- 1. I am a model and actress, and am married. I was photographed by Perfect 10 in 1998 and then later by Playboy. Playboy made me their 2001 Playboy playmate of the month. I am a former Elite model and I am currently with Wilhemina Models. I recently appeared in the movie Reno 911!:Miami and am a series regular in the Cartoon Network show, Saul of the Molemen. I do quite a bit of print and commercial work, for such companies as JC Penney, Rampage, Kohls, Carls Junior, Budweiser, Saint Pauli Girl, Orkin, Skyy Vodka, Bacardi, and many others.
- 2. I am proud of my body and do not have a problem being photographed nude, as long as the images are tasteful. I believe that the photos of me that appeared in Perfect 10 and Playboy are tasteful.
- 3. I never expected that Google and other search engines would copy my Perfect 10 pictures without permission and make them available to hundreds of millions of users. And I certainly never expected that Google and the other search engines would allow their image search results on my name to falsely portray me as being engaged in explicit sexual acts, or to falsely suggest that I am a porn star or a prostitute. Google and other search engines have damaged me to the point where on IMDB, the index frequently consulted for reliable information on actresses, there is a discussion of whether or not I am a porn star. Google allows searches not only on my name, but also on my name combined with terms like "pornstar," "escort," "sex," and "prostitute." These searches lead to very explicit images involving my name that are infuriating me and could easily ruin my career. For example, on the first page of Google Image Search results on "Irina Voronina" pornstar, and on the 11th page of Google Image Search results on my name, there is a picture of a blond girl giving oral sex, with my name, Irina Voronina, below the picture. That is not a picture of me, even though it shows up on a Google Image Search of my name. There are real pictures of me, that Google uses without my permission, on the same page and on the other pages of the Google Image Search. Hollywood producers and directors, and other people looking at the picture of the blond girl giving oral sex, would think it was me. For the Google Image search "Irina Voronina" escort, the very first image of me is from the website escortsex.cz, where I am falsely portrayed to be an escort. Escortsex.cz does not have permission to use any picture of me, and Google does not have permission to copy those pictures and post them on Google's website, indicating that I am an escort. On page 40 of Google Image search results on my name, there are two pictures of a blonde girl having intercourse with one man and giving another man oral sex. Again, that is not a picture of me, even though it shows up on a Google Image Search of my name, with real pictures of me. The website is called explaymates.com, which does not have permission to use any of my pictures. Once again, people could think that was me.

- 4. I do not want Google to show any image of me or to use my name in any way that falsely suggests that I have been filmed performing explicit sexual acts, or that I am a porn star or a prostitute. I am trying very hard to become a successful actress and such actions by Google can ruin my career and I suspect have already damaged it a lot. I do not want my friends, business associates, or family members to falsely believe that I am a prostitute or a porn star.
- 5. I assigned my rights of publicity to Perfect 10 in the hope that Perfect 10 could stop Google from destroying my reputation by using my name and images, and make money from doing it, without any concern for my reputation or my rights, and without my permission. I do not have the resources to sue Google myself. Perfect 10 also paid me for the assignment of rights.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the United States of America that the foregoing is true and correct to the best of my knowledge.

Executed on September 20, 2007, at Los Angeles, California.
