Dear Ms. Mastromano:

On May 5, 1983, we received your quotation (dated April 22, 1983) in the amount of $5,000.00 regarding the use of the above-mentioned song.

We first contacted your office about this 10-year license on October 14, 1982, when this exhibit was still in the planning stage.

Because there was no indication from you at that time (or during our many attempts to obtain the quotation since then) that the fee would be anything other than the usual amount, production went ahead with this scene.

Now, after having waited for the quotation for six months and three weeks, we are confronted with the excessive quotation of $5,000.00.

Mr. Peter Nolan, Senior Counsel for Walt Disney Productions, has advised us to offer the publishers a tribute payment of $250.00 for the use of this song in the HORIZONS PAVILION at EPCOT in Florida (the amount usually quoted to us for the usage of this song).

As your files will indicate, we believe that this song and the alleged adaptation of the song are both in the public domain around the world, and we are willing to pay the lower sum only to avoid litigation to prove that they are free for us to use.

We ask the publishers to reconsider and hope we shall receive a favorable reply.

Sincerely,

Jay L. Lawton
