SARA FURGERSON

PLAINTIFF

vs.

Civil No. 6:22-cv-06080

COMMISSIONER, SOCIAL SECURITY ADMINISTRATION

MEMORANDUM OPINION

Sara Furgerson (“Plaintiff”) brings this action pursuant to § 205(g) of Title II of the Social Security Act (“The Act”), 42 U.S.C. § 405(g) (2010), seeking judicial review of a final decision of the Commissioner of the Social Security Administration (“SSA”) denying her applications for Supplemental Security Income (“SSI”), Disability Insurance Benefits (“DIB”), and period of disability under Titles II and XVI of the Act.

The Parties have consented to the jurisdiction of a magistrate judge to conduct all proceedings in this case, including conducting the trial, ordering the entry of a final judgment, and conducting all post-judgment proceedings. ECF No. 6.¹ Pursuant to this authority, the Court issues this memorandum opinion and orders the entry of a final judgment in this matter.

1. Background:

Plaintiff protectively filed her disability applications on July 22, 2020. (Tr. 804). In these applications, Plaintiff alleges being disabled due to bipolar disorder, PTSD, depression, anxiety disorder, panic disorder, knee problems, insomnia, degenerative disc disease, and high blood pressure. (Tr. 1161). Plaintiff originally alleged an onset date of September 14, 2019, but she later amended this alleged onset date to September 30, 2019. (Tr. 804). These applications were denied initially on December 8, 2020, and these applications were denied again upon reconsideration on March 16, 2021. Id.

After these denials, Plaintiff requested an administrative hearing, and this hearing request was granted. (Tr. 826-866). Plaintiff's administrative hearing was held on September 8, 2021, and this hearing was held in Little Rock, Arkansas. Id. Plaintiff was present and was represented by Tisha Martin at this hearing. Id. Plaintiff and Vocational Expert ("VE") Joyce Brumbaugh testified at this hearing. Id.

On January 21, 2022, after the administrative hearing, the ALJ entered a fully unfavorable denying Plaintiff's applications. (Tr. 801-825). The ALJ found Plaintiff met the insured status requirements of the Act through June 30, 2021. (Tr. 807, Finding 1). The ALJ determined Plaintiff had not engaged in Substantial Gainful Activity ("SGA") since September 30, 2019, her amended alleged onset date. (Tr. 807, Finding 2). The ALJ determined Plaintiff had the following severe impairments: degenerative joint disease status post total knee arthroplasty, degenerative disc disease, morbid obesity, bipolar II disorder, and post-traumatic stress disorder and anxiety. (Tr. 808, Finding 3). Despite being severe, the ALJ also determined Plaintiff did not have an impairment or combination of impairments that met or medically equaled one of the listed impairments in 20 C.F.R. Part 404, Subpart P, Appendix 1 ("Listings"). (Tr. 808-811, Finding 5).

The ALJ determined Plaintiff was thirty-nine (39) years old on her alleged disability onset date. (Tr. 816, Finding 7). Such an individual is defined as a "younger individual" under 20 C.F.R. § 404.1563(c) and 20 C.F.R. § 416.963(c). (Tr. 816, Finding 7). The ALJ determined Plaintiff had at least a high school education. (Tr. 816, Finding 8).

In this decision, the ALJ evaluated Plaintiff's subjective allegations and determined her Residual Functional Capacity ("RFC"). (Tr. 811-816, Finding 5). Specifically, the ALJ found Plaintiff retained the following RFC:

After careful consideration of the entire record, the undersigned finds that the claimant has the residual functional capacity to perform sedentary work. She can occasionally use stairs, stoop, crouch, bend, kneel and crawl. Nonexertionally, the claimant can perform tasks which are simple, routine and repetitive. These tasks would be consistent with unskilled work as characterized in the Dictionary of Occupational Titles (DOT). The claimant occasionally interact with coworkers, supervisors and the public (20 CFR 404.1567(a) and 416.967(a)).

Id.

The ALJ evaluated Plaintiff's Past Relevant Work ("PRW") and determined Plaintiff was unable to perform any of her PRW. (Tr. 816, Finding 6). The ALJ then considered whether Plaintiff retained the capacity to perform other work existing in significant numbers in the national economy. (Tr. 817, Finding 10). In making this determination, the ALJ relied upon the testimony of the VE. Id. Based upon the VE's testimony, the ALJ determined Plaintiff retained the capacity to perform the following occupations: (1) document preparer (unskilled, sedentary) with approximately 17,000 such jobs in the national economy; (2) addresser (unskilled, sedentary) with approximately 2,100 such jobs in the national economy; and (3) surveillance system monitor (unskilled, sedentary) with approximately 2,500 such jobs in the national economy. (Tr. 817). Because Plaintiff retained the capacity to perform this other work, the ALJ determined Plaintiff had not been under a disability, as defined by the Act, from September 30, 2019 through the date of his decision or through January 21, 2022. (Tr. 817, Finding 11).

Plaintiff requested the Appeals Council's review of the ALJ's unfavorable disability determination. On June 13, 2022, the Appeals Council declined to review the ALJ's disability determination. (Tr. 1-6). On July 15, 2022, Plaintiff filed the present appeal. ECF No. 1. The Parties consented to the jurisdiction of this Court on July 18, 2022. ECF No. 6. This case is now ready for decision.

2. Applicable Law:

In reviewing this case, this Court is required to determine whether the Commissioner's findings are supported by substantial evidence on the record as a whole. See 42 U.S.C. § 405(g) (2010); Ramirez v. Barnhart, 292 F.3d 576, 583 (8th Cir. 2002). Substantial evidence is less than a preponderance of the evidence, but it is enough that a reasonable mind would find it adequate to support the Commissioner's decision. See Johnson v. Apfel, 240 F.3d 1145, 1147 (8th Cir. 2001). As long as there is substantial evidence in the record that supports the Commissioner's decision, the Court may not reverse it simply because substantial evidence exists in the record that would have supported a contrary outcome or because the Court would have decided the case differently. See Haley v. Massanari, 258 F.3d 742, 747 (8th Cir. 2001). If, after reviewing the record, it is possible to draw two inconsistent positions from the evidence and one of those positions represents the findings of the ALJ, the decision of the ALJ must be affirmed. See Young v. Apfel, 221 F.3d 1065, 1068 (8th Cir. 2000).

It is well-established that a claimant for Social Security disability benefits has the burden of proving his or her disability by establishing a physical or mental disability that lasted at least one year and that prevents him or her from engaging in any substantial gainful activity. See Cox v. Apfel, 160 F.3d 1203, 1206 (8th Cir. 1998); 42 U.S.C. §§ 423(d)(1)(A), 1382c(a)(3)(A). The Act defines a "physical or mental impairment" as "an impairment that results from anatomical, physiological, or psychological abnormalities which are demonstrable by medically acceptable clinical and laboratory diagnostic techniques." 42 U.S.C. §§ 423(d)(3), 1382(3)(c). A plaintiff must show that his or her disability, not simply his or her impairment, has lasted for at least twelve consecutive months. See 42 U.S.C. § 423(d)(1)(A).

To determine whether the adult claimant suffers from a disability, the Commissioner uses the familiar five-step sequential evaluation. He determines: (1) whether the claimant is presently engaged in a “substantial gainful activity”; (2) whether the claimant has a severe impairment that significantly limits the claimant’s physical or mental ability to perform basic work activities; (3) whether the claimant has an impairment that meets or equals a presumptively disabling impairment listed in the regulations (if so, the claimant is disabled without regard to age, education, and work experience); (4) whether the claimant has the Residual Functional Capacity (RFC) to perform his or her past relevant work; and (5) if the claimant cannot perform the past work, the burden shifts to the Commissioner to prove that there are other jobs in the national economy that the claimant can perform. See Cox, 160 F.3d at 1206; 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1520(a)-(f). The fact finder only considers the plaintiff’s age, education, and work experience in light of his or her RFC if the final stage of this analysis is reached. See 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1520, 416.920 (2003).

3. Discussion:

In her appeal brief, Plaintiff raised the following two arguments for reversal: (1) the ALJ erred in assessing her impairments under the Listings; and (2) the ALJ erred in assessing her subjective complaints. ECF No. 15. Because the Court finds the ALJ erred in assessing Plaintiff’s subjective allegations and in assessing her RFC, the Court will only address Plaintiff’s second argument for reversal.

The Court notes that in assessing the subjective allegations of a claimant, the ALJ is required to examine and to apply the five factors from Polaski v. Heckler, 739 F.2d 1320 (8th Cir.

1984) or from 20 C.F.R. § 404.1529 and 20 C.F.R. § 416.929.² See Shultz v. Astrue, 479 F.3d 979, 983 (2007). The factors to consider are as follows: (1) the claimant’s daily activities; (2) the duration, frequency, and intensity of the pain; (3) the precipitating and aggravating factors; (4) the dosage, effectiveness, and side effects of medication; and (5) the functional restrictions. See Polaski, 739 at 1322.

The factors must be analyzed and considered in light of the claimant’s subjective allegations of pain. See id. The ALJ is not required to methodically discuss each factor as long as the ALJ acknowledges and examines these factors prior to discounting the claimant’s subjective allegations. See Lowe v. Apfel, 226 F.3d 969, 971-72 (8th Cir. 2000). As long as the ALJ properly applies these five factors and gives several valid reasons for finding that the Plaintiff’s subjective allegations are not entirely reliable, the ALJ’s determination of subjective allegations is entitled to deference. See id.; Cox v. Barnhart, 471 F.3d 902, 907 (8th Cir. 2006). The ALJ, however, cannot discount Plaintiff’s subjective allegations “solely because the objective medical evidence does not fully support them [the subjective allegations].” Polaski, 739 F.2d at 1322.

When discounting a claimant’s subjective allegations of pain, the ALJ must make a specific determination regarding that claimant’s subjective allegations, articulating the reasons for discrediting the testimony, addressing any inconsistencies, and discussing the Polaski factors. See Baker v. Apfel, 159 F.3d 1140, 1144 (8th Cir. 1998). The inability to work without some pain or discomfort is not a sufficient reason to find a Plaintiff disabled within the strict definition of the ² Social Security Regulations 20 C.F.R. § 404.1529 and 20 C.F.R. § 416.929 require the analysis of two additional factors: (1) “treatment, other than medication, you receive or have received for relief of your pain or other symptoms” and (2) “any measures you use or have used to relieve your pain or symptoms (e.g., lying flat on your back, standing for 15 to 20 minutes every hour, sleeping on a board, etc.).” However, under Polaski and its progeny, the Eighth Circuit has not yet required the analysis of these additional factors. See Shultz v. Astrue, 479 F.3d 979, 983 (2007). Thus, this Court will not require the analysis of these additional factors in this case.

Act. The issue is not the existence of pain, but whether the pain a Plaintiff experiences precludes the performance of substantial gainful activity. See Thomas v. Sullivan, 928 F.2d 255, 259 (8th Cir. 1991).

In the present action, the Court finds the ALJ did not provide sufficient reasons for discounting Plaintiff's subjective allegations. In his opinion, the ALJ discounted Plaintiff's subjective complains for the following reasons:

After careful consideration of the evidence, the undersigned finds that the claimant's medically determinable impairments could reasonably be expected to cause the alleged symptoms; however, the claimant's statements concerning the intensity, persistence and limiting effects of these symptoms are not entirely consistent with the medical evidence and other evidence in the record for the reasons explained in this decision.

(Tr. 812). Indeed, although the ALJ referenced "other evidence," he did not provide what that "other evidence" was, apart from Plaintiff's medical records. The ALJ instead found the following: "In regard to any other alleged disabling conditions and/or symptoms as alleged by the claimant, there is no objective medical evidence from which to conclude the claimant has required any more than intermittent evaluation and treatment at most." (Tr. 815).

Based upon this review, the Court finds the ALJ improperly discounted Plaintiff's subjective allegations based upon her medical records. See Polaski, 739 F.2d at 1322 (holding a claimant's subjective allegations cannot be discounted "solely because the objective medical evidence does not fully support them [the subjective allegations]"). Accordingly, because the ALJ provided an insufficient basis for discounting Plaintiff's subjective allegations, this case must be reversed and remanded.

4. Conclusion:

Based on the foregoing, the undersigned finds the ALJ's RFC determination and analysis of her subjective allegations are not supported by substantial evidence in the record. As such, this case is reversed and remanded for further findings consistent with this opinion. A judgment incorporating these findings will be entered pursuant to Federal Rules of Civil Procedure 52 and 58.

ENTERED this 27th day of March 2023.
