CASE NO. CV12-4551 DMG (JCGx)

Hon. Dolly M. Gee

PROTECTIVE ORDER

[Stipulated Protective Order filed concurrently herewith]

1 WHEREAS, the Court has reviewed the parties' Stipulated Protective Order 2 dated July __, 2012, and GOOD CAUSE appearing therefor,

3 IT IS HEREBY ORDERED THAT:

4 1. As used in this Order, "Litigation Material(s)" includes: (a) 5 documents, exhibits, answers to interrogatories, responses to requests for 6 admissions, deposition testimony and transcriptions (including exhibits), and all 7 written, recorded, graphic or electronically-stored matters (and all identical and 8 non-identical copies thereof); (b) any copies, notes, abstracts or summaries of such 9 information, and the information itself; and (c) any pleading, affidavit, declaration, 10 brief, motion, transcript, including exhibits to any of these, or other writing 11 containing such information.

12 2. Litigation Materials containing proprietary information, including 13 pricing, rates, customers/subscribers, company security matters, customer lists, 14 financial data and other non-public commercial, financial, research or technical 15 information, may be designated "Confidential" by any producing party or non-16 party. Litigation Materials containing trade secrets, special formulas, proprietary 17 software and/or computer programs, current or future marketing plans, current or 18 future business plans or strategies, current or future plans for products or services, 19 customer and subscriber data and information, agreements with third parties, 20 information regarding current or future business or financial transactions, internal 21 financial reports or plans, current or future pricing, rates or planning information, 22 financial data, production data, internal notes, memoranda, logs or other data, and 23 other highly sensitive non-public commercial, financial, research or technical 24 information that the producing party or non-party believes, in good faith, should be 25 afforded the highest level of confidentiality by the Court, may be designated 26 "Highly Confidential" by any producing party or non-party.

27 3. All Litigation Materials provided (before or after entry of this Order) 28 in discovery in connection with the above-captioned litigation ("this litigation"),

1 and the contents thereof: shall be used or disclosed by the parties, their counsel, or 2 anyone else provided with Litigation Materials pursuant to the terms of this order, 3 solely for the purpose of the prosecution or defense of this litigation and or the 4 related cases pending in this district (Case Nos. 12-cv-04536 and 12-cv-4529) and 5 the Southern District of New York (12-cv-4155) , including preparing for and 6 conducting pre-trial, trial and post-trial proceedings in this litigation, and for no 7 other purpose; shall not be used or disclosed for any business, commercial or 8 competitive purpose; and shall not be used or disclosed in connection with any 9 other litigation or proceeding. In addition, Litigation Materials designated 10 “Confidential” or “Highly Confidential,” and the contents thereof, shall not be 11 disclosed other than as provided by the terms of this Order.

12 4. Any Litigation Materials that the producing party or non-party has 13 properly made available to the general public prior to their production in this 14 litigation or during the course of this litigation shall not be designated 15 “Confidential” or “Highly Confidential.”

16 5. Nothing in this Order affects the right of the party or non-party that 17 produced Litigation Materials to use or disclose any Litigation Materials, or the 18 contents thereof, in any way.

19 6. (a) (i) Any party or non-party may designate Litigation Materials, or 20 portions thereof, which are considered confidential or highly confidential by 21 marking them “Confidential” or “Highly Confidential.” In order to provide the 22 parties adequate opportunity to designate Litigation Materials as “Confidential” or 23 “Highly Confidential,” all Litigation Materials produced in this case shall be 24 deemed “Highly Confidential,” whether or not stamped with that legend, for a 25 period of fifteen (15) business days following production, unless the Litigation 26 Materials are within the scope of paragraph 4 of this Order.

27 (ii) The failure to designate Litigation Materials as “Confidential” or 28 “Highly Confidential” within that fifteen (15) business day period shall not waive a

1 party's or non-party's right to later designate such Litigation Materials as 2 "Confidential" or "Highly Confidential" with prospective effect. If Litigation
3 Materials claimed to be "Confidential" or "Highly Confidential" are produced 4 without that designation, such Litigation Materials and all copies thereof shall 5 within five (5) days of any written notice requesting their return, be returned to the 6 designating person for such designation, destroyed, or stamped "Confidential" or 7 "Highly Confidential," as requested by the designating person. The receiving party 8 may challenge the designation of the documents as provided in this Order, but the 9 inadvertent production of Litigation Materials (including, without limitation, 10 testimony) claimed to be "Confidential" or "Highly Confidential" without the 11 designation shall not constitute a waiver of confidentiality.

12 (b) For deposition testimony, counsel may invoke the protections of this 13 Order by stating on the record during the deposition that testimony given at the 14 deposition is designated "Confidential" or "Highly Confidential," or by 15 designating the deposition transcript or portions thereof as "Confidential" or 16 "Highly Confidential" within fifteen (15) business days after that counsel has 17 received the final deposition transcript from opposing counsel. All information 18 disclosed during a deposition shall be deemed "Highly Confidential" until the 19 expiration of such fifteen (15) business day period as to counsel for all parties, 20 whether or not any portion of the transcript has been so designated previously and 21 thereafter shall remain "Confidential" or "Highly Confidential," as applicable, if so 22 designated. No person shall be present during any portion of any deposition 23 designated at the deposition as "Confidential" or "Highly Confidential" or any 24 portion of any deposition wherein "Confidential" or "Highly Confidential" 25 Litigation Materials are disclosed, unless that person is an authorized recipient of 26 Litigation Materials containing such confidential or highly confidential 27 information under the terms of this Order.

28

1 7. The party or non-party designating any Litigation Materials as 2 Confidential” or “Highly Confidential” shall, in the first instance, determine in 3 good faith whether it constitutes “Confidential” or “Highly Confidential” 4 information covered by this Order. Another party may object in good faith to such 5 “Confidential” or “Highly Confidential” designation. The objecting party and the 6 other person(s) involved shall follow the provisions of Local Rule 37-1, et seq. of 7 the Central District of California in (a) their attempt to informally resolve their 8 designation dispute and (b) any motion practice before this Court should such 9 dispute not be resolved informally. Any Litigation Materials, the designation of 10 which are subject to such dispute, shall be treated as designated pending further 11 order of the Court. The person asserting the confidentiality of any such Litigation 12 Materials shall bear the burden of establishing that the Litigation Materials are 13 entitled to be classified as designated.

14 8. If any Litigation Materials designated “Confidential” or “Highly 15 Confidential” pursuant to this Order are used during the course of a deposition, the 16 portion of the deposition record reflecting such “Confidential” or “Highly 17 Confidential” information shall be designated as “Confidential” or “Highly 18 Confidential,” and access thereto shall be limited pursuant to the terms of this 19 Order.

20 9. Litigation Materials designated or treated as “Confidential,” copies or 21 extracts therefrom and the information contained therein, may be disclosed, given, 22 shown, made available, or communicated to only the following (and then only for 23 purposes of the prosecution, defense or appeal of this litigation):

24 a. employees of the parties provided that they are deposition or 25 trial witnesses or are otherwise actively involved in the 26 prosecution, defense or appeal of this litigation and have 27 executed the attached Schedule A;

28

- 1 b. outside counsel retained by the parties to assist in the 2 prosecution, defense or appeal of this litigation, including
3 employees of such counsel’s firms, and any companies,
4 independent contractors or other litigation support service
5 personnel with whom such counsel works in connection with 6 this litigation;
- 7 c. in-house counsel for the parties (and their paralegal, clerical 8 and/or secretarial assistants) who are actively involved in the 9 prosecution, defense or appeal of this litigation;
- 10 d. consultants and/or experts retained by counsel or a party in 11 connection with this litigation to whom it is necessary that 12 “Confidential” Litigation Materials be shown for the sole 13 purpose of assisting in, or consulting with respect to, this 14 litigation, and only upon their agreement to be bound by this 15 Protective Order evidenced by execution of the attached 16 Schedule A;
- 17 e. any person expressly identified in any “Confidential” Litigation 18 Materials as an author, a recipient, or having knowledge of the 19 “Confidential” Litigation Materials, and any person for whom a 20 reasonable foundation may be laid that he or she is an author, a 21 recipient, or has knowledge of the “Confidential” Litigation
22 Materials;
- 23 f. any person employed by the party that produced the 24 “Confidential” Litigation Materials;
- 25 g. the Court in this litigation, and any members of its staff to 26 whom it is necessary to disclose Confidential Litigation 27 Materials for the purpose of assisting the Court in this litigation.

- 1 h. stenographers, videographers and court reporters recording or
- 2 transcribing testimony relating to this litigation and who have
- 3 executed the attached Schedule A;
- 4 i. other persons only upon written consent of the producing
- 5 person (which agreement may be recorded in a deposition or
- 6 other transcript) or upon order of the Court after affording the
- 7 producing person due notice and an opportunity to be heard.

8 10. Litigation Materials designated or treated as “Highly Confidential,” 9 copies or extracts therefrom and the information contained therein, shall be treated 10 as “Attorneys’ Eyes Only” and may be disclosed, given, shown, made available, or 11 communicated to only the following (and then only for purposes of the 12 prosecution, defense or appeal of this litigation):

- 13 a. outside counsel retained by the parties to assist in the
- 14 prosecution, defense or appeal of this litigation, including
- 15 employees of such counsel’s firms, and any companies,
- 16 independent contractors or other litigation support service
- 17 personnel with whom such counsel works in connection with
- 18 this litigation;
- 19 b. up to four (4) in house counsel who are actively involved in the
- 20 prosecution, defense or appeal of this litigation and have
- 21 executed the attached Schedule A, but who are not involved in
- 22 any business negotiations regarding programming, affiliation,
- 23 content licensing or retransmission agreements;
- 24 c. consultants and/or experts retained by counsel or a party in
- 25 connection with this litigation to whom it is necessary that
- 26 “Highly Confidential” Litigation materials be shown for the
- 27 sole purpose of assisting in, or consulting with respect to, this
- 28 litigation, and only upon their agreement to be bound by this

Protective Order evidenced by execution of the attached Schedule A;

- d. any person expressly identified in any “Highly Confidential” Litigation Materials as an author, a recipient, or having knowledge of the “Highly Confidential” Litigation Materials, and any person for whom a reasonable foundation may be laid that he or she is an author, a recipient, or has knowledge of the “Highly Confidential” Litigation Materials;
- e. any person employed by the party that produced the “Highly Confidential” Litigation Materials;
- f. the Court, and any members of its staff to whom it is necessary to disclose “Highly Confidential” Litigation Materials for the purpose of assisting the Court in this litigation;
- g. stenographers, videographers and court reporters recording or transcribing testimony relating to this litigation who have executed the attached Schedule A;
- h. other persons only upon written consent of the producing person (which agreement may be recorded in a deposition or other transcript) or upon order of the Court after affording the producing person due notice and an opportunity to be heard.

11. Source Code. Each party may designate documents, information, or things as “Highly Confidential Source Code Information,” which means Source Code, as that term is defined below, which is to be protected in the same manner as what is set forth in this Order, subject to additional protections provided below.

A. Source Code means human-readable programming language text that defines software, firmware, or electronic hardware descriptions and/or instructions (hereinafter referred to as “Source Code”). Source Code includes, without limitation, computer code, scripts, assembly, object code, Source Code

1 listings and descriptions of Source Code, object code listings and descriptions of 2 object code, formulas, engineering specifications, or schematics that define or 3 otherwise describe in detail the algorithms or structure of software. Source Code 4 documents at least include (1) printed documents that contain or refer to selected 5 Source Code, components (“printed Source Code”); (2) electronic communications 6 and descriptive documents, such as emails, design documents and programming 7 examples, which contain or refer to selected Source Code components (“described 8 Source Code”); (3) electronic Source Code documents that reside in a Source Code 9 repository from which software and related data files may be compiled, assembled, 10 linked, executed, debugged and/or tested (“Source Code files”); and (4) transcripts, 11 reports, video, audio, or other media that include, quote, cite, describe, or 12 otherwise refer to Source Code, Source Code files, and/or the development thereof.
13 Source Code files include, but are not limited to documents containing Source 14 Code in “C”, “C++”, Java, Java scripting languages, assembler languages, 15 command languages and shell languages. Source Code files may further include 16 “header files,” “make” files, project files, link files, and other human-readable text 17 files used in the generation, compilation, translation, and/or building of executable 18 software, including software intended for execution by an interpreter. The 19 definitions of “Source Code,” “printed Source Code,” “described Source Code” 20 and “Source Code files” do not include documents or information that merely 21 describe the functionality of a device, service or feature (e.g., the Hopper, 22 PrimeTime Anytime, Auto Hop or Sling Adapter). However, these definitions are 23 meant to include documents or information that reveal how Source Code 24 effectuates or accomplishes the functionality of a device, service, or feature.

25 B. Documents and things produced during the course of this 26 litigation designated as “Highly Confidential Source Code Information” shall be 27 protected in accordance with the “Highly Confidential” designation provided in 28 this Order, and are also subject to the additional protections in this paragraph 11.

1 Nothing in this Order shall obligate the parties to produce any Source Code nor act 2 as an admission that any particular Source Code is discoverable.

3 C. The producing party may redact any Source Code that may be 4 contained in a document with a mix of other information and may then produce the 5 redacted document in the same manner as any other document covered by this 6 Protective Order.

7 D. The producing party shall produce Source Code files by making 8 them available electronically on a stand-alone, non-networked computer without 9 Internet access provided by the producing party (“the Source Code Computer”).
10 The Source Code Computer provided by the producing party shall run a reasonably 11 current version of a mutually agreed upon operating system such as Apple OS X, 12 Microsoft Windows or Linux. Source Code files must be produced as they are 13 stored in the ordinary course of business. The Source Code Computer shall be 14 produced, stored, and secured at the Los Angeles offices of the producing party’s 15 outside counsel or such other appropriately secure facility as is mutually agreed 16 upon by the parties (termed “the designated facility”).

17 E. Such materials shall be made available for inspection only by 18 the following persons to whom disclosure is authorized pursuant to this Protective 19 Order:

20 i. Approved experts and consultants for the receiving party 21 who have executed the attached Schedule A;

22 ii. Approved outside counsel for the receiving party who 23 have executed the attached Schedule A;

24 The names and curriculum vitae of any experts, consultants and outside 25 counsel for the receiving party whom the receiving party seeks to designate to 26 inspect source code must be provided to the producing party at least four business 27 days prior to the time of inspection by such individual (for expedited discovery, 28 this shall be two business days). The producing party shall have three business

1 days to object to inspection of source code by a particular individual (for expedited 2 discovery, this shall be one business day). Such objection must be for good cause, 3 stating with particularity the reasons for the objection, and must be in writing.
4 Failure to object within three business days shall constitute approval (for expedited 5 discovery, this shall be one business day). If the parties are unable to resolve 6 objections, application may be made to the Court to resolve the matter. No more 7 than a total of 10 individuals identified by the receiving party shall have access to 8 the Source Code Computer.

9 F. Source Code shall be made available for inspection and, if 10 necessary, production with the following additional protections:

11 i. The producing party shall produce Source Code files as 12 they are stored in the ordinary course of business and shall deliver one copy of the 13 Source Code files to the designated facility for review on the Source Code 14 Computer. For sake of clarity, the producing party may provide the Source Code 15 files in read-only form. To the extent a party considers production of specifically 16 identified Source Code files in executable form necessary, the parties shall meet 17 and confer.

18 ii. The Source Code Computer shall be made available from 19 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. local time, Monday through Friday (excluding federal holidays) on 20 the business days for which a reasonable request for inspection has been made.
21 The receiving party must provide at least one week's notice (two business days for 22 expedited discovery) to the producing party prior to reviewing the Source Code 23 Computer for the first time and one business day's notice before reviewing the 24 Source Code Computer on any non-consecutive business day thereafter.

25 iii. Proper identification of all approved individuals shall be 26 provided prior to any access to the secure room at the designated facility or the 27 Source Code Computer. Proper identification requires showing, at a minimum, a 28 photo identification card sanctioned by the government of any State of the United

1 States, by the government of the United States, or by the nation state of the 2 authorized person's current citizenship.

3 iv. The producing party shall install tools that are sufficient 4 for viewing and searching the code produced, on the platform produced, if such 5 tools exist and are presently used in the ordinary course of the producing party's 6 business. The receiving party may request that commercially available software
7 tools for viewing and searching Source Code be installed on the Source Code 8 Computer, provided, however, that such other software tools are reasonably 9 necessary for the receiving party to perform its review of the Source Code 10 consistent with all of the protections herein. Specific tools may include, but are 11 not limited to multi-file text search tools such as "grep", dtSearch, Understand for 12 Java, Understand for C, Visual Slick Edit, Source-Navigator, PowerGrep and 13 ExamDiffPro or similar programs. Where executable Source Code is installed on 14 the Source Code Computer, the receiving party shall be entitled to install and use 15 appropriate compilers, debuggers and text editors so long as the receiving party 16 agrees that no edits may be performed on the Highly Confidential Source Code 17 Information. The receiving party must provide the producing party with the CD or 18 DVD containing such licensed software tool(s) at least ten (10) days in advance of 19 the date upon which the receiving party wishes to have the additional software 20 tools available for use on the Source Code Computer (four business days for 21 expedited discovery).

22 v. The producing party shall make available a laser printer
23 with commercially reasonable printing speeds for on-site printing during inspection 24 of the Source Code. Source Code may only be printed on watermarked pre-Bates 25 numbered paper, which shall be provided by the producing party. Upon printing 26 any such portions of Source Code, the printed pages shall be collected by the 27 producing party. The producing party shall Bates number and label with "Highly 28 Confidential Source Code Information" any pages printed by the receiving party

1 and deliver them to the receiving party or object within three business days of their 2 receipt.

3 vi. The receiving party may print portions of the Source 4 Code only when reasonably necessary to prepare court filings or pleadings or other 5 papers (including a testifying expert's expert report or for use as deposition 6 exhibits). The receiving party shall not print Source Code in order to review 7 blocks of Source Code elsewhere in the first instance, i.e., as an alternative to 8 reviewing that Source Code electronically on the Source Code Computers. Printed 9 portions that exceed 50 continuous pages or 10% or more of a specific software 10 release (operating systems and applications) shall be presumed excessive and not 11 done for a permitted purpose. If, after meeting and conferring, the producing party 12 and the receiving party cannot resolve the objection, the producing party shall be 13 entitled to seek a resolution from the Court of whether the printed Source Code in 14 question is narrowly tailored and was printed for a permitted purpose. The burden 15 shall be on the receiving party to demonstrate that such printed portions are no 16 more than is reasonably necessary for a permitted purpose and not merely printed 17 for the purposes of review and analysis elsewhere.

18 vii. The printed pages shall constitute part of the Source 19 Code produced by the producing party in this action. Only those consultants, 20 experts and outside attorneys who have been approved to inspect source code, and 21 who have executed the attached Schedule A, may have access to the printed pages.
22 Each consultant, expert, or outside attorney will record on a log every page of 23 Source Code that has been printed ("print logs"). Print logs should be secured in a 24 locked and secure room when not in use.

25 viii. Any external storage media containing Source Code shall 26 be disconnected from and/or removed from its Source Code Computer and stored 27 in a locked room, safe or storage cabinet when it is not actually being accessed.

28

1 ix. The Source Code Computer and the safe or storage
2 cabinet must be kept in a locked and secure room (the “Source Code Review 3 Room”).

4 x. No recordable media or recordable devices, including 5 without limitation sound recorders, computers, cellular telephones, PDAs, 6 peripheral equipment, cameras, CDs, DVDs, or drives of any kind, shall be 7 permitted into the Source Code Review Room. The receiving party’s outside 8 counsel and/or experts shall be entitled to take notes relating to the Source Code 9 but may not copy the Source Code into the notes and may not take such notes 10 electronically on the Source Code Computer itself or any other computer. No 11 copies of all or any portion of the Source Code may leave the room in which the 12 Source Code is inspected except as otherwise provided herein. Further, no other 13 written or electronic record of the Source Code is permitted except as otherwise 14 provided herein. A phone shall be made available in the secure room.

15 xi. The producing party may monitor the activities of the 16 receiving party’s representatives during any Source Code review, but only to 17 ensure that no unauthorized electronic records of the Source Code and that no 18 information concerning the Source Code are being created or transmitted in any 19 way. Such monitor shall not remain in the Source Code Review Room and shall 20 not be able to listen to any activity taking place in the Source Code Review Room.
21 No video may be made of any activity taking place in the Source Code Review 22 Room, nor shall the monitor be permitted to report on any activities therein other 23 than as may relate to the above-referenced purpose of the monitoring.

24 xii. Unless otherwise agreed in advance by the parties in 25 writing, at the conclusion of each day of Source Code inspection, the receiving 26 party shall remove all notes, documents and all other materials from the room that 27 may contain work product and/or attorney-client privileged information. The 28 producing party shall not be responsible for any items left in the room following

1 any inspection session, nor shall the presence of such materials bar the producing 2 party from entering or using the inspection room.

3 xiii. Except as specifically permitted in this Paragraph 11, the 4 receiving party will not copy, remove, or otherwise transfer any Source Code from 5 the Source Code Computer including, without limitation, copying, removing, or 6 transferring the Source Code onto any recordable media or recordable device. The 7 receiving party will not transmit any Source Code in any way from the producing 8 party's facilities or the offices of its outside counsel of record.

9 xiv. The Source Code Computer and/or external storage 10 media used to store the Source Code shall be password protected and, at the option 11 of the producing party, further protected using PGP or comparable encryption.

12 xv. No electronic copies of Source Code shall be made 13 (including by way of example only, the receiving party may not scan the Source 14 Code to a PDF or photograph the code), other than volatile copies necessarily 15 made in the course of loading, accessing, compiling, modeling and/or executing 16 the Source Code or running data processing systems that use or incorporate the 17 Source Code on the Source Code Computer. Images or copies of Source Code 18 shall not be included in correspondence between the parties (references to 19 production numbers shall be used instead), and shall be omitted from pleadings and 20 other papers whenever possible. If a party reasonably believes that it needs to 21 submit a portion of the Source Code as part of a filing with the Court, the parties 22 shall meet and confer as to how to make such a filing while protecting the 23 confidentiality of the Highly Confidential Source Code and such filing will not be 24 made absent agreement from the producing party that the confidentiality 25 protections will be adequate.

26 xvi. The receiving party's outside counsel of record may 27 make no more than five (5) additional paper copies of any portions of the Source 28 Code received from a producing party, not including copies attached to court

1 filings or used at depositions, and shall maintain a log of all paper copies of the 2 Source Code received from a producing party that are delivered by the receiving 3 party to any approved individual. The log shall include the names of the reviewers 4 and/or recipients of paper copies and locations where the paper copies are stored.
5 Upon reasonable notice to the receiving party by the producing party, the receiving 6 party shall provide a copy of this log to the producing party.

7 xvii. Copies of Source Code that are marked as deposition 8 exhibits shall not be provided to the court reporter or attached to deposition 9 transcripts; rather, the deposition record will identify the exhibit by its production 10 numbers. All paper copies of Source Code brought to a deposition shall be 11 securely destroyed in a timely manner following the deposition.

12 xviii. Any printed pages of Source Code shall be stored in a 13 locked safe or storage cabinet when not actually in use.

14 xix. The receiving party shall maintain a log of all individuals 15 who have accessed the Source Code Computer. The log shall be made available to 16 the producing party upon reasonable request. The log shall include the name of 17 each person who accessed the Source Code Computer. Such log and any 18 information from it shall be inadmissible in this litigation except in connection 19 with proceedings before the Court regarding any alleged violations of this 20 Protective Order.

21 At the end of this action (including any related appeals), any entity receiving 22 Source Code will certify that: (a) all printed copies of Source Code have been 23 returned, with the exception of exhibits that were attached to filed pleadings or 24 admitted into evidence; (b) any electronic storage or memory media that may 25 contain Source Code has been returned, fully reformatted, and/or destroyed; and 26 (c) any access logs maintained by counsel have been archived along with counsel's 27 other records from this litigation. Other than set forth in this subparagraph, counsel 28 may not maintain a file copy of Source Code material.

1 12. Nothing in this Order shall allow non-testifying experts and 2 consultants to be deposed or otherwise be the subject of discovery other than as 3 provided under the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

4 13. (a) Nothing in this Order shall prevent or otherwise restrict counsel 5 from rendering advice to their clients and, in the course thereof, relying generally 6 on “Confidential” or “Highly Confidential” Litigation Materials; provided, that in 7 rendering such advice and otherwise communicating with such client, counsel shall 8 not make any disclosure of the specific substance of Litigation Materials so 9 designated except as otherwise allowed in this Order.

10 (b) If, at any time, any Litigation Materials in the possession, custody or 11 control of any person other than the person who originally produced such 12 Litigation Materials are subpoenaed or requested by any court, administrative 13 agency, legislative body or other person or entity, the person to whom the 14 subpoena or request is directed shall immediately provide written notice to each 15 person who originally produced such Litigation Materials or designated them 16 “Confidential” or “Highly Confidential,” and the person to whom the subpoena or 17 request is directed shall not take an adverse position to such producing or 18 designating person(s) who oppose the subpoena or request for such Litigation
19 Materials.

20 14. Except as agreed to in writing by counsel of record or as ordered by 21 the Court, Litigation Materials designated or treated as “Confidential” or “Highly 22 Confidential” shall be submitted and/or filed under seal in accordance with Local 23 Rule 79-5.

24 15. Nothing herein shall prevent any of the parties from using 25 “Confidential” or “Highly Confidential” Litigation Materials in any trial in this 26 litigation or from seeking further protection with respect to the use of any 27 “Confidential” or “Highly Confidential” Litigation Materials in any trial in this 28 litigation. Means to preserve the confidentiality of Litigation Materials presented

1 at any trial of this matter shall be considered and implemented prior to the 2 beginning of such trial. “Confidential” or “Highly Confidential” Litigation 3 Materials that are not received into evidence at trial shall retain their 4 “Confidential” or “Highly Confidential” status under this Order.

5 16. The terms of this Order shall apply to all manner and means of 6 discovery. The provisions of this Order may be modified at any time by stipulation
7 of the parties, approved by order of the Court. In addition, a party may at any time 8 apply to the Court for modification of this Order. Nothing in this Order shall 9 constitute (a) any agreement to produce in discovery any testimony, document or 10 other information; (b) a waiver of any right to object to or seek a further protective 11 order with respect to any discovery or other matter in this or any other litigation; or 12 (c) a waiver of any claim or immunity, protection, or privilege with respect to any 13 testimony, document or information.

14 17. In the event that Litigation Materials designated or treated as 15 “Confidential” or “Highly Confidential” are disclosed to someone not authorized 16 to receive such information under this Order, counsel of record for the party 17 making that disclosure shall, promptly upon learning of such disclosure, give 18 notice to counsel of record for the designating person and to counsel of record for 19 the producing person (if different), and shall describe the circumstances 20 surrounding the unauthorized disclosure.

21 18. If any person inadvertently produces in discovery any information 22 subject to attorney-client privilege, work product doctrine or any other privilege, 23 protection, or immunity, and the requirements of Federal Rule of Evidence 502(b) 24 have been satisfied, the producing person may (promptly upon learning of such 25 production) notify the receiving party(ies) of such production and seek the return 26 and/or destruction of such information as set forth below. Upon such notification: 27 the receiving party(ies) shall promptly return to the producing person or shall 28 destroy all such information (including, without limitation, all originals and copies

1 of any documents containing or comprising such information); the information 2 (including, without limitation, all originals and copies of any documents containing 3 or comprising such information) shall continue to be privileged, protected, and/or 4 immune; and no use shall be made of such information (including, without 5 limitation, all originals and copies of any documents containing or comprising such 6 information) by the receiving party(ies), nor shall it be disclosed to anyone by the 7 receiving party(ies). The receiving party(ies) shall promptly provide to the 8 producing person a written certification of the complete return or destruction of 9 such information (including, without limitation, all originals and copies of any 10 documents containing or comprising such information); provided that, to the extent 11 any receiving party has incorporated any such information in its own work product, 12 it may (instead of providing such work product to the producing person) destroy 13 such information incorporated in that work product and promptly certify to such 14 destruction. Nothing herein, however, shall preclude the receiving party(ies) from 15 subsequently challenging that such materials are privileged, or that any such 16 privilege has not been waived.

17 19. Upon termination of this litigation and the request of the producing 18 person, the originals and all copies, whether exact copies or compilations, digests 19 or non-exact copies in any form, of Litigation Materials shall, within thirty (30) 20 days, be returned to the person who produced such Litigation Materials (with the 21 resulting shipping expense to be paid by the producing person), or shall be 22 destroyed (together with a written certification of the complete destruction of the 23 Litigation Materials), or shall otherwise be disposed as may be mutually agreeable 24 among the applicable persons. The obligation to return/destroy Confidential (as 25 opposed to Highly Confidential) materials shall be limited to reasonable efforts.
26 Nevertheless, counsel of record may retain their file copies of all court filings, 27 official transcripts and exhibits, provided that counsel continues to treat all 28 Litigation Materials in the manner provided in this Order. Notwithstanding the 1 provisions of this paragraph, inaccessible copies of confidential or proprietary 2 material, including electronic copies created through the routine operation of the 3 recipient(s)' standard archival and backup procedures, do not need to be returned 4 or destroyed.

5 20. This Order shall remain in force and effect until modified, superseded 6 or terminated by agreement of the parties hereto or by order of the Court. The 7 termination of this action shall not relieve the parties from complying with any 8 limitations imposed by this Order, and the Court shall retain jurisdiction to enforce 9 this Order.

10 21. The entry of this Order does not prevent either party from seeking a 11 further order of this Court pursuant to Rule 26(c) of the Federal Rules of Civil 12 Procedure.

Schedule A

By my signature, I hereby acknowledge that I have read the Stipulated Protective Order, dated July __, 2012 (the “Protective Order”) entered in CBS Broadcasting Inc., CBS Studios Inc., and Survivor Productions, LLC v. DISH Network L.L.C. and DISH Network Corporation, Case No. 12-cv-04551 DMG (JCGx), pending in the United States District Court for the Central District of California and hereby agree to be bound by the terms thereof. I further agree that to the extent that my employees are provided with “Confidential” and/or “Highly Confidential” Litigation Materials, I will instruct such employees regarding the terms of the Protective Order. I further agree to subject myself to the jurisdiction of the United States District Court for the Central District of California with respect to all matters relating to compliance of the Protective Order.
