EASTERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

10

NANCY INIGUEZ, Individually
and On Behalf of All Others
Similarly Situated,

Plaintiff,

v.

THE CBE GROUP,

Defendant.

No. 2:13-cv-00843-JAM-AC

ORDER DENYING DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO DISMISS AND MOTION TO STRIKE

17

18 This matter comes before the Court on Defendant The CBE
19 Group, Inc.'s ("Defendant") Motion to Dismiss (Doc. #18).
20 Plaintiff Nancy Iniguez opposes the motion (Doc. #22) and 21 Defendant replied (Doc. #23). Plaintiff also filed a Notice of 22 Recent Authority (Doc. #27). Along with its motion, Defendant 23 submitted 69 evidentiary exhibits and two declarations.

25

I. BACKGROUND

26

27

28

This lawsuit is based on Plaintiff's allegations that Defendant placed numerous calls to her cell phone seeking to collect a debt owed by a third party to Dish Network, LLC.

1 Plaintiff alleges that she informed Defendant that the third 2 party no longer controlled the cellular telephone number that 3 Defendant was calling but the calls continued unabated.
4 Plaintiff alleges violations of the Telephone Consumer 5 Protection Act ("TCPA") and seeks to represent a class of 6 similarly situated individuals.

7 Prior to filing the present lawsuit, Plaintiff initiated a 8 suit against Dish Network directly. Case No. 2:12-CV-02354 JAM-
9 AC. Plaintiff voluntarily dismissed her claims against Dish
10 Network, stating in a stipulation, "Plaintiff Iniguez's 11 dismissal from this action against DISH shall be with prejudice 12 . . . . Plaintiff Iniguez agrees to no longer participate in 13 the instant matter either as a named party or class member, but 14 reserves her right to take appropriate legal action against the 15 third party entity [which she believes made the offending
16 calls]." Case No. 2:12-CV-02354 JAM-AC (Doc. #19). Defendant 17 now moves to dismiss Plaintiff's suit on the grounds that it is 18 barred by res judicata and that the allegations in the complaint 19 do not state a claim for which relief can be granted.

20 Plaintiff's complaint contains two claims, the first for 21 negligent violations of the TCPA, 47 U.S.C. § 227, and the 22 second for willful and/or knowing violations of the same.
23 Federal subject matter jurisdiction exists pursuant to 28 U.S.C.
24 § 1331.

25 26 II. OPINION

27 A. Legal Standard

28 A party may move to dismiss an action for failure to state

1 a claim upon which relief can be granted pursuant to Federal 2 Rule of Civil Procedure 12(b)(6). To survive a motion to 3 dismiss a plaintiff must plead "enough facts to state a claim to 4 relief that is plausible on its face." Bell Atlantic Corp. v.
5 Twombly, 556 U.S. 662, 570 (2007). In considering a motion to 6 dismiss, a district court must accept all the allegations in the 7 complaint as true and draw all reasonable inferences in favor of 8 the plaintiff. Scheuer v. Rhodes, 416 U.S. 232, 236 (1974), 9 overruled on other grounds by Davis v. Scherer, 468 U.S. 183 10 (1984); Cruz v. Beto, 405 U.S. 319, 322 (1972). "First, to be 11 entitled to the presumption of truth, allegations in a complaint 12 or counterclaim may not simply recite the elements of a cause of 13 action, but must sufficiently allege underlying facts to give 14 fair notice and enable the opposing party to defend itself 15 effectively." Starr v. Baca, 652 F.3d 1202, 1216 (9th Cir.
16 2011), cert. denied, 132 S. Ct. 2101, 182 L. Ed. 2d 882 (U.S.
17 2012). "Second, the factual allegations that are taken as true 18 must plausibly suggest an entitlement to relief, such that it is 19 not unfair to require the opposing party to be subjected to the 20 expense of discovery and continued litigation." Id. Assertions 21 that are mere "legal conclusions" are therefore not entitled to 22 the presumption of truth. Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S. 662, 678 23 (2009) (citing Twombly, 550 U.S. at 555). Dismissal is 24 appropriate when a plaintiff fails to state a claim supportable
25 by a cognizable legal theory. Balistreri v. Pacifica Police 26 Department, 901 F.2d 696, 699 (9th Cir. 1990).

27       Upon granting a motion to dismiss for failure to state a 28 claim, a court has discretion to allow leave to amend the 1 complaint pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 15(a).

2 "Dismissal with prejudice and without leave to amend is not 3 appropriate unless it is clear . . . that the complaint could 4 not be saved by amendment." Eminence Capital, L.L.C. v. Aspeon, 5 Inc., 316 F.3d 1048, 1052 (9th Cir. 2003).

6 B. Opinion

7 1. Defendant's Evidentiary Exhibits

8 Defendant requests that the Court take judicial notice of 9 documents 1-66 and 68 attached to the Flynn Declaration (Doc.
10 ##18-2, 19). Plaintiff partially opposes Defendant's request 11 arguing that documents 1-59 and 67 are irrelevant for purposes 12 of the present motion because they concern the legislative 13 history of the TCPA, but the unambiguous language of the statute 14 controls the legal issues presented in this motion.

15 Generally, the Court may not consider material beyond the 16 pleadings in ruling on a motion to dismiss for failure to state 17 a claim. The exceptions are material attached to or relied on 18 by the complaint so long as authenticity is not disputed, or 19 matters of public record, provided that they are not subject to 20 reasonable dispute. E.g., Sherman v. Stryker Corp., 2009 WL 21 2241664 at *2 (C.D. Cal. Mar. 30, 2009) (citing Lee v. City of 22 Los Angeles, 250 F.3d 668, 688 (9th Cir. 2001) and Fed. R. Evid.
23 201).

24 Documents 1-57 and 59-66 are matters of public record and 25 the authenticity of the documents is not disputed. The Court 26 therefore grants Defendant's request with respect to those 27 documents, but they will only be considered insofar as they are 28 relevant to the legal issues presented by Defendant's motion.

1 Document 58 is hearsay in the form of a news article and not a 2 matter of public record. Defendant's request is denied with 3 respect to document 58. Plaintiff does not oppose Defendant's 4 request with respect to document 68, and notice is taken of that 5 document.

6 Defendant initially sought to introduce documents 67 and 69 7 of the Flynn Declaration as evidentiary items in support of its 8 motion. Plaintiff correctly objected to those items because 9 extrinsic evidence is generally inadmissible at the pleading
10 stage, but Defendant subsequently filed an additional request 11 for judicial notice with respect to documents 67 and 69 (Doc.
12 #24). Document 67 is a copy of initial disclosures made by Dish
13 Network in Plaintiff's prior lawsuit and document 69 is a copy 14 of email transmissions between counsel in the same suit. The 15 fact that the documents may have been filed is a matter of 16 public record which cannot be reasonably disputed, but the 17 contents of the documents themselves cannot be accepted as true 18 at the pleading stage because the contents were prepared for 19 litigation and are subject to dispute. Defendant's request with 20 respect to these documents is therefore denied.

21 Finally, Defendant submitted a declaration from Jeff 22 Magsamen (Doc. #18-7) and Plaintiff objects to the admission of 23 the declaration. The declaration cannot be considered in 24 conjunction with Defendant's Motion to Dismiss because the 25 motion is limited to testing the sufficiency of the pleadings.
26 Likewise, Plaintiff objects to any testimony in the Flynn 27 declaration beyond authentication of the exhibits subject to 28 judicial notice. Any testimony beyond authentication of the 1 judicially noticed exhibits is also inadmissible at this stage

2 of the litigation. Plaintiff's objections are therefore 3 sustained.

4 2. Motion to Dismiss

5 a) Res Judicata

6 Defendant first argues that Plaintiff's suit is precluded
7 by her previous suit against Dish Network. Plaintiff responds 8 that her previous suit was not adjudicated on the merits and it 9 was between different parties, meaning that the previous suit 10 has no preclusive effect in this instance.

11 Res judicata, also known as claim preclusion, prohibits 12 lawsuits on "any claims that were raised or could have been 13 raised" in a prior action. Owens v. Kaiser Found. Health Plan, 14 Inc., 244 F.3d 708, 713 (9th Cir. 2001) (quoting W. Radio Servs.
15 Co. v. Glickman, 123 F.3d 1189, 1192 (9th Cir. 1997)). In order 16 for a claim to be barred by res judicata, there must be "(1) an 17 identity of claims, (2) a final judgment on the merits, and 18 (3) identity or privity between parties." Id.

19 After reviewing the documents associated with Plaintiff's 20 previous lawsuit against Dish Network, it is clear that her 21 present suit is not barred by res judicata. Plaintiff was 22 dismissed from the previous suit by stipulation of the parties 23 because she determined that Dish Network did not make the 24 allegedly offending calls, but they were made by a third party.
25 In the stipulated dismissal, Plaintiff reserved "her right to 26 take appropriate legal action against the third party entity."
27 Flynn Decl., Ex. 68 ¶ 4. It is therefore apparent that 28 Plaintiff was not dismissed from her previous lawsuit due to a

1 judgment on the merits, she was only dismissed so that she could 2 pursue claims against Defendant, the entity which she believes
3 made calls to her in violation of the TCPA. While it is true 4 that a dismissal with prejudice is tantamount to adjudication on 5 the merits, the stipulation agreed to by Plaintiff in her prior 6 suit was clearly only preclusive with respect to Dish Network 7 and not the defendant in Plaintiff's current lawsuit against the 8 CBE Group.

9 Defendant cites Semtek Int'l Inc. v. Lockheed Martin Corp.
10 to argue that a dismissal is either with prejudice and the 11 equivalent of adjudication on the merits or it is without 12 prejudice. 531 U.S. 497, 505 (2001). Defendant reasons that 13 since the words "with prejudice" appear in the stipulation filed 14 by Plaintiff in the Dish Network suit, the adjudication must 15 have been on the merits. Defendant reads too much from Semtek's 16 holding. In that case, the Supreme Court was discussing the 17 preclusive effect on other courts of a dismissal with prejudice.
18 Id. at 505-506 (holding that a dismissal with prejudice does not 19 necessarily preclude all future suits on the same claim).
20 Defendant's reasoning also ignores the carve out provision in 21 the stipulation that expressly preserved Plaintiff's right to 22 sue a third party entity for the same conduct, i.e., the 23 stipulated dismissal with respect to Defendant was without 24 prejudice.

25 In reply, Defendant also cites Federal Rule of Civil 26 Procedure 19 for the proposition that Plaintiff was required to 27 bring her current claims along with those she attempted to bring 28 against Dish Network in her prior suit. Rule 19, however, only

1 applies when the joinder of an available party is required, and 2 Defendant makes no showing that it was a required party in 3 Plaintiff's suit against Dish Network. Accordingly, the Court 4 finds that the stipulated dismissal in Plaintiff's suit against 5 Dish Network does not constitute a final judgment on the merits, 6 and Defendant's motion to dismiss on this basis is denied.

7                   b) Failure to State a Claim

8           Defendant also moves to dismiss both of Plaintiff's TCPA 9 claims on the grounds that they are inadequately pled.
10 Defendant argues that the TCPA does not apply to debt 11 collectors, Plaintiff does not adequately allege that an 12 automated dialer was used, and finally Plaintiff does not allege 13 an injury arising from the calls.

14           The TCPA is codified at 47 U.S.C. § 227. The statute 15 contains prohibitions concerning calls made to residential 16 telephone lines and prohibitions concerning calls made to 17 wireless telephone lines. 47 U.S.C. § 227(b)(1)(B); 47 U.S.C.
18 § 227(b)(1)(A)(iii). Under the prohibition related to 19 residential lines, the Federal Communications Commission ("FCC") 20 is permitted to make exceptions for certain calls that are not 21 made for a commercial purpose or those made for a commercial 22 purpose that do not contain an unsolicited advertisement and 23 will not adversely affect privacy rights. 47 U.S.C. § 24 227(b)(2)(B). The statute does not permit the FCC to make 25 similar exceptions for calls made to wireless numbers.

26           The TCPA clearly prohibits making any call "using any 27 automatic telephone dialing system or an artificial or 28 prerecorded voice" to a wireless number. 47 U.S.C.

1 § 227(b)(1)(A). Since the applicable section is written in the 2 disjunctive, a violation may occur if any one of an automated
3 telephone dialing system, an artificial voice, or a prerecorded
4 voice is used to make the call. In re Pacific-Atlantic Trading 5 Co., 64 F.3d 1292, 1302 (9th Cir. 1995). The only statutory 6 exceptions to the wireless number prohibition are calls made for 7 emergency purposes or with the prior consent of the call 8 recipient. 47 U.S.C. § 227(b)(1)(A). The TCPA prohibits making 9 offending calls to a cellular number in addition to other 10 services for which the called party is charged, but there is no 11 statutory requirement that a recipient be charged for an 12 incoming call on a cellular line in order for a violation to 13 occur. 47 U.S.C. § 227(b)(1)(A)(iii). In sum, the TCPA clearly 14 prohibits using an automated telephone dialing system, an 15 artificial voice, or a prerecorded voice to make a call to a 16 cellular phone number where prior consent was not obtained 17 except for emergency purposes.

18 i. Application of the TCPA to Debt
19 Collectors

20 Defendant first argues that the TCPA does not apply to the 21 telephone calls it makes because it is a debt collector and the 22 TCPA does not apply to debt collectors. To support its 23 position, Defendant cites extensively to the legislative history 24 of the TCPA. Plaintiff responds that the legislative history is 25 irrelevant absent any ambiguity in the statutory text of the 26 TCPA.

27 The first fundamental canon of statutory interpretation
28 requires courts to accept the plain meaning of a statute absent

1 any ambiguity in the text. Barnhart v. Sigmon Coal Co., 534
2 U.S. 438, 461-62 (2002). "When the words of a statute are 3 unambiguous, then, this first canon is also the last: 'judicial 4 inquiry is complete.'" Id. (quoting Conn. Nat'l Bank v.
5 Germain, 503 U.S. 249, 254 (1992)).

6 In this case, the TCPA is clear that it applies to any call 7 made to a cellular telephone. There is no exception for debt 8 collectors in the statute, nor does the statute permit any 9 regulatory agency to make exceptions to the sections applicable 10 to cellular numbers. In accordance with this position, the 11 federal regulations applicable to the TCPA do not contain a debt 12 collector exception, or any exceptions related to calls made to 13 cellular phones. 47 C.F.R. § 64.1200. The TCPA therefore 14 applies to debt collectors and they may be liable for offending
15 calls. Blair v. CBE Group Inc., No. 13-CV-134-MMA(WVG), 2013 WL
16 2029155, 3, Slip Copy (S.D. Cal. May 13, 2013); see also Hurrey-
17 Mayer v. Wells Fargo Home Mortg., Inc., No. 09cv1470 DMS (NLS), 18 2009 WL 3647632, at *3-4 (S.D. Cal. Nov. 4, 2009).

19 ii. Automatic Telephone Dialing System
20 Allegations

21 Defendant argues that Plaintiff's TCPA claims are 22 insufficient because her allegations related to Defendant's use 23 of an automatic telephone dialing system are vague and 24 conclusory. Defendant also contends that debt collection calls 25 are not made using such systems because the debt collector is 26 obviously trying to reach a particular person, not make random 27 calls as required by the TCPA. Plaintiff responds that she 28 specifically alleges that the system used by Defendant falls

1 under the TCPA's definition of automatic telephone dialing
2 system.

3 Plaintiff's complaint alleges both that Defendant used an 4 automatic telephone dialing system and that Defendant's system
5 utilized an artificial voice. Compl. ¶ 17. Either allegation 6 is sufficient on its own to support Plaintiff's claims. The 7 allegation that Defendant's system utilized an artificial voice
8 is based on Plaintiff's own experience when she answered 9 Defendant's phone calls, and it is therefore not vague or 10 conclusory. Additionally, whether or not Defendant's system
11 randomly generated Plaintiff's number is not determinative 12 because the TCPA only requires that the system have that 13 capability, not that it was actually utilized with respect to a 14 particular phone call. Satterfield v. Simon & Schuster, Inc., 15 569 F.3d 946, 951 (9th Cir. 2009). Plaintiff's allegations with 16 respect to Defendant's use of an automatic telephone dialing 17 system and an artificial voice are accordingly sufficient and 18 Defendant's motion to dismiss on this ground is denied.

19 iii. Allegations of Injury

20 Defendant finally argues that Plaintiff's TCPA claims fail 21 because she does not allege injury, i.e., that she was forced to 22 pay for the allegedly offending phone calls. Plaintiff responds 23 that such an allegation is not required to state a prima facie
24 TCPA claim.

25 The plain text of the TCPA supports Plaintiff's position.
26 The applicable statutory provision prohibits calls "to any 27 telephone number assigned to a . . . cellular telephone service, 28 . . . or any service for which the called party is charged for

1 the call[.]” 47 U.S.C. § 227(b)(1)(A)(iii). Since this section 2 is written in the disjunctive, a call is prohibited if it is 3 made to a cellular number or if it is made such that the 4 receiving party is charged for the call. Based on the plain 5 language of the statute, Plaintiff’s allegations are sufficient
6 without an allegation that she was charged for Defendant’s calls
7 to her cellular telephone. Blair v. CBE Group Inc., No. 13-CV-
8 134-MMA(WVG), 2013 WL 2029155, 4, Slip Copy (S.D. Cal. May 13, 9 2013). Defendant’s motion to dismiss on this ground is 10 therefore denied.

11 3. Motion to Strike Class Allegations

12 Defendant concurrently moves to strike Plaintiff’s class 13 allegations arguing that the requirements of Federal Rule of 14 Civil Procedure 23 are not satisfied in this suit. Plaintiff
15 responds that the motion is premature, and she is entitled to a 16 reasoned decision on her pending class certification motion 17 (Doc. #26).

18 Class allegations can be stricken or dismissed at the 19 pleading stage. Kamm v. Cal. City Dev. Co., 509 F.2d 205, 212
20 (9th Cir. 1975). Dismissing class allegations at the pleading 21 stage, however, is rare because the parties have not yet engaged 22 in discovery and the shape of a class action is often driven by 23 the facts of a particular case. In re Wal-Mart Stores, Inc.
24 Wage & Hour Litig., 505 F. Supp. 2d 609, 615-16 (N.D. Cal.
25 2007).

26 This case is not one in which the pleadings clearly 27 indicate that the class action requirements cannot be met.
28 Defendant’s motion to strike is accordingly premature, and it is

1 denied. Id.; Blair, 2013 WL 2029155, at 5. The sufficiency of 2 Plaintiff's class allegations are better addressed in 3 Plaintiff's pending motion for class certification.
