David,

Taking your week is fine.

I have appreciated your quick responses in the past and hope you will let us know sooner if you are able. We'd like to take the depositions as soon as you are ready.

Will you again agree to split costs of the transcript of the July 24, 2010 proceedings to avoid any confusion?

Thanks.

Lisa

Lisa,

To add my 2 cents –

First, Magistrate Walsh gave us a week to review this and respond, so please don't jump the gun and ask to make a call to the court before we've had a chance to really review this and give you our position. We will look at all of this and give you our position by next Friday.

Second, I am 100% certain that you're still asking for many things you already have. For instance, re: the documents you list, putting aside the other objections we had, probably more than half of these are things you already have (we know this because they are docs Tina Norris gave you).

Beyond this, I see a lot of other points that Maria and I need to review and discuss with Ed before we're in a position to know exactly where the legitimate disputes are.

Maria,

That is not true. There were other unanswered questions that I omitted as irrelevant. Sorry, I meant to delete the question about the phone vendor.

The rest are, we believe, relevant to trial. Let's call Magistrate Walsh on Monday if you disagree.

I am not sure if you misunderstood the Magistrate, or have chosen to disregard his ruling. Your letter merely lists every question that was not answered. The Magistrate expressed that he had no interest in reviewing a 3-page list of every single question that was not answered. He asked us (both sides) to work together to narrow these issues. Instead, you have just listed everything. How is that helpful?

Can you please send, as instructed by the Magistrate, a list of the items that were not answered, that are relevant to the claims to be tried in August, and that you really believe you need answered for the trial.

Counsel:

Here is the letter ordered by the Court yesterday regarding additional subject areas for oral examination.

Please note that there are no line numbers on the rough transcript from the Magedson deposition. Accordingly, they are referenced by page number only.

We would also like to schedule the deposition of Ben Smith for the same day. Please let me know a few dates that work for both of them.

Thanks,

Lisa
