

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9
10
11
12
13
14
15
16
17
18
19
20
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE EASTERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

DAVID LOZANO,
Plaintiff,
v.
JAMES GIOVINO, et al.,
Defendants.

No. 2:14-cv-2694 TLN DAD P

FINDINGS AND RECOMMENDATIONS

Plaintiff was committed to the custody of the California Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation (CDCR) pursuant to a criminal conviction he suffered in state court in 2010. (ECF 1 at 11.) In 2011, he was relocated to La Palma Correctional Center (LPCC), a private correctional facility located in Eloy, Arizona (id.), but CDCR retains ultimate custody over plaintiff for the entirety of his sentence.

Plaintiff originally filed this action pro se in Sacramento County Superior Court on August 14, 2014, identifying both defendants as members of the “LPCC medical department” and alleging they were deliberately indifferent to his serious medical condition. (Id. at 11-13.) On November 17, 2014, the defendants removed the action to this court, asserting that federal jurisdiction lies under 28 U.S.C. §§ 1331 and 1332. (Id. at 2.) Defendants have now filed a motion to dismiss the action, arguing two grounds: (1) that the court lacks personal jurisdiction over both of them and (2) that this court is the improper venue for plaintiff’s claims. They have

1 also requested in the alternative that this action be transferred to the U.S. District Court for the 2 District of Arizona pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1404(a).

3 I. Background

4 In his complaint plaintiff alleges as follows. Plaintiff fell on his right wrist while playing
5 basketball at LPCC in 2013. (ECF No. 1 at 11.) Defendant Giovino, a doctor at LPCC, ordered
6 an x-ray of the wrist and “informed Plaintiff that x-ray results were negative for any fractures or 7 breaks.” (Id. at 12.) According to plaintiff, he asked Dr. Giovino to perform an MRI of his wrist
8 because he believed the extreme pain he was suffering indicated a more serious injury, but the 9 doctor refused and instead merely issued the plaintiff ibuprofen. (Id.)

10 Plaintiff submitted a CDCR health care appeal to LPCC, requesting to be seen by a 11 specialist. (Id. at 22-23.) That inmate appeal was denied at the initial level by defendant Burnett,
12 the Health Services Administrator at LPCC.¹ (Id.) Plaintiff alleges he remained in extreme pain
13 for six months until he was finally taken to “an outside hospital” where examination “revealed
14 Plaintiff had a severe fracture that required a complex surgery due to the wrong healing of the 15 break because of no immediate surgery.” (Id. at 11.) Plaintiff avers that he “suffered almost one
16 year of continued pain and suffering at the hands of Giovino and Burnett.” (Id. at 13.)

17 II. Jurisdiction

18 A federal court has the freestanding obligation to ensure it has subject matter jurisdiction
19 over a case, including a case that has come to it under the federal removal statute. See 28 U.S.C.
20 § 1447(c). A case that is filed originally in state court is removable to federal court only if there
21 is on the face of the complaint a basis for finding federal subject matter jurisdiction under 28
22 U.S.C. § 1331 or § 1332. See 28 U.S.C. § 1441(a), (b); Wayne v. DHL Worldwide Express, 294
23

24 ¹ It appears from the documents attached to plaintiff’s complaint that a CDCR prisoner with a
25 medical grievance at LPCC follows the usual three-step administrative inmate appeals process
26 that CDCR inmates at California prisons are required to follow. However, at least in this
27 instance, the first-level response was generated at LPCC by an LPCC official, defendant Burnett, 28 who applied the applicable California regulations to plaintiff’s inmate appeal. (See ECF No. 1 at 22-23.) The second- and third-level responses were generated by non-party officials with California Health Care Services, a division of CDCR, located in Elk Grove, California within the boundaries of this court. (See ECF No. 1 at 24-28.)

1 F.3d 1179, 1183 (9th Cir. 2002). Here, while the plaintiff repeatedly uses the phrase “deliberate
2 indifference” to describe the defendants’ state of mind or attitude toward his medical condition,
3 plaintiff does not go so far as to allege a claim explicitly under 42 U.S.C. § 1983, which is a state
4 prisoner’s source for a federal right of action for deliberate indifference to a serious medical 5 condition. However, plaintiff does not expressly invoke California state law as the basis of his 6 claims either.

7 Courts must strictly construe the removal statute against removal jurisdiction. Boggs v.
8 Lewis, 863 F.2d 662, 663 (9th Cir. 1988). On the other hand, the court holds pro se pleadings to 9 a less stringent standard than those drafted by lawyers. See Haines v. Kerner, 404 U.S. 519, 520
10 (1972). “In particular, no heightened pleading rule requires plaintiffs seeking damages for 11 violations of constitutional rights to invoke § 1983 expressly in order to state a claim.” Johnson
12 v. City of Shelby, Miss., ___ U.S. ___, ___, 135 S. Ct. 346, 347 (2014). Had plaintiff filed this 13 complaint originally in this court, the court would have had ample grounds for construing it as an 14 action brought under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 and would have done so. See Snow v. Ford Motor 15 Company, 561 F.2d 787, 789 (9th Cir. 1977) (stating “the well-settled rule that . . . a federal court
16 can exercise removal jurisdiction over a case only if it would have had jurisdiction over it as 17 originally brought by the plaintiff”). The court concludes, therefore, it has subject matter
18 jurisdiction over this action under 28 U.S.C. § 1331 and removal jurisdiction under 28 U.S.C. §
19 1441(a).²

20 III. Venue

21 Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 12(b)(3) authorizes a party to challenge the propriety of 22 venue in the district court where a plaintiff has filed his case. Once a defendant makes a motion
23 under Rule 12(b)(3), the plaintiff bears the burden of showing that venue is proper. See Piedmont
24 Label Co. v. Sun Garden Packing Co., 598 F.2d 491, 496 (9th Cir. 1979); Koresko v.
25 RealNetworks, Inc., 291 F.Supp.2d 1157, 1160 (E.D. Cal. 2003); Willis v. Citi Residential

26
27 ² Having found that federal question jurisdiction exists on the face of plaintiff’s complaint, the 28 undersigned does not address whether diversity jurisdiction would also have provided a basis for removal under 28 U.S.C. 1332 and 28 U.S.C. § 1441(b).

1 Lending, No. CIV S-07-2691 GEB DAD PS, 2008 WL 2074477 (E.D. Cal. May 8, 2008).
2 Analysis for purposes of Rule 12(b)(3) does not require that all factual statements in the 3 complaint be accepted as true, and the court may consider facts and evidence outside the 4 pleadings in assessing such a motion. See Argueta v. Banco Mexicano, S.A., 87 F.3d 320, 324
5 (9th Cir. 1996); Berman v. Modell, No. 2:13-cv-0565 TLN AC PS, 2013 WL 5703352 at *5.
6 However, the court must draw all reasonable inferences in favor of the non-moving party.
7 Berman, 2013 WL 5703352 at *5.

8 Venue for federal claims is proper in the district in which (1) any defendant resides, if all
9 of the defendants reside in the same state, (2) the district in which a substantial part of the events
10 or omissions giving rise to the claim occurred, or a substantial part of property that is the subject
11 of the action is situated, or (3) a judicial district in which any defendant may be found, if there is 12 no district in which the action may otherwise be brought. 28 U.S.C. § 1391(b).

13 Here, both defendants have submitted affidavits in which they state they live in Arizona
14 and have never lived or worked in California. (See Declaration of Burnett (ECF No. 3-1) at 1; 15 Declaration of Giovino (ECF No. 3-2) at 1.) All of the actions alleged in the complaint occurred
16 in Arizona. Therefore the first two factors of § 1391(b) lean strongly in favor of finding venue is 17 improper in this district and that it properly lies in Arizona; the third factor is inapplicable.
18 Indeed the undersigned and at least one other federal judge in California have previously reached
19 this same conclusion analyzing the venue for claims brought by California inmates at LPCC. See 20 Tilton v. Brown, No. 2:12-cv-2020 LKK DAD P, 2013 WL3804583 at *3 (E.D. Cal. July 19, 21 2013) (finding that the proper venue for claims regarding access to the LPCC library was in 22 Arizona); Marroquin v. Cate, No. C 11-4535 SBA (PR), 2013 WL 451405, at *4 (N.D. Cal. Feb.
23 5, 2013) (concluding that venue for plaintiff's claims concerning reasonable accommodations,
24 adequacy of medical treatment and failure to protect at LPCC is in Arizona); see also Lee v.
25 Corrections Corporation of America, 525 F. Supp. 2d 1238, 1242 (D. Hawaii 2007) (rejecting 26 plaintiff's argument that venue was proper in Hawaii based on the contract between CCA and the 27 Hawaii Department of Public Safety (DPS) and the latter's responsibility to monitor the treatment
28 of Hawaii inmates, and concluding that venue was proper in Mississippi where the plaintiff

1 allegedly sustained injuries when he was attacked by other inmates); Davis v. State of Hawaii,
2 Civ. No. 08-00434 JMS-BMK, 2009 WL 1227841, at *4 (D. Hawaii May 4, 2009) (concluding
3 that venue was proper in Arizona, where the Hawaii state prisoner was incarcerated and where he
4 allegedly was prevented from practicing his Native Hawaiian religion). Nothing in this case
5 suggests a different conclusion. Accordingly, the undersigned concludes that here, venue is 6 improper in this district.

7 IV. Dismissal vs. Transfer

8 Once a federal district court decides venue is improper, it has discretion to dismiss the 9 case pursuant to Rule 12(b)(3) or transfer it to a proper venue if the convenience of the parties
10 and the interests of justice allow. 28 U.S.C. § 1406(a); King v. Russell, 963 F.2d 1301, 1304 (9th 11 Cir. 1992). “The purpose of § 1404(a) is ‘to prevent the waste of time, energy, and money’ and 12 ‘to protect litigants, witnesses and the public against unnecessary inconvenience and expense.’”
13 Lung v. Yachts Int’l, 980 F. Supp. 1362, 1369 (D. Haw. 1997) (quoting Van Dusen v. Barrack, 14 376 U.S. 612 (1964)). Furthermore, a federal district court need not assure itself that it has 15 personal jurisdiction over the defendants before exercising its discretion to transfer a case to the 16 appropriate venue rather than dismiss it outright. See Berman, 2013 WL 5703352 at *5 (stating 17 that “[b]ecause the undersigned recommends the transfer of this entire case on venue grounds, the 18 court need not reach the question whether this court has personal jurisdiction over the 19 defendant”); Kawamoto v. CB Richard Ellis, Inc., 225 F.Supp.2d 1209, 1211-12 (D. Haw. 2002)
20 (collecting cases).

21 In Jones v. GNC Franchising, Inc. 211 F.3d 495, 498-99 (9th Cir. 2000), the Ninth Circuit
22 listed numerous factors to be considered in deciding whether to transfer a case under 28 U.S.C. §
23 1404(a). Not every factor will apply in every case. They are: (1) the location where the relevant 24 agreements were negotiated and executed; (2) the state that is most familiar with the governing 25 law; (3) plaintiff’s choice of forum; (4) the respective parties’ contacts with the forum; (5) the 26 contacts relating to the plaintiff’s cause of action; (6) the differences in the costs of litigation in 27 the two forums; (7) the availability of compulsory process to compel attendance of unwilling non-
28 party witnesses; and (8) the ease of access to sources of proof. Here, all of the witnesses

1 necessary to prosecute and defend this case are located in Arizona. All three parties to the action
2 reside in Arizona. While the plaintiff's choice of forum often is a compelling factor leaning 3 against transfer, when the plaintiff does not live in his chosen forum, that factor loses weight in 4 the analysis. See Berman, 2013 WL 5703352 at *9. That is the case here. The convenience of
5 the parties and any witnesses would clearly be well served by transferring this case to the District
6 of Arizona.

7 Finally, the interests of justice would be served because "transfer of the action as opposed
8 to dismissal will spare plaintiff the delay and expense involved in re-filing the action and re-
9 serving the defendant." Id. at *7. Relying on that ground, as well as the others discussed above,
10 the undersigned concludes that the defendants' alternative request that this action be transferred to 11 the District of Arizona should be granted. For the reasons set forth at the outset, the motion to 12 dismiss for lack of personal jurisdiction and for improper venue should be denied.³

13 Accordingly, IT IS RECOMMENDED that:

- 14 1. Defendants' motion to dismiss (ECF No. 3) be denied.
- 15 2. The court find that venue in this case is improper in this District.
- 16 3. The alternative motion to transfer this action (ECF No. 3) to the U.S. District Court for 17 the District of Arizona pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1404(a) be granted.

18 These findings and recommendations are submitted to the United States District Judge
19 assigned to the case, pursuant to the provisions of 28 U.S.C. § 636(b)(1). Within fourteen days
20 after being served with these findings and recommendations, any party may file written
21 objections with the court and serve a copy on all parties. Such a document should be captioned 22 "Objections to Magistrate Judge's Findings and Recommendations." Any response to the 23 objections shall be served and filed within fourteen days after service of the objections. The 24 ////

25 ³ As explained above, the undersigned need not decide whether it has personal jurisdiction over a
26 case before transferring it under 28 U.S.C. § 1404(a). See Berman, 2013 WL 5703352 at *5 n.3
27 ("Courts have repeatedly held that a change of venue from a forum where there is a difficult 28 question of personal jurisdiction to a district where there are not such uncertainties serves the interest of justice"). Therefore the undersigned does not reach defendants' argument that this court lacks personal jurisdiction over them.

1 parties are advised that failure to file objections within the specified time may waive the right to 2 appeal the District Court's order. Martinez v. Ylst, 951 F.2d 1153 (9th Cir. 1991).

3 Dated: August 21, 2015

4

5 _____
6 DALE A. DROZD
7 UNITED STATES MAGISTRATE JUDGE

8 hm
9 loza2694.57

10
11
12
13
14
15
16
17
18
19
20
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28