ORDER GRANTING DEFENDANT’S MOTION TO DISMISS AND DENYING MOTION FOR RECUSAL

(Doc. Nos. 9, 12, and 17)

PROCEDURAL BACKGROUND

This is an action, presumed to be in diversity, by plaintiffs Ralph and Ruby Beltran (“Plaintiffs”) against PNC Bank, National Association¹ (“PNC Bank”) and Cal-Western Reconveyance Corporation (“Cal-Western”). Presently before the Court is a motion to dismiss Plaintiffs’ First Amended Complaint (“FAC”). See Court’s Docket, Doc. No. 17.

¹ According to PNC Bank, defendants are identified on the FAC erroneously. Defendant “PNC National Association” has identified itself as PNC Bank, National Association (erroneously sued as “PNC National Association”), as successor by merger to National City Bank (erroneously sued as “National City Bank of Indiana”), previously doing business as Accubanc Mortgage (erroneously sued as “Accubanc Mortgage Corporation”). The Court will presume the PNC Bank has identified itself correctly and refer to it herein as PNC Bank.

1 On February 27, 2012, Plaintiffs filed their original Complaint against PNC Bank. See 2 Court's Docket, Doc. No. 1. On March 8, 2012, Plaintiffs sought a temporary restraining order.
3 See Court's Docket, Doc. No. 3. The motion for TRO was denied. See Court's Docket, Doc. No.
4 4. In response, Plaintiffs filed a motion seeking to have the undersigned recuse himself from the 5 case. See Court's Docket, Doc. Nos. 9 and 12. On March 22, 2012, PNC Bank filed a motion to 6 dismiss. See Court's Docket, Doc. No. 5. This motion to dismiss was granted by this Court on 7 July 10, 2012, with a twenty-one day leave to amend. See Court's Docket, Doc. No. 15. Plaintiffs 8 filed their FAC on August 3, 2012. See Court's Docket, Doc. No. 16. On August 20, 2012, PNC 9 Bank filed this motion. Plaintiffs have filed no opposition.

10 11 LEGAL STANDARD

12 I. 12(b)(6)

13 A complaint must contain "a short and plain statement of the claim showing that the 14 pleader is entitled to relief." Fed. Rule Civ. Proc. 8(a)(2). Where the plaintiff fails to allege 15 "enough facts to state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face," the complaint may be 16 dismissed for failure to allege facts sufficient to state a claim upon which relief may be granted.
17 Bell Atlantic Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 570 (2007); see Fed.R.Civ.P. 12(b)(6). A 18 dismissal for failure to state a claim is brought under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure Rule 19 12(b)(6) and may be based on the lack of a cognizable legal theory or on the absence of sufficient 20 facts alleged under a cognizable legal theory. Johnson v. Riverside Healthcare Sys., LP, 534 F.3d 21 1116, 1121 (9th Cir. 2008); Navarro v. Block, 250 F.3d 729, 732 (9th Cir. 2001).

22 When the court reviews a complaint under Rule 12(b)(6), all of the complaint's material 23 allegations of fact are taken as true, and the facts are construed in the light most favorable to the 24 non-moving party. Marceau v. Blackfeet Hous. Auth., 540 F.3d 916, 919 (9th Cir. 2008); 25 Vignolo v. Miller, 120 F.3d 1075, 1077 (9th Cir. 1999). However, the court need not accept 26 conclusory allegations, allegations contradicted by exhibits attached to the complaint or matters

1 properly subject to judicial notice, unwarranted deductions of fact, or unreasonable inferences.
2 Daniels-Hall v. National Educ. Ass’n, 629 F.3d 992, 998 (9th Cir. 2010). Although they may 3 provide the framework of a complaint, legal conclusions are not accepted as true and 4 “[t]hreadbare recitals of elements of a cause of action, supported by mere conclusory statements, 5 do not suffice.” Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 129 S. Ct. 1937, 1949-50 (2009); see also Warren v. Fox 6 Family Worldwide, Inc., 328 F.3d 1136 (9th Cir. 2003).

7 8 II. Judicial Notice

9 Generally, the court considers only the complaint and attached documents in deciding a 10 motion to dismiss, but the court may also take judicial notice of matters of public record without 11 converting the motion into a motion for summary judgment. Lee v. City of Los Angeles, 250 12 F.3d 668, 689 (9th Cir. 2001). PNC Bank has requested judicial notice of several documents, 13 including the Grant Deed of the subject property; two Deeds of Trusts related to the subject 14 property; a Substitution of Trustee and Full Reconveyance; the Notice of Default; the Notice of 15 Trustee’s Sale; a printout from the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (“FDIC”) with a 16 timeline of the corporate history of National City Bank; and a printout from the FDIC website
17 with a timeline of the corporate history of PNC Bank, National Association. The website 18 printouts show the dates of all acquisitions, name changes, and mergers related to the respective 19 corporations. Such documents are properly the subject of judicial notice because the contents of 20 these documents contain facts that are not subject to reasonable dispute; as public records and 21 government websites, the facts therein “can be accurately and readily determined from sources 22 whose accuracy cannot reasonably be questioned.” Fed. R. Evid. 201(b); See Permito v. Wells 23 Fargo Bank, 2012 WL 1380322, *2 (N.D. Cal. Apr. 20, 2012). See also Vargas v. Wells Fargo 24 Bank, N.A., 2012 WL 2931220, *7 (N.D. Cal. July 18, 2012). The court will therefore take 25 notice of the undisputed facts contained in these documents. See Lee v. City of Los Angeles, 250 26 F.3d 668, 690 (9th Cir. 2001).

1 FACTS

2 The Court takes as true the facts set forth in the FAC and those facts that can reasonably 3 be inferred therefrom. The Court also considers facts contained in attachments to the FAC and 4 documents of which the Court has taken judicial notice and facts that can be reasonably inferred 5 therefrom each.

6 Plaintiffs purchased the subject property on April 21, 2004. See Court’s Docket, Doc. No.
7 16, ¶ 7. Plaintiffs took out a loan to purchase the property, the Promissory Note for which was 8 signed on November 17, with the Deed of Trust, signed on the same day, as a security. See 9 Court’s Docket, Doc. No. 16, 31. The lender was National City Mortgage Company dba 10 AccuBanc Mortgage, the trustee was National City Mortgage Co, and the Beneficiary was 11 AccuBanc Mortgage. See Court’s Docket, Doc. No. 16, ¶¶ 7, 8, 9; Court’s Docket, Doc. No. 19, 12 31. Plaintiffs received notice of PNC Bank’s involvement with the mortgage through a letter, 13 received on an unspecified date, that stated “your loan was recently transferred from AccuBank 14 [sic] Mortgage. Your first payment to PNC Bank is due 00/00/2007.” See Court’s Docket, Doc.
15 No. 16, ¶ 23. On November 23, 2011, defendant Cal-Western Reconveyance Corporation, as an 16 agent for PNC Bank, filed a Notice of Default against the subject property. See Court’s Docket, 17 Doc. No. 16, ¶ 14.

18 Presumably in January 2012,² Plaintiffs submitted to PNC Bank two “Qualified Written 19 Requests” (“QWR”) under the Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act (“RESPA”) requesting 20 various documents, suggesting they had heard that PNC Bank “may have been accused of 21 engaging in one or more predatory servicing or lending and servicing schemes.” See Court’s 22 Docket, Doc. No. 16, 8-30. PNC Bank objected to the QWRs because Plaintiffs did not “outline 23 a specific dispute or discrepancy [or] request investigation by the servicer or mortgagor.” See 24 Court’s Docket, Doc. No. 16, 7. However, PNC Bank did provide the following documents:

25
26
27

² The letter attached to the FAC is not dated, but PNC Bank, in its reply to the QWRs, also attached, referred to January as being the date that the letters were sent.

1 “Origination Note, Origination Mortgage, Good Faith Estimate, HUD1 Settlement Statement, the 2 Truth-In-Lending Disclosure, the Payment History and Payment History Transaction Codes, and 3 the October 2009 letter informing Plaintiffs of the transfer from National City Mortgage to PNC 4 Mortgage.” See Court’s Docket, Doc. No. 16, 7. None of these documents are before the Court 5 now.

6 It is not clear to the Court whether Plaintiffs contend that they were current on their 7 mortgage payments or if they concede that they were in default. From the QWRs, the Court can 8 infer that perhaps the Plaintiffs felt that their mortgage payments were miscalculated, but it 9 cannot be certain. See Court’s Docket, Doc. No. 16, 11.

10 On March 1, 2012, a Notice of Trustee’s Sale was recorded by Cal-Western 11 Reconveyance Corporation. See Court’s Docket, Doc. No. 19, Exhibit “F.” The Sale was 12 scheduled for March 21, 2012. See Court’s Docket, Doc. No. 19, Exhibit “F.” The Court is 13 unaware if the sale ever took place.

14 Plaintiffs allege two claims for relief. The first is an action to Quiet Title. The second is 15 an allegation of Fraud. Plaintiffs allege that PNC Bank cannot initiate nonjudicial foreclosure 16 proceedings or enforce the mortgage because they are, as the Plaintiffs put it, “an interloper with 17 no interest in the property.” Court’s Docket, Doc. No. 16, ¶ 17. Plaintiffs argue that because they 18 are not aware of any assignment of the note to PNC Bank or of any substitution filed and that 19 PNC Bank was not a party to the original transaction, PNC Bank cannot rightfully enforce the 20 note on the property or initiate foreclosure. See Court’s Docket, Doc. No. 16, ¶¶ 6, 15-16.

21 Plaintiffs also allege that by claiming to be the lender by merger, PNC Bank was fraudulently 22 inducing Plaintiffs to make payments to them. See Court’s Docket, Doc. No. 16, ¶ 23. Plaintiffs 23 argue that California Civil Code section 2924, identifying the proper entities who can initiate a 24 nonjudicial foreclosure, does not apply because PNC Bank is not the Lender, Trustee, Mortgagee, 25 or Beneficiary under the original Deed of Trust for the subject property. Court’s Docket, Doc.
26 No. 16, ¶ 27.

1 DISCUSSION

2 I. Recusal

3 Plaintiffs have made two filings entitled “Motion to Disqualify Judge Title 28, CCP 4 170.6” in which Plaintiffs state “Plaintiffs motion this Court to disqualify the Judge under Title 5 28, part 1, chapter 21 sub section 455 and CCP 170.6. Plaintiffs believe the assigned Judge is 6 biased and they will not get a fair and impartial hearing.” Docs. 9 and 12. Title 28 U.S.C. § 455 7 sets out the circumstances in which a federal judge should recuse himself/herself:

8 (a) Any justice, judge, or magistrate of the United States shall disqualify himself 9 in any proceeding in which his impartiality might reasonably be questioned.

10 (b) He shall also disqualify himself in the following circumstances:

11 (1) Where he has a personal bias or prejudice concerning a party, or 12 personal knowledge of disputed evidentiary facts concerning the 13 proceeding;

14 (2) Where in private practice he served as lawyer in the matter in 15 controversy, or a lawyer with whom he previously practiced law served 16 during such association as a lawyer concerning the matter, or the judge or 17 such lawyer has been a material witness concerning it;

18 (3) Where he has served in governmental employment and in such 19 capacity participated as counsel, adviser or material witness concerning the 20 proceeding or expressed an opinion concerning the merits of the particular 21 case in controversy;

22 (4) He knows that he, individually or as a fiduciary, or his spouse or minor 23 child residing in his household, has a financial interest in the subject 24 matter in controversy or in a party to the proceeding, or any other interest 25 that could be substantially affected by the outcome of the proceeding;

26 (5) He or his spouse, or a person within the third degree of relationship to 27 either of them, or the spouse of such a person:

28 (i) Is a party to the proceeding, or an officer, director, or trustee of a party;

(ii) Is acting as a lawyer in the proceeding;

(iii) Is known by the judge to have an interest that could be substantially affected by the outcome of the proceeding;

(iv) Is to the judge's knowledge likely to be a material witness in the proceeding.

(c) A judge should inform himself about his personal and fiduciary financial interests, and make a reasonable effort to inform himself about the personal financial interests of his spouse and minor children residing in his household.

Cal. Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 governs the standards of recusal for California judges. As this is federal court, Section 455 applies while Section 170.6 does not.

With respect to potential bases for recusal, Plaintiffs arguably make three assertions.

1 Most directly, Plaintiffs state they “are appalled at the injustice showed by Judge Ishii, which, 2 makes them wonder what’s in his portfolio, what financial institut[ions] he is invested with.”
3 Doc. 10, Response to Order Denying TRO, 2:17-20. The Defendants in this case are PNC Bank, 4 National City Bank, Accubanc Mortgage, and Cal-Western Reconveyance Corporation. The 5 undersigned states that he has no investments or any other kind of financial dealings with any of 6 these Defendants.

7 Second, “It seems that Chief U.S. District Judge Anthony W. Ishii has basically relied on 8 C.C.P.2924 et seq. in making his order to deny plaintiffs relief for a restraining order. Filed 9 within the United States Supreme Court in January of this year was a petition for Writ of 10 Certiorari challenging C.C.P. 2924 et seq. Riley v. America’s Wholesale Lender et al. This 11 C.C.P. actually violates homeowners from any of their Civil Rights in what has become a 12 meltdown within the banking industry.” Doc. 10, Response to Order Denying TRO, 1:22-2:4.
13 The court notes that the petition for writ of certiorari was denied; the U.S. Supreme Court has 14 declined to hear the appeal referred to. Riley v. America’s Wholesale Lender, 132 S. Ct. 1753 15 (2012). Third, “Only through production of documents can this Court determine the wrong that 16 has been done. It was very unfair of the Court to make a statement that the plaintiffs would not 17 prevail on the merits[;] the Court hasn’t heard the case.” Doc. 10, Response to Order Denying 18 TRO, 3:3-6. The court’s statement regarding the likelihood of success on the merits of the case 19 does not dispose of the case, but is a judgment on the evidence presented by Plaintiffs at that 20 point. As Plaintiffs were seeking preliminary injunctive relief, such a judgment had to be made 21 without benefit of all evidence that might be available at trial. In general, rulings by a court 22 during the course of a case are not sufficient to establish bias. Hasbrouck v. Texaco, Inc., 842 23 F.2d 1034, 1046 (9th Cir. 1987) (“Texaco supports its allegations of bias merely by pointing to 24 alleged errors at trial”).

25 There is no basis for recusal in this case.
26
27 28

1 II. Quiet Title Claim

2 In their FAC, Plaintiffs first seek to quiet title to the subject property against PNC Bank.
3 An action to quiet tile may be brought to establish title against adverse claims to real property or 4 any interest therein. Cal. Code Civ. Proc. § 760.020. California Code of Civil Procedure § 5 761.020 states that a claim to quiet title requires: (1) a verified complaint, (2) a description of the 6 property, (3) the title to which a determination is sought, (4) the adverse claims to the title against 7 which a determination is sought, (5) the date as of which the determination is sought, and (6) a 8 prayer for the determination of the title.

9 Plaintiffs appear to contend that because PNC Bank presumably did not rightfully become 10 holder of the deed of trust or promissory note, it has no right to initiate nonjudicial foreclosure 11 proceedings. PNC Bank, in its Motion to Dismiss, essentially relies on arguments that Plaintiffs 12 did not state an adverse claim of title to the property. The Court has reviewed the FAC and find 13 that Plaintiffs attempt to make two main allegations of an adverse claim of title to the property:
14 (1) that PNC Bank was not an original mortgagee, lender, or trustee and further, because no 15 substitution was filed, is not a current mortgagee, lender, or trustee (2) that PNC Bank is not the 16 holder of the promissory note. See Court’s Docket, Doc. No. 16, ¶¶ 15-18,19, 6. After reviewing 17 these allegations, the Court finds that Plaintiffs have failed to state a claim to quiet title for the 18 following reasons.

19 The first allegation is not sufficient to allege an adverse claim to the property because it is 20 simply not true according to facts before the Court. PNC Bank states that because of a series of 21 mergers and acquisitions, PNC Bank, under California Corporations Code section 1107 (“Section 22 1107”), automatically became the holder of the promissory note and acquired a beneficial interest 23 in the property under the Deed of Trust. Court’s Docket, Doc. No. 18, 4: 8-13. This destroys 24 Plaintiffs’ first allegation that there is adverse claim to title. Section 1107 applies to promissory 25 notes and trust deeds; these property interests automatically transfer at the time of merger. See

1 Hummen v. BA Mortg., 2004 WL 1240618, at *3 (Cal.App. 4th Dist., 2004).³ Therefore, under 2 Section 1107, National City Bank’s property interests in the promissory note and the Deed of 3 Trust automatically transferred to PNC Bank at the time of the corporate merger. Consequently, 4 PNC Bank has standing to direct the trustee to foreclose on Plaintiffs’ property. See Hummen v.
5 BA Mortg., 2004 WL 1240618, at *3 (Cal.App. 4 Dist., 2004).

6 If, on the other hand, what Plaintiffs suggest is that the merger between National City 7 Bank and PNC Bank did not occur, Plaintiffs’ position to survive this Motion is not necessarily 8 improved. The Court is convinced that the merger did occur. This Court and others have 9 recognized that PNC Bank is in fact the successor by merger to National City Bank. See 10 Manlangit v. National City Mortg., 2012 WL 1413985, *1 (E.D. Cal. April 23, 2012); Smith v.
11 National City Mortg., 2011 WL 1833009, *1 n. 2 (E.D. Cal. May 12, 2011); See also Agustin v.
12 PNC Financial Services Group, Inc., 707 F.Supp.2d 1080, 1087 (D. Hawai’i 2010). Furthermore, 13 the Court finds the corporation history timelines from the FDIC website (properly before the 14 Court by judicial notice) persuasive that PNC Bank is the successor by merger to National City 15 Bank. See Court’s Docket, Doc. No. 19, Exhibits “G” and “H.” The alleged facts that PNC Bank 16 was not a party to the original transaction and did not become holder of the promissory note are 17 not sufficient to allege adverse claim to the property.

18 Plaintiffs argue that a “Deed of Trust is not valid without a note.” Court’s Docket, Doc.
19 No. 16, ¶¶ 6, 19. The Court infers that Plaintiffs are suggesting that because PNC Bank is 20 allegedly not in physical possession of the promissory note, it is not the legal holder of such.
21 Physical possession of the note is, however, not required. “Under California law, there is no 22 requirement for the production of an original promissory note prior to initiation of a nonjudicial 23 foreclosure... Therefore, the absence of an original promissory note in a nonjudicial foreclosure

24
25 ³ The Court is not bound by state rules regarding unpublished cases, and may consider 26 unpublished cases as persuasive authority. Altman v. HO Sports Company, Inc., 821 F.Supp.2d 27 1178, 1190 n.14 (E.D. Cal. May 18, 2011); Employers Ins. Of Wausau v. Granite State Ins. Co., 220 F.3d 1214, 1220 n.8 (9th Cir. 2003); Grant v. Aurora Loan Servs., 736 F.Supp.2d 1257, 1272
n.53 (C.D. Cal. 2010).

1 does not render a foreclosure invalid.” Ruiz v. SunTrust Mortg., Inc., 2012 WL 3028001, *9 2 (E.D. Cal. July 24, 2012) (quoting Pantoja v. Countrywide Home Loans, Inc., 640 F. Supp.2d 3 1177, 1186 (N.D.Cal. 2009)). “Pursuant to section 2924(a)(1) of the California Civil Code, the 4 trustee of a Deed of Trust has the right to initiate the foreclosure process. Production of the 5 original note is not required to proceed with a non-judicial foreclosure.” Ruiz v. SunTrust 6 Mortg., Inc., 2012 WL 3028001, *9 (E.D.Cal, July 24, 2012) (quoting Hafiz v. Greenpoint 7 Mortg. Funding, Inc., 652 F. Supp.2d 1039, 1043); See also Harrington v. Home Calital Funding, 8 Inc., 2009 WL 514254, *4 (S.D. Cal. 2009).

9 Plaintiffs cite two cases to support their assertion that “a Deed of Trust is not valid 10 without a note.” See Court’s Docket, Doc. No. 16, ¶ 19. The rule from Domarad v. Fisher & 11 Burke, Inc. to which Plaintiffs seem to be referring is that an assignment of a deed of trust must 12 happen alongside an assignment of the promissory note which is secured by said deed of trust.
13 Domarad v. Fisher & Burke, Inc., 270 Cal.App.2d 543, 553-554 (1969). This does not apply here 14 because, as discussed above, this was not a situation where the debt and the deed of trust were 15 assigned. PNC Bank holds the note and the deed of trust securing it by way of corporate mergers 16 and acquisitions. The other case Plaintiffs cite, Briosos v. Wells Fargo Bank, does not seem to 17 address this issue. See Briosos v. Wells Fargo Bank, 737 F.Supp.2d 1018 (2010).

18 For the foregoing reasons, the Court concludes that Plaintiffs have failed to state a claim 19 to Quiet Title. Accordingly, Defendants’ motion to dismiss Plaintiffs’ quiet title claim is 20 GRANTED. Plaintiffs’ quiet title claim is DISMISSED without prejudice and with leave to 21 amend. An amended quiet title claim must (1) comply with federal pleading standards and (2) 22 state facts for adverse claim to title.

23

24 III. Fraud Claim

25 Plaintiffs also assert a cause of action against PNC Bank for fraud. In California, ““fraud 26 is an intentional tort, the elements of which are (1) misrepresentation; (2) knowledge of falsity; 27

1 (3) intent to defraud, i.e., to induce reliance; (4) justifiable reliance; and (5) resulting damage.
2 [Citation.] [Citation.]” Intrieri v. Superior Court, 117 Cal.App.4th 72, 85-86 (2004). Having 3 reviewed the FAC in its entirety, including attachments and documents of which the Court has 4 taken judicial notice, the Court finds Plaintiffs have not adequately stated a claim for fraud.

5 The threshold element of fraud is a misrepresentation. Plaintiffs allege that PNC Bank 6 sent Plaintiffs a letter which “falsely and fraudulently stated, ‘your loan was recently transferred 7 from AccuBank (sic) Mortgage. Your first payment to PNC Bank is due 00/00/07.’” Court’s 8 Docket, Doc. No. 16, ¶ 23. A misrepresentation, by definition, is a statement that must be false.
9 The statement alleged by Plaintiffs, as demonstrated above in the Court’s discussion of Plaintiffs’ 10 quiet title claim, is not a false statement. Therefore, Plaintiffs have not adequately plead that the 11 statement was a misrepresentation.

12 Plaintiffs also do not adequately plead damage. Plaintiffs claim that they “made mortgage 13 payments to the Defendant PNC Bank to their damage.” Court’s Docket, Doc. No. 16, ¶ 24. It 14 does not appear, however, to be disputed that Plaintiffs have a debt to repay. Plaintiffs suffered 15 no damage in making mortgage payments that they would have made irrespective of the 16 “fraudulent” statement.

17 There are, however, two possible theories under which the Plaintiffs could be operating in 18 order to demonstrate they have been damaged. One possible theory Plaintiffs may be suggesting 19 is that by making mortgage payments to PNC Bank, they were failing to send their payments to 20 another entity that should have been receiving the payments. If this is what Plaintiffs are arguing, 21 they have not adequately plead damage because there is no argument that the other entity is trying 22 to collect any missed payments from Plaintiffs.

23 The other possibility is that Plaintiffs could indirectly be arguing that the Plaintiffs’ 24 default status is the damage. Plaintiffs state that: “PNC Bank ... have [sic] maliciously published 25 statements to third parties that Plaintiffs are in default in paying the loan ... to the Defendants, 26 which statements are and were false and the Defendant PNC Bank knew or should have known

1 that the statements were false at the time they published the statements.” Court’s Docket, Doc.
2 No. 16, ¶ 26 (emphasis added). From this, the Court can infer that Plaintiffs do not believe they 3 are in default, but the Court cannot make an inferential leap so far as to presume that the default 4 status somehow happened as a result of the misrepresentation and the Plaintiffs’ reliance 5 thereupon.

6 In reviewing the FAC, the Court is unclear what theory upon which the Plaintiffs are 7 relying. In a second amended complaint, Plaintiffs would have to clearly state why they believe 8 making mortgage payments to PNC Bank was to their damage.

9 While Plaintiffs’ FAC fails because it does not adequately plead the misrepresentation or 10 damage elements of fraud, it also fails to meet the particularity requirements set forth by Federal 11 Rule of Civil Procedure 9(b). Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 9(b) requires that, in alleging 12 fraud, “a party must state with particularity the circumstances constituting fraud or mistake.” 13 Fed. Rule Civ. Proc. 9(b). “To comply with Rule 9(b), allegations of fraud must be ‘specific 14 enough to give defendants notice of the particular misconduct which is alleged to constitute the 15 fraud charged so they can defend against the charge and not just deny that they have done 16 anything wrong.’ [Citation.]” Bly-Magee v. California, 236 F.3d 1014, 1019 (9th Cir. 2001).
17 “Averments of fraud must be accompanied by ‘the who, what, when, where, and how’ of the 18 misconduct charged. [Citation.] ‘[A] plaintiff must set forth more than the neutral facts necessary 19 to identify the transaction. The plaintiff must set forth what is false or misleading about a 20 statement, and why it is false.’ [Citation.]” Vess v. Ciba-Geigy Corp. USA, 317 F.3d 1097, 1106 21 (9th Cir. 2003); see also Lazar v. Superior Court, 12 Cal.4th 631, 645 (1996).

22 The FAC alleges what the misrepresentation was, who made it (PNC Bank), where it was 23 made (by correspondence submitted through U.S. Mail), and how it was tendered. Plaintiffs, 24 however, failed to plead the “when” of the misconduct with particularity.

25 This Court has held consistently that in a fraud action against a corporation, a “plaintiff 26 must allege the names of the person who made the allegedly fraudulent misrepresentations, their

1 authority to speak, to whom they spoke, what they said or wrote, and when it was said or 2 written.” Macris v. Bank of America, N.A., 2012 WL 273120, *11-12 (E.D.Cal. 2012) (quoting 3 Tarmann v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co., 2 Cal.App.4th 153, 157, 2 Cal.Rptr.2d 861 (1991)).
4 However, the Ninth Circuit has relaxed the pleading rule “with respect to matters within the 5 opposing party’s knowledge,” since plaintiffs can not be expected to have personal knowledge of 6 the relevant facts.” Neubronner v. Milken, 6 F.3d 666, 672 (9th Cir. 1993) (citing Wool v.
7 Tandem Computers, Inc., 818 F.2d 1433, 1429 (9th Cir. 1987); Moore v. Kayport Package
8 Express, Inc., 885 F.2d 531, 540 (9th Cir. 1989). Though Plaintiffs do not plead the exact person 9 who wrote the letter, the letter was, presumably, a form letter sent to many borrowers, and the 10 exact name of the person who wrote letter would not be available to Plaintiffs. The facts that the 11 letter was addressed from PNC Bank and that the contents was the disclosure that Plaintiffs’ loan 12 had been transferred are particular enough so that PNC Bank could identify the letter in their 13 records and defend against the claim. Thus, the “who” particularity requirement is met here.

14 Plaintiffs do, however, face challenges meeting the “when” requirement. Looking only at 15 the allegations in the FAC itself, the Court can infer that the letter was dated sometime in or 16 before 2007 since the statement states that payment is due in 2007. See Court’s Docket, Doc. No.
17 16, ¶ 23. However, other documents before the Court call this inference into question. In a 18 document attached to the FAC, a letter from PNC denying Plaintiffs’ QWRs, PNC Bank refers to 19 a letter putting Plaintiffs on notice of the mortgage transfer – presumably the same letter to which 20 Plaintiffs refer – was dated October 2009. See Court’s Docket, Doc. No. 16, 7. Also, according to 21 the FDIC Histories, of which the Court has taken judicial notice, the merger between National 22 City Bank and PNC Bank took place on November 6, 2009. Furthermore, this fact is 23 corroborated by other courts that have dealt with issues related to this merger, where the merger 24 was found to have taken place in November 2009. See Agustin v. PNC Financial Services Group, 25 Inc., 707 F.Supp.2d 1080, 1087 (D. Hawai’i 2010). The actual letter is not in possession of the 26 Court. The “when” element of particularity is not met here. Plaintiffs would have to plead exactly 27

1 when they received the letter, as the date they did indirectly provide (the payment due date of 2 00/00/07) is contradicted by documents attached to the FAC and documents that are before the 3 Court in judicial notice. It should certainly be noted that if the letter was in fact received before 4 the merger took place, Plaintiffs may have a cause of action for fraud assuming Plaintiffs met the 5 damage element. However, as the claim is plead in the FAC, Plaintiffs fail to state a claim for 6 fraud that meets the “when” particularity requirement.

7 Plaintiffs do state one other allegation of fraud:

8 26. Defendant PNC Banc [sic] from November 23, 2011 to July 2012, have 9 maliciously published statements to third parties that Plaintiffs are in default in 10 paying the loan on 2064 Yosemite Park Rd. to the Defendants, which statements 11 are and were false and the Defendant PNC Bank knew or should have known that 12 the statements were false at the time they published the statements. The third 13 parties to whom false statements were maliciously published included, but were 14 not limited to, credit reporting agencies, which have reduced Plaintiffs credit 15 ratings as a result of the publication of the false statements, to Plaintiffs damage.
16 Court’s Docket, Doc. No. 16, ¶ 26.

17 Here, Plaintiffs do not plead how they justifiably relied on such statements, as the statements 18 were allegedly made to third parties. Therefore, this allegation does not meet the elements of 19 fraud. As PNC Bank points out, this allegation appears to be a claim for defamation. See Court’s 20 Docket, Doc. No. 18, 6 n. 4. In a second amended complaint, if Plaintiffs wanted to state a claim 21 for defamation, they would have to clearly allege facts that support such a claim per federal 22 pleading standards.

23 For the foregoing reasons, the Court concludes that Plaintiffs did not state a claim for 24 fraud, and accordingly PNC Bank’s Motion as to the Fraud claim should be GRANTED, and 25 Plaintiffs’ FAC should be DISMISSED without prejudice, with leave to amend. An amended 26 complaint would need to (1) satisfy the misrepresentation and damage elements of fraud and (2) 27 plead with particularity when the misrepresentation took place and why the Plaintiffs believe it to 28 be false.

1 IV. Cal-Western

2 There is no indication in the record that Defendant Cal-Western was ever served in this 3 case. The original complaint was filed on February 27, 2012. Fed. Rule Civ. Proc. 4(m) states 4 “If a defendant is not served within 120 days after the complaint is filed, the court - on motion or 5 on its own after notice to the plaintiff - must dismiss the action without prejudice against that 6 defendant or order that service be made within a specified time. But if the plaintiff shows good 7 cause for the failure, the court must extend the time for service for an appropriate period.”
8 Plaintiffs appear to be in violation of that deadline. Plaintiffs are pro se and are not familiar with 9 the rules of procedure. Therefore, they are granted a final chance to serve Cal-Western and bring 10 that party into the case.

11 CONCLUSION AND ORDER

12 Accordingly, IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that:

13 1. Plaintiffs’ motion for recusal is DENIED.

14 2. Defendant’s motion to dismiss is GRANTED. Plaintiffs’ First Amended Complaint is 15 hereby DISMISSED, without prejudice and with leave to amend. Plaintiffs may file an amended 16 complaint within twenty one (21) days of the filing of this order. In the event no further 17 amendment is filed within the stated time, this case will be closed. Plaintiffs are warned that this 18 is the second time the court has granted leave to amend dismissed claims. A continued failure to 19 make allegations sufficient to state a claim will likely lead the court to conclude that amendment 20 would be futile, leading to dismissal with prejudice of claims.

21 3. Within the twenty one day deadline, Plaintiffs must also file proof that Defendant Cal-22 Western has been served. If no such proof has been provided, Cal-Western will be dismissed 23 from the case without prejudice in accordance with Fed. Rule Civ. Proc. 4(m).

24 IT IS SO ORDERED.
