Who said you need money or a marketplace in order to reap the benefits of exchange? A new movement is arising that is locally based, globally coordinated and altruistically motivated to get perfectly good stuff headed for the landfill into the hands of people who need it. Most of the exchanges occur through online notices that publicize what's available and what things people are looking for. It's not a market, it's not barter, it's not a flea market. It's a movement of well-structured commons designed to save the environment, promote localism and meet people's everyday needs.

I visited the website of the local affiliate of Freecycle and found that there are 2,419 members who run ads like this one: "Offered: white 90 inch sofa, some light coffee stains but nothing that can't be covered with a throw". I'm moving to a smaller place, can make do with a smaller sofa." Here's another ad, this one from "Ben": "Anyone have any 20 ft or longer I-beams kicking around? I'm looking for two to make a bridge."

This movement might be neatly called the "Freecycle" movement, but unfortunately, the website that pioneered this trend, Freecycle, trademarked the name and is in other ways trying to assert proprietary control. (More about this in a moment.) Since I prefer open access words, I'll dub it the "share-recycle" movement.

http://72.14.203.104/search?q=cache:nc82PIjQu_4J:onthecommons.org/node/660%3FPHPSESSID%3D397b... 5/2/2006

The Freecycle Network™ claims the largest reach, with 3,024 Freecycle™ Communities and 1,584,448 Freecycle™ Members in more than fifty nations. Its tagline is “Changing the world one gift at a time.” (Isn't that ubiquitous™ symbol really annoying, especially when aggressively promoted by an enterprise dedicated to sharing?)

There are a number of other worthy share-recycle networks, some of them started by disaffected former members of the Freecycle Network™. They include Freesharing.org, which has links to over 220 locally managed groups serving over 87,500 members in the US and Canada. There are also colleague groups such as SharingIsGiving.org, FreeCycleAmerica.org, FreeUsables.com, Freesources Recycling Network and Altruists International.

Freecycle tells its history this way:

On May 1st, 2003, Deron Beal sent out an e-mail announcing the first Freecycle™ group to about 30 or 40 friends and a handful of nonprofits in Tucson, Arizona. At the time Deron founded The Freecycle Network, he ran a small recycling program called Downtown Don't Waste It! with a nonprofit organization, RISE, which provides recycling services to downtown businesses, and transitional employment to Tucsonans in need.

As Deron and his crews recycled, rather than watching perfectly good items being thrown away, they found themselves calling or driving around to see if various local nonprofits could use them. Thinking there had to be an easier way, Beal set up that first Freecycle e-mail group in a way that permitted everyone in Tucson to give and to get. Freecycle was off and running.

Membership in most of these communities is free, and the local leaders are volunteers. Freecycle has an elaborate step-by-step process for creating your own group, with advice how on to moderate the community's interactions.

The share-recycle movement bears a lot of resemblances to the fantastically successful craigslist, the locally based classified ads that people can post and read for free. The movement is also notable for the relative ease and low cost with which people can self-organize themselves to serve collective goals on a local basis. Moderators of Freecycle groups have to take an oath to observe a code of “Freecycle etiquette”: “You'll agree to remain open to input from members or the occasional democratic polling of your members, but to make the tough calls and decisions in order to spare the rest the long debates. You'll pledge to keep spam, ads and money-makers out of your group with the “two strikes, you're out” rule. And, finally, you'll promise to come clean of your pack-rat ways and clean out your own garage before asking the same of others.”

Freecycle espouses an admirable philosophy:

We don't strive for personal gain first through encouraging people to try to sell items. We only encourage magnanimous giving with absolutely no strings attached. You may however choose to encourage members to go to local nonprofit trading or bartering organizations as an alternative — we tend to find that local barter groups are kindred spirits and, while not directly gifting, they are doing lots of good in their own way. With Freecycle, though, there are no strings attached. Folks just give stuff away!

The splintering of Freecycle participants began when founder Deron Beal began to assert greater control over the entire system and its far-flung volunteer moderators. As reported by Matt Weiser in Grist magazine (May 19, 2005), Beal accepted a $130,000 grant from Waste Management, the firm associated with dubious, sometimes illegal behavior in dumping hazardous wastes.

This sponsorship — Freecycle's only one — did not sit well with many members who thought it essentially invited Waste Management to use Freecycle to “greenwash” itself. Still, Beal had been running Freecycle on the side, and the grant enabled him to begin to manage the burgeoning Freecycle network full-time. As part of this assertion of control, Beal also trademarked the term “Freecycle” and began to require local moderators to give him access to local member information and transactions.

This, too, rankled many local moderators. If you're part of a volunteer grassroots movement, it can be a real bummer to be told, corporate-style, to hand over local information and that you may only use the word "freecycle" "as an adjective (Freecycle group, etc.) and never as a noun or verb, or morphed into another word (freecycler, freecycling, freecycle the couch, etc. are no-nos)."

In the bigger scheme of things, it's not clear to me whether these management decisions will impede the growth of the movement. Locally organized groups can still do their thing, and the international "branding" of the Freecycle name and operating processes may or may not matter. (It could actually slow the growth of Freecycle.) In any case, it's a pleasure to see this sort of locally driven, community-based paradigm take off: an idea whose time has come.

Thank your for your very open and informative post on Free Recycling. It is a movement that is very important to me and appreciate the honest look at what is happening now.

Though in it's infancy, The movement is slowly expanding outside e-mail groups and bulliten boards and becoming available on web sites that allow you to customize the items you receive. The website I administer, FreeXchange.org is one of those.

Thank you again for your well written post!

I find it ridiculous that Deron Beal makes it so difficult for people to give things away and how it is that so many people are affected by his greed. The FreeCycle concept is great, but once greed enters the picture the concept takes a back seat.

He has far too much concern for the trademark and getting a non-profit status so he can “quit his day job.” That is his concern, not saving the planet.

Description

This is a site to gather the facts: documentation, letters, threat messages etc. Anything you think is important information for others to know or that we can collectively use as leverage against the whole freakcycle org which has incorporated and is trying to muscle so many groups and people.

Facts are best but I have seen some obnoxious letters come out of freakcycle, hateful, leaning toward blackmail, or just plain showing their absolute ignorance, These would be nice to share with others also. Post them to the "files" section, we will try to figure out a system for filing them by name, date, type of letter/evidence etc...

If you have information you would like to share but are afraid to share in fear of retaliation from the members of Freecycle Network you can either create a separate Yahoo Account for this group or email your information to anti_freecycle@yahoo.com and we will post the information under our name.

Thank you,
Group Moderators

Still in effect? I suppose like any government agency they will take forever to do anything or give any decisions, as far as I am concerned any information that can be sent at any point in time can only help to give them a push to keep investigating.

Please send them any information you have regarding Deron and Freecycle illegal or questionable activities.

Peace bond? is that like a restraining order or an injunction to get them to stop posting your personal information and slow the harrasment and personal threats? You can print forms off-line from Arizona's court system, mail them and file an injunction against Deron Beal and/or other freecycle inc. The basturds have crossed the line one too many times in purposfully posting and spreading personal information. I personally BEGGED Deron to stop using my real name, spreading my location and other personal information, which he aquired when I joined Freecycle in 2003, I carefully explained to him and Cc'd copies to freecycle network, that he was placing myself, my child and my family in harm from a dangerous person whom I have had restraining orders on for 4 years now (and who continues to allude the police to this day) and that only seemed to encourage the sadistic bastard into refering to me at any possible opportunity, even when it was to associate me with more outright LIES. Derons postings caused others to attack me, to the point that some freecycle mods got into a discussion and openly stated that they hoped the stalker found me and "killed me", or murder me and made jokes that they would not shed a tear. I kid you not. I received copies of private letters Deron sent out over the past month to mods where he is still sending out my name and personal information (even though I have been virtually inactive on any anti-freecycle site for soem time and he personally has authorized (I have a copy of an email that confirms this) Oregon Modsquad (USA) to keep a database on the group to collect my personal information and any known or suspected emails, strictly for the purpose of harrassing me and one can only assume in hopes that they can reach the stalker and he will kill myself, my

Deron is a two faced bastard, showing the general public what a "nice guy" he is while the reality is that he is a bad greedy, hateful man.

I encourage anyone who has been harrassed in such a manner by Deron Beal or other Freecycle moderators doing his bidding to send all the information to any Government agency who will listen and to file an injunction against Deron Beal and Freecycle and make it public record the horrific means at which he will go to stop those who speak out against him.

The Darkerside of freecycle group has once again vanished without a word from Yahoo to any of its owners. My only guess is that "someone" got worried Darkerside was back on task and exposing too many hidden secrets and complained about some rule violation. Hey but you can still post in the Freecycle (TM) sanctioned whiners and complaint groups, whiners will just moderate out anything they don't want others to hear.

I suggest you all write egroups-guidelines@yahoo-inc .com
help@yahoo-inc .com
reportabuse@yahoo-inc .com
copyright@yahoo-inc .com

and anyone else you can think of to complain and find out why they keep removing groups without warning. IF WE DO NOT CONTINUE TO SPEAK OUT AND FIGHT BACK AND EXPOSE THE BULLSHIT FREECYCLE (TM) IS DOING BEHIND THE SCENES THIS AND EVERY GROUP LIKE IT WILL VANISH.

Do not fall silent!!!

IS anyone else losing their trust in Yahoo over all of this? I know I am..

Just a friendly warning, because there is no doubt, at some point and time, they will get around to this group....Members have been known to lose there IDs/e-mail accounts etc..during some of these group shut downs too ya know....just a friendly warning.

Deron is working off of the part of the law that says you can notify people in advance of your intentions to apply for the mark, the only problem with this is that the mark, the name "freecycle" was already used worldwide by too many people, groups and businesses and if the law is followed when they finally get to the applications there is not a snow balls chance in hell that he or new media worlds will be awarded the rights. We need to barrage the USPTO and the 2 attorneys they have or will assign to each application with letters of objection, and the facts and insist they make an immediate ruling, in the best interest of the public, and deny both applications.

Figured I should share the info I have. This email was sent to me after C. Hess recieved my email by mistake. Below your threats sent to me is the email I sent out to many media (News Companies such as ABC, NBC, CBS, FOX, CNN as well as newspapers around the country). Since I did not want to spend the time gathering the emails I did a search and sent to all emails I found. Some individuals where found by mistake. Hopefully many of them will send the email on to their friends and family and the truth will finally get out.

Your preaching to the choir pal! I'm the infamous Char. I send out the Cease and Desists and then get the groups deleted by Yahoo. BTW you can tell your buds on Darkside and Mod Squad revealed and all the other drivel you folks produce this:

My info is online and not secret so Dawna aka DLCfreecycle aka widowmate aka yikeit aka freecycleusa etc didn't do anything special. Last count I pull up over 100 hits on search.

As for the lies you try to send out, I have reported you to Yahoo for spam and to my ISP to pursue. I suggest you discontinue sending this spam to group owners as they are all reporting it.

Basically no one cares. Your groups aren't needed. We have plenty to go round.

Have a great day!

the good that the organization has been doing. We think it is time that you are told the truth about the dark secrets that the organization has been doing its best to hide from you and many of its members. The organization has grown to the point that they now have a national group that makes up rules and/or changes rules just about every other day. This national group is made up of Deron Beal and a select few that follow his every command/order, these people are known as GOA's. The biggest problem is that this national group makes up new rules and then they tell the state Moderators. These state moderators rarely tell their members but do enforce the rule with a quick and swift kick and ban from the groups. On the Freecycle website, there is a list of rules, which has never been changed. The new rules the group comes up with are never added to the website so no members know of these rules. Now the previous information may or may not interest you but the follow will.

> Freecycle's actions that are more recent have gone too far with threats and violations of freedom of speech. Freecycle does have a Service mark on their Logo they use but they consider this Service mark includes total ownership of the word/term/phrase of "FREECYCLE". For the groups that have chosen to leave the organization the owners of these groups have been sent letters demanding that the owners provide a link for members to return to Freecycle or demand that the owner close their group. Freecycle has even gone as far as filing false complaints to Yahoo and having Yahoo close down groups that the organization cannot or does not control anymore. The organization has sent out message stating that if you use an email address that includes the word/term "freecycle" you will be kicked and banned from their groups.

Deron and the GOA's seem to look the other way when it comes to individuals that they consider "on their side" with many rules including one "un-written" rule that states that the owner of a group must live in the city that the group is for and furthermore an individual my only own one group. In the state of Colorado, three individuals own 50 to 75 percent of the groups, there are 46 groups as of 1/28/2005. One of these individuals said, "I cannot believe I am in charge of so many members". This same individual has blocked every new group by denying the group from being added to the Freecycle website, then turns around, creates this same group, and approves it for him or herself. Another one of these individuals said, "I can't wait until I can be on TV again..." In the state of Illinois there are a groups of women that have taken over and control every single group in that state. These Moderators do not care about the organization but more about their own person gain.

> In another group in a different part of the country an individual added a posting to the group with a link to another site that was about ways to turn your "trash" into art. The owner of this group sent a email to the poster threaten them, removing the posting, and then kicking and banning the user. In Colorado, the Vail group has joined up with another site outside of the Freecycle organization that seems more and more to be ONLY for the rich and powerful. Yet no one in the Freecycle organization seems to care. We know of many individuals who have contacted the GOA's requesting assistance because of power greedy individuals in their state that have blocked their attempts to speak their mind or even open a group.

> As for the Freecycle Organization itself, other members in the group have said they have proof that Freecycle does not hold a "Non-Profit" status with the IRS yet they claim to be a non-profit organization. Now this in itself is wrong but if this turns out to be true the organization has been collecting donations under the impression that they are a non-profit which is extremely illegal. Deron was quoted as saying, "If I can just get more donations then I can quite my job and work for Freecycle fulltime"

> Last, I attend this email to be sent to the media but in my attempt to acquire email address for the media, I might have added a few personal emails. I am sorry for that but if you would be willing to help spread the word by forwarding this email to your friends and family. The more the truth is released to the public the better off we all will be.
