Plaintiff Byron Chapman ("Chapman") moves under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure ("Rule") 59(e) for reconsideration of the Court's January 7, 2011 Order ("January 7 Order"), which granted each Defendant's summary judgment motion on Chapman's pled federal claims and dismissed Chapman's state claims under 28 U.S.C. § 1367(c) (3).

Defendants Starbucks Corporation, dba Starbucks Coffee #574 ("Starbucks") and Sycamore Partners, LLC ("Sycamore") oppose the motion. Sycamore also includes in its opposition a request that Chapman be sanctioned under Rule 11 for filing his reconsideration motion if the Court determines sanctions are warranted. (Sycamore's Opp'n 4:3-5:24.)

* This matter is deemed suitable for decision without oral argument. E.D. Cal. R. 230(g).

1 However, Sycamore is not entitled to have its Rule 11 sanction request 2 considered since it failed to follow the procedures applicable to 3 seeking sanctions under the rule. Specifically, Sycamore's sanctions 4 request does not comply with Rule 11(c)(2) which prescribes: "A motion 5 for sanctions must be made separately from any other motion and must 6 describe the specific conduct that allegedly violates Rule 11(b))."
7 Therefore, Sycamore's sanctions request is denied.

8 I. DISCUSSION

9 Chapman argues his reconsideration motion should be granted 10 because "[t]his Court committed clear error in declining to consider 11 those [architectural] barriers Chapman identified in his motion for 12 summary judgment, which were not plead in his original Complaint;" by 13 relying "on defendant's expert report from Kim Blackseth;" and, by 14 "completely ignor[ing] portions of plaintiff's legal argument and 15 factual support regarding numerous barriers identified in its order." 16 (Pl.'s Mot. for Reconsideration ("Mot.") 3:5-25.) "Under Rule 59(e), it 17 is appropriate to alter or amend a judgment if (1) the district court is 18 presented with newly discovered evidence, (2) the district court 19 committed clear error or made an initial decision that was manifestly 20 unjust, or (3) there is an intervening change in controlling law."
21 United Nat'l Ins. Co. v. Spectrum Worldwide, Inc., 555 F.3d 772, 780 22 (9th Cir. 2009) (internal quotation marks omitted).

23 A. UN-PLEAD ARCHITECTURAL BARRIERS

24 Chapman argues since "sufficient notice of the subsequently 25 discovered barriers was given . . . to defendants, it would be proper 26 for the Court to consider all barriers . . . listed in the original 27 complaint and those subsequently discovered barriers identified in 28 plaintiff's expert witness report." (Mot. 5:3-8.) However, as stated in

1 the January 7 Order, Sycamore challenged Chapman's un-plead 2 architectural barriers arguing: "It is elementary that a plaintiff 3 cannot proceed on claims not included in his complaint." (Sycamore's 4 Opp' n to Pl.'s Mot. for Summ. J. 1:28.) Sycamore also argued since it 5 remedied the alleged barriers pled in Chapman's complaint, and Chapman 6 may only seek an injunction under the ADA, Chapman's ADA claims were 7 moot, and the Court should decline exercising supplemental jurisdiction 8 over Chapman's state claims. Id. 3:25-5:8. Sycamore cited the Ninth 9 Circuit decision in Pickern v. Pier 1 Imports (U.S.), Inc., 457 F.3d 10 963, 969 (9th Cir. 2006), as support for its argument that only 11 Chapman's complaint contains the claims at issue in the summary judgment 12 motions. The January 7 Order declined "to consider Chapman's barrier 13 claims which [were] not included in [Plaintiff's] complaint," stating:

14 Chapman has not sought leave to amend the provision in 15 the scheduling order filed January 14, 2010, which states 16 "[n]o further . . . amendments to [the] pleadings is 17 permitted" absent a showing of "good cause". Rather than 18 addressing the "good cause" standard, Chapman makes the 19 conclusory argument that he can proceed on barriers that 20 are not included in his complaint. . . . Here, all 21 scheduling deadlines in the scheduling order have past 22 except for the final pretrial conference scheduled for 23 February 14, 2011, and trial which is scheduled to 24 commence on May 17, 2011. Further, Chapman has not filed 25 and prevailed on a motion to amend the scheduling order, 26 so that he could seek leave to amend his complaint under 27 Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 15(a). See Johnson v.
28 Mammoth Recreations, Inc., 975 F.2d 604, 609 (9th Cir.
1992) ("Unlike Rule 15(a)'s liberal amendment policy which focuses on the bad faith of the party seeking to interpose an amendment and the prejudice to the opposing party, Rule 16(b)'s 'good cause' standard primarily considers the diligence of the party seeking the amendment. The district court may modify the pretrial schedule 'if it cannot reasonably be met despite the diligence of the party seeking the [modification].'").
Therefore, the Court declines to consider Chapman's barrier claims which are not included in his complaint.
See generally Eagle v. American Tel. and Tel. Co., 769 F.2d 541, 548 (9th Cir.1985) ("agree[ing] with the district court that the pretrial Status Conference Order precluded [plaintiff] from raising a new theory of relief at the summary judgment stage").

1 Chapman's reconsideration motion ignores this portion of the 2 January 7 Order, and Chapman fails to explain why he did not take action 3 enabling him to avoid the predicament he created by the manner in which 4 he chose to attempt amendment. His actions evince his disregard for 5 the "no further amendment" provision in the scheduling order, which 6 required a showing under Rule 16 that 'good cause' justified any 7 requested amendment. Because of this failure, Chapman was unable seek 8 amendment under Rule 15. Here, rather than seeking amendment of the 9 scheduling order, Chapman erroneously assumed he could disregard the 10 scheduling order and effect his sought after amendment merely by 11 including his un-plead architectural barrier allegations in his summary 12 judgment motion. However,

13 [a] scheduling order is not a frivolous piece of paper, 14 idly entered, which can be cavalierly disregarded by 15 counsel without peril. The district court's decision to 16 honor the terms of its binding scheduling order does not 17 simply exalt procedural technicalities over the merits of 18 [Chapman's] case. Disregard of the order would undermine 19 the court's ability to control its docket, disrupt the 20 agreed-upon course of the litigation, and reward the 21 indolent and the cavalier.

22 Johnson v. Mammoth Recreations, Inc., 975 F.2d 604, 610 (9th Cir. 1992) 23 (citations and internal quotation marks omitted).

24 Therefore, Chapman has not shown error in that portion of the 25 ruling which precluded him "from raising a new theory of relief at the 26 summary judgment stage" in the situation here where a scheduling order 27 governed amendment, Chapman failed to seek amendment of that order, and 28 a party objected to litigating un-plead architectural barriers. Eagle v.
American Tel. and Tel. Co., 769 F.2d 541, 548 (9th Cir. 1985) ("We agree with the district court that the pretrial Status Conference Order precluded Eagle from raising a new theory of relief at the summary judgment stage."); Pickern v. Pier 1 Imports (U.S.), Inc., 457 F.3d

1 963, 969 (9th Cir. 2006) (indicating that Plaintiff should have timely 2 sought amendment to make "new allegations . . . part of the . . .
3 complaint . . . by filing a timely motion to amend the complaint[,]" and 4 stating that Plaintiff "did not incorporate the 'preliminary site 5 report' into her complaint."); Navajo Nation v. U.S. Forest Serv., 535 6 F.3d 1058, 1080 (9th Cir. 2008) (rejecting Plaintiffs argument that even 7 though an un-pled allegation was not included in their complaint, it 8 "was adequately presented to the district court because the claim was 9 briefed at summary judgment by all parties and presented at oral 10 argument to the district court"); Wasco Products, Inc. v. Southwall 11 Technologies, Inc., 435 F.3d 989, 992 (9th Cir. 2006) (stating Plaintiff 12 may not rely on allegations "which appear for the first time in its 13 response to the summary judgment motion[;]" and, "[s]imply put, summary 14 judgment is not a procedural second chance to flesh out inadequate 15 pleadings."). Hence, Chapman has not shown reconsideration is required 16 on this ground.

17 B. EXPERT'S REPORT

18 Chapman also argues "the Court erred in relying on Blackseth's 19 opinion when ruling on the parties motions for summary judgment" since 20 "[n]o factual details were provided by Blackseth either in his report or 21 in the supporting affidavit shedding light as to the facts which 22 supported [his] opinions." (Mot. 7:16-20.) Starbucks counters that "this 23 court has already analyzed this argument and ruled against Plaintiff[.]" 24 (Starbucks' Opp'n 3:1-2.) Chapman's objections to Blackseth's reports 25 were overruled in the January 7 Order. (Order Jan. 7, 2011, 9:13.) 26 Chapman has not shown this decision was clearly erroneous, and he 27 disregards the principle that a motion for reconsideration "may not be 28 used to relitigate old matters[.]" Exxon Shipping Co. v. Baker, 554 U.S.

1 471, 485 n.5 (2008). Therefore, this portion of Chapman's 2 reconsideration motion is denied.

3 C. CHAPMAN'S PLEADINGS

4 Chapman also argues "the Court entirely overlooked sections of 5 plaintiff's pleadings that discussed the barriers specifically 6 identified in the Courts order including: (1) door handles; (2) 7 accessible seating; (3) the toilet tissue dispenser; (4) the toilet; and 8 (5) the pipes beneath the lavatory." (Mot. 8:3-6.) Chapman states in his 9 reconsideration motion that he "refers to and incorporates those 10 specific arguments herein by reference, rather than pinpoint the exact 11 location of the numerous arguments." Id. 8:8-11.

12 It is unclear to what Chapman references by the word 13 "pleadings." Pleadings are "[t]he formal allegations by the parties to 14 a lawsuit of their respective claims and defenses, with the intended 15 purpose being to provide notice of what is to be expected at trial." 16 BLACK'S LAW DICTIONARY 1152 (6th ed. 1990). However, "[t]o defeat a summary 17 judgment motion, . . . the non-moving party may not rest upon the mere 18 allegations or denials in the pleadings[;] . . . bare allegations 19 without evidentiary support are insufficient to survive summary 20 judgment." Estate of Tucker ex rel. Tucker v. Interscope Records, Inc., 21 515 F.3d 1019, 1033, n.14 (9th Cir. 2008) (citation and internal 22 quotation marks omitted). Further, as stated in the January 7 Order, 23 "mere argument does not establish a genuine issue of material fact to 24 defeat summary judgment." MAI Sys. Corp. v. Peak Computer, Inc., 991 25 F.2d 511, 518 (9th Cir. 1993). The parties were also required to comply 26 with Local Rule 260, which requires the parties to "enumerate 27 discretely" the material facts in support of the motion or opposition 28 and to "cite the particular portions of any pleading, affidavit,

1 deposition, interrogatory answer, admission, or other document relied 2 upon" to establish that fact or the denial of that fact. E.D. Cal. R.
3 260(a)-(b). Clearly, "a district court has no independent duty to scour 4 the record in search of a genuine issue of triable fact, and may rely on 5 the nonmoving party to identify with reasonable particularity the 6 evidence that precludes summary judgment[.]" Simmons v. Navajo County, 7 Ariz., 609 F.3d 1011, 1017 (9th Cir. 2010) (internal quotation marks 8 omitted). Chapman fails to specify what was overlooked. Therefore, 9 this portion of Chapman's motion is also denied.

10 II. CONCLUSION

11 For the reasons stated, Chapman's motion for reconsideration 12 is DENIED.
