Court's discovery and scheduling order (ECF No. 33), by December 10, 2014. The order specifically provided, and the parties agreed, that no other written discovery would be conducted, except on order of the Court for good cause shown. Thus, neither the parties' agreement nor the Court's discovery and scheduling order permits Plaintiff to propound a request for production of documents or to file a motion to compel based on Defendants' failure to respond to such a request.

The discovery and scheduling order also provides specific procedures for attempting to resolve discovery disputes through a telephonic discovery dispute conference. Discovery has closed and the time for filing discovery motions in this action – including requests for a discovery dispute conference – has passed. Nonetheless, the Court will afford Plaintiff ten days from the date of this order to request a telephonic discovery dispute conference if he believes discovery required under the Court's order has not been provided to him.

Based on the foregoing, Plaintiff's motion to compel is HEREBY DENIED.

IT IS SO ORDERED.
