More details

We are a worldwide FAMILY of 1,435,270 FREECYCLE USERS and 2,867 Freecycle groups.

We RECYCLE things together and learn to SHARE.

We want a VOICE.

We want the Freecycle network to LISTEN to us like they listen to the big Corporations that sponsor the network and pay for the lawyers.

We are not spectators. We want to help SHAPE Freecycle.

This pledge is about REFORMING

Freecycle. It is not anti-Freecycle. Whilst

I appreciate there are alternative free recycling organisations, this pledge aims to stick with Freecycle and ensure it works for users.

Thanks for the links to other free recycling websites, but can we stick to the subject at hand, which is this...

How can we make our voice, as users, heard in the Freecycle decision making process ?

All the Freecycle discussion forums are managed by appointed Freecycle people.

There is no independent voice.

Where are the checks & balances ?
Where is the means of scrutinizing decisions made by Freecycle central management ?

Freecycle & Censorship

Are Freecycle censoring their own moderator discussion list ?

On Tuesday, July 5th, a brief notice about the Freecycle Pledge was posted to the Freecyclemodsquad list.

At least twenty people responded to this pledge.

On Friday, July 8th, I attempted to reply to the above discussion and sent 4 replies to the Freecyclemodsquad list.

No replies have shown up on the list !

The Freecyclemodsquad list is apparently moderated by Nancy Castleman.

I emailed Nancy Castleman on Saturday, July 9th 2005, asking her one simple question :

"Am I, or am I not, being prevented from posting to Freecyclemodsquad?"

I look forward to reading Nancy's reply. Hopefully, this is only a case of a mail delivery problem with Yahoogroups.

Darren, I understand your desire to reform Freecycle because I have been there myself, believing the people should run it and not a corporation but after years of watching things get worse, trying to talk to them, explain where they have gone wrong, it is clear reform is not possible unless there is a take over and the current administration is removed. Those of us who have been through a Freecycle attack (and in some cases more then one) upon our groups will never trust that Freecycle will not continue trying to rule over all groups. Freecycle has to have full ownership in order to claim the tonage of items shared and get the funding they seek and with this ownership comes power and greed. I don't believe Darren would ever come clean with the entire truth, even though he sees the ship sinking and knows he blew the tm etc. he continues to give the politicians responses and moves ahead, stomping on those who have gotten him this far. Many of us decided long ago it was better to move on, learn from their mistakes and take our groups with us but Freecycles won't leave us alone. They continue to file false complaints of spamming, tm infringement and tos violations and on such a mass scale (just like their advertising campaign) some servers (Yahoo in particular) have closed groups and accounts without allowing us to defend the accusations. Freecycle will come after any group/site/person it feels is a threat to them because they are exposing the truth. Please, if you have some information or ideas that I (we) do not, I would love to hear them and assist if I could. You stated in the pledge that you wanted to start "an independent Freecycle User Group" please, tell me what your plan is for this group? Freecycle was a great idea, and it has spread quickly, but it has still become a business making money off unwitting members and Freecycles greed for cash and control has turned, I am afraid, irreversibly ugly.

How do they make money? On the site it says that the turnover is $150,000 which is used for one salary for deron and hosting costs and stuff I don't see how they are a business, if I'm never paying any money. Our freecycle group works really well and of course if its more independent and cooperative the better – but first, can someone tell me concretely what the problems are with freecycle as it is? What corporate involvement is there?

Matt, here is one of the many explanations floating around the internet about why Freecycle is a crooked business, the facts may be a little out of date by now but the information remains true. The links may also no longer be valid because Freecycle has convinced Yahoo to shut down hundreds of groups for "trademark" infringement for even mentioning freecycle on their site or if the owner or moderator had the name freecycle in their e-mail address (which many of us did when we were still blind members of freecycle), but the group or ones similar do restart, just do a yahoo or google search for freecycle using the words "complaint" or "dark side" and you will find plenty of information.

BEGINNING OF DOCUMENT:

Freecycle.org aka Freecycle Network (FCN) is a business, a Corporation to be exact, founded by Rise Incorporated in Tucson Arizona USA. In 2003 Rise Inc. "gifted" FCN to its then employee Mr. Deron Beal (the self proclaimed founder of FCN) and disassociated themselves from FCN. Mr. Beal however continued to falsely (and illegally) claim (and received cash donations for over a year) that they were still part of Rise Inc. and therefore a "non-profit" agency under Rise Inc's 501 non-profit status, and that the donations were federally tax deductible. If you visit the FCN home page you will find a "donation" button to give money to Deron Beal, a button people have been using to donate money to, which we believe most were falsely lead to believe they were giving to a "charity", a non-profit tax deductible charity, when in fact they were not. We believe Mr. Beal did intentionally fraud the public by advertising and promoting FCN as a "non-profit" (and in many documented cases he and other FCN representatives falsely claimed "501 (c)3 non-profit" status), knowing the general public considered this a tax deductible organization, which it is not. FCN is a non-profit Corporation in the State of Arizona only, one need just apply to be a corporation and mark the box stating they want to be "non-profit" to claim they do not intend to make a profit, however this does not give them federally deductible tax status.

FCN further deceives the public by claiming to be locally owned and operated and "grassroots" in their approach to members giving items away in local communities but in far too many cases this is absolutely false. FCN owns each and every group listed on the 05/05/2006. Some groups are started by local people and then in order to have their groups "advertised" and listed on the freecycle.org website, and avoid being harassed and threatened (as we were) they have to turn ownership over to FCN. Some groups are opened by FCN for the sole purpose of competing with other free groups who refuse to join freecycle and turn over ownership. Freecycle Network has final say and control over every group it owns, not the moderators or community it is suppose to serve.

Nearly all the FCN groups are operated on the FREE web server Yahoo, just as Free Share groups are. FCN groups are not always moderated, but opened and left as a way for FCN and Deron Beal to "corner the market" and have members in every city giving and receiving items with others in their community. FCN's motivation is not to build communities or keep items out of landfills, the motivation is money. FCN monitors and estimates the weight of every item the citizens give away to one another, they then take this information and has used it to get companies to "sponsor" them by giving FCN free advertising and hundreds of thousands of dollars. Eventually FCN's plans are to apply for city, county and state grants based on how much "tonnage" FCN is claiming to have kept out of the landfills.

Basically, the individual FCN groups are run by volunteer moderators (when they are moderated at all), on a free server, with members of the community freely giving and receiving items from each other, without FCN ever being involved and yet FCN is profiting from all this free giving.

Freecycle Network Inc. could receive potentially hundreds of thousands to millions of dollars in government grants, your tax dollars and they do nothing but take credit for what other people give away with or without them. We feel it is a fraud on every single member of FCN who has not been given this information.

Where will the money go? FCN operates on a free server, with volunteer moderators so they do not cost FCN anything and the groups can run independently with absolutely no connection to freecycle network what so ever (as this group does). So where does all the money go?

When Deron Beal recently received the first large sponsor check he announced he was leaving his $25k job and would be using the money to pay himself 45K a year, to start. The rest of the money will be used for "operation costs" such as salaries to the corporate board members who "advise" the corporation, lawyers hired to trademark (TM) the name "freecycle" and employees they will hire to monitor the groups so no moderators go "rogue"

remove their groups from the Corporation because they don't like being told what to do and how to operate their group by some money hungry corporation.

Freecycle Network also have plans to buy their own server and remove all the groups from Yahoo so they can apply for additional grants.

My point? Freecycle Network does absolutely NOTHING for the FCN groups except list their web address on their free site. FCN has threatened, harass and lie to moderators/owners/members and the general public in order to obtain groups and build a profitable business for Deron Beal and possibly others he will hire as the corporation grows on your tax dollars.

Free Share and dozens of other free groups believe what FCN is doing, how they are doing it, is wrong and deceitful at the very least and (though the federal government will have to follow through and press charges) may very well be fraudulent business practices.

FCN has claimed to the public for over a year now that they "own" the trademark rights, copyrights and service mark for the name and concept "freecycle" for the entire world, they do not. FN applied for trade mark ownership of the name with the US Patent and Trademark Office but the company has already applied 4 months before them. Also, based on the wide spread usage of the word "freecycle" they way the free movement has been nick named "freecyclin", according to the laws/rules/regulations it will be near impossible at this point for anyone to obtain a US or Canadian trademark on the name or concept. FCN does have the right to announce to the public their intention to trademark the name but they do not have the right to claim soul ownership, threaten, harass, steal or harm groups, members or individuals in their misguided attempt to convince people to stop using the name and concept so they can own it.

In addition FCN has been filing false complaints with Yahoo against other free groups that have refused to join FCN and Yahoo has closed groups, taken away id's and e-mail accounts and even gone so far as to delete paid small business accounts on Deron Beal's behalf. This has affected thousands of innocent members and Yahoo REFUSES to give an explanation for their actions other than to say freecycle.org complained or their standard answer "Yahoo can close any group at our discretion"

If you would like to learn more, if you would like to read the evidence to support the claims we have made and get first hand accounts from some of the victims of FCN's deceit, read FCN lies, hate mail & Spam and how they owners so FCN can turn a profit, please join the discussion group "the Darkside of Freecycle" (which has just begun to rebuild on google after a freecycle.org closure on Yahoo) at:

Abusive? Report it!

The basic facts of the document above still hold true, Freecycle continues to harrass other free groups, and get Yahoo to close down competing groups and threaten, harass, spam with false statements, harvest members lists etc..if any free group or one group using the Freecycle name refuses to hand over ownership because Freecycle (Deron Beal) must prove ownership in order to claim the tonnage on items given away so he can solicit for government grants and other funding in order to increase his personal profit margin.

Freecycle does NOT need to make money or be a business to be successful in implementing the ORIGINAL goal of Freecycle, (as many other groups are doing) and anyone that is ignorant enough to believe Derons politician type answers to the facts in the document is in need of enlightenment. There are far too many people blindly following Freecycle unaware of the real motivations behind the organization, totally unaware that Deron Beal is making money off of their free giving of items (with no help from beal or freecycle what so ever) and unaware of the harm and damage Freecycle are doing to communities because of their greed.

Thank god for people like journalist Matt Weiser whom has the power and the guts to start, if only slowly, to publicly expose Freecycle's dark side.

My postings to the Freecyclemodsquad list were censored in a most childish and thuggish manner... this type of behaviour does not benefit Freecycle.

I am very disappointed.

In summary, my postings to the Freecycle list were purposely delayed – they were only posted after I noted the delay on this website – however other people posting on the same subject were not moderated in any way.

It seems you can talk about off-topic subjects, providing no constructive criticism is made of the Freecycle network.

I emailed the owner of the Freecyclemod squad, Nancy Castlemaine, however she has declined to reply.

I have no idea what school of diplomacy Nancy follows, but acting like Genghis Khan does not win friends and influence people.

I await a reply as a matter of basic courtesy.

I am all for ANY independence from FC. I have been personally abused by the leadership, but more than that, I have been threatened, lied about, slandered.

However, the REAL problems are much deeper. The lies about a trademark. The misleading the general public about non-profit status. And many more.

These are the tip of the iceberg, and with the TRUTH set out into the mainstream (ugh...media) then FC will continue to lie, cheat, and steal, basically.

It's sad that something fairly great, turned out to be so wrong, and completely taken over at the top levels by liars, cheats, backstabbers, and thieves.

I've never seen a TRUE non-profit use the tactics this organization has used on people, singly, and in groups.

As far as the modsquad group, that is a useless mess. Anything important IS quashed...QUICKLY. But if people want to continually debate whether someone has an "appropriate yahoo profile" or whether they can have coffee together, or date each other or "be sure not to use the word 'Freecycling' etc"...well, THAT'S ok?

Useless. Just like fc.org at this point.

APPENDIX C - TAB 5

Freecycle Network

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

The Freecycle Network (often abbreviated TFN) is a corporation registered as a non-profit in Arizona that organizes a worldwide network of regiving groups, aiming to divert usable goods from landfill. It provides an online registry of worldwide groups, and coordinates the creation of forums for individuals and non-profits to offer and receive free items for reuse or recycling. By 2006, The Freecycle Network extended to over 3000 groups with almost 2 million members.

Background

The organization was a project of RISE Inc., a nonprofit corporation, to promote waste reduction in Tucson, Arizona, and reduce the need for landfill sites in Arizona's fragile desert landscape. RISE handed it over to the project leader, Deron Beal, who describes himself as "just another MBA who had decided to work for the public good after years in international marketing". It has since grown, reaching into 50 countries and involving over a million members in over 3,000 groups worldwide. On April 2004, it incorporated under Arizona law, although it has not yet achieved 501(c)(3) status. The board of directors is limited to 15 members, although it currently has three: founder Deron Beal (chairperson and treasurer), his wife Jennifer Columbus (vice chairperson) and friend Jolie Sibert (secretary).

Each local group exists as a Yahoo! Groups list run by volunteer moderators with local owners. TFN encourages the formation of new groups, subject to approval by regional New Group Approvers (NGAs). Groups approved by TFN are listed at the official website, can use the name and logo, and are subject to rules enforced by a structure of global and regional Group Outreach Assistants and NGAs. TFN plan to move in early 2006 from Yahoo! Groups to a centralised site, listing "offers" and "wants" across the world.

Controversies

There are a number of controversial issues concerning The Freecycle Network:

- Corporate Sponsorship - In February 2005, Deron Beal accepted TFN's first corporate support of $130,000 from Waste Management, Inc. [1] (http://www.wasteage.com/mag/waste_free_fabulous/). This polarized opinion amongst group moderators, for some being a sensible way of raising funds from a company Beal describes as America's "largest recycler", and for others selling out to corporate interests. Further criticism was provoked by a decision to take paid Google ads on the Freecycle web site, contrary to the initial stated principles, and by Beal's green amabassador role for WMI [2] (<http://www.wastemanagementcanada.com/Community/freecycle.asp>).
- Use of Funds. Some members have challenged how sponsorship funds have been allocated. The initial goals were to use this for a new website, Beal's salary and lawyers' fees. After the first year, the new web site had not appeared, although $45K had received by Beal in salary, and an unstated sum spent on legal expenses. However, the web site is claimed to be on schedule for Q1 2006. Further criticism has been attracted by the friends-and-family board structure, which prevents The Freecycle Network from full registration as a non-profit and efficient use of donations. Beal defends this as a necessary interim measure whilst the organization grows rapidly.
- Trademark. Beal has been criticized for vigorously defending Freecycle as a trademark, at the expense of closing down functioning user-run groups and reposing documents on logos and language for groups. Beal insists this is solely to prevent commercial interests taking the name and establishing an inappropriate freecycle.com. (Ironically, Whois shows the registration for freecycle.com was filed May 29, 2000, long before the current controversy.) Critics point out that it could equally be protected from corporate abuse by establishment as a generic term. Ironically, Beal himself initially used freecycle as a generic term, and early documents make frequent references to 'freecyclers' and 'freecycling', terms which now trigger letters from the Freecycle trademark protection team. A formal trademark opposition [3] (<http://ttabvue.uspto.gov/ttabvue/ttabvue-91168664-OPP-1.pdf>) was filed in January 2006. FreecycleSunnyvale filed a lawsuit in federal court against The Freecycle Network [4] (http://freesharing.org/gr/files/2006-01-18_FreecycleComplaint.pdf) in January 2006.

- Centralization. Opinion divides amongst Yahoo! list moderators on the merits of a single centralized forum versus the federation of individual Yahoo! Groups, and since there is no widespread consultation or firm schedule, many groups remain unaware of the centralization plan. The concentration of infrastructure has its parallels in TFN governance, with decisions and discussion on organization removed from the general mod squad group open to all local moderators, shifted to a smaller OIDG group, and finally to a handful of people known as the 'HUB' group [5] (<http://www.freecycle.org/aboutus.php?tpl=background>). Former colleagues of Beal cite his behavior as an example of so-called founderitis. [6] (<http://www.gwsae.org/executiveupdate/2004/December/founderitis.htm>)
- Removed groups. Freecycle began removing many groups not registered, or subsequently deregistered on TFN's web directory of freecycle groups. Group moderators receive cease-and-desist emails and a request made to Yahoo! to close the group account. This has happened to groups with as many as 4,500 active members, for example Baton Rouge, Louisiana [7] (<http://www.redstickfree.org/>)[8] (<http://groups.yahoo.com/group/RedStickFreeUse/>) and Ann Arbor, Michigan[9] (<http://a2ecycle.org/>). At times, mass deletions of up to 500 groups at one time have been alleged. Starting in North America, these purges extended later in 2005 to Europe where a group TFN alleged to be "rogue" was closed down in Leicestershire. The criteria for action, to quote from a TFN warning e-mail, "trademark-protected Freecycle name and logo, as well as any and all copyrighted texts, graphics, rules, and guidelines, in any part of the group including the title, or its URL".

As of February 2006, threatening emails from TFN have been issued to non-Freecycle groups, such as those associated with Freesharing.[10] (<http://www.sharingisgiving.org/>)

- Dismissing dissenters. The Freecycle Network have dismissed members who disagreed with or queried its practices and direction, deleting their messages from Freecycle administration forums, and have extended this to closing entire community groups moderated by dissenters.
