This matter is before the Court on the request of Petitioner Ward Francis Weaver (“Weaver”) for further evidentiary hearing as to Claims 1 and 2 of his federal petition. The request is accompanied by full merits briefing of Claims 1 and 2 as well as 13 offers of proof in the form of exhibits (for which he requests record expansion). Weaver’s efforts are opposed by Respondent Kevin Chappell, Warden of California State Prison at San Quentin (the “Warden”). The Court finds that Claims 1 and 2 are without merit and denies those claims on that basis. In addition, having thoroughly reviewed portions of the police reports appended to the August 10, 1982 declaration in support of Weaver’s arrest for the present case, some guilt phase proceedings (including Weaver’s testimony), the entirety of the sanity and penalty proceedings, a number of declarations attached to both state habeas petitions, the Court directs the parties to file further, discrete briefs on the issue of ineffective assistance of counsel and Claim 18 of the petition as described in this Memorandum Order.

* Kevin Chappell, as Warden of California State Prison at San Quentin, is substituted for all prior Respondent Wardens of California State Prison at San Quentin pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 25(d).

1 I. Summary of the Case

2 Thirty-seven year old Weaver,¹ an allegedly schizophrenic, traumatized Vietnam veteran,² 3 amphetamine-addicted truck driver, was driving his fully loaded truck westbound on the Tehachapi
4 pass (Highway 58), in Kern County, late on February 5, 1981, when he noticed a disabled automobile 5 on the eastbound side of the highway.³ He turned his truck around at the next overpass and stopped to 6 offer the stranded young couple a ride to Mojave. They accepted. At this point, according to the 7 defense, Weaver was hearing conflicting voices about what to do with the young woman, Barbara 8 Levoy. After only about five miles of eastbound travel, Weaver pulled to the side of the road and 9 asked the young man, Robert Radford, to help him shift the load on the flatbed trailer. Ms. Levoy 10 remained in the truck cabin. Responding to the “male voice” and ignoring the “female voice,” Weaver 11 struck Mr. Radford on the back of the head with a metal “cheater” bar causing him to fall off the back 12 of the flatbed, screaming.⁴ Weaver testified during guilt phase proceedings that he jumped off the 13 flatbed and hit Mr. Radford a few more times to quiet his yelling. Weaver told mental health 14 examiners he kept hitting Mr. Radford to silence the screams, which apparently were very agitating 15 and disturbing to him. When Mr. Radford was found later by a passing motorist, he was still alive, but 16 died on the way to the hospital.

17 After striking Mr. Radford down, Weaver returned to the truck cabin, was unsure what to do 18 next, but in response from questions from Ms. Levoy told her that Mr. Radford would be returning 19 shortly. According to Weaver, at the suggestion of the male voice, he displayed a knife to Ms. Levoy, 20 and directed her to sit with her head between her knees, hands behind her head, prisoner-style, a stance 21 Weaver learned from his Vietnam service. Weaver proceeded eastbound on Highway 58 and within a

23 ¹ Weaver’s date of birth is February 10, 1944.

24 ² The duration of his service was two years in 1967 through 1969. He spent one year of that 25 service in Vietnam from May 1968 through May 1969. He was discharged from the Army in December 1969.

26 ³ The majority of this information comes from Weaver’s guilt phase testimony and repeated in 27 the testimony of various mental health experts (both prosecution and defense) during sanity proceedings.

28 ⁴ A cheater bar is described as a metal bar “like a tire iron” weighing from four to six pounds.

1 mile and a half, reversed the direction of the truck and headed west toward Bakersfield on his way to 2 San Francisco (his original direction of travel and destination). After that initial displaying of the 3 knife, Weaver testified that he did not threaten Ms. Levoy with physical force again.

4 Some hours later, again, allegedly responding to the dominant male voice, he raped Ms. Levoy 5 on the way to San Francisco just past Kettleman City on Interstate 5.⁵ After depositing his load in San 6 Francisco, Weaver, with Ms. Levoy aboard, made another pickup and delivery (from Oakland to 7 Vallejo) and then took a circuitous route to his home in Oroville. Weaver referred to it as “the long 8 way.”⁶ Before meeting his wife in at the restaurant where she worked, he stopped in a secluded 9 location north of Oroville and directed Ms. Levoy out of the truck. He bound her hands and feet with 10 tape, but when he told her he intended to leave her overnight at this location and attempted to gag her, 11 she bit him severely on the thumb. The defense was that he blacked out upon being bitten and 12 accidentally strangled her while trying to get her to release his thumb from her teeth. Realizing she 13 was dead, he again didn’t know what to do until the male voice told him to dig a grave and bury her.
14 He did so and met his wife as planned at the restaurant. He then used his wife’s car to return to Ms.
15 Levoy’s grave, exhumed her body, placed it in the trunk of his wife’s car, and drove home.

16 He greeted his three children at home, who noticed his bloody thumb. With the children in bed, 17 Weaver placed Ms. Levoy’s body in a trench for a sewer line he and his son had begun to dig earlier in 18 his backyard. The next day, he poured cement over this shallow grave. Later Weaver re-exhumed the 19 body and moved it to a deeper grave, and then built a wooden platform over it, ostensibly for his wife 20 to use to hang out the laundry, but, as admitted on the witness stand, in reality so the ground wouldn’t

22 ⁵ Weaver testified during guilt proceedings that he raped Ms. Levoy twice. Neither the time 23 nor location of second rape is clear from Weaver’s testimony. The Court also notes that Weaver told 24 authorities during his custodial interrogation that his second sexual encounter with Ms. Levoy was 25 forced sodomy. CT-1: 109-110.

26 ⁶ The most direct route from Vallejo to Oroville was north on Interstate 80 to Interstate 5 just 27 north of Sacramento, then north a short time until reaching Highway 99, which then turned into 28 Highway 70 to Oroville. The route Weaver described was south on Interstate 80, then east on the California Delta Highway (Highway 4), through Antioch and just south of Stockton before turning north on Interstate 5. This “long way” would have taken Weaver at least 60 miles and over an hour out of his way.

1 sink. Weaver was not apprehended for these crimes until after he was convicted in Ventura County for 2 another crime that began three months later, on May 4, 1981.

3 On that occasion, Weaver picked up another young couple, an 18-year-old young man, David 4 Galbraith, and his 15-year-old girlfriend, Michelle DeLong, in Medford, Oregon. Weaver, riding with 5 his 10-year-old son, agreed to drive the young couple to Yreka, California to stay with Ms. DeLong's 6 uncle. Because the uncle was not home, Weaver offered to let them sleep in his truck when he arrived 7 home in Oroville. A day or two later, he took them to Ventura, where he had a delivery, and offered to 8 help Mr. Galbraith find a job. Instead, Weaver introduced Mr. Galbraith to an acquaintance, who 9 drove the young man into the forest, shot him three times in the head, and left him for dead. Despite 10 his severe injuries, Mr. Galbraith survived. In the meantime, Weaver purportedly took Ms. DeLong to 11 make a short delivery run. Instead, he raped her at gunpoint, later forced her to orally copulate him, 12 and returned to Oroville. The next day he dropped her off in Marysville, where she eventually went to 13 the police. While serving time for these crimes, Weaver confessed the Radford/ Levoy crimes to a co-14 inmate, Ricky Gibson. During cross examination of one of Weaver's witnesses,⁷ the prosecutor, 15 Ronald Shumaker, elicited that the Ventura charges included rape, unlawful intercourse with a minor, 16 forced oral copulation, kidnapping, and conspiracy to commit murder.⁸

17 The jurors also learned that four years prior to the Radford/ Levoy crimes Weaver was 18 convicted of assault with a deadly weapon against a woman, Bonnie Brown, in Humboldt County.⁹
19 The incident occurred very late on the night of September 22, 1976 or very early on September 23, 20 1976. From Ms. Brown's place of employment, at a Eureka bowling alley, she and Weaver drove 21 separately for coffee and soft drinks at a local Denny's Restaurant. They then drove (separately) to a

23 ⁷ The witness was Dr. Chappell, who was one of the mental health experts who evaluated 24 Weaver's sanity with respect to the Ventura crimes.

25 ⁸ Whether Weaver was convicted of all the charged crimes did not come out during the trial, as 26 the trial court elected to consider the evidence of Weaver's criminal conduct in that county under 27 California Penal Code § 190.3(b) (prior violent, criminal conduct) rather than under § 190.3(c) (prior 28 felony conviction).

⁹ This information came out in bits and pieces during the testimony of some of Weaver's experts during sanity proceedings, but the complete rendition of the facts were brought out by the prosecution during the penalty phase.

1 truck stop where Weaver had a truck. The reason for the assault is unclear, but what is clear is that 2 Weaver pleaded guilty on May 2, 1977 and was paroled in February 1979.

3 II. Procedural History

4 After his arrest (at San Quentin State Prison where he was serving a 42 year to life sentence for 5 the Ventura crimes) Weaver appeared in the Kern County Municipal Court on August 18, 1982 to be 6 arraigned. CT-1: 135. The arraignment was held over to the following day, August 19, 1982, at which 7 time David Huffman was appointed to represent him. Id.: 136. After the preliminary examination
8 hearing, the sexual assault charges involving Ms. Levoy (rape, sodomy by force, and oral copulation 9 by force) were dismissed for lack of evidence. Id.: 137. Following Weaver's first appearance in the 10 Kern County Superior Court on September 19, 1982, competence proceedings under California Penal 11 Code § 1368 were commenced. Donnalee Mendez was appointed as co-counsel on June 8, 1983.¹⁰ 12 Ms. Mendez and Mr. Huffman married on September 15, 1983. (Ms. Mendez hereafter is referred to 13 as "Mrs. Huffman.")

14 Trial proceedings resumed before the Honorable William A. Stone in April 1984, with jury 15 selection commencing on October 9, 1984. Guilt phase proceedings concluded with the jury verdict of 16 guilty on two counts of murder (as to both victims) and one count of kidnapping, as to Ms. Levoy, on 17 December 19, 1984. The death eligibility special circumstances were kidnap as to both victims and 18 multiple murder.

19 The sanity phase was delayed until January 14, 1985 due to illness of Mr. Huffman, 20 purportedly for throat problems. The sanity phase proceedings largely were conducted by Mrs.
21 Huffman. Nonetheless Mr. Huffman remained present on and off through February 8, 1985, even 22 conducting some examination and making arguments to the court. He was not present at all on the last 23 10 days of the proceedings (over the period of February 11 through February 28). After a lengthy 24 sanity phase, the jury returned a verdict that Weaver was not insane after fewer than 42 minutes. The

27 ¹⁰ From having presided over another Kern County death penalty case, Carrera v. Ayers, case 28 number 1:90-cv-0478 AWI, the Court is aware that Ms. Mendez concurrently represented Mr. Carrera from April 7, 1982 until October 7, 1983 for the first part of her representation of Weaver.

1 penalty phase trial, conducted entirely by Mrs. Huffman, began on March 5, 1985, with a verdict for 2 the death penalty on March 7, 1985.

3 Weaver's automatic motion to set aside the death penalty was denied on April 4, 1985 and he 4 was sentenced to death the same day. On his automatic appeal, the California Supreme Court affirmed
5 his conviction and sentence on August 20, 2001. People v. Weaver, 26 Cal. 4th 876 (2001). His first 6 state habeas petition, filed September 28, 1998 (hereafter "First State Petition") was denied on 7 November 14, 2001 (Case No. S073709). The state counterparts to Claims 1 and 2, herein, were raised 8 in this initial state petition in Claim 1 (parts B. and C.) and denied summarily on the merits with no 9 procedural bars.

10 Certiorari regarding his direct appeal was denied by the United States Supreme Court on May 11 13, 2002. A few days later, on May 17, 2002, Weaver commenced the present federal action with a 12 request for appointment of counsel and a stay of execution of his sentence (doc. 1). The original May 13 31, 2002 appointment of counsel (doc. 4) was adjusted on January 6, 2003 with the appointment of 14 current counsel, the Habeas Corpus Resource Center and CJA attorney Karen Schryver (doc. 21).
15 Assisted by counsel, Weaver filed his federal petition for habeas corpus in federal court on May 5, 16 2003 (doc. 32). The petition was represented to be fully exhausted, but Weaver also developed new 17 claims he needed to present to the California Supreme Court. He did so, on May 6, 2003 (Case No.
18 S115683) in his second state petition (hereafter "Second State Petition"). The Warden disputed 19 Weaver's assertion that the May 5, 2003 federal petition was fully exhausted, arguing that the legal 20 bases for seven sub-claims and the factual bases of 29 sub-claims had not been presented to the 21 California Supreme Court. On January 7, 2004, the Court entered an order finding that the legal bases 22 for two sub-claims were unexhausted, but the remainder of the claims and sub-claims either had been 23 fairly presented or did not change the character of the underlying claim (doc. 48).¹¹ The Court ordered 24 federal proceedings to be held in abeyance pending state exhaustion proceedings on March 16, 2004

27 ¹¹ The legal and factual bases of the two sub-claims in the May 5, 2003 federal petition 28 determined by the Court to be unexhausted were included in the Second State Petition.

1 (doc. 56). The California Supreme Court summarily denied the Second State Petition on August 26, 2 2009.

3 Weaver filed his amended federal petition on September 1, 2009 (doc. 107). This pleading is 4 the operative petition. The Warden answered the petition on March 30, 2010 (doc. 116) and thereafter 5 in a joint statement filed on May 24, 2010 (doc. 120) confirmed that exhaustion and the statute of 6 limitations were fully satisfied.¹² On June 2, 2010, the Court ordered briefing on the petition limited to 7 Claims 1 and 2. In these claims Weaver alleges deprivation of counsel at critical stages of his state 8 trial, failure of his trial attorneys to subject the prosecution to meaningful adversarial testing under 9 Cronic v. United States, 466 U.S. 648, 659 (1984), and a conflict of interest. These claims stem from 10 alleged mental and physical illnesses of Mr. Huffman caused by his alcoholism and Korean War 11 combat induced post-traumatic stress disorder, as well as personal financial difficulties involving both 12 Mr. Huffman and Mrs. Huffman. Weaver was directed to combine his brief of these claims with a 13 request for further evidentiary development pursuant to Rules 6 (discovery), 7 (record expansion), and 14 8 (evidentiary hearing) of the Rules Governing § 2254 Cases (doc. 121). Weaver's opening brief was 15 filed on August 8, 2011 (doc. 149), followed by the Warden's opposition on March 7, 2012 (doc. 156), 16 and Weaver's reply on July 10, 2012 (doc. 160).

17 III. Relevant Record Proceedings

18 Claim 1 focuses solely on the constructive absence of counsel altogether as to sanity and 19 penalty phases. Although Claim 2 extends to Weaver's guilt phase proceedings as well the sanity and 20 penalty phases, the Court finds it unnecessary to summarize the guilt phase proceedings to resolve that 21 claim, as explained in Part VI.D., infra. Accordingly, only the sanity and penalty phase proceedings 22 will be reviewed here.¹³ Because the presentation of the sanity phase was somewhat disorganized and 23 repetitive, references to the reporter's transcript are not provided in this summary. Commencement of

25 ¹² The Warden waived the exhaustion requirement as to one sub-claim for the sake of 26 expediency in his answer and confirmed this fact in the joint statement.

27 ¹³ Portions of the guilt phase proceedings plus declarations submitted to the California 28 Supreme Court with Weaver's First and Second State Petitions are relevant to the Court's discussion of ineffective assistance of counsel and juror misconduct claims following the analysis of Claims 1 and 2.

1 the sanity proceedings also was delayed. After the jurors had reached their guilt phase verdict on 2 December 19, 1984, Judge Stone instructed them to return on January 7, 1985. He instructed counsel
3 to return on January 2, 1985 to discuss evidentiary matters and scheduling. Explanations on these 4 topics on behalf of the defense were given largely by Mr. Huffman. When the jurors returned on 5 January 7, 1985, Judge Stone directed them to return on January 14, 1985 due to what he described as 6 Mr. Huffman's lingering laryngitis.

7 A. Sanity Phase

8 The Huffmans organized 22 witnesses to be called in nine categories in the defense case-in-9 chief. Mr. Shumaker called eight witnesses in his case, and two more witnesses were called for 10 Weaver in rebuttal. This evidence, argument of counsel, jury instructions, and jury deliberations are 11 summarized below.

12 1. Defense Case

13 Mr. Huffman delivered the opening statement, foretelling that the defense witnesses would 14 show Weaver suffered from schizophrenia as well as post-traumatic stress disorder ("PTSD"). He 15 promised the evidence would show Weaver "was predisposed to being a homicidal killer," that there 16 was a "love-hate relationship" with this mother, and that he had a premorbid personality. In her 17 declaration, Mrs. Huffman avers that this "madman" portrayal, which Weaver now strongly criticized, 18 apparently was augmented by Weaver's appearance at the sanity proceedings at the direction of his 19 attorneys.¹⁴ Two of Weaver's jurors averred in post-conviction declarations that the Huffmans tried to 20 make Weaver look mentally ill by having him appear in court dirty, disheveled, unkempt, and 21 inappropriately disruptive. When the penalty proceedings commenced, Weaver was neat and clean 22 cut. Declaration of Edmund Rice, Exhibit 17 to the First State Petition, ¶¶ 4-5; Declaration of Clara
23 Sue Haney, Exhibit 18 to the First State Petition, ¶¶ 2-3. Weaver's former wife, Patricia Budrow
24 Weaver, also averred that she was surprised by Weaver's appearance when she testified at the guilt
25 phase. Declaration of Patricia Weaver, Exhibit 2 to the First State Petition, ¶ 33. After the opening 26

27 ¹⁴ Weaver was told not to cut his hair or shave his beard. Mr. Huffman dressed Weaver in 28 weird looking clothes purchased at thrift shops. According to Mrs. Huffman in her declaration, during trial Weaver's hair was wild and he was scary looking. Exhibit 34 to First State Petition, ¶ 11.

1 statement, Mrs. Huffman elicited all evidence during the sanity proceedings, except for brief input 2 from Mr. Huffman, as more fully explained in Part III.A.j., infra.

3 a. Family History of Schizophrenia

4 Psychiatrist Albert Raitt, M.D. and Butte County Deputy Sheriff Rover Levey were called to 5 confirm that Weaver’s maternal aunt, Kathryn Bernardo, and her daughter, Lucia Bernardo (Weaver’s 6 cousin), both were afflicted with schizophrenia.¹⁵

7 b. Dysfunctional Sibling Relationship

8 Weaver’s sister, Katie Smith, who was 16 months younger than he,¹⁶ described sadistically 9 horrible acts Weaver perpetrated on her from the time they were young children until they were young 10 teenagers. When Ms. Smith was five and Weaver was six, he chopped off her index finger with an 11 axe. Although she thought it was accidental at first, she later came to believe it was intentional. The 12 defense team adopted the intentional explanation. Next, when Ms. Smith was six and Weaver was 13 seven, he tied her to a tree and told her he was going to hang her. He actually made a noose and 14 started putting it around her neck but stopped when she cried and screamed. He then took the noose 15 off, but left her tied to the tree for some time and threatened her if she tattled to their parents. When 16 she was between six and nine years old, Weaver and she were in a field where there were 15 to 20 head
17 of cattle. Weaver intentionally “stampeded” the cattle toward Ms. Smith. During this same three-year 18 time period, Ms. Smith and Weaver were playing near an old tool shed. She went in and then Weaver 19 locked the door from the outside. He set fire to the shed with her trapped inside, laughing the whole 20 time before finally releasing her. The two of them were unable to extinguish the flames which then 21 spread into a forest fire. When she was seven, eight, or nine years old, Weaver and his friend named 22 Jerry Daniels,¹⁷ tied her up and inserted sticks into her vagina to the point of hurting her. When she

24 ¹⁵ In his federal petition, Weaver provides further anecdotal evidence that schizophrenia was a 25 family trait among many family members.

26 ¹⁶ According to their mother, Dorothy Weaver, Katie Smith was born in June of 1945.
27 Declaration of Dorothy Weaver, Exhibit 1 to First State Petition, ¶ 18. According to Ms. Smith’s 28 widower husband, she died on July 22, 1997. Declaration of Wayne Smith, Exhibit 7 to First State Petition, ¶ 3.

¹⁷ Mr. Daniels’ name comes up again in connection with the Ventura crimes.

1 was 12 and Weaver was 13, he raped her. Ms. Smith told no one. Finally, when she was 12 to 13, she 2 saw Weaver and another boy torture a cat.

3 Besides testifying about the sadistic treatment perpetrated on her by Weaver, Ms. Smith also 4 gave some insight into the family dynamics when she and Weaver were growing up. She mentioned 5 that although during one period of their lives growing up when their father worked nights and they 6 rarely saw him during the week, on weekends he and Weaver spent time together working on cars or 7 building pens for the animals Weaver was raising. As for friends, when the family lived in Eureka, 8 Weaver and Ms. Smith “played” with two siblings from the Lopez family, who lived nearby. Ms.
9 Smith also mentioned Jerry Daniels as a friend Weaver spent time with and his (Weaver’s) “only real 10 friend,” Larry Digby, a “loner” like Weaver. She stated that Weaver was happiest when he could 11 spend time with the animals he raised and was a member of the FFA. As far as girls, Ms. Smith 12 mentioned Ladell, Sharon, and Ernestine before Weaver’s soon-to-be first wife, Pat Budrow, moved 13 into the Weaver home. Ms. Smith judged the time between Pat’s residence at the Weaver home until 14 she and Weaver were married was about a year.

15 c. Attempt to get help in Texas

16 Weaver’s paternal cousin Russell Mathiasch, from Texas, testified that Weaver and his father 17 came to Texas to try to get Weaver admitted to two separate Veterans Administration (“VA”) 18 Hospitals to help him with his medical problems. Neither the Dallas nor the Waco facilities could 19 admit him. Weaver and his father made this trip in 1977 while Weaver was under charges for 20 assaulting Bonnie Brown in Humboldt County.

21 d. Mental State Evaluations Relative to the 1977 Humboldt County
22 Conviction

23 Three mental health professionals who evaluated Weaver in connection with his Humboldt 24 County conviction came next: psychiatrist Robert Gardner, M.D., psychiatrist Alfred Owre, M.D., and 25 psychologist Jack Tolchin, Ph.D.

(i) Dr. Gardner

According to his report, Dr. Gardner evaluated Weaver on April 12, 1977, prior to sentencing, to assist the trial court with that process. Exhibit 110 to First State Petition.¹⁸ He found Weaver to be mistrustful and suspicious of people almost to a “paranoid degree.” Weaver reported having very few friends because his friends took advantage of him. Weaver did say that during his four-year marriage to his first wife he had assaulted her on a number of occasions, once seriously enough to require medical attention. Dr. Gardner concluded that Weaver’s mother was overprotective, domineering, and prone to being physically abusive. Dr. Gardner mentioned in both his testimony and in his report that Weaver’s mother often awakened him by slapping him in the face. In his report he mentioned that Weaver perceived his father as being very strict and that Weaver had trouble communicating with him. This was consistent with Dr. Gardner’s testimony that Weaver perceived his father as being remote and strict. In his report, he described that Weaver’s upbringing “sounded punitive and maladaptive.” Dr. Gardner felt that Weaver would be a threat to others unless he underwent psychiatric treatment after he was discharged from prison. He did not have the impression Weaver was malingering, manipulating, or being untruthful during the interview. His diagnosis was that Weaver suffered from a psychotic depressive reaction and reality distortion. In the time allotted, Dr. Gardner could not discover the reason for Weaver’s condition. He opined that Weaver’s intelligence was in the low-normal range. On cross examination, Dr. Gardner stated he reported that Weaver had denied hallucinations. He also testified that he had no recollection of evaluating Weaver independent of his report. His report, however, does not state that Weaver “denied” hallucinations and delusions. What Dr. Gardner wrote was: “there were no hallucinations or delusions found, although he [Weaver] is mistrustful of people to an almost paranoid degree.” Exhibit 110 to First State Petition, p. 2.

(ii) Dr. Owre

Dr. Owre evaluated Weaver upon his arrival at the California Men’s Colony in San Luis Obispo. At that time, in November 1977, Dr. Owre reported he found Weaver to be without psychiatric symptomology (including schizophrenia), but did note Weaver’s relationships with women

¹⁸ Dr. Gardner’s report was not before the jury, but is part of the state record.

1 were “distorted.” Dr. Owre found Weaver’s main problem to be his pathological relationship with 2 women. He diagnosed Weaver as having a passive aggressive personality with depressive and 3 sadomasochistic features (because he had disturbed relationships with and derived emotional relief by 4 inflicting pain on women). A person with this type of diagnosis would have very little impulse control.
5 During his incarceration at the Men’s Colony, Weaver was a “model inmate,” being discipline-free, 6 getting along with others, and conforming to prison rules. Weaver was not given anti-psychotic 7 medication during his incarceration at the Men’s Colony. Based on the history Weaver gave him, Dr.
8 Owre felt Weaver’s parents were brutal and well as over protective. The fact that his first wife left him 9 for another man nurtured Weaver’s hatred for women. Dr. Owre estimated Weaver’s to have “high 10 normal” intelligence.¹⁹

11 During redirect examination, Dr. Owre stated that as a result of his observations of Weaver 12 from the witness stand, he believed Weaver was “suffering from a chronic undifferentiated 13 schizophrenic condition . . . responding to internal messages . . . [and] to have deteriorated markedly 14 since [Dr. Owre and staff] had last seen him at the Men’s Colony.” The prosecutor made an immediate 15 effort to minimize that observation by noting (in the form of a question) that Weaver had been 16 smoking and conversing with other people during breaks in the proceedings and that Weaver had 17 testified during the guilt phase in a rational manner.²⁰

18 Outside of the jury’s presence on the following day, the trial court concurred with Mr.
19 Shumaker’s disdain for Dr. Owre’s declaration from the witness stand and his impression of Weaver’s 20 present mental state. Acknowledging his responsibility under Penal Code § 1368 to call for a hearing 21 if he had a doubt about Weaver’s competence, Judge Stone stated he didn’t think that the opinion Dr.
22 Owre expressed while answering questions from counsel and without examining Weaver in five years

24 ¹⁹ Dr. Owre was the only one of Weaver’s examiners who arrived at this impression. One of 25 the examiners the Huffmans hired actually administered a test to measure Weaver’s Intelligence 26 Quotient and come up with a score of 85 to 90, which is in the low normal range. Dr. Owre’s opinion 27 about Weaver’s intelligence was based on his observation.

28 ²⁰ Having read the transcript of Weaver’s guilt phase testimony, the Court cannot disagree with the prosecutor’s assessment that Weaver testified in a rational manner. The transcript, however, does not record pauses, gestures, or facial expressions. There is no way to know how Weaver was perceived during guilt phase proceedings.

1 raised a doubt in his mind about Weaver's competence. Judge Stone further stated he did not believe a 2 doctor would be able to diagnose someone from the witness stand and after further argument from Mr.
3 Shumaker, concluded that Weaver's current competence was not in question. Mrs. Huffman noted only 4 that Weaver was cooperative but didn't always understand what was going on in the proceedings. In 5 her post-conviction declaration she avers that she did not ask the court to declare a doubt of Weaver's 6 competence because she personally thought "he was trial competent." Exhibit 34 to First State 7 Petition, ¶ 30.

8 (iii) Dr. Tolchin

9 Dr. Tolchin, a staff psychologist for the Men's Colony, conducted counseling sessions with 10 Weaver for about six months during Weaver's incarceration. In October 1978, Dr. Tolchin noted that 11 Weaver's passive aggressive personality with depressive and sadomasochistic features (the same 12 diagnosis given by Dr. Owre) were in remission. He clarified that Weaver did not suffer from a mental 13 problem, but rather a personality disorder. In his October 3, 1978 report to the board of the community 14 parole board, Dr. Tolchin stated that Weaver was earnest in trying to work out his problems, as 15 evidenced by his regular attendance at counseling sessions. Exhibit 117 to First State Petition. His 16 testimony was to the same effect. He hoped Weaver would continue therapy outside of prison to re-17 establish amicable relations with his wife and work on improving his self-esteem once he was paroled 18 in February 1979. Dr. Tolchin felt that Weaver's severe personality disorder carried with it a potential 19 for violence.

20 e. Mental State Evaluations Relative to the 1981 Ventura County
21 Conviction

22 The next three witnesses evaluated Weaver in 1981 relative to the May 1981 Ventura crimes.
23 Two of these three witnesses, George Chappell, M.D. and Theodore Donaldson, Ph.D., assessed 24 Weaver's sanity under Penal Code § 1026. They brought with them their prior reports and notes, but 25 received no additional information to review from the Huffmans. They did, however, receive 26 additional documents from the prosecutor, Mr. Shumaker, including the transcript of Weaver's 27 custodial statement for the Radford/ Levoy murders and the statement of co-inmate Ricky Gibson to 28 whom Weaver divulged his involvement in the Radford/ Levoy murders. Drs. Chappell's and

1 Donaldson's respective reports have been made part of the state court record (but not exhibits at 2 Weaver's trial). Exhibits 58 and 59 to First State Petition.

3 i. Dr. Chappell

4 At the time of their July 1981 interview, Weaver told Dr. Chappell he was taking 600 mg. of 5 the anti-psychotic medication Mellaril. Dr. Chappell testified he harbored doubts about this claim 6 because Weaver showed none of the side effects for Mellaril (dry mouth and the appearance of 7 sedation), but didn't check the medical records in Weaver's file.²¹ Dr. Chappell diagnosed Weaver 8 with a history of amphetamine abuse, which is a psychiatric condition, and adjustment disorder with 9 depressive reaction (because of his incarceration). He suspected, but wasn't certain, that Weaver was 10 malingering on some symptoms. On cross examination, he clarified that an adjustment disorder is a 11 psychiatric condition but not a mental defect or disease. As a result of his interview, Dr. Chappell felt 12 Weaver was of average intelligence based on the fact that Weaver told him he completed two years of 13 college.²² Dr. Chappell determined that Weaver neither described nor showed symptoms of 14 schizophrenia or true psychosis during his evaluation. He also testified he felt a competent mental 15 health professional could make a diagnosis in the first hour of evaluation, and he spent twice that long.
16 Dr. Chappell doubted Weaver experienced auditory hallucinations (as Weaver had reported to him).
17 He also doubted schizophrenia because if Weaver had schizophrenia, he would have had an episode 18 during combat in Vietnam. He did not feel Weaver was insane at the time of the Ventura crimes.

19 ii. Dr. Donaldson

20 As a psychologist, Dr. Donaldson administered both the Minnesota Multiphasic Personality 21 Inventory ("MMPI") and the Rorschach Projective Personality test. He testified Weaver seemed to be
24

25 ²¹ Dr. Chappell did not indicate his doubts in his report.

26 ²² Other evidence presented at trial indicated that the coursework in which was Weaver enrolled 27 was not academic, but rather vocational in nature (landscaping, drafting, photography, and blue 28 printing). See testimony summary of Dr. Shonkwiler (Part III.A.1.f., infra) and Dr. Matychowiak (Part III.A.2.a., infra). Dr. Chappell's reports simply states that Weaver had "been through junior college."

1 somewhat out of touch during their interview.²³ On the MMPI, Weaver scored acceptably on the L 2 (lie) scale and the K (defensiveness) scale, meaning that he was being open and honest. He had a very 3 high (as in totally off the scale) on the F scale, indicating either exaggeration or a great deal of 4 confusion.²⁴ The prominent factors about his interview with Weaver were that he (Weaver) heard
5 voices, was very angry, and was very angry with women in particular.²⁵ As Dr. Donaldson understood 6 it, these voices consisted of two competing male voices and a female voice (a total of three voices).²⁶ 7 Dr. Donaldson thought, but was not certain, that the reported auditory hallucinations might have been 8 fabricated, that Weaver “was obviously exaggerating his symptoms,” but did demonstrate a “very 9 schizoid adjustment,” that is, and he was socially withdrawn. Dr. Donaldson determined Weaver’s 10 Axis I diagnosis was dysthymic disorder (that is, depressive neurosis), which he self-medicated with 11 amphetamines, and his Axis II diagnosis was borderline (or mixed) personality disorder. Weaver’s 12 lack of impulse control was consistent with both anti-social personality disorder (“ASPD”) and 13 schizophrenia. He concluded Weaver was not insane at the time he raped the 15 year old girl (from the 14 Ventura crime) because he thought about it and did it because he wanted to. With respect to history, 15 Dr. Donaldson concluded that Weaver had an unhappy and sickly childhood and tended to be socially 16 withdrawn from other people. From their discussions about Vietnam, Dr. Donaldson learned that 17 Weaver liked, or even loved, to blow things up while he was working demolition and had quite a bit of 18 trouble getting into the service.²⁷ On re-direct Dr. Donaldson conceded that the evaluation he did of 20 ²³ In his report he stated Weaver’s speech was clear and there were no indications of a “marked 21 thought disorder” in his presentation, although he appeared depressed and frequently was close to 22 tears.

23 ²⁴ Dr. Donaldson noted that the validity scales indicated that the clinical scales could not be 24 interpreted because Weaver either was trying to “look bad” or was exhibiting a “cry for help.”

25 ²⁵ According to Dr. Donaldson’s report, Weaver’s hatred of women was limited to those he 26 found attractive.

27 ²⁶ Dr. Donaldson did not give too much detail about the voices except to say it was difficult to 28 determine the extent and severity of the auditory hallucinations; he also thought there was a possibility Weaver was fabricating the voices.

²⁷ The notion that Weaver had trouble getting into the Army because of his health conditions now is in dispute. His first wife, Patricia Budrow Weaver, averred that after the marriage ended, Weaver was drafted and his mother tried to keep him out “with the heart murmur story.” However,

1 Weaver was superficial. A longer period of observation plus interviews with parents, siblings, 2 teachers, and similar persons would have yielded a better diagnosis. Also, he indicated that if he had 3 heard Weaver's confession tapes, rather than just reading the transcript, he might have had a more in-4 depth understanding, since he could not tell by reading the transcript that Weaver was crying when he 5 talked about the crimes.²⁸ He explained that even if he had known about a Weaver family history of 6 mental illness, notably, schizophrenia, he would not have changed his mind about Weaver's sanity at 7 the time of the Ventura crimes. With respect to the Radford/ Levoy murders, Dr. Donaldson was 8 particularly struck by the anger Weaver expressed while he was choking Ms. Levoy (as related by 9 Ricky Gibson). It reinforced in Dr. Donaldson's mind Weaver's "enormous" anger against women as 10 Weaver expressed during their interview. At the very end of Mrs. Huffman's re-direct examination, 11 she asked if Dr. Donaldson's opinion would change if he knew that Weaver had blacked out after Ms.
12 Levoy bit him and then didn't realize he was choking her until she was lifeless. Dr. Donaldson 13 testified that if Weaver had dissociated during the killing, that could have been an indication of 14 insanity and that more investigation would have been necessary.

15 iii. Mr. Rose

16 The third of the Ventura offense-related witnesses was Mr. Rollin Rose,²⁹ a staff psychologist 17 (with a master's degree), at the Chino correctional facility. He gave Weaver a battery of psychological 18 tests to determine placement for the Ventura crimes. He provided a diagnosis of "personality disorder, 19 passive aggressive personality with schizoid features, and sexual sadism." He found no symptoms of 20 psychosis. On cross examination, Mr. Shumaker elicited a statement in Mr. Rose's report that Weaver 21 expressed "intense hostility toward women." Mr. Rose administered the Wechsler Adult Intelligence

23 once Weaver was examined by a specialist, he was "accepted into the Army." Declaration of Patricia 24 Weaver, Exhibit 2 to First State Petition, ¶ 27.

25 ²⁸ Mrs. Huffman asked her question about the transcript versus the tape of Weaver's confession 26 in a manner to cast blame on the prosecutor for not providing the most sympathetic medium for the 27 content of Weaver's statement. The Huffmans provided Dr. Donaldson with no information or 28 documentation.

29 In the reporter's transcript, Mr. Rose's first name is spelled "Rolland." During his testimony, he was asked to spell his last name but not his first. The correct spelling of his first name is adopted from the declaration submitted in post-conviction proceedings, over Mr. Rose's signature.

1 Scale (IQ) test to Weaver and found an IQ of 96, a low level of intellectual functioning. Mr. Rose 2 could not recall any information about Weaver when he was contacted by Weaver’s current counsel. In 3 his declaration he averred that this recollection could not be refreshed. Exhibit G to Weaver’s brief.

4 f. “Team” Mental Evaluation regarding the Present Offense

5 In addition to calling mental health experts who had evaluated Weaver previously and four 6 PTSD experts, Mr. and Mrs. Huffman hired a team of mental health experts to evaluate Weaver for the 7 schizophrenia defense relative to the Radford/ Levoy crimes. The team consisted of psychiatrist Jack 8 Shonkwiler, M.D. and four members from Affiliated Psychologists: psychologists, K. Edward 9 Dietiker, Ph.D. and Kathe Lundgren, Ph.D., plus two psychologist assistants, Mary Cholet³⁰ and Will 10 Powers.³¹ Each team member from Affiliated Psychologists administered various (different) 11 psychological tests to Weaver in order to assess different parts of his mental functioning. Dr.
12 Shonkwiler’s diagnosis of Weaver, from the perspective of a psychiatrist, was informed by those tests 13 – particularly the Rorschach test given by Dr. Dietiker and the MMPI given by Dr. Lundgren.

14 i. Dr. Shonkwiler

15 A side issue respecting Dr. Shonkwiler’s qualification as an expert was the fact that he was 16 practicing psychiatry under an “impaired” license, supervised by another psychiatrist. The reason for 17 the impairment on his license was unrelated to his competence as a mental health expert. During his 18 cross examination, however, Mr. Shumaker emphasized that that Dr. Shonkwiler was on 10 years of 19 probation with the Board of Medical Quality Assurance, beginning in 1980. According to Mrs.
20 Huffman in her post-conviction declaration, Mr. Huffman was very angry to learn of Dr. Shonkwiler’s 21 impaired license, but by the time he learned of it, there was no time to retain another psychiatrist. This 22 fact added to his already high stress level. Exhibit 34 to First State Petition, ¶ 8.

23 Dr. Shonkwiler’s direct examination lasted almost the entire day on February 4, 1985 through a 24 short time after the lunch recess on February 5, 1985. In the course of Dr. Shonkwiler’s lengthy 26 ³⁰ Mary Cholet received her Ph.D. in psychology between the evaluation and her testimony.

27 She was called by Mr. Shumaker for the prosecution case in chief.

28 ³¹ Mr. Powers was not asked to testify by either side.

1 testimony, he reviewed Weaver's childhood abuse, attributes of the "disturbing" relationship with his 2 sister, a love-hate relationship with his mother, which may have included incestuous elements, reports
3 of other clinicians, the fact of Weaver's amphetamine abuse, and his life-long symptoms of paranoid 4 schizophrenia, undifferentiated schizophrenia, and PTSD. Utilizing slides from Diagnostic Statistical 5 Manual, Volume III ("DSM III"), Dr. Shonkwiler explained the symptoms Weaver exhibited that fit 6 the criteria established for schizophrenia and PTSD. Dr. Shonkwiler was aware that the mother was 7 hostile to men in that she told Weaver she wanted to line up all men (except Weaver) and cut off their 8 penises. Dr. Shonkwiler also interviewed Weaver's mother (for about an hour) and Weaver's sister 9 (for about 45 minutes), as well as Weaver (for about two hours) in 1983. He opined that Weaver was 10 legally insane at the time of the crimes against Mr. Radford and Ms. Levoy due to his inability to 11 conform his behavior to the requirements of law. Although Weaver knew the difference between right 12 and wrong, his impulse control was very poor. He exemplified the definition of irresistible impulse.

13 Three aspects concerning Dr. Shonkwiler affected his credibility, all brought out by Mr.
14 Shumaker during his cross examination. First there was his impaired license to practice medicine, 15 mentioned above. Second was his conclusion that Weaver most likely suffered sadistic toilet training 16 because of the information he read about the "blisterings," bites, and hair pulling punishment Weaver 17 received from his mother as an older youngster and teenager. The conclusion admittedly was 18 speculation. The third aspect related to how he arrived at the diagnoses for both schizophrenia and 19 PTSD. For schizophrenia, he relied on the reports and work leading up to the reports of psychologists 20 Dr. Dietiker and Dr. Lundgren. As to PTSD, he didn't consider or include this diagnosis when 21 preparing his December 1983 report, but resisted emphasizing military experience because of his own
22 personal "countertransference" about the Vietnam War.³² He adopted the PTSD diagnosis in January 23 1985 only after reviewing the conclusions and assessments of the four PTSD experts.

26
27 ³² Apparently, there was a break in the proceedings while Dr. Shonkwiler collected himself.
28 Although this isn't evident from the transcript, it is suggested by the criticism leveled against Dr.
Shonkwiler by Mr. Shumaker during summation. See Part III.A.4., infra.

1 cross examination, Mr. Shumaker focused on the situations in which Weaver had been able to maintain 2 his self-control, including sitting in the courtroom while Dr. Dietiker revealed the very personal and 3 uncomplimentary facts about Weaver's test results, suggesting that Weaver consciously acted on his 4 desires only when he encountered an attractive woman he wanted sexually and thought he would not 5 be caught. In response, Dr. Dietiker conceded that Weaver's lack of impulse control upon 6 encountering a vulnerable attractive woman could be viewed as a symptom of ASPD. Mr. Shumaker 7 also suggested that Weaver could have "faked sick" on the Rorschach test because he had taken the 8 test on a previous occasion. Dr. Dietiker did not believe it was possible for Weaver to have "faked it," 9 as even his advanced psychology students weren't able to do so. Mr. Shumaker emphasized Dr.
10 Dietiker's initial impression from the Wolpes's Fear Survey that Weaver might have been faking his 11 anxiety. Mrs. Huffman rehabilitated him on re-direct by eliciting his conclusion that Weaver suffered 12 from a great deal of paranoia. Dr. Dietiker did not believe Weaver was trying to convince him that he 13 (Weaver) was psychotic. In the end, however, he could not say that Weaver had been out touch with 14 reality on February 5 and 6, 1981 when the Radford/ Levoy crimes were committed.

15 iii. Dr. Lundgren

16 Dr. Lundgren was the leader of the psychological team that conducted testing on Weaver. She 17 assigned a total of 14 tests plus psychodiagnostic interviews to be administered by each of four the 18 team members, Dr. Dietiker, Mary Cholet, Wil Powers, and herself. Her personal evaluation of 19 Weaver was informed by her psychodiagnostic interview, the MMPI, the House-Tree-Person Test, and 20 the Leary Interpersonal Checklist. She spent five and a half hours with Weaver face-to-face, plus 21 additional time scoring and interpreting the results. She also wrote a report and conferred with the 22 other team members. One of the tests administered by Wil Powers was the Wechsler Adult 23 Intelligence Scale. Weaver's IQ was in the 85 to 90 range, which is low normal.

24 Dr. Lundgren initially thought Weaver was "faking sick" on the MMPI, but after reviewing all 25 of his test results, she concluded that he fit the profile of a schizophrenic, suicidal, depressed, and 26 withdrawn individual. On the House-Tree-Person Test, Weaver's drawings indicated he had a "very 27 inadequate personality," and a "low self-concept and psychotic processes at work." She believed 28 Weaver possibly was schizophrenic in the way he made his four drawings. Weaver's responses on the

1 Leary Interpersonal Check List is test similarly indicated he “had about the lowest perception of self in 2 terms of his actual character structure” compared with the way he would like to be. His self-perception
3 was at the bottom of the scale. A person scoring in that manner would be at risk for suicide. On cross 4 examination, Dr. Lundgren testified that during the psychodiagnostic interview, Weaver told her that 5 he picked up female hitchhikers while driving his truck and then had forcible sex with them. He 6 mentioned the female voice he heard, trying to talk him out of this conduct. He made no reference to 7 the male voice urging him to proceed with the rapes or otherwise.

8 Taking into account the various acts of violence and terror Weaver perpetrated on his sister 9 Katie when they were children, Dr. Lundgren suggested that Weaver was trying eliminate his sister 10 because he looked at their mother as the sole source for affection and he didn’t want to share. Dr.
11 Lundgren explained that a characteristic of some schizophrenics was that love and affection were 12 available in only very small quantities from a single person. The solution for such a person would be 13 to get rid of or devalue the competitor. Weaver had such a severe personality disorder that he could 14 transfer into psychotic thinking upon perceiving a threat to his source of affection. His psychosis 15 caused him to misinterpret the stress and his personality disorder dictated his inappropriate conduct.

16 She testified that if an examiner were to just look at and talk to Weaver, which is one method of 17 assessing behavior, the examiner would not come up with the underlying psychosis because the 18 personality disorder was so extreme and stood out. Had Dr. Lundgren spent less time with Weaver and 19 only conducted an interview with the MMPI, she would have missed the psychosis. She would have 20 come up with a diagnosis of a severe character disorder of a sexual sadomasochistic type. Dr.
21 Lundgren’s final diagnosis of Weaver was 1) chronic, undifferentiated schizophrenia and 2) 22 psychopathic personality. After conferring with the other three examiners, she did not change her 23 diagnosis; rather the information she received confirmed her diagnosis. Only Dr. Dietiker agreed with 24 her that Weaver suffered from schizophrenia, but all four examiners agreed Weaver was afflicted with 25 a sociopathic personality (ASPD). Dr. Lundgren refused to opine whether Weaver was insane at the 26 time of the crimes because insanity was a legal term. She had no ambivalence or hesitation when 27 formulating her diagnosis.

1 g. Long-time Friends

2 Next to testify were long-time friends and half-brothers Del Roy Barnett and Jesse Mooreland.
3 Both testified they spent time with Weaver fishing, working, and “hanging out” when they were in 4 their late teens and early twenties. They described Weaver as easy-going and someone who stood in 5 the background. After Vietnam, however, Weaver was more prone to violence and assertiveness. Mr.
6 Barnett noticed that Weaver didn’t enjoy fishing as much as he did prior to his service. Both also 7 testified that they had observed Weaver talking to himself. Mr. Barnett observed this when he 8 accompanied Weaver on a long-haul drive, but Mr. Barnett did not consider it unusual because he also 9 talked to himself when he was driving long hauls. Mr. Mooreland’s experience with Weaver talking to 10 himself occurred when the fishing boat they were in drifted over some rocks. Again, this did not seem 11 unusual to Mr. Mooreland because as Weaver was talking to himself, Mr. Mooreland was talking to 12 himself.

13 h. Special Evaluations Regarding PTSD

14 As mentioned above, the Huffmans hired four PTSD experts: Byron Wittlin, M.D., a 15 psychiatrist from the VA Hospital in Los Angeles; Clyde Donahoe, Ph.D., a clinical psychologist at 16 the same VA Hospital; John P. Wilson, Ph.D., a PTSD expert psychologist from Cleveland, Ohio; and 17 Harry Kormos, M.D., a psychiatrist in private practice from Berkeley, California.

18 i. Dr. Wittlin

19 Psychiatrist Dr. Wittlin examined Weaver on August 27, 1984. He testified a great deal about 20 Weaver’s childhood and adolescence, in part based on reports prepared by other evaluators, and in part 21 on what Weaver told him. He found that the conflicted relationship Weaver had with his mother, the 22 disturbing interaction with his sister, the lack of friends, and the absence of a relationship with his 23 father resulted in a very maladjusted individual. Weaver relayed to Dr. Wittlin that his mother slapped 24 him to awaken him and punished him by pulling his hair and biting him, plus told to him that she 25 wanted to line all men up (except for Weaver) and cut off their penises. Based on this information, Dr.
26 Wittlin concluded Weaver’s mother was brutal, repressive, and overprotective. Nonetheless, Weaver 27 described her as “wonderful” and told Dr. Wittlin he and his mother communicated telepathically. Dr.
28 Wittlin opined that the conflicted relationship with his mother and sadistic relationship with his sister

1 (consistent with the sister's testimony) comprised the foundation for the kind of sexually assaultive 2 crimes Weaver later committed against women (including his first wife, Patricia). Weaver refused to 3 talk to Dr. Wittlin about his father.

4 Dr. Wittlin understood that Weaver was a "loner" who pursued recreational activities alone, 5 started experiencing hallucinations at age 17, and was beset by grandiose psychotic thoughts, including 6 that he could make explosives out of household products such as Tide laundry detergent and baking 7 soda, that his heart condition was cured when he shook hands with the Army recruiting officer who 8 told him he could enlist in the Army after having been rejected twice before, and that all women were 9 intent on sexually stimulating him so they could frustrate him. Weaver's manner of communicating to 10 Dr. Wittlin demonstrated convoluted, paradoxical type thinking. He diagnosed Weaver with 11 schizophrenia, paranoid type, and also, after reviewing the psychological test results of Dr. Donahoe, 12 PTSD. He believed Weaver's schizophrenia was exacerbated by combat stress experienced in 13 Vietnam. Dr. Wittlin attributed Weaver's auditory hallucinations to the schizophrenia. On cross 14 examination, he conceded that some schizophrenics are able to control themselves and he was unable 15 to say whether Weaver was able to control his conduct during the Radford/ Levoy crimes.

16 ii. Dr. Donahoe

17 Psychologist Clyde Donahoe, Ph.D., like Dr. Wittlin, evaluated Weaver in August 1984.
18 Weaver tested positive for PTSD on the PTSD scale of the MMPI, scored high on the Combat 19 Exposure Scale for combat action in Vietnam, scored positive for PTSD on the Symptom Check List, 20 showed exposure to significantly high combat conditions on the Traumatic Violence Scale, and 21 physically displayed a great deal of stress (increase in heart rate by 40 points) while watching slides of 22 Vietnam combat scenes (as registered by the heart/ respiration monitor to which Weaver was attached) 23 on the psychophysiological assessment. Dr. Donahoe understood that Weaver participated in or 24 witnessed the killing of women and children, mutilation of dead bodies, mutilation of live people, 25 inadvertent air strikes, ambushes on U.S. or friendly troops, use of napalm, torture and killing of 26 prisoners, mercy killing, watching a buddy die, leaving a civilian to die, taking human body parts as 27 trophies, and bagging dead bodies. Weaver's symptoms included re-experiencing trauma, nightmares, 28 memory of trauma, panic attacks, inability to make friends, loss of interest in usual activities,

1 emotional numbness, trouble with trust, jumpiness, difficulty falling asleep, waking up in the middle of 2 the night, trouble concentrating, memory problems, and experiencing his heart racing. While 3 providing his answers, there were occasions when Weaver cried. Dr. Donahoe testified this tearfulness 4 was typical of combat veterans who suffered from PTSD.

5 On cross examination Dr. Donahoe explained that the tests he administered were given to 6 individuals who were seeking psychological help – not for forensics purposes. He conceded that some 7 of Weaver’s PTSD symptoms could be explained by his present criminal incarceration. He also 8 admitted that it was impossible for him to verify Weaver’s self-report of Vietnam combat experience, 9 but Weaver’s service record and his involuntary reaction to combat stimuli did substantiate his combat 10 role. In any event, he did not doubt that Weaver suffered from PTSD, despite his inability to verify 11 Weaver’s self-report of combat service.

12 iii. Dr. Wilson

13 Psychologist John Wilson, Ph.D. was a nationally known expert and researcher on PTSD 14 among Vietnam combat veterans. He was well-published in journals, books, and revisions to the DSM 15 III. In addition, he testified before Congress on the plight of Vietnam veterans. He was experienced in 16 other areas of psychology as well, including psychosis, schizophrenia and forensic psychology, but in 17 recent years was more focused on PTSD. He was not board certified in forensic psychology, a fact Mr.
18 Shumaker brought out on cross examination. The back drop for Dr. Wilson’s testimony was Weaver’s 19 performance on a test Dr. Wilson developed called the Vietnam Era Stress Inventory (“VESI”). The 20 test was designed to assess psychosocial functioning of Vietnam combat veterans, primarily measuring 21 war stress and PTSD. The test consisted of 700 questions. In Weaver’s case, the test was administered 22 by Mr. Huffman, while his responses were captured on an audio-video (“AV”) tape. The tape was then 23 mailed to Dr. Wilson in his home state of Ohio.

24 Dr. Wilson reviewed reports from other examiners as well as the VESI AV tape. He also spent 25 three hours interviewing Weaver prior to his testimony. In sum, he spent a total of 40 to 50 hours 26 arriving at his diagnosis. In his opinion arriving at an accurate diagnosis would take more than two 27 hours. He disagreed with the conclusion of the experts who opined that Weaver’s depression and 28 suicidal thoughts stemmed from his incarceration. Rather, Dr. Wilson concluded Weaver had a long-

1 standing history of mental disorder, whether paranoid schizophrenia, psychopathic personality
2 disorder, adjustment disorder, or dysthymic personality characteristic. Long before Vietnam, Weaver 3 was a very disturbed and vulnerable human being, predisposed to violent behavior in response to 4 sexual and physical abuse from his mother,³⁴ and as manifested by his conduct as a youngster towards 5 his sister. With respect to the physical discipline the mother inflicted (biting and beating with an 6 electrical cord or leather strap), Dr. Wilson clarified on cross examination that whether there were 7 many or only a few beatings is not as important as the victim's perception of the beatings. Weaver 8 began acting out his sexual and aggressive feelings towards women as "a defense against the 9 underlying psychosis." Although Dr. Wilson was not at first sure Weaver suffered from schizophrenia 10 upon reviewing the many materials and AV tape, after interviewing Weaver face-to-face, he was 11 certain Weaver suffered from paranoid schizophrenia, co-existing with PTSD and a mixed personality 12 disorder. Dr. Wilson believed the schizophrenia developed when Weaver was a youngster. Mixed 13 personality disorder referred to personality traits which were long standing and interfered with a 14 person's adaptive functioning. Weaver's personality disorder was pronounced and masked his 15 underlying psychosis. Dr. Wilson believed Weaver had been mentally ill with psychosis and the 16 accompanying personality disorder most of his life.

17 During Weaver's taped sessions answering the VESI questions, Dr. Wilson felt he was being 18 truthful. He also felt Weaver's hallucinations, reported during the face-to-face interview, were 19 authentic. If they had been "fake," they would have been reported within a constrained period of time 20 for a particular purpose. That wasn't the case, as Weaver described to Dr. Wilson information 21 conveyed to him by both the male and female voices which had nothing to do with the present crimes, 22 including the female voice's discouragement of Weaver taking revenge on certain people Weaver felt 23 were responsible for his present predicament (being on trial for the Radford/ Levoy murders), and the 24 male voice's encouragement for him to harm two women associated with his present incarceration.
25 Moreover, when Weaver was talking about his hallucinations, his affect was very intense, he was 26

27 ³⁴ Dr. Wilson's testimony regarding this issue echoed Dr. Shonkwiler's suggestion of some sort 28 of incestuous activity.

1 spontaneous, and his speech was pressured. He told Dr. Wilson he didn't like people crawling around 2 inside his head and reading his thoughts. Dr. Wilson suspected Weaver was having hallucinations
3 during his interview, as he was getting agitated, volatile and red-faced. Plus, he exhibited 4 inappropriate laughter while relaying the content of the voices' respective statements.

5 Regarding the PTSD diagnosis, Dr. Wilson testified on direct examination he did not doubt 6 Weaver had been involved in combat situations. Even when Weaver was working in the lumber yard
7 (his first assignment in Vietnam), there still were attacks on his base. After his stint in the lumber 8 yard, when Weaver became a "combat engineer" working with demolition, he was in heavy combat.
9 His job was to sweep for mines in connection with support, search, and destroy missions. On cross 10 examination, Mr. Shumaker suggested that because there were 100 to 120 men in Weaver's company, 11 he may never have seen combat. During this cross examination, Dr. Wilson conceded he couldn't say 12 with certainty that Weaver was involved in actual combat any more than on some occasions.

13 There were three combat events that stood out. The first involved the decapitation death of a 14 fellow soldier. This is the occasion the male voice first came to him, telling him to turn around, which 15 he did, and proceeded to shoot several enemy soldiers who were advancing on him. When recounting 16 this story to Dr. Wilson, Weaver was trembling and crying. The second event involved the result of 17 Weaver's refusal to detonate explosives to blow up a village that was "clean" of enemy operatives. In 18 light of this refusal, his sergeant detonated the explosives and many civilian villagers were killed: men, 19 women, and children literally blown apart, body parts and blood all over. During this recitation, 20 Weaver's voice was halting and accompanied by shaking and crying. The third and most gruesome 21 event involved the questioning of a prisoner from a village in which Viet Cong operatives were 22 suspected of hiding. An interrogator from the Army of the Republic of Vietnam began skinning the 23 prisoner alive in Weaver's presence. The prisoner was screaming in ghastly pain. Once the 24 interrogator obtained the information he wanted, he stopped. Weaver asked another member of the 25 unit to shoot the prisoner to end his misery.

26 The fact that the Viet Cong practiced guerilla warfare made the entire combat experience for 27 American servicemen, including Weaver, more stressful. Dr. Wilson opined that the stress of the war 28 eliminated whatever remaining controls Weaver has over his impulses. When Weaver returned from

1 Vietnam, he still was an individual with psychotic tendencies and a learned psychopathic antisocial
2 personality disorder, but now he had no means to modulate his behavior. The re-experienced combat 3 images made him feel vulnerable, which in turn led him to act out in an antisocial manner. He had 4 difficulty controlling his anger and became distant from his children.

5 The VESI AV tape was shown to the jury, beginning in the early afternoon. Weaver stayed in 6 the courtroom for the first and part of the second segments of the tape, but asked the guards to 7 accompany him out of the courtroom because, as Judge Stone explained to the jurors, he appeared to 8 have “become emotionally disturbed or distraught.” Weaver waived his presence for the remainder of 9 that day (February 13, 1985) and the morning of the following day until Mr. Shumaker began his cross 10 examination of Dr. Wilson.

11 On cross examination Dr. Wilson confirmed that a person who suffers from PTSD or 12 schizophrenia is not necessarily insane, and that sanity is determined with respect to a specific act.
13 Although Dr. Wilson determined Weaver was insane in February 1985, when he conducted the 14 interview, he did not actually know if Weaver suffered from schizophrenia in February 1981. With 15 respect to the prosecution psychiatrist witnesses (Drs. Criswell, Cutting, Burdick and Matychowiak) as 16 well as the mental health experts who testified at Weaver’s trial for the Ventura crimes (psychiatrist 17 Dr. Chappell and psychologist Dr. Donaldson), Dr. Wilson believed they all missed something, that is, 18 PTSD. He also felt that the examinations conducted by these doctors were superficial. On re-direct 19 examination, Dr. Wilson confirmed his conclusion that on February 5 and 6, 1981, Weaver could not 20 conform his behavior to the requirements of law, “absolutely.”

21 iv. Dr. Kormos

22 Psychiatrist Harry Kormos, M.D. had extensive experience treating combat veterans during his 23 service as a Navy psychiatrist. He spent between 30 to 40 hours reviewing the materials (consisting of 24 12 inches of documents and two AV tapes), considering the matter, and writing a report. After writing 25 his report, Dr. Kormos also interviewed Weaver for two hours the day before his testimony. Dr.
26 Kormos had a much better understanding of the intensity of Weaver’s confusion as well as the 27 psychotic nature of his thinking after the interview. Focusing on his upbringing, Dr. Kormos identified 28 three stressful aspects from his youth: his physical health; his relationship with his mother; and his

1 relationship with his sister. Weaver's mother, in particular, created a contradictory relationship 2 because she was both extremely important to Weaver and violently aggressive. During the face-to-3 face interview, Weaver made clear that the punishment she inflicted, including the "blistering" and 4 biting," was very painful, very severe, and recurring. Dr. Kormos felt that Weaver's relationships with 5 women had always been bizarre, to a pathological degree, all stemming from the conflicted 6 relationship with his mother.

7 Weaver also had internal conflicts from the fact that he was beat up at school and wasn't 8 supposed to fight back because of his weak heart. He had to worry if he didn't get beat up, his mother 9 would "blister" him for being truant, and if he did fight back, he would have been punished for that as 10 well. This created in Weaver a sense of being oppressed, wanting to strike back, and thinking others 11 wanted to do him harm.

12 The relationship with his sister also was troubling. Based on the horrible acts Weaver 13 perpetrated on his sister, Dr. Kormos believed Weaver wanted to kill her when he cut off her finger 14 back when they were five and six years old. Although Mr. Shumaker downplayed the seriousness of 15 this finger chopping incident by suggesting it was merely an accident, Dr. Kormos took this act in the 16 context of the other cruel things Weaver did to his sister, including going through the motions of 17 hanging her. He maintained his opinion that Weaver wanted to kill her since the sibling rivalry and 18 dislike was so unusually intense.

19 Based on his review of Weaver's military records, Dr. Kormos believed Weaver had combat 20 experience while in Vietnam. This impression was confirmed by Weaver's emotional responses 21 depicted on the AV tapes, which Dr. Kormos found authentic and genuine. Dr. Kormos also was 22 impressed that Weaver tried more than once to enlist in the Army and would not accept the 23 classification of unfit for military service. At the time of Weaver's enlistment, he had suicidal 24 fantasies. These fantasies or thoughts, in turn, drew the attention of Weaver's friends when he gave 25 away all his possessions, including his fishing equipment, before deployment. On cross examination, 26 Mr. Shumaker posed questions to cast doubt on Dr. Kormos' conclusion that Weaver had been in 27 active combat. This uncertainty led to considerable back-and-forth re-cross and re-direct examination 28 about the meaning to be attributable to the fact that Weaver put Ms. Levoy in a "prisoner position"

1 when he returned to the truck after delivering the fatal blows to Mr. Radford. Mrs. Huffman suggested 2 this was part of a PTSD flashback to Vietnam, while Mr. Shumaker suggested this position just as 3 easily have been learned stateside in basic training.

4 Dr. Kormos opined that Weaver demonstrated delusional thinking when he expressed the belief
5 that the “hole in his heart” was healed when the Army recruitment colonel decided to pass him as fit 6 for service. Weaver also was afflicted with grandiose delusional thinking, with claims he could make 7 explosives out of household items, such as Tide, nuts, and bolts. Dr. Kormos found unusual that 8 Weaver volunteered to mental health professional that he had been a demolition expert, enjoyed seeing 9 things blow up, and then giggled about it. Most veterans were aware of social mores that one should 10 not express deriving enjoyment in destruction or explosions. He felt Weaver’s admission that he felt 11 powerful as a combat engineer indicated to Dr. Kormos that issues of impulse control needed to be 12 explored. Upon Weaver’s return from combat he had developed a tremendous amount of unfocused 13 anger on reflecting that the Vietnam conflict had been senseless and that his superior officers were 14 corrupt.

15 Dr. Kormos’ understanding of the circumstances of the crime was consistent with the 16 prosecution theory of the case. Mr. Shumaker focused his cross examination on the concept of impulse 17 control, eliciting that Weaver was able to control his behavior to initially make contact with the young 18 couple and formulate a plan to “get rid” of the young man. Dr. Kormos responded that even a person 19 like Weaver, with impulse dis-control, would be able to protect the object of his impulses (that is, his 20 desire to rape the woman). He also noted that a person who had been sleep deprived (as Weaver was), 21 or used drugs (as Weaver did), would have had an even lower ability to exercise impulse control.
22 While Dr. Kormos agreed that Weaver did not rape every attractive woman he encountered, he did 23 have very powerful urges and emotions, which varied in intensity from time to time. When he did 24 commit a rape, he did so in isolated locations. The presence of witnesses strengthened Weaver’s self-25 control.³⁵ Weaver’s ability to exercise external self-control was manifested by his ability to drive his 26

27 ³⁵ In framing the question, Mr. Shumaker suggested that Weaver carefully chose to commit 28 rape on victims who were defenseless and isolated from public view.

1 truck and make deliveries. It was the internal controls which troubled him. Dr. Kormos' opinion that 2 Weaver lacked impulse control also was not negated by the fact that he was able to converse with Ms.
3 Levoy when they were riding together. On redirect examination, he explained that Weaver's ability to 4 control his impulses was constantly being stretched to the breaking point. When he did control his 5 impulses, it required an inordinate amount of energy. Dr. Kormos also determined that Weaver's 6 PTSD figured into his impulse control issues because in Vietnam the acts of killing, raping, and 7 torturing were not only permitted, they were encouraged. Dr. Kormos opined that the male voice 8 Weaver heard was a voice "impersonation of the whole Vietnam style of doing things, which [wa]s to 9 disregard the rules of civilized conduct and do all those things that up to that point were forbidden."
10 Dr. Kormos observed that a disproportionate number of veterans who experience psychiatric 11 difficulties after Vietnam had problems before going to war.

12 Like Dr. Wilson, Dr. Kormos opined that many of the mental health professionals didn't go far 13 enough in pursuing diagnostic studies and exploring PTSD. His own diagnosis was schizophrenia of 14 the paranoid type along with PTSD of the chronic type. At times people afflicted with schizophrenia 15 showed no symptoms (particularly in cases like Weaver's where he was in a controlled environment 16 and was taking anti-psychotic medication). The fact that Weaver held a job as a long-haul trucker and 17 gave testimony in court also did not detract from Dr. Kormos' diagnosis. He opined that at the time of 18 the crimes, Weaver had been aware of the requirements of the law, but unable to conform to those 19 requirements. On cross examination, he clarified, "I think that the urge [wa]s so strong and his 20 capacity at times to restrain that urge and not act on it, that capacity [wa]s so low, that the end result 21 [wa]s the sort of things we have heard about."

22 Mrs. Huffman next questioned Dr. Kormos about the contents of the reports of the four 23 prosecution witnesses, Drs. Cutting, Matychowiak, Criswell, and Burdick, none of whom had testified 24 yet. Dr. Kormos found similarities between his own conclusions and those of the prosecution experts.
25 He felt, however, in many respects they didn't go far enough or consider the fact that Weaver was in a 26 closed (incarcerated) environment under the influence of anti-psychotic medication.

1 couldn't expect Mrs. Huffman to take over. The requested continuance was granted. When the jurors
2 returned on January 7, Judge Stone informed the jurors that a continuance to January 14 was necessary 3 due to Mr. Huffman's lingering laryngitis.

4 Mr. Huffman's participation on that first day of sanity proceedings, January 14, 1985, was 5 active. As noted above, Part III.A.1., supra, he delivered the opening argument. As to the first 6 witness, Dr. Albert Raitt, although Mrs. Huffman conducted the direct examination, Mr. Huffman 7 conducted the re-direct examination. He had no participation in the examination of Weaver's sister, 8 Ms. Smith, either on January 14, 1985 or the next day. In fact, on the next day, January 15, 1985, Mr.
9 Huffman was absent from the proceedings with what Mrs. Huffman described as a "worsening of his 10 bronchial condition." As represented to the jurors by Judge Stone, supposedly, the Huffmans had 11 planned to call Weaver to the stand that day, but, since Mr. Huffman had organized and prepared the 12 questions to be asked, and he was absent, Weaver's testimony would be postponed until later in the 13 proceedings, but not the next day because defense experts already were scheduled to testify. Mr.
14 Huffman was back on January 16, with minimal participation. Mrs. Huffman conducted the direct 15 examination of Dr. Gardner and Mr. Huffman conducted further direct examination and re-direct 16 examination of Dr. Gardner. Similarly, Mrs. Huffman conducted the direct examination of Dr. Owre, 17 and Mr. Huffman conducted further direct examination, re-direct examination, and further re-direct 18 examination of Dr. Owre.³⁶ The treatment of Dr. Tolchin was similar, with Mrs. Huffman conducting 19 the direct examination, and Mr. Huffman conducting further direction examination as well as re-direct 20 examination.

21 The next day, Thursday, January 17, 1985, Mr. Huffman was not present, but Weaver told the 22 court he wanted to proceed. On the record, Judge Stone mentioned that Mr. Huffman had been having 23 problems with a cough and Mrs. Huffman indicated he would be checking into a hospital that 24 afternoon or evening in Los Angeles. RT-19: 4980-81. Mrs. Huffman handled the defense for the 25 examination of Dr. Chappell, Dr. Donaldson, and Mr. Rose. When the parties and jurors returned to

26
27 ³⁶ Like Mrs. Huffman, Mr. Huffman did not declare a doubt under Penal Code § 1368 about 28 Weaver's competence to be tried when Dr. Owre stated from the witness stand that he believed Weaver then currently was exhibiting symptoms of schizophrenia.

1 court, on Tuesday, January 22, 1985, Judge noted for the record that Mr. Huffman was hospitalized in 2 Los Angeles. Mrs. Huffman explained that the hospitalization was for a “vocal cord” problem.
3 Proceedings before the jury were continued to Monday, February 4, 1985, with counsel directed to 4 appear Friday, February 1, 1985 for discussion about Dr. Shonkwiler’s testimony and qualifications.
5 On that Friday, Mr. Huffman was not present, and Mrs. Huffman represented the likelihood of him 6 being present on the following Monday, February 4, 1985, was “almost nil.” Id.: 4986.

7 On that following Monday, however, Mr. Huffman was present at counsel table with Mrs.
8 Huffman for the first day of Dr. Shonkwiler’s testimony. While Mr. Huffman did not participate in the 9 lengthy direct examination that day, on the following day, he interposed a couple of objections during 10 Mr. Shumaker’s cross examination. First he objected to the question asking Dr. Shonkwiler to testify 11 about the practices of long-haul trucker drivers. When Mr. Shumaker was questioning Dr. Shonkwiler 12 about the notation in his report mentioning diminished capacity rather than insanity, Dr. Shonkwiler 13 responded that when he opined that Weaver was a paranoid schizophrenic, he was calling Weaver 14 insane. Mr. Huffman’s second objection was to Mr. Shumaker’s question about legal insanity, arguing 15 that Dr. Shonkwiler could not testify about a legal standard. Had the court sustained the objection, Dr.
16 Shonkwiler would have lost his qualification to testify. Instead, the court overruled the objection. RT-17 20: 5191. Mr. Huffman objected again to the question about whether Weaver was acting under an 18 irresistible impulse when he chopped off his sister’s finger on the grounds that the subject was not 19 material.³⁷ The objection was overruled. Id.: 5193. Later that afternoon, after Dr. Shonkwiler testified 20 he believed that all paranoid schizophrenics were legally insane. To the question of whether all 21 paranoid schizophrenics commit violent acts, Mr. Huffman’s objection was sustained.

22 During a break in Dr. Shonkwiler’s testimony, outside the presence of the jury, there was an 23 argument in which Mr. Huffman was involved about a defense subpoena of Deputy District Attorney 24 John Logan. Mr. Logan was the Deputy District Attorney involved in prosecuting Dr. Shonkwiler for 25 violations which resulted in the impairment of his license to practice medicine; Mr. Shumaker argued 26

27 ³⁷ Yet under the defense insanity strategy, the notion that Weaver’s mental illness commenced 28 when he was a young child was a key factor.

1 the Huffmans subpoenaed Mr. Logan for the sole reason of keeping him out of the courtroom and 2 therefore asked for an offer of proof as to Mr. Logan's proposed testimony. Mr. Huffman responded
3 that because Mr. Logan was a Vietnam veteran diagnosed with PTSD, he had some expertise 4 concerning how veterans are rehabilitated. Mr. Shumaker's challenge to a potential breach of 5 confidentiality about how the Huffmans concluded Mr. Logan suffered from PTSD then led Mr.
6 Huffman to argue that Mr. Shonkwiler felt uncomfortable with Mr. Logan in the courtroom. At first, 7 Mrs. Huffman was able to elicit that Dr. Shonkwiler was concerned "with a threat of possible harm 8 from Mr. Logan," id.: 5205, because when Mr. Logan was a patient of Dr. Shonkwiler he (Mr. Logan)
9 tried to take records from Dr. Shonkwiler's office. Dr. Shonkwiler further testified that two years 10 previous, Mr. Logan had suffered an acute paranoid reaction of hoarding guns, typical of PTSD in 11 Vietnam veterans. The trial court rejected the defense position that Mr. Logan was a threat or a 12 potential witness and he was allowed back in the courtroom. Id.: 5207-08.

13 On February 5, 1985, Mr. Huffman also presented the defense argument for admission of the 14 diagnostic evaluation regarding Weaver's parole for the Humboldt crime through the testimony of 15 prison psychologist Bruce Sanders, Ph.D. Although Dr. Sanders was on the psychiatric council that 16 made a recommendation about Weaver's post-release treatment, he had not performed the 17 psychological evaluation which formed the basis for the report and otherwise had no independent 18 recollection of Weaver. Mr. Huffman unsuccessfully argued that the recommendation of the 19 psychiatric council was properly admissible because Dr. Sanders was part of that group, and further, 20 that the report was a business record. Id. 5245-53.

21 On the same day (February 5, 1985), in the middle of Mrs. Huffman's direct examination of Dr.
22 Dietiker, about his assessment of Weaver's Rorschach test results, and not long before the evening 23 recess, Mr. Huffman requested a side bar conference to discuss scheduling of witnesses the over the 24 next few days. Id.: 5282-84 Other than interrupting the proceedings, the content of Mr. Huffman's 25 side bar was rational. Following the interruption, Mrs. Huffman continued her direct examination.
26 Before the evening recess, Mr. Huffman again interrupted Mrs. Huffman's examination to ask for 27 clarification about what Dr. Dietiker meant that Weaver had been "faking bad" on the Wolpe's Fear 28 Factor and 16 Personality Survey. Dr. Dietiker clarified that his initial impression about Weaver's

1 faking his symptoms was replaced by the opinion that he (Weaver) did have a diagnosable disorder, 2 that is, paranoid schizophrenia. Id.: 5292-93.

3 The following day, February 6, 1985, began rather benignly, but as the day wore on, Mr.
4 Huffman's composure seemed to dissipate. Rather than continuing with Dr. Dietiker's testimony first 5 thing in the morning, Mrs. Huffman first called Weaver's friend Del Roy Barnett, summarized above, 6 Part III.A.1.g, supra, and followed with the initial direct examination of Dr. Kathe Lundgren. Mrs.
7 Huffman's last question before the lunch recess was whether Dr. Lundgren believed Weaver should 8 have been in a mental hospital. Mr. Shumaker's objection for lack of foundation was sustained (for 9 lack of relevance). Mr. Huffman then undertook further direct examination. He elicited that a man 10 with the mental problems Weaver had should not have been integrated into society and that Weaver 11 was dangerous. Id.: 5361-62.

12 After the lunch recess, Mrs. Huffman conducted a brief direct examination of Jesse Moreland 13 (as recounted above, also in Part III.A.1.g., supra). During that examination, there was mention of Mr.
14 Moreland's Doberman Pinscher, which apparently attacked Weaver during a visit. To that reference, 15 Mr. Huffman interjected: "Could you tell us sir, how often your Doberman Pinscher pinched you?"
16 RT-21: 5381. When Mr. Moreland mentioned that the dog attacked Weaver, Mr. Huffman again
17 interjected, "So he started pinching right on your arm; right?" Id. Except for the fact that these bizarre 18 questions were captured on the reporter's transcript, there was no mention of Mr. Huffman's conduct 19 by any of the trial participants, including Judge Stone. It's unknown whether the jurors heard him, but 20 there was no indication that Judge Stone thought an admonition or statement of some kind was 21 necessary because there is nothing to reflect such a statement on the record. Following the afternoon 22 recess on the same day (February 6, 1985), during Dr. Dietiker's detailed description of Weaver's 23 Rorschach card responses, Mr. Huffman made an urgent side bar request, largely addressed to Mrs.
24 Huffman. Noting that some of the jurors were "falling asleep" and that Mr. Shumaker should be given 25 his two hours of cross examination in the morning followed by the testimony of the VA doctors, he 26 urged Mrs. Huffman, "Just sum the damn thing up," and that he was "not even grasping what's going 27 on." To make his point, he asked the bailiff if he was "getting it." Mrs. Huffman promised to sum up 28 the day in 15 minutes. Id.: 5421-23. The evening recess was taken following this interruption, and in

1 fact, the remainder of Mrs. Huffman’s direct examination was conducted on the next morning, 2 February 7, 1985. Mr. Huffman did not participate in the direct, re-direct, or further re-direct 3 examination of Dr. Dietiker.

4 Following the lunch recess on February 7, 1985, Mr. Huffman did blurt out an inappropriate 5 comment during the testimony of VA psychiatrist Dr. Wittlin. When Dr. Wittlin was explaining about 6 distorted self-impressions versus delusions, using the example of the size clothes a person wore, Mr.
7 Huffman interjected, “What size are you?” Id.: 5524. No one responded to this question and it is 8 unknown if any of the trial participants or jurors heard him. Again there was no statement from the 9 bench after this interjection.

10 Mr. Huffman was not present before the jury in any further sanity proceedings after February 7, 11 1985. He was present, however, for legal argument and discussion outside the jury’s presence on 12 February 8, 1985 concerning admissibility of Dr. Wilson’s VESI AV tape. The difficulty the defense 13 team had was allowing the tape to be admitted over the prosecutor’s hearsay objection. Mr. Huffman’s 14 primary argument for allowing the AV tape was a matter of safety from potential violence perpetrated 15 by Weaver. Mr. Huffman informed the court that when he interviewed Weaver on the AV tape, he 16 “went easy” on his client, but if he were to put Weaver on the witness stand to answer the VESI 17 questions, Mr. Huffman would “be very hard on him . . . to show the jury his anger and his fear and so 18 on.” Mr. Huffman warned that if the defense put Weaver on the stand the court had better have “a lot 19 of bailiffs standing around.” Mr. Shumaker’s primary objection was that the AV tape was an excuse 20 for Weaver not to testify, not to be under oath, and not to be subject to cross examination. At the end 21 of this session, after the trial judge did in fact view some of the AV tape, he decided he would have to 22 question Dr. Wilson himself. During this session, Weaver asked to be excused from the courtroom 23 because he did not want to see himself on tape. Mr. Huffman agreed it would be a good idea for 24 Weaver to waive his presence both during this argument and during trial proceedings because, in Mr.
25 Huffman’s words, Weaver would tend “to become volatile and violent.”³⁸ After questioning Dr.

27 ³⁸ In her declaration, Mrs. Huffman averred she did not know why Mr. Huffman wanted to 28 convey to the jury that Weaver was dangerous. Exhibit 34 to First State Petition, ¶ 20. It appears he also wanted to impress the trial judge with this fact.

1 Wilson on his first day of testimony and over Mr. Shumaker's objection, the court allowed the AV tape 2 of the VESI as the basis for Dr. Wilson's opinions. Judge Stone did not attribute his ruling to the 3 possibility that Weaver would become violent if directed to answer the VESI questions on the witness
4 stand. Mr. Huffman's participation in this hearing was his last until the motion to set aside the death 5 verdict pursuant to Penal Code § 190.4(c) on April 4, 1985. Dr. Wilson appeared for his testimony on 6 February 13, 1985.

7 2. Prosecution Case

8 Mr. Shumaker explained that four local psychiatrists would confirm that Weaver was not 9 insane at the time he committed the present crimes. He explained that two additional doctors he would 10 have presented, Drs. Donaldson and Chappell, already testified. Like the local experts, the doctors 11 who previously testified confirmed Weaver's sanity in 1981 in connection with the Ventura crimes.
12 To further discredit the notion that Weaver was impaired at the time of present crimes Mr. Shumaker 13 also told jurors he would call Dr. Cholet, a member of Dr. Lundgren's team who wasn't called by the 14 defense, and that law enforcement personnel would testify Weaver's demeanor during breaks was 15 drastically different from his demeanor while court was in session.

16 a. Prosecution Experts

17 Two of the experts, Paul Cutting, M.D. and Francis Criswell, M.D., were appointed in October 18 1982 to conduct competence evaluations on Weaver pursuant to Penal Code § 1368. The reference 19 forms for each of these experts, however, also had the box for sanity under Penal Code § 1026 20 checked. Accordingly, Drs. Cutting and Criswell evaluated Weaver for competence and sanity, yet at 21 the time of their respective examinations, the only mental state at issue was Weaver's competence to 22 be tried. Only Richard Burdick, M.D. and Francis Matychowiak, M.D. were appointed by the court
23 solely for the purpose of assessing Weaver's sanity after he entered the not guilty by reason of insanity 24 (NGI) plea on May 14, 1984. Mrs. Huffman brought this point out in a chambers discussion following 25 Dr. Cutting's testimony. She stated on the record that she should have objected before Dr. Cutting 26 testified because of a possible confidentiality issue with a sanity evaluation, but, ultimately did not
28

1 request a limitation on the number of court appointed psychiatrists who could testify. RT-23: 6121-23.
2 Nor did she raise the issue again in advance of or during Dr. Criswell's testimony.³⁹

3 All four court-appointed doctors had significant forensic experience. Generally, Mr.
4 Shumaker's direct examination of these four witnesses was relatively succinct and to the point.⁴⁰ Mrs.
5 Huffman's cross examination, on the other hand, was drawn out, tedious, and repetitive.⁴¹

6 i. Dr. Cutting

7 Dr. Cutting reviewed some documents, but did not record or recall what he reviewed. He 8 found Weaver to be responsive, although at times inappropriate. On cross examination, Mrs. Huffman 9 elicited that Weaver's inappropriate conduct occurred when he laughed about blowing things up and 10 stating his intention of killing his daughter's boyfriend. Dr. Cutting also explained to Mrs. Huffman 11 that Weaver demonstrated a defective character or personality disorder when he suggested that the 12 victims were at fault for having died: Mr. Radford because he wasn't supposed to have died, at all, and 13 Ms. Levoy because she bit him. Dr. Cutting further found that Weaver was concrete, in that he could 14 not interpret proverbs, and had a very poor self-image. Contrary to the other prosecution experts, Dr.
15 Cutting believed that Weaver experienced the male and female auditory hallucinations he talked about.
16 However, he also found that Weaver did not feel compelled to follow what either voice said because he 17 could listen to and act on whichever voice he wanted to obey. Dr. Cutting reiterated this on cross 18 examination, clarifying that there was no loss of impulse control. For this reason, Dr. Cutting opined 19 that Weaver was able to conform his conduct to the requirements of the law. Dr. Cutting diagnosed 20 Weaver with atypical psychosis and schizoid personality disorder.

23 ³⁹ Nonetheless, in his filings, Weaver has informed the Court that Mrs. Huffman did file a 24 written motion objecting to the testimony of Drs. Criswell and Cutting.

25 ⁴⁰ Direct examination for Dr. Cutting filled eight pages of the reporter's transcript, for Dr.
26 Matychowiak, 12 pages, for Dr. Burdick, 11 pages, and for Dr. Criswell, also 11 pages. These totals exclude any re-direct or further re-direct.

27 ⁴¹ Mrs. Huffman's cross examination for Dr. Cutting was 66 pages, for Dr. Matychowiak was 28 90 pages (covering two days), for Dr. Burdick, 83 pages, and for Dr. Criswell, 44 pages. These totals exclude any re-cross or further re-cross examination.

1 In addition to the points mentioned above, Mrs. Huffman successfully brought out on cross 2 examination that: Dr. Cutting didn't know how much Mellaril Weaver was taking at the time of their 3 interview; having hallucinations was a symptom of schizophrenia; Weaver's IQ probably was in the 4 low average range; Weaver had a premorbid inclination toward aggression and violence prior to his 5 Vietnam service; Weaver experienced "severe emotional rejection" by his parents; having an 6 overprotective, domineering mother could have hindered the development of impulse control (a 7 learned trait); Weaver's perception all women were out to destroy him bordered on delusional 8 thinking; if Weaver claimed to have telepathic communications with his mother, that was a symptom 9 of schizophrenia; and a person with atypical psychosis superimposed on PTSD could get to a point of 10 being incapable of conforming his conduct to the requirements of law. Less successfully, she elicited 11 that Dr. Cutting was looking for symptoms of PTSD in Weaver but didn't find any and Weaver's idea 12 he could make explosives from household products was grandiose and manic, not a symptom of 13 schizophrenia. On redirect, Mr. Cutting maintained that Weaver was sane at the time of the crimes.

14 ii. Dr. Matychowiak

15 Dr. Matychowiak reviewed many documents and reports in connection with his April 1984 16 sanity evaluation of Weaver. He was aware that Weaver claimed to hear male and female voices. The 17 male voice gave Weaver advice, but Dr. Matychowiak was unsure if the voice told him what to do and 18 Weaver went along or if Weaver told the voice what he wanted to do and the voice went along.
19 Regarding the crime, Weaver was told the young man died; he didn't think he had killed him. As to 20 the young woman, Weaver said she shouldn't have bitten him; he reacted to the biting and that was 21 why she was dead. On cross examination, Dr. Matychowiak explained that Weaver displaced 22 responsibility for his actions. Dr. Matychowiak knew that Weaver was a trucker and used 23 amphetamines to stay awake, that he thought there were good, idealized women like his mother and 24 bad ones who used sex to control and punish, that he (Weaver) felt controlled by women and resented 25 it, that he reported heart problems as a child, that he rolled a logging truck down a 200 plus foot
28

1 embankment, had a motorcycle wreck, and was hit by a tidal wave.⁴² Weaver informed Dr.
2 Matychowiak that he had been arrested prior to the Ventura crimes for “bashing in” a woman’s head 3 because “she couldn’t shut her mouth” and he knew Weaver had been in the Army from 1967-69, 4 including service in Vietnam for a year. He opined Weaver’s IQ was low average to borderline.
5 Weaver had a personality disorder showing paranoid and antisocial traits (that is ASPD); but not a 6 sufficient impairment to prevent him from appreciating the criminality of his actions or conforming his 7 conduct to the requirements of the law.

8 During cross examination, Mrs. Huffman brought out Dr. Matychowiak’s experience treating 9 Korean War veterans at the Naval Hospital in Bethesda and that the PTSD assessments. He, himself, 10 considered whether Weaver suffered from PTSD, but didn’t believe it was an appropriate diagnosis.
11 Based on what Weaver told him, Dr. Matychowiak understood that Weaver followed orders in 12 Vietnam he didn’t necessarily like in order to stay alive. He was a survivor. Mrs. Huffman also 13 elicited that Dr. Matychowiak did not believe Weaver was taking Mellaril at the time of the evaluation.
14 Weaver told him that there was nothing wrong with him and that Mellaril didn’t make any difference 15 in any event.

16 Dr. Matychowiak observed that there were learned dissocial patterns in Weaver’s life, rather 17 than psychotic elements. Weaver had adaptive problems, including lack of impulse control and violent 18 behavior beginning in childhood which became fixed in adulthood. He presented as a person who 19 wanted to do what he wanted to do and that people should let him. Dr. Matychowiak believed 20 Weaver’s lack of impulse control was volitional and associated with his ASPD. He also found Weaver 21 paranoid. He did not find Weaver to suffer from delusions, as Mrs. Huffman tried to portray: the idea 22 that doctors took his heart out of his body, sewed up the hole, and replaced it was exaggeration; the 23 notion that women were out to destroy him was a paranoid projection; the claim he could made 24 explosives out of Tide and other household products was bragging.

27 ⁴² Neither the motorcycle accident nor tidal wave incident was mentioned in other testimony.
28 The Court is unaware of reports conveying this information that are part of the record.

1 iii. Dr. Burdick

2 Dr. Burdick interviewed Weaver two consecutive days in April 1984 for just under three 3 hours.⁴³ Prior to his first interview, he reviewed numerous reports from other examiners for three 4 hours and 40 minutes. On cross examination he testified that although the information provided was 5 extensive, the case was not particularly complicated. It was during cross examination that Dr. Burdick 6 described Weaver's condition more thoroughly; he found Weaver had ASPD, which was marked by a 7 generalized deficiency of conscience and indulging self-interest at the expense of others. People with 8 ASPD could exercise control and judgment, tending to avoid detection and not wanting to get caught 9 or punished. Basically, they had "adjustment difficulties." While it was possible for ASPD to be a 10 cover for underlying psychosis, Dr. Burdick didn't find any psychosis in Weaver's case.

11 Regarding the voices, Dr. Burdick felt Weaver's description of them was inconsistent with a 12 mental or psychiatric illness since there had been there had been no decompensation in his condition 13 and the hallucinations did not appear to be cyclical with the progression of mental illness. As 14 described, the voices seemed to represent conscience (female) and inner urges (male). To the extent 15 the voices were real and not fabricated (which Dr. Burdick suspected), neither told Weaver to kill, and 16 in any event, responding to inner urges was consistent with ASPD. On cross examination, he admitted 17 that Weaver had been consistent about the voices, and acknowledged that his mother reportedly knew 18 about them and told him not to tell anyone about them. But in the interim, for the next several years, 19 Weaver was able to hold down jobs and not raise anyone's suspicions about experiencing auditory 20 hallucinations. Also on cross examination, he testified that Weaver even made a point of telling him 21 the voices had nothing to do with killing the young couple⁴⁴ and was under the impression that during 22 his interview of Weaver, Weaver was not using Mellaril. The fact that Weaver reported fewer auditory 23 hallucinations when he was taking Mellaril did not convince Dr. Burdick the voices were real or, if 24 real, were the result of mental illness. First, Weaver indicated he didn't think the medication did any 25

26 ⁴³ On the first day he spent one and a half hours, and on the second, one hour 25 minutes.

27 ⁴⁴ He also told Dr. Burdick he had not intended to kill the couple. The male voice is said to 28 have told Weaver to hit the young man with the pipe to get him out of the way, not to kill him.

1 good. Second, the medication could have made Weaver more comfortable so he didn't complain as 2 much about the voices.

3 Dr. Burdick testified he didn't believe Weaver had blacked out when he was strangling Ms.
4 Levoy because he was able to remember and describe what he had done. Dr. Burdick discounted the 5 account that his first wife said Weaver had blacked out after she had bitten him. Rather, he suggested 6 that Weaver stopped his attack when the wife kicked him in the groin and that she was not 7 psychiatrically trained to determine if Weaver had been in a trance. When Weaver said that he would 8 go "for the throat" anytime anyone bit or slapped him, this signaled to Dr. Burdick that Weaver felt 9 justified in attacking someone who hurt him. With respect to Ms. Levoy, Weaver already was acting 10 under impulse when he was trying to tie her up. That didn't change when she bit him. Dr. Burdick 11 concluded that Weaver was able to appreciate the criminality of his conduct and had the ability to 12 conform his conduct to the requirements of the law. At the time of the crimes, he made personal 13 choices about his actions. On his second day of cross examination, Dr. Burdick testified he disagreed 14 with the examiners who found Weaver could not conform his conduct to the requirements of the law; 15 Weaver knew what he was doing and was able to exercise control over his behavior.

16 In addition to the specific statements mentioned above, Mrs. Huffman brought out over two 17 days of cross examination that Dr. Burdick had the impression Weaver's childhood was somewhat 18 traumatic and that he had no doubt Weaver had been abused as a child. Both parents expressed 19 negative attitudes about the opposite gender. He assessed Weaver's intelligence in the low average 20 range, finding no "real deficiencies." He was aware that Weaver, as a trucker, used amphetamines and 21 stated that "enough" amphetamines could cause psychotic behavior. But Dr. Burdick did not detect 22 anything in his evaluation or read any reports that convinced him Weaver suffered from delusional 23 thinking. The thought broadcasting with his mother, for instance, did not sound genuine to Dr.
24 Burdick. Nor did Weaver's reticence to talk about his past demonstrate anything more than denial.
25 Dr. Burdick described Weaver's claims of being able to make explosives from household products and 26 having a recruitment officer heal his heart as "wishful" not delusional thinking. He also didn't find 27 Weaver's claim that women were out to stimulate him sexually in order to frustrate him to be any more 28 than anger, if it were true.

1 Dr. Burdick did not detect any gross impairment of judgment. Rather, Weaver's judgment, 2 which was poor, was consistent with his personality disorder, not mental illness. In commenting on 3 Dr. Shonkwiler's description of Weaver's conduct toward his sister, Dr. Burdick noted Weaver's 4 behavior was beyond sibling rivalry, it was "horrible." But his conduct toward his sister had been well 5 organized, representing Weaver's personality and parenting deficits. Regarding PTSD, when asked 6 whether there could have been a connection between the present crimes and PTSD, Dr. Burdick 7 responded, "Absolutely not." Weaver's observed symptoms, including depression and tenseness, did 8 not include intrusive thoughts of Vietnam. Rather, Weaver stayed away from the subject, except for 9 describing "violent things," which he seemed to have enjoyed. Depression, including difficulty 10 sleeping, was the "most common disabling ailment in the white world."

11 iv. Dr. Criswell

12 Dr. Criswell examined Weaver in October 1982 based on a court referral as did Dr. Cutting.
13 He extended his standard one-hour examinations to two hours due to the gravity of the charges and 14 "the rather complex amount of information," including 276 pages of various records he received from 15 Mr. and Mrs. Huffman. He did not believe that spending 30 or 40 hours evaluating a patient (including 16 reviewing records) would be beneficial to a sanity assessment. It would give, however, a fuller picture 17 of the patient.

18 Although Weaver was sad and depressed he did not exhibit a thought disorder or delusional 19 thought and generally was cooperative. Weaver told Dr. Criswell that he was medicated at the time of 20 the evaluation and that he had experienced auditory hallucinations since childhood. He also told Dr.
21 Criswell he had cardiac problems as a child, about his enlistment in the Army, and that he liked 22 detonating explosives during his service. Dr. Criswell didn't believe Weaver's claim that his superiors 23 allowed him to blow up anything he wanted to, saying it was "obviously untrue." Dr. Criswell found 24 no indication of any present or past psychosis. He discounted the report of auditory hallucinations as 25 unconvincing in nature or length of presence. Weaver's psychopathology was of a personality disorder 26 rather than a mental disease or defect. He found Weaver possessed substantial capacity to appreciate 27 the criminality of his conduct and to conform his conduct to the requirements of the law at the time of 28 the crimes.

1 On cross examination, Dr. Criswell admitted that any psychotic symptoms, including 2 delusional thinking, Weaver may have had would have subsided he if were taking 600 mg. of Mellaril 3 at the time of the evaluation. Dr. Criswell doubted the psychosis claim because the doctor at the 4 receiving prison at Chino⁴⁵ did not give Weaver any antipsychotic medication. He did testify that 5 Weaver told him he had received Mellaril while incarcerated in state prison. Dr. Criswell found that 6 Weaver responded to the interview like a frightened child. He felt Weaver was of average intelligence 7 and demonstrated that his abstract thinking was intact (unlike other prosecution experts). He suffered 8 from impaired judgment, but not in a mentally defective way. He felt Weaver was dangerous and 9 would remain so until enfeebled by age or heath. He noted that ASPD tended to subside as a person 10 reached age 40 and beyond.

11 Regarding the crime, Dr. Criswell had a hard time believing Weaver didn't know he had killed 12 Mr. Radford in light of the number of times he was hit.⁴⁶ Dr. Criswell believed Weaver that he hit Mr.
13 Radford until he stopped screaming.

14 Dr. Criswell believed that Weaver suffered abuse as a child based on Weaver's description of 15 an extremely pathological family and family environment. It was a believable account. He didn't 16 think Weaver's heart condition was that severe based on the fact that he ultimately got into the service.
17 He didn't recall Weaver telling him that his heart condition was cured by the officer who told him he 18 could enlist. If Weaver believed that story, he could have been delusional. If Weaver believed that all 19 women were out to get him, that could have been a delusional thought. Dr. Criswell was not aware 20 that Weaver claimed to experience thought broadcasting. He testified that if Weaver suffered from 21 paranoid psychosis, his amphetamine use would have exacerbated this condition and that 22 amphetamines, themselves, can precipitate an acute paranoid psychotic state.

25 ⁴⁵ The California Institution for Men, at Chino, was the receiving prison for Weaver following 26 his conviction of the Ventura County crimes. It's possible that Dr. Criswell was confusing Weaver's 27 incarceration at the Men's Colony in San Luis Obispo, where Dr. Owre testified Weaver never received any anti-psychotic medication.

28 ⁴⁶ Weaver testified during guilt proceedings he thought he only hit Mr. Radford three times.

1 Since Dr. Criswell served as a doctor during Vietnam, he was familiar with the symptoms of 2 PTSD. He discussed Weaver’s Vietnam experience with him but didn’t record notes of that discussion 3 in his report because he was satisfied they had no particular relationship to Weaver’s subsequent 4 behavior.⁴⁷ The fact that Weaver sometimes had suicidal thoughts (a symptom of PTSD) didn’t alter
5 Dr. Criswell’s belief, since most people who are incarcerated are depressed. Weaver’s sad childhood
6 also would have produced depression. Weaver told Dr. Criswell he couldn’t keep a job as a trucker⁴⁸
7 and Dr. Criswell admitted that inability to hold a steady job was consistent with PTSD. He was aware 8 that Weaver startled when he heard a car back-fire, but a startle response and hypervigilance were 9 consistent with “practically every anxiety disorder.” Low self-esteem, on the other hand, was 10 connected to personality disorders.

11 Dr. Criswell did not believe Weaver experienced auditory hallucinations because he heard two 12 voices with opposite content and apparently no one ever noticed he hallucinated, since childhood and 13 through his Vietnam service. Also, the way Weaver described his voices was not the “way people 14 experience[d] hallucinations.”⁴⁹

15 b. Witness hired by the Defense Testifying for the Prosecution

16 Mary Cholet was a registered psychological assistant in 1983 working under the licenses of 17 psychologists Kathe Lundgren and Edward Dietiker when Affiliated Psychologists undertook a 18 comprehensive evaluation of Weaver. She earned her own Ph.D. later that same year. Prior to Dr.
19 Cholet’s testimony, on two separate occasions, February 20, and 21, 1985, there was discussion about 20 whether her communications with Weaver were privileged as psychotherapist-patient communications 21 (California Evidence Code § 990). According to Mrs. Huffman, Dr. Cholet asked not to testify 22 because Weaver had threatened her, and to avoid testifying for the prosecution, she was claiming the 23 therapist-patient privilege. On February 20, 1985, the court found the privilege did not apply for two 24

25 ⁴⁷ Dr. Criswell’s lengthy and thorough report, Exhibit 113 to the First State Petition, indeed 26 does not mention PTSD.

27 ⁴⁸ This fact is confirmed in Dr. Criswell’s report. Exhibit 113 to First State Petition, p. 3.

28 ⁴⁹ In Dr. Criswell’s report, he noted that Weaver’s description of hallucinations were “thoroughly unconvincing.” Exhibit 113 to First State Petition, p. 7.

1 reasons. First, she wasn't a licensed psychologist (and did not then have her doctorate) at the time of 2 her evaluation. Second, since she was working under Dr. Lundgren, and the privilege was waived in 3 order to elicit Dr. Lundgren's testimony, Dr. Cholet could not assert it. RT-23:6019-36. Just prior to her 4 testimony on February 21, 1985, Mr. Shumaker requested clarification about another possible basis for 5 privilege, that is under Evidence Code § 1017.⁵⁰ Mr. Shumaker inquired whether Weaver was 6 claiming the attorney-client privilege for Dr. Cholet's work, so the issue could be resolved by the trial 7 court. Mrs. Huffman clarified that neither Dr. Cholet nor any of her colleagues was appointed under 8 Evidence Code § 1017, and the matter was settled. RT-24:6406-09.

9 Her task as part of the group was to test Weaver for organicity, or brain damage, Weaver's 10 function in interpersonal relationships, and whether he demonstrated impaired thought processes (that 11 is schizophrenia). She did not testify for the defense, and in fact requested that she not be called to 12 testify. This hesitancy was explained during re-cross examination when Dr. Cholet disclosed that 13 Weaver told her he fantasized about her and that if he were released from jail, she would be one of his 14 victims.

15 After conducting a series of neurological tests and interviewing Weaver for four hours, she 16 concluded he did not suffer from organic brain injury or damage. Regarding relationships, she found 17 he was compulsively driven to others. Weaver's mental status was anxious and impulsive. His 18 impulsiveness was a byproduct of his personality disorder rather than organicity. She found evidence 19 of ASPD and borderline personality disorder. In later questioning on further re-direct examination, she 20 told Mr. Shumaker Weaver had borderline personality disorder, not ASPD. She stated that the 21 hallmark of borderline personality disorder was lack of impulse control, which in turn was a learned 22 process.

23 Although Weaver briefly mentioned hallucinations, Dr. Cholet observed no evidence of 24 loosening of associations or tangential thinking, in short, no evidence of schizophrenia. Specifically,

25
26 ⁵⁰ The Court notes that the content of Evidence Code § 1017 was not discussed on the record.
27 For clarity in the Memorandum Order, Evidence Code § 1017 provides that the therapist-patient 28 privilege is waived when the mental expert is appointed by court order or the board of prison terms. If the expert is appointed to assist the defense attorney and defendant to determine whether to enter or withdraw an NGI plea, however, the privilege remains.

1 Weaver's desire to be with people was uncharacteristic of schizophrenia. Also, schizophrenics had 2 problems expressing themselves. Weaver was not troubled by this deficiency. Dr. Cholet did not 3 believe it was possible for his personality disorders to have masked underlying psychosis. In her 4 experience, residual symptoms of the illness "almost always" were noticeable. She disagreed with 5 both Dr. Lundgren and Dr. Dietiker that Weaver experienced delusional thoughts and suffered from 6 schizophrenia. She considered that Weaver may have had family members who had schizophrenia.
7 But, as she had written her doctoral thesis on schizophrenia, she was aware that scientists didn't 8 actually know if schizophrenia was driven by genetic or environmental factors. On further re-cross 9 examination, she clarified that there is a statistical connection between parental schizophrenia and 10 schizophrenia in children, so the fact that Weaver had family members with the disease should not be 11 discounted. From her interview with Weaver, she knew he had an abusive childhood, a love-hate 12 relationship with his mother, and believed women were out to get him. She did not find these factors 13 to have caused Weaver to have become psychotic.

14 Dr. Cholet also had professional experience in dealing with combat-induced PTSD. She found 15 Weaver's description of his Vietnam experience to have been inconsistent with PTSD, in that he did 16 not repeatedly recount his experiences in a flattened affect and he did not talk to her about intrusive 17 thoughts of Vietnam. She knew that people with PTSD used drugs to deal with their stress, but she 18 testified they would not have used amphetamines (as Weaver did) to relieve stress. Mrs. Huffman 19 asked a series of questions to emphasize Dr. Cholet's lack of expertise in assessing PTSD, including 20 her unfamiliarity with current PTSD research and the PTSD scale for the MMPI.

21 Dr. Cholet thought it was possible for a person to have been afflicted with a personality 22 disorder, PTSD, and a psychosis. She did not think this was possible for Weaver at the time of the 23 crime because his descriptions of the multiple murders were very clear. His actions, as he described 24 them, were direct and goal-oriented. His conduct indicated his awareness of lawful versus unlawful 25 conduct, and he did plenty to avoid being caught. There was no evidence of psychotic thinking.

26 c. Inmate Witness for the Prosecution

27 As noted above, in Mr. Shumaker's opening statement (Part III.A.2., supra), he told the jurors 28 he would call law enforcement personal to testify about how different Weaver's demeanor was when

1 they were not in the courtroom to counter Dr. Owre’s testimony that Weaver currently was suffering
2 from schizophrenia. See Part III.A.1.d., supra. In fact, Mr. Shumaker did not present any law
3 enforcement witnesses because Mrs. Huffman successfully argued that Mr. Shumaker’s cross 4 examination of Dr. Owre adequately covered this area. Instead, Mr. Shumaker called an inmate 5 witness, Cecil Sneed, to refute the notion that Weaver had been seen hallucinating at the jail.

6 Mr. Sneed had been housed with Weaver from August to October 1984, along with six to nine 7 other inmates. During this time, Weaver asked Mr. Sneed to testify for him that he was “up at night 8 talking to people that w[ere]n’t there, imaginary people, whatever.” Weaver also discussed this 9 proposed testimony with co-inmate Richard Archuleta. In September 1984, Sneed told Weaver’s 10 attorneys he would testify about Weaver talking to voices, even though he had never observed this 11 behavior.

12 In late October or early November 1984, after Mr. Sneed decided not to testify for Weaver, and 13 they no longer were celled together, he received an inmate letter (marked as evidence stipulated to 14 have been from Weaver) in which Weaver wrote, “Anyone who hurt [sic] my case I would do my best 15 to do them in.” Mr. Sneed did not bring this letter to the attention of authorities until 10 days before 16 his testimony (on February 26, 1985).

17 On cross examination, Mrs. Huffman brought out incentives Mr. Sneed received in exchange 18 for his testimony, including early release from jail and a bus ticket home. She also pointed out that Mr.
19 Sneed could not read and that Mr. Sneed always retired before Weaver did, so he wouldn’t know one 20 way or another whether Weaver was having conversations with auditory hallucinations. There was no 21 effort, however, to refute the content or import of the note.

22 d. District Attorney Investigator

23 The District Attorney’s investigator, Carol Bender, explained her efforts to serve Weaver’s 24 mother with a subpoena. Ms. Bender’s testimony strongly suggested that Mrs. Weaver was avoiding 25 service, but that she finally was served by a private subpoena service. On cross examination, Mrs.
26 Huffman brought out that both Weaver’s father and sister, Katie Smith, were served by the District 27 Attorney’s office. Neither of these Weaver family members were called to testify.

1 3. Defense Rebuttal – two more inmate witnesses

2 Mrs. Huffman called two inmate rebuttal witnesses to discredit Cecil Sneed. The first, Charles 3 Shannon, a current inmate at the Kern County Jail, had befriended Mr. Sneed. Mr. Sneed told Mr.
4 Shannon that the testimony he (Mr. Sneed) intended to give in Weaver’s case would be his (Mr.
5 Sneed’s) “meal ticket” out of jail. Mr. Shannon also stated that Weaver had never asked him to testify
6 in a particular manner. Mr. Shannon thought Weaver was strange – always awake when Mr. Shannon 7 turned in. When Mr. Shannon awoke in the middle of the night Weaver would be up talking to 8 himself. Mr. Shannon was uncomfortable around Weaver and kept his distance.

9 The second inmate rebuttal witness was Christopher Flores, who had been celled at times with 10 Weaver, Mr. Shannon, and Mr. Sneed. He had observed Weaver up at night, writing sometimes, and 11 Mr. Sneed, at times, conversing with Weaver. He also had observed Weaver at night talking to 12 himself, “grinding [sic] himself, walking around the cell, just mumbo jumbo; it didn’t make any 13 sense.” Sometimes Mr. Flores could understand the words Weaver was saying, but not the context. He 14 noted that Weaver isolated himself, seemed afraid of people, and afraid people would take his 15 possessions. He (Weaver) didn’t stand up for himself. Sometimes Mr. Flores stood up for Weaver in 16 the face of adversity. Yet Weaver was strange. Sometimes Mr. Flores would awaken in the middle of 17 the night and find Weaver staring at him from about a foot away. Weaver also had problems 18 controlling his bowels and these problems became progressively worse. Weaver had “accidents.” Mr.
19 Flores recalled Sneed mentioning that he was going to use Weaver to get out of jail. He never told 20 Weaver about this comment.

21 4. Summation

22 Following a brief jury instruction conference, Mrs. Huffman’s summation extended the entire 23 day on Wednesday, February 27, 1985, for 93 pages of transcript. The next morning, Thursday, 24 February 28, 1986, another brief jury instruction conference preceded Mr. Shumaker’s summation, 25 which continued until the lunch recess, taking up 51 pages of transcript. Mrs. Huffman’s rebuttal was 26 short, having been completed after the lunch recess at 1:40 p.m. until the first afternoon recess, for a 27 total of 18 pages.

1 prisoner was skinned alive and screamed in unbearable pain. Weaver wasn't hitting Mr. Radford; he 2 was hitting the scream. With respect to Ms. Levoy, Weaver also experienced a PTSD flashback after 3 she bit him. The flashback was to his mother biting him. With the bite came a trance where he didn't 4 know what he was doing, and realized when he snapped out of it that he had choked her to death.

5 She discussed the testimony and import of that testimony as to each witness. With respect to 6 the psychologist and psychiatrist witnesses who testified regarding Weaver's Humboldt and Ventura 7 convictions, she argued none of them spent much time taking Weaver's history, and no time to verify 8 what background they did get.⁵³ She similarly criticized the four prosecution experts for not having 9 obtained a complete picture of Weaver because they did not spend enough time learning his 10 background. At the culmination of her summation, Mrs. Huffman discussed the standard of proof, that 11 is, the preponderance of the evidence standard. Though more experts thought Weaver knew right from 12 wrong and was capable of conforming his conduct to the requirements of law, mere counting of 13 opinions was not the correct method for making a determination. She again urged the jurors that 14 relative qualifications and credibility of the experts for were the key factors.

15 In the course of her summation, she made specific points from specific witnesses. From the 16 witnesses who testified that Weaver's maternal aunt and cousin suffered from schizophrenia, Part 17 III.A.1.a.supra, she encouraged the jury to conclude that Weaver was predisposed to having 18 schizophrenia. Next, she mentioned the evaluators regarding the Humboldt County crime, Part 19 III.A.1.d., supra. With respect to Dr. Gardner, Mrs. Huffman noted that he mentioned Weaver's 20 abusive childhood and that Weaver enlisted to serve in Vietnam to be killed. She stated Dr. Gardner 21 evaluated Weaver for sanity, but this was a misstatement.⁵⁴ As to Dr. Owre, she reminded jurors he 22 reported that both of Weaver's parents were brutal and overprotective, that Weaver had distorted 23 feelings about women, derived emotional release by inflicting pain on them, that Weaver has a 24

25 ⁵³ Providing these doctors with background information certainly would have been an option 26 for the Huffmans in advance of their testimony. Drs. Chappell and Donaldson were confounded by 27 this omission on the part of Mr. and Mrs. Huffman, as discussed in Part VII.A.1., infra.

28 ⁵⁴ Dr. Gardner evaluated Weaver in connection with the sentence to be imposed by the Superior Court.

1 passive-aggressive personality with depressive sadomasochistic features, and that during his testimony, 2 Weaver was exhibiting symptoms of schizophrenia. She reminded jurors that the last expert among the 3 Humboldt crime evaluators, Dr. Tolchin, noted that while Weaver was in therapy in the institutional 4 setting he was doing well, but outside there were many more stressors which could have caused him to 5 break down.

6 With respect to the Ventura crimes, Mrs. Huffman mentioned Drs. Chappell and Donaldson, 7 who testified at Weaver's trial, as well as Mr. Rose, who evaluated Weaver's prospective placement in 8 the prison system after his Ventura conviction. Mrs. Huffman's argument as to these three experts 9 came at the very end of her summation just before the evening recess. Much of her summation 10 regarding Dr. Chappell was incorrect. She stated that during the Ventura trial he testified as to 11 Weaver's competence, that Weaver had an adjustment disorder with depression and possibly 12 psychosis, so he couldn't rule out schizophrenia. Only the diagnosis of adjustment disorder with 13 depression was accurate. Dr. Chappell testified about Weaver's sanity at the time of the Ventura 14 crimes (not competence to be tried) and stated that his adjustment disorder was not a mental defect or 15 disease. He further testified that at the time of his evaluation, Weaver neither described nor showed 16 symptoms of schizophrenia or true psychosis, even taking into account Weaver's report of auditory 17 hallucinations. Mrs. Huffman's description of Dr. Donaldson's testimony also was inaccurate. She 18 stated he, in contrast to Dr. Chappell, obtained quite a bit of background information, including that 19 Weaver was subject to child abuse, that his mother told him she wanted to line up all men (except for 20 Weaver) and cut off their penises, and that the mother was strict, pampering, and disapproving of 21 females. In fact, Dr. Donaldson did not take his own history of Weaver, but rather relied on the history 22 Dr. Chappell had conducted, and none of these facts were mentioned in his testimony at all. Mrs.
23 Huffman mentioned Dr. Donaldson's "opinion" that Weaver's high score on the F (confusion) scale of 24 the MMPI meant that he was exaggerating or suffered from psychosis and possibly PTSD. This is 25 incorrect; he mentioned nothing about a connection with the high F scale and mental illness; he only 26 mentioned exaggeration or confusion as possible causes for the high F scale. What Mrs. Huffman did 27 not mention about Dr. Donaldson was his uncertainty at the very end of his testimony when Mrs.
28 Huffman posited that Weaver had blacked out after Ms. Levoy bit him. With respect to the final

1 Ventura-related mental health professional, Mr. Rose, Mrs. Huffman said very little except about 2 Weaver's hostility toward women. She incorrectly attributed to Mr. Rose the statement that it was 3 possible Weaver was delusional regarding his negative feelings towards women.

4 Turning to the team of defense experts the Huffmans hired (Drs. Shonkwiler, Lundgren, and 5 Dietiker), Mrs. Huffman talked about Dr. Shonkwiler the most. She pointed out that he reviewed a 6 great deal of information in the reports of other experts, finding Weaver had been physically abused as 7 a youngster. Although Dr. Shonkwiler knew Weaver had served in Vietnam, he did not address PTSD 8 until he read the reports from the PTSD experts, at which time he added PTSD to his clinical 9 impression of Weaver. To assist the jury to understand that Weaver suffered from schizophrenia, Dr.
10 Shonkwiler went through the diagnostic criteria for schizophrenia on the DSM-III slides shown during 11 his testimony. In addition to schizophrenia and PTSD, Dr. Shonkwiler found a personality disorder.
12 His opinion was that Weaver was legally insane when he killed Mr. Radford and Ms. Levoy because 13 he could not conform his conduct to the requirements of law due to a mental disease or defect. Mrs.
14 Huffman also stressed that Dr. Shonkwiler's credibility as an expert was not compromised because he 15 practiced under an impaired license. He was totally qualified to render a diagnosis.

16 She emphasized the comprehensiveness of the respective evaluations undertaken by Drs.
17 Lundgren and Dietiker and the importance of the diagnostic interview both psychologists conducted.
18 Dr. Lundgren attributed the high MMPI F scale results she obtained to Weaver's underlying 19 personality disorder. Her finding was that he suffered from psychosis with an underlying personality 20 disorder. She also determined he had been abused as a child. The MMPI and the two other tests 21 administered led Dr. Lundgren to conclude that because of the severity of Weaver's personality 22 disorder, it would not have taken much to have pushed him to psychosis. She did not reach her 23 conclusion that he suffered from schizophrenia until all the testing (by all the affiliates of her group) 24 had been completed. Because she had no experience with PTSD, she did not give an opinion on that 25 illness. She also didn't give an opinion on Weaver's sanity at the time of the crime. With respect to 26 Dr. Dietiker, Mrs. Huffman pointed out that he, like Dr. Lundgren, found Weaver had been abused as a 27 child, did not address PTSD, and did not offer an opinion about Weaver's sanity at the time of the 28 crimes. His diagnosis of Weaver was paranoid personality disorder and paranoid schizophrenia.

1 Mrs. Huffman's next subject was the testimony of the PTSD experts. The first two, psychiatrist 2 Dr. Wittlin and psychologist Dr. Donahoe, examined Weaver at the VA in Los Angeles (Brentwood) in 3 August 1984. Mrs. Huffman erroneously stated that Dr. Wittlin conducted many tests and an interview
4 of Weaver.⁵⁵ Dr. Wittlin determined Weaver has suffered child abuse and diagnosed him with PTSD, 5 schizophrenia, and personality disorder. Mrs. Huffman referred to this triple diagnosis as "a 6 dichotomy of three" and repeatedly misused the word "dichotomy" during this portion of her 7 summation. She noted Dr. Wittlin did not offer an opinion of Weaver's legal sanity at the time of the 8 Radford/ Levoy murders.⁵⁶

9 Mrs. Huffman reminded the jurors that Dr. Donahoe administered psychological tests including 10 the MMPI. The tests Dr. Donahoe administered were designed to determine Weaver's combat 11 exposure. He obtained no childhood background and gave no opinion about Weaver's legal sanity. He 12 was certain Weaver suffered from combat PTSD. Weaver had many symptoms, including re-13 experiencing trauma, being withdrawn, and having sleep disturbances and nightmares. Also, Weaver's 14 score on the Traumatic Violence Scale (another test Dr. Donahoe administered) was very high. That 15 test measured physical symptoms of stress, including pulse, respiration and perspiration. Mrs.
16 Huffman emphasized that Weaver could not fake his heart rate and perspiration.⁵⁷

17 The next expert, Dr. Wilson, from Ohio, was a nationally known PTSD advocate. Mrs.
18 Huffman summarized his testimony as noting Weaver had been abused as a child by his mother while 19 his father was absent. She said he described a "love-hate" relationship to his mother. She noted that 20 Dr. Wilson thought Weaver's understanding that his heart condition was miraculously cured when the 21 recruiting colonel shook his hand was a manifestation of a delusion. Mrs. Huffman mentioned that Dr.
22 Wilson testified a further delusion was evident by Weaver's belief he could make a bomb out of 24 ⁵⁵ Conducting tests would have been and was the job of the psychologist, not the psychiatrist.

25 ⁵⁶ Actually, he testified he was unable to say whether Weaver was able to conform his conduct 26 to the requirements of the law at the time of the crimes.

27 ⁵⁷ This was in response to Mr. Shumaker's cross examination of Dr. Donahoe that he didn't 28 actually know if Weaver had been in combat. Dr. Donahoe conceded he had no way to verify Weaver's self-report of combat experience, but still had no doubt Weaver suffered from combat-induced PTSD.

1 household items. Neither of these matters, however, was mentioned in Dr. Wilson's testimony.⁵⁸ Mrs.
2 Huffman correctly stated Dr. Wilson's opinion that Weaver's stated ability to thought broadcast and 3 read minds was indicative of delusional thinking. She noted that Dr. Wilson spent between 40 and 50 4 hours evaluating Weaver (including reviewing other reports, the AV tapes, interviewing Weaver, and 5 writing a report). She reminded the jurors that Weaver had revealed to Dr. Wilson his presence when a 6 South Vietnamese official skinned a suspected Viet Cong operative alive to retrieve information.
7 Weaver had not told any of the other examiners this information. Before Dr. Wilson's interview with 8 Weaver he thought schizophrenia should be ruled out, but after their interview together, Dr. Wilson 9 was certain Weaver suffered from schizophrenia, as well as PTSD, amphetamine abuse, and mixed 10 personality disorder.⁵⁹ She did mention Dr. Wilson's opinion that while Weaver could understand 11 right from wrong, he could not conform his behavior to the requirements of law.

12 Next Mrs. Huffman discussed the testimony of former Navy psychiatrist and PTSD expert Dr.
13 Kormos, noting that after he reviewed all the same material Dr. Wilson's reviewed he concluded 14 Weaver suffered from PTSD from Vietnam combat. The other diagnosis he gave was schizophrenia, 15 paranoid type. Also, like Dr. Wilson, Dr. Kormos found Weaver insane because of his inability to 16 conform his conduct to the requirements of law – even though he knew right from wrong, Mrs.
17 Huffman also stressed that Dr. Kormos spend a great of time uncovering the cause of Weaver's 18 underlying mental illness, which despite what Mr. Shumaker argued was more than a personality 19 disorder.⁶⁰

21 ⁵⁸ They were, however, mentioned in Dr. Kormos' testimony. See text and accompanying 22 footnote, infra.

23 ⁵⁹ Surprisingly, Mrs. Huffman spent no time describing the VESI given to Weaver, though this 24 subject consumed the bulk of Dr. Wilson's testimony. Nor did she mention Weaver's abusive 25 childhood that predisposed him to violent behavior, as manifested by his conduct as a youngster 26 toward his sister. Also absent from her summation was Dr. Wilson's opinion that Weaver began acting 27 out his sexual and aggressive feelings towards women as a defense against his underlying psychosis 28 and his impression that Weaver's references to auditory hallucinations seemed to him to be authentic.
Finally, Mrs. Huffman failed to mention Dr. Wilson's stated certainty that Weaver actually did see combat and experience combat related stress during his service in Vietnam despite Mr. Shumaker's implications to the contrary.

⁶⁰ Not mentioned in her closing were: Dr. Kormos spent between 30 to 40 hours reviewing materials (including the two AV VESI tapes) and writing his report; after writing his report, he spent

1 As to the prosecution experts, Mrs. Huffman's review of Dr. Cutting came first. She correctly 2 recited that he found Weaver had suffered child abuse, but incorrectly stated Dr. Cutting did not 3 believe Weaver's reported auditory hallucinations. Following up on this statement, she explained that 4 Dr. Cutting's reason for not believing Weaver experienced hallucinations was because no one observed
5 him hallucinating. This was completely wrong. In fact, Dr. Cutting did testify he believed Weaver 6 experienced auditory hallucinations of the male and female voices; he just didn't believe Weaver was 7 compelled by the voices because he was able to choose which voice to listen to.⁶¹ She said he reported 8 Weaver said his Vietnam service was positive, as he enjoyed blowing things up, thus he did not find 9 PTSD. Mrs. Huffman stressed that Dr. Cutting was not a combat expert and didn't conduct any tests.⁶²

10 Mrs. Huffman recited that Dr. Matychowiak read more reports than did Dr. Cutting, including 11 those authored by Drs. Lundgren and Shonkwiler. She stated Dr. Matychowiak's recitation of the 12 circumstances of the crime was logical and therefore Weaver knew right from wrong and could 13 conform his conduct.⁶³ Next, she said that Dr. Matychowiak found child abuse, a love-hate

15 two additional hours interviewing Weaver; the "cause" of Weaver's underlying mental illness was, at 16 least in part, due to three stressors in his childhood, namely his physical health, his relationship with 17 his mother, and his relationship with his sister; Weaver specifically told Dr. Kormos that his mother bit 18 him as a form of punishment; based on the acts perpetrated against his sister, Dr. Kormos believed 19 Weaver actually wanted to kill her, even with respect to the first incident, the chopping off of her 20 finger; that Dr. Kormos found Weaver's responses on AV tape authentic and genuine; Dr. Kormos' 21 mention of Weaver's suicidal fantasies in wanting to join the service as well as his delusional thought 22 processes in believing his heart was healed when the recruiting colonel shook his hand and that he 23 could make explosives out of household items; that many of the mental professionals who examined 24 Weaver didn't go far enough in pursuing diagnostic studies and exploring PTSD; and that symptoms of 25 schizophrenia can be masked by anti-psychotic medications as well as the subject being in an 26 institutional environment. Dr. Kormos also provided extensive critiques of the four prosecution 27 psychiatrists, which might have been more helpful in rebuttal.

28 ⁶¹ Mrs. Huffman also did not mention that Dr. Cutting found many of Weaver's symptoms consistent with schizophrenia, including his auditory hallucinations, the ability to communicate telepathically, and the inability to think abstractly. What convinced him Weaver was not schizophrenic was not the absence of hallucinations, as Mrs. Huffman said, but that there was no regression from a higher level of adaptive behavior to a lower level; he testified Weaver's adaptive behavior had always been at a low level.

⁶² It would not have been unusual for Dr. Cutting not have conducted any tests since he was a psychiatrist, not a psychologist. None of the psychiatrists in this case conducted any tests.

⁶³ While Dr. Matychowiak did testify Weaver related to him the circumstances of the crime, he did not assign the logic of that recitation as the reason Weaver was not insane. Rather, his opinion was largely based on the fact that Weaver had ASPD and his impulse discontrol was volitional when he

1 relationship between Weaver and his mother, ambivalence towards his father, a preference to being a 2 loner, and alcohol abuse.⁶⁴ She stated Dr. Matychowiak described Weaver's Vietnam experience as a 3 happy one, that he was unfamiliar with extant research and diagnostic information concerning PTSD, 4 and that since he made up his mind PTSD was not a worthwhile area of inquiry, he did not pursue it.
5 Except for Dr. Matychowiak's lack of familiarity with extant PTSD research and diagnostic 6 information, Mrs. Huffman's summary of his testimony misstated his testimony.⁶⁵ She correctly 7 summarized that Dr. Matychowiak's opinion that Weaver showed no signs of psychosis, but 8 incorrectly stated that he didn't believe Weaver heard any voices.⁶⁶ Dr. Matychowiak thought the 9 doctors who found Weaver to be legally insane were wrong, but conceded that a personality disorder 10 could be on the surface of underlying psychosis.⁶⁷

11 Mrs. Huffman summarized that Dr. Burdick found Weaver had been abused as a child, had a 12 love-hate relationship with his mother, was ambivalent as to his father, and had "problems with this 13 sister."⁶⁸ She stated that Dr. Burdick mentioned Vietnam, but not in depth. His impression was 14

15 killed Robert Radford and Barbara Levoy. The Court does not discount the possibility, however, that 16 some of the information Mrs. Huffman recited as having been in the doctor's testimony could have 17 been in his report, which was neither before the jury or this Court.

18 ⁶⁴ Much of this summary information also was a misstatement of Dr. Matychowiak's 19 testimony. Rather than a love-hate relationship with his mother, Dr. Matychowiak found that Weaver 20 idealized his mother, contrary to findings in many of the reports he had been given. Further, Dr.
21 Matychowiak never mentioned that Weaver experienced ambivalence toward his father. Rather, he 22 described his father as harsh, abusive, and discouraging.

23 ⁶⁵ On both direct and cross examination, Dr. Matychowiak mentioned that Weaver followed 24 orders, even those he did not like, to stay alive. He also testified that he did consider PTSD, taking 25 into account Weaver's following orders statement, his auditory hallucinations, his unhappy childhood, 26 and his easy anger. He found Weaver's startle reflex to loud noises and hypervigilance were common 27 to many anxiety disorders, not just PTSD.

28 ⁶⁶ Dr. Matychowiak specifically mentioned Weaver's reference to the male and female voices on two occasions during his testimony. It was clear, however, that Dr. Matychowiak did not believe the male voice compelled Weaver's conduct; either it made a suggestion Weaver went along with, or Weaver wanted to do something the voice thought was okay.

⁶⁷ Again, while it is true Dr. Matychowiak testified it was possible for psychosis and a personality disorder to coexist, even if the psychosis were in remission, it would be still be apparent, and it wasn't in Weaver.

⁶⁸ The only portion of this summary that correctly characterizes Dr. Burdick's testimony is that he believed Weaver was abused as a child. He specifically stated that he did not go into detail with 1 limited to personality disorders; he found no schizophrenic symptoms. She incorrectly stated Dr.

2 Burdick conceded that Mellaril and incarceration could subdue psychotic symptoms.⁶⁹ Mrs. Huffman
3 then criticized Dr. Burdick as superficial for failing to explain why he concluded Weaver was oriented
4 as to time and that his memory was intact.⁷⁰ Dr. Burdick did note some paranoid ideation, but nothing
5 delusional. As with Dr. Matychowiak, Mrs. Huffman argued Dr. Burdick characterized Weaver's 6 thoughts as fantasies and grandiosity, including the notion Weaver believed he could make a bomb 7 from Tide soap.⁷¹ Dr. Burdick's bottom line was that Weaver had ASPD, but conceded that when 8 psychosis is in remission a personality defect could be apparent.⁷²

9 Mrs. Huffman noted that Dr. Criswell made a point to say that he reviewed 276 pages of 10 material and spent two hours with Weaver. The background he obtained included that Weaver had a 11 love-hate relationship with his mother, was ambivalent with his father, had an "abiding problem with 12 his sister," and endured an abusive childhood. Dr. Criswell then went into some detail about Weaver's 13 lumber yard and demolitions jobs in Vietnam. He recited Weaver's statement about liking to blow 14 things up and that the officers would let him blow up anything. Dr. Criswell commented that this latter 15 statement obviously was untrue, but he didn't delve further to determine whether Weaver's statement 16 was delusional. Mrs. Huffman mentioned that Dr. Criswell noted twice in his report that Weaver 17 reported being sedated or medicated with an anti-psychotic drug during their interview. He conceded 18 that anti-psychotic medication could subdue psychotic symptoms but added that the symptoms would 19

20 Weaver about his childhood and mentioned nothing in this testimony about a love-hate relationship 21 with this mother, ambivalence towards his father, or problems with this sister.

22 ⁶⁹ In fact he stated that he didn't think the fact that Weaver was taking Mellaril during his 23 incarceration altered his behavior, so, by extension, the absence of this medicine did not contribute his 24 criminal acts.

25 ⁷⁰ These statements were not included in Dr. Burdick's testimony

26 ⁷¹ During her cross examination of Dr. Burdick, Mrs. Huffman gave several examples of 27 behavior that might be considered delusional; the ability to make explosives out of household items 28 like Tide soap, however, was not one of those examples. It is true that Dr. Burdick found none of the examples Mrs. Huffman gave to be evidence of delusions associated with psychosis.

⁷² Dr. Burdick testified, however, that even when psychosis is in remission it, still would be apparent, and wasn't in Weaver.

1 still be detectible and Weaver had none. He found Weaver legally sane at the time of the Radford/2 Levoy murders. She stated Dr. Criswell was not, however, in total disagreement with doctors who 3 found an underlying psychotic disorder; but this condition would have taken longer to discover.⁷³

4 Mrs. Huffman reviewed that Dr. Cholet administered several tests and found that Weaver did 5 not demonstrate any symptoms of organic brain dysfunction or mental illness. Mrs. Huffman made no 6 discernible argument to controvert or diminish the import of Dr. Cholet's unfavorable impressions.

7 b. Mr. Shumaker

8 Mr. Shumaker informed the jurors that the sanity issue applied to all three counts: the two 9 murders and the kidnap of Ms. Levoy. He stressed that mental illness or abnormality did not amount 10 to legal insanity. Rather, insanity required that a defendant lack substantial capacity due to mental 11 illness either to appreciate the criminality of his conduct (which no one argued Weaver did not have) 12 or conform his conduct to the requirements of the law. If Weaver was intermittently sane and insane, 13 he had the burden of showing he was insane at the time of the crimes. Mr. Shumaker emphasized that 14 an irresistible or uncontrollable impulse did not amount to legal insanity. Also, a mental disease or 15 defect could not be found merely because of repeated criminal or anti-social conduct. Mr. Shumaker 16 advised the jurors they would be instructed to consider evidence only from the sanity phase in making 17 the sanity determination. That is, they were not to consider evidence presented during the guilt 18 phase.⁷⁴

19 Aside from reminding jurors of the appropriate construction of the jury instructions, there were 20 two main themes to Mr. Shumaker's summation. The first was that the jurors should not consider the 21 hardship information Weaver relayed to the various experts for the truth of the matter stated because it 22 was unsubstantiated and contradicted. The second theme was undermining just about everything about 23

24 ⁷³ This summary was incorrect. As noted in the summary of Dr. Criswell's testimony, Part 25 III.A.2.a.,iv., supra, Dr. Criswell, like Dr. Burdick, rejected Mrs. Huffman's suggestion that an 26 examiner who spent 30 to 40 hours evaluating and testing a subject would better be able to assess an 27 individual for sanity. He did not doubt that the examiner who spent such time would have a fuller 28 picture, that fuller picture would not necessarily be beneficial to a sanity assessment. Further, Dr.
Criswell concluded his direct testimony with the opinion that Weaver was not psychotic at the time of the evaluation, and had not been psychotic in the past.

⁷⁴ This instruction resulted from Mrs. Huffman's successful argument to this effect.

1 Dr. Shonkwiler and his testimony. Like Mrs. Huffman, Mr. Shumaker reviewed the diagnoses and 2 opinions given by the various experts. Also like Mrs. Huffman, there were a number of instances 3 where Mr. Shumaker misstated the testimony of the various experts. In comparison, with Mrs.
4 Huffman, however, Mr. Shumaker's misstatements were far fewer.

5 With respect to not accepting the truth of the facts which Weaver relayed to the experts, Mr.
6 Shumaker's first target was the VESI, designed by Dr. Wilson, and shown to the jury via AV. The 7 unsubstantiated "facts" relied on by the defense experts were: Weaver was a loner; his father was 8 largely absent from his upbringing; he had been hallucinating since some time during his adolescence; 9 after returning from Vietnam, he lost his temper and self-control more easily; he participated in active 10 combat while in Vietnam; and he was abused as a child, including having been subjected to sadistic 11 toilet training. As an addendum to whether Weaver was capable of controlling his conduct, Mr.
12 Shumaker argued that Weaver was adequately intelligent.

13 Based on the testimony of Weaver's sister, Katie Smith, together with brothers, Del Rey 14 Barnett and Jesse Moreland, Mr. Shumaker refuted the notion adopted by several defense experts, 15 including Dr. Shonkwiler, that Weaver was a loner. Ms. Smith testified that he had friends in school, a 16 couple of girlfriends, and was involved with FFA.⁷⁵ Separately, she refuted the notion that their father 17 was absent from the home during their childhood, as Weaver often would spend weekends working on 18 cars with the father. Messrs. Barnett and Moreland similarly contradicted the claim that Weaver had 19 no friends and was a loner. Both testified they went skating, fishing, and drinking with Weaver at 20 various times. Mr. Moreland also worked with Weaver.

21 With respect to hallucinations, Mr. Shumaker argued only half-brothers Barnett and Moreland 22 provided very weak corroboration that Weaver talked to himself: in Mr. Barnett's presence on the 23 occasion of a long-haul trucking trip; and with Mr. Moreland when the two of them experienced a 24 fishing boat mishap over river rocks. Neither brother thought that Weaver's self-talking was 25 particularly unusual, since Mr. Barnett testified he also talked to himself on long hauls and Mr.
26 Moreland testified he was talking to himself when he realized the danger in which he and Weaver had

27
28 ⁷⁵ Ms. Smith also specifically Weaver as a "loner." See Part III.A.1.b, supra.

1 found themselves at the time of the fishing boat mishap. Mr. Shumaker argued that if Weaver in fact 2 had experienced auditory hallucinations, there would have been other accounts, including from his 3 sister and his wives.⁷⁶ Mr. Shumaker noted that the first time Weaver revealed his auditory 4 hallucinations was to Dr. Chappell (appointed in August 1981 regarding the Ventura crimes). Mr.
5 Shumaker reminded the jurors that neither Dr. Chappell nor Dr. Donaldson (the other Ventura doctors) 6 believed Weaver heard voices,⁷⁷ and Dr. Chappell didn't believe that if Weaver had been 7 schizophrenic while in the Army, this factor could have been overlooked or missed by other members 8 of the service.

9 Regarding Weaver's propensity for violence upon return from Vietnam, Mr. Shumaker 10 misstated the testimony of Mr. Barnett and Mr. Moreland. He argued their testimony supported the 11 notion that Weaver's temper wasn't worse than normal, except when Mr. Moreland encouraged him.
12 To the contrary, both friends testified Weaver was much more prone to violence and talking about 13 extreme violence against people who he felt treated him with disrespect.⁷⁸

14 During Mr. Shumaker's summary of Dr. Wilson's testimony he discussed the fact that there 15 was no actual corroboration Weaver actually had seen combat duty in Vietnam. While Dr. Wilson 16 relied upon the medals Weaver received for having been in actual combat, Mr. Shumaker pointed out 17 that in fact those medals were given to all servicemen who served in Vietnam (whether in combat or 18 not).

19 Mr. Shumaker controverted Mrs. Huffman's argument that all of the experts found Weaver had 20 been abused, yet he offered no argument about which experts testified Weaver was not abused as a 21 child. In fact, all four of the prosecution psychiatrists testified they believed Weaver was abused as a 22 child. Mr. Shumaker devoted a good deal of time discounting the report that Weaver's mother bit him 23

24 ⁷⁶ He did not mention or acknowledge the inmate testimony Mrs. Huffman presented from Carl 25 Hogan or Richard Archuleta.

26 ⁷⁷ This was an overstatement: both Drs. Chappell and Donaldson doubted, but did not 27 completely discount, that Weaver experienced auditory hallucinations.

28 ⁷⁸ This was a major point in Mrs. Huffman's insanity case, yet Mr. Shumaker's unfounded argument did not draw an objection.

1 as a form of punishment as uncorroborated. Mr. Shumaker also strenuously argued (three times during 2 his summation) that Dr. Shonkwiler’s opinion Weaver probably was subjected to sadistic toilet training 3 on the grounds of reported abuse “was baseless.” Another reason to be skeptical of the objectivity of 4 Drs. Shonkwiler, as well as Wilson and Kormos, was that they always testified for the defense (noting 5 Dr. Kormos once was scheduled to testify for the prosecution, but then wasn’t needed). In contrast, the 6 four prosecution psychiatrists had extensive experience, having each conducted hundreds of 7 evaluations and testified dozens of times.

8 Separate and apart from the lack of foundation for the defense expert opinions, Mr. Shumaker 9 argued Dr. Shonkwiler’s opinions were devalued because he wasn’t board certified in forensic 10 psychiatry, and he did not arrive independently at his diagnoses of schizophrenia or PTSD, but rather 11 based his opinions on the reports of psychologist Dr. Dietiker and the VA specialists, respectively. Mr.
12 Shumaker also was highly critical of Dr. Shonkwiler for his behavior in the courtroom when he was 13 testifying about his own Vietnam experience in relation to what Weaver underwent. Mr. Shumaker 14 stated that Dr. Shonkwiler requested a break in the proceedings while testifying about Vietnam.⁷⁹ He 15 argued this conduct was not that of a competent professional and urged the jurors that Dr. Shonkwiler 16 was “someone who d[id] not deserve to be heard in a courtroom offering an opinion” on a matter as 17 serious as what was being litigated. Finally, he reminded the jurors that Dr. Shonkwiler’s license to 18 practice medicine had been revoked for 10 years with a stay in effect so long as he practiced under the 19 license of another doctor and that doctor was responsible for him. In sum, Dr. Shonkwiler’s opinion 20 was “not particularly important” as it was without factual basis, and the doctor lacked qualifications.

21 As to the other psychiatrists and psychologists who testified, Mr. Shumaker summarized their 22 ultimate conclusions and the relevance of those conclusions. It was during these summarizations that 23 the amount of time it took the experts to reach their conclusions was identified: Dr. Raitt (the examiner 24 of Weaver’s schizophrenic aunt and cousin);⁸⁰ Dr. Gardner (who evaluated Weaver for sentencing for 25

26 ⁷⁹ This break in Dr. Shonkwiler’s testimony was not evident from the transcript and was not 27 subject to any further enlightening comments.

28 ⁸⁰ He had no opinion about the present case and he wasn’t asked to provide one.

1 the Humboldt County crime and who Mr. Shumaker discarded because he also had no opinion about 2 the present crime);⁸¹ Drs. Owre and Tolchin, also in connection with the Humboldt County crime in 3 the context of Weaver’s incarceration; Drs. Chappell and Donaldson, who rendered opinions about 4 Weaver’s sanity at trial for the Ventura crimes; Mr. Rose, the intake psychologist in the Southern 5 California receiving prison in Chino (for the Ventura crimes); the Affiliated Psychologists, Drs.
6 Dietiker and Lundgren; the PTSD specialists, Drs. Wilson, Wittlin, Donahoe, and Kormos; Dr. Cholet; 7 and the four prosecution psychiatrists appointed by the trial court to assess Weaver’s sanity.⁸² Mr.
8 Shumaker pointed out that in contrast to the experts hired by the defense (Drs. Shonkwiler, Lundgren, 9 Dietiker, Wilson, Wittlin, Donahoe, and Kormos), the four prosecution psychiatrists felt they had 10 enough time to come to individual accurate and competent conclusions.⁸³ Drs. Chappell and 11 Donaldson also spent one to two hours for the Ventura trial. Mr. Shumaker specifically mentioned Dr.
12 Chappell’s testimony, that is, he learned early in his career, that a doctor should be able to assess a 13 patient in about an hour. Even defense expert, Dr. Wilson, who spent 40 to 50 hours evaluating 14 Weaver and writing his report from review of materials and the VESI AV, didn’t draw his final 15 conclusion about schizophrenia until his face-to-face examination. This fact also established that 16 spending a great many hours reviewing background materials didn’t amount to much.

17 In the course of reviewing Dr. Owre’s opinion, Mr. Shumaker argued that when he stated his 18 opinion from the witness stand that Weaver currently was schizophrenic based on his (Dr. Owre’s) 19 observation of Weaver during the course of his testimony, he “did as much to discredit psychiatry” as 20 anything Mr. Shumaker could do. He juxtaposed Dr. Owre’s present impression with the impressions 21 he had of Weaver at the time of Weaver’s incarceration between 1977 and 1979, that is, a model 22 inmate, without psychiatric symptomology, except in distorted relationships with women.

24 ⁸¹ Mr. Shumaker failed to note in his summation that Dr. Gardner was said to have written in 25 his report that Weaver denied experiencing auditory hallucinations.

26 ⁸² Drs. Cutting and Criswell also were appointed to given an opinion about Weaver’s 27 competence to be tried months before the actual trial commenced.

28 ⁸³ Dr. Burdick actually spent just under three hours interviewing Weaver, plus reviewing materials provided him and presumably more time to write his report.

1 Mr. Shumaker conceded that Weaver may have had mental problems, including schizophrenia, 2 though that was far from clear. Even though several examiners observed Weaver had enjoyed his 3 Vietnam service, Mr. Shumaker acknowledged the expertise of the VA doctors who found PTSD in 4 Weaver. Nonetheless, even with mental problems, including PTSD, Weaver was not necessarily 5 insane in February of 1981. Weaver's personality disorder, namely ASPD, was prevalent in all of the 6 examiners' opinions. When a person is sociopathic, he wants what he wants without regard to the 7 consequences. Mr. Shumaker explained, however, that this impulse didn't preclude Weaver from 8 conforming his conduct to the requirements of the law. Only by ignoring the testimony and opinions 9 of Drs. Cholet, Cutting, Matychowiak, Burdick, Criswell, plus Drs. Chappell and Donaldson, could the 10 jurors arrive at the conclusion that Weaver was legally insane at the time of the crimes.

11 He concluded by arguing that the defense had failed to meet its burden of proof. At best, the 12 scales were balanced, with the presumption remaining that Weaver was sane at the time of the 13 Radford/ Levoy crimes.

14 c. Rebuttal

15 Mrs. Huffman's defense rebuttal was relatively short, taking up only 18 pages of transcript.
16 Although there was quite a bit of argument in this rebuttal that was incomprehensible, including many 17 passages and strings of words that did not make sense, she did address some key points in Mr.
18 Shumaker's closing argument.

19 Some of the less than effective points included her discounting Dr. Cholet's opinion that 20 Weaver was sane because she (Dr. Cholet) didn't know legal terminology. In fact, the questions posed 21 to and answers given by Dr. Cholet demonstrated that she understood the criteria for legal insanity.
22 Moreover other psychologists offered opinions on the sanity issue. Another inadequacy was her 23 attribution to Mr. Shumaker that there could be no insanity defense unless the subject was a "raving 24 lunatic" at all times. He did not make this argument. But early in Mrs. Huffman's presentation of the 25 case, characterizing Weaver as a madman was exactly what she did. Next, she offered a very confused 26 explanation, noting that an uncontrollable or irresistible impulse is not legal insanity, unless as the 27 result of mental disease or defect, the subject lacked substantial capacity to appreciate the criminality 28 of his conduct or to conform his conduct to the requirements of law. Regarding hallucinations, Mrs.

1 Huffman stated the issue was whether they were recurring. What followed from this was a discussion 2 about whether one views a half-full glass of water as would an optimist or a pessimist.

3 Points that she repeated from her opening summation included the argument that because there 4 were so many opinions, the jurors needed to look at the weight of the expert testimony rather than 5 merely the numbers. She reiterated that when there is schizophrenia in the family, not necessarily a 6 parent, a person is more predisposed to schizophrenia. Similarly, she repeated that personality 7 disorders, such as Weaver's could be superimposed over underlying psychosis. All of the doctors 8 testified to that. In order to understand Weaver's mental state, all three of his conditions 9 (schizophrenia, PTSD, personality disorder) needed to be considered together. Mr. Shumaker looked 10 at the components separately and out of context. Instead, Mrs. Huffman emphasized, all three 11 conditions worked together.

12 Her more responsive arguments started with a review of Weaver's auditory hallucinations. She 13 countered the notion offered by Drs. Chappell and Donaldson that the hallucinations were unlikely 14 because no one in Weaver's life knew. Mrs. Huffman reminded the jurors that, in fact, there had been 15 testimony Weaver's mother knew about the voices and she told Weaver not say anything about them.
16 Weaver had been seeing mental health specialists long before he became involved in criminal 17 behavior.⁸⁴

18 She also explained that the word "forensics" simply means that a person with the certification 19 had experience testifying in court. Being board certified in forensics did not give an expert an 20 advantage for diagnosing medical or mental conditions over other psychologist or psychiatrists. Next, 21 she briefly mentioned the AV of the VESI, which was used by Drs. Wilson, Kormos, and Shonkwiler 22 to observe Weaver. She reminded the jurors that Drs. Wilson and Kormos had PTSD expertise.

23 Turning to Dr. Shonkwiler, Mrs. Huffman argued that the fact he was practicing under an 24 impaired license had nothing to do with his qualifications to evaluate a patient and make a diagnosis.
25 Of all the doctors, Dr. Shonkwiler was the only one to have talked to Weaver's mother and sister.

27 ⁸⁴ Dr. Burdick testified that Weaver had been to see psychiatrists all of his life, beginning as a 28 youngster.

1 Regarding Weaver's abusive childhood, all of the doctors who testified favorably for the prosecution, 2 including Drs. Cutting, Matychowiak, Burdick, and Criswell, testified that Weaver's childhood was 3 abusive. They all agreed on this fact as well as the fact that Weaver suffered from a personality 4 disorder. Nor was there total disagreement that Weaver had some underlying psychosis. The only 5 disagreement was whether Weaver was insane at the time of the crimes.

6 She refuted Mr. Shumaker's argument that Weaver wasn't a loner because he had a couple of 7 friends. Mrs. Huffman argued that being a loner was having only one or two friends "in a period of 8 time." Ms. Smith's testimony was that he had a friend in grade school and one in high school. Weaver 9 still could be characterized as a loner even though he had a friend here and there.⁸⁵ Moreover, she 10 continued, being a loner, or abused, depended on the mindset of the subject, not the person or people 11 interacting with the individual. Continuing on that subject matter she argued that just because 12 Weaver's father spent time with him on weekends going fishing, working on cars, or building animal 13 pens with him didn't make him a companion and a role model. The doctors thought that Weaver's 14 father generally was absent. She argued, they couldn't all have been mistaken. During this argument, 15 she Mrs. Huffman did not reference Ms. Smith's testimony corroborating these assertions.

16 She then turned to the matter of Dr. Owre declaring on the stand that Weaver was 17 schizophrenic. She criticized Mr. Shumaker's comment that Dr. Owre had discredited psychiatry by 18 this declaration since he (Dr. Owre) had quite a bit of experience dealing with schizophrenics at the 19 prison. She went on to say that Weaver was housed within that quad for inmates with psychosis, 20 suggesting the reason for that was that he was schizophrenic, and since he received no treatment 21 following his release from that prison, his condition deteriorated. This argument, however, misstated 22 Dr. Owre's testimony, that in 1977 Weaver was asymptomatic for psychosis.

23 Next, Mrs. Huffman criticized Dr. Chappell for concluding that a person with schizophrenia 24 could never be in the service. She argued his opinion was based on "pure speculation." She urged that 25 Dr. Chappell could not know how a person with schizophrenia would have responded; a person with 26

27 ⁸⁵ In fact Weaver's sister, Ms. Smith, characterized him as a loner during her testimony, a 28 point Mrs. Huffman did not bring out.

1 schizophrenia was not necessarily a raving lunatic. She then misstated Dr. Chappell's testimony, 2 crediting him with saying that if someone claimed to have a lapse of memory during a crime, further 3 investigation would be necessary. In fact this testimony came from Dr. Donaldson, not Dr. Chappell.

4 She also mischaracterized Mr. Shumaker's summation by saying he argued that there was no 5 schizophrenia, no personality disorder, and that PTSD was invented for this trial. She then reminded 6 the jurors of the qualifications of the doctors who evaluated Weaver for PTSD; this certainly wasn't 7 invented.⁸⁶ In conclusion, Mrs. Huffman urged the jurors to consider all three of Weaver's conditions, 8 the mental illness or defect of schizophrenia, the personality disorder, and PTSD, to see what was 9 going on with Weaver at the time of the crimes. She analogized Weaver's multi-layered condition as a 10 bed topped with many blankets. Every time a blanket would be removed, there would be another 11 condition underneath. This situation, she argued, required investigation, not just looking at the surface.
12 A psychiatrist should always go deeper to see if the first diagnosis was correct. She asked the jurors to 13 look at the "case as a whole."

14 5. Jury Instructions

15 In addition to the many standard instructions Judge Stone gave, the salient instructions to the 16 presently disputed issues included: that statements made by Weaver to the doctors as the bases for the 17 respective expert opinions were not to be considered for the truth of the matter stated; that the only 18 evidence to be considered during the sanity phase was evidence presented during that phase; that the 19 facts comprising hypothetical questions were not necessarily proved; that relative qualifications of the 20 experts should be considered; and that mental illness and abnormality were not the same as legal 21 insanity. He gave the full definition of legal insanity, discussed the fact that Weaver bore the burden of 22 proof under the preponderance of the evidence standard and reminded jurors that while temporary 23 insanity was recognized, an irresistible impulse was not legal insanity unless it was the result of a

26 ⁸⁶ Mr. Shumaker never discounted that Weaver had a personality disorder. He argued 27 numerous times that Weaver was afflicted with ASPD. Further, while he doubted schizophrenia and 28 cast some doubt on the PTSD diagnosis in his argument, he conceded that Weaver may have suffered from PTSD. His point was that even if Weaver had a mental illness it did not mean he was insane at the time of the present crimes.

1 mental disease or defect that Weaver could not appreciate the criminality of his conduct or conform his 2 conduct to the requirements of law.

3 6. Deliberations

4 The jurors retired to deliberate at 2:55 p.m. on Thursday, February 28, 1985. Among their 5 tasks in the deliberation room was to select a new foreman (since the guilt phase foreman had been 6 excused). At 3:37 p.m., just 42 minutes later, they sent the court bailiff a note saying they had reached 7 a verdict: Weaver was legally sane at the time of the Radford/ Levoy crimes.

8 7. Defense Motion

9 Before court was reconvened for the commencement of penalty proceedings on March 5, 1985, 10 Mrs. Huffman moved for a new trial on the grounds that the jurors did not arrive at a verdict by a fair 11 expression of opinion on the part of all the jurors. She argued that given a new foreman had to be 12 elected at the onset of the deliberations, there could not have been any discussion as to the weight to be 13 given to the testimony. Further, she argued, three jurors, Jurors 9, 10, and 11, were not paying 14 attention during the instructions; they were talking and laughing. These same three jurors additionally 15 seemed not to have been listening during trial proceedings. Judge Stone deferred ruling on the oral 16 motion to give both sides an opportunity to brief the matter.

17 B. Penalty Phase

18 Mr. Shumaker presented evidence describing Weaver's criminal conduct with respect to the 19 Humboldt and Ventura County crimes. The Humboldt crime was presented as a prior felony 20 conviction. The Ventura crime was presented as evidence of prior violent, criminal conduct. Mrs.
21 Huffman called Weaver and relied on the mental health evidence presented during the sanity phase.
22 This evidence, argument of counsel, jury instructions, and jury deliberations are summarized below.

23 1. Prosecution Case

24 With his opening statement and presentation of evidence, Mr. Shumaker concluded his case 25 shortly after the morning recess on March 6, 1985.

26 a. *The 1977 Humboldt Conviction

27 Bonnie Brown described her encounter with Weaver late on the night of September 22, 1976.
28 Leaving her job at the local bowling alley in Eureka, close to midnight, she encountered Weaver in the 1 bowling alley parking lot. He asked her for directions and invited her to go for a drink with him. After 2 an initial refusal, she consented to go to the Denny's Restaurant for coffee and a soft drink. They went 3 in separate vehicles. From there, Weaver and Ms. Brown went to a truck stop to look at Weaver's 4 truck (which he wanted her to see). Again, they took separate cars. After looking at his truck, Ms.

5 Brown went to unlock her car door and felt a blow to the back of her head. She blacked out and fell.
6 When she awoke, Weaver was warning her not to scream, with one hand over her mouth and one 7 around her throat. He threatened to kill her. She saw a light colored wooden club about the size of a 8 baseball bat. Weaver then forced her to get in his pickup truck. While he was approaching the driver's 9 door, she got out of the pickup and ran toward the truck stop screaming. He chased her, but gave up 10 the pursuit when a person at the truck stop yelled out at him. On cross examination, Ms. Brown 11 clarified that there was never any discussion about sex and that when she began unlocking her car after 12 viewing Weaver's truck at the truck stop, he did not say anything to dissuade her. Following this 13 testimony, Weaver stipulated that he had pleaded guilty to assault with a deadly weapon to this crime 14 on May 2, 1977.

15 b. The 1981 Ventura Conviction

16 The first witness to testify regarding the Ventura crime was David Galbraith. At the time of his 17 testimony, Mr. Galbraith was serving prison time in Washington State for burglary, but had been 18 housed in the Kern County Jail since the beginning of the year. Mr. Galbraith and his girlfriend, 19 Michelle DeLong, left Washington State (hitchhiking) heading for Yreka, California, to stay with Ms.
20 DeLong's uncle. Before leaving Washington, Mr. Galbraith burglarized a sporting goods store for 21 camping equipment. Weaver picked up the young couple in Medford, Oregon. Weaver's young son, 22 Rodney, was with him. When they arrived in Yreka, Ms. DeLong's uncle was not at home. At 23 Weaver's invitation, the couple accompanied him to Oroville, spent the night, swam with his children 24 in the river the next day, and drove to Ventura to help Weaver with his load. Because the uncle would 25 not be returning to Yreka for another two weeks, Mr. Galbraith consented to Weaver's offer to help 26 find him a job in Ventura. Weaver introduced Mr. Galbraith to his friend Jerry Daniels, ostensibly for 27 this purpose. Mr. Galbraith and Mr. Daniels drove for about an hour. They stopped along the way a 28 few times to look at deer. At the last stop, Mr. Daniels shot Mr. Galbraith three times, twice in the 1 back of the head and once in his face, through his eye. Mr. Daniels then kicked Mr. Galbraith over the 2 embankment. On cross examination, Mrs. Huffman brought out that Mr. Galbraith had numerous 3 burglary and narcotics convictions, and since his eighteenth birthday (in 1980), he had only been out of 4 custody for about seven months.

5 Ms. DeLong testified next. On both direct and cross examination, Ms. DeLong added a few 6 facts to the description of the crimes. First, she testified that she was 15 years old at the time of the 7 crime (and 19 years old at the time of her testimony). While Mr. Galbraith was off with Mr. Daniels 8 supposedly organizing a job, she was going to accompany Weaver “to go do his trips” and they 9 planned to reunite with Mr. Galbraith some hours later. At some point Weaver stopped the truck and 10 got into the sleeper compartment of the truck. He held a gun to her to coerce her to acquiesce to the 11 rape. A few hours later he forced her to orally copulate him. Mr. Shumaker elicited that he pushed her 12 head down on himself and ultimately ejaculated. He told her that Mr. Galbraith would be shot if she 13 didn’t do what he told her to do. He said he checked in with Mr. Daniels. He also made threats 14 against her family. After the sexual assaults, Weaver and Ms. DeLong drove back up to Weaver’s 15 home in Oroville. The next day he told her Mr. Galbraith had been shot. He dropped her off in 16 Marysville at about 5:00 p.m. and said he would come collect her about 9:00 p.m., but he did not do so.
17 She contacted the local police authorities around 9:10 p.m. that night.

18 In addition to the two crime victims, Mr. Shumaker also called the former Ventura Sheriff’s 19 sergeant Charles Rudd, who worked on the Ventura case, in order to admit Weaver’s second custodial 20 statement to Ventura authorities. The direct examination was halted just after Mr. Rudd testified that 21 Weaver accompanied him to Ventura voluntarily. After taking further testimony outside the presence 22 of the jury and hearing argument from the parties, the trial court denied the prosecution request to 23 admit Weaver’s second custodial statement to Ventura authorities and ruled all further testimony from 24 Mr. Rudd would be inadmissible. Specifically, Judge Stone found that Weaver’s initial custodial 25 statement was not given with the benefit of a Miranda warning, and his subsequent waiver of Miranda
28

1 prior to the second statement did not cure the defect.⁸⁷ Since Mr. Shumaker had asked Mr. Rudd a few 2 questions before the proceedings outside the jury's presence, Mrs. Huffman was permitted to cross 3 examine him. She elicited that Mr. Rudd informed Weaver Mr. Galbraith had been shot.

4 2. Defense Case

5 The defense case consisted of Mrs. Huffman's examination of Weaver, concerning the 6 Humboldt crime. She waived an opening statement and called no other witnesses. Her case was 7 complete prior to the lunch recess on March 6, 1985. Weaver testified that he was arrested 8 immediately after the assault on Ms. Brown. Thereafter, he took his family to Pocatello, Idaho for 9 three to four weeks. He testified he returned after learning that the police were looking for him and 10 turned himself in at the police department. Pending trial, he went to Texas to two Veterans' Hospitals 11 to get mental health, but was turned down.⁸⁸

12 3. Prosecution Summation

13 Mr. Shumaker explained that jurors were to weigh mitigating against aggravating 14 circumstances. He discussed the circumstances of the crime factor (§ 190.3(a)) as primarily evidence 15 from the guilt phase, including the kidnap special circumstance and the multiple murder circumstance.
16 Later in his summation he stressed that this was the most important aggravating factor. He argued that 17 Weaver's conduct for the crime was not out of character, as he had demonstrated violence toward 18 women in the past and just three months after the Radford/ Levoy crimes, he exhibited the same 19 conduct with respect to Michelle DeLong and David Galbraith. The evidence pertinent to the presence 20 of violent criminal activity (§ 190.3(b)) involved four separate acts which the jurors had to be 21 convinced happened beyond a reasonable doubt. The first involved Weaver's first wife, Patricia 22 Budrow, who testified during guilt proceedings about having been beaten by Weaver periodically, and

25
26 ⁸⁷ It has been Mr. Shumaker's intent to allege Weaver also committed attempted murder as to Mr. Galbraith. Based on the trial court's ruling, this strategy was abandoned.

27 ⁸⁸ This is consistent with the testimony of Weaver's cousin, Russell Mathiasch. See Part 28 III.A.1.c., supra.

1 that she even suffered a miscarriage. Mr. Shumaker argued Ms. Budrow's account was confirmed by 2 Weaver's own guilt phase testimony.⁸⁹

3 The second violent criminal act was the 1976 assault on Bonnie Brown. Third and fourth were 4 the rape and forced oral copulation of Michelle DeLong. Weaver used a gun to coerce Ms. DeLong in 5 the rape and for both sexual acts threatened harm would come to Mr. Galbraith if she did not submit.
6 Mr. Shumaker clarified that Mr. Galbraith's testimony was admitted only to corroborate Ms. DeLong's 7 testimony. He further pointed out to jurors that Ms. DeLong was only released after Weaver learned 8 Mr. Galbraith was alive and authorities were looking for him. The presence of a prior conviction 9 under § 190.3(c) was satisfied by Weaver's admission to the Humboldt County offense against Ms.
10 Brown. Mr. Shumaker mentioned whether Weaver committed the present crimes under the influence 11 of extreme mental or emotional disturbance (§ 190.3(d)), noting that this consideration was a separate 12 category from insanity. He made no other definitive statement about this factor. Referring to whether 13 either victim was a participant in Weaver's homicidal conduct (§ 190.3(e)), he argued that Ms. Levoy's 14 act of biting Weaver's thumb did not qualify. Mr. Shumaker clearly stated that the factor regarding a 15 defendant's belief he was acting under a moral justification (§ 190.3(f)) absolutely had no application 16 in this case. With respect to the question of whether Weaver acted under duress at the time of the 17 crimes (§ 190.3(g)), Mr. Shumaker explained that evidence of Weaver's auditory hallucinations wasn't 18 intended to come within this factor. The factor concerning Weaver's capacity to appreciate the 19 criminality of his conduct or conform that conduct to the requirements of law (§ 190.3(h)), was a 20 reprise of the sanity phase.

21 Weaver's age at the time of the crimes (§ 190.3(i)), was neutral, neither mitigating nor 22 aggravating. The final factor was whether there were any other circumstances which extenuated the 23 gravity of the crime even though not a legal excuse for the crime, or any other aspect of Weaver's

26 ⁸⁹ During Weaver's guilt phase cross examination, he testified that Ms. Budrow's own account 27 regarding his abuse of her was "almost" accurate. RT-15: 4053. It was true the physical altercations 28 arose from arguments over Weaver's mother. He did strike her with this fists and once the beating caused her to cough up blood. He knew nothing, however, about causing her to have a miscarriage.
Id.: 4054.

1 character or record offered as a basis for a sentence less than death (§ 190.3(k)).⁹⁰ Mr. Shumaker
2 presaged that Mrs. Huffman’s summation would focus on Weaver’s Vietnam service. Mr. Shumaker’s 3 answer to this anticipated argument was that although Weaver served honorably and participated in 4 combat, that experience did not give him license or an excuse to commit the crimes for which he was 5 on trial. He also mentioned Weaver’s mental problems in the context of the factor (k) instruction, as 6 well as factors (d) and (h). While Mr. Shumaker conceded that Weaver had mental problems, there 7 was nothing presented in the evidence to indicate that these problems should be an excuse for his 8 crimes. Moreover, evidence adduced during the sanity phase “simply did not come across as that 9 persuasive.” The only common thread was that Weaver had an antisocial personality problem. But 10 even this was not an excuse, extenuation, or justification for a lesser penalty. Near the conclusion of 11 his summation, Mr. Shumaker argued that the evidence presented in the trial actually extenuated the 12 “validity of the death penalty.” Nor was Weaver’s attempt to get help from two VA hospitals in Texas 13 mitigating; he did get help while in prison for the Humboldt crime from 1977 to 1979. Finally, the fact 14 that Weaver voluntarily returned from Idaho to Humboldt County to face charges for the assault also 15 was not mitigating, since he left California in the first place to avoid apprehension.

16 4. Defense Summation

17 Mrs. Huffman did not dispute the evidence summarized by Mr. Shumaker, but argued it was 18 mitigating. She also stressed that the decision about whether to impose the death penalty involved a 19 moral judgment. She pointed out that nothing had been withheld from the jurors, including the fact of 20 Weaver’s 42 years to life sentence for the DeLong/ Galbraith crimes.⁹¹

21 The particular factors that were mitigating included the fact that Weaver didn’t know Mr.
22 Radford had actually died until he was arrested. Further, although Ms. Levoy couldn’t have known the 23 consequences of her biting Weaver’s thumb, it was provocation nonetheless. The testimony of Patricia

25 ⁹⁰ Penal Code § 190.3 (j), whether or not the defendant was an accomplice with a minor role in the crime, was omitted from consideration in this case.

27 ⁹¹ The fact of Weaver’s conviction of the Ventura crimes had not been presented to the jury, but 28 this statement likely informed the jurors that Weaver was convicted of more than the sexual assaults on Ms. DeLong, especially given the testimony of Mr. Galbraith, who testified he was shot twice in the back of the head and once in the face.

1 Budrow confirmed that when she bit Weaver on two separate occasions, he went into a trance and she 2 had to use violence to bring him back to consciousness.⁹² Also, the prosecution doctors during the 3 insanity phase testified that Weaver had an extreme personality problem and that this was relevant to 4 whether the offense was committed while Weaver was under the influence of an extreme mental or 5 emotional disturbance. She disagreed with Mr. Shumaker that a personality disorder could not be a 6 mental defect. Looking at the history, all of the doctors who looked at Weaver felt Weaver was a 7 danger to himself and others. Mrs. Huffman disagreed with Mr. Shumaker that Weaver received any 8 beneficial mental health assistance, as he received only six months of therapy while in prison for the 9 Humboldt offense and no follow up once he was released. Mrs. Huffman stressed there was no 10 question that Weaver committed the present crimes under the influence of an emotional disturbance.
11 She implored the jurors not to take lightly the fact that Weaver had an extreme personality disorder.
12 Her argument was that all of his life, Weaver was an emotionally disturbed person who lacked impulse 13 control. From his conception to the present “was the making of a mad man.” This fact was 14 substantiated by the testimony of Weaver’s sister.

15 Another potentially mitigating factor was Weaver’s susceptibility to influence by the “male” 16 voice he first encountered in Vietnam and which told him to do bad things. Although it wasn’t clear 17 that this voice represented the domination of “another person,” it was a factor to consider. Regarding 18 the factor (h) instruction, whether Weaver understood the criminality of his conduct and could conform 19 his conduct to the requirements of law, Mrs. Huffman reminded the jurors that during voir dire they 20 assured the court they would not prejudge the penalty, even if they found Weaver was not insane.

21 She stressed that the four prior acts of criminal activity combined to constitute one factor in 22 aggravation. With respect to Michelle DeLong, she pointed to the same fact as did Mr. Shumaker, that 23 is, the fact that Weaver let her go once he found out Mr. Galbraith had been shot and was alive. Mrs.
24 Huffman argued that if Weaver was as homicidal as Mr. Shumaker portrayed him, it is doubtful he

27 ⁹² Weaver confirmed his ex-wife’s testimony during his guilt phase testimony; he recalled 28 choking Patricia while they were play wrestling in a car and she bit him. He did not recall what stopped him. RT-15: 4015.

1 would have let the young lady go. Further Ms. DeLong testified that both before and after the rape 2 Weaver was very kind to her.

3 She pointed out that the jury instructions permitted the jurors to consider sympathy and pity for 4 Weaver, and indeed they assured the trial court during voir dire that they would consider these 5 qualities even if they found Weaver guilty of two murders. She asked them to make good on that 6 promise because Weaver started out life on the wrong foot, abused and feeling ugly, unloved, 7 unappreciated. He had a love-hate relationship with his mother – idealizing and fearing her all at once.
8 He enlisted in the Army to prove to his family he was worth something. After his service what little 9 impulse control he had remaining was wiped out. That is, all humanizing factors Weaver had before 10 going to Vietnam were taken away. She implored the jurors to look into their hearts to look for the 11 factors in mitigation and not be misguided by passion or prejudice against him.

12 5. Significant Jury Instructions

13 Unlike the instructions given previously, during this phase, jurors were informed they could 14 consider sympathy and pity (but still not be influenced by prejudice or passion against Weaver). Judge 15 Stone reiterated the four prior acts of criminal violence, defining assault with a deadly weapon, rape, 16 oral copulation, and battery.⁹³ The jurors were instructed, however, that the criminal acts of the person 17 who shot David Galbraith (that is, Jerry Daniels), could not be considered as a factor in aggravation of 18 the sentence.

19 6. Deliberations and Verdict

20 The case went to the jury following the afternoon recess on March 6, 1985 after both sides 21 delivered their respective summations and the instructions were read. Deliberations continued until 22 mid-afternoon on March 7, 1985. The jury had seven questions during deliberations. The first two 23 were submitted during the late afternoon on March 6. They first asked for clarification about a 24 confusing instruction concerning a rape charge. They also wanted all photographic exhibits admitted 25 during the guilt phase proceedings. Following the reading of the corrected instruction, the jurors were 26

27 ⁹³ The violent criminal acts which occurred in Ventura actually post-dated the present crime, 28 but pre-dated the trial.

1 excused for the evening recess at 4:50 p.m. with the understanding deliberations were re-commence at 2 9:30 a.m. the following day and the photographic exhibits would be waiting for them in the 3 deliberation room. The other questions were on March 7. At 10:30 the jurors asked for a read-back
4 of testimony Weaver's penalty phase testimony from the previous day and the testimony of his cousin
5 Russell Mathiasch given on January 15, 1985. At 11:45 a.m., the jurors had three more requests:
6 whether the AV of Weaver responding to the VESPI could be used as the basis for the jurors' decision;
7 a read back of Weaver's guilt phase testimony about first seeing Mr. Radford and Ms. Levoy; and a 8 replaying of the VESPI AV where Weaver described first seeing the young couple. As to the first 9 question, Judge Stone reiterated what he said previously, that is, the AV of Weaver could be 10 considered by the jury as the basis for the experts' opinions, not for the truth of anything stated on the 11 tape. With respect to the read back request, that would be accomplished after the lunch break. As to 12 the last request, Judge Stone told the jurors no one knew where the requested excerpt could be found 13 on the AV. The foreman then suggested that the jurors discuss that issue further. Following the lunch 14 break, the requested guilt phase testimony of Weaver was reread. After that the foreman informed the 15 court that no further reiterations of the trial were necessary for deliberations to continue.

16 At 2:15 p.m. the jurors were back in the courtroom with a death verdict. The jurors were polled 17 and Judge Stone made closing remarks, noting the jurors considered the penalty phase process 18 "carefully and fully." The proceedings were then adjourned at 2:25 p.m.

19 C. Motion to Set Aside the Death Sentence

20 Less than a month after the penalty verdict, on April 4, 1985, Mr. Huffman had returned to his 21 practice and argued Weaver's motion to set aside his death sentence under Penal Code § 190.4(c). He 22 urged the trial court to consider Weaver's schizophrenia and PTSD. Judge Stone first stated he was 23 satisfied the charged crimes had been committed and special circumstances were true. As to the 24 sentencing factors, Judge Stone found the circumstances of the crime, factor (a), Weaver's criminal 25 activity by use of force/ violence or threat of force/ violence, factor (b), and Weaver's prior Humboldt 26 County conviction, factor (c), to be factors in aggravation. He found Weaver's mental problems to be 27 mitigating under factor (d), but factor (e), the victims' participation in Weaver's conduct, factor (f), 28 whether Weaver believed his conduct to be morally justified or extenuated, and factor (i), Weaver's

1 age, to be inapplicable. While the court took into consideration the sanity phase testimony about 2 Weaver’s mental problems, those problems did not rise to the level of mental disease or defect under 3 factor (h). This factor was not considered at all in the court’s decision. With respect to other factors 4 extenuating the penalty, factor (k), Judge Stone had considered them all with the other factors. Finding 5 independently that the aggravating circumstances outweighed the mitigating circumstances, the 6 modification motion was denied.

7 IV. Standard of Review

8 In this case, there are three relevant standards: 1) the standard for reviewing state court 9 conclusions (28 U.S.C. § 2254(d)(1)); 2) the standard for reviewing state court factual determinations 10 (id. § 2254(d)(2)) ; and 3) the standard for granting further evidentiary development (id. § 2254(e)(2)).

11 A. The Standard for Reviewing State Court Conclusions

12 Since Weaver’s initial federal petition was filed after April 24, 1996, the effective date of the 13 Anti-terrorism and Effective Death Penalty Act (“AEDPA”), it is subject to the review provisions of 14 that act. Woodford v. Garceau, 538 U.S. 202, 207 (2003). Federal courts have authority to grant 15 habeas relief under 28 U.S.C. § 2254(d)(1) only where the state court decision was contrary to, or 16 involved an unreasonable application of, clearly established federal law as determined by the Supreme 17 Court of the United States. The concept of “clearly established federal law as determined by the 18 Supreme Court” is strict. In Harrington v. Richter, 131 S. Ct. 770 (2011), the Court noted “it is not an 19 unreasonable application of clearly established federal law “for a state court to decline to apply a 20 specific legal rule that has not been squarely established by this Court.” Id. at 786 (quoting Knowles v.
21 Mirayance, 556 U.S. 111, 122 (2009)). The Richter case also clarifies the standard of review for a 22 post-AEDPA petition arising from a California conviction where the California Supreme Court did not 23 provide a reasoned decision for its merits denial:

24 Under [28 U.S.C.] § 2254(d), a habeas court must determine what arguments or 25 theories supported or, as here, could have supported, the state court’s decision; and then 26 it must ask whether it is possible fairminded jurists could disagree that those arguments or theories are inconsistent with the holding in a prior decision of this Court.

27 562 U.S. at ___, 131 S. Ct. at 786. The Court emphasized, “It bears repeating that even a strong case 28 for relief does not mean the state court’s contrary conclusion was unreasonable.” Id. (citing Lockyer v.

1 Andrade, 538 U.S. 63, 75 (2003)). “[A] state prisoner must show that the state court’s ruling on the 2 claim being presented in federal court was so lacking in justification that there was an error well 3 understood and comprehended in existing law beyond any possibility for fairminded disagreement.”
4 Id. at 786-87.

5 B. The Standard for Reviewing State Court Factual Determinations

6 Where a petitioner challenges the state court’s findings based entirely on the state record (i.e., 7 an intrinsic review), the reviewing court must be particularly deferential and grant relief only if 8 “convinced that an appellate panel, applying the normal standards of appellate review, could not 9 reasonably conclude that the finding is supported by the record” and “any appellate court to whom the 10 defect is pointed would be unreasonable in holding that the state court’s fact-finding process was 11 adequate.” Taylor v. Maddox, 366 F.3d 992, 1000 (9th Cir. 2004); see also Miller-El v. Cokerell, 537 12 U.S. 322, 340 (2003) (“[A] decision adjudicated on the merits in a state court and based on a factual 13 determination will not be overturned on factual grounds unless objectively unreasonable in light of the 14 evidence presented in the state-court proceedings . . .”) Construing the “statutory language so as to 15 avoid contradiction or redundancy,” the Ninth Circuit has concluded that “unreasonable determination” 16 under (d)(2) may be based on a contention “that the [state court] finding is unsupported by sufficient 17 evidence, [citations], that the process employed by the state court is defective [citations], or that no 18 finding was made by the state court at all, [citations].” Taylor, 366 F.3d at 999.

19 Although the Supreme Court in Richter, 562 U.S. at ____, 131 S. Ct. 770, did not have occasion 20 to apply the “fairminded jurist” to an inquiry under (d)(2), the identity of the legal term of art, 21 “unreasonable” used in both (d)(2) and (d)(1) convinces the Court to apply that standard to the (d)(2) 22 analysis.

23 C. The Standard or Granting Further Evidentiary Development

24 When a petitioner presents one or more colorable claims that have survived all procedural 25 impediments and that, despite the petitioner’s diligence in state court, were not adequately developed 26 in state proceedings, further evidentiary development in federal court may be required, including an 27 evidentiary hearing, record expansion, and discovery.
28

1 1. Evidentiary Hearing

2 An evidentiary hearing is authorized under Rule 8 of the Rules Governing § 2254 Cases for the 3 development of a colorable claim when the state court has not reliably found the relevant facts and the 4 claim, if proved, would entitle the petitioner to relief. Schriro v. Landrigan, 550 U.S. 465, 474 (2007)
5 (“In deciding whether to grant an evidentiary hearing a federal court must consider whether such a 6 hearing could enable an applicant to prove the petition’s factual allegation, which if true, would entitle 7 the applicant to federal habeas relief.”). “Because the deferential standards prescribed by § 2254 8 control whether to grant habeas relief, a federal court must take into account those standards in 9 deciding whether an evidentiary hearing is appropriate.” Id.; Cullen v. Pinholster, 131 S. Ct. 1388, 10 1398 (2011). Under Pinholster, a federal court is without authority to consider evidence which was 11 not available to the state court when undertaking analysis under § 2254(d)(1) as to the reasonableness
12 of the state court decision. The rationale for this holding is, simply, that “review under § 2254(d)(1) 13 focuses on what a state knew and did.” 131 S. Ct. at 1399. Similarly, a federal court also may not 14 grant an evidentiary hearing without first determining whether a state court’s factual determination was 15 unreasonable under § 2254(d)(2). Earp v. Ornoski, 431 F.3d 1158, 1166-76 (9th Cir. 2005). This 16 determination may be informed by the six factors identified in Townsend v. Sain, 372 U.S. 293 (1963).
17 See Earp, 431 F.3d at 1167. Those factors are: 1) the merits of the factual dispute were not resolved in 18 the state hearing; 2) the state factual determination is not fairly supported by the record as a whole; 3) 19 the fact finding process employed by the state court was not adequate to afford a full and fair hearing; 20 4) there is a substantial allegation of newly discovered evidence; 5) the material facts were not 21 adequately developed at the state court hearing;⁹⁴ and 6) for any reason it appears that the state trier of 22 fact did not afford the habeas applicant a full and fair hearing. Townsend, 372 U.S. at 313.

23 Entitlement to an evidentiary hearing is limited further under 28 U.S.C. § 2254(e)(2). A federal 24 court may not hold a hearing unless it first determines that the petitioner exercised diligence in trying 25 to develop the factual basis of the claim in state court. Williams (Michael) v. Taylor, 529 U.S. 420, 435

27 ⁹⁴ This fact is informed by the diligence requirement under 28 U.S.C. § 2254(e)(2), discussed in 28 the text, infra.

1 (2000) (holding that subsection (e)(2) precludes an evidentiary hearing when the failure to develop the 2 factual basis of a claim is due to a “lack of diligence or some greater fault attributable to the prisoner or 3 the prisoner’s counsel”).

4 The question is not whether the facts could have been discovered but instead 5 whether the prisoner was diligent in his efforts. The purpose of the fault component of 6 “failed” is to ensure the prisoner undertakes his own diligent search for evidence.
7 Diligence for purposes of the opening clause depends upon whether the prisoner made a 8 reasonable attempt, in light of the information available at the time, to investigate and 9 pursue claims in state court; it does not depend, as the Commonwealth would have it, 10 upon whether those efforts could have been successful.

11 Id.

12 2. Record Expansion

13 The record expansion procedure under Rule 7 of the Rules Governing § 2254 Cases facilitates 14 the consideration of evidence developed through investigation and discovery. Under Rule 7(a), a court 15 may require authentication of the materials presented. Record expansion follows and works in tandem 16 with 28 U.S.C. §§ 2246 and 2247 to allow admissibility of proceedings and records conducted or filed 17 in state court, or developed on federal habeas corpus. If the petitioner seeks to expand the record to 18 introduce new evidence never presented in state court for the purpose of establishing the factual 19 predicate of a claim, he or she must satisfy § 2254(e)(2) and show that he or she exercised diligence in 20 state court to develop the factual basis of the claims for which evidence is offered in federal 21 proceedings. Holland v. Jackson, 542 U.S. 649, 653 (2004) (per curiam) (holding that § 2254(e)(2) 22 restrictions apply to evidence presented without an evidentiary hearing). The deference due state court 23 decisions under § 2254(d) also will be applied in the context of Weaver’s record expansion requests.
24 See Pinholster, 131 S. Ct. at 1398; Landrigan, 550 U.S. at 574.

25 3. Discovery

26 Leave of court for formal discovery under Rule 6 of the Rules Governing § 2254 Cases is 27 authorized upon a showing of good cause. Good cause, in turn, exists where specific allegations in the 28 petition convince the court that the petitioner may be entitled to relief if the evidence solicited were to be developed. Harris v. Nelson, 394 U.S. 286, 300 (1969); see also Bracy v. Gramley, 520 U.S. 899, 908-09 (1997) (holding that discovery is indicated where specific allegations give the court reason to believe that a petitioner may be able to demonstrate that he is entitled to relief); Jones v. Wood, 114

1 F.3d 1002, 1009 (9th Cir. 1997) (discovery is appropriate to permit the petitioner to establish 2 entitlement to relief). Because of the nature of habeas corpus, the expansive construction of relevance 3 in civil cases – to embrace all information “reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible 4 evidence,” as specified in Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 26(b)(1) – is not appropriate. See Harris, 5 394 U.S. at 297 (holding that broad-ranging inquiry is neither necessary nor appropriate in the context 6 of a habeas corpus proceeding). Moreover, habeas corpus is not a proceeding to learn facts. See, e.g., 7 Harris, 394 U.S. at 297 (“broad-ranging preliminary inquiry is neither necessary nor appropriate in the 8 context of a habeas corpus proceeding); Rich v. Calderon, 187 F.3d 1065, 1067 (9th Cir. 1999) (habeas 9 corpus “was never meant to be a fishing expedition for habeas petitioners to ‘explore their case in 10 search of its existence’”).

11 V. Resolution of Claim 1

12 In Claim 1, Weaver alleges entitlement to relief due to a complete deprivation of counsel 13 during two crucial phases of his trial. In presenting Claim 1, Weaver incorporates by reference, among 14 others, Claim 2.⁹⁵ Weaver alleges his representation by the Huffmans was completely ineffectual, and, 15 in fact, actively damaging to his case. Mr. Huffman, described by Weaver as lead defense counsel, is 16 alleged to have been severely incapacitated by unremitting alcoholism and PTSD (from his service in 17 Korea) from the time of his appointment on August 12, 1982, until the conclusion of jury trial 18 proceedings on March 7, 1985.⁹⁶ His last appearance before the jury was February 7, 1985 and his last 19 participation in court proceedings without the jury was February 8, 1985 before he was hospitalized at 20 the VA Hospital in Palo Alto for alcohol detoxification and treatment. As to second counsel, Mrs.
21 Huffman, Weaver argues she was not able to function as co-counsel or replacement counsel because of 22 personal lack of preparation, co-dependency in caring for her severely impaired husband, and resulting 23 exhaustion. Weaver additionally attributes to both Huffmans a conflict of interest due to severe

26 ⁹⁵ There is quite a bit of overlap between the two claims in terms of factual foundation, although the controlling law is distinct.

27 ⁹⁶ He returned to his representational responsibilities for the § 190.4(c) motion to set aside the 28 death sentence a month later.

1 financial distress, which befell them independently and collectively.⁹⁷ To mitigate their financial 2 distress, not only did Mrs. Huffman refuse opportunities to continue the case when Mr. Huffman was 3 hospitalized, but she and Mr. Huffman formulated a plan open a law school, using video tapes of the 4 examination of witnesses in Weaver’s trial for pedagogical purposes.⁹⁸

5 A. Controlling Legal Principles

6 Both parties agree on the controlling precedent, that is, United States v. Cronin, 466 U.S. 648
7 (1984). In that case the Court acknowledged that certain circumstances of constitutionally incompetent 8 representation of counsel are so egregiously prejudicial that ineffective of counsel will be presumed.
9 United States v. Swanson, 943 F.2d 1070, 1072 (9th. Circ. 1991), citing Cronin, 466 U.S. at 658. This 10 presumption eliminates the need for the petitioner to establish prejudice. Cronin identifies three 11 situations in which prejudice is to be presumed. The first is when the accused is denied counsel at a 12 critical stage of the trial. Id. at 659. The second is when counsel “entirely fails to subject the 13 prosecution’s case to meaningful adversarial testing.” Id.; see also Bell v. Cone, 535 U.S. 685, 697 14 (2002) (holding counsel’s failure must be complete, rather than evident in discreet, specific errors or 15 omissions during a part of the trial). Under the third situation, “although counsel is available to assist 16 the accused during trial, the likelihood that any lawyer, even a fully competent one, could provide 17 effective assistance is so small that the presumption of prejudice is appropriate without inquiry into the 18 actual conduct of the trial.” Cronin, 466 U.S. at 659 (citing Powell v. Alabama, 287 U.S. 45 (1932)).

19 B. Weaver’s Argument

20 Weaver maintains that the Huffmans’ “constellation of problems” must be considered 21 cumulatively (not parsed out separately, as the Warden would do). As to the standards of review, 22 Weaver claims neither Richter, 131 S. Ct. 770, nor Pinholster, 131 S. Ct. 1388, preclude relief under 23 Claim 1. Citing People v. Romero, 8 Cal. 4th 738, 737 (1994), and People v. Duvall, 9 Cal. 4th 464, 24

25 ⁹⁷ Attorney conflict of interest claims are governed by Cuyler v. Sullivan, 446 U.S. 335 (1980)
26 and Mickens v. Taylor, 535 U.S. 162 (2002). Weaver’s conflict of interest claim is the foundation of 27 Claim 2, and will be discussed in that context, infra.

28 ⁹⁸ The founding of the Huffman College of Law is more fully discussed in connection with Claim 2, infra.

1 474 (1995), he asserts that the state case claim equivalent to Claim 1 alleged facts sufficient for relief 2 and the opportunity for further factual development before the California Supreme Court. Thus the 3 state court's decision summarily denying relief (for failure to state a prima facie case) was 4 unreasonable under § 2254(d)(1), as construed by Richter. Referring to People v. Snow, 30 Cal. 4th 43 5 (2003), Weaver further argues the California Supreme Court previously misinterpreted Cronic by 6 addressing ineffective assistance of counsel under the standard in Strickland v. Washington, 466 U.S.
7 668 (1984) (that is, addressing prejudice). Weaver therefore suggests the California court misapplied 8 the Strickland standard as to his case as well. In his reply, he also argues that Cronic leaves open the 9 possibility that other circumstances of ineffectual representation (besides those mentioned in the case 10 itself) could qualify for a finding of per se ineffective assistance of counsel. He suggests the 11 Huffmans' deficient representation of Weaver is subject to such an application. Citing Wright v. Van 12 Patten, 552 U.S. 120 (2008), Weaver argues that the circumstances in his case were "likely to result in 13 such poor performance that an inquiry into [their] effects would not be worth the time." Id. at 125.
14 Mr. Huffman's and Mrs. Huffman's alleged ineffectiveness is reviewed separately.

15 1. Mr. Huffman

16 Weaver has substantiated that Mr. Huffman was hospitalized on six separate occasions during 17 his representation of Weaver for alcohol detoxification, including on February 15, 1985, during the 18 sanity phase and continuing throughout the penalty phase. Further, even when he was physically 19 present during part of the sanity proceedings, he did little to present the case. He is alleged to have 20 consumed alcohol in response to stress and he found Weaver's case extremely stressful, so much so 21 that, according to a declaration testimony submitted with the state habeas proceedings,⁹⁹ he admitted 22 he could no longer function.¹⁰⁰ Although he was a lawyer with many years of experience (though not 23

24 ⁹⁹ All evidence mentioned in this argument was presented to the California Supreme Court 25 with Weaver's First State Habeas Petition.

26 ¹⁰⁰ In the admitting notes for records of Mr. Huffman's stay at the Palo Alto VA on February 27 15, 1985, his history indicates "He had been involved in a very difficult criminal case. About 2 28 months ago[,] the pressures of the case became too much & he stopped practicing law." Exhibit 148 to First State Petition, Feb.15, 1985 Progress Notes. (The many, many pages in this exhibit are unnumbered.)

1 necessarily productive and certainly not successful), according to Weaver, he had never tried a capital 2 case. Nonetheless, early in the trial proceedings, he represented to the trial court that he did have 3 capital experience. RT-14: 3551.¹⁰¹ Weaver has presented a great deal of evidence to the support the 4 contention that Mr. Huffman's escalating drinking incapacitated him from functioning as an attorney.

5 Weaver also devotes considerable of effort to establishing the nature and extent of Mr.
6 Huffman's impairment through the years from his service in the United States Army during the Korean 7 War through his hospitalization on February 15, 1985. A great many documents as well as details
8 from people who knew Mr. Huffman, including former colleagues, his second wife, and Mrs. Huffman 9 (his third wife) are presented about his countless efforts to obtain treatment for his alcoholism at both 10 private and VA hospitals, automobile accidents, DUI citations, efforts to hide his drinking, and a 11 history of his many jobs from which he was discharged due to incessant drinking in Sacramento, Butte, 12 and Kern Counties. One of these prior jobs involved his employment with the Kern County Public 13 Defender's Office where he either failed to appear in court or appeared in an inebriated state. Weaver 14 provides two examples. The first was in August 1981, when Mr. Huffman represented a defendant 15 facing 10 felony counts. The defendant, William Anderson, sought and succeeded in having the Public 16 Defender's Office removed from his case because of Mr. Huffman's recurrent intoxication. Mr.
17 Anderson also wrote a letter to the Superior Court explaining his concerns for Mr. Huffman. In 18 another case, involving a murder case in March 1982, Mr. Huffman repeatedly appeared in court in an 19 intoxicated state. Ultimately, the Superior Court judge, the Honorable Robert Baca, declared a mistrial 20 because of Mr. Huffman's condition. Shortly thereafter, Mr. Huffman was discharged from the Public 21 Defender's Office –less than six months before his appointment in Weaver's case on August 19, 1982.
22 Weaver has presented evidence that Mr. Huffman's reputation for abusing alcohol was well-known in 23 the Kern County legal community by members of the bar and local investigators. On November 10, 24 1982, after his appointment in Weaver's case, Mr. Huffman accepted another appointment in a murder 25 case that was removed to Riverside County.

27 ¹⁰¹ This statement was made in the context of a hearing regarding Weaver's treatment in the 28 Kern County Jail as a high security risk inmate.

1 In his reply brief, Weaver argues that no reasonable trial judge would have appointed Mr.
2 Huffman to represent a defendant in a capital case given his instability and chronic alcoholism. He 3 points to the declaration of a mistrial called by Judge Baca in the March 1982 murder case while Mr.
4 Huffman was still employed at the Kern County Public Defender's Office. Even on his November 5 1983 honeymoon with his new wife and co-counsel, Mr. Huffman was hospitalized for alcohol related 6 illness on three different occasions in three different states. Upon the Huffmans' return to Kern
7 County, he was hospitalized again. Throughout pretrial and trial proceedings, Mrs. Huffman 8 misrepresented the reasons for her husband's many absences to Judge Stone, to Mr. Shumaker, and to 9 Weaver. The misrepresentations made during the sanity proceedings are recounted in Part III.A.1.j., 10 supra.

11 As for his own trial proceedings, Weaver is very critical of the fact that the Mr. Huffman 12 (through Judge Stone) represented to the jury he intended to call Weaver to the stand. The relevance 13 of this fact to Claim 1 is that Mr. Huffman did not and could not do so. Rather, he became disabled 14 from his alcohol consumption and dropped out of the proceedings altogether. As stated by Mrs.
15 Huffman in a post-conviction declaration, "Drinking brought him to the point where he couldn't go on 16 anymore. . . . Eventually he became unable to function in court at all, and I had to complete the sanity 17 and penalty trials in his place." Weaver also points out that the strategy Mr. Huffman chose, that is to 18 show Weaver was schizophrenic, was unfounded in his own mind. According to a letter Mr. Huffman 19 wrote to Dr. Kormos, Mr. Huffman didn't believe the jury would find schizophrenia, although he did 20 believe Weaver would be found "schizotypal psychotic, to some degree, and dangerous to himself as 21 well as to society." In spite of this belief, Mrs. Huffman described him in her declaration as "manic 22 over his expressed belief in a defense of schizophrenia defense layered over PTSD. He was obsessed 23 by it and could not be talked out of it." Exhibit 34 to First State Petition, ¶¶ 21, 28.

24 In the Huffmans' law office, Mrs. Huffman's son and daughter-in-law as well as a former 25 employee, who worked there, have provided evidence that Mr. Huffman's office was at times littered 26 with empty vodka bottles and he was having great difficulty staying focused to assist Mrs. Huffman in 27 preparing for trial. During the months of December 1984 and January 1985, Mr. Huffman's alcohol 28 intake is said to have increased from one-half pint to one and a half quarts per day. Ultimately, his

1 courtroom demeanor was affected by his drinking. Beginning on February 4, and continuing to 2 February 7, 1985, Weaver notes that Mr. Huffman’s behavior before the jury became increasingly 3 erratic. Declaration of former employee, Esperanza Anderson, Exhibit 23 to First State Petition, p. 3; 4 Declaration of Amanda Smith. Exhibit 24 to First State Petition, ¶¶ 4-8, 12-13; Declaration of Eric

6 Mrs. Huffman drove him to the VA Hospital in Palo Alto the following week, on Friday, 7 February 15, 1985. Once admitted, Weaver describes Mr. Huffman’s revelation that he, himself, 8 suffered PTSD from his Korean War experience. Although he researched PTSD as it applied to 9 Weaver, as Mrs. Huffman averred, he had not known treatment was available for this condition.
10 Weaver also points out that Mr. Huffman did not wish to reveal his current hospitalization, which 11 Weaver asserts is demonstrated by his ire at a staff member of the hospital who informed Mr. Huffman 12 that a defense investigator had called for him (Mr. Huffman) at the hospital.

13 This secrecy was not new. In his factual basis for Claim 2, Weaver notes that during the pre-14 trial period leading up to the guilt phase proceedings, the Huffmans requested numerous continuances 15 so Mr. Huffman could obtain treatment for his alcoholism, but never gave the true reason. For 16 example, when Mr. Huffman asked for a continuance of Weaver’s August 8, 1983 trial date, he 17 mentioned nothing about his own health issues, but rather focused on substantive defense work he had 18 yet to complete. Another trial continuance was presented on March 12, 1984, and again, Mr.
19 Huffman’s alcoholism issues were concealed, but details of the need to find a qualified psychiatrist for 20 a possible NGI plea were recounted. The record supports both the false excuses provided by the 21 Huffmans as cause for the requested continuances and that Mr. Huffman was hospitalized for his 22 alcohol related illness. After his February 15, 1985 hospitalization, Weaver contends that Mr. Huffman 23 continued to “interject” himself into the trial from his hospital bed at the Palo Alto VA medical center.
24 The only support for this claim, of which the Court is aware, is that a hospital staff member, mentioned 25 above, informed Mr. Huffman that a defense investigator was trying to reach him.

27 ¹⁰² The Court also observed these behaviors from reviewing the transcript and summarized 28 them in Part III.A.1.j., supra.

1 2. Mrs. Huffman

2 Weaver recites that Mrs. Huffman (then Ms. Mendez) was appointed to Weaver’s case as 3 second counsel on June 8, 1983 on the heels of a stormy marriage to Rafael Mendez.¹⁰³ Even before 4 the Huffmans married, while Mr. Huffman was in Riverside on his November 1982 appointment, Mrs.
5 Huffman (then Ms. Mendez) began making appearances on Mr. Huffman’s behalf in Weaver’s case.
6 Weaver alleges the fact that Mr. Huffman and Ms. Mendez were engaged to be married was not 7 disclosed, yet, three months from Ms. Mendez’s appointment, she and Mr. Huffman were married on 8 September 15, 1983. Ms. Mendez thereafter assumed her husband’s last name. As noted in 9 immediately preceding Part V.B.1., supra, Mrs. Huffman misrepresented the reasons for her husband’s 10 many absences in court as various illnesses, but never alcoholism. See also, Part III.A.1.j., supra.
11 Weaver alleges she and Mr. Huffman had conflicted loyalties between providing competent 12 representation to Weaver and protecting Mr. Huffman’s reputation as well as preserving both of their 13 financial interests.

14 These financial and reputation concerns are alleged to have been compelling motivators for 15 Mrs. Huffman’s decision to forge ahead with Weaver’s sanity trial, even in the absence of Mr.
16 Huffman, and notwithstanding the fact that she had not worked up the trial strategy with him and had 17 been left in the dark about the factual bases for Mr. Huffman’s strategy. Weaver provides some key 18 areas of substantiation. After Judge Stone represented to the jury that Mr. Huffman would examine 19 Weaver and then Mr. Huffman had to leave the proceedings before the examination could take place, 20 Mrs. Huffman also didn’t or couldn’t do so because she wasn’t prepared and was unaware of what Mr.
21 Huffman intended to elicit from Weaver. Part III.A.j, supra. According to her declaration testimony, 22 Mr. Huffman determined the trial strategy and undertook the trial preparation, including 23 communicating with various mental health experts, communications he did not share with his wife.
24 Exhibit 34 to First State Petition, ¶¶ 24-25. Mrs. Huffman also averred that Mr. Huffman never 25 divulged to her his reservations about the claim that Weaver suffered from schizophrenia. Id.: ¶¶18-26

27 ¹⁰³ State court records disclose that after the Mendezes separated, Mr. Mendez angrily entered 28 her office and shot her. During their marriage the couple also filed for bankruptcy.

1 19. Nor did he advise her of what background facts Weaver relayed to the defense experts had been 2 corroborated, including the unusually harsh treatment by his mother, his actual participation in combat
3 during his service in Vietnam, his use of amphetamines, the truth of his sister Katie Smith’s allegations
4 about the sadistic and sexual acts Weaver was said to have perpetrated against her, and Weaver’s prior 5 head injuries. Id.: ¶¶ 13-14, 24. As a result of her lack of participation in development of the defense
6 strategy or factual foundation for that strategy, Weaver argues Mrs. Huffman contributed no 7 independent legal perspective, reasoning, or judgment to the case when she assumed the role as his 8 sole attorney. This point is particularly stressed in Weaver’s reply brief. Though she was unprepared 9 to take over the sanity and penalty phases, she did so, declining the trial court’s offer of additional time 10 to get up to speed. Weaver describes her trial presentation as “simply parroting what Mr. Huffman – 11 who had no way of knowing what was unfolding in the courtroom – told her to do.”¹⁰⁴ In so doing, 12 and quoting Smith v. Robbins, 528 U.S. 259, 278 (2000), Weaver argues Mrs. Huffman violated his 13 “right to have an attorney, zealous for the indigent’s interest, evaluate his case” and continuously 14 exercise the skill and judgment necessary to represent a defendant facing the death penalty. He 15 reiterates this notion in his reply brief:

16 Despite the fact that Mr. Huffman had been responsible for designing, 17 investigating, and preparing – however inadequately – Mr. Weaver’s sanity and penalty 18 phase defenses, once overwhelmed by his alcoholism and alcoholism-related ailments, 19 Mr. Huffman absented himself completely from involvement in Mr. Weaver’s case, 20 leaving Mrs. Huffman to present evidence with which she had no familiarity and about 21 which she had no understanding.

20 Reply Brief at p. 2.

21 Aside from her lack of preparation and knowledge of the case, Mrs. Huffman additionally is 22 alleged not to have been qualified to handle a capital case. This contention is based on an assessment 23 by the Kern County Public Defender, with whom Mrs. Huffman took up employment in the year 24 following her representation of Weaver. Specifically, the Public Defender found her knowledge of the 26 ¹⁰⁴ Based on the argument recited in Claim 2 that Mr. Huffman’s multiple pre-trial alcohol-27 related hospitalizations prevented him from devoting the necessary time and energy to preparing a 28 defense, the fact that Mrs. Huffman had a defense “script” is noteworthy and fully supported by Mrs.

Huffman’s declaration. Exhibit 34 to First State Petition, ¶ 22.

1 law poor and her competence level only sufficient to handle misdemeanor cases, and certainly not 2 sufficient to handle a capital case. From this evidence and the fact that she was sued for malpractice, 3 see infra, Weaver argues Mrs. Huffman was incapable of providing constitutionally competent 4 representation in Weaver’s case. Accordingly, Weaver claims the fact that Mrs. Huffman remained 5 present during trial proceedings did not cure the deprivation of effective representation occasioned by 6 Mr. Huffman’s absence.

7 Weaver outlines the consequences of Mrs. Huffman’s lack of personal preparation in Weaver’s 8 case and capital experience in three respects. First, she presented evidence from her experts that 9 Weaver presented a future danger.¹⁰⁵ From Dr. Tolchin, she elicited that Weaver suffered from a 10 “passive aggressive personality with sadomasochistic features or depressive features or both” and that 11 Weaver’s potential for violence was “very severe.” Similarly, he claims she elicited from Mr. Rose 12 Weaver’s diagnosis of a “passive aggressive personality with schizoid features and sexual sadism” and 13 “an intense hostility toward women.” From Dr. Cholet, she elicited a reference to “the multiple 14 murders” Weaver discussed with Dr. Cholet, that he was sexually attracted to her, and that she would 15 be one of his victims if he were not in custody. Second, the three experts who testified about Weaver’s 16 mental state in connection with the Humboldt County crime testified Weaver did not suffer from a 17 mental disease or defect, conclusions which were antithetical to the goal of the sanity proceedings.
18 Similarly, the three experts who testified about his mental state at the time of the Ventura County 19 crimes all concluded Weaver was sane at the time those crimes were committed (three months after the 20 Radford/ Levoy murders). Third, she failed to challenge the testimony of Drs. Cutting, Criswell, and 21 Cholet, even when prompted by the trial judge and the prosecutor. Weaver claims the testimony about 22 his sanity from Drs. Cutting and Criswell should have been precluded because both were appointed by 23 the court prior to Weaver’s entry of the NGI plea. The only issue was his competence to be tried under 24 Penal Code § 1368. He claims Dr. Cholet’s testimony was subject to exclusion based on a point raised 25 by Mr. Shumaker directly before her testimony, that is the issue of Evidence Code § 1017.

26
27 ¹⁰⁵ This is apparently consistent with the trial strategy created by Mr. Huffman and certainly a 28 frequent description of Weaver’s conduct during the sanity proceedings. See Exhibit 34 to First State Petition, ¶ 20.

1 Separately, Weaver argues the resulting burden from Mr. Huffman’s drinking and essential 2 abandonment of the case on Mrs. Huffman became overwhelming. As Weaver’s trial drew closer and 3 the Huffmans worked in “crisis mode” at the last minute,¹⁰⁶ Mrs. Huffman had no time to develop her 4 own strategy and received “no assistance from Mr. Huffman.” Her failure to keep up with her work in 5 Weaver’s as well as other cases she handled began catching up with her; she was sued in early January 6 1985 for malpractice (that is, not responding to a motion to dismiss for failure to prosecute) in a 7 wrongful death civil suit.

8 After Mr. Huffman’s last day before the jury, February 7, 1985, and last day in court, February 9 8, 1985, Mrs. Huffman was not able to drive Mr. Huffman to the VA Hospital in Palo Alto until 10 Friday, February 15, 1985. In the meantime, she put in full days on February 11 and 13,¹⁰⁷ plus a half 11 day on February 14, 1985 eliciting testimony from the defense witnesses. All the while the 12 proceedings were being video-taped to preserve teaching materials for the Huffmans’ planned law 13 school. With all of these matters pending, and while handling the case alone, Mrs. Huffman became 14 exhausted by the time the penalty phase began on March 5, 1985. In his brief, Weaver notes that up to 15 this time, neither of the Huffmans had prepared for the penalty phase.¹⁰⁸

16 As Weaver points out, the prosecution of the penalty phase began on March 5, 1985 and 17 concluded the following day, March 6. The defense rested the same day, March 6, prior to the lunch 18 recess. Mrs. Huffman put on her only witness, Weaver, whose testimony took up only three pages of 19 transcript.¹⁰⁹ Weaver points out, however, that at the start of trial, Mr. Huffman represented to the 20 court that the defense penalty presentation would require three weeks and involve fifteen witnesses.
21 Weaver argues, in contrast, the actual penalty phase trial was marked by its paucity. In his reply, he 22 stresses that the foregoing circumstances surrounding Mr. Huffman’s absence and Mrs. Huffman’s 23

24 ¹⁰⁶ This description was given by both Mrs. Huffman’s son, Eric Smith, Exhibit 25 to First State Petition, ¶ 12, and his wife, Amanda Smith, Exhibit 24 to First State Petition, ¶ 16.

25 ¹⁰⁷ February 12, 1985 was an observed National Holiday.

26 ¹⁰⁸ No reference to evidentiary support for this statement is made.

27 ¹⁰⁹ Specifically, he testified about leaving the state when charges were pending against him for 28 the Humboldt charges of assault on Ms. Bonnie Brown.

1 ensuing distraction, exhaustion, and lack of preparation combined to render her so ineffectual as to be 2 constructively absent, so that Cronic and not Strickland governs.

3 C. The Warden's Argument

4 The Warden's affirmative defense to Claim 1 is that the claim runs afoul of the rule against 5 retroactivity under Teague v. Lane, 489 U.S. 288 (1989). He claims that to grant relief, the Court 6 would have to establish a new rule, namely, when a defendant expressly waives continued 7 representation by one of two attorneys, he nonetheless is entitled to relief because of deprivation of 8 counsel. The Warden separately argues that Mrs. Huffman did subject the prosecution of Weaver to 9 "meaningful adversarial testing." He also maintains that Mrs. Huffman was competent to conduct 10 Weaver's representation.

11 As for the application of 28 U.S.C. § 2254(d), the Warden contends the summary denial of the 12 state equivalent of Claim 1 by the California Supreme Court was reasonable. He asserts there is no 13 authority for the proposition that when a defendant is represented by one attorney, having waived the 14 presence of the other, the defendant can prevail under Cronic. This is especially the case, the Warden 15 argues, because the trial court offered Weaver an open ended continuance so Mrs. Huffman could 16 associate new counsel and spend more time getting up to speed in the case. Likewise, he notes, there is 17 no authority for the proposition that a defendant has a constitutional right to the presence of both 18 appointed attorneys.

19 The Warden asserts that the reason for Mr. Huffman's absence, that is his, "alleged 20 alcoholism," is totally irrelevant since Mrs. Huffman was always present.¹¹⁰ Moreover, he maintains, 21 alcoholism, in and of itself, doesn't permit a presumption of ineffective counsel, citing several out of 22 circuit cases, plus Bonin v. Calderon, 59 F.3d 816, 838 (9th Cir. 1985) (finding defense counsel's drug 23 usage did not constitute per se ineffectiveness).

24 Next the Warden addresses Weaver's argument that Mrs. Huffman also was totally ineffectual 25 for lacking basic capital defense skills, having been sued for malpractice, relying on trial preparation

26
27 ¹¹⁰ The Warden makes specific note that the California Supreme Court observed this fact, 28 citing 26 Cal. 4th at 950 (finding there was "no question defendant was represented by counsel, as Mrs.
Huffman represented defendant at all times").

1 materials worked up by Mr. Huffman, and undergoing severe personal problems. As to the first three 2 bases, the Warden cites numerous cases refuting Weaver's position. As to the last basis, the Warden 3 simply observes there is no Supreme Court authority to support such a claim.

4 D. Analysis

5 The lengthy review of the sanity and penalty phases supports three findings concerning Mr.
6 Huffman. First he was physically absent from trial proceedings after Friday, February 8, 1985.
7 Second his participation in the proceedings from the guilt phase examination of Weaver on December 8 17, 1984 through sanity proceedings on February 8, 1985 was minimal, at best. Third, his comments
9 and objections made on February 4, 6, and 7, 1985 indicate overt confusion. A fourth proffer Weaver 10 advanced, that Mr. Huffman was "interjecting" himself in the continued representation of Weaver from 11 the Palo Alto VA, is not established. The only support advanced is the attempt by a defense 12 investigator to reach him, a fact which provides no foundation for the proffered assertion.

13 Based on the same record review, Mrs. Huffman's representation generally was cogent, in spite 14 of her lack of personal preparation, co-dependence, financial concerns, and exhaustion. During the 15 defense case in chief, she questioned one mental health expert about schizophrenia in Weaver's family 16 (Dr. Raitt), three mental health experts who evaluated Weaver in connection to the Humboldt County 17 conviction (Drs. Gardner, Owre, and Tolchin), three mental state experts relative to the Ventura crimes 18 (Drs. Chappell and Donaldson, plus Mr. Rose), three doctors comprising a defense team hired defense 19 to evaluate Weaver for the sanity proceedings (Drs. Shonkwiler, Dietiker, and Lundgren), four PTSD 20 experts (Drs. Wittlin, Donahoe, Wilson, and Kormos), three lay witnesses (Weaver's sister, Ms. Smith, 21 and two friends, Messrs. Barnett and Mooreland), and two inmate witnesses (Messrs. Hogan and 22 Archuleta). She conducted cross examination of five mental health experts put on by the prosecution 23 (Drs. Cutting, Matychowiak, Burdick, Criswell, and Cholet), and an inmate witness (Mr. Sneed). She 24 also conducted the rebuttal case by examining two additional inmate witnesses (Messrs. Shannon and 25 Flores). Except for the opening argument on January 14, 1985 and the February 8, 1985 conference 26 outside the presence of the jury about admission of the VESPI AV, Mrs. Huffman conducted all 27 aspects of the sanity phase. It was a substantial, complex presentation of evidence and summation.
28 Weaver's complaint that Mrs. Huffman failed to bring independent legal perspective, reasoning, or

1 judgment to her role as second or sole counsel simply does not establish that she wasn't functioning as 2 counsel, even if her alleged superficial knowledge of the case fell below applicable standards 3 (including ABA standards) of professional competence.

4 Moreover, not all of the errors during the sanity proceedings Weaver attributes to her are 5 accurate or as damaging as portrayed. While Weaver is correct to say Dr. Tolchin found that Weaver 6 suffered from a "passive aggressive personality with sadomasochistic features or depressive features or 7 both," Dr. Tolchin also testified that this condition was in remission at the time he was treating 8 Weaver. Again, while Weaver is correct to say that on Mrs. Huffman's direct examination, Mr. Rose 9 offered a diagnosis of a "passive aggressive personality with schizoid features and sexual sadism," it is 10 incorrect to say that Mrs. Huffman also elicited the statement that Weaver had "an intensive hostility 11 toward women." That statement was read by Mr. Rose at the prompting of Mr. Shumaker on cross 12 examination. Finally, Weaver complains that Mrs. Huffman elicited damaging testimony from Dr.
13 Cholet. The first of these involved his sexual attraction to her accompanied by a "threat" he would 14 victimize her if not in custody. The second was a statement that Weaver discussed "multiple murders" 15 with her is ambiguous. The matter of Weaver's attraction to Dr. Cholet was consistent with his 16 statements to other examiners that he liked, and did, have sexual intercourse with attractive females he 17 encountered hitchhiking. Since the jury was aware that Weaver had been convicted of the Ventura 18 crimes and was serving a lengthy prison sentence with the California Department of Corrections, his 19 stated craving could not be taken as a bona fide threat, but rather wishful thinking (as many other of his 20 statements and boastings were found to have been by several of his evaluators). As for Dr. Cholet's 21 mention that Weaver discussed "multiple murders," the statement was both isolated and ambiguous.
22 The prosecution did not attempt to have Dr. Cholet elaborate on the statement and presented no 23 independent evidence there were other murders besides those of Mr. Radford and Ms. Levoy. And 24 because there had been no mention by the prosecution of other murders, this reference could easily 25 have indicated the murders of Mr. Radford and Ms. Levoy. Dr. Cholet testified that she used the 26 clarity of Weaver's description of the murders as the basis for rejecting the notion that Weaver suffered 27 from delusions.
28

1 As for the penalty phase, although the vast majority of Mrs. Huffman’s efforts during the 2 penalty phase were devoted to the cross examination of the victims of the Humboldt and Ventura
3 County cases, she did make her point about Weaver’s voluntary decision to return to Humboldt County
4 following the assault on Bonnie Brown and answered several points in response to the prosecution
5 summation. Weaver’s attempts to analogize his case to the circumstances in Swanson, 943 F.2d 1070, 6 cannot be sustained. In that case, the defense attorney told the jury during summation that the 7 evidence against his client was “overwhelming,” that he didn’t think the identification of his client as 8 the perpetrator came “to the level of raising a reasonable doubt,” and that he didn’t want to “insult” the 9 jurors’ “intelligence” by arguing otherwise. Id. at 1071. The Ninth Circuit found that the defense 10 attorney’s concession there was no reasonable doubt regarding the only factual issues in dispute 11 resulted in a breakdown in the adversarial system and compelled the application of “the Cronic 12 exception to the Strickland requirement” of showing prejudice. Id. at 1074. Contrary to Weaver’s 13 contentions, Mrs. Huffman did not elicit these kinds of damning concessions or opinions from her 14 experts.

15 While Mrs. Huffman’s representation was not without problems, it did not amount to a total 16 breakdown in the adversarial system of deprivation of counsel. Under these circumstances, Weaver 17 has not and cannot demonstrate that the summary denial of the state case equivalent of Claim 1 was 18 unreasonable under 28 U.S.C. § 2254(d)(1) or (2). Moreover, this Court declines Weaver’s invitation 19 to extend Cronic to the facts presented here, even taking them altogether. It is beyond the authority of 20 this Court to grant relief for a claim that doesn’t fall “squarely” within the purview of clearly 21 established Supreme Court law. See Richter, 562 U.S. at ___, 131 S. Ct. at 786; Mirayance, 556 U.S.
22 at 122. Finally, although Weaver argues that the California Supreme Court may have incorrectly 23 analyzed a Cronic claim in People v. Snow, 30 Cal. 4th 43, and accordingly may have done likewise in 24 his own case, the Snow case remains good law. The defendant’s petition in Snow for certiorari before 25 the United States Supreme Court in that case was denied. 540 U.S. 1076 (2003).

26 Separately, the Court points out that Mr. Huffman’s sanity phase strategy of showing that 27 Weaver suffered from schizophrenia was not a far-fetched idea even if he believed the jury would only 28 find Weaver to be “schizotypal psychotic” and “dangerous.” Besides the six defense experts who

1 found Weaver was suffering from paranoid or undifferentiated schizophrenia (that is, Drs. Shonkwiler, 2 Dietiker, Lundren, Wittlin, Wilson and Kormos),¹¹¹ Mr. Huffman garnered plenty of support for this 3 diagnosis among the other experts as well. Men’s Colony evaluator regarding the Humboldt crime, Dr.
4 Owre, testified from the witness stand that Weaver was, during trial proceedings, suffering from a 5 chronic undifferentiated schizophrenic condition. Ventura County sanity evaluator, Dr. Donaldson, 6 noted that Weaver demonstrated “a very schizoid adjustment” and that his lack of impulse control was 7 consistent with ASPD as well as with schizophrenia. Mr. Rose, the Chino Prison intake evaluator for 8 the Ventura crime, found passive-aggressive personality with schizoid features, and prosecution expert, 9 Dr. Cutting, found atypical psychosis and “schizoidal personality disorder.” In addition, Mrs. Huffman 10 was said to have believed that both Weaver and his mother suffered from schizophrenia and that 11 Weaver’s illness worsened during his service in Vietnam as a demolitions expert.¹¹²

12 In response to Weaver’s assertion that Mrs. Huffman was not qualified to represent capital 13 defendants, the Court notes that Mrs. Huffman (then, Ms. Mendez) represented capitally charged 14 defendant Constantino Carrera before the Kern County Superior Court from April 27, 1982 through 15 October 7, 1983, when Mr. Carrera’s motion to set aside the death sentence was denied. The Carrera 16 case has been before this Court and the Ninth Circuit on a petition for writ of habeas corpus. While the 17 Court did find prosecutorial misconduct, and granted relief on the death eligibility special 18 circumstance, the Court did not find ineffective assistance of counsel. See Carrera v. Warden, Case 19 No. 1:90-cv-478 doc. 287, filed March 13, 2008. The Ninth Circuit affirmed. Carrera v. Ayers, 699
20 F.3d 1104 (9th Cir. 2012).¹¹³

23 ¹¹¹ Dr. Lundgren diagnosed Weaver with undifferentiated schizophrenia, only. Dr. Shonkwiler 24 agreed with her diagnosis as well as Dr. Dietiker’s diagnosis of paranoid schizophrenia. All of the PTSD experts mentioned found paranoid schizophrenia.

25 ¹¹² This hearsay evidence comes from Mrs. Huffman’s son, and his wife. Exhibit 24 (Amanda 26 Smith) to First State Petition, ¶ 16; and Exhibit 25 (Eric Smith) to First State Petition, ¶ 14.

27 ¹¹³ This is not to say that Mrs. Huffman’s professional performance in the Carrera trial was 28 error free. It is to say, however, that Mrs. Huffman’s representation in that case was not prejudicially incompetent.

1 In his reply, Weaver urges that he has presented the Court with copious detailed facts
2 illustrating how the multiplicity of profoundly serious adverse life events confronting the Huffmans 3 converged during their representation of him. In spite of this showing, the Court has not found a 4 deprivation of counsel within the meaning of Cronic. As a consequence of this finding, Weaver will 5 have to demonstrate prejudice arising from the alleged myriad representational deficiencies under 6 Strickland, 466 U.S. 668. The Strickland test requiring prejudice applies where the error (or errors)
7 occurred during the attorney's (or attorneys') inept attempt to present a defense, or that the attorney 8 engaged in an unsuccessful tactical maneuver that was intended to assist the defendant in obtaining a 9 favorable ruling. Swanson, 943 F.3d at 1073. Proof of prejudice also is required where the 10 fundamental fairness of the proceedings has not been affected and the integrity of the legal process has 11 not been jeopardized. Id. In contrast, Cronic applies under "egregiously prejudicial" circumstances so 12 that prejudice must be presumed. None of the deficiencies noted in the Huffmans' representation, 13 individually or cumulatively, demonstrate such egregiously prejudicial circumstances.

14 Weaver's request for further evidentiary development of Claim 1, including discovery, record 15 expansion, and an evidentiary hearing, is denied. The Court specifically denies record expansion and 16 admission of evidence concerning Mr. Huffman's alcoholism and PTSD, including the following 17 exhibits to Weaver's brief: Exhibit A, Declaration of psychologist David Foy, Ph.D., Exhibit J, Mr.
18 Huffman's Military Personnel Records, and Exhibit K, medical records of Mr. Huffman at the Little 19 Rock VA Medical Center. The Court also denies record expansion of trial participant declarations 20 where the declarants averred they had no recollection of the trial and that their respective lack of 21 recollection cannot be refreshed, namely Exhibit F, declaration of psychiatrist Robert Gardner, and 22 Exhibit G, declaration of psychologist Rollin Rose. Next, the Court denies record expansion as to 23 Exhibit D, the proffered declaration of psychiatrist Byron Wittlin, M.D., explaining that he had no 24 forensic experience and was not able to connect his findings of Weaver's delusional, PTSD state to his 25 mental state at the time of the crimes. When one is looking for an expert in a particular field, as were 26 the Huffmans with respect to PTSD, forensic experience is not necessarily a requirement; nor does the 27 failure to find an expert in a particular field with forensic experience demonstrate deficient 28 performance of counsel. Finally, the Court denies record expansion as to all documents pertaining to 1 Mrs. Huffman’s qualifications as a lawyer or her legal and personal troubles with her former husband, 2 Rafael Mendez, that is Exhibits H, L, and M.

3 With respect to discovery, the Court finds all document requests addressed to the Kern County 4 District Attorney’s Office regarding Mr. Huffman’s or Mrs. Huffman’s performance are irrelevant to 5 Claim 1. Similarly, documents sought from the Kern County Superior Court, the State Bar of 6 California, the Kern County Public Defender’s Office, and the South Carolina VA Medical Center
7 regarding Mr. Huffman are irrelevant to Claim 1. From reading Weaver’s reply brief, the Court 8 discerns that documents sought from the Kern County Superior Court regarding knowledge about Mr.
9 Huffman’s legal competence within the Superior Court may be linked to what Weaver’s trial judge, 10 Judge Stone, knew or should have known about Mr. Huffman’s qualifications. That inquiry has 11 nothing to do with Claim 1 (or Claim 2). Documents requested from the California Department of 12 Justice and the Kern County Sheriff’s Department are inadequately supported. As explained in detail 13 in Part IV.C.3., supra, for specified discovery to be authorized, Weaver must make a showing of 14 entitlement to relief and may not utilize the discovery process to learn facts. While it is possible the 15 Court may consider authorizing discovery for some of the documents requested as to other claims in 16 the federal petition, those requests are denied as to Claim 1 and Claim 1 is denied on the merits.

17 VI. Resolution of Claim 2

18 Claim 2 replicates Claim 1 in alleging the Huffmans’ personal interests were “diametrically at 19 odds” with Weaver’s need for an effective and cogent representation because of: (1) their joint and 20 separate financial problems; (2) their plan to open the Huffman College of Law, a plan that included 21 using Weaver’s trial for free educational materials; (3) Mr. Huffman’s severe incapacitation from 22 chronic alcoholism; and (4) the resulting incapacitation of Mrs. Huffman.¹¹⁴ The one addition is that 23 allegations concerning the financial conflict and law school adversely impacted the guilt phase 24 proceedings as well as the sanity and penalty proceedings. Since Mr. Huffman’s escalating alcoholism 25

27 ¹¹⁴ Just as Claim 1 incorporates by reference Claim 2 (among other claims), Claim 2 28 incorporates Claim 1 (among others).

1 as well as Mrs. Huffman’s co-dependency and lack of capital case experience have been addressed in 2 Claim 1, those subjects will not be revisited with respect to Claim 2.

3 A. Controlling Legal Principles

4 Both parties agree that the Sixth Amendment right to counsel carries with it the correlative 5 right to be represented by conflict free counsel. Wood v. Georgia, 450 U.S. 261, 271 (1981). Both 6 parties also agree that an “actual conflict of interest” means “a conflict that affected counsel’s 7 performance – as opposed to a mere theoretical division of loyalties.” Mickens v. Taylor, 535 U.S.
8 162, 171, 172, n. 5 (2002) (emphasis added). Reiterating the holding in Cuyler v. Sullivan, 446 U.S.
9 335, 348-49 (1980), Mickens clarifies that absent an objection at trial, a defendant must demonstrate 10 that “a conflict of interest actually affected the adequacy of his representation.” 535 U.S. at 170.

11 Weaver cites two pre-Mickens Ninth Circuit cases that considered conflicts of interest beyond 12 the traditional representation of co-defendants with divergent interests. He cites United States v.
13 Baker, 256 F.3d 855 (9th Cir. 2001), for the proposition that if, during counsel’s representation, “there 14 was a basis for the interests of the attorney and the client to diverge with respect to any material issue 15 or course of action – that is, that counsel actively represented conflicting interests,” an actionable 16 conflict exists. Id. at 860 (citing United States v. Levy, 25 F.3d 146, 155 (2d Cir. 1994). Second, he 17 relies on United States v. Hearst, 638 F.2d 1190 (9th Cir. 1980) for the proposition that actual conflicts 18 may arise where the defense counsel’s judgment was affected by his own financial stake in the case.
19 Id. at 1193-94.

20 In Baker the appellate court considered whether a California defendant’s appellate attorney 21 labored under a conflict of interest because at the time the direct appeal was pending, he was under 22 investigation and eventually pleaded to two felony charges in the Southern District of New York. At 23 the time of oral argument for the defendant’s appeal, the appellate attorney was already serving time in 24 federal prison and he waived oral argument for the defendant’s appeal before the Ninth Circuit. 256 25 F.3d at 858-59. After the defendant’s conviction was affirmed, he moved to vacate it because of the 26 alleged conflict of interest. Id. at 859. The court ultimately rejected the defendant’s claim because he 27 did not show there was a basis for the interests of attorney and client to diverge with respect to any 28

1 material issue, that is, the defendant failed to show that counsel actively represented conflicting 2 interests. Id. at 860.¹¹⁵

3 Hearst was before the Ninth Circuit on appeal from a 28 U.S.C. § 2255 motion following 4 Patricia Hearst’s conviction at her federal criminal trial. The court considered whether her attorney, F.
5 Lee Bailey, labored under a conflict of interest in his strategic decisions because of a potential 6 financial gain from a book contract. 638 F.2d at 1193. The Ninth Circuit remanded the case for an 7 evidentiary hearing on three discrete claims: 1) that Bailey “failed to seek a continuance so public 8 interest would not cool and competing authors would not get the jump on him;” 2) that Bailey “failed 9 to seek a change of venue, because publicity would be maximized by a trial in San Francisco, a media 10 center and the home of the Hearst family;” and 3) that Bailey “put her [Ms. Hearst] on the witness 11 stand, so her story would go on the public record and he would not be constrained by the attorney-12 client confidentiality rules.” Id.

13 Due to intervening decisions, neither of these cases is applicable in the present matter. The 14 Hearst decision specifically was called into question by the Supreme Court in the Mickens opinion, 15 referring to it and other circuit decisions “which have applied Sullivan ‘unblinkingly’ to ‘all kinds of 16 alleged attorney ethical conflicts,” including “when representation of the defendant somehow 17 implicates counsel’s personal or financial interests, including a book deal.” 535 U.S. at 174 (emphasis 18 added). The High Court then followed up these examples with the statement that Sullivan did not 19 “clearly establish, or indeed even support, such expansive application.” Id. A more recent Ninth 20 Circuit opinion, Earp v. Ornoski, 431 F.3d 1158 (9th Cir. 2005), also discounts both Baker and Hearst
21 because they were decided before Mickens was issued. Id. at 1182.¹¹⁶

22 While the Mickens decision does not categorically rule out that an attorney’s financial interest 23 may cause his litigation strategy to diverge from the best interests of his or her client, the showing

26 ¹¹⁵ The court did refer to the attorney “deplorably unprofessional conduct in advising neither 27 his client nor the court of his own conviction and sentence. Id.

28 ¹¹⁶ The Earp court also noted that both Baker and Hearst were pre-AEDPA cases. Id.

1 must be even greater than what was presented to the Ninth Circuit in Hearst, where the appellate court 2 decision noted that Ms. Hearst’s allegations were “improbable” but not “incredible.” Id. at 1195.

3 B. Weaver’s Argument

4 Weaver has presented a sufficient evidentiary basis to establish that both Huffmans individually 5 brought a significant amount of debt into their marriage and that after they married, they incurred 6 additional debt, jointly. The gravamen of Weaver’s argument in Claim 2 is that the Huffmans’ joint 7 and individual financial distress left them completely dependent on income they received from 8 Weaver’s case. This dependency, in turn, is said to have caused them to make strategic decisions that 9 were adverse to Weaver’s interests. Weaver provides several examples

10 The first two examples pertain to the Huffmans’ need to keep Weaver’s trial going so they 11 would continue to receive income from the trial court: (1) when Dr. Owre stated his opinion from the 12 witness stand that Weaver was incompetent, and neither Mr. nor Mrs. Huffman declared a doubt about 13 Weaver’s competence to proceed; and (2) Mrs. Huffman decision to decline both a continuance and the 14 opportunity to associate in additional counsel to assist her when Mr. Huffman finally absented himself 15 from the sanity proceedings. The proffered explanation regarding Dr. Owre’s declaration is that had 16 competence proceedings commenced, the Huffmans’ income from the case would have been 17 interrupted. As for the offered continuance and appointment of second counsel, Weaver argues that 18 since the Huffmans needed all the money generated by Weaver’s case to keep afloat, they could ill-19 afford a continuance or to lose any portion of the income.

20 The next three examples are tied to the Huffmans’ plan to launch the opening of a law school¹¹⁷ 21 that would include an AV tape library to include tapes of Weaver’s sanity trial. Weaver alleges the 22 sanity phase presentation was staged in order to illustrate trial tactics, both poor and correct, and to 23 provide training on substantive issues, all at the expense of focusing on securing a favorable sanity 24 verdict. To build a “sizable videotape library,” the Huffmans realized the necessity of calling many 25 mental health experts, even experts who the Huffmans knew had rendered unfavorable opinions as to

26
27 ¹¹⁷ The name for the institution was Huffman College of Law, the Articles of Incorporation for 28 which were filed with the California Secretary of State on August 20, 1986. Exhibit 92 to First State Petition.

1 Weaver's sanity. Calling unfavorable witnesses to Weaver's sanity case is the first of the law school
2 examples. In this unfavorable witness category, Weaver mentions Ventura trial experts George 3 Chappell, M.D. and Theodore Donaldson, Ph.D. as well as Humboldt County prison psychotherapist 4 Dr. Tolchin who found Weaver to have a passive-aggressive personality with sadomasochistic or 5 depressive features or both, plus a "very severe" potential for violence. Moreover, both Drs. Chappell 6 and Donaldson wrote reports explaining their respective findings that Weaver was not legally insane at 7 the time of the Ventura crimes. Rollin Rose, the Chino Prison intake psychologist for the Ventura 8 conviction, similarly found Weaver to have a passive-aggressive personality with schizoid and sexual 9 features, plus an intense hostility toward women. Second, Weaver contends that the goal of amassing a 10 law school AV tape collection also dissuaded Mrs. Huffman from challenging the damaging 11 prosecution testimony of prosecution experts Drs. Criswell, Cutting, and Cholet. He points out that 12 Drs. Criswell and Cutting originally were appointed by the trial court to assess Weaver's competence 13 to be tried and Dr. Cholet could have been challenged on grounds suggested by the prosecutor and trial 14 court.¹¹⁸ The third example is the overly lengthy examination of defense experts and cross 15 examination of prosecution experts.

16 Weaver supports his allegations that the Huffmans viewed the sanity phase AV tapes to have 17 commercial value with a number of exhibits to the First State Petition. In Mrs. Huffman's declaration, 18 she avers: "David and I also videotaped the testimony given in court during the sanity phase of 19 Weaver's trial and gave the video tapes of the sanity phase to Weaver's appellate counsel." Exhibit 20 34, ¶ 17. Statements by Mrs. Huffman's former law office staff member and son also support the 21 notion the Huffmans intended to open a law school. Former employee Ms. Anderson stated simply, "I 22 knew that David and Donnalee had plans to open a law school. While I was working there I heard 23 them talking about it on several occasions." Exhibit 23, p. 4. Son, Eric Smith, averred that when he 24 and his wife (Amanda Smith) "stopped working for Donnalee and David their law school was still in 25

27 ¹¹⁸ Weaver is extremely vague in this reference. In the summary of the sanity proceedings, the 28 Court has reviewed the discussion amongst counsel and Judge Stone about various reasons Dr. Cholet might not testify. Those proceedings will be addressed in the analysis section, Part V.D., infra.

1 the planning stages. Early in 1985, they asked me to design a logo for it.” Exhibit 25, ¶ 19.¹¹⁹ On 2 August 6, 1987, Mr. Huffman wrote a letter to then-appellate counsel Richard Ross, objecting to Mr.
3 Ross’s request for the sanity phase AV tapes (when the transcript was available). Mr. Huffman noted 4 in his letter that he and Mrs. Huffman believed the sanity phase AV tapes could “be used for 5 commercial purposes.” This letter is on “Huffman College of Law, Inc.” letterhead. Exhibit 94.
6 Almost six and a half years later, on January 5, 1994, Mr. Huffman directed a letter to appellate 7 attorney Marvin Rous demanding the return of the sanity phase AV tapes¹²⁰ in exchange for the 8 personal delivery of nine cartons of other materials related to Weaver’s case. Mr. Huffman states in 9 his 1994 letter that he had been trying to secure the return of those AV tapes for over five years. This 10 letter was written on letterhead showing Mr. Huffman’s residence, which he described in the letter as 11 his home-office. Exhibit 95.¹²¹ In a letter from Mrs. Huffman to Mr. Rous dated only a little more 12 than a month later, on February 21, 1994, she explained that former appellate counsel, Mr. Ross, took 13 the sanity AV tapes in order to duplicate them, and then never returned them. Exhibit 101, p. 3.¹²²

14 Weaver’s offer of proof related to the Huffmans’ law school is an undated, unsigned document 15 identified as “Note to Habeas Counsel,” Exhibit I to Weaver’s brief, which reads, verbatim, as follows:

16 PLEASE RETURN THE VIDEO TAPES
17 THAT WE HAD MADE DURING THE INSANITY PORTION 18 OF THE CASE.
19 THESE WERE MADE FOR TEACHING PURPOSES

20 21 ¹¹⁹ The date or time frame of when Eric and Amanda Smith stopped working from the Huffmans is not given.

22 ¹²⁰ According to the California Supreme Court Dockets, appellate counsel Richard Ross was 23 appointed June 18, 1985 to represent Weaver. His appointment was terminated on October 11, 1990.
24 Following the interim appointment of the California Appellate Project on October 18, 1990, Mark Farbman and Marvin Rous were appointed as appellate counsel on May 25, 1993, until Weaver’s appeal was at an end and his conviction was final.

25 ¹²¹ This exhibit is replicated in Exhibit 138 to First State Petition.

26 ¹²² The notion that Mr. Ross took the AV tapes of the sanity trial is called into question by Mr.
27 Rous’s letter demanding the Huffmans’ files and rejecting the couple’s attempt to force appellate 28 counsel to return the AV tapes in order to obtain other parts of the trial file. Exhibit 136 to First State Petition, p. 1.

1 AND TO LEAVE TO OUR CHILDREN
2 AND GRANDCHILDREN 3 IF YOU WISH, WILL COME UP TO 4 SAN FRANCISCO TO GET THEM.

5 This is the only evidence mentioning that the sanity phase AV tapes were intended for “teaching 6 purposes.”

7 Weaver makes no offer of proof or argument about how the law school venture in any way
8 adversely affected the guilt or penalty proceedings. Rather, his argument is addressed to the sanity 9 phase. The deficient performance as to those phases of the trial would be the same those argued in 10 Claim 1, namely Mr. Huffman’s unabated alcoholism, Mrs. Huffman’s co-dependency with resulting 11 exhaustion, and severe financial stress on the part of both attorneys which impelled them to retain 12 Weaver’s case, even though they were individually and jointly unqualified.

13 C. The Warden’s Argument

14 The Warden’s primary argument is that the alleged bases for Weaver’s conflict of interest claim 15 are the Huffmans’ individual and joint indebtedness, their plan to use an AV recording of Weaver’s
16 sanity trial as a teaching tool at the law school they planned to open, and the heavy toll Mr. Huffman’s 17 alcoholism took on himself as well as on Mrs. Huffman. He claims this is not sufficient to show a 18 conflict that actually affected the Huffmans’ performance. Moreover, he cites Mickens for the 19 proposition that the Court’s earlier decision in Sullivan, 446 U.S. 335, does not support application of a 20 conflict of interest claim where the alleged conflict involves an attorney’s personal or financial 21 interests. 535 U.S. at 175. In light of this authority, the Warden argues, the California Supreme Court 22 was not unreasonable for summarily denying the state petition counter-part to Claim 2.

23 D. Analysis

24 As noted in the discussion of the controlling legal principles for Claim 2, Part VI.A., supra, the 25 Court disagrees with the Warden’s reading of Mickens as to whether a conflict of interest due to a 26 lawyer’s financial concerns can never be successful, or that the decision in Sullivan precludes such a 27 claim. In spite of this less constrained construction, Weaver has not demonstrated a nexus between the 28 Huffmans’ financial woes and the instances of deficient performance outlined in his argument.

1 He claims that the Huffmans failed to declare a doubt about Weaver's competence to proceed 2 with trial following Dr. Owre's revelation on the stand that Weaver was schizophrenic because they 3 didn't want a break in the proceedings and the concomitant interruption in income from the trial court.
4 This notion, however, is contradicted by Mrs. Huffman's declaration that she did not ask the court to 5 declare a doubt of Weaver's competence because she personally thought "he was trial competent."
6 Exhibit 34 to First State Petition, ¶ 30.

7 Next, Weaver claims Mrs. Huffman did not request a continuance or seek to associate counsel
8 after Mr. Huffman could no longer appear at the trial proceedings, again, so there would be no 9 interruption in the income and the income would not have to be shared. While this contention may be 10 a logical deduction, there is no support for it in the record and therefore it cannot be the basis for 11 further evidentiary development. Mickens requires a conflict that actually affected counsel's 12 performance, not one that most likely did so.

13 The Huffmans' plan to use AV tapes of the sanity phase for pedagogical purposes at their law 14 school also fails to demonstrate that the articulated conflict actually affected counsel's performance.
15 Even if the Huffmans believed the AV tapes had commercial value for teaching purposes, there is no 16 support that taping the sanity proceedings prompted the presentation of experts who would testify 17 unfavorably to Weaver, the failure to challenge prosecution experts, or the act of conducting overly 18 lengthy direct and cross examinations. The primary evidence proffered to the California Supreme 19 Court that the Huffmans believed the AV tapes had commercial value is Mr. Huffman's August 6, 20 1987 letter to Mr. Ross in Exhibit 94 to the First State Petition. In addition, neither the second-hand 21 statements of a former staff member nor Mrs. Huffman's son, who were aware of or heard that 22 Huffmans intended to open a law school, Exhibits 23 and 25 to the First State Petition, respectively, 23 support the conclusion that the sanity phase AV tapes would be used for commercial or teaching 24 purposes. The only proffered evidence about the alleged teaching purposes for the AV tapes is Exhibit 25 I to Weaver's brief, as recounted above. This note, however, is totally unauthenticated and the author 26 cannot be determined from the document. In short, Exhibit I is far too unreliable to admit following a 27 record expansion request.
28

1 But even accepting the truth of the statement, Exhibit I still does not connect the commercial 2 and teaching value of the AV tapes to the complained of deficiencies. While Weaver suggests that the 3 proposed law school AV tape library might contain good as well as poor examples of trial techniques, 4 there just isn't enough in the record to support the notion that the Huffmans purposefully provided 5 ineffectual and deficient representation for teaching purposes. Such a conclusion would defy logic.

6 Further, Weaver's argument regarding the second of the identified deficiencies, that is Mrs.
7 Huffman's failure to challenge prosecution experts Cutting, Criswell, and Cholet, is unsustainable 8 based on the record. As summarized in Part III.A.2.a., supra, Mrs. Huffman did bring to the trial 9 judge's attention that Drs. Cutting and Criswell were appointed to assess Weaver's competence to be 10 tried long before the NGI plea was entered and that their respective appointment referrals should have 11 referenced only Penal Code § 1368 rather than both §§ 1368 and 1026. Although she admitted during 12 the chambers conference, she should have objected prior to Dr. Cutting's testimony, she never did 13 request a limitation on his testimony or renew the issue prior to Dr. Criswell's testimony. Her 14 declaration suggests this omission may have been intentional: she stated she did not know why Mr.
15 Huffman checked both § 1368 and § 1026 on the reference forms for Drs. Cutting and Criswell.
16 Exhibit 34 to First State Petition, ¶ 29.¹²³ Weaver's suggestion that Mrs. Huffman failed to challenge 17 Dr. Cholet's testimony to enlarge the AV tape library at the law school is equally unavailing and 18 unsupported. When mentioning this omission, Weaver refers to grounds for challenging Dr. Cholet 19 suggested by both the trial court and the prosecutor. As noted in Part III.A.2.b., supra, all of the 20 potential grounds for challenging Dr. Cholet's testimony were raised by the prosecutor because he 21 wanted to ensure the testimony he sought to elicit would not be challenged. The grounds were 22 discussed and resolved by the trial court.

23 Claim 2 is denied on the merits. Accordingly there will be no further evidentiary development.
24 Weaver's requests for discovery, record expansion, specifically as to Exhibit I, and an evidentiary

26 ¹²³ The Court agrees there was no effort by Mrs. Huffman to limit the cumulative testimony of 27 four court-appointed psychiatrists concerning Weaver's sanity after she realized that Drs. Cutting and 28 Criswell originally were appointed to assess Weaver's competence to stand trial. His NGI plea was not entered until 1984, so the sanity evaluations conducted by Drs. Cutting and Criswell arguably were inappropriate.

1 hearing are denied. The Court further finds Weaver has failed to argue that either the guilt or the 2 penalty phase proceedings were in anyway affected by the Huffmans' plan to open a law school.

3 VII. Discussion of Other Claims

4 Two classes of claims comprise this section of this Memorandum Order. The first involves 5 specific instances of ineffective assistance of counsel and the second, juror misconduct. The instances 6 of ineffective assistance of counsel are by far the most numerous. The Court will provide the parties 7 the opportunity to respond.

8 A. Ineffective Assistance of Counsel

9 Briefly, to establish that trial counsel was constitutionally defective, the petitioner must 10 demonstrate (1) that counsel made errors so serious, counsel was not functioning as the counsel 11 guaranteed by the Sixth Amendment and (2) that the deficient performance prejudiced the defense.
12 Bonin v. Calderon, 59 F.3d 815, 833 (9th Cir. 1995) citing Strickland v. Washington, 466 U.S. 668, 13 687 (1984). The reviewing court need not address both prongs if the petitioner cannot satisfy one or 14 the other. Hein v. Sullivan, 601 F.3d 897, 918 (9th Cir. 2010); Strickland, 466 U.S. at 697.

15 An important fact in the present case is that Weaver testified during the guilt proceedings 16 describing the crime, his motivations, his thought patterns, his hallucinations, and his blacking out.
17 RT-15: 3906, RT-16: 4141, and RT-16: 4273-85. One concept he clarified was that he did not intend 18 to kill Mr. Radford when he hit the young man with the cheater pipe. He testified that if he had wanted 19 to kill Mr. Radford, he had a knife between his seat and the driver's door and would have slit Mr.
20 Radford's throat or stabbed him in the lungs, as he learned in combat training. RT-15: 3940-41. The 21 cheater pipe was in the back of the cab. It never crossed Weaver's mind to kill Mr. Radford when they 22 got out of the truck. He added, "If I would have wanted him to be dead, he would have been dead."
23 Id.: 3941-42.

24 Weaver's testimony constitutes part of the totality of the evidence in the case, and will be 25 considered in the context of any future prejudice evaluation to be made with respect to Weaver's 26 ineffective assistance of counsel claims. See Wiggins v. Smith, 539 U.S. 510, 534 (2003) (employing 27 the "totality of available mitigating evidence" in assessing the strength of proffered mitigating 28 evidence). While the Court is aware that Weaver alleges ineffective assistance of counsel during guilt

1 and sanity, as well as penalty phase proceedings, Mrs. Huffman’s elicitation of this testimony will not 2 be ignored.¹²⁴

3 1. Mental State Evaluators from the Humboldt and Ventura Crimes

4 As the Court’s analysis of Claims 1 and 2 suggests, Weaver has made a strong showing that his 5 representation by Mr. and Mrs. Huffman was deficient, even though, at this point, he must still 6 establish prejudice for that deficient performance. Probably the most remarkable omission in the 7 Huffmans’ representation was their failure to prepare the many experts they subpoenaed. The Court 8 finds it puzzling that Drs. Gardner, Owre, and Tolchin, regarding the Humboldt County crime, were 9 subpoenaed to testify but were not given any more recent reports regarding Weaver’s mental state in 10 the seven to eight years since they had evaluated him. This is particularly true for Dr. Gardner, whose 11 report and testimony was at least somewhat sympathetic to Weaver’s sanity case.¹²⁵ As noted above, 12 Part III.A.j.supra, the Huffmans additionally attempted to introduce a report regarding Weaver’s 13 suitability for parole for the Humboldt crime, but didn’t bother speaking to the subpoenaed witness, 14 Dr. Sanders, ahead of time, so they didn’t realize he was not the correct witness to authenticate the 15 document for admission. This is precisely the information Dr. Sanders offers in his declaration 16 proffered with Weaver’s request to expand the record. Exhibit E to Weaver’s brief, ¶¶ 3-4.

17 Similarly, with respect to the Ventura sanity examiners, Drs. Chappell and Donaldson, the 18 Huffmans failed to prepare them for their testimony. Both of their reports, like the reports of the 19 Humboldt County evaluators, were unfavorable to Weaver’s burden of establishing insanity, especially 20 since they were written the same year as the Radford/ Levoy murders. The reports of the Ventura 21 evaluators have been made part of the record, and the Court has reviewed them. Exhibits 58 (Dr.
22 Chappell) and 59 (Dr. Donaldson) to First State Petition. Both of the Ventura evaluators also have 23 provided declarations included in Weaver’s record expansion request in his present brief. Exhibits B 24

25 ¹²⁴ Weaver’s present reasoning is that the guilt phase testimony demonstrated a deliberated and 26 conscious choice which was antithetical to the sanity proceedings. No determination has been made as to whether this argument is persuasive.

27 ¹²⁵ Dr. Gardner’s report, Exhibit 110 to First State Petition, is discussed in Part III.A.1.d., 28 supra.

1 (for Dr. Donaldson, dated February 9, 2011) and C (for Dr. Chappell, dated February 11, 2011). In 2 those declarations, both experts generally relay that prior to their 1985 testimony, they received no 3 additional information from or engaged in any discussions with the Huffmans, were not afforded the 4 opportunity to re-examine Weaver, and had no idea why they were called to testify for the defense.
5 Dr. Donaldson expresses bewilderment at this situation: “Given that my testimony was to be based 6 solely on my 1981 Ventura County report finding Mr. Weaver sane and no other new information, I 7 would have been a better witness for the prosecution.” Exhibit B to Weaver’s brief, ¶ 5. Dr. Chappell 8 avers likewise. Exhibit C to Weaver’s brief, ¶4. Dr. Donaldson also mentions the very end of his 9 testimony to Mrs. Huffman redirect examination where he stated that if Weaver had “blacked out” 10 when he was strangling Ms. Levoy, he could have been dissociating and that could have been an 11 indication of insanity. In spite of this testimony, the Huffmans pursued no follow-up with Dr.
12 Donaldson or further investigation. Dr. Donaldson further avers that if he had been provided with 13 more information, such as was given him by Weaver’s habeas attorneys in paragraphs 11 through 19 of 14 the declaration, he could have made a more complete diagnosis of an “Axis I major mental illness” and 15 “would have had to re-evaluate Mr. Weaver with his more complete background information and 16 diagnoses, review his statements and testimony concerning these offenses, and determine whether this 17 would have affected his sanity at the time of the capital offenses.” In addition, he could have 18 “provided testimony for the defense that would have been relevant to a diminished capacity defense for 19 the guilt phase, and mitigating evidence for the penalty phase” Id., ¶¶ 24.¹²⁶ Dr. Chappell similarly 20 avers in his declaration that if he had been provided additional, available, background information, 21 listed in a three-page exhibit to his declaration, prior to Weaver’s trial he would have considered a guilt 22 phase defense of diminished capacity and mitigating evidence for the penalty phase. Exhibit C to 23 Weaver’s brief, ¶ 8.¹²⁷ Among the additional information provided Drs. Chappell and Donaldson is the 24 statement that at the Ventura County Jail in 1981, Weaver was given anti-psychotic medication,

25 26 ¹²⁶ The foundation for Dr. Donaldson’s opinion found in paragraphs 11 through 19 has not been established at the present time.

27 ¹²⁷ A three page exhibit to Dr. Chappell’s declaration contains the same information as 28 paragraphs 11 through 19 in Dr. Donaldson’s declaration.

1 specifically 600 mg of Mellaril, to relieve symptoms of schizophrenia and psychosis. This is a “fact”
2 that has not been established in the Court’s review of the record thus far. It is, however, significant 3 because it also was not established at the time of Weaver’s capital trial. As a result, the prosecutor was 4 able to cast significant doubt on the factual basis Weaver’s statements to his various mental health
5 evaluations that he was taking Mellaril, particularly since both Drs. Chappell and Donaldson doubted
6 Weaver’s account. Yet instead of obtaining the Ventura County Jail records to confirm Weaver’s 7 claim (if it could be confirmed), Mrs. Huffman criticized Dr. Chappell for not checking the medical 8 records himself.

9 Inasmuch as the record itself establishes that the Huffmans did nothing to prepare Drs.
10 Chappell and Donaldson for their testimony and their respective reports and testimony definitely were 11 adverse to Weaver’s goal of having the jury reach an insanity verdict, Weaver has shown that the 12 failure of the California Supreme Court to permit further evidentiary development of his ineffective 13 assistance of counsel claims was unreasonable within the meaning of 28 U.S.C. § 2254(d) and the 14 “fairminded jurist” standard of Richter, 131 S. Ct. 786. The same result obtains with respect to Dr.
15 Sanders for the Huffmans’ failure to ascertain the scope of his knowledge about Weaver’s parole 16 assessment. Further evidentiary development is warranted as to all the experts from the Humboldt 17 County and Ventura County trials. To be clear, the content of Exhibits B, C, and E expressly was not 18 relied upon in making the decision that the state court was unreasonable in failing to grant Weaver’s 19 request for further evidentiary development. Pinholster, 131 S.Ct. at 1398.

20 In reference to sanity phase ineffective assistance of counsel, Weaver’s offer of proof as to 21 Exhibits B, C, and E is granted, with the qualification that the bases for Dr. Donaldson’s present 22 opinion (found in paragraphs 11 through 19 of Exhibit B) and Dr. Chappell’s opinion (found in the 23 exhibit to Exhibit C) are not admitted for the truth of the matter stated, but rather, as the basis of the 24 doctors’ respective opinions. Fed.R.Evid. 703.

25 While this Court is inclined to accept the notion that Weaver has established the Huffmans’ 26 deficient performance, the Warden will be directed to provide his views on this issue as well. In 27 addition to deficient performance, Weaver bears a “heavy burden of establishing actual prejudice.”
28 (Terry) Williams v. Taylor, 529 U.S. 362, 394 (2000)). Although Williams involved a penalty phase

1 issue, the process for evaluating prejudice in the present case will be similar. That is, the Court will 2 consider the evidence adduced at trial against the totality of positive defense evidence developed 3 during state habeas proceedings. See id. (citing Wiggins v. Smith, 539 U.S. 510, 534, 536 (2003)).
4 Weaver must then demonstrate a reasonable probability of a different outcome (not guilty, no special 5 circumstances, insanity, and/or life without parole) absent his counsel’s errors. Id.; Strickland, 466 6 U.S. at 693-94. Only then will the Court consider proffered evidence in addition to the exhibits to his 7 brief for Claims 1 and 2.

8 2. Lack of Cohesive Presentation of the Defense Case

9 The scheduling of so many witnesses made the defense presentation of the sanity phase 10 disjointed and confusing. The testimony of one of the chief defense witnesses, Dr. Kathe Lundgren, is 11 a prime example. Dr. Lundgren’s testimony commenced on the late morning of Wednesday, February 12 6, 1985, until the lunch break. Due to scheduling issues, she was not recalled to the witness stand to 13 complete her testimony until the morning of Tuesday, February 19, 1985. In the interim, eight other 14 witnesses were called to the stand: 1) Weaver friend, Jesse Moreland; 2) Dr. Dietiker; 3) PTSD expert 15 Byron Wittlin, M.D.; 4) Huffman paralegal Roger Langerstrom;¹²⁸ 5) PTSD expert Clyde Donahoe, 16 Ph.D.; 6) co-inmate Carl Hogan; 7) co-inmate Richard Archuleta; 8) and PTSD expert John Wilson, 17 Ph.D.

18 In addition, Dr. Lundgren’s opinions and impressions were presented in a very desultory and 19 disjointed manner, with much of the explanatory testimony emerging during her cross examination.
20 The break of nearly two weeks and eight witnesses between the two sessions of her testimony
21 contributed to this disjointed presentation. On the first day of Dr. Lundgren’s testimony Mrs. Huffman 22 asked that she provide an “entire profile” on Weaver. The problem with this request was that the 23 background information for the profile was not provided to the jury until 13 days later during Mr.
24 Shumaker’s cross examination. Mrs. Huffman, herself, should have established that background 25 information as a preliminary matter. As a consequence Dr. Lundgren’s testimony about Weaver’s 26

27 ¹²⁸ Mr. Langerstrom’s testimony provided a foundation for admission of the AV of the VESI 28 and was discussed in connection with Dr. Wilson’s testimony (Part III.A.2.h.iii., supra) as well as Dr.
Kormos’ testimony. (Part III.A.2.h.iv., supra)

1 “profile” had no context. This profile was illustrated by reference to a slide of a graph shown to the 2 jurors that contrasted personality stability against the amount of stress each level of stability could 3 endure before symptoms would arise. One group comprised the personality disorder type. She 4 explained these people could not take much stress because they did not have internal controls to help
5 them differentiate their own needs from the effect that meeting their needs had on society. She used 6 the picking up female hitchhiker incidents to explain. When the women in his truck became nervous 7 about having accepted a ride with Weaver and became fidgety or needed to use a restroom, Weaver
8 mistook their gestures and body language as attempts to sexually excite him. Then when the women 9 rejected his sexual overtures, he felt “tortured” and angry. He misperceived their actions as being 10 directed specifically at him and for his benefit.

11 Further, and not insignificantly, during Mrs. Huffman’s direct examination, there was very little 12 emphasis on Dr. Lundgren’s qualifications, including the fact that she was the former Chief of the 13 Kern County Mental Health Department. In fact, this information was conveyed as an aside when she 14 mentioned the presence of her mentor, Dr. Guy Scott, her predecessor as Chief of Kern County Mental 15 Health, in assisting with Weaver’s evaluation. There also was no mention of her credentials during 16 Mrs. Huffman’s summation.

17 Although not as striking, Dr. Dietiker’s testimony, like Dr. Lundgren’s testimony, also was 18 interrupted. His direct examination commenced late in the day on Tuesday, February 5, 1985, was 19 continued to the afternoon of Wednesday, February 6, 1985, and completed just before the lunch recess
20 on Thursday, February 7, 1985. The interruption included the testimony of two of Weaver’s long-time 21 friends and colleague Dr. Lundgren.

22 Next is an illustration of an omission in Mrs. Huffman’s summation. By including both 23 paranoid and undifferentiated schizophrenia in his diagnosis, Dr. Shonkwiler accommodated the 24 conclusions of both Dr. Dietiker (paranoid schizophrenia) and Dr. Lundgren (chronic undifferentiated 25 schizophrenia). This concurrence regarding Weaver’s diagnoses, however, was not mentioned during 26 Mrs. Huffman’s summation.

1 3. Failure to Corroborate Foundational Facts

2 As the summary of the sanity phase proceedings and Mrs. Huffman’s declaration demonstrate, 3 the Huffmans failed to corroborate a number of facts with the result being that testimony Mrs.
4 Huffman elicited was unbelievable. The first example noted relates to the sanity phase testimony of 5 Weaver’s sister, Katie Smith, regarding Weaver’s alleged childhood sexually sadistic behavior. In his 6 state post-conviction proceedings, Weaver has cast doubt on the veracity of Ms. Smith’s claims. First, 7 Weaver’s mother, Mrs. Weaver, averred that prior to Ms. Smith’s death, she told her mother that all of 8 her testimony at Weaver’s sanity trial was untrue and that Mrs. Huffman had told her what to say.
9 Declaration of Dorothy Weaver, Exhibit 1 to First State Petition, ¶ 81. The only incident that Mrs.
10 Weaver substantiated was that Weaver had accidentally cut off his sister’s finger and that she (Ms.
11 Smith) blamed Weaver for this all her life. Id.: ¶ 30. According to her declaration, it was Mrs.
12 Weaver’s perception that her daughter was jealous of Weaver because Mrs. Weaver gave him a lot of 13 attention on account of his heart problems. Id.: ¶ 31. In Mrs. Huffman’s post-conviction declaration 14 on this subject, she avers that she had no corroboration for the aggressive sexual acts Ms. Smith 15 testified about and was unsure why Mr. Huffman wanted to present this extremely unpleasant 16 information except possibly to show that Weaver was a schizophrenic loner since childhood. Exhibit 17 34 to First State Petition, ¶¶ 13-14. Since both Ms. Smith and Mrs. Weaver have passed away, 18 however, it is unclear how Weaver will establish that Ms. Smith’s sanity phase testimony was false (if 19 it was false).

20 Another matter that has been called into question on federal habeas is how sickly a child 21 Weaver was, if at all, from a heart condition. In the declaration of Weaver’s first wife, Patricia Weaver 22 (Budrow), she states that Mrs. Weaver exaggerated Weaver’s “minor heart murmur” to a serious heart 23 condition. Exhibit 2 to First State Petition, ¶ 25. Weaver alleges his heart ailment was conjured up by 24 his mother to keep him close to her.

25 Another of the many failings of the defense case in chief during the sanity proceedings was 26 Mrs. Huffman’s failure to establish that Weaver was a loner (to be consistent with a schizophrenia 27 diagnosis). She attempted to elicit testimony from two of Weaver’s life-long friends, Del Roy Barnett 28 and Mr. Barnett’s half-brother, Jesse Moreland, for that very purpose. Neither of these witnesses, 1 however, provided the sought after information, a point Mr. Shumaker stressed during his summation.

2 She was, however, somewhat successful in eliciting that testimony from Weaver's sister, Ms. Smith, 3 but then failed to argue the import of that evidence in her summation. In light of Ms. Smith's passing, 4 Weaver will have to direct the Court's attention to other evidence establishing this fact.

5 A major "fact" Mr. and Mrs. Huffman failed to corroborate was that Weaver actually saw 6 sustained active combat duty in Vietnam. They went to the trouble of having him evaluated by four 7 mental health professionals to substantiate their theory that Weaver's insanity at the time of the crimes
8 was in part due to PTSD, but failed to substantiate that Weaver actually engaged in and was involved 9 in combat experiences during his tour of Vietnam, including the shockingly gruesome account of 10 prisoner being skinned alive presented during Dr. Wilson's testimony. See Part III.A.h.iii, supra.
11 Although the Huffmans had been given access to Weaver's military records and presented those 12 records to the retained experts, Mr. Shumaker, again and again, challenged the experts about how 13 certain they could have been that Weaver was exposed to significant combat. In Mrs. Huffman's 14 declaration, she averred that "there was a veteran living in Sacramento who entered and left the service 15 with Weaver and was available to testify to Weaver's experiences in Vietnam." Exhibit 34 to First 16 State Petition, ¶ 24.¹²⁹ Yet this unidentified witness was not called to testify. Mr. Shumaker suggested 17 that Weaver's first assignment, in a lumber yard, was like a civilian position because he was not 18 fighting. He also suggested that Weaver's military records could not actually substantiate his combat 19 participation because there were as many as 120 men in various of his units. While the examiners 20 reaffirmed their respective beliefs that Weaver had in fact seen combat based on his responses to 21 various tests and evaluations given, they couldn't be certain of the extent of his combat involvement.

22 Another issue which had absolutely no foundation during trial was Dr. Wilson's testimony that 23 Weaver may have been subjected to sexual abuse from his mother. However, Weaver's first wife, 24 Patricia Weaver (Budrow), noted in her declaration that Weaver slept with his mother (or at least in the 25 same room as his mother) while growing up. Exhibit 2 to First State Petition, ¶ 10. The Court also is

26
27 ¹²⁹ It's not clear when or from what source Mrs. Huffman obtained this information for her 28 declaration. Moreover the identity of this veteran is not clarified in Weaver's present moving papers.
It is unknown if he is still available to provide testimony (or has already provided a declaration).

1 aware Weaver alleges disturbing sexual depravity perpetrated by the mother, toward Weaver 2 specifically, and by the father (as well as the paternal grandfather) toward female family members.
3 None of this information was developed or presented despite the tip from Dr. Wilson.

4 A major basis for the conclusion of many experts that Weaver was abused was the “fact” that 5 his mother bit him, with some regularity, as a form of punishment. Along with the biting there 6 apparently also was slapping him, pulling his hair, and “blistering” him. The maternal biting was 7 mentioned by Drs. Shonkwiler, Wittlin, Wilson, and Kormos. Apparently Dr. Kormos is the first 8 examiner who noted this behavior in his report.¹³⁰ Dr. Kormos told Mr. Shumaker on cross 9 examination that he thought Weaver had told him about the maternal biting and also believed he had 10 seen a statement on which the mother and admitted to biting, but only mildly and to teach Weaver 11 when he was a child. When asked to produce the writing from which Dr. Kormos gained this 12 understanding, Mrs. Huffman explained that this information actually came from statements made by 13 Weaver’s first wife. No other evidence was offered at trial

14 Finally, although Mrs. Huffman was able to elicit that none of the four prosecution experts 15 ascertained whether Weaver was on medication at the times they (respectively) examined him, she did 16 not present any of her own evidence from Weaver’s jail records substantiating that Weaver had been 17 taking anti-psychotic medicine, which masked his psychotic symptoms, when he was interviewed by 18 the prosecution experts.

19 In order to establish prejudice for ineffective assistance of counsel, Weaver litigation team will 20 have to substantiate the aforementioned foundational facts. Weaver will be given this opportunity, as 21 set forth below.

22 4. Puzzling Strategies

23 Next, the Court finds the Huffmans’ decision to elicit Dr. Kormos’ critique of the prosecution 24 expert reports, before the prosecution case was presented, was of little help to the jury or Weaver’s 25 case. To make his testimony worthwhile, Mrs. Huffman should have called Dr. Kormos as a rebuttal 26 witness. His polite agreement and gentle criticism would have been much more effective in rebuttal.

27
28 ¹³⁰ Dr. Kormos’s report is not one of the reports that was made part of the state record.

1 In more detail, Dr. Kormos noted that Dr. Cutting found atypical psychosis as his Axis I diagnosis, 2 which means he found Weaver to be psychotic, but couldn't place Weaver in any particular category.
3 Dr. Cutting's Axis II diagnosis was schizoid personality, indicating he found the presence of 4 schizophrenic symptoms. Dr. Kormos reasoned that when Dr. Cutting examined Weaver, the closed 5 environment and administration of anti-psychotic drugs would have masked the schizophrenia. He felt 6 Dr. Cutting didn't go far enough. Dr. Kormos similarly felt that Dr. Matychowiak's diagnosis, that is, 7 personality disorder with paranoid and antisocial traits, was a superficial description and not a proper 8 Axis I diagnosis. Rather, Dr. Kormos explained that personality disorders were Axis II diagnoses. Dr.
9 Criswell's reported diagnoses were ASPD, sexual sadism, and adjustment disorder with a depressed
10 mood. Dr. Kormos opined that while all of these attributes were accurate descriptions of Weaver's 11 behavior, they did not reflect anything about the origin of the behavior or the actual mental picture. Dr.
12 Criswell also found Weaver's impulse control markedly defective and insight nil, findings with which 13 Dr. Kormos agreed. Dr. Kormos found not only that Weaver's impulse control was "very defective," 14 but that the impulses in need of control were "quite remarkably high." Finally, Dr. Kormos observed 15 that Dr. Burdick's diagnosis of Weaver was ASPD. This was not inconsistent with Dr. Kormos' own 16 findings, but like Dr. Cutting's evaluation, didn't go far enough.

17 Separately, with respect to the testimony of prosecution inmate witness Cecil Sneed, Mrs.
18 Huffman did nothing to ameliorate the content, import, or context of the threatening note from Weaver 19 Mr. Sneed described. If there was no argument to have been made, the fact that she called more 20 attention to it by cross examining Mr. Sneed is strategically questionable. Another issue Mrs. Huffman 21 overlooked concerned two inmate witnesses, Carl Hogan or Richard Archuleta. From the witnesses 22 who testified that Weaver's maternal aunt and cousin suffered from schizophrenia, Part III.A.1.a., she 23 encouraged the jury to conclude that Weaver was predisposed to having schizophrenia. She did not 24 mention in her summation either Carl Hogan or Richard Archuleta, as describing that Weaver talked to 25 himself at the jail.

26 The Huffmans' failure to refute Mr. Shumaker's consistent line of questioning to experts about 27 the fact that Weaver maintained steady employment also is an issue that has not escaped the Court's 28 attention. Barbara Weaver, Weaver's second wife, told investigating authorities on July 26, 1982 that

1 during her 10-year marriage to Weaver, he held numerous jobs. CT:1-99. She stated that Weaver 2 worked in a saw mill, in a plywood factory, as a landscaper, and as a truck driver. From April to 3 December 1979, he was employed by B & D Trucking Company in Oroville. In January 1981 (after 4 being released from prison for the Humboldt County assault) he was employed by John Bellagante 5 Trucking Company in Oroville as a long-haul trucker.

6 Dr. Criswell's report of his October 18, 1982 evaluation of Weaver, Exhibit 113 to First State 7 Petition, corroborates the notion that Weaver's employment was far from stable. Weaver told Dr.
8 Criswell he could not keep a truck driving job because he (Weaver) received too many tickets. It was 9 for this reason, Weaver reported, that his wife, Barbara, put him to work washing dishes at the 10 restaurant she managed.

11 The information clearly was available to Mr. and Mrs. Huffman. It would not have been 12 difficult to have requested Dr. Criswell to reiterate his report of Weaver unstable employment history 13 from the witness stand. The Court is unaware whether Barbara Weaver could have been called to 14 testify on this issue.

15 Another line of inquiry that appears to have had potential for substantiating Weaver's claim he 16 did not intend to kill Ms. Levoy is his past history of picking up and raping female hitchhikers (without 17 killing them).¹³¹ During her penalty summation, Mrs. Huffman argued that after the sexual assaults on 18 Ms. DeLong, he let her go. She further argued that if Weaver was as homicidal as Mr. Shumaker 19 portrayed him, it is doubtful he would have let the young lady go. Moreover, Ms. DeLong testified 20 that both before and after the rape Weaver was very kind to her. What Mrs. Huffman ignored, 21 however, was that Weaver reputedly picked up, raped, and let go many female hitchhikers during his 22 employment as a trucker. This notion has support from statements Weaver's second wife, Barbara 23 Weaver, made to police, noting that in 1976 Weaver was arrested for rape and carrying a concealed 24 weapon, but that the charges were dropped due to insufficient evidence. Dr. Criswell's report, Exhibit 25 113 to the First State Petition, p. 6, also mentions Weaver told him he had been arrested for rape and 26

27 ¹³¹ The Court is unaware as to whether a claim alleging ineffective assistance of counsel on 28 this ground is unexhausted. This information may be supplied by the Warden as indicated in Part VIII., infra.

1 kidnapping which occurred in 1975, but the charges were dropped because the victim disappeared.
2 Additionally Dr. Criswell's report mentioned that Weaver admitted to having raped an undisclosed 3 number of female hitchhikers, again, with no fatalities. During cross examination, Dr. Lundgren
4 similarly disclosed that Weaver had told her he picked up female hitchhikers while driving his truck
5 and then had forcible sex with them. There were no fatalities. Dr. Kormos also suggested that Weaver 6 had committed multiple rapes prior to the Radford/ Levoy crimes when he testified that Weaver did not 7 rape every attractive woman he encountered.

8 The last puzzling strategy noted is that Mrs. Huffman's 93 pages of summation and 18 pages of 9 rebuttal constituted 69% of the total argument, while Mr. Shumaker's 51 pages constituted 31%.
10 While the percentage devoted to her closing argument is not in any way outrageous, the tedium of her 11 detailed recitation of the expert testimony, coupled with the numerous mistakes she made in which 12 witness gave what testimony, rendered her summation less that efficacious. Whether she was or was 13 not following a "script" provided by Mr. Huffman, Mrs. Huffman had an independent duty to be 14 familiar with the facts elicited during the trial proceedings and formulate a persuasive summation. She 15 did not do so. Although this error may be considered at a later time in the context of cumulative 16 prejudice, it is far from clear that Weaver can show prejudice, even considering the multiple occasions 17 of deficient performance.

18 The Warden is directed to respond to each of the foregoing instances to ascertain his view as to 19 whether they do or do not constitute ineffective assistance of counsel, as directed in Part VIII, infra.

20 B. Juror Misconduct during Sanity Phase Deliberations

21 In Claim 18, Weaver alleges, among other things, that his jurors considered evidence presented 22 at the guilt phase proceedings during sanity phase deliberations, despite specific jury instructions not to 23 do so. He contends that the 42 minutes of deliberations for the sanity phase, after a six-week trial, 24 provides further support that the jurors prejudged the sanity issue based on evidence adduced during 25 guilt proceedings. Weaver adds that during those 42 minutes, the jurors also had to select a new jury 26 foreperson (as the previous foreperson during guilt proceedings was excused from further service).
27 Mrs. Huffman supported her written motion to set aside the sanity verdict with a declaration in which 28 she relayed statements made by four jurors she interviewed. She averred that the gist of their remarks

1 was that after the guilt phase, it would have been hard for any attorney to convince a jury of insanity.
2 Claim 18, ¶ 4.e. (quoting from the Clerk’s Transcript).

3 Weaver’s allegations are further supported by a declaration of Juror Michael Smith, who stated 4 that the jurors “talked about evidence that had been introduced during the guilt phase and used it along 5 with the psychiatrists’ testimony to determine whether or not he [Weaver] was sane.” He then 6 continued, “I concluded that these aspects of the guilt phase evidence along with the sanity phase 7 evidence were convincing enough to vote that Ward Weaver was not insane.” Claim 18, ¶ 7.e.
8 (quoting from Exhibit 18 to Second State Petition).

9 The Court is aware that the state equivalent of federal Claim 18 in Weaver’s Second State 10 Petition was procedurally defaulted by the California Supreme Court for untimeliness under In re
11 Robbins, 18 Cal. 4th, 770, 787 (1998). Since “cause and prejudice” can excuse a procedurally 12 defaulted claim, Smith v. Baldwin, 510 F.3d 1127, 1139 (9th Cir. 2007), quoting Coleman v.
13 Thompson, 510 U.S. 722, 750 (1991), and “prejudice” essentially requires a merits analysis, the Court 14 will proceed to the merits of Claim 18 prior to determining whether the state procedural default is 15 adequate and independent to bar relief in federal court. See id., quoting Coleman at 510 U.S. 732. The 16 Warden’s objection to this manner of case management is overruled in advance. A district court may 17 exercise discretion to proceed to the merits in advance of litigation of procedural default. Franklin v.
18 Johnson, 290 F.3d 1223 (9th Cir. 2002). The Warden may rest assured that no relief on Claim 18 will 19 be granted unless and until the Court finds that the state procedural bar was not adequate and 20 independent or that cause and prejudice are found.

21 On the merits, the Court directs the Warden to address whether Judge Stone’s directive for the 22 jury not to consider guilt phase evidence during sanity phase deliberations was required (or 23 discretionary) under California law.¹³² The brief should be addressed only to this narrow point in 24 Claim 18. Following the Court’s review of this response, further briefing may or may not be ordered 25 on this specific aspect of Claim 18, including providing Weaver the opportunity to file response to the 26

27 ¹³² Arguing that Claim 18 is procedurally defaulted, the Warden did not provide any merits 28 briefing.

1 Warden's brief. Once the Court reviews the Warden's brief on this narrow issue, the Court will 2 consider the fact that Weaver's testimony about not intending to kill either victim, not realizing he 3 killed Mr. Radford, blacking out when Ms. Levoy bit him, and having been bit by his mother as 4 punishment when he was youngster, was presented during the guilt phase. Along with this fact, the 5 Court also will consider Mrs. Huffman's declaration that she didn't know why Mr. Huffman wanted to 6 have the jury instructed not to consider guilt phase evidence at the sanity phase, since that was the 7 phase where Weaver discussed his hallucinations and being bitten as punishment by his mother 8 growing up. Exhibit 34 to First State Petition, ¶ 32.

9 VIII. Order

10 Claims 1 and 2 are not substantiated and denied on the merits. No further evidentiary 11 development of these claims is authorized. With respect to the various examples of deficient 12 performance by the Huffmans mentioned in Part VII.A.4., supra, the Warden is directed to file points 13 and authorities controverting the Court's impression of deficient performance. These points and 14 authorities shall be limited to the issue of deficient performance. The Warden also is directed to file 15 points and authorities consistent with the Court's discussion of Weaver's juror misconduct claim 16 discussed in Part VII.B., supra. These combined briefs shall be filed no later than six calendar weeks 17 from the filing of this Memorandum Order. As for the showing of factual foundation and prejudice 18 requested from Weaver, the Court directs Weaver's counsel to submit a status report regarding his 19 representation, in the event new counsel needs to be appointed, in order to complete the requested 20 briefing. That status report shall be filed within two calendar weeks from the filing of this order.
