entered into under the Boulder
23 Canyon Project Act. (SAC ¶¶ 46–49.)
- 24 • Offstream Storage of Colorado River Water and Development and Release of 25 Intentionally Created Unused Apportionment in the Lower Division States, 64
26 Fed. Reg. 58,986 (Nov. 1, 1999), 43 C.F.R. pt. 414. The Secretary adopted final 27 regulations under which she may enter into certain agreements with the Lower 28 Basin States to permit offstream storage of those States’ individual entitlements.

1 (SAC ¶¶ 50–51.)

- 3 • The Storage and Interstate Release Agreement (Dec. 18, 2002) (“Storage and 4 Release Agreement”) with the States of Nevada and Arizona, pursuant to the 5 regulations described above, creates a program of interstate water banking of those 6 States’ entitlements under the Decree in Arizona v. California. (SAC ¶¶ 52–55.)

7 The Nation does not allege that any of these actions actually regulate any of its 8 activities. Instead, it argues that because the United States did not determine the extent 9 and quantity of the Navajo Nation’s water rights under Winters, the Secretary’s 10 subsequent actions in connection with the management of the Lower Basin, pursuant to 11 the Decree describing the management of the Colorado River in Arizona v. California, 12 376 U.S. 340 (1964) (“the 1964 Decree”), have otherwise allocated the waters of the 13 Colorado River in a way “that threaten[s] the availability of Colorado River water to 14 satisfy the Navajo Nation’s rights and needs.” (Id. ¶ 29.) The Nation alleges that these 15 actions “establish[] a system of reliance upon the Colorado River that ensures that entities 16 other than the Navajo Nation will continue to rely on water supplies claimed by, reserved 17 for, needed by, and potentially belonging to the Navajo Nation.” (Id. ¶ 31.) In turn, 18 “[s]uch reliance will operate to make allocation of Colorado River water to the Navajo 19 Nation to satisfy its water rights or meet the needs of the Navajo Nation and its members 20 increasingly difficult.” (Id.)

21 The United States “generally agrees that [the Nation] has reserved water rights 22 under the Winters doctrine.” (Doc. 240-1 at 41.) But, it claims it has assisted the Nation 23 with acquisition of water supply in the San Juan Settlement and that it is currently 24 pursuing the establishment of Winters rights in the ongoing general adjudication of the 25 Little Colorado River System (Id.), and that additional mainstream water may be 26 available to the Nation should the various applicable parties be able to arrive at a water 27 rights settlement under the Arizona Water Settlements Act (Id. at 33–34).

28 IV. Claims One, Two, Three, and Five

In Claims One, Two, Three, and Five of its Second Amended Complaint, the

1 Nation alleges that the Federal Defendants violated the National Environmental Policy
2 Act (“NEPA”) and the Administrative Procedure Act (“APA”) by undertaking the actions
3 to manage the Lower Basin flow described above.

4 In Claim One, the Nation alleges that the Implementation of the Surplus 5 Guidelines violates NEPA and the APA. It claims that the United States failed to meet the 6 NEPA requirement to take a hard look at all of the effects of proposed federal action
7 because it did not consider the rights of the Nation. (SAC ¶¶ 63, 64.) Further, the Nation
8 claims that the Surplus Guidelines FEIS states that the United States examined all Indian 9 water rights that could be affected by implementation of the LROC, but that this 10 statement is false because the United States did not consider the needs of the Nation’s 11 possible right to mainstream water in the Lower Basin. The Nation argues that, as a result 12 of these failures, the documents are “arbitrary, capricious, an abuse of discretion, [and] 13 otherwise not in accordance with law,” “contrary to constitutional right, power, privilege, 14 or immunity,” and “in excess of statutory jurisdiction, authority, or limitations, [and] 15 short of statutory right.” (Id. ¶ 67.)

16 In Claim Two, the Nation alleges that the Implementation of the Shortage 17 Guidelines was similarly deficient because the United States claimed in the Shortage 18 Guidelines FEIS that it examined all Indian water rights that could be affected by 19 implementation of the LROC, but did not actually consider the needs of the Nation. (Id.
20 ¶¶ 69–71.)

21 In Claim Three, the Nation alleges that the Development of the Implementation 22 Agreement FEIS is also lacking as the Implementation Agreement FEIS also purports to 23 have examined all Indian water rights that could have been impacted, but did not do so 24 because it did not actually consider the needs of the Nation. (Id. ¶¶ 73–76.)

25 In Claim Five, the Nation alleges that the Federal Defendants violated NEPA and 26 the APA by entering into the Storage and Release Agreement. It claims that the 27 Agreement fails to consider the Nation’s unquantified rights and memorialized a plan for 28 water banking without considering those rights. (Id. ¶¶ 82–84.)

1 V. Claim Four

2 In Claim Four, the Nation alleges that the Implementation of the Interstate 3 Banking Regulations violates the APA. It alleges that the Secretary failed to protect the 4 Nation’s rights to and interests in the water from the Lower Basin. In so doing, the 5 regulations allow entitlement holders other than the Nation to store water they would 6 otherwise be unable to use and allows those entitlement holders to develop reliance upon 7 the use of those waters, which may potentially belong to the Nation. (Id. ¶¶ 78–79.) This, 8 the Nation alleges, resulted in a final rule that is “arbitrary, capricious, an abuse of 9 discretion, [and] otherwise not in accordance with law,” “contrary to constitutional right, 10 power, privilege, or immunity,” and “in excess of statutory jurisdiction, authority, or 11 limitations, [and] short of statutory right.” (Id. ¶ 80.)

12 VI. Claim Seven

13 In Claim Seven, the Nation notes that under Winters, it requires water from the 14 Lower Basin of the Colorado River to fulfil its purpose as a permanent homeland. (Id. ¶ 15 90.) By failing to determine the extent and quantity of the Nation’s water rights, the 16 United States breached its fiduciary obligation to the Nation. (Id. ¶ 91.)

17 VII. Pending Motions

18 The Nation brought these six claims against the Federal Defendants.¹ (Doc. 281.) 19 The Federal Defendants now move to dismiss each of these claims. (Doc. 240.) In their 20 Motion to Dismiss, the Federal Defendants argue that Plaintiff has failed to establish 21 standing to bring Claims One through Five and that it has failed to identify a breach of a 22 specific, enforceable trust obligation and waiver of sovereign immunity that allows it to 23 bring Claim Seven. (Id.)

24 Additionally, various Defendant-Intervenors have joined the case and filed their 25 own Motions to Dismiss. (Docs. 242, 243, 249, 250, 251, and 254.)² Also pending are the 26

27 ¹ The Nation voluntarily struck their Sixth Claim for Relief. (SAC ¶¶ 85–88.)

28 ² The SRP Defendants’ Motion to Dismiss also includes their Motion to Join Required Parties. (Doc. 249.)

1 Hopi Tribe’s Motion to Intervene (Doc. 252) and Motion to Dismiss (Doc. 251).

2 DISCUSSION

3 I. Legal Standard

4 The Court may only reach the merits of a dispute if it has jurisdiction to do so.
5 Steel Co. v. Citizens for a Better Env’t, 523 U.S. 83, 93–95 (1998). Jurisdiction is limited 6 to subject matter authorized by the Constitution or by statute. Kokkonen v. Guardian Life 7 Ins. Co., 511 U.S. 375, 377 (1994). Under Rule 12(b)(1), a defendant may challenge at 8 any time a federal court’s jurisdiction to hear a case. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(b)(1), 9 12(h)(3). In such a challenge, the defendant may either facially or factually attack the 10 plaintiff’s complaint for lack of subject matter jurisdiction. A facial challenge asserts that 11 the complaint, on its face, fails to allege facts that would invoke federal jurisdiction. Safe 12 Air For Everyone v. Meyer, 373 F.3d 1035, 1039 (9th Cir. 2003). A factual attack, on the 13 other hand, disputes the veracity of allegations in the complaint that would, if true, 14 invoke federal jurisdiction. Id.

15 II. Standing

16 To establish Article III standing to seek injunctive relief, “a plaintiff must show 17 that he is under threat of suffering ‘injury in fact’ that is concrete and particularized; the 18 threat must be actual and imminent, not conjectural or hypothetical; it must be fairly 19 traceable to the challenged action of the defendant; and it must be likely that a favorable 20 judicial decision will prevent or redress the injury.” Summers v. Earth Island Inst., 555 21 U.S. 488, 493 (2009) (citing Friends of Earth, Inc. v. Laidlaw Envtl. Servs. (TOC), Inc., 22 528 U.S. 167, 180–81 (2000)).

23 Under the first prong, the Nation alleges that it is under the threat of suffering 24 “injury in fact” due to the challenged administrative actions in Counts One through Five.
25 The Nation states that in establishing the Navajo Reservation, “the United States 26 impliedly reserved for the benefit of the Navajo Nation a sufficient amount of water to 27 carry out the purposes for which the Reservation was created, specifically to make the 28 Reservation a livable homeland for the Nation’s present and future generations.” (Doc.

1 281, SAC ¶ 14.) While the Nation alleges that they have these water rights, they also 2 assert that the United States has never adjudicated, quantified, or estimated these rights as 3 to the mainstream of the Colorado River in the Lower Basin. (Id. ¶¶ 25–26.) However, 4 consistent with Winters, the Nation does not challenge the Federal Defendants’ assertion 5 that the priority of any such rights will not be legally impacted by any of the challenged 6 administrative actions. That is because any such water rights “vested at least as early as 7 the date of each congressional act or executive order setting aside the Reservation lands” 8 (Id. ¶ 14), which occurred between 1868 and 1964 (Id. ¶ 12), many decades before any of 9 the challenged administrative actions (Id. ¶¶ 36, 41, 46, 50). Further, under Winters, any 10 such rights would retain priority despite non-use.

11 The Nation also does not allege that any of the challenged actions directly regulate 12 any of the Nation’s activities. Instead, they assert that the actions regulate third-party 13 activities, and that this regulation, devised without consideration of the Nation’s potential 14 water rights, could cause injury to the Nation because it “establishes a system of reliance 15 upon the Colorado River that ensures that entities other than the Navajo Nation will 16 continue to rely on water supplies claimed by, reserved for, needed by, and potentially 17 belonging to the Navajo Nation.” (Id. ¶ 31.) In turn, “[s]uch reliance will operate to make 18 allocation of Colorado River water to the Navajo Nation to satisfy its water rights or meet 19 the needs of the Navajo Nation and its members increasingly difficult.” (Id.)

20 Here, in Claims One, Two, Three, and Five, the Nation alleges a number of 21 procedural violations under NEPA. For these claims, the Nation may demonstrate injury 22 under the standard for demonstrating a procedural injury under that statute. To show that 23 these alleged procedural violations constitute a cognizable injury for purposes of 24 establishing Article III standing, the Nation “must demonstrate that (1) [Defendants] 25 violated certain procedural rules; (2) these rules protect [Plaintiff’s] concrete interests; 26 and (3) it is reasonably probable that the challenged action will threaten their concrete 27 interests.” Center for Food Safety v. Vilsack, 636 F.3d 1166, 1171 (9th Cir. 2011) (citing 28 Citizens for Better Forestry, 341 F.3d at 969–70)).

1 Here, the Court will assume without deciding that the Federal Defendants violated 2 some procedural rules of NEPA, that the Nation has some kind of interest in the water of 3 the Lower Basin, and the procedural rules protect the Nation's interests in that water.
4 This satisfies the first two prongs of the NEPA injury inquiry. Under the third prong, the 5 Nation must demonstrate that it is "reasonably probable" that the challenged 6 administrative actions will threaten their interests. The Nation has not done so. As 7 explained above, the only injury the Nation asserts in this case is that the challenged 8 administrative actions will create a system of reliance that will somehow make it harder 9 for the Nation to satisfy its water rights, even though the Nation concedes that these 10 challenged actions do not vitiate those rights or otherwise legally alter those rights under 11 Winters. The Nation does not explain how any "system of reliance" created by the 12 challenged administrative actions could nonetheless injure the Nation's interests. Without 13 this connection, the Nation has not demonstrated that it is "reasonably probable" that the 14 actions will threaten their interests. Thus, in Claims One, Two, Three, and Five, the 15 Nation fails to establish injury under the standard for establishing a NEPA procedural 16 injury and therefore the Nation does not have Article III standing to bring those claims.

17 In Claim Four, the Nation alleges that the Implementation of the Interstate 18 Banking Regulations violates the APA, but not NEPA. As the Nation does not bring 19 Claim Four under NEPA, it is not relevant whether it meets the Ninth Circuit's 20 requirements for establishing injury under that particular statute. However, the Nation 21 must still establish injury under this Claim for Article III standing. As in Claims One, 22 Two, Three, and Five, the Nation alleges that the challenged regulations will allow 23 entitlement holders other than the Nation to develop a system of reliance on water that 24 may someday be determined to belong to the Nation. As with Claims One, Two, Three 25 and Five, the Nation fails to allege any facts to suggest that any possible injury deriving 26 from a theoretical, future "system of reliance" is "actual or imminent" as opposed to 27 merely "conjectural or hypothetical." Summers, 555 U.S. at 493. Thus, Plaintiffs also fail 28

1 to establish standing to bring Claim Four.³

2 III. Breach of Trust Claim

3 A. Trust Relationship

4 In its Claim Seven, the Nation challenges the Federal Defendants’ alleged breach 5 of their fiduciary trust responsibility. (SAC ¶¶ 90–91.) The Nation asserts that “[t]he 6 Department has failed to determine the extent and quantity of the water rights of the 7 Navajo Nation to the waters of the Colorado River, or otherwise determine the amount of 8 water which the Navajo Nation requires from the Lower Basin of the Colorado River to 9 meet the needs of the Navajo Nation and its members.” (Id.) To remedy this alleged 10 violation, it asks the Court to enjoin “further breaches of the United States’ trust 11 responsibility.” (Id. ¶ L.) The Nation claims that this “primary breach of trust claim is not 12 premised on the APA.” (Doc. 282 at 67.)

13 While the Ninth Circuit recognizes that the United States owes a general trust 14 responsibility to Indian tribes, “unless there is a specific duty that has been placed on the 15 government with respect to Indians, [the government’s general trust obligation] is 16 discharged by [the government’s] compliance with general regulations and statutes not 17 specifically aimed at protecting Indian tribes.” Gross Ventre Tribe v. United States, 469 18 F.3d 801, 810 (9th Cir. 2006) (quoting Morongo Band of Mission Indians v. FAA, 161 19 F.3d 569, 574 (9th Cir. 1998)). Here, the Nation argues that the Colorado River Compact 20 of 1922 created a specific, enforceable trust obligation in stating that “[n]othing in this 21 compact shall be construed as affecting the obligations of the United States of America to 22 Indian tribes.” (Doc. 282 at 64; Doc. 293 at 14.) But, by its terms, this statement does not 23

25 ³ A plaintiff bringing a suit under the APA must also fulfill statutory standing 26 requirements by establishing “(1) that there has been final agency action adversely 27 affecting the plaintiff, and (2) that, as a result, it suffers legal wrong or that its injury falls 28 within the zone of interests of the statutory provision the plaintiff claims was violated.” Citizens for Better Forestry, 341 F.3d at 976 (citations omitted). Because the Nation does not establish Article III standing to bring its APA/NEPA claims, the Court need not address whether the Nation meets the additional requirements for statutory standing.

1 create any new or additional obligations of the United States of America to Indian tribes.
2 It merely recognizes the existence of such rights as may have pre-existed the Compact.
3 The Nation has not identified a relevant, specific duty that pre-existed the Compact and 4 that was owed to it by the Federal Defendants that would either support its general breach 5 of trust claim or its claim that the Federal Defendants have breached a specific duty to the 6 Nation in undertaking any of the challenged management activities in the Lower Basin.

7 No party contests that the United States has a trust responsibility to the Nation
8 consistent with Winters that pre-existed the Compact. No party contests that the Nation
9 was allocated no water right in the Lower Basin as a result of Arizona v. California. Yet 10 when, as a current result of Arizona v. California the Nation has no present, existing and 11 determined right in the allocation of that water, the Nation does not point to any duty that 12 either existed before or after the Compact that requires the United States, in regulating 13 the use of the waters between the present determined and existing rights holders, to 14 include the potential future interest which may accrue to the Nation as a result of Winters.
15 The allegation of such facts simply is insufficient to meet the specificity requirement set 16 forth in Gross Ventre as a prerequisite for a breach of trust claim.⁴ Further, the Nation's 17 claim to Lower Basin water would be wholly unimpaired by any third-party claim that 18 post-dated the time from which the Nation could base its claim through Winters. This 19 only highlights the non-existence of a breach of trust claim against the United States for 20 actions taken with third parties that post-date the time from which the Nation bases its 21 claims.

22 B. Sovereign Immunity

23 To bring Claim Seven or any other claim against the Federal Defendants, the 24 Nation must also identify an applicable waiver of sovereign immunity. "A party may 25

27 ⁴ The Court, of course, makes no determination as to whether a claim for breach of 28 trust could be stated against the United States under other factual circumstances, such as for example, if the Nation was unable to obtain on its own and the United States refused to otherwise pursue a determination whether the Nation had any right in Lower Basin waters.

1 bring a cause of action against the United States only to the extent [the United States] has 2 waived its sovereign immunity. A party bringing a cause of action against the federal 3 government bears the burden of demonstrating an unequivocal waiver of immunity.”
4 Cunningham v. United States, 786 F.2d 1445, 1446 (9th Cir. 1986) (citations omitted).
5 “A waiver of the Federal Government’s sovereign immunity must be unequivocally 6 expressed in statutory text.” Lane v. Pena, 518 U.S. 187, 192 (1996) (citations omitted).
7 Further, “a waiver of the Government’s sovereign immunity will be strictly construed, in 8 terms of its scope, in favor of the sovereign.” Id. As the SAC specifies that it seeks relief
9 under the APA, 5 U.S.C. §§ 701–06 (Id. ¶ 8), the Court will consider whether that statute 10 contains a waiver of sovereign immunity that would allow the Nation to bring its Claim 11 Seven, even though the Nation does state that its Claim Seven falls outside the bounds of 12 the APA (Doc. 282 at 67).

13 The APA waives sovereign immunity for certain actions brought against the 14 Federal Government. 5 U.S.C. § 702. In relevant part, it states that “[a]n action in a court 15 of the United States seeking relief other than money damages and stating a claim that an 16 agency or an officer or employee thereof acted or failed to act in an official capacity . . .
17 shall not be dismissed . . . on the ground that it is against the United States.” Id. Section 18 704, which describes the scope of reviewable agency action under the APA, states in 19 relevant part that judicial review extends to “final agency action for which there is no 20 other adequate remedy in a court.” 5 U.S.C. § 704. See also Gallo Cattle v. U.S. Dep’t of 21 Agric., 159 F.3d 1194, 1198 (9th Cir. 1998) (describing that “the APA’s waiver of 22 sovereign immunity contains several limitations” including § 704, which limits review to 23 actions “made reviewable by statute or final agency action”).

24 As the Nation notes, the Ninth Circuit has held that this § 704 limitation does not 25 limit the § 702 waiver for some constitutional claims. See Presbyterian Church v. United 26 States, 870 F.2d 518, 526 (9th Cir. 1989) (declining to read “§ 702 as preserving 27 sovereign immunity in claims for equitable relief against government investigations 28 alleged to violate First and Fourth Amendment rights”); See also Robinson v. Salazar,

1 885 F. Supp. 2d 1002, 1027–28 (E.D. Cal. 2012) (reconciling the Ninth Circuit’s 2 opinions in Gallo Cattle and Presbyterian Church, noting that Presbyterian Church was 3 limited to the availability of a sovereign immunity waiver to bring constitutional claims).
4 However, no such constitutional claims are present in this action. The APA also waives
5 sovereign immunity under 5 U.S.C. § 706(1) for certain claims challenging agency 6 inaction. However, a § 706(1) claim must assert that an agency failed to take a discrete 7 agency action that it is actually required to take. Norton v. S. Utah Wilderness Alliance, 8 542 U.S. 55, 64 (2004). The Nation concedes that it is not bringing any § 706(1) claims 9 in this case. (Doc. 282 at 67.)

10 Here, Claim Seven is indeed a claim for relief other than damages, brought against 11 the United States. However, Claim Seven does not challenge any final agency action or 12 allege any constitutional claim. (Doc. 282 at 67.) Because the Nation fails to challenge 13 any particular final agency action or bring a constitutional claim, Claim Seven falls 14 outside of the scope of the APA’s waiver of sovereign immunity and is thus barred. The 15 Nation invites the Court to adopt a broad reading of Presbyterian Church that would 16 expand its reading of the APA’s waiver beyond constitutional claims to encompass a 17 general breach of trust claim. See Robinson, 885 F. Supp. 2d at 1027–28; but see 18 Valentini v. Shinseki, 860 F. Supp. 2d 1079, 1101 (C.D. Cal. 2012). The Court declines 19 that invitation. The Nation alleges no other applicable waiver of sovereign immunity.
20 Therefore, Claim Seven is dismissed as barred by the Federal Defendants’ sovereign 21 immunity.

22 CONCLUSION

23 Plaintiff fails to establish the injury in fact necessary to confer standing to bring its 24 claims One through Five and has voluntarily struck its Claim Six. In addition, Plaintiff 25 fails to identify a waiver of sovereign immunity that permits it to bring Claim Seven. The 26 Court thus lacks subject matter jurisdiction to consider the merits of the Nation’s Second 27 Amended Complaint. Due to this lack of subject matter jurisdiction, the Second Amended 28 Complaint is dismissed without prejudice pursuant to the Federal Defendant’s Motion to

1 Dismiss (Doc. 240). The Court denies the other pending Motions to Dismiss (Docs. 242, 2 243, 249, 250, 251, 253, 254) and the Hopi Tribe's Motion to Intervene (Doc. 252) as 3 moot.

4 IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED THAT:

5 1. Defendants United States Department of the Interior, Secretary of the 6 Interior Sally Jewell, Bureau of Reclamation, and Bureau of Indian Affairs' (collectively 7 the Motion to Dismiss (Doc. 240) is granted.
