20 On February 13, 2013, this Court entered an initial order in each of the above-captioned
21 cases, discharging the Order to Show Cause Why the Court Should Not Sanction Attorney 22 Sengthiene Bosavanh (California Bar No. 249801). The Court found multiple instances of 23 misconduct and ordered Ms. Bosavanh to incorporate various corrective measure into her 24 practice to ensure the truthfulness of allegations in her filings and to ensure compliance with 25 applicable rules and statues governing procedure and substance of Social Security disability 26 appeals. The Court was to review the status of Ms. Bosavanh’s pending cases three months after 27

1 the return date of the order to show cause (April 29, 2013), and again six months after the return
2 date of the order to show cause (July 29, 2013). If no further instances of mis-venue, failure of 3 service, or failure to obey a court order occurred through July 29, 2013, the order to show cause 4 was to be fully discharged.

5 The Court has reviewed the dockets of Plaintiff's active cases and finds no evidence of 6 any misconduct or misrepresentation following the return date of the Order to Show Cause.
7 Accordingly, the Order to Show Cause Against Attorney Sengthiene Bosavanh is hereby 8 DISCHARGED IN FULL. Ms. Bosavanh is nonetheless reminded that any future instance of 9 misconduct or misrepresentation in this Court shall be grounds for further disciplinary action.

10
11 IT IS SO ORDERED.
