TO ALL PARTIES AND THEIR ATTORNEYS OF RECORD:

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that on April 19, 2010 at 1:30 PM or as soon thereafter as counsel may be heard in courtroom 6 of the above-entitled court located at 312 North Spring Street Los Angeles, CA 90012, Defendants XCENTRIC VENTURES, LLC (“Xcentric”) and EDWARD MAGEDSON (“Magedson”; collectively “Defendants”) will move the Court for an order striking certain claims in the Complaint pursuant to California Code of Civil Procedure § 425.16. Defendants further request an award of attorney’s fees and costs incurred pursuant to CCP § 426.16(c).

In addition, Defendants move the Court for an order requiring Plaintiffs to file a RICO case statement in the form attached hereto as Exhibit A.

The motion will be based on this Notice, the accompanying Memorandum of Points and Authorities, Affidavit of Edward Magedson and exhibits, all pleadings and records on file herein, and upon such other and further oral and documentary evidence as may be presented prior to or at the time of the hearing.

This motion is made following the conference of counsel pursuant to L.R. 7-3 which took place on various dates including February 3, 2010, March 1, 2010, March 15, 2010 and March 22, 2010.

1 MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

2 I. INTRODUCTION

3 This is a case about incorrectly assigning blame to the wrong party. As explained 4 below, Plaintiffs are trying to blame a website (RipoffReport.com) for “publishing” 5 material that the site did not create. This theory is directly prohibited by federal law and 6 for that reason, Plaintiffs cannot establish their burden of showing a likelihood of success 7 at trial as required by California’s anti-SLAPP statute, Cal. Code Civ. P. § 425.16.

8 Prior to 1996, if a website published defamatory content written by a third party, 9 the site itself could be held legally responsible. Concerned about the dramatic impact this 10 would have on Internet speech, Congress expressly abrogated this theory in 1996 by 11 enacting the Communications Decency Act, 47 U.S.C. § 230(c) (“CDA”). With very 12 limited exceptions, the CDA prohibits holding website operators liable for user-generated 13 content (“UCG”) unless the site itself created or materially altered the offending material.

14 Some litigants dislike the CDA because it prevents them from assigning blame to, 15 and seeking compensation from, the presumably deeper pockets of website operators as 16 opposed to the actual author of the offending statements who may be judgment-proof.
17 Nevertheless, courts have unanimously and repeatedly found that Ripoff Report is 18 entitled to full immunity under the CDA. The facts of this case are identical to prior 19 cases where courts have reached that conclusion, and the same result should follow here.

20 II. BACKGROUND

21 A. Parties

22 Defendant Xcentric Ventures operates the website www.RipoffReport.com which 23 was founded in 1998 by Defendant ED MAGEDSON (“Mr. Magedson”). See Affidavit
24 of Edward Magedson (“Magedson Aff.”) ¶ 2. The Ripoff Report site allows consumers 25 to post free comments, criticism, and complaints about companies who they feel have 26 wronged them in some manner. As of March 2010, the site contains in excess of 500,000 27 unique complaints (called “reports”). When expanded to include responses to reports 28 (called “rebuttals”), the site contains millions of original entries. Magedson Aff. ¶ 5.

1 According to ¶ 3 of its Complaint, Plaintiff ASIA ECONOMIC INSTITUTE 2 (“AEI”) is a “free on-line non-governmental publication, that publishes current news that 3 is not involved in sales or marketing.” The Complaint further asserts that “AEI was in 4 the process of providing work opportunities for numerous Americans who are currently 5 unemployed,” though it is unclear whether this means that AEI was also an employment 6 or job placement agency helping third parties to find jobs. AEI’s Complaint (¶¶ 4, 5)
7 briefly mentions Plaintiffs RAYMOND MOBREZ (“Mr. Mobrez”) and ILIANA 8 LLANERAS (“Ms. Llaneras”), though their relationship to AEI is not clear. Presumably, 9 Mr. Mobrez and/or Ms. Llaneras are owners or principals of AEI.

10 B. Factual Allegations

11 The Complaint is founded on two primary theories: 1.) defamation (arising from 12 statements posted on the Ripoff Report website); and 2.) RICO/racketeering/extortion 13 (arising from discussions between Plaintiffs and Mr. Magedson). To be clear—both 14 theories are entirely meritless. However, the RICO claims are (arguably) not based on 15 “protected conduct” within the meaning of CCP § 425.16 and therefore those two claims 16 are not included in this motion; they will be addressed at a later time.

17 Of the remaining claims, two (the first and sixth) are simple defamation claims.
18 All of the other causes of action are “defamation-related” in the sense that they are 19 premised on the same nucleus of facts—publication of allegedly false statements about 20 Plaintiffs on the Ripoff Report website resulting in damage. As explained herein, these 21 claims all fail for the same reason. As such, Xcentric will address these claims together:

22

Claim #	Defamation-Related Cause of Action/Title
1	Common Law Defamation
2	Unfair Business Practices
5	Civil Conspiracy
6	Defamation Per Se
7	False Light
8	Intentional Interference w/ Prospective Economic Relations
9	Negligent Interference w/ Prospective Economic Relations
10	Inducing Breach of Contract

25
26
27
28

1           The factual basis of these is simple. According to ¶¶ 24 and 25 of the Complaint, 2 AEI claims that four “reports” (complaints) about AEI, Mr. Mobrez and/or Ms. Llaneras 3 were posted on the Ripoff Report website containing various inaccurate statements which 4 are outlined in some detail in ¶ 28. AEI claims these statements are untrue and its first 5 cause of action (common-law defamation) alleges: “Defendants published defamatory 6 materials on Defendants’ websites regarding Plaintiffs.” Compl. ¶ 44 (emphasis added).
7 AEI’s sixth cause of action (defamation per se) contains similar allegations of wrongful 8 publication; “Defendants published the statements attached hereto ....” Compl. ¶ 81.
9 The seventh cause of action (false light) does not mention the word “publish”, but it 10 clearly seeks to treat Xcentric and Magedson as the “speakers” of the words contained in 11 the four reports about AEI; “Defendants’ statements have placed Plaintiffs in a false light 12 ... .” Compl. ¶ 88 (emphasis added).

13           Although not directly labeled as “defamation”, AEI’s other claims seek to impose 14 liability on Xcentric and Magedson based on harm arising indirectly from the publication 15 of these four reports. For example, AEI’s eighth cause of action for intentional 16 interference with economic relations is based on the same acts—publishing derogatory 17 statements—as the defamation claims: “Defendants intentionally and wrongfully 18 interfered with these relationships by knowingly publishing, creating, and soliciting 19 negative, false, and defamatory content in exchange for their own business profit.” 20 Compl. ¶ 95 (emphasis added). This identical allegation supports AEI’s ninth cause of 21 action (see Compl. ¶ 101) and tenth cause of action (see Compl. ¶ 107).

22           As explained below, such claims fall within the aegis of California’s anti-SLAPP 23 law and, furthermore, the Communications Decency Act bars these claims because it 24 expressly provides that website operators such as Xcentric and Magedson cannot be 25 treated as the “speaker or publisher” of material created by someone else. Because the 26 CDA bars these types of claims, AEI cannot meet its burden of establishing a probability 27 of success as a matter of law. For that reason, the court should strike AEI’s defamation 28 and defamation-related claims pursuant to CCP § 425.16.

1 III. ARGUMENT

2 A. The Anti-SLAPP Law Applies To This Action

3 As the court is aware, California’s anti-SLAPP law “was enacted to allow early 4 dismissal of meritless first amendment cases aimed at chilling expression through costly, 5 time-consuming litigation.” Metabolife Int’l v. Wornick, 264 F.3d 832, 839 (9th Cir.
6 2001). Despite being a creature of state-law, “California anti-SLAPP motions to strike 7 and entitlement to fees and costs are available to litigants proceeding in federal court ...
8 .” Thomas v. Fry’s Electronics, Inc., 400 F.3d 1206 (9th Cir. 2005); see also Global 9 Telemedia Int’l, Inc. v. Doe, 132 F.Supp.2d 1261 (C.D.Cal. 2001) (applying anti-SLAPP 10 statute to defamation claims pending in federal court).

11 When considering an anti-SLAPP motion, the court must first perform a two-step 12 analysis. In the first step, “the court decides whether the defendant has made a threshold 13 showing that the challenged cause of action is one ‘arising from’ protected activity 14 [within the meaning of § 425.16].” Kronemyer v. Internet Movie Data Base, Inc., 150 15 Cal.App.4th 941, 946, 59 Cal.Rptr.3d 48, 52 (2007). As explained by the California 16 Supreme Court, this showing is met “by demonstrating that the act underlying the 17 plaintiff’s cause fits one of the categories spelled out in section 425.16, subdivision (e) ...
18 .” City of Cotati v. Cashman, 29 Cal.4th 69, 78, 52 P.3d 695 (2002).

19 The acts set forth in CCP § 425.16(e) include, inter alia, the following:

- 20 (3) any written or oral statement or writing made in a place open to the 21 public or a public forum in connection with an issue of public interest; 22 (4) or any other conduct in furtherance of the exercise of the constitutional 23 right of petition or the constitutional right of free speech in connection 24 with a public issue or an issue of public interest.

25 California Courts have consistently interpreted the words “public place or public forum” 26 to include websites; “Web sites accessible to the public ... are ‘public forums’ for 27 purposes of the anti-SLAPP statute.” Barrett v. Rosenthal, 40 Cal.4th 33, 41, n. 4, 51 28 Cal.Rptr.3d 55, 59 n. 4, 146 P.3d 510, 514 n. 4 (2006) (citing extensive authority for premise); Kronemyer, 150 Cal.App.4th at 950, 59 Cal.Rptr.3d at 55 (finding, “We are

1 satisfied that respondent’s website constitutes a public forum.”) Here, it is clear that a 2 publicly accessible website such as the Ripoff Report is a “public forum” within the 3 meaning of the anti-SLAPP statute. See Global Telemedia, 132 F.Supp.2d at 1264 4 (finding statements posted on Internet message board were made in a ‘public place or 5 public forum’ within the meaning of CCP § 425.16(e)).

6 Next, a defendant must establish that the Complaint arises from conduct within 7 either CCP § 425.16(e)(3) (speech in a public forum relating to “an issue of public 8 interest”) or CCP § 425.16(e)(4) (“any other conduct in furtherance of the exercise of ...
9 the constitutional right of free speech in connection with a public issue or an issue of 10 public interest.”) In this case, both CCP §§ 425.16(e)(3) and (e)(4) are implicated, albeit 11 in two completely different ways—one relates to the speech of the author(s) of the four 12 reports about AEI, while the other relates to the speech and conduct of Mr. Magedson 13 and the Ripoff Report as entirely separate and apart from anything written by Ripoff 14 Report’s users.

15 1. The Reports Involve Public Issues Under CCP § 425.16(e)(3)

16 First, as explained in ¶ 37 of the affidavit of Ed Magedson, AEI’s Complaint 17 alleges that four separate postings on the Ripoff Report website contain various false 18 statements. Copies of these reports are attached as Exhibits to Mr. Magedson’s affidavit 19 as follows:

20

Exhibit	Report #	Submission Date
F	417493	January 28, 2009
G	423987	February 13, 2009
H	457433	June 1, 2009
I	502429	September 30, 2009

22
23
24
25

26 In ¶ 28 of the Complaint, AEI describes these reports as containing statements 27 which accuse it of systematically mistreating employees in various ways. Most 28 specifically, the allegations accuse AEI of failing to pay employees, reducing pay

1 ‘illegally’, promising to help employees obtain work visa and then failing to do so, 2 ignoring employment laws, and hiring/firing based on race, religion and gender, among 3 other things. Reduced to their simplest possible terms, these statements can be 4 summarized as suggesting that AEI is a bad place to work.

5 Based on conversations with AEI’s counsel during the meet-and-confer process, it 6 became apparent that the parties strongly disagree as to whether these statements involve 7 “public issues” or “public interest” as required by CCP § 425.16. Xcentric’s position is 8 that this type of “consumer protection information” and “information ostensibly provided 9 to aid consumers ...” generally does involve matters of public concern. See Wilbanks v.
10 Wolk, 121 Cal.App.4th 883, 89–900, 17 Cal.Rptr.3d 497, 507–08 (2004); see also Church
11 of Scientology of Cal. v. Wollersheim, 42 Cal.App.4th 628, 651, 49 Cal.Rptr.2d 620, 633 12 (1996) (disapproved of on other grounds by Equilon Enters. v. Consumer Cause, Inc., 29 13 Cal.4th 53, 124 Cal.Rptr.2d 507 (2002)). In addition, statements posted on Internet 14 message boards which question and criticize the business practices or ethics of 15 individuals who interact with the public are matters of public interest and concern. See 16 Sipple v. Foundation For Nat’l Progress, 71 Cal.App.4th 226, 238–40, 83 Cal.Rptr.2d 17 677 (App. 1999) (statement that a nationally known political consultant abused his 18 former wife was a matter of public interest); Barrett, 40 Cal.4th at 40, 146 P.3d at 513–14 19 (finding statements posted on Internet which criticized character and competence of 20 doctor were within scope of anti-SLAPP statute); Global Telemedia, 132 F.Supp.2d at 21 1265–66 (holding statements posted on Internet by investors criticizing business practices 22 of company were matters of public concern).

23 However, Xcentric concedes that authority exists for the principle that “Unlawful 24 workplace activity below some threshold level of significance is not an issue of public 25 interest, even though it implicates a public policy.” Rivero v. American Federation of 26 State, County, and Municipal Employees, AFL-CIO, 105 Cal.App.4th 913, 924, 130 27 Cal.Rptr.2d 81 (1st DCA 2003) (noting “a ‘public concern’ test, amounts to little more 28 than a message to judges and attorneys that no standards are necessary because they will,

1 or should, know a public concern when they see it.”) (quoting Briggs v. Eden Council for 2 Hope & Opportunity, 19 Cal.4th 1106, 1122, 81 Cal.Rptr.2d 471, 969 P.2d 564 (1999)).

3 Despite this, Xcentric contends that AEI has viewed the law too narrowly and that 4 when considered in their broader context, the statements at issue involve obvious matters 5 of public interest and concern—e.g., the question of whether this company is a good and 6 safe place to work. Indeed, with the United States currently experiencing record levels 7 of unemployment with millions of people looking for work, discussions about which 8 companies may not pay their employees in a timely fashion or which companies mistreat 9 their employees on a regular basis are matters of substantial public interest. The reports 10 at issue relate directly to that topic and nothing further is needed to find that the “public 11 issue” requirement of CCP § 425.16(e)(3) has been met.

12 This was the holding in Gilbert v. Sykes, 147 Cal.App.4th 13, 53 Cal.Rptr.3d 752 13 (3rd DCA 2007) which involved a patient who was unhappy with some plastic surgery 14 performed by her doctor. The patient sued her doctor for malpractice and also created a 15 website (www.mysurgerynightmare.com) where the patient posted photos and stories 16 outlining her dissatisfaction with her doctor. Based on statements made on the website, 17 the doctor counterclaimed against the patient for defamation and the patient moved to 18 strike under the anti-SLAPP statute. The trial court denied the motion, in part, but the 19 Court of Appeals reversed finding that the comments about the doctor were within the 20 scope of CCP § 425.16. See Gilbert, 147 Cal.App.4th at 22–23, 53 Cal.Rptr. at 760–61.

21 Obviously, most elective medical procedures such as cosmetic plastic surgery are 22 uniquely private. In addition, the doctor/patient relationship is so inherently private that 23 it is among those few important relationships protected by privilege laws including Cal.
24 Evid. Code § 994 (recognizing doctor-patient privilege). Despite this, the court in Gilbert 25 rejected the doctor’s arguments that the anti-SLAPP statute did not apply because the 26 statements were not public issues; “Sykes asserts that statements on the Web site do not 27 contribute to the public debate because they only concern Gilbert’s interactions with him.
28 He is wrong.” Gilbert, 147 Cal.App. at 23; 53 Cal.Rptr.3d at 760–61 (emphasis added).

1           Instead, the Gilbert court noted that the website contributed to the broader 2 discussion about the topic of plastic surgery in general, and that because the public 3 viewed that topic as important and interesting, CCP § 425.15(e)(3) applied because the 4 site, “contributes toward public discussion about the benefits and risks of plastic surgery 5 in general, and particularly among persons contemplating plastic surgery as a means of 6 looking younger or improving their appearance.” Gilbert, 147 Cal.App. at 23; 53 7 Cal.Rptr.3d at 761.

8           Applying this logic here, the statements which give rise to AEI’s claims involve 9 matters of public interest because they discuss whether or not AEI is a good company to 10 work for. Regardless of whether AEI agrees with the views expressed in the reports, this 11 general topic is certainly one of major public interest during these difficult economic 12 times and therefore these statements relate to “public issues” within the meaning of CCP 13 § 425.16(e)(3). In fact, AEI essentially concedes this point in ¶ 3 of its Complaint 14 wherein it alleges, “Plaintiffs’ business is an asset to the economy. AEI was in the 15 process of providing work opportunities for numerous Americans who are currently 16 unemployed.”

17           While it is certainly commendable and laudable for AEI to provide jobs and 18 employment opportunities to the public at large, it is hardly unexpected for the public to 19 engage in discussions about AEI’s suitability as an employer, or its lack thereof. This 20 important topic is covered by the national news media on a frequent basis, see, e.g.
21 <http://money.cnn.com/magazines/fortune/bestcompanies/2010/> (Fortune Magazine’s list 22 of “Top 100 Best Companies To Work For”), and the four postings at issue each 23 contribute something to the public discussion of that issue.

24           In addition, to the extent the statements are critical of AEI and its principals, the 25 California Supreme Court has found this type of criticism is within the scope of the anti-26 SLAPP statute. See Barrett, 40 Cal.4th at 40 note 2, 146 P.3d at 513 note 2 (statements 27 concerned public issues where they criticized the plaintiff as being “arrogant, bizarre, 28 closed-minded; emotionally disturbed, professionally incompetent, intellectually

1 dishonest, a dishonest journalist, sleazy, unethical, a quack, a thug, a bully, a Nazi, a 2 hired gun for vested interests, the leader of a subversive organization, and engaged in 3 criminal activity (conspiracy, extortion, filing a false police report, and other unspecified 4 acts.)”)

5 2. ROR/Magedson’s Conduct Implicates CCP § 425.16(e)(4)

6 Entirely separate and apart from AEI’s claims arising from the four user-generated 7 reports on the Ripoff Report site, it is worth noting that portions of AEI’s claims appear 8 to be focused on other conduct on the part of Mr. Magedson and Xcentric. As explained 9 below, Mr. Magedson’s conduct and his operation of the Ripoff Report website clearly 10 qualify as “conduct in furtherance of the exercise of ... the constitutional right of free 11 speech in connection with a public issue or an issue of public interest,” within the 12 meaning of CCP § 425.16(e)(4).

13 For instance, ¶ 18 of the Complaint alleges that Xcentric and Magedson use the 14 Ripoff Report site to “organize class action lawsuits ...” while ¶ 19 asserts that 15 Defendants use the website to “solicit ‘non-tax deductible donations’ ... .” Of course, 16 Mr. Magedson has a First Amendment right to solicit donations (whether or not they are 17 tax deductible) and to organize class-action lawsuits if he believes such action is 18 warranted. Furthermore, the Complaint is permeated by various claims of misconduct 19 relating to Xcentric’s Corporate Advocacy Program which, as explained in the affidavit 20 of Ed Magedson submitted herewith, is a customer service program offered by Xcentric 21 in conjunction with reports appearing on the Ripoff Report website. But again, Mr.
22 Magedson’s decision to engage in either consumer advocacy, corporate advocacy, or a 23 combination of the two fields is clearly “conduct in furtherance of the exercise of ... the 24 constitutional right of free speech in connection with a public issue or an issue of public 25 interest,” within the meaning of CCP § 425.16(e)(4). In other words, Mr. Magedson has 26 a First Amendment right to act as a consumer advocate and to post speech on the Ripoff 27 Report website explaining his views and opinions on matters of importance to consumers 28 such as informing the public of a company that has joined the CAP program.

1           Nevertheless, based on Mr. Magedson’s actions, AEI has asserted a claim for 2 Unfair Business Practices pursuant to Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200. Although some 3 of the allegations in the Complaint are factually nebulous (i.e., “Defendants have engaged 4 in conduct the utility of which is outweighed by the gravity of the consequences to the 5 Plaintiffs and the public.” Compl. ¶ 54(a)), it is equally clear that AEI’s claim arises in 6 part from Mr. Magedson’s conduct and speech while acting as a consumer advocate; 7 “Defendants represents themselves as consumer advocates. However, this description is 8 false and misleading.” Compl. ¶ 55(a).

9           Regardless of whether the four user-generated reports arise from “protected 10 activity”, it is clear that several of AEI’s claims are not based on that speech, but rather 11 they arise solely from the speech, actions and conduct of Mr. Magedson in his role as the 12 “ED”itor of the Ripoff Report site. Because Mr. Magedson’s conduct is itself “protected 13 activity” under CCP § 425.16(e)(4), Defendants have shown that this action is subject to 14 the anti-SLAPP statute.

15           B. Plaintiffs Must Establish A Probability of Success

16           Once the defendant establishes that the anti-SLAPP law applies, the burden shifts 17 to the plaintiff to establish “a probability that the plaintiff will prevail on the claim.”
18 Church of Scientology, 42 Cal.App.4th at 646, 49 Cal.Rptr.2d 620; CCP § 425.16(b)(1).
19 To satisfy this burden “plaintiff [is] required both to plead claims that were legally 20 sufficient, and to make a prima facie showing, by admissible evidence, of facts that 21 would merit a favorable judgment on those claims, assuming plaintiff’s evidence [is] 22 accepted.” 1-800 Contacts, Inc. v. Steinberg, 107 Cal.App.4th 568, 584, 132 Cal.Rptr.2d 23 789 (App. 2003) (citing Wilson v. Parker, Covert & Chidester, 28 Cal.4th 811, 821, 123 24 Cal.Rptr.2d 19, 50 P.3d 733 (2002)). When offered, the court must consider supporting 25 and opposing affidavits in making its determination. See CCP § 425.16(b)(2).

26           In addition, an anti-SLAPP motion may be based on “any defect in the plaintiff’s 27 action,” including failure to state a claim or failure to adduce evidence to support the 28 claim. Rogers v. Home Shopping Network, 57 F.Supp.2d 973, 976 (C.D.Cal. 1999).

1 This analysis also requires consideration of “defenses to the pleaded claims and, if so, 2 whether there is evidence to negate any such defenses.” McGarry v. University of San 3 Diego, 64 Cal.Rptr.3d 467, 476, 154 Cal.App.4th 97, 108 (App. 2007).

4 As explained herein, pursuant to the Communications Decency Act, Xcentric 5 cannot be held liable for the accuracy of material posted on the site by a third party user, 6 nor can Xcentric or Magedson be treated as the “publisher or speaker” of any user-7 generated material. In this case, there is no allegation that Xcentric or Magedson created 8 or changed any of the statements, and Defendants expressly deny doing so. See 9 Magedson Aff. ¶ 38. As such, the defamation and defamation-related claims have no 10 likelihood of success and they should be stricken from the Complaint.

11 C. Plaintiff Cannot Establish A Probability Of Success

12 1. Defendants Are Immune Under 47 U.S.C. § 230(c)(1)

13 Pursuant to the Communications Decency Act, 47 U.S.C. § 230(c)(1), website 14 providers and operators are immune from liability based on any statements created by a 15 third party. As the California Supreme Court has explained:

16 [B]y its terms section 230 exempts Internet intermediaries from defamation 17 liability for republication. The statutory immunity serves to protect online 18 freedom of expression and to encourage self-regulation, as Congress 19 intended. Section 230 has been interpreted literally. It does not permit 20 Internet service providers or users to be sued as “distributors,” nor does it 21 expose “active users” to liability.

22 Plaintiffs are free under section 230 to pursue the originator of a 23 defamatory Internet publication. Any further expansion of liability must 24 await Congressional action.

25 Barrett, 40 Cal.4th at 63, 146 P.3d at 529 (affirming order granting anti-SLAPP motion 26 based on finding that defendant was entitled to immunity under Section 230 of the CDA).

27 Consistent with the rule expressed in Barrett, numerous courts have held that 28 Xcentric, Mr. Magedson and the Ripoff Report website are entitled to complete immunity under the CDA. See Global Royalties, Ltd. v. Xcentric Ventures, LLC, 544 F.Supp.2d 929, 932 (D.Ariz. 2008) (finding Xcentric and Magedson immune under the CDA, and

1 further noting, “the CDA is a complete bar to suit against a website operator for its 2 ‘exercise of a publisher’s traditional editorial functions-such as deciding whether to 3 publish, withdraw, postpone or alter content.’”) (emphasis added) (quoting Zeran v.
4 America Online, Inc., 129 F.3d 327, 330 (4th Cir. 1997)); see also Whitney Information 5 Network, Inc. v. Xcentric Ventures, LLC, 2008 WL 450095 (M.D.Fla. 2008) (finding 6 Xcentric and Magedson entitled to immunity under CDA); GW Equity, LLC v. Xcentric 7 Ventures, LLC, 2009 WL 62173 (N.D.Tex. 2009) (same); Intellectual Art Multimedia, 8 Inc. v. Milewski, 2009 WL 2915273 (N.Y.Sup. Sept. 11, 2009) (same).

9 The same result should occur here. As explained in the affidavit of Ed Magedson 10 submitted herewith, none of the four postings at issue were created or altered by Xcentric 11 or Magedson. See Magedson Decl. ¶ 38. Furthermore, nothing in AEI’s Complaint 12 alleges that Xcentric or Magedson wrote or changed any of the reports. Instead, liability 13 is premised solely and exclusively on the fact that Ripoff Report has “published” material 14 written by its users. This is exactly the type of case where the CDA applies:

15 We must keep firmly in mind that this is an immunity statute we are 16 expounding, a provision enacted to protect websites against the evil of 17 liability for failure to remove offensive content. Websites are complicated 18 enterprises, and there will always be close cases where a clever lawyer 19 could argue that something the website operator did encouraged the 20 illegality. Such close cases, we believe, must be resolved in favor of 21 immunity, lest we cut the heart out of section 230 by forcing websites to 22 face death by ten thousand duck-bites, fighting off claims that they 23 promoted or encouraged-or at least tacitly assented to-the illegality of third 24 parties. Where it is very clear that the website directly participates in 25 developing the alleged illegality ... immunity will be lost. But in cases of 26 enhancement by implication or development by inference ... section 230 27 must be interpreted to protect websites not merely from ultimate liability, 28 but from having to fight costly and protracted legal battles.

25 Fair Housing Council of San Fernando Valley v. Roommates.com, Inc., 521 F.3d 1157, 26 1174–75 (9th Cir. 2008) (en banc) (emphasis added). Interestingly, AEI’s Complaint 27 appears to anticipate this problem and avoid it by claiming that Defendants’ unrelated 28 business activities are sufficient to result in a loss of CDA immunity:

1 It is important to note that Defendant Magedson, by his own admission, 2 clearly states that the [Corporate Advocacy Program] ‘... changes the 3 negative listing on search engines into a positive along with all the Reports 4 on Rip-off Report ...’ As a result, Defendants can not be afforded protection under § 230 of the CDA.

5 Compl. ¶ 32. Because it is anticipated that Plaintiffs will try to argue that Defendants’ 6 Corporate Advocacy Program or “CAP” is somehow unlawful and/or that it results in a 7 loss of CDA immunity, it is important to briefly comment about the program. In general, 8 plaintiffs who dislike Ripoff Report (because the site cannot be sued directly for the 9 statements posted by its users) often claim that the CAP program is a form of “extortion”.
10 In a nutshell, proponents of this theory claim that Mr. Magedson creates phony reports 11 about a victim’s company and then demands huge sums ($100,000–250,000) in order to 12 remove the fake posts. Since this conduct would clearly be unlawful, plaintiffs who 13 dislike the CDA will sometimes raise this theory in the hopes of convincing courts to find 14 that CDA immunity does not apply to the Ripoff Report.

15 To be clear—Ripoff Report does not engage in this conduct, period. In fact, in 16 every single case where the plaintiff has asserted any type of “extortion” related 17 argument based on the CAP program, such claims have always been dismissed on 18 summary judgment for lack of evidence (because the claims are purely fictional), or the 19 plaintiff has voluntarily dropped the claim immediately upon being ordered to file a 20 RICO case statement.

21 So, if the CAP program is not extortion, what is it? Rather than re-inventing the 22 wheel, the court is directed to a partial summary of the CAP program in the U.S. District 23 Court’s decision in Whitney Information Network v. Xcentric:

24 [T]he ROR website offers a Corporate Advocacy Business Remediation 25 and Consumer Satisfaction Program (“CAP Program”) to companies which 26 have had reports posted against them. In order to participate in the CAP 27 Program, a company must pay a fee and fulfill other requirements. In the 28 future, when a poster submits a report to the ROR website regarding this company, the report is not automatically posted on the ROR website.
Instead, the ROR website sends an e-mail to the poster who submitted the 1 report to let him or her know about the company’s participation in the 2 program. The company is then given the opportunity to address the report 3 with the poster. If the poster is satisfied with the response provided by the company, then the report is not published on the ROR website.

4 Whitney, 2008 WL 450095, * 6 (finding CAP irrelevant to application of the CDA).

5 In the Whitney case, the District Court noted that the plaintiff never participated in 6 the Corporate Advocacy Program and none of the statements at issue in the case had 7 anything to do with the program. See Whitney, 2008 WL 450095, * 6 note 16. Based on 8 these facts, which are identical to the facts here, the court concluded that the CDA fully 9 applied and that Xcentric and Magedson were entitled to summary judgment 10 notwithstanding the CAP program; “the Court determines that Defendants have 11 demonstrated that they are entitled to immunity under the CDA from the instant action, 12 and Defendants’ motion for summary judgment is due to be granted.” Id. at *12.

13 The same result was reached by the District Court in GW Equity, LLC v. Xcentric
14 Ventures, LLC in which the court unequivocally held that the Corporate Advocacy 15 Program does not affect Ripoff Report’s immunity under the CDA:

16 The evidence demonstrates that Defendants have a “Corporate Advocacy 17 Program,” in which, for a fee, Defendants will investigate “rip-off reports” 18 targeting a company and draft and post rebuttals to a negative report. The 19 Court does not find this makes Defendants “information content providers” 20 under the CDA. Plaintiff cites no case law demonstrating that such conduct 21 bars CDA immunity, and has not demonstrated that the “Corporate 22 Advocacy Program” has played any role in this case. Like other courts to consider this issue, this Court does not find the “Corporate Advocacy Program” prohibits Defendants from immunity under the CDA.

23 GW Equity, 2009 WL 62173, * 13 (emphasis added) (citing Global Royalties, Ltd. v.
24 Xcentric Ventures, LLC, 544 F.Supp.2d 929, 932–33 (D.Ariz. 2007) (rejecting plaintiff’s 25 argument that CAP made defendants responsible for the creation or development of all of 26 the posts on their website). Here, there is no serious question that AEI is attempting to 27 hold Defendants liable for the statements posted by third parties on the Ripoff Report 28 site. All of these statements were created by third party users of the website, not by

1 Xcentric or Mr. Magedson. As such, the CDA stands as a complete bar to liability and 2 therefore allowing this case to continue would be futile. Plaintiffs cannot establish any 3 chance of success at trial and therefore their defamation and defamation-related claims 4 should be stricken.

5 2. Defendants Did Not Create Or Alter Any Content At Issue In 6 This Case

7 Despite the robust nature of the CDA, it is well settled that a defendant who is 8 otherwise entitled to immunity under Section 230 will lose that protection if he or she 9 creates or materially changes the 3rd party/user-generated content and that edited/altered 10 material is allegedly false. See Fair Housing Council, 521 F.3d at 1169 (explaining, “a 11 website operator who edits in a manner that contributes to the alleged illegality-such as 12 by removing the word ‘not’ from a user’s message reading ‘[Name] did not steal the 13 artwork’ in order to transform an innocent message into a libelous one-is directly 14 involved in the alleged illegality and thus not immune.”) (brackets in original).

15 Of course, a website operator who creates or edits some content without changing 16 its original meaning is still entitled to immunity. See GW Equity, 2009 WL 62173, * 3 17 (noting, “under the CDA, an interactive computer service qualifies for immunity so long 18 as it does not also function as an information content provider for the portion of the 19 content at issue.”) (emphasis added) (citing Carafano v. Metrosplash.com, Inc., 339 F.3d 20 1119, 1123 (9th Cir. 2003)).

21 Based on these points and based on lengthy experience in defending numerous 22 similar cases, it is anticipated that AEI may assert that the CDA does not apply here 23 because Xcentric and/or Magedson created or materially altered some part of the four 24 statements at issue. Because this allegation (if proven true) would defeat CDA 25 immunity, many plaintiffs have been unable to resist the temptation of asserting such a 26 claim even though they knew it was factually groundless.

27 If such an allegation is made in response to this motion, two points should be 28 noted. First, in his affidavit Mr. Magedson states that neither he nor Xcentric created or

1 alter any of the postings about AEI. See Magedson Aff. ¶ 38. Second, this is not a Rule 2 12(b)(6) motion wherein the facts in the Complaint are assumed true. Rather, a plaintiff 3 opposing an anti-SLAPP motion must carry the burden of showing probable success at 4 trial, and this burden requires proof in the form of admissible evidence, not speculation; 5 “In opposing an anti-SLAPP motion, the plaintiff cannot rely on the allegations of the 6 complaint, but must produce evidence that would be admissible at trial. Thus, 7 declarations may not be based upon ‘information and belief’ and documents submitted 8 without the proper foundation are not to be considered.” HMS Capital, Inc. v. Lawyers 9 Title Co., 118 Cal.App.4th 204, 212 (2004).

10 Put simply, if AEI claims that Xcentric and/or Mr. Magedson created or altered 11 the statements which give rise to this action, it is required to submit competent proof and 12 admissible evidence supporting that allegation. Of course, because it is not true, no 13 evidence whatsoever exists to support this claim.

14 3. Plaintiffs Cannot Prevail On Their Claims Under § 17200

15 As noted above, although most of the claims in this case arise from the statements 16 contained in the four reports on the Ripoff Report website, Plaintiffs have at least one 17 claim (their second Cause of Action asserting a claim under Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code § 18 17200) which appears to arise solely from the speech, actions, and conduct of Ed 19 Magedson vis-à-vis his operation of the Ripoff Report site. Upon closer inspection, it is 20 difficult to determine exactly what unlawful conduct this claim seeks to punish, nor is it 21 apparent what relief Plaintiffs are seeking.

22 In terms of its factual basis, ¶ 53 of the Complaint appears to allege that 23 Defendants have engaged in “unlawful business acts or practices” in violation of Bus. & 24 Prof. Code § 17200 by attempting “to obtain AEI’s property through wrongful use of 25 actual or threatened fear ... .” However, as explained in the affidavit of Ed Magedson, 26 no such threat ever occurred. See Magedson Aff. ¶ 33. Likewise, ¶ 53(b) appears to 27 accuse Mr. Magedson of extortion by virtue of having “repeatedly and intentionally used 28

1 their Websites as a scheme to obtain money from AEI and other companies by means of 2 false and defamatory complaints created or solicited by Defendants.” Again, Mr.
3 Magedson expressly denies ever engaging in this conduct. See Magedson Aff. ¶ 33.

4 While it is unclear whether this claim alleges conduct sufficient to state a claim, it 5 is nevertheless clear that Plaintiffs cannot establish any probability of success for two 6 reasons. First, Mr. Magedson flatly denies that any of this alleged conduct ever occurred.
7 At no time did Mr. Magedson threaten Plaintiffs nor did Plaintiffs ever pay anything to 8 Xcentric. Because Plaintiffs must carry the burden of introducing admissible evidence to 9 support this claim and since no such evidence exists, they cannot meet their burden under 10 CCP § 415.16.

11 Second, even if Plaintiffs could show that they had been threatened as they have 12 alleged, this would still not entitle them to any relief. This is so because claims under 13 Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 are extremely narrow and the only available remedies are 14 restitution and injunctive relief. See Bradstreet v. Wong, 161 Cal.App.4th 1440, 75
15 Cal.Rptr.3d 253 (1st DCA 2008) (noting “A UCL action [under Bus. & Prof. Code § 16 17200] is equitable in nature; damages cannot be recovered. Civil penalties may be 17 assessed in public unfair competition actions, but the law contains no criminal provisions.
18 [U]nder the UCL, ‘[p]revailing plaintiffs are generally limited to injunctive relief and 19 restitution.’”) (emphasis added) (quoting Korea Supply Co. v. Lockheed Martin Corp., 29 20 Cal.4th 1134, 1144, 131 Cal.Rptr.2d 29, 63 P.3d 937 (2003)).

21 Here, it appears to be undisputed that Plaintiffs never paid anything to either 22 Xcentric or Magedson nor has Xcentric ever earned any money from anyone else as a 23 result of the postings about AEI. As such, even assuming their allegations are true, there 24 would seem to be no basis for Plaintiffs to recover anything under a restitution theory.
25 Similarly, Mr. Magedson has never threatened Plaintiffs in any manner nor would he 26 continue to do so in the future, so there is no basis for the court to issue an injunction of 27 any kind. Because no other remedies are available under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200, 28 Plaintiffs cannot show any likelihood of success on this claim.

1           D.     The Court Should Order Plaintiffs To File A RICO Case Statement

2           Although His Honor has not done so, several judges in the Central District have 3 issued standing orders requiring the plaintiff in any civil case asserting claims pursuant to 4 18 U.S.C. § 1961 (RICO) to file a “RICO Case Statement”. For instance, attached hereto 5 as Exhibit A is the standard RICO Case Statement form used by Judge Selna, and 6 Exhibit B is the form used by Judge Matz.

7           In this case, AEI has asserted two RICO claims; one based on 18 U.S.C. § 1962(c) 8 and the other based on 18 U.S.C. § 1962(d). As noted at the outset of this motion, these 9 claims are arguably based on conduct outside the scope of California’s anti-SLAPP 10 statute. For that reason, Defendants have not asked the court the strike RICO claims 11 under CCP § 425.16.

12           However, RICO claims are highly technical both factually and legally and 13 therefore such claims may be uniquely appropriate for early disposition via Rule 56 or 14 otherwise. Courts have also recognized that the “need for expeditious and orderly 15 progress of ... litigation” is particularly pronounced in a civil RICO suit because of its 16 “quasi-criminal” nature and consequent “stigmatizing effect on those named as 17 defendants.” Figueroa Ruiz v. Alegria, 896 F.2d 645, 646 (1st Cir. 1990).

18           For these reasons, district courts can and frequently do order any party asserting 19 RICO claims to supply the defendant with a RICO case statement outlining the factual 20 and legal bases for those claims. See Wagh v. Metris Direct, Inc., 363 F.3d 821, 827 (9th 21 Cir. 2003) (discussing “widespread use” of standing orders for RICO case statements), 22 overruled on other grounds by Odom v. Microsoft Corp., 486 F.3d 541, 551 (9th Cir.
23 2007) (citing In re Bank of Credit and Commerce Int'l Depositors Litig., 1992 WL
24 696398 (C.D.Cal. 1992); Gutierrez v. Givens, 1 F.Supp.2d 1077, 1087 (S.D.Cal. 1998); 25 May v. U.S. Chamber of Commerce, 1996 WL 116829 (N.D.Cal. 1996)).

26           Of course, RICO case statements are not specifically required by any Rule of Civil 27 Procedure. Nevertheless, numerous courts have relied upon various rules including Rules 28 11, 12(e) and 16 as providing authority for this requirement. See, e.g., Kingston Square

1 Tenants Ass'n v. Tuskegee Gardens, Ltd., 792 F. Supp. 1566, 1582 (S.D. Fla. 1992)
2 (RICO case statement ordered sua sponte pursuant to Fed. R. Civ. P. 11); Old Times
3 Enterprises, Inc. v. International Coffee Corp., 862 F.2d 1213, 1217 (5th Cir. 1989) 4 (affirming district court's requirement of a RICO case statement based on Fed. R. Civ. P.
5 12(e)); United Power Ass'n, Inc. v. L.K Comstock & Co., 1990 WL 120674, *1 (D. Minn.
6 1990) (ordering plaintiff to file a RICO case statement pursuant to Fed. R. Civ. P. 16).

7 Whether based on Rule 11, 12, 16 or simply upon the court's inherent authority, 8 Defendants respectfully request that the court issue an order requiring Plaintiffs to file a 9 RICO case statement within a reasonable period of time (i.e., 30 days from the date of the 10 court's order). Because it contains slightly more detail, Defendants further request that 11 the court require Plaintiffs to use the sample form of order used by Judge Selna (Exhibit 12 A) or any other such form as the court may deem appropriate.

13 IV. CONCLUSION

14 As the California Supreme Court clearly explained in Barrett v. Rosenthal, the 15 CDA does not prevent defamation victims from seeking redress for any economic losses 16 they have suffered. Rather, the only thing the CDA does is limit liability to the person or 17 persons who created the false statements about them; "Plaintiffs are free under section 18 230 to pursue the originator of a defamatory Internet publication. Any further expansion 19 of liability must await Congressional action." Barrett, 40 Cal.4th at 63, 146 P.3d at 529.

20 In this case, Plaintiffs can and should pursue any and all claims they have against 21 the authors of the four postings at issue. However, under the law, website hosts and 22 intermediaries like the Ripoff Report are simply not liable for material they did not 23 create. As such, the Court should strike the defamation and defamation-related claims in 24 Plaintiff's Complaint pursuant to CCP § 425.16.
