Q. BY MS. BORODKIN: Do you think people are intimidated by the idea of filing a lawsuit against you?

MR. GINGRAS: Objection. Foundation.

Q. BY MS. BORODKIN: You can answer.

A. I don't feel I intimidate anyone, so I would say the answer is, no, I don't think so.

Q. Do you think your attorneys are intimidating?

A. I hope so.

Q. Have you --

A. Intimidating, I don't know -- in what context do you mean intimidating? My attorneys are very nice. It depends how one wants to classify. I'm not sure how to answer the question.

Q. The idea that somebody might wind up paying your legal fees, do you think that's intimidating?

MR. GINGRAS: Objection, form.

Q. BY MS. BORODKIN: You can answer?

THE WITNESS: I can't speculate on what somebody else is thinking.

Q. BY MS. BORODKIN: Who wrote the portion of the Ripoff Report website that says, if you are thinking about suing us, read this first?

A. Who wrote it?

Q. Uh-huh.

A. One of my attorneys.

Q. Did you ask them to write it?

MR. GINGRAS: Objection asks for attorney-client privilege. Instruct the witness not to answer.

Q. BY MS. BORODKIN: Why is it up there?

A. To did he tefr lawsuits, frivolous lawsuits.

Q. What's a frivolous lawsuit?

MR. GINGRAS: Objection. Calls for a legal conclusion.

THE WITNESS: Asia economic versus ed Magedson Ripoff Report.

Q. BY MS. BORODKIN: What makes it frivolous?

A. Because it has already been proven that your client is a liar. There isn't a shred of truth of anything that he has said, and you are in the mode of grasping onto anything else that you can create right now.

Q. How do you mean?

MR. GINGRAS: Objection, form.

THE WITNESS: I'm not a lawyer, I can't -- that would take a leap somebody with a legal background to explain, probably.
